POLO GROUNDS, Oct. 11.—Victory perched high on the bats of the Yankees this afternoon and engulfed the American League in an 8-to-5 defeat. Over 35,000 people saw the Giants even the World Series which now stand Giants 3 and Yankees 3.

Bartlett, who took Tony's place in the box in the second inning, seemed to have the measure of the Yankees and erased ten of them in the form of with strike-outs. The Yanks had a hard time with their mound artists today and the far-nominated Bartlett, the "Hawthorne" boy who was to show the Giants what it meant to stand up before a good twirler, only lasted until the end of the second inning when Shawkey took his place.

Shawkey held the mound until the ninth inning when William Pierce warmed up and took his place. The fans were at the highest pitch of excitement today and time and again arose in a body and cheered the players in what was said by many to have been the most exciting game of the six games of the series that have been played.

Neither team can win the championship now by getting two games, and it is expected the Polo grounds tomorrow will not be large enough to hold the gigantic crowd, who are now making ready for "Terri's favorite team."

POLO GROUNDS, Oct. 11.—The day of Harry Harper set this afternoon, almost to the pitch of the drama in their struggle over the world series with the Yankees. The National League have set in like a left hand in the series and Walt Barnes, the Yankee catcher, paid off before the game.

It Harper was the old Yankee swash-buckler, the plate was broken, so to speak, in the early part of the day.

Harper, though not a runaway and quiet, still is held in reverence by the fans with one game to go take a gamble today, but not so the name who must capture the center of focus or even a fair chance of winning the series. Manager McGuire looked to his final plan who was known on the field last week and to all those who went to Foley's room and called a brilliant game to win for him in today's game, but Tony was taken out of the box in the first inning of the game when they scored three on Tony and Bartlett took the place.

The Yankees began the fourth of the game with a home run and the next in the grand stand and later went down to the Yankee pit, but as was discussed in citizens' opinion, he was called out by Uncle Harry.

Manager McGuire was prepared to place his men in the front row in the right field. It was learned in the club house that Walt, after his pitched eight innings yesterday, was a tiny split, a gammar, but had refused to leave the game.

The day is bright and clear and the sun mounted the soft clouds in the bleachers.

The Yankees played hard in the Giants today, who were the over-riders. A large crowd was on hand when the players took the field and the outfield seats were jammed, but those closest to be a lot of empty seats in the big grand stand. Harper and Shawkey took care in the Yankees' hitting, passing and bunting, and Ferguson pitched to the Yankees.

The battery for the Yankees were Tony, Barnes and Harper.

SCHOOL OFFICERS
MEETING LARGELY ATTENDED TODAY

The annual meeting of the school officers of Delta County opened this morning with C. E. Wolcott, county school commissioner, presiding. The meeting was given over to free discussion and questions asked by representatives from the various districts in the county. Mr. W. J. Parker, Delta State Superintendent of Public Instruction, was the speaker of the day. Mr. Parker referred all questions pertaining to law, asked by the school representatives in Michigan.

He discussed the rural school and told of the standardizing of methods and buildings used by the rural schools in Michigan. The consolidated rural school has proved an outstanding feature of the program carried on in this state by the state board of public instruction, said Mr. Parker. All blue prints of rural schools since he came to the state board in January have been submitted to the state board of public instruction.

The meeting was attended by a larger representation than any meeting ever held in Delta County and county school officers are much elated at the success of the session.

Delta County May Have Scout Council
in the Near Future

At a meeting of the rotary club yesterday at the Delta Hotel, Scout Commissioner H. H. Zorn told of repeated requests from different sections of Delta County to consider plans in establishing a Delta County Boy Scout Council. Mr. Zorn stated that the present Escanaba Boy Scout Council would become only a part of the Delta County Council, all other sections being represented in the council. The cost of maintaining the Boy Scouts of Delta County for one year would be $100, while Miss Robb will attend as delegate from the local chapter.

CLUB WOMEN OPEN MEETING AT GRAND RAPIDS FOR FOUR DAY SESSION; MANY ATTEND

Several Important Subjects Are to Be Taken Up At Once.

Mainnutrition of Children in the Schools and Movie Censorship will Come Before Meeting.

(By Associated Press)

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 11.—A proposal to establish a central women's council that would act as a clearing house for proposed legislation favorable to women and their interests, state censorship of motion pictures and malnutrition of children in the public schools were the chief subjects to be discussed at the annual convention of the Michigan Federation of Women's Clubs, that opened yesterday. The convention will continue four days and promises to be one of the most important in the history of the organization.

Under the central plan, a group of women clubs with the authority to pass upon proposed legislation in its various stages, the state federation would have desired bills to the attention of the state legislature and the public. It is proposed any woman's group in a town in the state, regardless of affiliation, might submit their desires to this central organization, which would receive attention.

The women are expected to endorse the state censorship of motion pictures. They have done so after conventions of the state Federation.

A study of malnutrition among school children proposed and a plan will be suggested to end this condition wherever found. The proposed includes a study of what is needed in other respects and the various causes of malnutrition and what may be given the children at school.

Several women of nation-wide prominence are on the speakers' program. These include Mrs. Theresa G. Winter of Minneapolis, president of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, the national organizer, and Mrs. E. F. Penney banker of Austin, Texas, a past president of the National Federation. Mrs. Winter will talk about and Mr. Penney tomorrow evening. Mrs. Mac N. Oberholser, who speaks best, as "the enemy of jazz music," to talk tomorrow night. Mrs. Oberholser, a Chicago woman, is chairman of the music department of the General Federation.

Mrs. William H. Arnold of Detroit, president of the state Federation, and will preside at the convention. The presidents are Mrs. Jessie M. House of Grand Rapids, and Mrs. H. P. Rockwell of Pontiac. Mrs. Charles P. Rogers of Sartell, Minn., Mrs. F. R. Peeler of Edina, Minn., are the secretaries. Mr. G. F. Genshaw of Iron Mountain is editor.

A large delegation is here from the upper peninsula, extension of service clubs having been made in that part of the state within the last year.

GOLD MEDAL TO SCHOOL CHILD FOR A LETTER

Department of Education Offers Prize worth Trying to Win.

Prize Goes to Writer of Best Letter to Go With Medal Which Will Be Given.

Marshal Foch.

(By Associated Press)

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 11.—A gold medal has been offered by the state department of education to the school child under the tenth grade who will write the best letter of presentation to accompany the gift of a gold medal to Marshal Foch, during his visit to the country by the school children of the United States.

Funds for the purchase of the medal to give the former leader of the allied armies will be raised by collection from school children. At the same time, a fund for the construction of two school buildings in France is presented to that country by the school children of the country, now scattered throughout the world.

The schools are to be known as the Washington Lafayette High School and the Franklin High School.

The quota for Michigan children to the combined fund is $7,500.

In a later letter, no to all local school officials, State Superintendent of Instruction Thomas E. Johnson, advised that one cent a child will raise the required amount. He stresses the fact in the letter that it has never been the policy of the state department to encourage subscriptions from school children, and that more are to consider they must give a slight amount.

State officials, however, do stress that this is an extraordinary case and have authorized the gift of gold medal which will have copies of the gift to General Marshall, Foch, and the French and military leaders.

The funds will be collected in the cities and towns by the school committees who will forward the money to Frank W. Evans, Jr., permanent local committee chair, who will forward the money to the state superintendent of instruction.

IRON MOUNTAIN'S FORD PLANT

Iron Mountain is kidding itself when it stands up on its hind legs and tells the world it is such a good town that Henry Ford picked it out from hundreds of other places as the place for a saw mill and a whole lot of other things that will make the town twice its present size and increase real estate values many times.

For argument sake we will admit that Iron Mountain is a good town and we are glad to see the Ford plant there, but the town, the location, the climate, or anything else of that nature had even a little bit to do with the Ford plant going to Iron Mountain and we have got to see the credit where it belongs.

There is just one reason and one reason alone, why it Ford-built a plant at Iron Mountain and that reason is Edsel G. Kingsford.

Mr. Kingsford could easily have had the plant built at some other place if he had wanted to do so, still the Iron Mountain people seem to have lost sight of that fact.

Mr. Kingsford has been intimately acquainted with Mr. Ford for many years and his sound business judgment compensated by Mr. Ford. When Mr. Kingsford put the excels on the table before the automobile king, showed him the location and explained a few other things, the plant was built in Iron Mountain.

It's high time the Iron Mountainites called out the band and gave a couple of banquets for their own townsmen, for it was the "real guy" who made it possible for Iron Mountain to get on the map as the largest city in the Upper Peninsula.

AMERICA IN SAMOA

We have as a rule deemed ourselves pretty highly as colonial administration. It is our duty to point with pride to the record in Cuba, in the Philippines, for examples of orderly, enlightened, benevolent government in island colonies. Added testimony to the quality of American overlordship comes in the recent statement of Frederick O'Brien, confidante of the South Seas, that of all the peoples of Oceania the Samoans only are thriving. And they are the only ones under the American flag.

While other island folk are dying out, through the devastating influence of the white man's vices, his diseases and his exploitation, the Samoans are flourishing and actually increasing in numbers, say O'Brien for Samoa's good fortune. There is not too much interference with native customs, liquor and drugs are strictly barred, and exploitation is kept down through the government's acting as buyer for the island's chief products.

Some of the credit for the good record may be due to the superiority of the Samoans over other Pacific types. They are generally held to have the best figures of savages, combined with more intelligence than most others. But even so, the American regime there is entitled to pride for its wise administration. And it is in line with our general policy, for American colonial agents have shown considerable ability in conserving single races, where they clash into conflict with the complexities of our civilization.

Samoa, without drugs, liquor and picturesquely hard-driven exploiters, may not be as colorful a place for the traveler as some of the other islands of the South Seas, but it is manifestly a hemisphere more comfortable for the Samoans.

RESPONSIBILITY, TOO

If a wife distills and sells liquor in a home, with her husband's knowledge, he shares her guilt, even though he does not participate in the transaction. This is a ruling by the Michigan Supreme court. It is based on recognition of the husband as head of the household, hence responsible for what goes on in the home.

Rights carry with them certain responsibilities. That is civilization's way of making us pay 100 cents for $1.00 value received. Women, obtaining the right to vote, also take on the responsibility of voting intelligently, which few men do.

Stories of Great Scouts

By Elmo Scott Watson

Western Newspaper Union
NED BUNTLINE, SCOUT WHO WAS WRITER OF PLAYS

Some of the old scouts turned their heads to quiet trades when the Indian fighting days were over. Buffalo Bill was the owner of a Wild West show, Edgar S. Paxson became a painter, and Capt. Jack Crawford was a poet. It was left for Ned Buntline to add another to the list of unusual things for a scout to do. He became the writer of dime novels and the producer of melodramas equally exciting.

Judson was his real name, and Edward Zane Carroll Judson was the full title with which his parents buried him on the day of his birth in Philadelphia in 1832. He became one of the boys who ran away to sea and when he was only thirteen he rescued the crew of a boat that had been run down by a ferry steamer in New York Harbor. Soon afterwards he became a midshipman in the United States navy.

Then the West called him and Judson answered the call. During the Civil War he was chief of scouts among the Indians on the western frontier, and after that he wandered all over the great plains as hunter and trapper. He made the acquaintance of Buffalo Bill, Wild Bill and Texas Jack, and began writing his thrilling tales part fact and part fiction about their lives. Ned Buntline was the pen name he used in his writing, and Ned Buntline he became famous.

Buntline believed that eastern audiences would be interested in plays based on life in the Far West, and in 1862 he persuaded Buffalo Bill and Texas Jack to come East and take part in one of his productions. They arrived in Chicago on Wednesday and found that Buntline was plotting to open the show the next Monday. He had rented the largest theater in the city, but none of the other actors had been engaged to speak with the two cowboys. In fact the play had not yet been written!

With characteristic energy Buntline set to work and in four hours he had written a play titled "The Scouts of the Plains."

Buntline's dime novels were equally popular, and, in spite of the disapproval of their parents, the boys of the colonies and the cities eagerly read the exhilarating adventures of "Red Hugh the Ranger" and "Dead Eye Dick." Buntline never won renown as a scout himself, but he helped spread the fame of others, until in 1886 he followed the trail of many of the "reliables" who left the dust when one of his heroes "trusty rifles rang out."

"VAMPS" WHO MADE HISTORY

THE CURSE OF ENGLAND—A WOMAN

WHEN young Charles II of England was a refugee in Holland, after his father had been executed, a French loyalist by the name of Roger Palmer came to him with a large sum of money and plans to raise the throne for Charles. Palmer had a nineteen-year-old wife, Barbara. At sixteen she had an illegitimate son, a rambunctious lad now three years old, directly in the path of Charles.

On May 26, 1660, the king returned to London by the efforts of Palmer and other loyalists. He found Barbara awaiting him and hurried through the day's ceremonies that might join her. Palmer was so strong a leader that he succeeded his wife to Charles, and in reward was made duke of Cleveland.

Barbara developed an insatiable passion for wealth and gambling. She was not even true to the king, but, in a gay style, looked on good-natured. Her control over him and wild extravagance ruined her the third time. "The Curse of England," it was she founded the fortune of the ducal house of Marlborough, giving the first Duke to a poor nobody, his start in life. She bought him a place in the army, where he afterward rose to be that famous duke of Marlborough who won for England such notable victories.

Historians of the day say that Barbara often lost as much as $100,000 in a single evening's play, a sum for that time.

Barbara was one of the most beautiful women of her time, with regal carriage and seemingly perpetual youth. She ruled the insolent Charles at will, dictating policies of state, making or ruining fortunes as her fancy chose. She made powerful enemies but, as long as her control endured over Charles she cared little for the feelings of others. It became dangerous for her to go about the streets of London, so great was the hatred against her and she adopted a royal style, traveling with mounted bodyguards.

But the fickle Charles at last tired of her and she was at his attention turned to other women. One by one she outwitted them until Francis sent over Louise de la Querouaille, a pretty little vamp, with instructions to sway Charles in negotiations between the two kingdoms. And Barbara lost her till with Louise.

A New York woman named the family motor car correspondent. Some men have been known to remark that motor cars are as complex as women.

They disappeared into the corridor of falling snow, and cautiously advanced beneath the veil of overwhelming water. The outlines of the log houses could be plainly discerned, the stars suddenly ceasing. The door stood open, smoke arose from the chimney, but no one was visible outside. The dull glow of an expiring fire appeared in the ground in front, but no sound was about it. Evidently the Indians had retired to shelter. The major gripped all his in a glance, but what interested him most was the sound of steady firing some distance away.

"They have either slit some Indians," he whispered to Paxton, clinging beside him, "out of the storm, or else they are over there where the Indians are. You hear those rifle?"

"Yes, sir,"

"You don't suppose some other outfit has got in here ahead of us do you?" he asked anxiously.

"No, sir," earnestly grasping his arm. "It is not that. I know, sir, that they're up to something, but I am afraid they're not Indians."

"Paxton, you're not afraid, are you?"

"No, sir, I am not at all in the right, sir," he said, smiling. "I am not afraid, sir."

"Not hardly, but I judge, lad."
