She was a widow, and she was a divorcee. She was a widow, and she was a divorcee. She was a widow, and she was a divorcee.

The Man Who Said: "The proof of the pudding is in the eating" — was only half through. He started a good pudding-proof, but he didn't finish it. There's a lot of trouble in the world from puddings that taste good but don't do good. They "eat" well, but that ends the recommendation. Sanitariums are full of pudding-eaters who stopped the test at taste and forgot to inquire whether their food gave the body what it needed—until the body rebelled. Grape-Nuts is a food that tastes good and does good. The proof of Grape-Nuts begins in the eating and goes on through the splendid service which Grape-Nuts renders as a real food. Grape-Nuts is the perfected goodness of wheat and malted barley—delicious to taste, easy to digest, and exceptionally rich in nourishment for body and brain.

This slip shows Mrs. Brown that she has not been overcharged and inspires her confidence in the store, because she knows that you have installed modern accounting methods to protect her account. At the same time, you will be safe guarding your profits—you know positively that all items are charged for and that your total is absolutely correct. Practically all the action—and there is a world of it—takes place at sea. The adventures will appear personal to you. BONUS PAYMENTS ARE SLOWED FOR A GOOD REASON

Checks Are Going Out at the Rate of 1,000 Each Day Until More Money Is Paid for Bonds.

(By Associated Press) LANSING, Mich., Oct. 12.—A family with the conditions surrounding the payment of bonuses to former service men of the state is blamed by state officials for the complaint occasionally received from a certain organization. Recently the auditor general's department was charged for the third or fourth time, with slowing up payment. The auditor general admitted that payments had been slowed up, but explained that the reason was because the money received from the sale of $25,000,000 worth of bonds was still exhausted. State Comptroller Paul A. Martin, of the Abraham Lincoln, came here following a report of a complaint regarding the delay which checks are going out. He said that checks better policy to slow down the payments than to let them altogether. Ten million dollars are available from the recent sale of the bonds about October 1st. The amount is divided by the number of payees, so that checks will go out at the rate of $100 a day until the money is gone. Until the auditor general's department has caught up with the up-to-date of the state.

Archbishop Curley to Succeed Card, Gibbons

(Continued From Page One) ated from the religious standpoint than in Ireland." He applied for a post and gladly accepted an assignment to the mission of Florida, and by order of the late Bishop Moore of St. Augustine, went to Rome to study sacred science in preparation for his priestly work in the Land of Flowers. He entered the Propaganda University at Rome in 1900, where he had an opportunity of meeting and mingling with students from every part of the world. Forty-five languages of dialects were spoken in the university. He was given full marks in almost every examination. In 1901 he received the Bachelor of Divinity degree, and in 1903 the degree of licentiate of sacred theology. He was awarded medals in Christian archeology, liturgy, fundamental theology, dogmatic theology and Scripture. In the fall of 1903 he suffered a severe attack of neurasthenia of the brain, induced by his heavy work and was forbidden by his doctor and his bishop to present himself for further studies. He relaxed his zeal in his studies, rested several months and then continued. He was ordained priest by Cardinal Parocchi, March 19, 1904, in the Basilica of St. John Lateran. During the greater part of his stay in Rome the rector of the university was then Monsignor (later Cardinal) Commensal. "I always look back on my days in Rome as the happiest of my life," the archbishop told the Associated Press man. "Rome with its memories, sacred and profane, Rome, the gathering place of it would seem, the world, Rome, consecrated by the blood of Saints Peter and Paul; that Rome, guarded by the scenic Alban hills will never be forgotten." More than once during his stay he had the privilege of an audience with the then Pope Leo VIII and his sainted successor, now Pope Pius X. On June 23, 1904, the young priest bid adieu to the Eternal City and the early days of July found him at home in Athlone after an absence of four years from his parents. He sailed November 7 from Queenstown for New York, planting his foot first in America and November 9. He reported to his bishop, the late Bishop Keens of St. Augustine on the eve of Thanksgiving. His first charge was St. Peter's parish, DeLand. With the exception of eleven months of the year 1905 spent as secretary to the bishop and chancellor of the diocese, all of the then Father Curley's years as a priest were spent in DeLand. While pastor at DeLand he had charge of all the missions from New Smyrna to Fort Pierce and his missionary work kept him on the road almost constantly. There were very few people along that 150 miles of then almost barren coast, who did not know the young priest in those days. He built a new church and rectory at DeLand; enlarged the church and built a school at New Smyrna; gave Fort Pierce its first Catholic church and through it maintained the most friend-ly and cordial relations with his Protestant neighbors. In fact the new archbishop of Baltimore has always been proud of the fact that his Protestant friends' outgathering as Catholic friends is to be seen. "The then priest, became an American citizen as soon as the law allowed, swearing allegiance to the American republic with 'all the more eagerness, since I never owed allegiance to any other government." Bishop Kenley died in October 1912, and on April 1, 1914, Pope Pius X named the young priest as Bishop of St. Augustine. He was then just ten years a priest, and thirty-four years and six months old—one of the youngest men who had ever held so important a post in the church. He was consecrated in the old Cathedral of St. Augustine on the eve of Thanksgiving. The seven years of his episcopate have been busy ones. He has caused to be erected at least thirty-five new churches. Just a few weeks ago he was enthusiastic in his great work. "All over the state there is a steady stream of converts coming into the fold. There never was a drier spirit among the Catholic people since the day when the intrepid Pedro Menendez knelt on the first mass offered on the site of St. Augustine. Twenty years from now will see the diocese of Florida one of the finest in the Southland." His creed as he summed it up in a recent conversation is just three words—God and country; and he boasts of his pride in his citizenship in the America of today.

FINDS PERUVIAN GOLD ON ISLAND

Man Who Befriended Beggar Is Rewarded With Key to Buried Treasure.

Romance is not yet dead. Tales of buccannery, buried on the high seas, buried gold on lonely, uninhabited islands and charts and cryptograms of hidden treasure have not all inventions of imaginative minds or legends of a day which is long past.

Such a tale is that of the treasure of the island of Pinak, whose hiding place after a patient search of more than seven years, has at last been discovered. And now a schooner from Sydney has been dispatched to bring away the gold.

Seven years later, in 1831, John Howie, a doctor in Melbourne, England, New York, created a machine for making perfect solid headed pins. A company was organized and a factory started at Derby, Conn.

Papeete, Tahiti—Romance is not yet dead. Tales of buccannery, buried on the high seas, buried gold on lonely, uninhabited islands and charts and cryptograms of hidden treasure have not all inventions of imaginative minds or legends of a day which is long past.

Such a tale is that of the treasure of the island of Pinak, whose hiding place after a patient search of more than seven years, has at last been discovered. And now a schooner from Sydney has been dispatched to bring away the gold.

Seven years later, in 1831, John Howie, a doctor in Melbourne, England, New York, created a machine for making perfect solid headed pins. A company was organized and a factory started at Derby, Conn.

FIRST PINS

Tales for the use of the Jolly were first made in England during the 16th century. They were made of iron wire. Brass wire pins were introduced from France in 1840 by Catherine Howard, queen of Henry VII.

The foundation for the manufacture of the present day pin commenced with the invention of the process of drawing wire. For many years all pin manufacturing was confined to France and Germany, where the process was invented. Brass wire pins were first made in England in 1829.

In the early days of pin-making it was a most tedious process. They were made by drawing a proper length of wire to a point and then twisting a line piece of wire to the other end, thus forming a head. This required fourteen different operations by as many workmen, all of which were done by hand, as machinery had not been invented.

In 1775 the American inventor, realizing the absolute necessity for pins in the development of the civilization of the country, offered a bonus of $250 for the first twenty-five dozen of pins equal to those imported from England.

In 1797 Timothy Harkes of England devised the first solid headed pin.

American inventive genius, as usual, combined on the job until the best idea was hit upon. Samuel Wainwright of this country invented a machine in 1841 which gave the industry much headway. His machine made solid heads to the pins by a process similar to the making of nails by drawing a portion of the pin head into a conical and flat. This was done automatically.

Seven years later, in 1831, John Howie, a doctor in Melbourne, England, New York, created a machine for making perfect solid headed pins. A company was organized and a factory started at Derby, Conn.

The modern automatic pin machine combines the pin in all details except the coloring and polishing. Daily Oldhaman.

How Much "Pocket Money" Do You Carry?

You should carry little, if any. Pocket money is easily spent—quickly frittered away. Also it is likely to be stolen or lost. If you carry large sums with you, you are a walking temptation to every criminal in town.

MEM OF IMMORTAL MEMORY

Many of the Works of the Greek Philosophers, Plato and Aristotle, Are Still Preserved

Plato (427-347 B. C.), the celebrated Greek philosopher, taught that the true source of knowledge is the eternal, unchanging, and uncreated. According to his teaching, man is born with a divine spark in his mind, which is developed by reason. He distinguished between empirical knowledge and reason, and argued philosophically into logic, metaphysics, and morals. He was the first to attempt the construction of a political program, to develop an abstract idea of knowledge and science, to state expressly the properties of matter from subjective evidence, and to define reality and appearance, to describe the divinity as a divine, essentially good, and ten of his great attributes. He taught that matter is an eternal and infinite principle, that God is the supreme intelligence, independent of all material things, and that the soul is immortal. Aristotle (384-322 B. C.), the philosopher, believed that knowledge is gained from the senses. He taught that the soul is mortal, and that the mind is a part of the body. He was the first to attempt the construction of a political program, to develop an abstract idea of knowledge and science, to state expressly the properties of matter from subjective evidence, and to define reality and appearance, to describe the divinity as a divine, essentially good, and ten of his great attributes. He taught that matter is an eternal and infinite principle, that God is the supreme intelligence, independent of all material things, and that the soul is immortal.

The monster of the Limestone and Taconic mountains have preserved in the High Society of Escanaba the present record of a nearly complete skeleton of a gigantic extinct monster, recently discovered in the pleistocene beds of Taconic.

The skull was as large as the monster which it belonged. The new discovery shows clearly that it was a chelonian, or turtle, with a skull built for aggressive warfare, and at least one powerful horn on the snout. Evidence of the gigantic battles in which this animal engaged is to be found in the complete smashing and partial breaking of the carapace, and in the crushing and subsequent repair of the bones of the nose and skull.
