KIRK'S JAP ROSE SOAP

Makes the Complexion Beautiful

WE SAY IT AGAIN: "Real beauty lies in the skin, not on it." A beautiful skin means a healthy skin. And the skin cannot be healthy unless it is absolutely clean. JAP ROSE, more than any other soap, makes a beautiful complexion, because its absolutely pure oils heal, as well as cleanse the skin perfectly, and being wholly soluble, no sediment is left behind to clog the pores.

For the hair too—You'll Like It!

"MEANEST" MAN FOUND AT LAST

FLORENCE, Wis.—Ohio is the home of the president of the United States.

Judging from the license number recently passed through Florence, it is also the home of the "meanest man" in the United States.

All summer a pet fawn on the Kotter farm, near the Menominee River bridge on the Long Lake road has been admired by tourists and, naturally, has become very tame. Recently, the car with the Ohio license drove up and, as practically every other tourist machine has done, came to a stop. Like to months of kind treatment, the little animal trotted out, brown eyes full of wonder and expectancy.

There was not long to wait. An ugly blue muzzle was poked out of the machine; there was a crack, and the pet of the whole district lay writhing in its death agony. Almost before life was extinct, the little creature was picked up, bandaged into the machine, and the car with the Ohio license disappeared up the road. The mighty bantam had got away with it, and probably will never be caught.

It is to be regretted that a car was used instead of a flint axe, as the means is thereby spared more thousands of years deadened the spirit of the young.

CHINESE "Y" IN CHICAGO STARTS A NIGHT SCHOOL

Classes Meet Three Times a Week to Learn More About Their New Country and Its Laws.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Located in the heart of Chicago's downtown, near Wentworth Avenue and 2nd Street, is the Chinese Y. M. C. A., which during the past week has come into new popularity among the young men from the Orient. The reason for this is in the fact that it has just started a school for young men and children in which they can learn about their new country, how to become Americans and speak good English.

Chinese students flock to the Y. One group study English while supplemented by American cultural events in America. An American and Chinese students are instructed in other groups of cultural studies. American history, literature and education. Young men who are in this country to learn American business methods and expect to return to China in the near future can also learn Mandarin, the official court language of the Chinese Republic, which is now called the national language. In addition, Japanese and other Chinese languages are taught here. Chinese students and English students.

One of the most popular classes in the Y. M. C. A. is the swimming class. This organization were the first to build facilities and begin to teach Chinese swimmers in American waters.

H. C. Moll, a student from China who has received his A.B. degree from Oberlin University, is Secretary of the Chinese Y. M. C. A., which is supported almost wholly by merchants of Canton.

Odd Facts, Scientific and Otherwise

A prominent educator states only one out of every hundred thousand students is ever in danger of brain fever from overstudy.

Astronomers state it takes the light of a celestial star about ten years to reach the height of nine, and one more to put it in a front page newspaper.

URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

Take a glass of Salts if your Back or Bladder bothers you—Drink more water.

If you must have meat every day eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a distillery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach aches, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The arteries clog, full of sediment, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids release the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four cans of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of excreta and tempera, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder trouble.

Jad Salt is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

*A Newspaper Does Not Belong to Owner
Declares Editor At Press Congress in Honolulu; Give the Readers All the News*

Honolulu Is Thronged With Newspaper Men From All Over United States to Attend Meeting.

(By Associated Press)

HONOLULU, Oct. 13.—A newspaper does not belong to its owner, William Southern Jr., owner of the Indianapolis Star, declared today at the Press Congress of the World in session here.

In the course of a speech on the "Pressional Press."

A newspaper is a public institution and is not fulfilling its highest function if devoted selfishly.

"As a fundamental principle, it is agreed that the truth is the basis of all correct journalism. To go beyond the truth is a betrayal of trust. To suppress the truth when it properly belongs to the public is always to be condemned and never justified.

Control of news or equipment for business considerations is unworthy. News should be written and influenced wholly and at all times in the interest of the people.

Not only are these principles to be applied to the news and editorials, but to the advertising columns. Decent in advertising, unobtrusive or advertising which permits such tactics.

"It was voted," Friedman, who wrote "Suffer yourself to be flattered, imprisoned, condemned; suffer your own even to be banished, but publish your views. It's right, it is.

a duty."

Small town newspapers, Mrs. Southern told his audience, have come together to formulate a set of ideals of the newspaper profession into a code of ethics more than not any other section of the newspaper world.

"These declarations have so far only come from the provincial papers, but have received the strong endorsement of the larger papers and world wide comment and approval."

The highest aim in the newspaper business," Mr. Southern declared, "is to give the readers what they want and have it in such a way that they will think it is exactly what they want."

TIN IN GOLD CROWNS

When the strapping William B. Leeds, co-heir to the tin-plate fortune of the late William B. Leeds, married the Princess of Xenia of Russia the other day in Paris he wore a bewigged crown of gold. That ancient symbol of authority was made possible to him by reason of the tin-plate possessives which came because his father and Daniel G. Reed were the first Americans to exploit the possibilities of quality production of the plate.

Thus the base metal of America's industry transmuted into the noble metal of decaying royalty.

Princess Anastasia of Greece, who was Mrs. Leeds and the mother of the old earl of Orkney, is a princess, has done her best to make American an important part of the mind and manners. The crown business is not thriving as it did but the tin-plate business is, and the proceeds from it go through its hands may seem, goes long way toward easing the crown worn by European royalty.

We can imagine that the older Leeds little thought when he was a lowly railroad clerk in Indianapolis, Ind., that the time would come when his wealth would make the royal family of Greece considerate and patriotic for disposed grand dukes granted favors to pretenders and pretresses of Russia in their exile. We was a part of that country of business. His widow and his son are heirs share in the estate and a summing up will ordain that Foster-Hawker-Peterson was created an industrial prince of America largely through his own effort. His informal patent or trade could not be claimed by them, so they seized themselves thousands of hours with fine bluffs of another kind of attorney.

In which the Princess Anastasia and the consort of the Princess Xenia have shown prophetic perception, that democratic systems does not always allow men to prove on their ability. But under the mounted aristocracy plan, the descendants of the old gold powers do not. The Leeds' inheritance power, to be sure, is in him and they have turned the power into permanent less. Parrotts and Venetians are now engaged in but do not do their own designations.

The crown of Russia and Greece needed recruiting after the addition of stern old men to the recent semi-apostles of the lower classes. It is extremely doubtful if the allies would have been won over. But, after all, in the language of soldiers, it didn't mean anything.

THE JUDGE DISCOVERS A CONSPIRACY

Judge Ben F. Jones is a man who has commanded respectful and sympathetic attention from the country for a long while and his deserved, but when he charged the other day that a conspiracy exists among the rich to buy the laws enforced only against the poor he was bidding rank, demagogic nonsense.

The judge had just decided a case in which a youthful prisoner was discharged on a charge of selling liquor and had said he would not punish the boy for the offense with the judge of Denver had that charge full of wine and whisky. Then he made the customary charge against the rich. A majority of the people of the United States either violate the Volstead law now and then or else treat its violation by others as a matter of indifference. The rich and the poor alike are found to take this attitude and rich and poor are also found among the minority which takes an active interest in enforcing the law. Absolutely no evidence had appeared that the Volstead law has divided society into a识别istic stratum which is enforcing the law and a stratum of poorer people against whom it is being enforced.

The rich man who breaks the law by buying liquor does business with a poor man who is trying to join the plutocracy by making a profit on his business and each is necessarily tolerant of the other's delinquency. So far as the law is enforced against the poor and not against the rich the fact is a product of a government policy which is not dictated by the rich but rather by the Anti-Saloon League. Federal officials have not yet begun to raid homes for private stocks. They are after those who operate commercially and the rich are not in that class, but the home stock of the poor man has thus far been put as safe as the home stock of the rich man.

THE CONDITION OF THE NATIONAL GUARD

The report of the War Department showing that there are now 126,000 men in the National Guard indicates that the country is getting back to normal in that branch of the national service. In 1914, when the European war began there were only about 2,000 more men in the National Guard than there are at present, and a few months before that country entered the war, there were about 140,000 officers and men in the guard.

But it is a certainty that the present force is better than its pre-war predecessors because it is organized in the light of the experience gained in Europe, and has many officers and men who saw service in war time. The guard, however, still needs something like 400,000 men to come up to its authorized strength, and it is important that it should be recruited since the government is now committed to a much smaller regular army than was contemplated before the demand for economy took shape and gathered enough force to override the plans of the War Department.

Senator Kenyon's decision not to accept an appointment as a federal judge indicates that he thinks it is easier to make laws than to interpret them.

The one thing that lends color to Lenin's boast about the disappearance of oligarchy in soviet Russia is the fact that the people seem to be "getting next" to the Moscow despot's gun.

leered toward the girl. The doctor crossed and spoke to her in a low voice.

Lund spoke, and his voice was suddenly mild.

"I didn't know there was a lady present, ma'am," he said. "Your father's right. You let us settle this. Well, come to an agreement."

But for all his swift change to placability, there was a stammer underneath to his voice that the girl seemed to recognize. She hesitated until perhaps led her back into the cabin.

"You'll sit down?" said the doctor, speaking along for the first time, his voice amiable, carefully neutral. "And we'll have a drop of something."

Mr. Lund, I can understand your attitude. You've suffered a great deal. But you have misunderstood certain things. I have heard about this from him, before. He has no desire to cheat you. He is rejoiced to see you alive, though afflicted. He is still honest Minnes. Mr. Lund.

"I haven't your name, sir," he went on placidly, to Rainey. "The captain said you were a newspaper man."

"John Rainey, of the Times. I knew nothing of this before I came aboard."

"And you will understand, of course, what Mr. Lund overlooked in his natural agitation, that this is not a story for your paper. We should have a fleet trailing us. We must keep your confidence, Mr. Rainey."

There was a strong personality in the doctor, Rainey realized. He did not like the man from first appearance. He was too slow, too carbuncular in his attitudes. But his manner was friendly enough, his voice compelling. In his suggestion that Rainey was a man to be trusted, Captain Minnes came back into the cabin, closing the door of his daughter's room.

"We are going to have a little drink together," said the doctor. "I have some Scotch in my cabin. If you'll excuse me for a moment. Coming will you get some glasses and a chair for Mr. Lund?"

The doctor came back with a bottle of Scotch whisky and a siphon. The captain had set out glasses and a pitcher of plain water from a rack.

"I imagine you'll be the only one who'll trust me, Mr. Rainey," said the doctor placidly, passing the bottle. "Captain Minnes, I know, uses plain water. I suppose Mr. Lund does, too."

Rainey took a long pull at his glass. The room was quiet and he was silent. The siphon fisted a little here or the whisky was of an unusual brand, it seemed. And then Minnes suddenly smiled him. He lost the use of his limbs of his tongue when he tried to pull out. He saw the doctor's sardonic eyes watching him as he strove to shake off a lethargy that swiftly spread into drunkenness.

He lost the use of his limbs of his tongue when he tried to pull out. He saw the doctor's sardonic eyes watching him as he strove to shake off a lethargy that swiftly spread into drunkenness.

Rainey took a long pull at his glass.

The siphon gusted and he was silent. The siphon fisted a little here or the whisky was of an unusual brand, it seemed. And then Min

Property owned by all posts is valued at $20,000,000, including real estate worth $8,000,000.

Members in the old Confederate states total approximately 2,200.

The G. A. R. was organized in Illinois in the spring of 1862. Who its organizers were is a matter of tradition, rather than of record, says the report made to the national encampment in 1869 by N. P. Chapman, then adjutant general of the national organization.

First Post in 1862.

There can be no doubt that the late Col. E. L. Stephenson of Decatur, Ill., was one of the prime movers, says Chapman's report.

Being recognized as such, he organized the first post at Decatur, Ill.

By July, 1862, there were 40 posts in Illinois, representatives of which met in convention and organized the state department. Stephenson was by common consent the principal commander-in-chief and was elected adjutant general in each state, resulting in the first national encampment being held in Indianapolis, November 20, 1863. After the Indianapolis convention Chapman records that "posts soon began springing up by leaps in all parts of the North," but he adds there was no record of progress. Ten states were represented at the Indianapolis encampment, 21 states in 1867, 24 in 1868, 37 in 1869, leaving 2,000 posts.

At the 1869 encampment a mutual life insurance scheme was proposed, it being said that the G. A. R. had 240,000 members. In 1872 it had been said that the state departments "agreed to represent a constituency of over 500,000." But there is no authentic record of the number for the early years, the insurance proposal containing an estimate. It is thought, and the 1867 estimate being regarded as the number of Union soldiers living in the jurisdiction of the state departments represented at the convention. For instance, the adjutant general's report at the 1870 encampment, when there were 29 departments, says it is "absolutely impossible for me to furnish anything like a correct report of the present membership."

Decline Constant Since 1869.

In 1880, however, reports taken as authentic state that the membership was 49,459, the highest mark recorded. From 1875 to 1880 the growth was rapid, going from 12,000 to 55,000 annually. Since 1880 the decline has been constant except for a 1,000 gain in 1890, said to be due to the prospect of favoring pension legislation. Subsequent enrollment figures show that the G. A. R. reached its zenith to the present time follows:

1862-67, 37; 1868, 300; 1869, 361; 1870, 362; 1871, 359; 1872, 357; 1873, 355; 1874, 353; 1875, 350; 1876, 348; 1877, 346; 1878, 344; 1879, 342; 1880, 340; 1881, 338; 1882, 336; 1883, 334; 1884, 332; 1885, 330; 1886, 328; 1887, 326; 1888, 324; 1889, 322; 1890, 320; 1891, 318; 1892, 316; 1893, 314; 1894, 312; 1895, 310; 1896, 308; 1897, 306; 1898, 304; 1899, 302; 1900, 300.

The 1870 national encampment voted to meet every year as long as a single member survived. Brig. Gen. John L. Clem, address Army and Navy Club, Washington, D. C., claims himself the youngest G. A. R. member. He is thought to be seventy-one years old, having enlisted as a drummer boy at the age of eleven years. The question of who is the oldest member always brings up hundreds of claims, and no reliable record has been obtained.

TRADE BETWEEN U. S. AND PERU IS NOW FALLING OFF

Due to Unfavorable Exchange the United States Is Losing Trade Supremacy in Peru.

By Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Due to the unfavorable exchange, trade between the United States and Peru is falling off.

The United States, whose trade surplus here is now disputed by both governments, should still suffice to retain control of the markets of South America, which has lost much capital in those countries.

Our merchants—naturally patriotic men—see often the best facilities here who conduct the most generous credit, and those who are able to offer our products, which exist in almost infinite quantities.

It is to be introduced into Congress soon a bill providing for the establishment of a National Bank in deference of local capitalists, bankers and townsmen.

How Much "Pocket Money" Do You Carry?

You should carry little, if any. Pocket money is easily spent—quickly frittered away. Also it is likely to be stolen or lost. If you carry large sums with you, you are a willing temptation to every criminal in town.

Open a Checking Account in this strong Bank today, and form the habit of always paying your bills by check. It will make the carrying of "pocket money" almost unnecessary.

FRANCE EXPORTS LARGE SUPPLY OF LIQUOR TO U. S.

Official statement of the French government indicates that the amount of liquor exported to the United States in 1920-21 was 1,000,000 cases. This is double the amount exported to America during the previous year, and nearly twice as much as was shipped in 1919-20.

During the corresponding period in 1920-21, 12,000 marks valued at 800,000 francs were shipped to America.

This figure is all imported into New York under license granted by the Prohibition Enforcement Commission.
