WASN'T BOY SCOUT

There was a boy and his name was Bill. Who started out in life. Just like any other boy. But he didn't have a real friend. Who was a real man. So he played in the streets and in the alleys. And behind doors. And he didn't know there were trees made to climb. Nor fish to catch. He couldn't swim. All he knew was pavement. Houses. Dirty streets. Alleys. Cigarettes. And smut. You see, he didn't have a half chance to grow up into a real boy. Because there was no real man willing to help him. To live right. Now, wasn't that too bad?

ENGINEERS ASK IF RAILROAD MEN WERE OVERPAID DURING PERIOD OF FEDERAL CONTROL

With Railroad Workers Overpaid went unchallenged completion of their during Federal Control, is the substance of the resolution adopted by the

Spokesmen for the railroad men have charged that during the period of Federal control the workers had the advantage of the labor market

An absolute cessation of the achievement of these things will be the relief of the unproductive congestion of traffic and resulting obstruction of the railroads

Railroad employees throughout the country were thoroughly discriminated and strikes were impending everywhere

The railroad executives had testified before the Interstate Commerce Commission and elsewhere that railroad wages were below the scale paid in competitive industries

Railroad Labor Grossly Underpaid Railroad labor was grossly underpaid and there were many grave abuses in the matter of working conditions on the railroads which needed correction

It was clear that railroad employees could not be expected to work for the railroads at lower rates of pay than they could command in the competitive industries throughout the country

The high cost of living had made it impossible for many of them to live on the wages they were receiving, and it was clearly in the interest of justice and right to say nothing of the wisdom and reason of the policy to bring their wages to a level which would enable the railroads to command the requisite amount of service and to pro-

$28.57 per month; freight brakemen and flagmen averaged $19.17, and passenger brakemen and flagmen averaged $19.10

Less than 3 per cent of all employees were receiving in excess of $150 per month

Workers Steadfastly Loyal Mr. McAdoo quoted the following from the report of the Wage Commission:

That there has been such steady loyalty to the railroads and so much disposition to use the lever of their necessity and their opportunity to resist by ruthless action, an increase of rates is not without explanation and should not be passed without public recognition

These findings of the Wage Commission that railroad labor was not getting living wages. Mr. McAdoo said were the sole basis for making a wage increase retroactive to January 1, 1918

Mr. McAdoo continued: "I still recently no question was raised as to the justice and propriety of the increases in wages so made. There was not the slightest complaint from any railroad executive that the wage increases promulgated on General Order No. 27 and its amendments thereto were too high and never at any time during that year were railroad wages too high

The fact is that railroad employees worked for less pay during the war than any other class of industrial workers doing similar work. The further fact is that so far complaint can be made of the part the railroad employees performed during the war. The realization that they were working for their government in the stress and strain of war, that their patriotic service was essential to victory and that they would be fairly treated in respect and accord them to unusual wages and to faithful service

Value of Workers' Sacrifices The railroad employees patriotically gave up privileges and concessions which their organizations had obtained through many years of negotiation and controversy. These sacrifices, Mr. McAdoo added, in the cost of making locomotive repairs alone, resulted in an annual saving of $50,000,000

The evidence, then, is that railroad workers were not overpaid, but that they were before and during Federal control, underpaid, a discrimination that did not affect their loyal and efficient services

What Do You Think About It?

Should the City of Escanaba purchase the water front recently purchased by the Chamber of Commerce from the I. Stephenson Company? It is for an amount equal to its assessed valuation, and payments in ten equal installments

This question is some time ago will be submitted to the citizens of Escanaba in the spring election. The following letter is published for the benefit of those who are interested in the matter

Mr. Owen J. Hamilton, Escanaba, Michigan

Dear Sir: I received your letter asking for my opinion in regard to the City purchase of Lot 1, north part of Lot 2, 30 feet from the I. Stephenson Company

I believe that the City should purchase Lot 1 for Park purposes only. I do not see why the City should buy Lots 2 and 3 when they can be sold and buy a small portion of Lots 2 and 3 where the present Stephenson Dock is located. If the City should wish to hold a dock, why not one in the future

There is no reason why the City should worry about some outside party buying this property. I have some very reliable information that the U. S. N. W. Ry. Company owns the riparian rights in front of Lot 1, which would extend from the Merchants Dock east to the Stephenson Dock. This would leave a water frontage for Lots 1 and 2 only

Yours very truly, H. O. DUNBAR

A legal opinion relative to the riparian rights referred to in the above letter will be published in the next issue

Chamber of Commerce, Escanaba, Michigan, Gentlemen

With reference to the purchase of the Water Front from the I. Stephenson Company, I believe that I would like to see some record of being in favor of its purchase for the following reasons

If Escanaba is ever to take the place as a city, its location should not be so far from the water frontage

The dock now in use is of no value to the property. Escanaba is a city and it is necessary to get all the money expended on it purchased back, and at the same time retain the water frontage she may need

The property sold after being improved as any private purchaser would do will return more money in taxes to the city than the whole tract now brings

Escanaba was located here because of the lake. Today, outside of its coal and business, the lake is about as much value to the city as if it were located fifty miles from it. We have natural transportation facilities by water. Why not use them? A great deal of freight and passenger business can be brought to Escanaba by boat

Why not use them? A great deal of freight and passenger business can be brought to Escanaba by boat

As to the dock, which we hear so much about, this is the biggest job we have had in a long time. It will cost the city, if it will mean that 27 cents annually for each property owner that owned $100,000 value of real estate for a period of ten years a total of $2,700 for each $100,000 valuation. If a man with $100,000 worth of real estate in Escanaba (that he will not receive that much value in the next ten years) I think he should locate in a city that does not need any help to grow

Yours truly, P. J. SULLIVAN

In A Great Hotel? No, On A Ship!

WHEN the Great Eastern was built—even the present generation remembers her as the world's greatest ship 60 years ago—she was finished like a ship, with low-ceilinged cabins. Nowadays they build steamships that have lofty interiors like a modern hotel, or metropolitan club. These pictures, taken on the latest ocean liner, show the degree of spaciousness and luxury that the ship of 1922 has attained. The picture with the colonnade was taken in the ship's lounge, or social hall; the other is in the dining room, which seats 200 people at small tables.

CONSULAR DUTIES LITTLE UNDERSTOOD

How American Influence Is Spread and Data Gathered by Uncle Sam's Men Abroad.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Details of how the 500 American consuls now in the service of the State Department are gathering information, extending protection, and furthering American business and economic influence in more than 100 cities of 50 countries are set forth by William J. Carr, director of the consular service in the first issue of the American Consular Bulletin, a monthly published by the American Consular Association, an unofficial and voluntary organization embracing most of the members of the consular service of the United States.

There is probably no class of officials of the Government whose functions are less correctly understood by the public than consuls, says Director Carr. To the man a consul is merely a signer of passports; to another the word consul signifies a thrifty traveling salesman, charged with the marketing of American goods in foreign lands. Many a student knows the consul only as a good man who "found" a far-away land for him, and sent him away to see back to the old home in the United States.

It would hardly occur to any of these individuals that their contact had been with an organization so large as the consular service, and that it is the responsibility of the United States in the year 1922 to send 500 men to other countries, not only to represent the United States, but to gather information, extend protection, and further American business and economic influence in more than 100 cities of 50 countries.

Man's 24-Hour Coma Puzzles Kent Doctors

BRAND RAPIDS.—Arthur Wood, 28 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wood, Bailey farmers, has lain unconscious at Brantford hospital for twenty-four hours and doctors are puzzled to account for his condition. He was found unconscious seated in a chair within a potato car, by a train crew, which had hauled his car from Bailey to this city. There is a bruise on his head, but no evidence is given to a foul play theory. Physicians say he might have suffered from lack of fresh air in the car and might have been thrown against something in the car which caused him to lose consciousness, or he might have been struck by the wheels of a stove used in the car.

Editor: Katrina Trask, (Mrs. George Foster Peabody), the famous American writer, who died recently, devoted the last moments of her life to the cause of world disarmament and universal peace, to which she gave many years of her best work.

A friend who believes thoroughly in the disarmament movement thinks it is a bit of news that Mrs. Peabody's play, "In the Vanguard," a dramatic plea for world peace, is now being reprinted for the eighth time.

American Writer Gives Last Days to World Peace

WHILE the World's Statesmen conferred to determine what steps could be taken to make the limitation of armaments a reality, one American woman kept everlastingly at the task she set herself years ago—that of portraying the beauties of peace and the horrors of war. Mrs. George Foster Peabody, known in many lands as Katrina Trask, who died recently, long keenly comprehended the future of nations when war comes. So, this master of the pen, in poetry and in prose, preached against war with all the vigor of her intense soul.

Katrina Trask Peabody's play, "In the Vanguard," originally printed in 1913 and today being reprinted for the eighth time, is one of her many writings which is pleading the cause of disarmament the world over.

PROBLEMS OF FARMERS

Farmers face a problem of long standing, namely, to get sufficient labor to work their farms.
Records of industrial commissions show that the demand for such labor is far greater than the supply.

Many people are out of work, but a comparatively small percentage of the jobless seem ready to accept employment in the country.

However, it is not as simple as it has been in other years, due to the fact that an increasing number of laborers employed in the cities migrated to the farms during the business depression.

Difficulty in obtaining funds covering the months until harvest time, together with prevailing prices to producers, is given as an explanation of present-day wages in the agricultural sections.

No completely satisfactory solution of this question of employment has been offered, it is something that will have to be worked out, and the farmers are entitled to express public opinion.

It is important and highly gratifying that serious public thought is being centered on every phase of the farm problem, and investigations of this character may bring some substantial solution of the labor question.

NOT THE FAULT OF EUROPE

Those who have been attributing American agricultural depression to the failure of Europe to take our surplus farm products will receive a severe jolt from the recent announcement of Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, that probably the amount of governmental financing would increase the flow of farm exports to Europe.

And then in his characteristic analytical way, Mr. Hoover goes further and avers that exports are not sufficient to account for the hardships which have befallen the farmers.

But that isn't saying that the farmer can always get his stuff to market and get enough for it to pay him to raise it. Right here on our own country there are conditions which are making the farmer more trouble than the bad conditions of exchange or the poverty of Europe.

SAFETY IN AMUSEMENT PLACES

The architectural and structural engineering expert engaged by the district committee of congress to investigate the week of the Knickerbocker theatre, reports that the building was unsafe from the day it was completed.

The tragedy might as well have originated in the collapse of the walls which did not have the strength to carry the load imposed upon them. The district committee has incorporated the expert's report in the committee's report to congress.

In Brooklyn, investigation following the collapse of a theatre in course of erection has disclosed a long list of violations. Of 131 examined there have been closed temporarily, and fifty-four others marked as violating laws, but without showing structural defects that would make the buildings actually unsafe.

For some people it's mighty hard to understand why men will go into anything so hazardous as the hold-up game when they can accomplish the same end by opening a brokerage office like those which have been fleecing the people of New York and Chicago out of their savings.

DECORATING THE TABLE

Using things at hand for decoration shows the real initiative of the housewife. Any one with money may decorate a table acceptably, but taste is far superior to a full purse without it.

The turkey is the main dish, of course, and all the meat centers around it. If oysters are not served for the first course they may be used as a stuffing otherwise any desired stuffing or forcemeat may be used.

Cranberry Jelly—Put through the meat chopper after washing and picking over the berries; add one cupful of water to each quart of berries and cook slowly.

Cream of Celery Soup—This is a good soup to precede the turkey, if a soup is desired. Chop two cupfuls of the coarse stalks of celery and cook in a small amount of water until well cooked.

COPPER MINES TO BECOME ACTIVE IN THE NEXT MONTH

Predictions That Industry Will Soon Be On Its Way Back to "Normalcy" Cause of Much Joy

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—(Special)—In two or three months the copper industry has arisen, shaken off its stupor, and on April 1 will give promise of being on its way back to normalcy according to reports from the copper sections of the country.

Was, or rather the end of the war, delivered the temporary death blow. The operators found the mines with great quantities of copper on hand, but had no market for it. The market collapsed. Through a year of general depression the copper industry was almost dead.

But the resuscitation is at hand. Revival of copper mining on a "normal" scale is expected about April 1, as announced by the Calumet and Hecla companies, the Utah Copper company and the Anaconda Copper Mining company. At that time more than a million acres of land will renew their yield of red metal.

Some Start Now

Several mines are already operating. Others have started preliminary work to have everything ready for the miners within a few weeks.

With all mines operating at capacity, and this is not expected for many months—approximately fifty thousand men are employed in the country's copper mines. Montana and Michigan with 20,000 each produce the great majority of work with Arizona and Utah making up the rest. At the time of the shutdown a year ago, however, no mines were operating at capacity. In 1916 Michigan copper mines employed 20,000 men. This dropped to 10,000 in 1920. The number was 7,000 in 1921. The number struck to 3,700. A similar percentage of unemployment also prevailed in other copper fields.

About half of normal production is expected this spring except from the four chief copper mining areas mentioned.

MICHIGAN

Resumption of work at the Calumet and Hecla company and subsidiary mines the amount of work in the east and southern halves from the disrupted by the companies of their various mines. April 1 is expected to see many mines operating although with short forces. Fifty or sixty per cent normal is the estimated production at the beginning. Six months will be required to build up an organization replacing that scattered following the shutdown.

MONTANA

Four properties of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company resumed operations January 16 of this year being closed eight and one-half months. The mines, together with the reduction works at Anaconda and Great Falls, employ 7,500 men. Mines of Montana are working about one-third capacity, according to figures furnished by John Gillie, manager of mines for the Anaconda company.

Some Pessimism

Some mining men are still pessimistic over the early revival of the industry. P. O. Spillbury, president of the Arizona Industrial Congress and an authority on mining declares that a resumption of copper mining on a scale approaching normal is "not likely in the face of existing conditions. Reduction of freight rates, he said, would mean a great stride in the direction of bringing copper mining back to normal.

A great portion, however, agree with C. F. Willis, editor of the Arizona Mining Journal, who points out that the revival of production is inevitable because only 175,000,000 pounds of refined copper are available for domestic use.

UTAH

The Utah Copper company, closed in the general shutdown, will reopen at a "comparatively early date" an official of the company declared. During the inactive period only 200 men have been employed at the mines which at peak production in 1918 provided work for 6,000.

The depression from which the industry is today showing signs of recovering was the greatest it ever experienced.

The war emergency led to overproduction and subsequently to disastrous underconsumption which paralyzed every copper mine in the country. A huge supply of metal was met with a declining demand, a combination which sent the market tumbling downward. Closed mines, tens of thousands out of work, stagnated business in entire communities and seriously embarrassed many hundreds of stockholders whose incomes were affected when dividends ceased.

Four Escape

Some mines escaped. In Michigan four mines—the Quincy, Mohawk, Wolverine and Copper Range—continue to operate, but operations were only half of normal.

In Arizona and Utah the industry was prostrated and in Montana the situation was not much better although according to John Gillie, Anaconda mine manager, a payroll of over half a million dollars monthly was maintained through the entire period for the purpose of preserving the property. Little, a large sum, has participated in this, paying by means of routing and dividing work. A majority of the employees worked one-third time and some were employed for half time during the entire period of suspension.

In the Calumet and Hecla area, some mines were necessary. A majority of the thousands of miners employed here left the community, those that remained finding work in other parts of the country. However, some jobs here are more critical. The Calumet and Hecla company took immediate steps to care for all its former employees needing help. Orders were issued on stock for the actual necessities of life. Food, fuel and clothing were provided. Through the schools, the proper equipping of children was assured. A citizens committee at Houghton, cooperating with the company, assisted in the relief work.

Wages Not Decided

No general decision as to wages to be paid in the mining fields have been announced. A reduced scale was in effect at the time of the shutdown and according to officials of the Calumet and Hecla company no action upon revision of this scale has been taken.

At Anaconda and Great Falls the scale, according to Mr. Gillie, is $4.25 for miners, $5 for mechanics and $3.75 for common labor for an eight-hour day. There is at present, according to Mr. Gillie, a large influx of labor in Butte, much of it, however, wholly without mining experience.

The situation is reversed in the "Copper Country" of Michigan from which many miners have departed. While no labor shortage is feared the various companies will be obliged to rebuild their organizations which will require six months, mining men say.

David Harwood who has been ill for several weeks is on the road to recovery.

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at very little cost. Everyone uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

Gray hair becomes dark and beautiful.

"Par"

The par value of any newspaper's circulation to the financial advertiser is represented by 100% concentration upon a highly cultivated market where his maximum sales may be developed.

In the case of the Escanaba territory that market is the City of Escanaba and its suburbs. That is where the advertiser transacts the greatest volume of his business. That is where he finds his greatest number of prospects.

And in that market he can reach 8 out of 10 English-reading persons through a SINGLE advertising medium.

94% of The Daily Mirror's circulation is concentrated directly in the city and suburbs of Escanaba—the nearest approach to "par" of any newspaper in the city—or, for that matter, of any in the entire country.

Remember—your BIGGEST sales are made in Escanaba. Your BIGGEST sales in the Escanaba territory are made directly in the city of Escanaba itself. And your BIGGEST returns are made from the newspaper that has the largest circulation IN ESCANABA in the six working days of the week.

Consider the par value of your advertising dollar when you consider Escanaba newspapers, and you will realize why it should be invested in—

The Escanaba Daily Mirror
