THREE REPORTS ON FORD'S OFFER MADE

STIRRING ADDRESS IS GIVEN BY PRESIDENT HARDING WHEN HE SPOKE AT THE DEDICATION

Battle Monument at Princeton Scene of Patriotic Ceremonies Today.

Great Tribute Was Paid to George Washington and the Little Army That Fought With Him.

(By Associated Press)

Princeton, N. J., June 9.—President Harding reached here today to dedicate the Princeton battle monument after traveling cross country by motor, from Somerville, N. J., with his party.

Behind a squadron of cavalry and over a road flanked by artillery, delivering the presidential salute, the president was taken directly to the monument speaking stand.

Bayard Stockton III, a descendant of one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, pulled away a great flag which draped the McMoines sculptor, commemorating George Washington's exploit in leading the Continental army in the Princeton-Trenton campaign against the British. There were other brief preliminaries in the dedication ceremonies.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 9.—The brilliancy of General Washington's genius in action and the devotion of his followers of the Continental army under great privations were extolled by President Harding today in an address at the dedication of the battle monument at Princeton. The memorial was fitting to the heroes and heroism of that day, he declared, adding that "we bring and lay at its foot the laurel wreath which gratitude and patriotic sentiment will always dedicate to those who have borne the heat and burden of the conflict."

The President spoke as follows.

"My fellow Americans:

"We have come here to say the formal words of dedication and consecration before a monument in granite and marble. But we stand, to say those words, in the presence of another monument, which is the tribute memorial to the events we celebrate. The real monument to the achievement of Washington's patriots in the Trenton-Princeton campaign is not in works of bronze or carvings of stone. It rests itself in the institutions of liberty and representative government, now big in the vision of all mankind."

"In the presence of such a monument, we can do no better than consecrate ourselves to the cause in which at this place the soul of genius and the spirit of sacrifice shone forth with steadfast radiance. On no other battlefield, in presence of no other memorial of heroism, could we find more assuring illumination for our hopes, our anticipations, our confidence."

"And then the flash of Washington's defiance. The crossing of the Delaware in a storm and ice floes; the march, the delays which made it impossible to effect a night attack and a complete surprise; Washington's stern and fatal decision to press on and stake everything on the issue; finally, the attack, and the victory."

The speaker declared that a repetition of the history of the railroads occurring in the public utilities, in the meat packing and coal industries, even in the administration of real property.

"Brilliant as was the accomplishment, Washington, on the Jersey side, was faced presently by the superior strength of the now consolidated British forces. At last his rival was sure of 'the old fox.' Then came the strategic withdrawal by Washington, at night, in secret, from his line on the

SERVICE MUST BE THE BASIS OF ALL BUSINESS

So Says Prominent Rotarian at Los Angeles Meeting Today.

Declares That Abuses of Business Must Be Corrected by Men in That Business.

(Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, June 9.—Until service is made the basis of all business, the possibility of government control will hover over private and corporate enterprise, Preston Arkwright, president of the Georgia Railway and Power Company, said in an address today before the International Convention of Rotary Clubs.

Mr. Arkwright appealed for a "brothering of the interest of every business man, looking toward the general end of complete understanding and the resultant fairness that must be the rule in all business dealings."

Abuses of business, he declared, must be corrected by the man engaged in business. Failure to do this, he said, "will result inevitably in correction by compulsion thru governmental restrictions."

Discussing the recent history of American railroads, Mr. Arkwright said that they practiced unwaranted discriminations between people and localities and their free power abused is unquestioned.

Public sentiment was aroused against them, as an inevitable consequence they were subjected to governmental regulation and control. Regulation once begun, becomes progressively more restrictive. Their rates were fixed, their earnings limited, their services prescribed, their operating conditions prescribed, the wages of their employees fixed.

Duties and responsibilities were imposed upon them and the opportunity to meet them in enterprises, initiative, and business management taken away. As an inevitable consequence, expansion and improvement of railroads ceased, service deteriorated, operation became expensive, freight and passenger rates became high and the whole country with all its industries and all its businesses is suffering from want of railroads in new territory, by the abandonment and taking up of railroads already built by inadequate and insufficient equipment everywhere, and because of rates and charges higher than industry can bear."

The speaker declared that a repetition of the history of the railroads occurring in the public utilities, in the meat packing and coal industries, even in the administration of real property.

"Security from the possibility of government control is a delusion," Mr. Arkwright continued. "Any business or industry will be held to be so affected by public interest as to justify governmental control, if public sentiment demands it."

Mr. Arkwright questioned governmental interferences as a remedial measure. "Operation of business by government," he said "does not prevent monopoly; it assures it."

What is needed among men interested in business, Mr. Arkwright concluded, "is intelligent self interest, self control, refraining from unfair advantage, determination to give value as well as take it, realization that one body cannot profit at the expense of another without eventual loss to both, and that all classes are mutually dependent on the services of each other."

Next Railway Pay Cut Will Hit Clerks, Signal Men and Freight Handlers, Is Report

Chicago, June 9—Railway telegraphers will not be included in the third wage reduction orders of the railroad labor board, according to rumors today regarding the new contemplated slash in railroad pay rolls.

New wage cuts following the $110,000,000 already taken from the pay checks of 500,000 maintenance of way employees and 400,000 shopmen, will effect, it is alleged, 350,000 railway clerks, signal men, stationery firemen, and marine department employees.

Chief among the group are 220,000 clerks, 22,000 men in the signal department and 80,000 freight handlers and truckers.

Although board members made no direct statement regarding the next cut, rumors were persistent in predicting a smaller reduction for clerical forces than those effecting the shop men. The reason for this was said to lie in the fact that the clerks did not receive increases proportionately as great as other groups of employees, when the wage scale was going up.

Delegates of the Chicago & North-Western Local No. 12, representing all crafts, issued a declaration that railroad executives are all wrong in saying that employees have adjusted themselves to wage cuts.

According to himself, "Mike" was coming up from Chicago to work on a farm at or near Cainey. He had never been up here to town and the job through an advertisement he read in one of the Chicago papers.

He says there was a man in the seat with him who called his attention to a grip that was in a seat across the aisle and reengaged that it had probably been forgotten by whoever it belonged to. "Mike" says that acting on the suggestion of his traveling companion, he took the grip with him when he left the train.

When the train arrived in Escanaba, the owner of the grip discovered the loss and reported it to the local police. It did not take the departing very long to locate the man who had taken it from the train and an officer went down and placed him under arrest, bringing him to this city.

A crime was committed in Menominee county. "Mike" was taken to Menominee today and turned over to the proper authorities.

Commencement Exercises Will Be Held at High School on the Evening of Thursday, June 15th.

DETROIT, Mich., June 9.—Grand Recorder George T. Campbell of Michigan Grand commandery, Knights Templar, who has held that high office for 14 consecutive years, was signally honored at the grand commandery session in the Masonic Temple, Wednesday morning, when L. P. Newby of Knightstown, Ind., grand master of the grand encampment of the United States installed him in office as grand standard bearer of the Grand encampment of the United States.

Grand Master Newby and Grand Recorder Campbell were brotherhood friends, both having been interested in the annual ceremony at the Grand commandery session.

Many Distinguished Guests

The Grand commandery was escort to the Masonic temple at 9 o'clock from the headquarter at Hotel Stalter, its formal session opening at 10 o'clock. The distinguished out-of-town guests who have been in attendance at the sixty-fifth annual conference were formally received with the pomp and ceremony due their exalted rank in Templarism.

The guests in cluded Grand Master Newby, William Leslie Sharp of Chicago, grand captain general of the Guard commandery; Andrew D. Agnew of Milwaukee, grand warden of the Grand encampment; William H. Jennings of St. Louis, grand commander of Illinois; Daniel E. Jones of Toledo, grand commander of Ohio; Ralph Minchard of Pittsburgh, grand commander of Pennsylvania; and Alfred E. Gister of Scranton, past grand commander of Pennsylvania.

After the formal reception of the honored guests in the grand commandery session presided over by Grand Commander Lyle H. Youngquist of Detroit Commandery No. 1, he held his business session with reading, report and discussion with reading of reports of officers and committees and transacting of routine business.

Gains 1,000 Members

Grand Recorder Campbell's report showed a net growth in the Grand commandery for the year, of 1,000 members, which follows the average growth for the last four years.

Grand Treasury Charles H. Pomeroy of Saginaw, reported for the twenty-third time at a grand commandery session, having held his office for that entire period.

Inspector General Thane Benedict, of Iowa, delivered his report covering the activities of all commanderies of the state.

He gave a resume of the reports and recommendations of all inspecting officers.

Luncheon was served in the temple at noon by Detroit commandery No. 1 and the afternoon session was devoted to committee reports and routine business interspersed by addresses from the visiting guests of honor.

GORIAS PLANT NOT INCLUDED BY MAJORITY

Representative James of Michigan Favors Entire Offer.

Minority Report Does Not Favor Any Part of Ford's Offer and Advises Other Action.

WASHINGTON, June 9—House leaders declined today to give the membership and idea as to how soon a report dealing with Henry Ford's offer for the Muscle Shoals property might be taken up for consideration.

Representative Mondell the Republcan leader, declaring that no decision could be reached until the various reports had been carefully examined and studied.

WASHINGTON, June 9—Three separate reports setting forth recommendations for action by congress with respect to private developments of the governments $165,000,000 power and nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals, Alabama, were made to the house today by members of the military committee. The task of making the final decision is admitted in each of the reports to be the duty of the full membership of the house, at an early date.

After four months of consideration by the committee the reports differ in important respects as they are presented.

Ford Alone Worthy

Acting Chairman McKenzie of Illinois, who drafted the majority report, declared that the out-of-the-way site selected by the Ford proposal was the only one found "worthy of serious consideration," and asked its acceptance by the house, provided however, that the Gorias steam plant is not included among the property to be disposed of at Muscle Shoals.

Would Give Ford All

Concurrent with the majority report except for the references made with respect to the Gorias plant is voiced in one of the minority opinions presented by Representative Wright of Georgia and supported by Representatives James of Michigan and the remaining Democratic members of the committee. This report asks for full compliance by the house with all provisions of the Ford proposal including the Gorias property and points on the belief that if congress eliminates the Gorias and it would defeat the Ford offer.

Don't Like Offer

In the third report submitted by Representative Parker, Republican of New Jersey and signed by Representative Frothingham, Republican of Massachusetts, the opinion is adverse to the acceptance of Mr. Ford's offer unless it is modified in other section than that dealing with Gorias. In the event Mr. Ford declines to agree to the modifications proposed, the act would have the secretary of war lease the dam and nitrate plant "on such terms as would assure the completion of the dam" and would authorize him to "settle the sales value of the Gorias plant and convey the same to the Alabama Power company.

Ask Quick Action

In conclusion the majority report says "action by congress is imperative and immediate action means economy, if such action provides for such disposition as will insure an income for the government and not a continuous outlay."

POSTMASTER GENERAL WORK HANDS "BOUQUET" TO THE MAN WHO GAVE HIM HIS OFFICE

Says Most Outstanding Characteristic of President Harding Is Himself.

There Are Several Rungs to the Social and Political Ladder With Usual "Climbers."

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Postmaster General Work recently gave a "clean-up" impression of President Harding to a group of western visitors who had called at the Postoffice Department to commend improvements of postal conditions on the Pacific coast. Colleagues of the Postmaster General were of the opinion that Dr. Work's description of the President was so unique it should be made public and convenient if it was given out today as follows:

"The outstanding characteristic of President Harding is his presence. This can hardly be called a characteristic for it is the sum of many, yet in fact a man has. The President's presence is seen to best advantage when he is receiving the long lines of casual, emulous and transient visitors to the White House."

"This is almost of daily occurrence and always follows the adjournments of cabinet meetings. Many hundreds of visitors to Washington are ushered without waiting for the cabinet officers to leave, when they have been assured if there may shake hands with the President."

"The President's art of handshaking has been frequently commented upon. There is no art about it because it is real. It is an instinct. He meets them by the hundreds day after day, forty per minute if there is no hand shaking more if there is music."

"The President likes children and old people, and he is fond of dogs, and they in turn like him, each in their own fashion. The dog 'Laddie Boy' true to the Alabate instinct for one master only, selected the President as his special friend. Children look up at him and pay no reverence, having forgotten that it was the President who held their hand, while old ladies meet him with 'Thank God for you Mr. President' or 'May God bless you' or 'Our country is safe with you.' Often an old lady on that uncertain border line separating the grandmother from the angel, will kiss his hand greatly to his embarrassment."

"These old people; they impress one and depress him too at times. They have done their work, matured their children and are waiting. Mayhap some are rejoicing then, and others may be in distress, but in either event

GRANDMA NEVER LET HER HAIR GET GRAY

She Kept Her Locks Dark and Glossy, With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though at home is messy and troublesome. At little cost, you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and lustrous.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, and four years young.

MEN GIRLS LOVE By Laurel Gray

GIRLS love methodical men. Romance cut by rule of thumb may seem too coldly practical at first blush—but the girls manage to discount any hint of practicality, and they fall in love with men who order their lives by method. The methodical chap never forgets to order the theatre seats in advance; he always takes things so that his sweetie has a seat in the car, and gets home in season. The methodical man is a delightful insurance against disappointment. Just as a methodical supervisor arranges things in advance and every sentimental excursion works out happily, so does he become a methodical husband who always has money in the bank, who always has the safety and comfort of the future well arranged, and whose wife and family are well provided for. Method may seem unromantic, but it really provides for super romance—the kind that lasts longest.

TEMPERANCE WOMEN AT MUSKEGON MEET IN BIG CONVENTION

State Association of Women's Christian Temperance Union Open Session There Today.

(By Associated Press)

MUSKEGON, June 9.—Muskegon today became the rallying center for women of the state who long have waged a bitter fight against the liquor traffic—the annual convention of the Michigan Women's Christian Temperance Union opening here tonight. The convention, from many aspects, is expected to be one of the most important in the history of the organization in this state, due to the wide diversity of subjects that will be discussed. The closing session will be held Wednesday, June 11.

The fight that the Union is prepared to make against any efforts to pass a light wine and beer amendment to the state constitution at the autumn election will be one of the matters discussed during the convention. Speakers also will stress the importance of conducting a drive in behalf of enforcement of all laws on the state and national statute books.

The question of changing the organization's state constitution somewhat to abolish either the county or district

"Coldest" Spot Is Discovered In Washington

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The coldest spot in the world has been found by comparison with which the North Pole is warmer than the Tropic of Cancer.

BONUS MONEY IS RUNNING LOW AT THE STATE CAPITOL

More Than Thirty Classes Will Gather at University of Michigan for Five Days.

Several Thousand Applications
Are On File and Less Than Half a Million Is On Hand.

(By Associated Press)

LANSING, Mich., June 9.—With several thousand soldier bonus applications still on file in the bonus division of the state adjutant general's department and only about $500,000 with which to meet them, the question of what is going to happen if the money runs out again is confronting the state officials.

Many of the applications now on file probably will not be paid, due to ineligibility or other causes. But it seems likely that more than enough to absorb the bonus balance will have to be met.

Some time ago there were indications that a shortage might occur in the bonus fund, due to miscalculations when the number of veterans and the amount of bonus they would receive were estimated. At that time Governor Groesbeck declared the money would be found to pay the veterans even if a special session of the legislature were required. The situation is not so serious now, due to the fact that bonus applications have dwindled to almost nothing, that those still on file were belated and apparently filed by veterans not in a hurry and that the winter of 1923 will see another regular session of the legislature.

In case a serious shortage is encountered it is probable that the state will advance the money from the general fund, if it is available, and ask the 1923 legislature to take the necessary steps to reimburse the state.

"Let's Make Escanaba A Better City"

A BEAUTY WHO COULD SING AND ACT.

It may have been the irony of fate that caused Lillian Russell to fail by a considerable margin to fulfill her advice on "How to Live a Hundred Years," but to the very last she remained the radiant beauty at whose shrine two generations of theatre-goers had worshipped, and her death in Pittsburgh marked the passing of a woman who had long since become an American institution. Fame is fleeting in the world of make-believe across the footlights, but the ruthlessness of time could not dispel the pleasant memories cherished by those who knew airy, fairy Lillian Russell when in her prime as the justly acclaimed queen of American opera.

Who can forget those palmy years when Rudolph Aronson was serving light opera of a sort that has never since been excelled, at the New York Casino, and in turn sending it through the provinces, to delight music lovers whose acquaintance with Broadway was long-range. Those were the days when stars shone brightly, but of the galaxy that ornamented the Casino the name of Lillian Russell first suggests itself, just as it does when the old Weber and Fields enterprises are mentioned, and the McCullough company and the other organizations with which she traveled about the country.

The affection in which the public of her time held Miss Russell rested on more than her entrancing beauty. She was vocally equipped for opera in an era when a singing voice was considered essential in that capacity. She was an actress of no mean attainments. And she gave unspuriously of her talents, after a manner that brought no blush of shame. Foremost of the glorious "old guard," her taking leaves an irreparable gap in the thinning ranks of those who helped to make light opera famous a third of a century ago.

AN OUTGROWN THEORY.

In his examination of Elbert H. Gary during the hearing on the lastest steel merger, Samuel Untermyer tried to show that J. P. Morgan controls the United States Steel corporation by naming all of the members of the board of directors. This Mr. Gary emphatically denied but he added in the next sentence the information that he, himself, had more to do with selecting members of the board than anyone else.

In all of that there is nothing surprising. The theory that the stockholders of the giant industrial and railroad corporations meet and elect directors has long been nothing more than a theory in this country. Corporations of that kind are managed by some man or group of men who hold enough stock to insure a balance of power and the stockholders attach so little importance to their theoretical rights that they rarely think of trying to exercise them.

In such great organizations as the steel corporation it is difficult to see how any other course can be pursued. The stock of the corporation, and of many other great American concerns, is held all over the world. Their property is scattered from one end of the country to the other and none but a few on the inside really understand the business they do.

As a consequence the legal theory upon which corporations are erected has broken down and new methods have grown up which are not illegal but are largely outside of the law. Herein lies one of the reasons why the public as a whole through the government is warranted in exercising a high degree of supervision over corporate activities. All of the power to concentrate capital with any corporation ever had is retained by the modern American corporation but besides the concentration of resources there is a concentration of control which places in the hands of a few men the strength of thousands.

A COMPLAINT AGAINST RICCI.

It is reported by a correspondent of the Chicago Tribune that some of the representatives of foreign nations are complaining because Ambassador Ricci recently made a tour of the United States for the purpose of addressing Italian audiences with a view to the improvement of relations between this country and Italy. It is admitted that the ambassador could not be criticised for urging Italians to become American citizens, but it is said his purpose was to create an Italian vote in America which would be favorable to Italy.

Until the state department protests it will be safe for American citizens to assume that Ambassador Ricci's conduct was always within the limits of diplomatic propriety, and viewing the situation at large, they will console themselves with the thought that even if an Italian vote should develop there would be nothing absolutely novel in the fact.

The country which has been regularly figuring on the Irish vote and the German vote for many generations could get along with a body of Italians who voted with one eye on Europe. However, something more than a bare suggestion from interested outsiders will be needed to convince the country that Americans of Italian origin are preparing to inject old country politics into American affairs. The Italian voter has been with us for a long while and he has not yet exhibited a tendency in that direction.

Senator Stanley says that the only thing that could be added to make the tariff bill worse would be a duty on hot air. Perhaps the senator means to intimate that the country needs an embargo on the commodity broad enough to cover the United States senate.

RUSSIANS FAST
GETTING BACK TO OLD TIMES

Class Distinction Seems to Be Ingrained in the People.

Tells Group of Western Visitors All About the Chief Executive of the United States.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW, June 9—For all the troubles of the revolution, life in Russia is reverting to about the same general plane as under the rule of the Czars, according to the statement of old residents of Moscow. There is, however, a complete rearrangement of classes at the top and the bottom of the social scale with the bourgeoisie still safely placed in the middle.

MERCHANTS and others of the bourgeois class, who escaped the Red Terror, have again become merchants or taken on pursuits similar to those they followed under the Czar. The less fortunate nobility, except its few members who have become bourgeois, now occupies the lowest rung in the economic ladder. The revolutionary workmen who are employed in high official positions, occupy the privileged position that once belonged to the nobility.

The workingmen who once walked, now ride in the automobiles that formerly belonged to the nobility, while the nobility now walks, but the bourgeoisie, just as always, rides in "drushkas," or one-horse cabs. Less fortunate workmen who are not officially employed on a scale even less bound than they did under the Czar.

It is not only in this arrangement of classes that the similarity of Russia today and before the war is becoming more pronounced daily. "Do as you please, but don't bother with politics," was the general creed of Russian life under the old regime. Since free trade has been restored, the creed of the Soviet regime might be expressed in the same words.

If one did bother with politics under the old regime, the old secret police got him and did with him just about as they pleased. If one today opposes openly the Communistic oligarchy which now rules Russia, its secret police get him and he has no recourse. In neither case was or is there any freedom of the press or real freedom of speech. Just as before the revolution, persons desiring today to form political parties in opposition to the government now meet in secret places and speak in hushed whispers.

Persons who have recently fallen into the hands of the "State Political department," as the successor to the "Cheka" is known, declared that, just as this is nothing but the Cheka in a reduced form, so was the Cheka nothing other than an outgrowth of the Czar's "Okhrana," or secret police. In fact, many of the principal operatives of these institutions have served in their same positions throughout the three changes of the name.

ALL WORN OUT

Does morning find you with a lame, stiff and aching back? Are you tired all the time—find work a burden? Have you suspected your kidneys? Escanaba people endorse Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor.

Mrs. Benjamin Simons, 422 S. 16th St., Escanaba, Says: "Lots of mornings I would get up feeling lame and sore through my kidneys. After a hard day's work my back was lame and stiff and made me feel miserable. There was a dull ache across my kidneys which kept hurting all the time. Backache surely had me miserable and my back often gave out on me. I was unable to go on with my work and I had awful nervous spells and began to worry. I was so worn out I felt badly all over and my kidneys were disordered. Another member of the family had used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results, so I got a box at Gross' Drug Store and they cured me in fine manner."

GLASS OF SALTS IF YOUR KIDNEYS HURT

Eat less meat if you feel Backache or have Bladder trouble—Salts fine for Kidneys.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to clear it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

7-Year-Old Boy Has First Ride Behind Horse

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 9—"Times do change," Secretary of Agriculture Wallace remarked as he climbed out of the horse-drawn carriage, which by custom conveys the agriculture chief on official missions, and entered the White House executive office for the regular cabinet meeting. His small grandson, aged 7, rode with him in the ancient equipage. "That is the first time this boy ever rode behind a horse," he said.
