

CICOTTE, BIG LEAGUE STAR, PITCHES TOMORROW FOR NEWBERRY

SCHRAM CREW EAGER TO MEET THE BIG SHOW Great Tilt Is Promised With Newberry at Ball Park Sunday. Game Starts Promptly at 3:00 O'clock and You'd Better Start for the Grounds Early.

Indications are that South Park will be taxed to capacity Sunday afternoon when the locals meet the fast and scrappy Newberry team in what is expected to be the best game ever called here.

With the famous "Black Sox" hurler on the mound for the visitors, Escanaba will be facing real big league stuff backed by a fast and snappy fielding team which also numbers some fence busters in its personnel.

Local Goat is Safe Nobody ever accused the local aggregation of being subject to stage fright, and if that is the case, Schram sees no reason why Cicotte should put anything over here more than any other real pitcher could get away with.

"Let's Make Escanaba A Better City"

ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL.

A study of the life of Alexander Graham Bell, in whose death the world loses an inventor of the first rank, would warrant a believer in special providence in thinking that Professor Bell was fore-ordained to invent the telephone. He was in the third generation of Bells with whom the study of sound was a passion, and his work carrying him on to the study of electricity, brought him to the problem of electric transmission of sound naturally and inevitably. Nor does history of invention furnish many instances of men who have brought to their researches such a remarkable preparation.

If the elder Bell had known at the birth of his son what the boy was to do, he could hardly have directed his training more wisely; and no youth who is hoping that sudden inspiration will make a great discoverer of him, can do better than to study the life of Alexander Graham Bell. There he will discover that happy accidents and unaccountable institutions count for nothing except to men who are ready for them as Bell was. There was an marvelous accident that befell the inventor of the telephone while he was working on a multiple telegraph and pointed the way to his great achievement, but it is doubtful whether any other person in the world would have known what the accident meant.

The value of the telephone is not easy to estimate because it is impossible to say in dollars what it does for mankind. One may find with an approximation to truth how much work the steam engines of the world are doing, but who knows how much trouble and how much money the telephone saves? What measure is there to apply to the effects of an instrument which draws the people of a community closer together, promotes social intercourse, supplies omissions due to slips of memory, does the family marketing and carries the voice of loved ones from distant places into the family circle?

In the practical dispatch of business, the telephone has become indispensable. The New York stock exchange would break down without it. The police would be in despair if they had it not. In journalism it has multiplied productive power of the reporter many times over. But all that can be said of the total effect of the telephone upon society is that it is

For all that it does, the world must thank Alexander Graham Bell, and now that he is dead it is pleasant to remember that he was not one of the neglected geniuses. Honor and wealth came to him in abundance in his lifetime, and he, being a man of broad culture, a musician and scientist, was able to enjoy life at its fullest.

A POSSIBLE REFORM.

There was never a party in power that did not claim to be economical, and history recordeth not the time when the outs did not accuse the ins of extravagance. Within the last month, the halls of congress have resounded with clash of oratorical battle over this same old question. At the close of the house sessions, Republican leaders pointed to savings by the hundred million. Democrats cried out against wastes of equal amount. Senator Overman has just resumed the fight in the senate. Being a Democrat he is perfectly certain that Republican claims of economy are campaign lies.

This paper is of the opinion that, under the budget system and the administration's honest effort to retrench, the expenses of government have been much less than they otherwise would have been. It is probable, however, that the great masses of the people feel no certainty on the subject, and that on the whole they will allow their opinions to follow their politics, while those who seek more substantial grounds for belief encounter the fearful and awful balance sheets and tables issued by the treasury department. Nobody but experts know what they mean and none but experts ever will.

That being the situation, it might be a good idea, in some happy time when the government has money to spare, to set up a non-partisan bureau of popular accounting which would tell the people the simple truth in plain English about the expenses of their government.

SENATOR FRANCE'S LATEST.

Senator Joseph France of Maryland continues to give evidence that he is not as other senators are. He has ideas of his own. His latest is embodied in a bill providing that the United States shall present six battleships to Poland. Since no nation is threatening the Poles at this time, with the possible exception of Russia, the assumption is that the battleships are to be used against the bolshevik government which the senator has been in favor of recognizing ever since he made his famous visit to Moscow. Perhaps he is beginning to think that Lenin and Trotsky are not so lovely as they seemed to be, but that is a negligible detail.

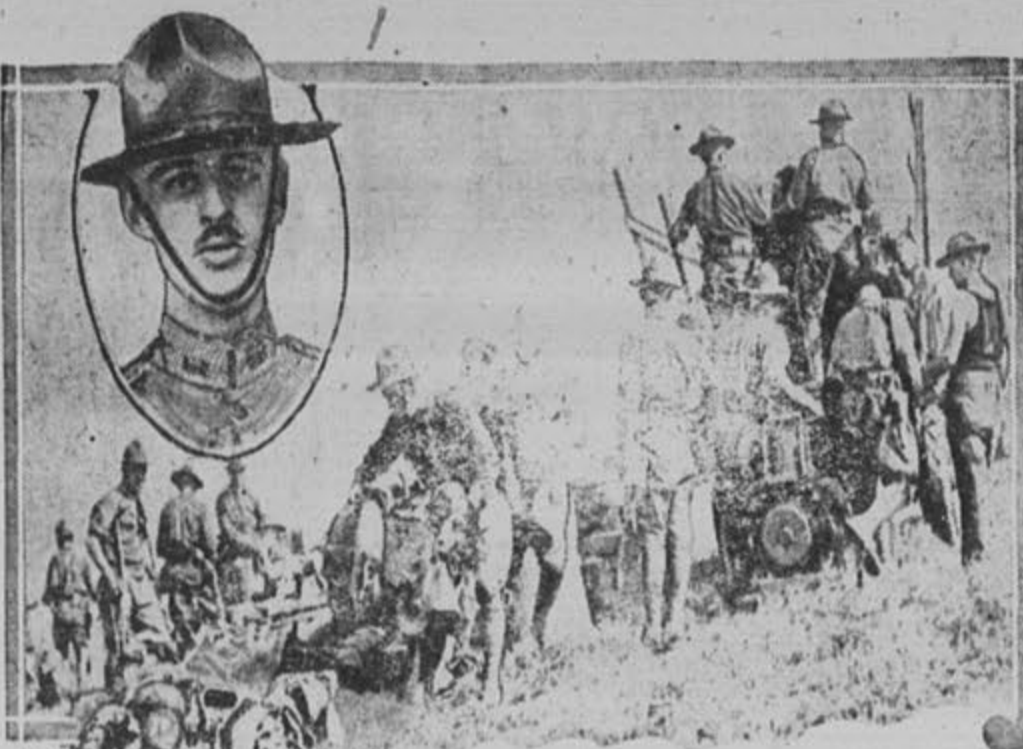

The principal point in connection with the senator's suggestion is that the United States is using all the weight of its influence to persuade Europe to disband armies, scrap navies and balance budgets. No nation needs to economize much more urgently than Poland, which is struggling with a demoralized currency system and a heavy debt. What Poland wants is not something to spend money on, but money to use for the purposes of industry and peace.

It would be no favor to Poland to saddle a navy upon it, and any such act would give the lie to all of the claims which the country has made as a friend of disarmament.

"BOY ORATOR" OF 1896 HOPEFUL OF SEAT IN CONGRESS

One-Time Soap Box Orator of West About to Realize Ambition of a Lifetime.

LITTLETON, N.Y., Aug. 3. After just a brief career of more than 20 years as a man who once earned for himself a national reputation as "The Boy Orator of 1896," today is standing on the threshold of his life's ambition and may obtain a seat in Congress as representative from the first congressional district of Nebraska, to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Congressman C. P. Reavis.

Parriott, also of Lincoln, Mr. Thorpe will serve as congressman a bare four months. While a boy, Thorpe, made a study of the tariff and money questions of the day and debated in school and public forum on the issues arising therefrom. In the years following the failure of 1893, young Thorpe, then about 21 years of age, found himself one of the 4,000,000 men out of employment and went out to the Kansas wheat fields in search of work. His gold standard policies in a state where Populism and the Free Silver issues were rampant soon lost him his job after job. He became a tramp at all times ready to voice his protest against economic conditions. The soap box days found his steady tenet and his oratory soon won him a name in the west.

"Gold Bug" Champion
Gold standard republicans proclaimed him the champion of their cause. Young Thorpe was received with acclaim in every city he made his appearance. The newspaper file of leading Nebraska newspapers of that day are filled with editorial comment concerning the prowess of Thorpe and the manner in which he routed his opponents. He made 157 addresses in Nebraska in 1896. Later he moved on to Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky and Missouri stamping each state as he traveled. For while the lecture platform claimed his services, but his health failed him 15 years ago, he gave up lecturing and since has been out of public life.

This Holder of Eating Championship Sure Got His Fill on U. S. Liner

Champion Eater on S. S. President Harding

New York. The only swallow and stare and swallow. Lumpy little sandwiches of chicken, roast beef, roast ham, cold roast pork, creamy cheese, cantaloupe, fruit, crisp lettuce and tomato, fresh apples, strawberries, etc. This was indeed the realization of a dream. Cool creamy hearts, food olives, asparagus tips in a delectable dressing, iced tea and still more sandwiches. Tobias Jason felt that he had truly reached the seventh heaven of delight and that if the supply lasted he would be the happiest man to cross the ocean.

Mr. Jason partook of the cold buffet lunch and was still eating when the liner went to sea. He was thoroughly satisfied and sought his chair on deck. It seemed only a few minutes before the call came for dinner. The mere mention of food was a stimulating influence to Mr. Jason and he hurried down to his place in the dining salon.

The two stewards saw him coming and started serving him the regular dinner: Appetizers, a delicious soup, relishes, fresh fish, entrees, roasts, salads, deserts and then a demi-tasse. Tobias Jason admitted he had eaten one of the finest and most delectable meals that he had ever dreamed of enjoying. And having finished the course he ordered the stewards to repeat the order.

When breakfast was called the next morning, Mr. Jason was the first one at the table. There were sliced oranges, pineapples, bananas, all varieties of fresh berries, every kind of cereal, eggs, chops, potatoes, coffee, fresh rolls, toast, jams and preserves. Mr. Jason ordered everything on the menu and a third helping of eggs.

When he reached New York, he insisted on meeting Mr. Hardy, Commissary Superintendent of the United States Lines, who is responsible for supplying the food on all ships, and told him that whereas he expected to lose several pounds on the voyage, he was glad to say that he had added seven pounds to his two hundred and eighty, and after a trip to Texas to show the folks what a trip on one of the United States Lines could do for a hearty eater that he expected to return to New York for another voyage and more food.

WORN NERVES

Nervous troubles, with backache, dizzy spells, queer pains and irregular kidneys, give reason to suspect kidney weakness and to try the remedy that has helped your neighbors. Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. Helena Fillion, 621 South 16th St., Escanaba, says: "I was bothered with my kidneys all my life up until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. My back was weak and I couldn't bend on account of the severe pains which caught me. I had a steady ache in my back all the time and it made no difference whether I was working or standing still, my back hurt just the same. I was all worn out and always felt nervous, depressed and irritable. Black spots came before my eyes, blurring my sight and I suffered a great deal with headaches. My kidneys were weak and disordered, but Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended and I got some at the City Drug Store. They entirely relieved the trouble."

Keeps Himself Young By Reading Papers

LONDON, Aug. 5.—A retired member of the British bar, Sir Henry Polard, hale, hearty and still interested in life at the age of 94, attributes his longevity and mental vigor largely to having always been a great newspaper reader. He is very fond of taking long walks about London to enjoy the beauties of the city, and recently he has chafed at the rains which have kept him indoors. "Still one can obtain excitement enough to keep young just by reading the newspapers," he says, "for we live in stirring times."

Modest Young Life Saver Is Nova Scotian

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 5.—Harry McDonald, a 12-year-old lad living at Fairview on the outskirts of Halifax has to his credit three rescues from drowning all within the past three years. His latest feat was the saving recently of five-year-old Teddy Moller when the small boy fell through a hole in a Fairview wharf. Young Moller had had to dive over the wharf and swim a distance of 20 feet among the piles. The young Moller boy was going down for the third time and was unconscious when rescued, but McDonald clutched him and then holding to one of the piles directed the remainder of the saving operations. These were carried out with the aid of a cod line passed down from the wharf. Questioned about his first life-saving exploit Harry said:

Robbed hair has gone out of style and the sentiment of a woman who has just had it bobbed probably is, "Well, I'll be switched."

"Aw, it wasn't nuthin' at all. The O'Brien kid what lives on Stanley St. fell off a raft down by the shop yards and I went in and pulled him out."

The description of the second exploit when he rescued Arthur Metham was:

"He was my chum, so I had to get him back."

It was not until after his first two rescues that the young life saver learned to swim. In the first instance he plunged after the "O'Brien kid," into the water over his head, and managed somehow to get him back to the raft.

In the second he went to his chum's rescue partially supported by a stick. Harry is described as a "regular boy," even to having the proverbial "yaller dog." One of Harry's ambitions is to become a Sea Scout.

MORSE OFFERED THE TELEGRAPH TO TEXAS

Old Letter Shows That Inventor Made Lone Star State Wonderful Offer Back in 1860.

(By Associated Press) AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 5.—Samuel F. R. Morse offered the Republic of Texas his invention of the electro-magnetic telegraph in 1838, but the offer was not accepted according to a letter by Mr. Morse found in the state library.

The letter, dated 1860, was addressed to General Sam Houston, then governor of Texas and withdrew the offer which had been made more than twenty years before to General Houston as president of the Texan republic. The communication was written from "Poughkeepsie, New York. It is dated August 2, 1860. Starting with "May I please your excellency the letter read: "In the year of 1838 I made an offer of my invention of the electro-magnetic telegraph to Texas, Texas being then an independent republic. Although the offer was made more than twenty years ago, Texas, while an independent state, nor since it has become one of the United States has ever directly or impliedly accepted the offer. I am indeed, therefore, to believe in its condition as a gift it was never in value to the state, but on the contrary has been an embarrassment. In connection however, with my other patent it has become for the public interest as well as my own that I should be able to make complete title to the whole invention in the United States.
