ANGLO-TURKISH WAR PERIL VANISHING

ARMISTICE CONFERENCE TO BE HELD TUESDAY WHEN IT IS BELIEVED PERIL WILL END

Constantinople, Oct. 2.—With an armistice conference definitely fixed for tomorrow, at Mudania, the peril of war between Great Britain and Turkey appears less menacing today.

Up to the time of the issuance of Brig. Gen. Harrington's temporizing note, Saturday night, the situation looked critical.

The situation Saturday afternoon was so serious that it was feared that the British had to demand the evacuation of the Gallipoli peninsula from the British with drawings from the Atlantic coast of the Dardanelles and the immediate evacuation of Thrace by the Greeks.

TEMPORARY EASE. LONDON.—With the virtual acceptance by Mustafa Kemal Pasha of a conference at Mudania on Tuesday, or as soon as possible thereafter, the whole near eastern situation is considered temporarily easier.

While the cabinet members appear to be much gratified by the happy conclusion for the moment of a difficulty which might have necessitated the use of force in the Chana zone, there are other indications to stress.

After several cabinet meetings on Saturday, one of them running into 1 o'clock Sunday morning, information from the near east was considered not altogether satisfactory, and two additional meetings were held on Sunday.

The arrangements made at the Mudania meeting will be of a purely military nature. The original allied note to Kemal Pasha asked that the neutral zone be respected and also that agreements be made upon the lines behind which the Greeks are to withdraw in Thrace.

There will be present military representatives of the three allied powers, as well as of Greece and Turkey. Withdrawal Still Paramount. It is pointed out that the very basis of this conference is respect for the neutral zone, and before it begins the Turks will be expected to vacate the Chana area entirely.

Although the Turks have not yet withdrawn completely they have evacuated the heights of Eren Keut and have desisted also from parading before the British wire entanglements.

If the Turks around Imdid commence such actions or attempt to enter the neutral zone at that point, there is likelihood that the British will raise the question before entering the conference. It is known that while Gen. Harrington is making every effort to maintain peace, he is a most exacting and determined person when given cause.

Here's What Your Congress Did For You Last Session

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Almost ten months of legislative action ending last week with adjournment sine die of the second session of the 67th Congress covered a wide range, affecting the nation's international relations as well as its economic, industrial and home life.

Passage of the permanent tariff revision and additional bonus bills probably were the chief features of the session, which began Dec. 4 last and which was the first regular session of Congress since inauguration of the Harding Administration, the first session being especially called in the spring of 1921. The Washington conference on limitation of armament and Far Eastern questions, and the railroad and coal strikes, however, gave Congress new and unexpected problems to deal with. The naval limitation and a half dozen other conference treaties were made last March after weeks of debate delaying other legislation and about as many weeks were required for conference and legislation growing out of the two strikes—the Federal coal commission and coal regulation and distribution bills.

Scores of other new laws were made and a dozen regular and several special appropriation bills, carrying upward of $2,250,000,000 passed, the first under the new budget system and the reorganized congressional appropriation committees.

Three Personal Appearances.

The session was marked by three personal addresses by President Harding at joint sessions, one opening the session, another one on merchant marine legislation and the third on the industrial situation.

Other special features of the session included the seating of Senator Newberry, Rep., Mich., by the Senate, January 12, the recent attempt by Rep. Keller, Rep., Minn. to impeach Attorney General Daugherty, confirmation by the Senate of American ambassadors and ministers to Germany, Austria and Hungary, confirmation of former Senator Sutherland of Utah as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court to succeed former Justice Clarke, resigned; death of Senators Patterson and Cross of Pennsylvania; resignation of William S. Kenyon from the Senate to go on the Federal bench and the long tariff debate in the Senate. The tariff discussion began April 11 and took all congressional records for a continuous legislative day, through daily recesses without a single adjournment, from April 29 to Aug. 2. The abortive effort for Senate closure, still pending, and the row over appointment of Nat. Goldstein to be St. Louis internal revenue collector, were other features.

Politics, as might be expected before the biennial congressional elections, was constantly in the capital air during the entire session, with innumerable partisan speeches and moves from leaders of both dominant parties. Delivery of veterans such as Chairman McCumber of the Senate finance committee in the primaries during the session and announced retirement of others such as Chairman Fordney of the House ways and means committee foreshadowed coming changes in Congressional membership.

More Important Legislation.

Headed by the tariff bill, the session's more important legislation provided for:

• Creation of the allied debt funding commission.

• Appropriation of $20,000,000 for Russian relief.

• Appointment of a "dirt farmer" on the Federal reserve board.

• Cooperative marketing by farmers.

• Regulation of grain futures, so as to meet the Supreme Court decision, making the original Capper-Tinsley law imperative.

• Creation of 25 more federal judges.

• Extension of the 3 percent immigration quota law for two years.

• Strapping of naval vessels in accord with the arms conference treaties.

• Reorganization of the patent office without increase in its force.

• Reorganization of the body of pay of army, navy and marine officers.

• Decrease in personnel and expense of the army and navy.

• Monthly payment of pensions.

• Development of rivers and harbors.

• Appropriation of $7,500,000 to continue work on the Muscle Shoals, Ala., power project.

• Appropriation of $1,500,000 to loan farmers for seed grain.

• Appropriation of $200,000 for prosecution of war bands.

• Continuation of war-time bonus pay of Federal employees.

The Farm Block.

In the legislative program, and for agriculturalists, was prominent, with the unimpaired, bipartisan Senate agricultural "block" continuing its activities while a less organized and cohesive agricultural group played a like part in the House. There also was organized an unofficial republican tariff bloc in the Senate during the tariff fight.

Numerous investigations, as usual, were held by both Senate and House, with few final reports.

Among the inquiries were: Deposition of the Muscle Shoals project; charges of Senator Watson, Dem., Ga., that soldiers of the American Expeditionary Forces had been hanged without trials; the alleged dye lobby; railroad problems; war frauds; disposition of government naval oil reserves; oil and gasoline prices; American occupation of Haiti and Santo Domingo; civil service; and activities of General Semenov, Russian leader.

and "white mule." The better grade places sell a double-stuffed moonshine in the same drink and a few there are who sell from sealed cases the whiskies which once were glibly called for.

25 Cents a Drink.

What is regarded as an average grade of "cherry bonnie" sells for 25 cents a drink. Those who drink real liquor pay up to $1.25 a taste.

Hurley does not draw its blind when it feels thirsty. Some few of the 54 saloons have separated their business into soft drink bars and back room bars, but most of them do business over the bar with the polished toilet.

The 54 saloons do not account for all of Hurley's prosperity. There are other places where the goddess of chance holds forth her allurements. Here the silver dollar reigns supreme—they still circulate in this part of the world. Hundreds of dollars have changed hands on the turn of a single card or die.

"Chuck luck," "roulette," almost every form of entertainment to be found in Monte Carlo, are here in Hurley. One of the leaders in this particular line of activity retired this summer and the game and apartment house.

Sirens Remain.

And in and out of the shadows of Hurley fit also its sirens. One of them, a few months ago, was the principal in an Ironwood playing trial, when a Minneapolis traveling man, touched by her beauty and the inevitable fate awaiting her in Hurley, was shot down just inside the Michigan line, as he attempted to help her escape.

Sirens came, few ever go, but the business of "streaming" still continues in Hurley.

SULPHUR CLEARS ROUGH, RED SKIN

Face, Neck and Arms Easily Made Smooth, Says Specialist.

Any breaking out of the skin, even freckles, itching eczema, can be quickly Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation begins at once to soothe irritated skin and heal eruptions such as rash, pimples and ring worm.

It seldom fails to remove the torment and disfigurement, and you do not have to wait for relief from embarrassment. Improvement quickly shows. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

When men with a pulmotor responded to a call at a creek near Bay City, they arrived in haste to see the drowned man running away through a cornfield. Is it just, is it humane, to allow over a drowned man to be frightened like that?

A MONTE CARLO AT OUR DOORS

Hurley, Wis., Boasts Business as Usual With 54 Bars in Full Swing.

IRONWOOD, Mich., Oct. 2.—Business as usual is the big boost in Hurley, Wis., just across the river from this city. Scourful of Volsteadian ways, Hurley's 54 saloons, with four mahogany bars, clinking glasses and full, mysterious bottles, maintain the tradition of Hurley wide open and carefree as ever.

Standing side by side along three blocks of the main street, under the shadow of the Iron County court house, which stands on a slight elevation about two blocks removed, care business isn't brisk, these places offer unique hospitality to the sturdy miners and lumbermen of the north.

Their bright lights and white-aproned attendants give one the impression that business is a trifle better than usual. No other lure is needed to attract a steady stream of Wolverines across the shaky bridge which spans the Montreal River, really a shallow rivulet whose fluid volume does not exceed that which flows over the mahogany bars of Hurley.

Free Lunches, Too.

The Montreal marks the long disputed boundary between arid Michigan and moist Wisconsin, the only hurdle thirsty citizens of Gogebic county need to jump.

Long zealous of its reputation as the wide-open town of the north, a playground for the man impatient of conventional restraints, refuge for the gambler and a retreat for the woman who has lost her way, Hurley isn't living on its reputation alone.

It is one place in America which maintains that strictly American institution, a free lunch counter. Along with the joy drinks go sandwiches made of rich old cheese or sausage, onions, radishes and the like.

Those tall bottles which mirror themselves from the back bar, contain only one mystery. Hurley, itself, does not grope its way about, for Hurley knows. The stranger, however, is forced to speculate for a few minutes at least on the power of the dynamite contained.

Hurley's favorite drink of "cherry bounce," a concoction of cherry wine

A THANKLESS TASK.

The Greeks probably will be doing the very best thing they can do if they place themselves and their fortunes in the hands of Eleutherios, but they are asking that statesman to undertake a difficult and thankless job; and if they expect him to restore them to anything like the position of prestige and power they were enjoying when they ungratefully turned him out in order to take in an ally of the Hohenzollern, they are doomed to disappointment.

About all the Greeks can reasonably hope is that Venizelos may be able to gather up some of the wreckage and save from utter disaster and destitution the nation he might have made great if he had been left alone to work out his policies.

Like the Bulgarians, the Hellenes have had their chance to come to the front in Balkan affairs and dominate the situation in southeastern Europe; and like the Bulgarians they have overplayed their game. Lured on by inordinate ambition they have "spread out" their petty imperial edifice until it has collapsed as much from intrinsic frailty as from outside assault, and the dream of a modern Hellenic empire is over.

If one is inclined to philosophize over the plight in which the Greeks find themselves he may perhaps find some interesting parallels between the present situation of the country and the fortunes of more than one of the tiny sovereignties of ancient Hellas that used to emerge from the general background one after another under the inspiration of a great mind of leadership, only to sink back again as soon as the genius or group of geniuses which had constituted the soul disappeared.

Such, in a degree, was the case with Athens, such emphatically was the case with Thebes, whose ten years of greatness depended wholly upon a single individual and vanished when he died; such also, to a considerable extent, was the case with Macedonia except that it had two masterful leaders in succession during the time it enjoyed its place in the sun. Even in Athens receding tradition of statesmanship seems to have developed. And the present indications are that modern Athens is not better off than classic Athens.

THE PRESIDENT'S DRY NAVY RULING.

The ruling of President Harding which forbids general operations by the dry navy outside the three-mile limit is correct. As long as territorial waters end at that point, the international regulation ought to be respected. It always is vicious to try to enforce one law by breaking another, and it is a decided imposition to ask other countries to renounce their sovereign rights in order that we may enforce of domestic statute. If an extension of the jurisdiction of the prohibition agents is desirable, the way to get it is through an international agreement extending coastal sovereignty. This is already under consideration for reasons quite apart from any problems connected with the enforcement of the Volstead act.

Nor can we see that the dry officials are really going to suffer any hardship as a result of Mr. Harding's order. While they are told to respect the rights of nations on the high seas, the ruling opens an adequate way to curb foreign smugglers by providing that where vessels loaded with liquor establish connection with the shore through their own agencies, by small boats or otherwise, they become guilty of an overt act against the United States and so lay themselves open to seizure and search.

It is not possible to forecast just how Great Britain will look upon this provision of the President's order, though probably London will be inclined to regard it sympathetically; but it seems to be reasonable and fair. When an offense is committed, it must be committed with the jurisdiction of the United States, and the seizure on the high seas of those guilty becomes the apprehension of domestic law-breakers who have fled the country but has been overtaken. If a foreign government may possibly object to this, it can at least just as easily approve it without any loss of right or sovereignty.

A SIDE BESIDE MR. WHEELER'S SIDE.

Naturally Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel for the Anti-Saloon league, criticizes the ruling of the President that the operations of the "dry" navy must be carried on inside the three-mile limit, except under certain specified circumstances. Quite as inevitably too, he contends that the provisions of the tariff bill give the prohibition enforcement agents the right to search and seize as far as the twelve-mile limit. And there is a certain amount of force also in his appeal to a circuit court of appeals decision that bears out his opinion.

But does Mr. Wheeler really "think through" his proposition? Has the congress of the United States power to pass domestic legislation operative in regions outside the limits of American sovereignty? Can the courts make rulings that hold good beyond those limits? If the executive department is charged with the duty of enforcing the laws placed on the books by the legislative branch, is it not equally true that the executive department is responsible only for proper enforcement?

Also, how about the responsibility of the President to the country for the right conduct of foreign relations? Has he not a duty there that is at least equal to his duty as the instrument which puts into effect the mandates of congress? Mr. Wheeler says officials have no right to sidestep. How about the duty of the executive to avoid sidestepping, in dealing with international problems?

When Judge Mandell declined an appointment to the federal bench on the ground that 60 years is too old for the job, he, perhaps, overlooked the fact that the oldest member of the supreme bench is eighty-one and the youngest sixty, the average age being 71.

What with the clothes in the attic, the Old Guard and everything, the moth have had a fairly busy summer.

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens So Naturally That Nobody Can Tell.

Hair that loses its color and lustre or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

To squeeze metal plates together and close a rivet on them a pressure of between 150 and 200 tons is required.

GLASS OF SALTS IF YOUR KIDNEYS HURT

Eat less meat if you feel Backache or have Bladder trouble—Salts fine for Kidneys.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to liberate it from the system. Regular eating of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—At the death of his foster father, Bruce Duncan, in an eastern city, he gives a mysterious message, sent by a Mrs. Ross, summoning him personally to southern Oregon to meet "Linda."

CHAPTER II.—Bruce has vivid but hazy recollections of his childhood in an orphanage, before his adoption by Newton Duncan, with the girl Linda.

CHAPTER III.—At his destination, Trail's End, news that a message has been sent to Bruce is received with marked displeasure by a man introduced to the reader as "Simon."

CHAPTER IV.—Leaving the train, Bruce is astonished at his apparent familiarity with the surroundings, though to his knowledge he has never been there.

CHAPTER V.—Obedient to the message, Bruce makes his way to Martin's cross-rails store, for directions as to reaching "Mrs. Ross' cabin."

CHAPTER VI.—On the way, "Simon" sternly warns him to give up his quest and return East. Bruce refuses.

CHAPTER VII.—Mrs. Ross, aged and infirm, welcomes him with emotion, also hastens him on his way—the end of "Pine-Needle Trail."

CHAPTER VIII.—Through a country puzzlingly familiar, Bruce journeys, and finds his childhood playmate, Linda.

CHAPTER IX.—The girl tells him of wrongs committed by an enemy clan on her family, the Rosses. Lands occupied by the clan were stolen from the Rosses, and the family with the exception of Aunt Alberta (Mrs. Ross) and herself, wiped out by assassination. Bruce's father, Matthew Folger, was one of the victims. His mother had fled with Bruce and Linda. The girl, while small, had seen Matthew from the orphanage and brought to the mountains. Linda's father had died his hands to Matthew Folger, but the orphanage, which would confiscate the enemy's claim to the property, had been lost.

Turner and Hudson followed up the little creek.

The first of Hudson's sets proved empty. The second was about a turn in the creek, and a wall of brush made it impossible for him to tell at a distance whether or not he had made a catch. But when still a quarter of a mile distant, Hudson heard a sound that he thought he recognized. It was a high, sharp, agonized bark that dimmed into a low whine. "I believe I've got a coyote or a wolf up there," he said. They hastened their steps.

The whole picture tumbled suddenly before their eyes. There was no wolf in the trap. The steel had sprung, certainly, but only a hideous fragment of a foot remained between the jaws. The bone had been broken sharply off, as a man might break a hatch in his fingers. There was no living wolf. Life had gone out of the gray body many minutes before. The two men saw all these things as a background only—dim details about the central figure. But the thing that froze them in their tracks with terror was the great, gray form of the Killer, not twenty feet distant, beside the man-god body of the wolf.

The events that followed thereafter came in such quick succession as to seem simultaneous. For one fraction of an instant all three figures stood motionless, the two men staring, the grizzly half-bending over his prey, his head turned, his little red eyes full of hatred. He uttered one hoarse, savage note, a sound in which all his hatred and his fury and his savage power were made manifest, whirled with incredible speed, and charged.

Hudson did not even have time to turn. There was no defense; his gun was strapped on his back, and even if it had been in his hands, its bullet would not have mattered the stinging of a bee in honey-robbing. The only possible chance of breaking that deadly charge lay in the thirty-three deer rifle in Dave's arms; but the craven who held it did not even fire. He was standing just below the overhanging limb of a tree, and the weapon fell from his hands as he swung up into the limb. The fact that Hudson stood weaponless, ten feet away in the clear air, did not deter him in the least.

No human flesh could stand against that charge. The vast paw fell with resistless force, and no need arose for a second blow. The trapper's body was struck down as if felled by a meteor, and the power of the impact forced it deep into the carpet of pine needles. The savage creature turned, the white fangs caught the light in the open mouth. The head lunged toward the man's shoulder.

No man may say what agony Hudson would have endured in the last few seconds of his life if the Killer had been given time and opportunity. His usual way was to linger long, sharp fangs closing again and again until all living likeness was destroyed. The blood lust was upon him; there would have been no mercy to the dying creature in the pine needles. Yet it transpired that Hudson's flesh was not to know those red-fang fangs a second time.

On the hillside above, a stranger to this land had dropped to his knees in the shrubbery, his rifle tilted to the level of his eyes. It was Bruce, who had come in time to see the charge through a rift in the trees.

The bear was on Hudson, and the man had gone down before Bruce even interpreted him. Then it was just a gray patch, a full three hundred yards away. His instinct was to throw the gun to his shoulder and fire with out aiming; yet he hesitated it with an iron will. But he did move quickly. He dropped to his knee the very second that the gun leaped to his shoulder. He seemed to know that from a lower position the target would be more clearly revealed. The finger pressed back against the trigger.

The distance was far; Bruce was not a practiced rifle shot, and it bordered on the miraculous that his lead went anywhere near the bear's body. And it was true that the bullet did not reach a vital place. It struck like a wasp at the killer's flank, however, cutting a shallow flesh wound. But it was enough to take his dreadful attention from the mortally wounded trapper in the pine needles.

He whirled about, growling furiously and biting of the wound. Then he stood still, turning his gaze first to the pale face of Dave Turner thirty feet above him in the pine. The eyes glowed in fury and hatred. He had found them out at last; they died even more easily than the trapper. He started to turn back to the fallen, and the rifle spoke again.

It was a complete miss, this time; yet the bear leaped in fear when the bullet thudded into the dust beside him. He did not wait for a third. His caution suddenly returning to him, and perhaps his anger somewhat satiated by the blow he had dealt Hudson, he crashed into the security of the thicket.

Bruce waited a single instant, hoping for another glimpse of the creature; then ran down to aid Hudson. But in driving the bear from the trapper's helpless body he had already given all the aid that he could. Understanding came quickly. He had arrived only in time for the Departure—just a glimpse of a light as it faded. The blow had been more than any human being could survive; even now Hudson was entering upon that strange calm which often, so mercifully, immediately precedes death.

He opened his eyes and looked with some wonder into Bruce's face. The light in them was dimming, fading like a twilight, yet there was indication of neither confusion nor delirium.

There was, however, some indication of perplexity at the peculiar turn affairs had taken. "You're not Dave Turner," he said wonderingly.

Dim though the voice was, there was considerable emphasis in the tone. Hudson seemed quite sure of this point, whether or not he knew anything concerning the dark gates he was about to enter. He wouldn't have spoken greatly different if he had been sitting in perfect health before his own camp fire and the shadow was now already so deep his eyes could scarcely penetrate it.

"No," Bruce answered. "Dave Turner is up a tree. He didn't even wait to shoot."

"Of course he wouldn't." Hudson spoke with assurance. The words dimmed at the end, and he half-closed his eyes as if he were too sleepy to stay awake longer. Then Bruce saw a strange thing. He saw, unmistakable as the sun in the sky, the signs of a curious struggle in the man's face.

The trapper—a moment before sinking into the calm of death—was fighting desperately for a few moments of respite. There could be no other explanation. And he won it at last,—an interlude of half a dozen breaths. "Who are you?" he whispered.

Bruce bowed his head until his ear was close to the lips. "Bruce Folger," he answered,—for the first time in his knowledge speaking his full name. "Son of Matthew Folger who lived at Trail's End long ago."

The man still struggled. "I knew it," he said. "I saw it—in your face. I see—everything now. Listen—can you hear me?"

"Yes." "I just did a wrong—there's a hundred dollars in my pocket that I just got for doing it. I made a promise—to lie to you. Take the money—it ought to be yours, anyway—and here; and use it toward fighting the wrong. It will go a little way."

"Yes," Bruce looked him full in the eyes. "No matter about the money. What did you promise Turner?" "That I'd lie to you. Gasp my arms with your hands—till it hurts. I've only got one breath more. Your father held those lands only in trust—the Turners' deed is forged. And the secret agreement that I witnessed is hidden—"

The breath seemed to go out of the man. Bruce shook him by the shoulders. Dave, still in the tree, strained to hear the rest. "Yes—where?" "It's hidden—just—out—"

The words were no longer audible to Dave, and what followed Bruce also strained to hear in vain. The lips ceased moving. The shadow grew in the eyes, and the lids flickered down over them. A traveler had gone.

Bruce got up, a strange, cold light in his eyes. He glanced up. Dave Turner was climbing slowly down the tree. Bruce made six strides and seized his rifle.

The effect on Dave was ludicrous. He clung fast to the tree limbs, as if he thought a bullet—like a grizzly's claws—could not reach him there. Bruce laid the gun behind him, then stood waiting with his own weapon resting in his arms.

"Come down, Dave," he commanded. "The bear is gone."

Dave crept down the trunk and halted at its base. He studied the cold face before him. "Better not try anything," he advised hoarsely.

"Why not?" Bruce asked. "Do you think I'm afraid of a coward?" The man started at the words; his head bobbed backward as if Bruce had struck him beneath the jaw with his fist.

"People don't call the Turners cowards and walk off with it," the man told him.

"Oh, the lowest coward!" Bruce said between set teeth. "The yellowest, mongrel coward! Your own confederate—and you had to drop your gun and run up a tree. You might have stopped the bear's charge."

Dave's face twisted in a scowl. "You're brave enough now. Wait to see what happens later. Give me my gun. I'm going to go."

"You can go, but you don't get your gun. I'll fill you full of lead if you try to touch it."

Dave looked up with some care. He wanted to know for certain if this tenderfoot meant what he said. The man was blind in some things; his vision was twisted and dark, but he made no mistake about the look on the cold, set face before him. Bruce's finger was curled about the trigger, and it looked to Dave as if it itched to exert further pressure.

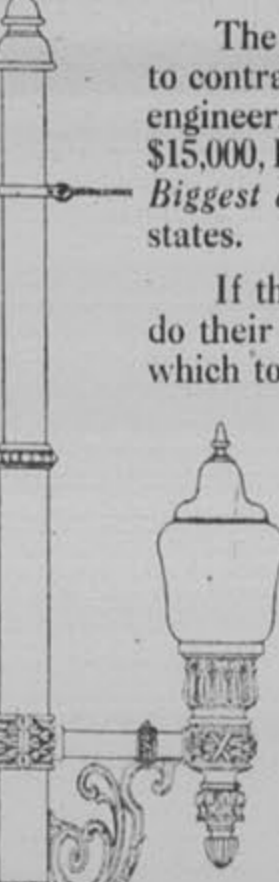

"I don't see why I spare you, anyway," Bruce went on. His tone was self-reproachful. "God knows I hadn't ought to—remembering who and what you are. If you'd only give me one little bit of provocation—"

Dave saw lurid lights growing in the man's eyes; and all at once a confusion came to him. He decided he would make no further effort to regain the gun. His life was rather precious to him, strangely, and it was wholly plain that a dread and terrible passion was slowly creeping over his enemy. He could see it in the darkening face, the tight grip of the hands on the rifle stock. His own sharp features grew more cunning. "You ought to be glad I didn't stop the bear with my rifle," he said hurriedly. "I had Hudson bribed—you wouldn't have found out something that you did find out if he hadn't lain here dying. You wouldn't have learned—"

But the sentence died in the middle. Bruce made answer to it, a straight-out blow with his fist, with all his strength behind it, in the very center of his enemy's face.

Does Escanaba Want a Modern Lighting System For Ludington Street?

The need could scarcely be greater. Without one cent of profit to contractor, jobber or retailer. Without one cent of expense for engineering service. With a consequent saving of from $10,000 to $15,000, Escanaba may now realize her dream of years past—"The Biggest and Best Lighted 'White Way'" in all the north central states.

If the people of Escanaba collectively and individually want to do their share in making Escanaba a Bigger and Better City in which to live, work and play—

NOW IS THEIR OPPORTUNITY

The plans and specifications for the proposed street lighting system were prepared by the following committee and unanimously approved by the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce:

- W. H. Needham, Chairman, Needham Electric Co.
- H. E. Flath, Sales Manager, Economy Light Co.
- Fred R. Harris, City Manager, formerly Chief Engineer of the Michigan Utilities Commission.
- L. J. Jacobs, Manager Delft Theatre.
- G. A. Knutsen, Home Electric Co.
- C. E. Lewis, Attorney.
- J. B. Moran, President Escanaba Power & Traction Co.
- W. R. Smith, President Delta Hardware Co.
- O. Sundquist, Manager Michigan State Telephone Co.
- E. F. Zuehlke, General Superintendent, Escanaba Power and Traction Co.

Escanaba can be assured that the lighting system, if secured, will be one of which she will have just cause to be proud.

THE PLAN

120-400 candle power lamps, each weighing approximately 400 pounds, supported by 120 cast iron poles to be erected on Ludington Street from the bay to Stephenson Avenue. Eight lamps to the block—four on each side of the street. All poles of every description now on Ludington Street to be removed. Feeder wires for trolley line to be removed and placed on poles in the alleys. System will furnish eight times as much light as is now provided from night-fall until midnight, and two times as much from midnight until dawn.

TOTAL COST ..... $18,000.00

Apportionment of Cost

Escanaba Municipal Utilities	$ 3,000.00
Escanaba Power and Traction Co.	3,000.00
By Subscription	12,000.00
Total	$18,000.00

The Escanaba Municipal Utilities and the Escanaba Power and Traction Company have already agreed to furnish $3,000.00 each. The whole proposition is, therefore, contingent upon the securing of $12,000.00 by subscription.

Financing

A special committee consisting of some of the ablest men of the city, have carefully devised the plan for financing this big undertaking. The plan adopted has been worked-out with the idea of apportioning the cost as equitably and fair as possible. The proposition has been very carefully considered from every angle. The whole cost is not to be borne by Ludington Street business men and property owners alone.

AUTO CLUB HEAD FIGHTS GAS TAX

CALLS PROPOSED PLAN TO MULCT CAR OWNERS FOR FUEL THEY USE UNJUST.

PAY ENOUGH NOW IN TAXES

If Additional Money is Needed to Run State Affairs Conference Should Be Called to Work Out Plan.

BY COL. SIDNEY D. WALDON
President Detroit Automobile Club

Certain interests in the State of Michigan are advocating a tax on all gasoline used within the borders of the State. They have been openly working for the measure for some months to develop sentiment in favor of additional taxation for the man who owns a motor car. It is their intention, they intimate, to go before the Legislature in January, 1923, and ask that body to enact a law that will require every user of gasoline to pay a tax of one cent or more per gallon on all they purchase.

As is usually the case in tax matters the proponents of the plan are proceeding under the assumption that anything used in connection with an automobile is readily taxable. They seem to feel it is the duty of the more than 500,000 motor car owners in Michigan to dig into their purses fast because somebody happens to think this a good way to raise money.

Auto Made Michigan.

If there is one State in the Union where unjust taxes should not be saddled on to the motor car it is Michigan. The motor car has been the making of the Wolverine State industrially. Had not this wonder industry of the 20th century developed in Michigan the State would be industrially where it was two decades back. We all know Michigan was not among the industrial leaders, though she is today, and the motor car is to be thanked for the progress made.

The motorists of Michigan and the United States are already paying their fair share—perhaps more—of the taxes. Take, for instance, the main tax levies, of which there are five. They may be listed as follows:

1. National income taxes common on all individuals.
2. Sales tax paid by the manufacturer and passed on by him to the owner, and limited to the automobile and a few other industries.
3. Taxes on repair parts; a permanent charge on the life of all automobiles, whether passenger or truck, a tax specific to the auto owner.
4. State license and registration fees, a virtual monopoly to the automobilist.
5. Scattering taxes, such as driver's license, chauffeur's license, certificate of title, etc.

Motorists Pay Millions.

Bureau of Internal Revenue figures for 1920, the last available in Governmental reports, show that the public treasury collected in round figures $267,000,000 in special and discriminatory taxes on automobiles in the year. The Federal Government took $19,000,000, the States $107,000,000, and Municipalities $11,000,000.

A study of tax figures in Michigan is interesting. It reveals that personal and real property pay only 2.99 percent on a second valuation, while motor cars pay 5.12 percent, almost 100 per cent more. These figures are based on State figures for 1921, personal and real property value being $5,482,535,114, while cars are worth $12,814,863. The real and personal property pays $158,388,566.57, and the automobiles $6,751,924.51.

When a Michigan man buys a Ford car he must pay taxes equalling approximately 7 percent of the cost of the car. The United States takes part and Michigan the rest. Is any other property so heavily taxed? Many people have tentatively assented to a tax of one or more cents per gallon because they have been told it is a small item and because they do not realize how much the motor car owner is already paying in taxes on his vehicle.

Would Cost $4,000,000.

Figures supplied the Detroit Automobile Club by the Standard Oil Co.

and Sinclair Refining Co., the large gasoline dealers in Michigan, show that motorists of Michigan will be forced to pay approximately $1,000,000 per annum if they accept the gasoline tax. This sum is based on gasoline sales in 1921. Are the motor car owners of Michigan ready to hand over this amount just to satisfy the whim of some group of tax proponents?

The idea seems to be to tax the automobile when in doubt. It is assumed that the motorist is "easy" and will not object to a little more taxation. Even if more money is needed to operate the State Government no tax of any kind should be founded on reasons of expediency such as ease of collection or ability to pay. Every tax should be based on rules of justice and equality.

The gasoline tax is not just inasmuch as motorists are already paying a fair share of Michigan's taxes. If more money is needed to conduct the State's affairs some equitable way of securing the additional tax should be worked out. It cannot be found in the process as promoted and advocated by certain citizens of Michigan who are ready to tax the automobilist at will.

SUPREME COURT RECONVENE DAY MORNING

Fall Term Promises to Be Filled with Matters of Deep Interest to the Public.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The Supreme Court of the United States will reconvene tomorrow for the regular fall term with a crowded docket. When the court adjourned last June it had pending 127 cases, and during the recess the number was increased to 150. None of the new cases, it is anticipated, will be reached for argument for two years.

Upon reconvening the court will in due time consider Georgia v. Sutherland, former Senator from Utah, nominated during the recess, to fill the vacancy upon the bench caused by the resignation of Associate Justice Clark. The formally includes the administration by the Chief Justice of the judicial oath. Then, after receiving millions for admission to the bar and any that may be made for the resolution of cases, the court will proceed to the White House to pay its customary visit of respect to the President.

No decisions will be rendered or orders issued by the court during the first week upon any cases held under advisement or on motions for rehearing submitted during the recess. Early in the new term, however, the opinion of the court may be expected. In five cases argued at the last term. These included original cases brought separately by the states of Ohio and Pennsylvania to prevent West Virginia from restricting the exportation of natural gas, and by Oklahoma for the location of the Texas boundary. In the latter case all issues have been settled by opinions of the court except that of the physical location of the boundary line. The other cases which the court has in hand are those brought by the Chicago & North Western Railway Company against Nye Schneider-Powder Company, involving the constitutionality of the Nebraska statute fixing the order of responsibility of railroads for damages suffered by shipments, and the Wichita Railroad and Light Company against the Public Utilities Commission of Kansas and others, testing the power of state commission to fix rates notwithstanding provisions of existing contracts.

The first case on the regular docket is that of Takao Ozawa brought from Honolulu to have determined by the highest court whether Japanese are "free white persons" eligible for naturalization. Last year when reached for argument during the limitation of argument conference it was passed at the request of the government, and notice has not been given whether a similar motion will again be made when it is called. It is considered that six cases, a number of which are pending to test the constitutionality of the Illinois statute under which indeterminate sentences are imposed in criminal cases, will be reached during the first week. They have twice been passed, and it is considered probable by court officers that when again called on, the court will be asked to dismiss them. The other cases which will be argued during the first week are considered of minor importance.

NEARLY HALF OF OLD LEGISLATURE WILL NOT RETURN

Many Defeated for Renomination and Some Voluntarily Withdraw.

(By Associated Press)

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 2.—Forty-nine of the 100 members of the 1921 state house of representatives will not be back in 1923. Many of them were defeated for renomination in the primaries, some voluntarily withdrew from the race and others are seeking new offices. If one or more of the 51 former members who are seeking reelection are defeated by Democratic candidates, at least half of the faces in the coming session of the house will be new.

In the list of 1921 representatives who will not be back are included the names of some of the most prominent and active members in the 1921 session. Frank R. Mosler of Bravo, father of the state income tax proposal, that was defeated under his tutelage, failed of renomination. Lemuel G. Dufoe of Alpena, who consistently introduced and supported Fred L. Warner of Belding, speaker of the 1921 house, was defeated for renomination. Russell A. Hart of Detroit, sponsor of the capital punishment measure that came close to passage in 1921, is not a candidate in the general election, and numbered among the others who will not join in the deliberations of the coming session are many who championed his cause two years ago. Three members of the Kent delegation of five are out of the race and nine of the 11 members who represented Wayne in 1921 will not be back.

The Strength Of The Pines

by Edison Marshall
Illustrations by Irwin Myers

As a story that mingles adventure, nature study and romance, it is undeniably of the front rank. Mr. Marshall knows the wild places and knows the ways of the wild creatures that range them—and he knows how to write.

Like "The Voice of the Pack," his former successful novel, it contains an intimate and detailed knowledge of the Oregon woods that is fascinating. Aside from being a strong story of romance and adventure, it has the characteristics of a woodland idyl, rich in poetic fancy and throbbing with a reverent love for a nature which is unspeakably wonderful, both in its majesty and in its all-pervading hospitality.

The Cash Value of Tractor Power

"TIME is the essence in good farming", writes Frank I. Mann, one of the most successful farmers in the United States. "To judge the value of a tractor on the farm it must be considered in relation to its ability to do farm work at the time to give most profitable return from the crops grown."

Mr. Mann goes on to show that farm work is subject to continual delays from adverse weather conditions, and the one great advantage of the tractor is in enabling the farmer to handle peak loads on time.

In one case cited, tractor power enabled the farmer to sow a good acreage of spring wheat on March 28, which early seeding gave him a return of 44 bushels per acre, thus illustrating the cash value of tractor power.

A tractor to do its work must have petroleum products.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) takes great pride in the fact that its organization is able to supply the needs of these tractors in 10 Middle Western states with petroleum products of superior quality.

No matter how unexpectedly the farmer's peak load may arrive, he will find that this Company has ever ready at his call such gasoline, kerosene and lubricants as he may need.

Owing to the isolation of many farmers and farming districts, this task of supplying petroleum products at dependable intervals is a big and often an exceedingly difficult one.

Nevertheless, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), inspired by its obligation to the community, has always met rural needs for petroleum in a big way. The Company constantly is extending its operations to provide facilities which under all conditions enable it to meet the demands made upon it, and to guarantee a reliable and sustained service even in periods of stress.

MANISTIQUE TAKES SUNDAY FRAY, 5-4

Post Season Game Furnishes Entertainment for a Fair Sized Crowd of Fans.

In what was regarded as a rather lullow exhibition of baseball, Escanaba yesterday lost to Manistique 5 to 4 in a post season game which Manistique has been seeking ever since the trouble weeks ago when the locals walked off the field at Manistique.

After having finished one of the most successful seasons for years by winning more than two-thirds of the games yesterday, much against the feeling of many local fans.

The local team has played excellent ball all year and has received the whole-hearted support of local fans.

ESCANABA LOSES TO IRON RIVER IN HARD BATTLE

"Maggie" McGuire Injured so Badly He May Not Be Able to Return to Game This Year.

The local high school grid team suffered the first defeat of the season on Saturday afternoon in a hard-fought but unequal battle with the Iron River eleven, 9 to 0. Excepting for two sports the locals had Iron River in hand at all times of the game.

The Iron River bunch scored the first run of the game when Halfback Westerlund intercepted a pass and raved down the field 80 yards for a touchdown. Captain Champion, in the final frame, put a drop kick between the goal posts, which brought the score up to the ninth mark.

One Touchdown. But for the unexpected one touchdown, it looked much like an even game with a little the better for the locals, but the needed six points were received when a forward pass, from the locals, was intercepted, and the ball was taken down a clear field for a touchdown.

Because of the fact that Captain Maggie McGuire was forced to retire from the game early in the fray because of injury, the local attack was somewhat weakened.

Following are the line-up: Iron River: Coe, c; Grandy and Cranz, guards; Zyboski and Bergbeck, tackles; Westerlund and Wells, ends; Champion, Capt. C. D. West, fullback and C. Champion, hb. E. Swift, qb.

Escanaba: Goulet, c; Bowers and Cook, guards; Christensen and Wolfe, tackles; Shelton and Jackson, ends; Myron and Tolson and Strahan, hb; Gannon, qb.

By period: 1st period, 0-0; 2nd period, 0-0; 3rd period, 0-0; 4th period, 0-0.

Bellevue, Iron, Crystal Falls, Chippewa, Mackinac, Iron Mountain. Time 15 minute quarters.

McGuire Badly Hurt. McGuire, who has been running the Escanaba squad from his position at quarter, and who has been a tower of strength by reason of his peculiar adaptability, probably is one of the game for the remainder of the season, it was thought today. He is probably injured and it is regarded as possible that one of them may have been broken. This will be determined today however.

Friends of "Maggie" and boosters of the high team will regard this as one of the most unfortunate things that could have happened right at the start of the season.

OBITUARY

Lindahl and wife, arrived in Gladstone Sunday morning from the Augustana hospital in Chicago where the child had undergone an operation several days ago for the removal of a tumor from her spine.

The child was taken to Chicago about ten days ago in the hope of saving her life through an operation. For a day or two after the operation it appeared she was recovering and arrangements were made to return with her this week, but a turn for the worse occurred and death ensued Saturday.

Funeral services will be held from the Lindahl home Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial will be made in Fernwood cemetery.

ESCANABA VETS BLANK GLADSTONE AGAIN ON SUNDAY Take Interesting Contest, 32-0. Despite Fact That Team Is Considerably Crippled.

Escanaba again went to Gladstone and gave the up-bay Legion team an other most thrilling Sunday. Thirty-two to nothing was the final count.

The game was an easier one for the locals than they had anticipated. Gladstone had received the lineup and was generally conceded to be a little stronger than the game indicated.

The local Legion team was crippled by the loss of Duke Christy, through an injury to his ankle Saturday. Capt. John Perrin played base ball with the team at Manistique, Michigan, suffered a broken collar bone in last Sunday's battle.

Some of the best line-up on the team left for vocational training at Marquette last week, and George Hill at fullback, also suffering from an injured shoulder. It looked bad for the locals at the start, but the number and ability of the reserves more than made good for the loss of the first string men.

The game scheduled for next Sunday has not yet been announced, but Manager Burton has something up his sleeve that will interest the fans next Sunday at the local park.

George Peterson, of the locals, cut back a fractured collar bone during Escanaba's battle and the probably will be a part of the team for the rest of the season.
