

NEW BRITISH GOVERNMENT ON THE JOB

LLOYD GEORGE POINTS OUT THAT INTERESTS OF COUNTRY COME BEFORE EVERYTHING ELSE

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The cabinet of Premier Andrew Bonar Law was sworn in at Buckingham palace this morning and as a result of the taking of the oath of office, the members of the cabinet began to function as the new government immediately.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—"I will support the party and my government that pursues a policy of peace, economy and progress, neither revolutionizing our institutions nor doing it frequently," former Premier Lloyd George told the assembly and other members of parliament as he entered the chamber this morning.

In another part of the speech he made the declaration: Great Britain must pay America all her debts.

Unity of action between Great Britain and the United States was stressed by George in his speech and the League of Nations was said, "but until you see the United States and the other great nations in Europe as well as the small the League will be required and should serve its vital purpose."

Fighting for Unity.

Mr. Lloyd George declared that in the case of the United States the country's interest in unity to the coalition government must be held in the possession of the various township and city election boards at least twelve days before

City Clerk Explains Operation of Absent Voters' Law in Order to Clear Up Confusion.

YOUNG TEACHER KIDNAPPED AND IS MISTREATED

Tells Thrilling Story of Wisconsin Police and Leaves Without Revealing Name.

The young teacher who was kidnapped and mistreated yesterday morning has explained that he was captured by the police and left without revealing his name.

Some confusion seems to exist regarding the manner of securing an absent voter's ballot, according to Mr. Anderson, who explains that it is necessary for the applicant to make application in person to the election board or another voter, or to obtain a written statement from the voter.

Absent Voter's Law.

Mr. Anderson repeats that the law concerning the absent voter's ballot is easily understood.

Here Is the Law.

The term "absent voter" shall be taken to mean any qualified elector whose place of abode is to be absent from the townships or cities in which he resides on the day of any election or other primary election next year.

At present in the state there is no state election commission.

A student, who is dissatisfied with the administration of justice, is a person employed upon or engaged in the civil, military, naval or other service of the United States or the state of Michigan.

Railway Yards to Be Kept Clear of the Light Fingered

Northwestern officials have announced that thefts of various articles from the yards have grown to such alarming proportions that some drastic action must be taken. Yesterday a man was caught digging from the yards with nothing but a ton of coal on a wagon the coal being covered with driftwood. He was made to settle for the coal and ordered out of the yards. Children gathering coal in sacks have also become a necessary security to the company but endanger their own lives and they are to be kept off the right of way and out of the yards. Many small articles, tools etc., have disappeared and it has gone to such a pass that the next offenders picked up will be turned over the police for prosecution, it is stated.

Two black hunters today found the body of John Ditch, an 80-year-old hunter, whose life since he moved into the woods near here almost a half century ago has been a mystery. His death is equally mysterious.

The authorities are seeking to determine whether the venerable hunter died in his tent or in the woods near here. Two deep cuts on the wrist are the only marks on the body. These cuts, in the opinion of the police, were not serious enough to cause death in themselves. The reason that the hunter may have been struck by an automobile.

An inner safe containing $5,000 in currency, Liberty bonds and other valuables, was not touched. A pair of pliers and an imprint of a new timber laid in front of the bank are the only clues left. The robbers escaped in an automobile.

WEST COAST WOBBLIES TRIAL AGAIN

Prosecution Springs Surprise Witness on the Defense.

W. A. Townsend Claims to Have Been Lieutenant of "Big Bill" Haywood.

(By Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—Trial of eight alleged members of the U. W. W. charged with violating the California criminal anarchy act, was to be continued today with testimony by the prosecuting attorney. The defense will open its case in the week.

Testimony taken by the prosecution indicated that the organization committed a series of robberies and it is possible that W. A. Townsend, who claims to have been a lieutenant of "Big Bill" Haywood, the U. W. W. leader, will be asked to testify again today.

Townsend was the surprise witness in the prosecution yesterday and testified that he had called employment with railroads during the war for the U. S. to blower them up and telling of the activities of the organization in helping up war preparations. He testified that he had been compensated several times by Haywood for his activities against soldiers.

Charles Folsom developed Wednesday on the subject and said near Folsom was formerly named Mr. and Mrs. Charles Folsom of St. Paul Hospital, Geneva, Ohio, and the two were married in 1914.

Charles Folsom is employed in operating the Mandolin orchestra which provides music for community meetings. Large numbers of the program of the Girl Scouts will be performed so that when the boys come to the meeting, they will be able to tell upon whom it is performed.

Various local organizations have indicated their intention of attending the service and the Scouts are looking forward to one of the largest audiences ever to attend the meeting.

Although it is feared that he may have sustained internal injuries, he is expected to be able to attend the meeting.

It is planned to have speakers from the City of the high school and also members of the society will render humorous and dramatic selections.

It was arranged at yesterday's meeting of the Lions Club to visit the Escanaba Paper mill next Friday. This will be the first of a series of visits to industrial plants in this city in order that the club may be better informed as to the actual work that is being done in this community.

Dr. H. J. Detor, city health physician, gave a talk on health conditions and stressed the importance of treating diphtheria with antitoxin, and the success of preventative measures against smallpox through vaccination. He also urged the maintenance of the strictest quarantine regulations in cases of contagious disease and pointed out that it was a public duty for any citizen to report any contagious disease believed to exist, whose quarantine, either voluntary or enforced, was not being observed.

Nancy Thomas, librarian in Escanaba, is prepared to carry out the provisions of the work here. Among other things an exhibit of children's books, with an explanation of why they should be read, is being planned.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I. At the death of his foster father, Bruce, in an auto accident, receives a mysterious message, sent by Mrs. Ross, warning him to return to southern Oregon to meet "Linda."

CHAPTER II. Bruce has vivid but startling recollections of his childhood in an orphanage before his adoption by Ned Duncan, with the girl Linda.

CHAPTER III. At his destination, Trail's End, news that a message has been sent to Bruce is received with marked displeasure by a man introduced to the reader as "Simon."

CHAPTER IV. Leaving the train, Bruce is astonished at his apparent familiarity with the surroundings, though to his knowledge he has never been there.

CHAPTER V. Obeyed to the message, Bruce makes his way to Martin's road-store, for direction as to reach home. Mrs. Ross cautions.

CHAPTER VI. On the way, "Simon" sternly warns him to give up his idea and return East. Bruce refuses.

CHAPTER VII. Through a country pulsating familiar, Bruce journeys and reaches him on his way—the end of "Pine-Needle Trail."

CHAPTER VIII. Through a country pulsating familiar, Bruce journeys and finds his childhood playmate, Linda.

CHAPTER IX. The girl tells him at wrongs committed by an enemy clan; her family, the Rosses, lands occupied by the clan were stolen from the Rosses, and the family was scattered. Aunt Linda, Mrs. Ross, and herself wiped out by an assassin, Bruce's father, Matthew Palmer, was one of the victims. His mother had died with Bruce and Linda. They are still small, and have traveled from the northland to the southland, where they have had decent jobs as lumberjacks. Bruce, but the services which would capture the enemy's lands to the people, has been lost.

CHAPTER X. Linda is surprised to learn that Bruce is still alive.

CHAPTER XI. A junction on the west line is from Linda's cabin, seems to Bruce's excited imagination to be encouraging to cover a mile.

CHAPTER XII. Bruce sets out in search of a trapper named Hudson, a witness to the agreement between Linda and Matthew Palmer.

CHAPTER XIII. A gaunt, gaunt, known as the "Killer," is the terror of the vicinity, because of his size and ferocity.

CHAPTER XIV. Dave Turner, sent by Bruce, arrives to inform him of the family concerning the agreement, if brought to light, he knowing it's whereabouts.

CHAPTER XV. Hudson and Dave visit the former's traps. A number of them are discovered to be set across the trail. Bruce, on his way to Hudson's cabin, sees the woods driving him from the victim. Hudson, learning Bruce's identity, tries to tell him the hidden power of the agreement, but death suppresses him.

CHAPTER XVI. Simon, believing Bruce knows where the document is concealed, goes to trap him.

CHAPTER XVII. Bruce decides Linda and Aunt Linda from their home. The man, Simon, has a debt above $1000 to the boy's mother. Linda's son has been induced to leave, and at her command, after secretly telling the boy, Linda sends him away.

CHAPTER XVIII. Returning, Bruce finds a note, presumably from Linda, telling him she has been kidnapped by the Turners.

CHAPTER XIX. Bruce falls into Simon's trap, and is made prisoner.

CHAPTER XX. Charging Bruce with attempting to rape the bloodied wife of the Turners, Linda, he is beaten half to death. Bruce, on his way to Hudson's cabin, sees the killer driving him from the victim. Hudson, learning Bruce's identity, tries to tell him the hidden power of the agreement, but death suppresses him.

CHAPTER XXI. Bruce makes Linda an offer of marriage. The girl refuses to give over him, as she loves Bruce. Torn from the Turners, he makes his way to the horseless carriage, to win back the animal and carry it to safety.

CHAPTER XXII. Bruce, after a series of events, is captured, Simon, who has been trying to get away from him, takes him to the Turners' cabin, and beats him.

they began to long for them again.

The horse walked slowly, head near the ground. The girl made no effort to guide him. The lightning had all but ceased; and in an instant it had become apparent that only by trusting to the animal's instinct could the trail be kept at all; almost at once all sense of direction was lost to them. The snow and the darkness obscured the outline of the ridges against the sky, the trail was wholly invisible beneath them.

After the first hundred yards they had no way of knowing that the horse was actually on the trail. While animals in the light of day cannot see nearly so far or interpret nearly so clearly as human beings, they usually seem to make their way much better at night. Many a frontiersman has been saved from death by realization of this fact; and bewildered by the ridges, has permitted his dog to lead him into camp. But nature has never devised a creature that can see in the utter darkness, and the gloom that enveloped them now seemed simply unfathomable. Bruce found it increasingly hard to believe that the horses eyes could make out any kind of dim pathways in the pine woods. The feeding grew on him and on Linda as well, that they were lost and needlessly wandering in the storm.

Of all the sensations that the wilderness can afford, there are few more disconcerting to the spirit than this. It is never pleasant to lose one's bearings, and to the night and the cold and miles from any friendly habitation it is particularly hard to bear. Bruce felt the aged malice of the wilderness as never before. It always seemed to be crowding, waiting to take a man at a disadvantage, and like the gods that first made and those whom they would destroy it doesn't quite play fair. He understood certain wilderness tragedies of which he had heard; how tenderfeet lost among the ridges had broken into a wild run that had ended nowhere except by exhaustion and death.

Bruce himself felt a wild desire to lash his horse into a gallop, but he forced it back with all his powers of will. His calm sister self explained that fully with entire clearness. It would mean pain for the horse, and then a quick and certain death, either at the foot of a precipice or from a blow from a low-hanging limb. The horse seemed to be feeling its way rather than seeing.

They were strange, lonely figures in the darkness, and for a long time they stood almost in silence. Then Linda left the girl's breath as she whistled.

"Bruce," she said, "let's be brave and look this matter in the face. Do you think we've got a chance?"

He rode a long time before he answered. He groped desperately for a word that might bring her cheer, but it was hard to find. The cold seemed to pierce about them, the darkness seemed to eat into him.

"I think I ought to tell you something else. I haven't told the horse yet, but I know whether we are on the right trail."

"I know that long ago. Whether we are on the right trail or not."

"I've been thinking. I don't know how many miles it is. We might have already 200 on our strength."

"Perhaps the horse is tired out and is having such dreams, too," Linda said.

"She speaks truly, and he turned up and back to her. "Linda, try to be brave," he urged. "We can't face it alone."

"The horse plodded a few more steps." "Bruce." To think that it is not just this to encourage me, the road must be long to keep up your spirits. I will try to be brave, Bruce. And if we don't live through the night, my last remembrance will be of your bravery, how you stood your way from seas of blood, and your nobility between us. I wouldn't be here if me."

"The next body injured," he told her softly. "And there are certain things that have some value to nobility. One of them is that except for you, throwing your own presence bodily between us, I wouldn't be here at all."

The feeling that they had lost the trail grew upon them. Once they halted to adjust the blankets on the saddle, and they listened for any sounds that might indicate that Simon was overtaking them. But all they heard was the soft rustle of the leaves under the windblown snow.

"Linda," he asked suddenly. "Does it seem easier to be actually cold? She waited a long time before she spoke. This was not the hour to make quick answers. On my decision right rest their success or failure."

"I believed you could stand it a while longer," she answered at last.

"But I don't think we'd better try to. It's getting cold. Every hour it's colder, and I seem to be getting weaker. It isn't a real weak, Linda—but it seems to have knocked some of my vitality out of me, and I'm dreadfully in need of rest. I think we'd better try to make a camp."

"And go on by morning light?"

"Yes."

"But Simon might overtake us."

"We must stay out of sight of the trail. But somehow—I can't help but hope he won't try to follow us, on such a night as this."

He drew up the horse, and they sat in the beat of the snow. "Don't make any mistake about that, Bruce," she told him. "Remember, that unless he overtakes us before we come into the protection of the courts, this whole fight is lost. It doesn't alone mean

Food Supplies for Ocean Liner

Fresh Vegetables for U. S. Liner.

New York

Planning the week's supply for the average family is considerable of a task, as many a good housewife will testify. Planning the food supply for the passengers and crew of an ocean liner is a different problem. The Commissary Superintendent calculates on 25,000 quarts of fresh milk, and 500 quarts of rich cream for the trip to Europe. For the return trip, fresh supplies must be taken on board at the European ports of call.

The buyers of fish have an equally arduous task to select from. In the provisioning of vessels the vessels contain thirty kinds of fish, having a total weight of 6,000 pounds are placed on board. Between the fish, from eight to ten barrels of live oysters and lobsters are taken for the commissary stores.

Recently the United States Lines attempted an experiment when it was given very favorable results.

The Cost of Living

In Austria Soars

20,000 Per Cent

VIENNA, Oct. 25.—It is estimated that the cost of living in Austria has increased over 20,000 percent since January of this year.

Each monthly index number, on which all government salaries as well as agreements between employees and employers are based, has mounted steadily until this month government employees receive salaries equal to 156 times the amount paid in March of 1921. This and other government outlay has been met largely by the printing press, until the current statement of the Austro-Hungarian Bank shows a total note circulation of nearly two thousand billions of kronen. One week's increase alone was 180,000,000.

Within the last month strict government control over all dealings in foreign exchange has raised the krore from about $4,000 to $14,000 to the dollar. But despite this there has been no appreciable check in raising prices. It is claimed, for example, that flour, margarine, beef, fats, coffee, clothing, shoes and fuel are above world parity.

The government and private interests recently initiated a fight against the index number system. An amendment to the statute was brought in b which the government served notice they would not meet it, but would negotiate the basis of increase with the unions. Organized labor of every kind rose as a man, and more than half a dozen unions are still on strike.

The unions claim that the index system is not a cause of increased prices, but a thermometer, and that the basic fault is lack of control over profiteering in necessities.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1922

WHERE RESPONSIBILITY BELONGS.

Sir Gilbert Parker in his lecture at Ann Arbor is reported to have said that the United States is as responsible for the present situation in the Near East as is Great Britain, France and Italy, but no more so. This apportionment of responsibility was made in reply to an assertion by Andre Tardieu that the United States is altogether to blame because of the refusal of this country to take any part in the control of Near East affairs.

The lightened load of fault which the Englishman puts on American shoulders is somewhat less disagreeable than the Frenchman's heavy charge, but America respectfully denies that it is justly liable to either the one or the other. This country never declared war upon Turkey and sent no soldiers into the Near East. It took no part in the abortive attempt to settle the Near East question of Sixes except that President Wilson offered certain suggestions from the outside and since that time it has not mixed in with the maneuvers and intrigues which caused France to side with the Turks and Great Britain with the Greeks. It has furnished no arms to the Turks, as France did, and has not encouraged Greece to go to war, as Great Britain did.

Instead it has scrupulously kept out of the whole affair and has left Europe to manage it. One reason for following that course was that Great Britain, France and Italy all had special interests in the Near East which they were trying to secure and safeguard. Maintenance of order was a natural and proper incident to those assertions of rights in far quarter of the globe. How badly the three nations have managed the whole thing and how far national jealousy and suspicion contributed to the result is pretty well known. It is equally well known that the three States had no hand in the general mismanagement which brought things to their present pass.

But it is said that although the United States committed none of the blunders, and worse than blunders, which produced the present situation, still responsibility is enough to fix guilt upon this country. By the same rule the United States is responsible for various revolutions in China and civil war in Ireland.

OPEN HEARINGS.

With the rapid accumulation of applications for changes in the tariff law, the tariff commission will soon be called upon to begin its new duties and already is engaged in formulating rules under which those desiring modification in the rates will be heard. One of these rules, it is announced, will require that hearings shall be in public, except when privacy is required to protect legitimate trade secrets.

This is a wise decision. Congress, it is true, refused to establish such a rule by law, but that is no reason why the board should not exercise its discretion in favor of publicity whenever open hearings are possible. Notwithstanding an ancient dictum to the effect that the tariff is a local issue, tariffs affect great masses of people in all parts of the country and fixing rates is certainly public business.

If the processes by which they are gauged are carried on under cover there is likely to be such an growth of suspicion as might endanger the whole scheme for rate adjustment, and congress, where the tariff rates have always been more or less a matter of private understanding, would be the first place to hear the cry against secrecy.

On the other hand, open hearing and open records coupled with wise administration of the law should make friends for it and go far toward establishing the principle of adjustable tariffs as an established national policy.

NOT THINKING OF QUITTING.

There always has seemed to be a good deal of the element of pure fiction about the stories that Warren G. Harding had determined not to run for the presidency a second time. The statements to that effect have invariably or almost invariably originated in Democratic quarters where the wish might reasonably be considered father to the thought. The latest announcement, for instance, we mean the weird yarn that the President must be thinking of retiring two years hence because he has bought a farm, received original publication in the New York World and was manifestly based on the flimsiest sort of partisan gossip.

So there is nothing to be surprised because Mr. Harding denies flatly that he has any intention of seeking retirement in 1924. Naturally he does not announce a candidacy at this date, for such an announcement is quite unnecessary and would be wholly premature. Recognizing the prevalent stories for what they are, as Democratic campaign efforts to create an impression that the chief executive is discouraged and tired of his job, Mr. Harding merely says enough to put a quietus on that political dodge and assures the nation that as far as he is concerned, things are moving along well and he is still on the job with both feet and without the least intention of quitting as long as the nation wishes him to keep on serving it.

Mustapha Kemal's decision to enforce bone dry prohibition in Turkey will put a severe strain on that little love affair he is trying to carry on with France.

The German floating debt is said to amount to $9,000,000 marks, but it is difficult to believe that there is anything in which a debt of that size could float.

LARGEST FARM
IN MICHIGAN
CHANGES HANDSBlack River Stock Farm
Sold to Illinois Manufacturer.

CHEBOYGAN, Mich., Oct. 25.—What is said to be the largest part of farm land ever disposed of in Michigan in one deal has been purchased in this county by A. E. Montgomery, a manufacturing engineer of Chicago. The property is known as the Black River stock farm and consists of 27,000 acres of cut-over lands and 600 acres of improved land. In addition to the land the purchaser acquired all the live stock on the farm, that included 2,000 head of breeding hens, horses and cattle.

The farm was owned by Leonard Freeman of Flint, who established it ten years ago as an experiment to determine if this part of the state was suited to the profitable raising of live stock for market. In the opinion of Mr. Freeman and many others who have watched his experiments, proof has been obtained that this part of Michigan is capable of producing animals at as low a cost as any other part of the country.

The farm buildings on the ranch are among the largest to be found in the state. One barn is capable of housing 1,000 head of sheep and the cattle barn has a capacity of 500 animals. Other barns on the property can care for a total of 5,000 or 6,000 sheep and 1,000 head of cattle during the winter.

Two hundred acres of the improved land are devoted to alfalfa, which is raised for hay being cut three times a year and sold on the market. Alfalfa is a cash crop and the typical "alfalfa land" of the Rocky Mountain states, where the crop has come to be one of the leading agricultural products.

The cut-over areas of the ranch are being cleared and the remaining timber all the annual trees brought down in piles and cut up to make fuel of the improvement.

ORANGE AND BLACK IS "RARIN' TO GO" AFTER MENOMINEE

Locals Center All Energies on
Preparations for Classic
Struggle Next Saturday Afternoon.

Menominee is next!

What feelings of ancient rivalry and school spirit arise in the breasts of old time football players and fans when once more the local High school prepares for the big game of the season! How much does it seem to old timers that they are once more back in high school days and gazing anxiously toward the day when once more Esky High will meet its old traditional gridiron?

This is the thought uppermost in the minds of the students of the local High school, and that is the thought of every member on the local eleven as they go through their regular strenuous practice every night after school.

Men with football ability, men who in days gone by were members of the teams that went against Menominee, men who were stars in college, talents of the local school are all helping to round Escanaba's shape for the coming game next Saturday.

Outlook Is Bright.

So far this year Escanaba has won two games and has lost three. However, the mere fact that the locals have gone through a period of "hard luck" and consequently have had three losses is no prophecy whatever of the outcome of the battle with Menominee. The team's best players including "Marge" McGuire, were disabled early in the season and they have been saved for the one game the game of games and all are now in such a condition that they cannot fail for nothing but victory.

Menominee, as usual, has a good team this year and has won many games which is all the more reason why Escanaba should make the last victory record by one defeat and such a defeat that Menominee will never be able to retrieve.

Some Football History.

In a review of the many contests staged between the rival schools it is found that Menominee hasn't even won one-half the time as claimed in Red and White boosters. The first game was played in 1897 which Menominee won. However, from 1899 to 1919 blue trouncing out with black pictures Menominee won two games and lost four times. Since 1919 Escanaba tied once but scored victories. The twenty-five games which were played out in the two schools were evenly matched until last year when Menominee one record in winning her victories to 12 over the Orange and Black's eleven. In the twenty-five contests two were tied.

Persons to cheer up! Knockers stop your "Knocking". Next Saturday's game will be a mere evening-up of one victory that Menominee is at present to the good.

From today till next Saturday afternoon the Orange and Black will be seen in great profusion while the strain becomes more tense as the timer for the contest gradually arrives. Menominee is in an equal state of tension and both are eagerly awaiting the sound of the whistle.

Spirits Run High.

Win or lose Esky High is planning to back its team as never a team was backed before, and win or lose Menominee will be given one of the greatest battles it has ever had in its entire history. The team is getting primed into the best of condition, the spirit of the school is running high, the time is gradually drawing nearer when the local roosters will be pecking for Menominee, and according to all indications, when the whistle is blown next Saturday and all is set for the go, one of the greatest battles of the century on the two schools will be staged on that field.

The slogan of Esky High is, "On to Menominee" and students and faculty alike are working together and cooperating with each other toward the one chief issue—"Beat Menominee."
