

GREIG DECLARIES HE'S MADE A "GOAT"

"EARL OF DUNBLANE" SAID TO HAVE KEPT A DOUBLE SET OF BOOKS TO COVER HIS TRACKS

CHARLEVOIX, Mich., Oct. 28.—The defense in the trial of A. Greig, the self-styled "Earl of Dunblane," will seek to show that Greig was the sharpshooter at the direction of the Title Guards, a secret society. Attorney Sherman of the defense counsel announced today.

Greig is charged with having by embezzlement through the illegal financial sale of securities. Testimony offered by the state today was to establish the existence of two sets of books, one of which was used that conformed to the requirements of the state security commission and the other, the prosecution contend, was to low the real value of the stock controlled.

Two Sets of Books

Frank J. Neiman, a former clerk employed by Greig, testified that he was instructed to keep two sets of books by the defendant and on one occasion had opened the alleged embezzlement account for the inspection of the state security commission.

While the commission was inspecting the "phony" set of books, the real records had been hidden by Greig, who was the representative to Neiman. Chairman Darr of the securities commission declared that his department had required Greig to disgorge a $10,000 fine from his pocket.

The prosecution could not determine whether Greig's accounts were approximately correct, collected all the cash sales to people of northern Michigan.

Greg May Testifies

That Greig would take care of his own legal and financial affairs the way for the protection of stocks in his hands was disclosed by the defense attorney yesterday.

Interest in the case has been aroused as much by Greig's claim to his title as by his business affairs in which thousands of details are believed to have been overlooked from authentic Michigan papers.

Few Witnesses Examined

Only a few witnesses that have testified to Greig's operations since the time he began to use the fictitious name of Greig, a clerk of the Title Guards and Trust Company, which was organized by the defendant.

The checks were introduced in an effort by the state to show that a sum of approximately $300,000 was passed with 25 cents back in violation of an order of the state securities commission, and that this fund was used by Greig.

Mr. John Miller, the prosecuting witness, told the court Greig accepted a thousand dollars from her and failed to recover the securities he had purchased.

Say Title Lapsed.

Other witnesses confirmed that state authorities were informed yesterday as to their investigation of Greig's claim to his title, stated they had found that the Dunblane title lapsed about ten years ago with the death of the last heir, but admitted that Greig might be the son of a close prominent Scotch family.

Among those who are attending the trial is the wife of Greig, to whom he was wedded in this city. It is said that she is the daughter of a prominent and wealthy Chicago contractor. She calls herself the "Countess of Dunblane."

The man and woman were taken before Judge Burgess in unnumbered court yesterday where each of them swore a plea of guilty to the statutory charge.

After listening to a statement by each party, Judge Burgess delayed no pronouncement until he heard from Mrs. Polkson that the court that her husband was cruel to her and that she had asked Hammon to take her back to her home in Troy, Mich.

No Official Inquiry Into Murder and Suicide

GOV. GROESBECK IS IMPRESSED BY ESCANABA'S PLEA

Pledges His Impartial Consideration of Merits of Case Presented Yesterday.

After a careful and complete review by the commissioners, it shall be found that the taxation claims of Carlson and Glenton are not preclusive in the interest of the state, and if the defendant goes to trial without benefit of any other witness, then the plaintiff will receive the same and the defense will be denied.

Carlson was the owner Governor Harlan announced, as the authorities declared the deaths are plainly cases of murder and suicide.

The funeral of the dead minister will be held this afternoon with services at St. Mark's church, which was built by the Rev. Christler.

The body will be forwarded to Auburn for burial. Mrs. Christler will accompany it.

Holding of Inquest Will Rest With Mother of Dead Woman

Havre, Mont., Oct. 28.—Officials were not decided today whether an inquest would be held to determine officially the cause of the deaths of the Rev. Leonard L. Christler and Mrs. Marguerite Carlton, whose bodies were found in the Christler home early Friday by Mrs. Christler, wife of the slain rector.

Mrs. J. H. Pyle, mother of Mrs. Carlton, arrived at Havre today, but was in a condition of such nervousness that she was unable to discuss the tragedy with the police.

Unless Mrs. Pyle, who is under the care of physicians, requests an inquest, it is probable that none will be held, Coroner Harlan announced, as the authorities declared the deaths are plainly cases of murder and suicide.

The funeral of the dead minister will be held this afternoon with services at St. Mark's church, which was built by the Rev. Christler.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—At the death of his father, Bruce Duncan, in an eastern city, receives a mysterious message sent by Mrs. Ross, summoning him posthaste to southern Oregon to meet "Linda."

CHAPTER II.—Bruce has vivid but brief recollections of his childhood in an orphanage before his adoption by Newson Duncan, with the girl Linda.

CHAPTER III.—At his destination, Trail's End, news that a message has been sent to Bruce is received with mixed apprehension by a man introduced to the reader as "Simon."

CHAPTER IV.—Leaving the train, Bruce is astonished at his apparent familiarity with the surroundings, though to his knowledge he has never been there.

CHAPTER V.—Obedient to the message, Bruce makes his way to Martin's Crossroads store, for direction as to reaching Mrs. Ross' cabin.

CHAPTER VI.—On the way, "Simon" sternly warns him to give up his quest and return East. Bruce refuses.

CHAPTER VII.—Mrs. Ross, aged and infirm, welcomes him with emotion. She hastens him on his way—the end of "Pine-Needle Trail."

CHAPTER VIII.—Through a country passionately familiar, Bruce journeys, and finds his childhood playmate, Linda.

CHAPTER IX.—The girl tells him of wrongs committed by an enemy clan on her family, the Rosses. Lands occupied by the clan, including Linda's home and the family's, the estate of Aunt Elmira (Mrs. Ross) and herself, wiped out by assassination. Bruce's father, Matthew Folger, was one of the victims. His mother had died with Bruce and Linda. The little girl had been kidnapped from the village and brought to the mountains. Linda's father had died in battle in Matthew Folger, but the agreement, which would confute the enemy's claims to the property, has been broken.

CHAPTER X.—Bruce's mounting blood

reponds to the call of the blood-thirsty.

CHAPTER XI.—A giant tree, the Sentinel Pine, in front of Linda's cabin, seems to Bruce's excited imagination to be endeavoring to convey a message.

CHAPTER XII.—Bruce sets out in search of a trapper named Hudson, a witness to the agreement between Linda's father and Matthew Folger.

CHAPTER XIII.—A gigantic grizzly, known as the Killer, is the terror of the vicinity, because of his size and ferocity.

CHAPTER XIV.—Dave Turner, sent by Simon, arrives to swear falsely concerning the agreement, if brought to light, knowing its whereabouts.

CHAPTER XV.—Hudson and Dave witness the fight between Bruce and the killer. Hudson, in his excitement, shoots at his feet, the bullet hitting Bruce. In the fight, Bruce, on his way to Hudson, shoots and wounds the killer, driving him from his victim. Hudson, hearing Bruce's shout, tries to tell him the holding place of the agreement, but death summons him.

CHAPTER XVI.—Simon, believing Bruce knows where the document is concealed, lays plans to trap him.

CHAPTER XVII.—Dave deports Linda and Aunt Elmira from their home. The man insults Linda and is struck down by the dead woman. Elmira's son has been murdered by Bruce, and at her command, after much wailing, the dead, veritable Linda leaves them alone.

CHAPTER XVIII.—Returning, Bruce sends a note, presumably from Linda, telling him she has been kidnapped by the Turners.

CHAPTER XIX.—Bruce falls into Simon's trap, and is made prisoner.

CHAPTER XX.—Charging Bruce with attempting to poison his blood-food, the clan, after a mock trial, decides to leave him, bound to a pasture on the spot where the killer had slain and half eaten a calf the night before. They took for the future the grizzly and the probable safety of Bruce, for the animal.

CHAPTER XXI.—Judas, helpless, awaits arrival of the killer and death.

CHAPTER XXII.—Simon makes Linda an offer of marriage. The girl refuses, telling him she has been kidnapped by the Turners.

CHAPTER XXIII.—Bruce, having made his escape, reaches Linda's cabin, finds her safe, and they scatter. In the days of snow and darkness, Linda, mounted on horseback, arrives, wounds the animal, and carries her lover away.

CHAPTER XXIV.—Linda, despite the dangers of exposure, risks life and limb to find Bruce.

CHAPTER XXV.—Bruce, trying to make her way to Mt. Clemens for ammunition funds, is pursued and turned back.

CHAPTER XXVI.—The Turners plan to terminate the agreement, attack the Police Home. The disguised Linda is struck by lightning and dies.

CHAPTER XXVII.—The noise and danger distract Linda from her purpose, they scatter. In the days of snow and darkness, Linda, mounted on horseback, arrives, wounds the animal, and carries her lover away.

CHAPTER XXVIII.—The noise and danger distract Linda from her purpose, they scatter. In the days of snow and darkness, Linda, mounted on horseback, arrives, wounds the animal, and carries her lover away.

He sprang off his horse better to examine the tracks, and then stood, half bent over, in the snow.

ten. The world they had known before—a world of sorrow and pleasure, of mountains and woods and homes faded out and left no reality except each other's presence.

All about them were the snowdrifts that their eyes could not penetrate, and it was as if they were two lone contestants on an otherwise uninhabited sphere who had come to grapple at last. The falling snow gave the whole picture a curious tone of dimness and dimness.

Bruce straightened, and his face they might make some sort of shelter and keep life in their bodies until the snow ceased and they could find their way.

The cold was deepening, the storm was increasing in fury. Bruce's bones ached, his wounded arm felt numb and strange; the frost was getting into his lungs. There was no hope of the storm decreasing, rather it was steadily growing worse. The tracks grew more dim, and he began to be afraid that the falling flakes would obscure his own footprints so that he could not find his way back to Linda. And he knew, beyond all other knowledge, that he wanted her with him when the shadows dropped down for good and all. He wanted her arms about him; the light would be softer.

"Oh, what's the use?" he suddenly said to the wind. "Why not give up and go back?"

He halted in the trail and started to turn. But at that instant a blizzard of wind swept down into his face, and the edge of snow in front of him was brushed from his gaze. Just for the space of a breath the canyon for a hundred feet distant was partially cleared of the blinding streamers of snow. And he uttered a long gasp when he saw, thirty yards distant and at the furthest reaches of his sight, the figure of a saddled horse.

His gun leaped to his shoulder, yet his eagerness did not cost him his self-control. He gazed quietly along the sights until he saw the animal's shoulder between them. His finger pressed hard against the trigger.

The horse rocked down, seemingly instantly killed, and the snow swept in between. Bruce cried out in triumph. Then he broke into a run and sped through the flurries toward his goal.

It came into Bruce's mind he could tell Simon of the wound near his shoulder, how because of it no fight between them would be a fair test of superiority, yet the words didn't come to his lips. He could not ask mercy of any man, either directly or indirectly, any more than the places asked mercy of the snows that covered them.

"You were right when you said there is no escaping from this storm," Simon went on. "But it doesn't much matter. It's the end of a long war, and what happens to the victor is neither here nor there. It seems all the more fitting that we should meet at death at the very brink of death—and Death should be waiting at the end for the one of us who survives. It's so like this d—d, terrible wilderness in which we live."

Bruce gazed in amazement. The dark and dreadful poetry of this man's nature was coming to the fore. The wind made a strange echo to his words, a long, wild shriek as it swept over the heads of the pines.

"Then why are you waiting?" Bruce asked.

"So you can understand everything. But I guess that time is here. There is to be no mercy at the end of this fight, Bruce; I ask none and will give none. You have waged a war against me; you have escaped me many times, you have won the love of the woman I love, and this is to be my answer." His voice dropped a note, and he spoke more quietly. "I'm going to kill you, Bruce."

"Then try it," Bruce answered sternly. "I'm in a hurry to go back to Linda."

Simon's surging wrath blazed up at the words. Both men seemed to spring at the same time. Their arms flailed, then interlocked; and they rocked a long time back and forth in the snow.

For the first time Bruce had full realization of Simon's mighty strength. With all the power of his body he tried to wrench him off his feet, but it was like trying to tear a tree from the ground.

But surprise at the other's power was not confined to Bruce alone. Simon knew that he had an opponent worthy of the iron of his own muscles, and he put all his terrible might into the battle. He tried to reach Bruce's throat, but the man's strong shoulder held the arm against his side. Simon's great hand reached to pin Bruce's arm, and for the first time he discovered the location of his weakness.

He saw the color sweep from Bruce's face and water drops that were not melted snow come upon it. It was all the advantage needed between such evenly matched contestants. And Simon forgot his spoken word that he wished this fight to be a test of superiority alone. His fury swept over him like a flood and effaced all things else; and he centered his whole attack upon Bruce's wound.

METHODISTS TO CARRY ON GREAT WORK

Two District Campaigns Outlined for the Next Six Months.

(By Associated Press)

OUTROUT, Oct. 28.—Two distinct campaigns are intended to bring about a notable increase in membership of the organization throughout Michigan, the other designed to raise a great fund for the enhancement of Methodism in the state, will be carried out by the Methodist Episcopal church in Michigan within the next six months, it is announced by Bishop Theodore E. Henderson.

The membership campaign is intended to bring the various Methodist Episcopal church of the state a large number of boys and men and the entire effort largely will be directed to the loss of iron. "Well, Simon," he said, "You've come."

The man's eyes burned red through the snow. "Of course I would. Did you think you could escape me?"

"It didn't much matter whether I escaped you or not," Bruce answered rather quietly. "Neither one of us is going to escape the storm and the cold. I suppose you know that."

"I know that one of us is. Because one of us is going out—a more direct way—first. Which one that is doesn't much matter." His great hands clasped. "Bruce, when I snatched your gun right now I could have done more. I could have sprung a few feet farther and had you around the waist taken by surprise. The fight would have been already over. I think I could have done more than that, even—with my own rifle as you came up. It's laying there, just beside the horse."

But Bruce didn't turn his eyes to look at it. He was waiting for the attack.

"I could have snatched your life just as well, but I wanted to wait," Simon went on. "I wanted to say a few words first, and wanted to master you—not by surprise—but by superior strength alone."

It came into Bruce's mind he could tell Simon of the wound near his shoulder, how because of it no fight between them would be a fair test of superiority, yet the words didn't come to his lips. He could not ask mercy of any man, either directly or indirectly, any more than the places asked mercy of the snows that covered them.

The drive will start early next month when organized laymen's groups in the various churches, notably men's Bible and boys' Sunday School classes will be urged to carry out "win my claim week." During this period every Methodist man and boy will endeavor to bring into the church members some other with whom he is on intimate terms.

The campaign will close on the first Sunday of the new year, when it is hoped to bring 2,000 new members into the Methodist organization. The drive will be conducted with vigor in every Methodist parish of the state, the bishop being present.

LOSSES IN BANK ROBBERY BEGIN TO COME TO LIGHT

One Man Claims Loss of $3,000 in Securities From Safety Deposit Box.

The Melviniton Herald Leader has the following which throws further light on the probable loss in the Hermansville bank robbery, early this month. It appears from this account that many thousand dollars may have been lost, one man being reported as having lost $3,000 in negotiable bonds.

The leader says:

"Latest reports today regarding the robbery in the First National bank at Hermansville, Wis., day morning indicate that the loss is much greater than has been believed. While the loss in the bank is approximately as stated above, in money of small denominations, it is believed that the bandits buried the way into a number of bags of gold coins and that the loss to several individuals at Hermansville is far greater."

One person is reported to have had securities amounting to about $2,000 in a safety deposit box which was broken by the robbers. Other heavy losses are reported but the amounts have not yet been checked up.

It is said that the bandits carried several of the safety box containers away with them and the contents of these could not be ascertained.

Despite an increase in population of every institution, we have decreased the operating expense over $500,000. We have for $3,000 a budget that formerly cost from $25,000 to $30,000. We have saved, under adverse circumstances, $1,800,000 in the operating expenses of departments and institutions over 1920-21, and although this year we had to rebuild almost every institution of learning, we have reduced the general property tax $8,000.
