U. P. WOLF HUNTERS PLAN SUMMER WAR

Will Push Biggest Campaign in Country's History.

IRONWOOD, Mich., May 7.—With the snow about gone in the deep timber, the state-employed wolf hunters of peninsular Michigan are about to launch one of the most strenuous wars on timber wolves that ever has been attempted in this country.

These men are paid by the state to do nothing but hunt wolves. Michigan has found that this system is cheaper and more effective than the bounty system used in most states.

During the winter season the deep snow aids greatly. The tracks tell the hunters just where to set their traps. These tracks also enable them to still hunt effectively.

THE FARMERS' PROBLEM.

Someone connected with the Farm Journal, a periodical printed in Philadelphia, has gone to the trouble of hunting down every source of credit now available to the American farmer and publishing the list in his paper. Obviously this investigator must be liberally endowed with leisure for merely writing out the many avenues open to the borrowing farmer takes considerable time. Here is as many as this writer, addressing farmers themselves, has been able to think up:

The investing public, the Federal Reserve System, the United States Treasury, the National Agricultural Credit Corporation:

National Rediscout Rediscout Corporation, Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, War Finance Corporation, Credit-Union Building and Loan Association;

Friends and relatives, local bank, Live Stock Loan Company, State Agricultural Credit Corporation, Federal Land Bank;

Joint Stock Land Bank, mortgage banker, Farm Loan Association, Farm Loan agents and co-operative associations.

After studying this list for as much as a couple of minutes it will occur to anyone that the farmers' problems as far as they concern credit can be said to be fairly well looked after. No other class enjoys the same multiplicity of credit sources. It can probably be said truthfully that the farmers' perplexities still remaining are not involved with questions of credit.

The plain truth is that before farm credits legislation formulated in the last Congress and even before the farmer had as much credit as the next business man. His problem is not now and has not been for some time a lack of funds to finance his operations. It is a matter of transportation and marketing facilities pure and simple; how to get decent service to a point where his goods may be sold before they rot, and the machinery to transact their sale without gypping the man who produced them.

The farmer would be immensely better off if his credit list were about half as long and his equipment for moving and selling goods improved in proportion.

MERELY A THREAT.

One response in Europe to the ruling of the supreme court that the Volstead act covers ships of foreign registry when they are in American waters is a threat of retaliation from entirely unofficial French sources.

It is said that if Americans interfere with liquor stocks on French liners, France can enforce her local inspection laws upon American vessels bringing meat into French ports, or that French laws affecting the construction of domestic ships can be imposed upon American ships. Doubtless it is true that if this government extends an unwelcome law to foreign ships within its jurisdiction, other governments may treat American ships in the same manner; but any nation that does so, must accept all the logical consequences of its acts. If the difference is to be adjusted by a fight, this country has as many weapons as any other country, and depends less for its prosperity upon its own ships than does any important European nation. Europe cannot hamper the commerce of this country without harming itself, and American ability to stand the damage of any sort of fight is greater than that of its European friends.

In view of considerations such as these, it is doubtful whether any European governments will think it wise to start trouble.

Rather than that, they may be expected to use peaceful and conciliatory measures. In point of fact the supreme court's rule does not deny or hamper any existing right of any nation to send its exports to the United States. Alcoholic drinks were already contraband when the supreme court spoke, and no nation denies the right of this country to enforce a prohibition law. To reply to the decision of the court by deliberately interfering with legitimate and useful trade, would be anything but an appropriate rejoinder. It would in fact, stir up resentment in the United States and harden this country's resolution to do very much as it pleases within the three-mile limit.

A DEPILATED PROPHET.

Back in the days when "Prince Michael," who was a sort of a forerunner of King Benjamin in the religious colony business, was on trial in Washtenaw county for his crimes against girlhood, he was captured by a gang of gay and festive university students who cut his long hair close to his head, shaved his whiskers and let him go.

That, of course, was a wrong thing to do. In this easy-going world a man who poses as saint has a right to make up as a saint no matter how deep the dye of his villainy, but still one may be grateful to the boys who shaved Prince Mike. It gave the people an idea of how much apparent spirituality and benevolence may be added to a face that is essentially vicious by a sufficient growth of hair and beard. Nothing could have been more astonishing than the transformation which that barbering worked in Prince Mike. He went into the ordeal looking like a blend of Michael Angelo's Moses and a Christian martyr but came out of it an ordinary plug ugly.

A good many pictures have been printed in the papers lately showing men who have set themselves up in the hair-and-holiness business. Maybe they are all that their whiskers proclaim them to be, but before one allows his judgment to be controlled by hirsute appearance, it will be best to remember Prince Mike and what happened when the boys got after him.

Does the progress from wired telegraphy to wireless and then to wired wireless point to another step which will be wireless wired wireless?

GIRL WEDS FOR LOVE AND LOSES GREAT ESTATE

Flora Avery Barrigrand Banished from Parents' Lives.

Daughter of Multimillionaire Marries Her Father's Gardener and Sacrifices Fortune.

(By the Associated Press.) DETROIT, Mich., May 7.—Loss of millions which she would have inherited and banishment forever from the home and lives of her parents was the price Flora Avery Barrigrand, daughter of John H. Avery, the multimillionaire, has paid for marrying Barrigrand, her father's gardener. The mother, who made the announcement today, said, "We never want to see that man again. We have cut Flora from our lives and so far as we are concerned she is dead." Tears filling her eyes she continued, "Our daughter would not listen to us and she must pay the price for her folly."

The objection to the match, it was said, was based in the difference in the ages of the couple. Miss Avery was 42 and Barrigrand, 31, according to the marriage certificate. The marriage took place here a week ago, but did not become known until late yesterday. The couple have gone east, where they intend to buy a small farm.

MICHIGAN LOW IN ILLITERACY

Only 88,046 of 3,634,819 Persons in State Cannot Read or Write.

DETROIT, Mich., May 5.—Only a fraction more than two per cent of the population of Michigan, which was estimated as 3,634,819 in 1920, by the state government, is illiterate. Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, of Frankfort, Ky., president of the literacy commission of the National Educational Association, reported to the commission, at its closing conference at Hotel Statler.

Mrs. Stewart reported that within the borders of the state there are 88,046 who cannot read or write in any language, and that of this number, 14,172 are native born.

Wayne county has 39,984 illiterates, or more than 40 per cent of the total in the state. Mrs. Stewart said, with Kent county, with 4,355 illiterates, next, and Bay county, where there are 2,315, third.

Other counties were reported by Mrs. Stewart as follows: Marquette, 1,494; Kalamazoo, 1,286; Dickinson, 1,131; Oakland, 994; and Macomb, 762; while Oshtemo county holds, but 15, the least of all the counties in the state.

The commission's sessions opened Tuesday morning. The closing session Wednesday was devoted to Michigan, and more than a score of Michigan state and county officials and civic leaders from Detroit and elsewhere were in attendance.

The resolution committee, representing seven states, received the approval of the commission on memorandum, urging employers, especially those employing large numbers of laborers, to require all applicants to prove they can both read and write in English intelligently before offering them employment.

HINT OF BRIBE FAILS TO BRING AN INQUIRY

Rep. Little Drops the Matter; O'Brien Willing to Go On.

LANSING, Mich., May 7.—There will be no legislative investigation of the implied charge of a bribe made against Representative Lloyd S. Little of East Tawas, on the floor of the house by Patrick O'Brien of Iron River.

"I will not ask an investigation," Representative Little replied to a question as to his intentions. "I achieved my purpose when I had the bill killed. The only reason O'Brien made the statement was to try to line up some boys for the bill. He can call me all the names he wants here on the floor of the house."

On the other hand Representative O'Brien declared that he was willing to proceed if Representative Little cared to ask for an investigation. Representative O'Brien refused, however, to give any details of the alleged offer that Mr. Little made to an unnamed man that he would support the bill "if a certain envelope were placed in his box down at the hotel."

CANNERS EXPECT BUSIEST SEASON

Huge Factory Merger in Michigan Reported Abandoned.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., May 7.—Western Michigan canning companies are preparing for what they expect will be one of the most productive seasons in their history, one that will be marked by an abundance of fruit.

The preparations, now in full swing along the Lake Michigan coast in this section, are colored by announcement that the $1,000,000 canning factory merger, said recently to be probable, will not be consummated. At the same time it is announced definitely that a new merger, to be known as the Bangor Packing Corporation and calling for a capital of $350,000, is under way.

Dalton Carpp, prominent Bangor canner, is back of the new merger. Associated with him is Gladstone Beattie, former sheriff of Van Buren county.

Mr. Carpp announces the combine will include either three or five canners between Benton Harbor and Bangor. He adds that responsible Chicago financial interests are back of the plan. Present plans call for erection of a large cold storage plant at Bangor.

According to Mr. Carpp 50 per cent of what the new company can pack this season has been sold at favorable prices. The corporation will be the largest organization of its kind in southwestern Michigan.

EASTERN TRIBE IN LAST STAND

Indians Set Up Their Own Republic in Wild Region.

RALEIGH, N. C.—High in the heart of the Great Smoky mountains of North Carolina the last of the once powerful Cherokee Indian nation has set up an Indian republic.

Hemmed in on all sides by the Great Smoky range of the Appalachians the remnants of what was once one of the strongest Indian tribes in North America have established their own government on a 65,000 acre reservation set aside by the United States.

A chief, selected at intervals from the leaders of the tribe, heads the Indian government. Assisted by an advisory council elected from the hundred or more townships of the republic, he settles all civil disputes, petty differences and business transactions of the tribe.

The Indian rule is practically independent of the state and federal governments. State officials take no part in the administration of justice by the Indians, as long as their government does not conflict with existing laws.

The Indians are descendants of a small tribe of Cherokees who refused to accept exile from their mountain homes when the Cherokee nation surrendered its lands east of the Mississippi and migrated to Oklahoma in 1835.

This tribe fled into the almost impenetrable fastnesses of the Great Smoky mountains and remained hidden in the wilderness. Several years ago the government set aside for them a small reservation on which pick up modern farming and business they now have set up an almost independent government.

Shut from the softening influences of civilization by the Great Smoky range, the Indians have been slow to

Why Sundstrand is showing the way
BECAUSE it does more kinds of figure work in an easy, practical way—adds, multiplies, subtracts, and divides.
Because it works in more places—can be comfortably carried to any part of office or factory.
Because it works for more people—any office worker easily masters its simple 10-key operation.
These are real reasons why Sundstrand Oil Co., International Harvester Co., Sears, Roebuck and Co., and many other leaders use from 15 to 100 Sundstrands each. "The recorder tells the story."
Sundstrand showed the way by developing automatic column selection—by originating complete one-hand control—by improving correction facilities and by perfecting an easy method of rapid multiplication. They are also modern protection features which prevent errors and save wasted minutes. A demonstration in your office will prove all this—will show you why Sundstrand has come into such general use. M'ADOO RACE TO OPEN SOON, REPORT

Ex-Cabinet Member Said to Be Drafting Plea for U. S. Ownership of Rails.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—From well-informed quarters in the Democratic organization comes the report that William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, and director general of railroads, is making preparations to declare his candidacy for the presidency on a platform looking toward federal ownership of transportation systems.

It is well understood here that Mr. McAdoo is seeking the nomination and that his supporters are engaged in building up a machine to work in his interest.

Statement Being Prepared. McAdoo is employed even now on the preparation of a statement that he will give out soon, it is said, and the statement will present views on the transportation situation which will be announced as a declaration for government ownership of railroads, according to Democratic politicians.

Government ownership of railroads is apparently making a stronger appeal to some Democratic leaders than it did formerly.

Bait for Farm Vote. Also they believe that the farmers of the west are deeply dissatisfied with the freight situation and would support anything that promised an improvement.

The objection seen to McAdoo in some Democratic quarters is that he is a dry, and as heretofore the party strategy has been rather to try for the votes of New York and the east as a supplement to the solid south, the prospect of a dry candidate would disarrange present plans.

The Democrats won once with the aid of the west, it is true, but they had a narrow squeak of it in 1916 and but for the aid of some exceptional factors that could not be expected to reappear they would not have put their candidate over.

FIDDLES WAY CLEAR OF INSANITY CHARGE

MACON, Mo., May 7.—"Turkey in the Straw," "Leather Breeches" and "The Arkansas Traveler" were played before a jury in Probate Court here on a violin handled by Carl M. London, 24 years old, defendant in an insanity inquiry brought by his uncle, John M. London.

Young London, fiddle in hand, was sworn as a witness after all the other witnesses had testified, and almost the first question asked by Otho Matthews, defendant's attorney, was: "Do you play the fiddle?"

On his reply in the affirmative, the young man was told to "cut loose." He played so well that in a few minutes the old-timers on the jury were patting in unison with the rollicking strains the witness was saving on.

The jury, after very brief consideration, returned the verdict: "We, the jury, find the defendant to be of sound mind and capable of managing his affairs."

CHIEF WITNESS IN PRISON CAMP DEATH, IS DEAD

Passes Away While On Way to Give Testimony in Flogging Cases.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 7.—The death of Gerry Poppel, chief witness for the prosecution in a peonage case against two Leon county officials that came as the result of an investigation of the demise of Martin Tabert, in a private convalescent camp, held the attention of the authorities here today.

Poppel, formerly a jailer here, died at Quincy Sunday night as he was enroute to Pensacola to testify before the federal grand jury. Although Mrs. Poppel, who was with her husband, said he had been poisoned, the attending physician said the former jailer died of apoplexy.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Roleau of Manistique, who were with him when he passed away.

AUTO IS FORCED THROUGH WINDOW AT ATHLETIC SHOP

Peculiar Accident Results in Considerable Damage at Early an Hour This Morning.

A big plate glass window and the woodwork beneath it, in the east side of the Athletic Shop, 1901 Ludington street, was splintered, shattered and crushed in about seven o'clock this morning in a rather peculiar accident in which, fortunately, no one was injured.

Gus Mills, employed by C. E. Bergquist, a concrete work contractor, was driving a Ford car east on Ludington street and hauling a trailer, on which were a number of wet and heavy forms used in concrete construction. He turned south onto Tenth street, adjoining the curb near the Athletic Shop and just at the instant a tire blew out. Mills applied his brakes, but the momentum of the loaded trailer caught the towing car in the rear, twisted it around and forced it through the side of the building.

A big crowd collected quickly, attracted by the sound of crashing glass and Assistant Chief of Police Aitkenhoffer was on the job in just a minute.

The matter was so clearly an unavoidable accident that no arrests were made.

The building is owned by John A. Semer.

The Athletic Shop is vacating the room, which is to be occupied by C. Peterson & Sons as a flower shop this week. Immediately following the accident, Gerald Cleary put up a big sign over the opening in the broken window, announcing: "Don't Come in Here—Main Entrance on Ludington St."

The Value of Personal Contact PERSONAL contact is essential to the growth of complete understanding. When business operations and business organizations were small, the employer could know his employees personally and the merchant could know his customers. All had the advantage that comes from the intimacy of close, personal acquaintance. Misunderstandings were easily adjusted. Every man knew every other man as a citizen and as a friend and there was no suspicion of motives. Today, when big enterprise is the order of business; when large accumulations of capital are essential to the accomplishment of undertakings of real value to the public, the several groups are denied the advantage of this personal contact. Recognizing this handicap, the management of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has established a system of direct personal contact with the great body of employees and through them with the public. The management maintains close, personal relations with the employees through the Department of Industrial Relations, where the employer and employee get together on common ground to discuss and settle, in friendly conference, questions of mutual interest. To promote still closer relationship, the Board of Directors, as a body, make frequent visits to refineries and to the field, where they meet and confer with the great body of employees. The value of this personal contact is reflected in the harmonious relations which exist between the Company and the earnest, loyal, hard-working employees, who thriftily invest their savings in the Company's business and who have added interest in seeing that the Company's customers get efficient service.
