SINGLE COPIES, FIVE CENTS

BELIEVE THAT WHITFIELD IS SURROUNDED

POSSE IS HOT ON TRAIL OF COP'S SLAYER

Chased to Cover This Morning South of Madison, Wis.

Conflicting Reports as to His Whereabouts Continue to Come From Various Points.

Madison, Wis., May 25.—(2:15 P. M.)—John L. Whitfield, the alleged slayer of Dennis Griffin, a Cleveland patrolman, was at the home of Mrs. Edward Sprague, a farmer's wife living between McFarland and Oregon, a few miles south of Madison, at 9:15 o'clock this morning.

Police were advised and a posse was at once sent to the district, fully armed and ordered to capture Whitfield, dead or alive. It is reported by the woman to be driving the same car in which Whitfield is reported to have escaped from Madison.

Word from the posse which left Madison, reported this afternoon that they were "hot on the trail" of the suspect believed to be Whitfield.

CHICAGO, May 25.—Four squads of detectives armed with rifles were sent to the North Shore suburban district today on a report that John Whitfield, the fugitive wanted in Cleveland for the killing of a policeman, had been seen speeding in an automobile toward Chicago. This report was at variance with the belief of the Wisconsin authorities that Whitfield was seeking to reach the Canadian border.

Detectives Puzzled.

MADISON, Wis., May 25.—Conflicting reports of the probable whereabouts of John Whitfield, continued to puzzle the detectives here as the manhunt goes on. While word was received from Superior that a man who had the appearance of the fugitive was seen there last night, another report today told of him being seen between Milwaukee and Chicago in the same large car he is believed to have stolen here when he escaped Tuesday night.

C. O. Nevin, a Cleveland detective, reported today that tips concerning the sought-for man were being received from a number of points. He declared the officers would work out of this vicinity for a time.

WERE THEY INSURED?

If this family had taken The Mirror, every member could have been insured at 75c each.

FRANKLIN, O., May 21. Five members of the household met instant death and another man was probably fatally injured today two miles west of here when a Baltimore & Ohio train crashed into a truck which was moving Bert Williams' family and furniture from Franklin to Germantown. Another man escaped serious injury.

The dead are Mrs. Margaret Williams, Sarah, a daughter; Mrs. Lela Williams, and the latter's two children. Jess Grosh, the driver, is expected to die.

A freight train had just passed when Gross drove onto the tracks, unaware of the approaching passenger train.

The Mirror would have paid the heirs of this family the sum of

HERMAN GESSNER HAS ACCEPTED A DISTINCT HONOR

Will Act as Chairman of Delta County Delegation to Aid Jewish Consumptives.

Herman Gessner, who yesterday received word of his selection as chairman of the Delta County delegation in charge of the campaign for the raising of a large fund for the National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives in Denver, today wired his acceptance of the honor and his willingness to accept the responsibility.

"I consider it a signal honor," Mr. Gessner said this morning before leaving for Marquette, "to be chosen for such a worthy work for my fellow men. I have been drafted into the service on various occasions for Jewish relief work and it will be with real pleasure that I can put my hand to this latest campaign for the relief of human suffering."

Mr. Gessner was chairman for the entire Upper Peninsula in a drive for millions of dollars, nation-wide in its scope about a year ago, and the Upper Peninsula went over the top 100 per cent on its quota, due to the genius for organization and the ability to inspire his fellow workers.

Mr. Gessner indicated that he would immediately outline plans on his return here, to begin a campaign next Monday which will again show the other sections of the United States that the Upper Peninsula and Delta county in particular, can always be depended upon to do its share in any worthy work of relief of suffering.

LA FOLLETTE TO HEAD FIGHT ON RAIL VALUATION

Declares Proposed Plan Will Cost Americans Tremendously.

CHICAGO, May 25.—A conference fathered by a number of "Progressive" congressmen headed by Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, will open here today in an effort to crystallize public sentiment against the reported proposal of the interstate commerce commission to allow railroads of the country a combined valuation of twenty-three billion dollars. The commission has been at work on the matter for ten years.

Three years ago it announced a tentative valuation of eighteen billion dollars. Should the twenty-three billion dollar valuation be placed, the "Progressives" contend it will cost the American people $1,500,000,000 annually as a result of excessive freight and passenger rates.

PRESS ATTACK ON T. M. JUDSON STIRS TROUBLE

Unwarranted Insinuations of Dishonesty Being Warmly Resented.

Misstatements Also Reflection Upon Integrity of Two Other Prominent Citizens of City.

On Friday, May 18th, the Delta County Reporter, published by John P. Norton, secretary and general manager of the Escanaba Morning Star, contained an alleged news item taking T. M. Judson over the coals on the same issue was an uncited and un-American, unpatriotic and unscrupulous, insinuating in its character, covering with anonymous and filed with unverified insinuation that Mr. Judson had been guilty of a misstatement of fact on the Delta County War Relief Association and the Delta County Red Cross.

This editorial was virtually reproduced in the morning Press on the following morning, under the guise of news, so that Mr. Judson was publicly attacked in three separate and distinct editions by the same organization, all alonging lines—through its secretary and general manager, John P. Norton.

Relative to the campaign on Mr. Judson's character and integrity, the Escanaba Journal today covers the ground fairly thoroughly as follows: "John P. Norton, editor of the Escanaba Daily Press and publisher of the afternoon Reporter, is running a vile, vicious, and malicious attack upon Mayor T. M. Judson, and seeks to give the public to understand, without leaving himself liable to action for libel, that Mr. Judson has been guilty of dishonesty in connection with the finances of the Delta County War Relief Association and the Delta County Chapter of the American Red Cross."

The closing paragraph of the attack made in the Gladstone Reporter upon Mr. Judson (and it is substantially the same as that in the Daily Press) is as follows: "One thing that Mr. Judson apparently overlooked, however, is to offer an explanation as to what has become of the approximately $1,999 left in the Relief fund when it was turned over to him. He has ignored all requests for statements showing the condition of the fund and it is now rumored that all of it has been spent. The people of Gladstone will expect to be set right in the matter or they will have reason to believe this rumor."

Mr. Judson is president of both the War Relief and the Red Cross Associations. He has never handled one dollar of the funds of either association. M. N. Smith, cashier of the Escanaba National Bank, is treasurer of the Delta County Chapter. (Continued on Page Five)

NEW YORK, May 25.—Girls should not marry until they are able to support their husbands, United States Senator Woodbridge N. Ferris of Michigan advised the girls in the graduation class of the Packard Commercial school at commencement exercises tonight.

"You have all," he said, "seen your mother beg for money from your father for anything they want, from a safety pin to a gown. If you have first learned to support yourself and your husband, you will never need to beg. You can just remind your husband that you can, at any time go out and earn your own living and he will get down on his knees to urge you to remain in the home."

OWNER CLAIMS A 'MYSTERY CAR' AT POLICE STATION

Complications Which Will Have to Be Straightened Out Later Grow Out of Car Going Dead.

A Ford coupe without license plates, allegedly presently parked in front of the F. L. Baldwin home on Oden Avenue all night, was taken from there this morning about 11 o'clock after Mrs. Baldwin had telephoned the police of the suspicious circumstances. When the officers searched the car in the hope of finding something making it possible to identify the owner, they found a pint bottle, labeled "Kentucky Tavern Whisky." The bottle still contained about a quarter of a pint. The car and the bottle were taken to headquarters, pending further investigation.

At noon today Otto Wagner, a chauffeur for Greenbott Bros., appeared at the station and claimed the car. He stated he had purchased it yesterday, second hand, and had not had time to get license plates. Wagner explained that the car had gone dead on him on Oden Avenue and he had gone away and left it there, intending to go back early this morning and get it, but other work intervened and he did not get a chance to go before noon, when he learned that it had been taken to police headquarters. He disclaimed all knowledge of how the liquor happened to be found in the car.

WAGES UP; OR RENTS DOWN; IS HELD VITAL

Social Work Conference Turns to Homes Problem.

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, May 25.—The National Conference of Social Workers has turned its attention to problems affecting home life in the United States. Bleecker Marquette, of Cincinnati, executive secretary of the Better Housing League, declared rents and building costs must come down, or wages must go up, if the housing problem is to be solved.

"Every family in the low income group that has to pay more than one week's wages for one month's rent," he said, "is a prospective victim of social breakdown and a candidate for relief."

Mrs. Edith Elmer Wood, of Cape May, Court House, N. J., advocated long term loans from postal savings deposits to enable working men to build homes.

Miss Viola I. Paradise, formerly connected with the children's bureau, cited census figures showing 1,069,858 child workers in the United States and declared the nation was "blind hearted" with respect to the question.

Former Friend of James Stillman Denies He Settled Trust Fund.

Story of Half Million Given to Mother and Child Denied by the Mother.

(By the Associated Press.) CHICAGO, May 25.—Jay Leeds, alleged illegitimate child of James A. Stillman, today has a total fortune of $1.99 deposited in a penny bank, according to his mother.

The mother, "Flo" Leeds, former chorus girl, in a telegram from Atlantic City, addressed to the Associated Press, challenged the statement of Mrs. Annie U. Stillman, the banker's wife, who has asserted her willingness to take Jay into her own custody, that the former New York banker had settled a half million dollar trust fund upon her and her little son.

This statement appeared in an affidavit submitted by Mrs. Stillman in winning, yesterday, from the appellate division of the supreme court, confirmation of her award of $90,000 a year alimony and $15,000 attorney fees.

Mrs. Leeds, in her telegram said, "Just straw paper. Boy's wealth today comprises $1.99 in a penny bank. It records show what the newspapers say, the records are false."

HORSE TROUGHS PASS OUT WITH "DRY" REGIME

(By the Associated Press). DETROIT, May 25.—Firmly convinced that prohibition is to blame for so many horses in Detroit having to go without drinks frequently, F. E. Hutchinson, manager of the Detroit Humane Society, is going to "see what can be done about it."

The manager isn't advocating the return of the saloon, but is emphatic in declaring that the horse watering trough, which passed out of existence along with the places where drinks were sold, should be brought back.

"In the old days many saloon owners placed watering troughs in front of their places. This palpably was to attract trade. While a truck owner's horse was drinking the driver slipped inside and had a drink himself," Manager Hutchinson said. "The horses had frequent drinks in those days."

"When the saloons passed the watering troughs went out of existence. No other business has been fit to provide water for the horses and they may travel for miles along Detroit's streets without seeing a place where an animal may drink. This causes extreme hardship during hot weather."

The manager called this matter to the attention of city officials some time ago, but was informed the city has no appropriation available to build watering troughs. Therefore the Humane Society is appealing to individuals here who are interested in humane work to defray the expense of building watering places, scores of which are said to be needed throughout the city.

CAN NOW EAT FREE IN 380 RESTAURANTS

Soldier of Fortune Given Gold Meal Ticket.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Capt. Patrick Irving O'Hay, extraordinary adventurer and man of many occupations, who has survived many lean days in his 52 years, today faces an era of obesity.

For the Society of Restaurants last night presented him with a gold card, which will permit him to eat without cost in any one of the organization's 380 restaurants in New York City.

Capt. O'Hay has known lean days in many countries in his career embracing gun-runner, muleteer, coal passer, sailor, cattle puncher, actor, food carrier, salesman, lecturer, after dinner speaker, and participant in revolution wars. Virtually all the best restaurants along Broadway now are open to this world rover because he casually remarked at a banquet a few days ago that his most acute problem was that of eating, between wars.

Capt. O'Hay is said to have been the leading figure in Richard Harding Davis' "Soldiers of Fortune" and to have amused Jack London as one of his intimates. He holds various war decorations, including the American D. S. C., the British D. S. O., and D. C. M., and the French Croix de Guerre.

HOW FILLION GOT HIS BRIBE MONEY

Federal Operative Investigates His Activities in Hurley, Wisconsin.

(By the Associated Press) IRONWOOD, Mich., Information that John F. Fillion, former prohibition agent with headquarters at Marquette, accepted bribes from saloon-keepers in Hurley and vicinity was obtained by Earl L. Dooley, special agent of the government, who, with Sheriff Joseph Volant visited various places in the county.

Charles Stella told how he gave $500 to Fillion and saloonkeepers at Escanaba also are said to have admitted giving bribes on the demand of Fillion. It was said from Belt had similar cases, but some of the saloonkeepers were fearful of the results if they incriminated themselves. Some of the saloonkeepers already have testified before the grand jury regarding Fillion's activities in Hurley and vicinity.

Investigation was also made regarding a woman with whom Fillion is alleged to have spent much time during his stay in Hurley and Ironwood.

Sheriff Volant, who was named administrator of the Chicago estate, after Chicago was shot by the notorious raid on the Meyer road in which Fillion played a prominent part by "double crossing" the saloonkeeper, has in his possession a note given by Fillion to Chicago for an automobile.

Fillion paid $25 down and gave a note for $1,175. The sheriff will attempt to collect that sum and six per cent interest on the note, when Fillion is brought to trial.

SELF SACRIFICES MADE BY NURSES ARE MADE KNOWN

Public Health Service Demands Greatest Skill and Tact From Nurses.

(By the Associated Press) ST. JOSEPH, Mich., May 25.—A story of the self-sacrifice of nurses in relieving the suffering of unfortunate states and in keeping the entire nation "61 and on the job," was unfolded here by Lucy Minigerode, superintendent of nurses of the U. S. Public Health Service, speaking before the annual meeting of the Michigan State Nurses' Association.

The speakers explained in detail the work of nurses connected with the Public Health Service, outlined the aims of the organization, and gave a glimpse of the achievements the service hopes to attain in future years.

"The Public Health Service might be described as the great government health protective agency, working in close co-operation with health departments in the various states and with independent agencies for the protection of the health of the country," she said. "The division of domestic quarantine watches over the prevention or spread of epidemics from one state to another; the division of sanitary reports, publishes vital statistics weekly, citing prevalence of diseases throughout the world, and the division of foreign quarantine prevents entrance of epidemics from foreign countries."

"For many years special studies in disseminating and control of diseases affecting man has been one of the great beneficial functions of the service, and through these studies has resulted control of many diseases that have been epidemic in certain parts of the country, such as malaria, hook worm, typhoid fever, and yellow fever. Extensive studies of pellagra have been made in recent years, with beneficial results. Study of trachoma in rural districts extending over a period of nine years also have been made."

Telling of the hardships encountered by the nurses who are seeking to find a way to wipe out trachoma, the speaker said:

"There are a number of nurses working with the trachoma investigation section. This disease is highly contagious, and the hospitals, consisting of small cottages, are scattered through the mountain districts of Kentucky and Tennessee. The duties of the nurses include district visiting, and they often ride 25 miles mule back to reach some case requiring treatment or investigation. They have lit for the recreation and their lives are very isolated. They truly are examples of the self-sacrificing and devoted nurse."

Only for Jude and the Sarah and the queer new sense of freedom from all the associations he had ever known...

Leaving Satan and the old Sarah aside, and the extraordinary fascination of spars, sails, narrow deck and close sea...

"Stick them on that shelf," said Jude. "Oh, Lord!—butter-fingers!—lemme! That's the gadget to keep them from shifting if the ship rolls."

"Not a bit." "Well, that's all." They found Satan under the awning, attending to the goose-neck of the spare part.

Jude sat down on the deck clasping her knees, criticized Satan's handiwork, received instructions to hold her tongue, and then collapsed, lying on her back with knees up and the back of her hand across her eyes.

"How about getting ashore?" asked Ratcliffe. "I want to see that cove of yours. Care to come?"

"I'd just as soon leave it till they're away," said Satan, jerking his hand toward the Dryad. "There's no telling, they might be spottin' us on the location with a glass, and they'll be off tonight—so the chap told me. You leave it to me and I'll show you a cache better nor that in a day or two."

"Shut up, Satan!" came a drowsy voice from the deck. "Shut up yourself!" said Satan. "I'm talkin' of the abalone reef—lyin' there like a lazy dog and lippin' your betters!"

"Where's me betters?" cried Jude, sitting bang-up suddenly, like the corpse in "Thou art the man."

"I'm your betters." Jude broke into a cracked laugh. "Listen to him talkin'!" cried she to the universe in general. "Ain't fit to bite potatoes!" She was on her feet, and he was after her with a rope's end, dodging her round the mast.

"Touch me and I'll tell him!" A flick of the rope's end caught her, and next moment she was clinging to Ratcliffe and using him as her shield.

"It's an old ship south of 'em 'Item Key!" cried Jude. "South o' Rum key! I told you I'd tell him if you touched me."

"What you done with your eyes?" retorted the other. "Cain't you see?" Instantly, and by her tone and by some sixth sense, Satan was appalled. He seemed suddenly to scent danger.

He saw the work she had been on, encouraging the cove more effectively. He cast his glance over the island, the western sea, turned, and then stood stock-still, shading his eyes.

Away beyond the Sarah Tyler across the purple blue stood a sail. The land wind had died off, and the stranger was bringing the sea wind with her. A small topsail schooner she showed now, with all sail set, making dead for the island.

"Spotted him half an hour ago," said Jude. "He was steering nor' west and shifted his helm when he saw us."

"He's been huntin' for us," said Satan, "curse him!" "Who is he?" asked Ratcliffe. "Friend of Pap's, he was—"

"Pretended to be," put in Jude. "Spanish," continued Satan, "and ever since Pap gave out he's been pretty much on our heels. Jude and me worked the thing out and we came to conclude he'd scented, somehow, from Pap, about the hooker I spoke of."

"The wreck?" "Yep. Pap was keen on gettin' extra money into the business of salvagin' her, and I believe he sounded Carquinez—that's his name—and how much he let out takin' his soundin's the Lord only knows! Carke's in the tobacco line. Does a bit of everythin'—has a shop in the Calle Pedro in Havana and a gamblin' joint on the front, owns ships. That's one of them, and Matt Sellers runs her for him. He don't trouble handlin' her; sits in the cabin all day smokin' cigarettes."

"He's been after us ever since Pap died," said Jude, "on and off."

"Carke believes Pap found that stuff and cached it—that's what he believes, or my name's not Tyler," declared Satan.

"Well, let's get aboard," said Jude. "If they see us squatting here, they'll maybe think the stuff's hid here."

"They've seen us by this, though it's too far for them to make out who we are," said Satan, pushing his Panama farther forward to hide his face. He led the way to where the boats were on the sand, and they re-embarked.

The abalones were got on board, and then they stood watching the approach of the stranger.

As she dropped anchor and swung to her moorings broadside on to the Sarah, the rake of her masts became apparent, and her whole disreputable-ness spoke aloud.

Ratcliffe felt like a man who, having got into pleasant low company, suddenly finds himself drawn into unpleasant low company.

The Tylers and the old Sarah were all right, but this new crowd and that ratty old schooner he felt to be all wrong. And the newcomer somehow did not add honesty or moral stability to the appearance of the Sarah, nor did the half-disclosed character and activities of Carke shed luster on old man Tyler or his present representatives.

Satan had covered the heap of abalones with some sailcloth, and he was standing now working his lantern jaws on a bit of chewing gum, his eyes fixed on the stranger as though she were made of glass and he could see Carquinez sitting smoking his cigarettes in the cabin.

"They haven't shown a sign," said Jude. "They're bluffin' us to believe they haven't spotted who we are," said Satan. "Carke don't want us to twig he's been lookin' for us."

"Well," said Jude, "let's get the mud-hook up and put out right away. They won't have the face to chase us."

"Yes," said Satan, "and leave them to hunt the island and find the cache! They've seen us ashore among the bushes. You shouldn't have gone ashore."

"I want to see we hadn't left no traces."

"Traces he d—d! Carke wants no traces. Once he starts to hunt, he'll turn the burned island upside down and shake it. No, we've got to sit here till he goes, and that'll be this time next year, maybe."

"What's the name of Carquinez's schooner?" asked Ratcliffe. "The Juan Bango," replied Satan, "named after the tobacco company people. Look, they're gettin' a boat off. That's Sellers, and he's comin' aboard."

Then he collapsed, squatting under the bulwarks. "Guy them," said he to Jude. "Tell them I'm down with smallpox; that'll make them shove."

"Leave 'em to me," said Jude. It was Matt Sellers' right enough, a big phony man suggestive of Tammany hall, but a sure-enough sailor in practice. "The blizzest blackguard on the coast" was his subsidiary title. He was the henchman of Carquinez.

Like old man Tyler, Sellers had no use for people who talked of buried treasure, he knew the Caribbean and the Gulf too well.

If he was keen on the wreck business, then it was because he had excellent reasons for his keenness.

As the boat drew near, Ratcliffe noticed the villainous-looking crew, Spaniards, some of them with red hair, twitches that round their heads.

TAR VICTIM WEDS WOMAN FOLLOWING DAMAGE SUIT

ALLEGAN, Mich., May 25. — Richard Lenters, principal in a tar-and-feather party about two years ago which led to a $1,000 damage suit in circuit court, has announced his marriage to Miss Minnie Bergmann.

Lenters' statements connecting Miss Bergmann with the pastor of an East Saugatuck church led members of the congregation at that time to tar and feather him after they became licensed over Lenters' alleged scandalous remarks.

Lenters sued his assailants for damages and was awarded a verdict of $2,000 but could collect only $1,000 because that was the sum he had originally asked in his suit.

THE CONSUMER STILL PAYS.

It may be an easy feat to effect political isolation from the world without by climbing into an hermetically sealed cellar, but the evidence continues to pour in to prove that there never has been such a thing as economic isolation for a nation that depends on a dollar's worth of foreign trade. The Ruhr occupation may be a matter of no moment in Washington, but latest export figures appear to indicate that it is having an increasingly profound effect on American business.

March export figures show a total increase over figures of March, 1922, but they also indicate a striking decline in our dealings with Germany and with Great Britain. Monthly exports to Germany show a difference of $11,000,000 between the months in comparison. This direct effect of the occupation is supplemented by a decline of $3,000,000 in British trade, explained partly by depression in the Lancashire cotton industry, but in a marked manner, too, by the same occupation.

A second salutary fact conveyed by the same summary is the information that the balance of trade in the March period was against us to the amount of $61,000,000, which may be added to what Secretary Hoover describes as an invisible trade balance to make a total adverse balance on something like $155,000,000. These invisible and combined balances are quite the largest ever reported in the history of our foreign trade.

Economists say these are inevitable incidents in the career of any heavy creditor nation in a post war period. They have another significance, however, they are related to the workings of the Fordney Tariff. The tariff was enacted to provide super-protection to various American industries, and this intention is doubtless resulting in new additions in price levels. A second intention, to raise the imported commodity almost impossible, has not succeeded, however, and the subsidiary dream of large gold imports vanishes while a condition in which gold exports are necessary begins to materialize.

What has occurred that explains this seeming anomaly is that the American home market has suffered a price inflation that makes American industry incapable of dealing in a foreign market. It has exacted an exorbitant tribute from the American consumer and in that process has become too soft to fight for any other trade. Indeed that fight is unnecessary if the same profit may be realized at home with less effort. Thus the home market is more accessible to the foreigner than might be supposed. But whether he buys the protected American article at an inflated price or foreign commodity that manages to hurdle the tariff wall, it is the grand old American consumer who pays for high protection which never yet has protected him.

THE HABIT OF DETRACTION.

When the author of the poison pen letters which are exciting so much interest in New York is discovered it will be found, no doubt, that he or perhaps she is abnormal. There is no motive for the general dissemination of anonymous and untruthful scandal which appeals to the well balanced mind, but after that is said it must be allowed that mania for slanderous letter writing is not a wholly unnatural outgrowth from ordinary human nature.

To a greater or less extent, all men like gossip. There are few human beings who can say that they take no pleasure in telling unpleasant truths about the weaknesses and misdeeds of other men, and this form of enjoyment is like many others in that the longer it is sought, the stronger must be the meat that feeds it. The habitual gossip must say worse and worse things about better and better people in order that the appropriate thrill may result, and there are those who follow this habit so long and thoroughly, that they make a business of watching those generally believed to be most pure and blameless, for the pleasure they may derive in finding flaws where others see nothing but virtue.

Envy is generally said to be the basis of this perverse habit. These professional traduceurs are thought to be incapable of happiness as long as they see others better regarded than themselves, and that may be the root of a great deal of reputation wreckers' activity, but apparently they often lose sight of the original motive and pursue the game for the pleasure that seems to them to be an intrinsic element of it, very much as a drug fiend begins the use of narcotics to deaden pain, and keeps at it after the pain is gone because he likes the thing itself. In its last and worst stages, the habit of detraction becomes a mania, loses all touch with truth and substitutes pure delusion for the world of fact.

The war department has begun the compilation of a list of things that ought not to be done, based on American experience in the last year. Those desiring a complete history of the shipping board and the railroad administration, should file their applications early.

That aged capitalist in New York who bought stocks on the advice of a medium who consulted the spirits discovered that the heavenly visitors who directed his operations were not nearly as smart as the bucket shop men.

The latest estimate by the treasury indicates a surplus of $138,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year so that every man who kicked on his taxes this year has another kick coming on the ground that he paid too much.

When you drive around a corner or when you start to cross a street, play safe. It is better to be safe than to be in court or in a hospital.

With the dandelion fields in full bloom it is scarcely a figure of speech to say that the country is in a state of continual ferment.

As a good example of a wholly negligible thing, consider an attack by Eugene V. Debs upon William Howard Taft.

JUDGE'S VERDICT ON NOTE HITS 70 BAILEY FARMERS

(By the Associated Press) BAILEY, Mich., May 25.—A case recently tried in Muskegon Circuit Court is of great interest to about seventy farmers here, in which Circuit Judge Vanderwerf directed a verdict against Oscar Osun, a farmer, in favor of the Bailey Farmers' Bank to collect on a note.

Osun with other farmers gave notes to the Bailey Bank as members of a farmers' co-operative association, which was organized some years ago. These notes, the farmers hold, should be cancelled as they charge they are in no way obligated to the association.

If Judge Vanderwerf's decision stands, the 70 farmers will have to pay their notes held by the bank.

Mrs. L. LaPoint, 421 South 13th St., Escanaba, says: "I had terrible backache and sometimes I could hardly get up or down. Mornings I was miserable and my back felt stiff and drawn. I couldn't sleep as there was a pain in my back which seemed to be pulling me down. I didn't sleep well and was restless during the night. This trouble caused me to worry and I became depressed and nervous. Black spots passed before my eyes and made me dizzy. My kidneys didn't act right but Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended so highly I decided to try them and a few boxes purchased of the Hill Drug Store entirely rid me of the complaint."

LANSIE, Mich., May 21.—Thomas December, about eighteen years old, of West Branch, near Marquette, believed to have been fatally injured when he was thrown from a motorcycle Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock, tonight lingered near death in a Hancock hospital, where he was taken following the accident.

RADICAL CHANGES IN STATE LAWS TO RAISE INTELLECT

Plans to Make Motoring Safe for Those Now Subject to Sub-Normal Drivers.

DETROIT, May 25.—Radical changes in the state laws, to bar persons of sub-normal intellect or illiterates from operating motor vehicles, as a means of reducing the number of automobile accidents is proposed by J. H. Goldie, executive secretary of the Detroit Safety Council.

THE RECORD

In Dickinson County
10 ACCIDENTS Since April 1,
2 KILLED Since April 1,
7 INJURED Since April 1.
Death claims and injuries in every one of these cases would have been paid under the terms of THE DAILY MIRROR TRAVEL ACCIDENT POLICY.

teners he has meted out to traffic law violators here. Mr. Goldie, who has made an extensive study of traffic conditions, says: "I have come to the conclusion that the root of the present epidemic of automobile accidents in all of the cities lies in the promiscuous granting of drivers' licenses. The present state law is entirely inadequate and should be supplanted with a scheme similar to that in vogue in Connecticut. This law provides for a state commissioner of traffic, under whose jurisdiction would come the granting of all drivers' licenses, and this official would have the authority to revoke, for just cause, the license of any driver either for a short or long period. Every person in the state would be obliged to submit to an examination as to his fitness to operate an automobile and also undergo an intelligence and literary test. At present there are hundreds of automobile drivers in Michigan who cannot read enough English to make out the safety and traffic signs, according to police authorities. Also there are many persons of sub-normal intelligence who can demand, and procure, drivers' licenses under the present law.

Habitually careless drivers of those shown to be lacking in consideration for others could be forever barred from driving anywhere in Michigan if this scheme went into effect. Mr. Goldie and other safety experts insist that all drivers' licenses now in force should be declared void if the proposed law were passed, and that every person desiring to operate a motor vehicle should be obliged to obtain a new permit, after first demonstrating his physical and mental fitness. "Only a comparatively few drivers in Michigan would be found unfit to drive," Mr. Goldie said, "but police officials and judges agree it is this small percentage who cause the most of the traffic accidents, with resultant deaths and injuries. Whether the proposed new licenses would remain in force indefinitely, as is the case at present, or be renewable every year, is a matter that has not been determined. A study of this question will be made, however, the safety expert said. It is proposed that a slight increase in the fee for such licenses should be made in order that the proposed new bureau might be well sustained. The price for the present drivers' license is fifty cents. "If the plan were to be adopted the commissioner of traffic would have jurisdiction over all motor traffic in the state and he would be a person well versed in such matters, perhaps a judge or police official with wide experience," Mr. Goldie said. "He would have lieutenants in the various cities who would be capable of judging the merits of each applicant for a license. No licenses would be issued to any person who, in the opinion of the officials, was not capable of operating an automobile with safety to himself and others. The plan also might be extended to provide schools of instruction for beginners in automobile driving, in order that such persons might learn properly how to operate cars with perfect safety to themselves and others. At first glance such a plan as proposed may appear too dictatorial, but it is true that something was done to stop the slaughter on the streets of our cities, and those who have studied the situation believe the only way to do this is to eliminate the ignorant and criminally careless driver. The careless driver who has at least normal intelligence would have nothing to fear from the proposed tests. We believe the vast majority of the citizens of Michigan would welcome such a change. Prison sentences would be given those convicted of operating motor cars without licenses."

TWO SERVICE MEN EACH DAY CARED FOR IN DETROIT

Men Being Treated Without Cost at the Henry Ford Hospital.

DETROIT, May 25.—An average of approximately two Michigan former service men each day are being cared for without cost at the Henry Ford hospital here, through an agreement between Edsel Ford, and officials of the Michigan Department of the American Legion.

CHANCY S. BARNES CALLED BY DEATH IN WESTERN HOME

Passes Away Last February According to Information.

When news was just received in this city of the death of Chancy S. Barnes in the Union Grange, near in Colorado Springs, Colo., some time last February, Mr. Barnes was one of the rugged types of the old school of "hand set" printers, with a strong and impressive personality and a quaint and interesting outlook of life fostered by a long experience with men and their faults and virtues and virtues. His philosophy was one of vigor and happiness and he was violently and outspokenly opposed to stunts and subtleties which form so large a part of present day living. For instance, Mr. Barnes was a believer in simplified spelling. So strong was he in this belief that he petitioned the court to change the spelling of his own name, merely to eliminate letters that were not sounded and thus Chancy Barnes became Chancy Barns.

Mr. Barnes was a member of the Escanaba Typographical Union and for two years was instructor in printing at the Escanaba High School. He was active in all school matters, was one of the leaders in the organization of the Escanaba Teachers' Council. Mr. Barnes went from here to Minneapolis, where he was put in charge of the school for apprentices which was established by the Typographical Unions of Minneapolis and St. Paul. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American war and his scores of friends in this city will learn with deep regret of his passing.

BRIDE THROWS ACID IN HUSBAND'S FACE

Each Only 20 Years Old and Wed Only Few Weeks.

(By the Associated Press)
TECUMSEH, Mich., May 25.—As her husband got into his car in front of his uncle's home here today Mrs. Charles Alston ran out of her parents' home next door with a glass of carbolic acid in her hand and dashed it into his face, disfiguring him for life and probably blinding him in addition. Each 20 years old, they were married at Monroe, Mich. April 5 and according to relatives, began having trouble almost immediately. Recently they came to Tecumseh, Mrs. Alston staying at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Kelley and her husband at the home of an uncle, Edward Reeves. After throwing the acid, Mrs. Alston walked quietly back into her parents' home, where she was placed under arrest by a deputy and taken to the county jail at Adrian. She refused to give any explanation for her act.

KIMONA PARADE STAGED AT ALBION

(By the Associated Press)
ALBION, Mich., May 25.—Two hundred Albion college co-eds staged their annual kimona parade here Monday night. After meeting at the "stone pile" on the campus the celebrators, led by a co-ed drummer and two musicians, marched to the rooms of Dean Helen Barton, then downtown to the Censor theater, where a free performance was given, in which two of the co-eds put on stunts. The concluding feature of the occasion was the serenading of the homes of members of the faculty.

OLD WAR DRUM LEADS TO FIGHT IN COURT ROOM

80-Year-Old Veteran Asks Judge to Return His Relic.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Old Father Time crept into west side court today, spun the hands of the clock back for 60 years and splashed the dusty place with colorful tinge of the atmosphere of the days when Grant's guns were hammering at the fortifications of Vicksburg. Samuel Hodgkinson of Grantwood, N. J., 89, was in court in an effort to recover from another G. A. R. man the drum he had carried through the Civil war and which he prized above all other possessions.

Hodgkinson told Magistrate Sweetser he had lent the old drum to Comrade Edward Kessler so that the latter could play it in the life and drum corps which had taken part in the Memorial day parade last year. Kessler was slow about returning the drum and its owner became impatient. Kessler had always "stalled him off" when he asked for the instrument, Hodgkinson said, and finally he had decided to "go to law." He needed the drum himself, he added, so that he could take a hand in the Memorial day parade this year. It might be the last, you know. A man can't tell.

The case ended when Kessler promised to return the drum without further delay, Hodgkinson said, he had carried it through the Vicksburg and Gettysburg campaigns, while a member of the Sixty-second Ohio Volunteer Infantry.

PRESS ATTACK ON JUDSON STIRS TROUBLE

American Red Cross, and C. W. Kates, general manager of the E. & L. S. R. R. Co., and newly elected chairman of the Delta County Board of Supervisors, is treasurer of the War Relief Association. Not one dollar of the funds of the association has even been expended except upon checks drawn by one or the other of these two treasurers. Mr. Norton must be aware of this fact; if he pleads otherwise he is guilty of inexcusable ignorance. No Red Cross Drives. "It is true that when the war ended nearly six years ago there was about $14,000 in the War Relief Association fund," said Mr. Judson to the Journal on Tuesday, "but the people of Delta county must be aware of the fact (and duly appreciative, too) that no drive for Red Cross funds has been made in Delta county since the close of the war, and, in fact, not at any time, because Delta county's quota of the Red Cross drives were always paid out of the treasury of the War Relief, and every contributor to the War Relief funds became automatically a member of the Red Cross. "And that $14,000," continued Mr. Judson, "has been used to keep Delta county in good standing with the American Red Cross organization, as well as to meet all proper demands upon it during a period of six years by the ex-service men of Delta county, as well as numerous demands by other ex-service men who became stranded in this city.

"So far as the attacks made upon me by the Daily Press and the Gladstone paper are concerned, I don't care to say a word. Our treasurer, Mr. Kates, has published a complete financial report once each year during the past six years. The funds have been paid out by the banks only upon proper warrant drawn by the treasurers; therefore, I submit that if any money has been stolen or misappropriated Messrs. Smith and Kates must be fellow thieves with me. Fine recompense Mr. Norton is giving us for all our years of himself and free service to the ex-service men and to the Red Cross. I can't understand why Mr. Norton has seen fit to single me out for attack. Why not the men who have the keys to the "strong boxes?"

Secretary Sawdy Talks

"The attack upon Mr. Judson is the most unjust and unreasonable slander of one who merits nothing but praise and commendation, that I have ever read," said L. J. Sawdy, secretary of the Delta County Chapter of the American Red Cross. "Had it not been for the work of Mr. Judson, who conceived the plan for the organization of war relief work in this county in 1917, we would have been having 'Red Cross drives' every year since the close of the war, as well as during the war. Considering the demands which have been made upon the Red Cross during the past six years it is remarkable that the fund has lasted as long as it has. Now that the necessity for additional funds has been made public I think it would be very fine if Mr. Norton would head a subscription list for a Red Cross fund. Of course if he thinks Mr. Smith, treasurer of our Red Cross, would let some of the fund slip through his fingers Mr. Smith would probably consent to being relieved as treasurer."

Has Heard Rumbling

"Attorney W. J. Miller of Rapid River, who was in the city Tuesday attending a meeting of the Board of S-supervisors, said: "I heard some of the rumbling and grumbling at Gladstone as far back as two months ago. I told some of the malcontents that their talk was foolish and unjustified. I was a member of the War Relief Association board of directors, and I am in a position to know something of the debt of gratitude which the people of Delta county, and especially the ex-service men, owe Mr. Judson. His was the brain that conceived the plan adopted in this county for financing war relief work, and the plan was adopted by many other counties all over the country. The attack upon Mr. Judson at this time is the most ungracious thing I ever have known. He gave his time and his own money without stint, and I know it was very largely owing to his executive and creative genius that Delta county held a 100 per cent record in all war relief work, and that it has been able owing to the care with which the war relief fund was safeguarded that this county has financed the Red Cross work for six years without any drive for further funds necessary. He merits the everlasting gratitude of the people of this county, and I take off my hat to him."

Something Back of It. "Another out-of-town Delta county man who reads the editor of the Escanaba Daily Press like a book commented that, "There must be some of Mr. Norton's dirty political schemes back of his attack upon Mr. Judson. He has been wearing the cloak of decency about as long as he can without blowing up."

BOARDER IS HELD IN YOUTH'S DEATH

Accused With Foster Mother of Poisoning Youth in Insurance Plot.

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, May 25.—Edward M. Shannon will be charged jointly with Mrs. Emma Koppie with first degree murder and Miss Jennie Pratt will be held as a material witness. Bernard Pierce, prosecuting attorney, has said, after a further investigation of the death from poison of Mrs. Koppie's 12-year-old foster son, Harry.

This decision followed Mrs. Koppie's statement that Shannon had plotted the death of the boy in the hope of sharing in the $1,200 insurance on the boy's life, and Miss Pratt's admission that she had given the boy what she thought were headache powders, at the direction of Shannon. Shannon who is 37 years old, and Miss Pratt were boarders at the Koppie home.

The headache powders, the authorities have established from an analysis of the contents of the boy's stomach, were poison.

A "Headache Powder." According to Mrs. Koppie's statement, she took out a $200 policy on the boy's life three years ago and one for $1,000 two weeks before the boy's death. The second policy, she said, was taken out at the direction of Shannon, who, she added, desired to be made the beneficiary.

Shannon and Miss Pratt, Mrs. Koppie said, had been talking for several weeks of going south and being married, and of taking her with them, but there was no suggestion of doing away with the boy and using the insurance money to finance the southern trip until a week ago last Wednesday.

On that day the boy came home from Shannon's garage, claiming that Shannon had given him a white powder that made him ill. When asked what he had given the boy, Shannon replied, according to the mother, that it was a headache powder, but that he might have made a mistake and given him powder from a bottle of poison which he had used when he was in the horse-trading business.

Did Not Call Doctor. Mrs. Koppie said that when she suggested calling a doctor, Shannon replied: "Never mind a doctor. Harry's only a little thief, anyway. If he dies we can all go south."

The boy was ill for several days, but no doctor was called. Finally, on Sunday, when he complained of a severe headache, Miss Pratt, according to her statement, gave him a white powder, at Shannon's direction. She denied knowing that the powder was a poison. The boy died a few hours later.
