

DISORDERS DEVELOP IN RUHR SECTION

WILD NIGHT OF TERROR SPENT BY RESIDENTS

Searching of Inhabitants Results in the Loss of Valuables, Claim. Numerous Fights Grow Out of the Searching as Effort to Flood the Mines Is Thwarted.

Essen, Germany, May 28.—Disorders in the Ruhr on account of strikes appear at the present time to be centered in Dortmund, where the inhabitants marked a night of terror as the Communistic element today are striving for the upper hand. The workers guarding there took up their positions in the street and stopped and searched all passers, ostensibly in search of firearms, but many complained that money and other valuables had been taken from them.

Numerous fights grew out of the searching and many persons were injured. The terrible night at Dortmund was preceded by bitter fighting between Communists and the police as a nearby mine, where Communists tried to induce the pumpmen to leave so that the mine would be flooded. The police drove the Communist forces away after two of the police were killed and two wounded. Hand grenades, in the possession of the Communists, were used most effectively by them.

Tremendous Mortgage. BERLIN, Germany, May 28.—Germany's new reparations code as it is now outlined will literally be confined from the ground up, for it will rest primarily in a nationwide real estate mortgage which promises to become the greatest hypothecation of land in the history of economics and which will eventually encompass every square inch of German soil which will be made to pay tribute to Germany's former foes for a period of thirty years.

The assessment will be on the basis of 50 per cent of present gold values. Five hundred million gold marks will annually flow into the Reich's reparations reding pot. The ultimate yearly total will approximate one billion gold marks, the increase depending upon the profits derived from the increased valuation of metropolitan real estate.

In the above accident our 75 cent policy covers every feature and as usual all claims would be paid promptly.

Officers Are Still After Whitfield, Slayer Cincy Cop

CHICAGO, May 28.—Police and deputy sheriffs continued to guard the northern roads and to search the south side negro district here for John Whitfield, the man wanted by Cleveland for killing a police officer. From information given by a resident of Waukegan, Ill., a negro answering the general description of Whitfield was arrested here last night but was released when he convinced officers that he was John White and not the fugitive. He was held, however, on the belief that he was wanted on some charge in Marion, Ohio.

The search was also continued in southern Wisconsin, where traces of Whitfield have been reported at intervals since he escaped from Madison last week.

POLICE CAPTURE BOY CAR THIEF; HELD TO COURT

John Wagner, 17 Years Old, Admits Having Taken Five Cars in Last Month.

Through the arrest of John Wagner, 17 years of age, Saturday night, the police have every reason to believe that they have put a stop, for a time at least, to the theft of automobiles, or rather the borrowing of cars for joy riding purposes. About 10 o'clock Saturday night, E. A. Laux, 512 First avenue, south, reported that his Ford Sedan had been stolen from in front of his residence. All officers were notified and Officer Sandborn drove on towards Wails. He found the Laux car headed back towards Escanaba and driven by Wagner. The boy was placed under arrest and then came through with the information that he had stolen at least five cars during the last month. He had taken City Attorney T. J. Riley's car, the DeGrand truck, Dr. Walek's car and the Laux car, besides another.

Dr. Walek's car was stolen Friday night. It was driven to Menominee and on the way back was abandoned at Carney.

The police have been put to a great expense in wiring all surrounding towns every time a car is missing and it was something of a surprise to find that young Wagner had been guilty of most of the trouble. However, it is pretty well established that others are implicated with him in the theft of cars and it is possible that further arrests will be made.

In Justice McEwen's court this morning, Wagner was charged with the theft of the Laux car only, no charge being placed against him for the other offenses which he admitted. He was held to the circuit court under a bond of $500 and will be tried at the July term of court.

It was only a matter of time until these thefts were stopped. Repeated warnings had been issued that the thief would be caught in time but apparently this did not deter the boy. He seems to be possessed of a mania for riding, and when he returned from Menominee Friday night after having fished the Walek car, he was, furnished.

The police deserve much credit for the speedy manner in which they picked up young Wagner and it is believed that this effectively will end this annoying form of theft.

Forest Fires Are Raging Across Gogebic County

Seven Persons Killed In An Automobile Collision While A Dozen Others Are Injured

DETROIT, May 28.—With the identification of the seven people who were killed last night when an automobile was struck by an interurban car, county authorities are today investigating the circumstances surrounding the collision on Woodward avenue road about 6 1/2 miles north of here. In addition to the seven who were killed, all of whom were Detroiters, a dozen or more passengers were cut by broken glass or were injured when they jumped from the car after it crashed into the automobile. According to witnesses of the accident, an automobile containing five of those killed, drove upon the interurban track to pass an automobile that had stalled. The interurban struck the automobile, broke it into pieces and hurled the wreckage many feet into the air. Another machine, occupied by two brothers by the name of Bolivar was hit by the wreckage and were killed. The occupants of the car which was struck were badly burned when the gasoline tank exploded and set the car on fire. The air brakes of the interurban were broken by the impact and the motor man was unable to stop the car for two blocks.

SAFE CRACKERS ARE CAPTURED

Considerable Loot and Burglars' Tools Found in Their Room at Hotel.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 28.—Two men, arrested in the downtown district as a result of an order for a roundup of all suspicious characters, are declared by city detectives to have been definitely linked with the safe robberies in three Smithfield street stores through the finding of a portion of the loot and a complete outfit of burglars' tools in their room in the Hotel Henry. The pair say they are Thomas Lawson, 40 years old, of New York, and Thomas McGuire, 28 years old, of Brooklyn. They were arrested at Fifth avenue and Smithfield street by Detectives Frank Boyd and John Lally after the officers had trailed them through downtown streets to the hotel and back to the street.

The detectives say they found $400 on the pair and watches, fountain pens and jewelry taken from the William Cohen jewelry store and the M. E. Cunningham company store in luggage in their room in addition to a bag containing a complete set of burglars' tools.

Pad Is Found. A pad of "garment" slips, bearing the name of the Cohen store also was found in the room, the detectives say.

Detective Lieutenant Murphy said that Larny admitted in a deductive headquarters that he was also known as Thomas Lawson and that he had been paroled eight months ago from Sing Sing prison from a sentence that still had five years to run.

Lieutenant Murphy said that in addition to the money, jewelry and other valuables recovered, which represents about $1,000 of the $8,900 loot taken from the Cohen and Cunningham stores, and the store of the Emergency Trunk & Bag company, a complete set of drills that fit a bit found on the scene of the robberies and a small sledge hammer that corresponds with another sledge hammer left on the scene by the safe-crackers, were found among the burglars' tools in the hotel.

They Have Theory. No trace of the stocks and bonds that represent an appreciable portion of the loot was found. Detectives were working on the supposition that the unsolved loot has been shipped out of the city. Steps aiming at its recovery were taken.

McGuire, when questioned by detectives, strongly denied any connection in contrast to Larny's complacent acceptance of his arrest. He asserted that he met Larny while en route from Albany to Detroit and that Larny had induced him to come to Pittsburgh.

The safe-crackers, who robbed the Smithfield street stores, entered the Cunningham building by way of a skylight and then cut their way through a partition into the Cohen store, the Emergency Trunk & Bag company, just south of the other two buildings, was entered through a rear window.

One safe was broken in the luggage company store and $3,000 in cash and negotiable securities and jewelry taken. In the other two places a total of three safes were broken open and $5,000 loot taken. Damage estimated at $4,000 was done to the two latter stores.

LARGE AREAS OF CUTOVERLANDS NOW IN FLAMES

Hundreds of Motorists Held Up by Dense Clouds of Smoke. Fire Fighters Trapped Near Republic, Have Thrilling Time Reaching Safety.

HONWOOD, Mich., May 28.—Forest fires are raging in Vliess county, Vassar, and Gogebic counties, Michigan, and large areas of cut-over lands are burning and the spreading flames are threatening valuable timber tracts. In Vassar, near Vassar, Detroit and Watrous, Michigan, are falling in the towns that are several miles from the scenes of the fires.

The fires are along the Cleveland Trail and it was reported late Sunday that at least 100 motorists were held up at least once in four before they could pass the blazing trees. The situation here appears serious, due to the extremely dry and hot weather. A lumber camp between Wakefield and Marquette and other buildings in that vicinity are threatened. Large areas of men from all sections of the country are fighting the fire.

A force of fifty employees of the Cleveland-Climax Company's mine at Republic, under the direction of Superintendent Charles J. Siskel, is assisting several deputy fire wardens in fighting a forest fire, which started late Friday in the vicinity of White Lake, north of Republic, on State Trunk Line M. B.

The fire is thought to have started from a small brush fire left by farmers who were engaged in land clearing early in the week. Smoke from the blaze could be seen here yesterday.

On Saturday the fire was about a mile and a half from the main highway and fire fighters feared that if the wind changed it would travel across the road. One detachment of fire fighters had a narrow escape from the fire Saturday afternoon. The men were at work constructing fire breaks in an effort to prevent the fire from spreading and before they could accomplish the task flames leaped across the space where they worked and in a few minutes they were completely surrounded by fire. They made their escape from the danger zone by crawling on their hands and knees.

ONE PER CENT ONLY OF BOOZE IS 'REAL STUFF'

Commissioner Haynes Explains that U. S. Is Really "Drying Up." Gives Mass of Data to Show That Prohibition Is Actual and Tangible.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—How the United States has "dried up" by prohibition, in spite of rum running and bootlegging, was the subject of a statistical statement today by Federal Prohibition Commissioner Haynes. He gave out figures showing the major imports of distilled spirits to be the nearby liquor smuggling sources, altogether amounted to slightly over one per cent of pre-prohibition American liquor withdrawals.

"Allowing note for home use," said Commissioner Haynes, "if the entire amount of exports of distilled spirits from the United Kingdom to the Bahamas, West Indies and Canada in 1922, as indicated by the present rate, be added to the imports of Mexico, in 1921, the latest figures available, and smuggled into the United States, the total would be about one per cent of the tax paid liquor withdrawals for the consumption for the fiscal year of 1923."

Continuing he said, "It is readily seen, that there is less occasion to worry over these 'rum fleets' and domestic stuff made in various ways. If a larger amount is smuggled in than these figures show, it is certain that expansion comes by means of adulteration and rectified imitations, or is synthetic stuff smuggled out and in again. The percentage of good liquor in government confiscation amounts to less than one per cent. Recent magazine and newspaper revelations bear out this statement."

Kiwanians Hear Interesting Talks At Noon Today

Members of the Kiwanis Club heard two talks of interest at the weekly luncheon at the Ludington hotel today noon. Rev. H. C. Skinner, pastor of the Baptist church, spoke of "David and Goliath," relating the ancient Bible story and drew from it a parallel in the world war, wherein the little American David went valiantly forth and slew the mighty Goliath which was menacing the peace and safety of the world. Capt. A. H. Rolph, one of the half dozen surviving members of the G. A. R. here, spoke on "Patriotism." Capt. Rolph's talk was extremely interesting and mentioned many former well known members who have passed on. At one time, he said, there were 90 members of the local G. A. R. Post, and this has dwindled down now to about seven.

MEDICAL SOCIETY FOSTERS A CLINIC FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Will Be Permanent Feature in Escanaba and Is Destined to Do Great Good.

The establishment of a permanent tuberculosis clinic in Escanaba is announced by the Delta County Medical Society in cooperation with the Escanaba Woman's Club and aided by the experience of Dr. J. W. Towle, superintendent of the Powers Sanatorium, an expert who occupies a high place in the ranks of those who are waging a ceaseless and constantly more successful light against the dread "white plague."

The clinic will be in charge of the Delta County Medical Society, the City Health Department and Dr. Towle and will be one of the permanent features of the health education program which will be kept up for the benefit of the public.

First Clinic Soon. The time and place for holding the first clinic has not been announced, but it is indicated that it will be held within a few weeks and it is contemplated that clinics be held at least once a month.

This will give the public opportunity to go to a local clinic for free examination and expert advice about every thirty days. The movement is calculated to cut down the development of the disease and to give instructions to those who are found to be affected, or threatened, so that they may give themselves the proper care and treatment and thus avoid becoming a victim.

Great Credit Due. The greatest credit is due the organizations which have brought this free, permanent clinic idea into being. It should, and undoubtedly will, prove a great benefit to the public. There is no charge and the advice given is wholly for the benefit of the patient and to prevent development and spread of tuberculosis.

It is contemplated that Dr. Towle will be present at all clinics and in cooperation with local physicians will give the public the benefit of their experience and knowledge, with the idea in mind of reducing the number of incipient cases here, curing them and ultimately eradicating tuberculosis from this section of the country.

The movement is most commendable and will receive the most sincere approval of all who are interested in the public health.

Dates and places for holding the first clinic will be announced later.

President C. R. Randall of the Ishpeming club, made the address of welcome at the afternoon meeting, after which Deputy District Governor Greis responded for the other clubs. Other business on the program was the committee reports, which took up the work of new clubs, weekly programs and new projects.

At the evening meeting Escanaba was selected as the place for holding the next convention. The invitation from the Escanaba club was extended by Charles J. Burns, former mayor of this city. Lion C. C. Cowpland made the motion favoring Escanaba, which was the unanimous choice of the convention.

Before the large delegations of Ishpeming, Negaunee and Marquette Lions in attendance at the convention other clubs in the Upper Peninsula were represented as follows: John Ellis, Jr., and J. D. Kerr, Calumet; Dr. G. M. Bellinger and Thomas Masterson, Iron Mountain; J. Asp, Harry Jennings and Charles J. Burns, Escanaba.

Beautiful Your Lawn. Have Your Lawn Mower Sharpened by Machinery—Make Mowing a Pleasure Instead of a Drudge. This is the Machine That Does It. It is a well known fact that owing to the peculiar shape of the blades it is next to impossible to sharpen a Lawn Mower with a file, and many first-class Mowers have been ruined in the attempt. Your Mower ground with this machine will be sharp and stay sharp longer than the old style way which is usually done by inexperienced workmen with an emery wheel, file or emery dust, etc. While the emery dust method is a cheap one it is not desirable. The clearance of the cutting blade is reduced, making more surface in contact with the lower bar, so that it TEARS the grass instead of SHEARING it at the same time making it run harder than ever. Next time your Mower needs sharpening, bring it in or notify us, and we will make it cut so nicely that it will surprise you. YOUR MONEY BACK IF NOT SATISFACTORY. E. J. VINETTE 517 Ludington Street

The gratifying information was received Saturday night by Supt. W. E. Olds of the local schools, that the state oratorical and declamatory meeting has been awarded to Escanaba and will be held here the evening of June 1. Mr. Olds indicates that the meeting came here only after much opposition had been encountered but because of an Escanaba boy won the state honors last year, when Wendell Lund was awarded the oratorical prize, and the fact that Escanaba again has a strong contender for state honors in Lawrence Hartwig, who won the Upper Peninsula championship this year, the balance finally swung in favor of this city.

There will be five districts represented by two students each. Those who have heard Lawrence Hartwig, declare that he has a splendid chance to win state honors for this city, as he is regarded as one of the strongest candidates the city has ever had.

ESCANABA DEFEATS IRON MOUNTAIN IN EASY GAME SUNDAY

Visitors Trimmed 6 to 2 Before Biggest Crowd of Season On Local Lot.

South Park saw a real, old time crowd on Sunday afternoon when Escanaba defeated Iron Mountain 6 to 2 in a game which was interesting, and at various stages, thrilling. Matters roared along until the fourth inning before either side broke into scoring and then Escanaba got away to a good start by putting across three runs. This comfortable lead was added to through the remainder of the game and in the ninth, the locals slowed down a bit and permitted the visitors to chase 2 across the pan. Schultz, touted as a phenom when he started with Menominee this year, pitched a rather nice game but his support was discouraging at times and he never seemed to have a look-in, while Schwartz, the local moundman, was out there with all kinds of speed and control.

Eddie is going better this year than ever before and his friends look to see him do some great work this season. Escanaba was particularly strong in the base running department yesterday and stud fans on their thipses at various times by the daring with which they negotiated the paths. Aolberg caught his usual good game.

"Not live flies," he explained; "imitation ones." He tried to describe artificial fly-making and finished with a sense of failure as of one who had entered the lists in defense of a nicking form of business that had yet a touch of humor in it.

Then they went to rest, and as he lay in Pap's cabin, listening to the occasional rickles of the water against the planking and the groan of the rudder moved by the hit of the swell, it seemed to him that during his life's everyday and cold-blooded form could not have carried a man much further than it had carried him. The hardness of Pap's bunk bedding told of comfort renounced; while the morals of the Tylers, though good enough, no doubt, had, as disclosed in their conversation, a touch of the free lance and a threat of port authority troubles and differences of opinion with the customs. What had made him renounce the Drayd for the Sarah? What, lying in his hard bunk, made him contented with the exchange? The love of adventure and the craving for something new contributed, no doubt, but the main reason he felt to be the Tylers—Satan with his strange mentality and queer methods; Jude, unlike any other being he had ever met.

Ratliff was awakened by Jude calling on him to "show a leg."

"Satan's on deck," said Jude, "and if you believe in washin' he'll give you a swell with a bucket. Hurry up and come down again, for I want a swell myself. Swim? Not on your life! Shark, that's why."

The voice came from a hammock which he had blundered against in the semidarkness. Then on deck after his yell, drying himself with an old towel provided by Satan, he stood for a moment watching the sun break up through the water and the great sea flashing to life and the white gulls flying.

Oh, the splendor of being alive, free, happy, without a single care, and the deck of the wandering Sarah underfoot!

From below through the skylight came a sleep-heavy voice.

"Ain't you done yet?"

"Coming," said Ratliff.

He dived into his pajamas and came below.

"Get into your cabin an' shut the door," commanded the yawning voice from the hammock.

"There's no door."

"Well, draw the curtain. Oh, Lord! what's the good o' gettin' up? I'm near dead asleep!"

Then the voice of Satan descending the companion ladder:

"Ain't you up? Well, you wait one minute!"

A thump on the floor, a scurry up the companion ladder, and then shuddery lamentations and the sounds of swilling from the deck above, mixed with the admonitions of Satan from below.

"Oh, my! ain't it cold? Oh, my! ain't it frizin'?"

"Get on, you mud turtle! You ain't washin', you're splashing the water on the deck. Slush it over you."

"I'm slushin' it."

"Think I don't know? Why, you ain't gasped yet! Give a gasp, or I'll be up to you with a rope-end! That's more like it."

It was!

The sun was high when Ratliff got on deck, and a light, steady breeze was blowing up from the straits of Florida; the gulls looked like snowflakes blowing round the far reefs and against the morning blue of the sea.

Breakfast over, Satan and Ratliff took the dinghy to hunt for abalones on the unmooored reef.

The reefs to southward formed two spurs divided by a creek of blue water, and having got the dinghy into this creek Ratliff tended the boat while Satan hunted for the abalones.

Satan in search of pearls was a sight. Heart, soul and mind bound up in the business, like a dog hunting for truffles, every find was announced by a yell or a whoop, like the whoop of a Red Indian.

Ratliff could see squiggly-wiggly cutfish tendrilis running up Satan's arms as he dived in some of the rock crevices, and Satan disengaging them and flinging the "mushy brutes" away. The big abalones were nearly always deep down under the rock ledges and had to be chiseled off, wallowing in the water. At these times Ratliff might have fancied the vanished one lost or drowned, but for the profane language that rose and floated away on the breeze.

All the same, it was dull work for the boat tender. Having nothing else to think of, he thought of Jude. Her figure chased away dalliance.

Ratliff did not deal much with the conventions as a rule; still, he could not but perceive that all life has an aim and ending, and that the end of an old sailor was not what life and the fitness of things had destined for Jude. What would she grow up into? He thought of all the girls he had ever known. There was no one so jolly as Jude; still, it was terrible, somehow, monstrous. Her contempt for the feminine rose up before him, and against all that her housewifely instincts and the fact that, despite Satan's rope-end and mock bluster, she ruled the Sarah Tyler just as a woman rules a house.

Still, it was deplorable. Looking away into the distance, what would become of her?

He was aroused from these meditations by Satan—Satan with an armful of abalones, Satan scratched and bleeding and soused in sea water, but triumphant.

He reckoned they were the biggest "fish" ever got on these reefs. There were a dozen and six all told, and when they were collected and put on board the dinghy put back.

"Hi! Chuckiehead! Whatcha Leave the Ship For!"

Coming round the western spur of the reef, they found that Jude had left the Sarah—a high crime—and rowed herself ashore. She seemed in search of something.

"God love me!" cried Satan.

He beached the dinghy, helped Ratliff to run her up, and then started, followed by the other, running and shouting as he ran.

"Hi! chuckiehead! Whatcha leave the ship for? Didn't I tell you to stand by her? Whatcha huntin' for—Ratliff's eyes?"

"What you done with your eyes?" retorted the other. "Cayn't you see?"

Instantly, and by her tone and by some sixth sense, Satan was appeased. He seemed suddenly to scent danger.

He saw the work she had been on, camouflaging the cache more effectively. He cast his glance over the island, the western sea, turned, and then stood stock still, shading his eyes.

Away beyond the Sarah Tyler across the purple blue stood a sail. The land wind had died off, and the stranger was bringing the sea wind with her. A small topsail schooner she showed now, with all sail set, making dead for the island.

"Spotted him half an hour ago," said Jude. "He was steering nor'west and shifted his helm when he saw us."

"He's been huntin' for us," said Satan, "course him!"

"Who is he?" asked Ratliff.

"Friend of Pap's, he was—"

"Preferred to be," put in Jude.

"Spanish," continued Satan, "and ever since Pap gave out he's been pretty much on our heels. Jude and me worked the thing out and we came to conclude he'd scented, somehow, from Pap, about the hooker I spoke of."

"The wreck?"

"Yep. Pap was keen on gettin' extra money into the business of salvagin' her, and I believe he sounded Carquinez—that's his name—and how much he let out takin' his soundin' the Lord only knows! Cark's in the tobacco line. Does a bit of everything—has a shop in the Calle Pedro in Havana and a gamblin' joint on the front, owns ships. That's one of them, and Matt Sellers runs her for him. He don't trouble handlin' her; sits in the cabin all day smokin' cigarettes."

"He's been after us ever since Pap died," said Jude, "on and off."

"Cark believes Pap found that stuff and echoed it—that's what he believes, or my name's not Tyler," declared Satan.

"Well, let's get aboard," said Jude. "If they see us squating here, they'll maybe think the stuff's hid here."

"They've seen us by this, though it's too far for them to make out who we are," said Satan, pushing his panama farther forward to hide his face. He led the way to where the boats were on the sand, and they re-embarked.

The abalones were got on board, and then they stood watching the approach of the stranger.

As she dropped anchor and swung to her moorings broadside on to the Sarah, the rake of her masts became apparent, and her whole disreputable-ness spoke aloud.

Ratliff felt like a man who, having got into pleasant low company, suddenly finds himself drawn into unpleasant low company.

The Tylers and the old Sarah were all right, but this new crowd and that ratty old schooner he felt to be all wrong. And the newcomer somehow did not add honesty or moral stability to the appearance of the Sarah, nor did the half-disclosed character and activities of Carquinez inter on old man Tyler or his present representative.

Satan had covered the heap of abalones with some salloweth, and he was standing now working his lantern jaws on a bit of chewing gum, his eyes fixed on the stranger as though she were made of glass and he could see Carquinez sitting smoking his cigarettes in the cabin.

"They haven't shown a sign," said Jude.

"They're bluffin' us to believe they haven't spotted who we are," said Satan. "Cark doesn't want us to twig he's been lookin' for us."

"Well," said Jude, "let's get the mud-hook up and put out right away. They won't have the face to chase us."

"Yes," said Satan, "and leave them to hunt the island and find the cache! They've seen us ashore among the bushes. You shouldn't have gone ashore."

"I want to see we hadn't left no traces."

"Traces he d-d! Cark wants no traces. Once he starts to hunt, he'll turn the durned island upside down and shake it. No, we've got to sit here till he goes, and that'll be this time next year, maybe."

"What's the name of Carquinez's schooner?" asked Ratliff.

"The Juan Bango," replied Satan, "named after the tobacco company people. Look, they're gettin' a boat off. That's Sellers, and he's comin' aboard."

Then he collapsed, squatting under the bulwarks. "Guy them," said he to Jude. "Tell them I'm down with smallpox; that'll make them shove."

"Leave 'em to me," said Jude.

It was Matt Sellers' right enough, a big wheezy man suggestive of Tennessee, but a sure-enough sailor in practice. "The biggest blackguard on the coast" was his subsidiary title. He was the henchman of Carquinez.

Like old man Tyler, Sellers had no use for people who talked of buried treasure, he knew the Caribbean and the gulf too well.

If he was keen on the wreck business, then, it was because he had excellent reasons for his keenness.

As the boat drew near, Ratliff noticed the villainous-looking crew, Spaniards, some of them with red handkerchiefs tied round their heads.

CHAPTER IV

Jude Overdoes It.

"Hello, kid!" cried Sellers as the boat came alongside the Sarah.

"Hello, yourself," replied Jude.

"Where've you blown in from?"

"What's become of Satan? Ain't he aboard?" asked Sellers, ignoring the question.

"Satan's dead," said Jude. "Died of the smallpox."

"Well, I'm d-d!" said Sellers, casting his eyes over the Sarah and then resting them on Ratliff. "When was it?"

"A week ago."

Sellers gave a word to the bow oar, and the boat pushed off a bit, the fellows hanging on their oars.

"I thought I saw three of you on deck," he shouted.

"The other chap's gone below," replied Jude.

The boat of the Juan hung for a moment as if in meditation. Then without a word more she turned back to the Juan.

"Hello, Kid!" Cried Sellers as the Boat Came Alongside the Sarah.

Satan in the scupper seemed preparing to have a fit.

"What's the matter now?" asked Jude.

"What's the matter? What did you say I was dead for? Didn't I tell you to say I was down with smallpox?"

"Well, what's the difference?"

"Why, you mutt, wouldn't you have been silvethin' and cryin' if I was dead? And you handed that yarn out to him as easy as if you were talking of a tomato! I didn't believe you myself."

"Why, I told him you was dead a week," cried Jude. "D'you think I'd be silvethin' and cryin' a week if you was dead? Lord! what you do think of yourself!"

Satan did not reply. He was thinking that he had made a false move and that Jude had put the cap on the business. Cark would be certain now that there was something hidden on the island.

BOOTH'S DIARY TELLS OF LINCOLN'S DEATH

Assassin's Own Account Found in U. S. Files, Used to Settle Dispute.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—That the war department has a diary written by John Wilkes Booth, which contains a description of the shooting of President Lincoln came to light Tuesday by a letter written to a Washington paper.

The revelation was merely incidental to a discussion which has been going on in the columns of a newspaper of this city, started by a statement some weeks ago by a correspondent that Both did not make use of the family Latin motto, "Sic semper tyranni," at the time of the assassination.

Cited Booth's Diary. Lieutenant Colonel W. A. Graham, of the judge advocate's staff, wrote the newspaper, Tuesday, telling about the diary, and citing an entry to establish the fact that the motto was spoken by Booth.

The original diary, Colonel Graham says is now in the possession of the judge advocate, and to the best of his recollection, it has never been reproduced in any book.

The entries quoted read as follows:

April 14, Friday, the idea. Until today nothing was ever thought of as being to our country's wrongs. For six months, we had worked to capture. But our cause being almost lost, something decisive and great must be done. But its failure was owing to others who did not strike for their country with a heart. I struck boldly and not as the papers say. I walked with a firm step through a thousand of his friends, was stopped, but pulled on. I shouted "Sic semper tyranni." In jumping, broke my leg. I passed all his pickets, rode sixty miles that night with the bone of my leg tearing the flesh at every jump. I can never repent it. Though we hated to kill, our country owes all her trouble to him, and God simply made me the instrument of his punishment. The country is not what it was. This forced union is not what I have loved. I care not what becomes of me. I have no desire to outlive my country. This night, before the deed, I wrote a long article and left it for one of the editors of the National Intelligencer, in which I set forth our reasons for our proceedings. He or the government.

Slayer of "Tyrant."

April 21, I am here in despair and why? For doing what Brutus was honored for, what made Tell a hero. And yet I, for striking down a greater tyrant than they ever knew, am looked upon as a common cutthroat. My act was purer than either of theirs. One hoped to be great himself, the other had not only his country, but his own wrongs to avenge. I hoped for no gain; I knew no private wrong. I struck for my country, and that alone.

In his letter printed Tuesday, Colonel Graham says that the penciled entries in this old diary are still legible and that the book itself has been in the possession of the government ever since the night that Booth, surrounded by union cavalry was shot down in the barn in which he was hiding.

It was not used in evidence during the military trial of the conspirators, he adds, though when John S.urratt was tried some years later in the civil courts, the book was then produced.

PAIR TO HONEYMOON IN JUNGLE OF AFRICA

California Groom Promises Bride an Adventure Covering the World.

(By the Associated Press)

OAKLAND, Cal., May 28.—A honeymoon around the world! A bridal bower in Congo Kraal, where white women never go, had trod! Love's young dream fulfilled in the dark heart of the African jungle.

That is the promise made by young Sidney Snow, son of H. A. Snow, Oakland's famous African big game hunter, to Miss Virginia Ormsby, of Centerville, Alameda county, his school day sweetheart, who will be his bride at high noon June 6, one month to the day before H. A. Snow and the bridegroom and bride sail for a three years' expedition into darkest Africa.

Leave July 7.

Snow, the father, announced Thursday that he would leave July 7 for an expedition that will eclipse any expedition, scientific or sporting, ever made into Africa by white men.

The bride-to-be looks forward with eagerness to some of the wildest regions of the African interior, and to travel through "terrores" and "horres" of places where white men have not penetrated.

"Afraid? Not with Sidney," the young girl said, Thursday.

The Snow expedition will include Mr. Snow and Homer Snow, besides the bride and bridegroom. From San Francisco the party will sail to Hawaii, to Australia, New Zealand, the Friendly Islands, down to the edge of the Antarctic ocean and then to Capetown, Africa.

From Capetown the party will trek into the Congo country, where Snow hopes to learn the language of the giant apes and baboons, and to capture specimens of the rare Okapi, a variety of giraffe that never has been brought alive from Africa.

The party then will venture into the pigmy country, where man and jungle beasts are dwarfs. Snow and his son hope to trap alive the pygmy elephant, rarest of this species.

Four thousand miles of the wildest lands in Africa will be traversed by the party, which will go from the Congo to Abyssinia, and from there to the head waters of the River Nile, thence to Port Said, and back to America via the Atlantic.

PARIS TO HONOR MEMORIAL DAY

Graves of 30,587 Americans to Be Consecrated in Rites May 30.

PARIS, May 28.—Memorial Day this year, according to plans now being developed by the Overseas Memorial Day Association and the American Legion, will be the occasion for the final consecration of the graves of the total 30,587 American soldiers whose bodies will rest forever in foreign soil.

To carry out this idea arrangements have been made to have Lincoln's Gettysburg address read at the ceremonies at all the eight military cemeteries abroad. This announcement is made by Col. Francis E. Drake, president of the Memorial Day Association.

Paris Ceremony.

The chief service of the day will be a solemn memorial ceremony in Paris on the morning of May 30 when the memorial tablets in the cloister of the American Pro-Cathedral of the Holy Trinity to the memory of the American divisions; the American Ambulance Service, and the Lafayette Flying Corps, together with the statue of Columbia, are to be unveiled.

This ceremony will be under the presidency of Myron T. Herrick, the American Ambassador, and it is expected that the great allied war chiefs will attend. Invitations have been sent to Marshal Foch, representing France; Field Marshal Haig and Earl Beatty, representing the army and navy of Great Britain; Gen. Baron Jacques, commander in chief of the Belgian Army; Gen. Diaz, Italian minister of war; Gen. John J. Pershing and Alvin W. Owsley, national commander of the American Legion.

France Takes Part.

As in previous years, the French government will co-operate in all the ceremonies with official representatives and troops at those burying places where it is possible to have them.

On the afternoon of May 30 impressive services will be held at the Suresnes Military cemetery, just outside of Paris. It is hoped that the allied commanders will attend these services as well as those at the Pro-Cathedral. Similar services will take place at all the other cemeteries, and these will be in charge of delegations from the Memorial Day Association and the American Legion.

The plans provide, as in the past, for the placing of flowers on every soldier's grave in France, Belgium and Great Britain. The London Post of the American Legion has assumed the responsibility for decorating all the graves at the Brooklyn cemetery, the only place in England where American soldiers are buried. Similar plans have been made to decorate the graves of American soldiers at Waerghem, Belgium.

LOCATER FINDS HIDDEN CANNON

Concealed Batteries Will Have no Terror for United States Forces in Future.

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Hidden artillery will have no terror for the United States army in the "next war."

Scientists of the bureau of standard guns announce they have developed a gun "locator" functioning with such accuracy that within a few moments after the first enemy salvo, return fire from American long range rifles may be directed to silence the concealed battery.

"Listening Posts" Are Used.

The work has been in progress since the United States entered the World war. Devices to detect hidden guns used by the French and British have improved to a high degree of efficiency, according to the announcement.

Dr. E. A. Eckhart, in charge of the general study of acoustics declared the American gun locator is a practically infallible guard against extensive operations of concealed batteries.

The arrangement, he explained has a switch board, similar to telephone equipment, with automatic listening posts which in warfare would be distributed at various points along the terrain to be protected. By the difference in time of recording the gun's detonation at the various listening posts the battery may be located.

Operators would immediately transmit the map destination of the "Big Bertha" to the artillery and fire would be directed to put it out of commission.

"Big Bertha" Was Mysterious.

The noteworthy example of operation of concealed guns during the World war was that of the famous German "Big Bertha" which on Good Friday, 1918, hurled a shell into the church of St. Gervais, Paris, killing 100 worshippers. This long rifle, throwing projectiles 75 miles, shelled Paris intermittently during the summer of 1918. It was finally found to have been fired from the forest of St. Gobain. The "Big Bertha" proved one of the outstanding mysteries of the war, the gun never having been located, although emplacements from which it was fired were discovered when the Germans fell back.

Another important development of acoustics study, Dr. Eckhart said, pertains to large auditoriums. Since the almost universal construction of fire-proof buildings the problem of acoustics has multiplied.

Dr. Eckhart said that it has been discovered hard walls of fire-proof auditoriums cause a "speaker's voice" or music to rebound, creating a series of echoes about the hall.

The burst of standards is developing a method of rendering fire-proof walls absorbent to sounds to eliminate the echo and thereby improve the acoustics of auditoriums. The material of which auditoriums are constructed is believed to have been more bearing upon the carrying qualities of sound than the shapes of halls.

STUDY THE JURY SYSTEM
The jury system which is the pride and sometimes the despair of the Anglo-Saxon race is to become the subject of an extended investigation by an official commission of Japanese jurists, who are to undertake a tour of America and Europe for that purpose.

But the Japanese commission will have no prepossession. The story of the barons and Magna Charta will be nothing to them. Guarantees to our constitutions under which they never lived, will carry no more weight with them than cold reason allows.

That being so, it is possible that these Japanese students will teach western civilization something new about juries; and in laying the foundations for their own system point the way to important reform in the countries where they came to seek knowledge.

IN VIEW OF THE fact that neither Greece nor Turkey can afford a fight the loud deliriums which they are hurling back and forth are not so impressive as they might be, even though Premier Venizelos himself has been taking part in the sword rattling.

But if their new quarrel abetted by their ancient hatred should bring the two countries to a point where they are willing to fight it does not follow that the war will be resumed. Europe at large has an interest in the Near East which will not be served by more fighting and it is easily within the power of Europe to veto any declaration of war made by either Greece or Turk.

It is true recent experience does not provide a guarantee that the powers will keep the peace in the Near East, for they directly encouraged the beginning of the fight which Greece and Turkey now threaten to continue; but circumstances have changed somewhat since then.

Justification of a decision on the part of Washington to deal directly with Berlin in settling the question of reimbursement for the pay of American soldiers that have been stationed overseas since the armistice, will rest not so much upon the actual failure of the allies to secure money for the United States, as upon the evident indisposition of the European powers, notably France, to recognize the claim of America in any practical way.

Whether those gentlemen who want to rewrite the Bible carry out their plans or not the old book will continue to hold first place among the best sellers.

Youth sometimes would be far more prone to follow good advice, if age in giving it, did not so obviously hasten to depart from its own precepts.

READY TO FLY ACROSS POLE
Amundsen and Explorer Party Are Nearing Starting Point.

NOME, Alaska, May 28.—Word of the arrival at Wainwright, Alaska, of Captain Roald Amundsen and party, marking completion of the first leg of the explorer's drive to the North Pole, is expected momentarily.

Amundsen, with Captain Oscar Omdahl, of the Danish army, will attempt to fly by aeroplane across "the top of the world" to Spitzbergen from Wainwright.

Accompanying Amundsen are two photographers, Pierce and Scarbrough, and Doronic and Kawson, dog sled drivers. Amundsen himself drove the third of the three dog sleds, making the trip over a difficult trail.

Only Amundsen and Omdahl will make the aeroplane flight. Amundsen announced this before leaving Kotzebue. They will carry provisions in the lightest and most compact form, and just enough instruments required for observation purposes.

Amundsen bought the machine in America under the impression that it was a new American plane in per-

CANADA CATTLE MEN PROTEST U. S. TARIFF

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The Fordney-McCumber tariff law is costing Canada cattle producers $15,000,000 a year, it is estimated in a letter written to Chairman Marvin of the tariff commission by the Western Stock Growers' Association of Calgary, Alta.

"Our interest in a reduction of the United States duty on cattle is obvious," the association's letter stated, "and while we appreciate that the subject is one of purely domestic determination we are convinced from our long experience with cattle exportation to the United States and our familiarity with its markets that the present duty is very detrimental to our business."

Membership of the association covers Alberta and Saskatchewan, according to the farm bureau federation, which said the two provinces supply about half the cattle imported into the United States.

HORDES PLAN DASH INTO UNITED STATES

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 28.—Thousands of foreigners are waiting on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande to be smuggled into the United States by organized bands of smugglers, who "put them over" for ten pesos ($5) per person, according to Captain William M. Hanson, immigration inspector of federal district No. 22, who arrived here from an inspection trip along the border Wednesday.

"Captain Hanson's statement was made in connection with the reported finding of the decomposed bodies of 32 Italians near Nuevo Laredo. The probe into the supposed murder of Italians, believed to have been killed by smugglers, revealed the activities of the gangs, who are becoming increasingly bold.

According to Captain Hanson, Inspector M. G. Bolling, stationed at Dolores, Texas, reported that approximately 200 foreigners are gathered in the little Mexican village of Columbia, Mexico, waiting to be brought into the United States. Similar reports of smuggling activities were received by Captain Hanson from other inspectors, who have requested assistance from him in patrolling their territory.

CALLS TELEPHONE GIRL BIG FACTOR IN SALES SUCCESS

Upon the telephone girls in large business houses rests most of the responsibility for the success of the sales, is the belief of G. H. Cleaver, manager of the automobile maintenance department of the American Stores Company, who recently addressed members of the Motor Truck Association at the Hotel Adelphi, Philadelphia. "Telephone girls are the most important factor of a large business house," he said, "it depends largely upon the manner in which the telephone operator in your business house answers the prospective customer whether you make a sale or not." "Sometimes a girl can chase away more business than ten salesmen can bring in a year, and on the other hand if the girl is polite and courteous she may bring in more business than your whole sales force."

Even in historical and picturesque Palestine the telephone has found its way. At the present time the system comprises 31 central offices to which are connected 1,120 instruments. The average number of conversations per year is about 2,700,000.

WOMAN DOPER ASKS JUDGE FOR TERM IN ASYLUM

Says Her Brain Needs Attention, After Five Convictions.

(By the Associated Press) PHILADELPHIA, May 28.—A woman, 40 years old, sent here for the fifth time to the house of correction in connection with the use of narcotic drugs, pleaded Wednesday with Judge Harry S. McDevitt of common pleas court, to send her to an insane asylum.

"There is a psychological, as well as a physical side to my case," she said, addressing the court. "The psychological side of my case should be considered as well as the physical side which is plainly visible. There must be something radically wrong with me mentally when you consider that a woman of my years and experience would go back to the use of drugs after serving six months in the house of correction to be cured."

She said she honestly intended to stay away from the drug, and added, "I really and truly believe, without outstating any thought of levity that there is something wrong with my brain."

The court said she would be placed under observation as a result of her plea. The woman gave her name as Maud O'Neil. She was given a three-year sentence.

GETS FREE TRIP TO EUROPE AND BACK BY TRICK

Twenty-Year Old Tutor Outwits Officials of Ocean Liner.

(By the Associated Press) NEW YORK, May 28.—Gordon Moss, 20 years old, a private school tutor and an occasional contributor to the Labor Age, arrived today on the White Star liner Baltic from Liverpool after making a voyage to England and back without any expense to himself.

On April 14 he sauntered on board the Adriatic at Pier 66, North River. When the whistle blew and stewards went on deck he yelled "All ashore!" the young man remained aboard and waved farewells to the crowd on shore as the liner moved off. He wore good clothes, spoke well and had a debonair appearance that won a dock steward who was serving four o'clock tea.

The passengers had had lunch, but Moss had not taken the risk of entering the dining saloon. He passed the night on deck, and was very hungry indeed when breakfast was served at eleven o'clock next morning. He managed to get two cups of it and some biscuits. Then he sauntered into the smoking room and started making away with sandwiches.

Noticed by Steward. On the second day the deck steward noticed the young man, and conferred with the lounge steward and the "boots" about him. The latter official, who lives in a dark cave under the main companionway, and sallies forth only at night to seize the shoes of the passengers and take them to his lair to clean, told his mates that he did not like the cut of the mysterious stranger's "jib" and suggested that he might be "cockoo."

After watching Moss consume three-ounces of tea and two big plates of cake and bread and butter, the lounge steward asked him for his ticket. Moss admitted that he had no ticket. When asked what he was doing on the Adriatic he replied that he was on his way to see a sick friend in Paris.

After an interview with Purser Freeman Matthews Moss was sent to the third class. Some of the passengers he had been talking with in the saloon quarters made a collection to pay his fare to Liverpool.

Held on Parole.

On arrival because he had no passport, Moss was detained on parole by the immigration officials and ordered to be sent back to New York. He escaped after his pledge had expired. He tramped to Leeds, about 100 miles, to call on a Yorkshire farmer who had told him there was always a stump of one and a bit of bacon if ever he went that way. Next morning he asked the farmer if he could do anything for him, and the farmer replied, "No, laddy."

Then Moss started off for London, where he called upon the consul general to get passage money, and learned that detectives had been searching for him everywhere.

Moss was quite cheerful today on his arrival. "I have got money, but I have friends in New York who will help me," he said.

Sixty of the 77 stevedore passengers on board were Americans returning in the third class because of the high fares for cabin accommodations, they said.
