STAND AND DELIVER.

The decision of the supreme court in the du Pont case confirms the general impression as to what the law is when the federal government claims more taxes from any individual than it is entitled to. Mr. A. L. du Pont brought the suit to restrain the government from collecting what he believed to be an over-assessment of about $1,500,000. He won in the courts below but the supreme court has now sustained the position of the government which is, and always has been, that the taxpayer must hand over the whole amount demanded and then sue to recover what he thinks was wrongfully taken away.

It is clear that in all such cases, one party or the other must lose the use of money to which he believes he is entitled. Somebody must get the worst of it, and there are evident reasons why the government will not permit every taxpayer to hand in what he pleases and make the treasury fight for the rest; but when an absolute presumption in favor of the government is asserted in every such case, means ought to be established for a prompt settlement of the dispute. The government cannot fairly insist upon the invariable superiority of its own rights and then enjoy the usufruct of that claim while it delays an equitable determination of the case. But that is exactly what the government does.

The person who pays taxes under protest has means for adjudicating his claim, but no means for collecting a judgment except at the convenience of a dilatory congress which cannot be hurried and cannot be compelled to obey the courts. As a result, years may elapse between the time when a citizen is entitled to recover overpayments of taxes, and the time when congress says he may have his money. The fact that the supreme court has now fully confirmed the legal right of the government to be arbitrary and unfair, makes it all the more the duty of congress to provide a better system for taking care of such cases.

MR. FREAR KICKS UP THE DUST.

When Governor General Wood said that certain records kept in the Philippines indicate that the Independence party has paid members of congress for advocating their causes, he called attention to a situation that will bear investigation; and Representative Frear is not to be criticized for saying so. The question of Philippine independence is one that congress must finally decide, and if any members of that body are paid to use their influence pro or con, the fact should be known.

However, Mr. Frear goes beyond the real issue to raise a question about General Wood's campaign fund which attracted so much attention in 1920, and he launches into an extended attack upon the general saying that if any congressman took a few thousands of Filipino money, he would still be a mere piker when compared with Wood who had a million or more in his fund.

Congress cannot clear its own skirts by throwing mud at somebody else, nor can it shed any light on a charge that some of its members have been improperly influenced, by showing that General Wood spent any sum of money, however large, in 1920 for the purpose of conducting a nomination campaign.

What it can do by pursuing that court, will be to cloud an issue and substitute a political row in the place of what ought to be a judicial investigation. At the same time, it can add to the general discredit into which congressional investigations have fallen, because of their futile waste of money.

AN ITALIAN OPINION.

Edward G. Lowry, who writes interesting letters about European affairs for the Philadelphia Public Ledger, has been digging around in the minds of Italians to get their views of the American immigration law. Restrictions put upon immigration have greatly interfered with Italy's habits and ways of looking at things. The problem of surplus population in that country was taken care of in order days by the American open door. Italian finances were greatly helped by the stream of American gold that was sent back home by immigrants from Italy. Many Italians figured confidently on spending a leisurely old age in their own land upon money earned in the United States. Now the door of the treasure house is slammed in their faces and the disappointed ones take this reversal of fortune as a deprivation of right. They regard the American immigration law as an affront and an outrage, and cannot see that the action which this country has taken is largely an outcome of their own attitude as to what immigration should be.

Nevertheless it is true that just as long as that continues to be the feeling of any considerable number of Italians or any other class of Europeans, just so long the immigration law ought to stand.

"You have all seen your mothers begging for money from your fathers to buy anything that they want from a safety pin to a gown," remarked Senator Ferris warningly to a bunch of girl graduates. Well, maybe so. But it is just as probable that some of them have seen their fathers trying to persuade mother to let the mhold back a "quarter" or a "half" from the weekly pay envelope. However, we do agree with the senator that every wife ought to be in a position to support her husband.

Most of the Republican organization and senate opposition to the policies of the president is obviously the result of political jealousy rather than the result of jealousy for the good of the country.

Upon learning that the people of the United States ate 161,000,000 gallons of ice cream last year, the Europeans will no longer wonder why America throws it the frozen glance.

Dudley Field Malone's expectation that the women will elect him president, indicates that he is suffering from an hallucination of optimism.

We presume both the dries and the wets will admit that the principal result of the dry enactment has been moonshine.

Think of Oil in Terms of 1923

IN considering the oil business as it is today, we must think in terms of 1923 and not in terms of 1913—which was before such unheard of impetus had been given to the automotive industry.

In 1913 there were but 1,287,000 motor vehicles registered in the United States, while the year ending December 31, 1922, saw a total registration of 12,239,114—an increase of 900%.

The magnitude of the oil business is so vast that no man can visualize it clearly. It is difficult to picture the needs of 12 1/4 million automobiles, to say nothing of the vast gallonage needed to supply tractors, stationary gas engines, and the demand for gasoline coming from the arts and industries generally.

The problem of supplying 12 1/4 million cars is quite different from the problem confronting the industry a decade ago when but 1 1/4 million cars were in commission.

The adaptation to a changing situation meant the making over of the petroleum industry.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has retained its leadership by expanding its facilities both in the manufacture and distribution rapidly enough to meet the insistent demand for greater service.

During the past ten years the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has grown as the need for its products and service has grown. This ever-increasing demand for petroleum products has made it necessary for the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to expand its facilities to an extraordinary degree. Yet, with its multiplied facilities, the Company finds that all its energies are absorbed in meeting the demand for its products from 30 million people in the ten Middle Western States it serves.

While proud of the service it has rendered in the past, the Standard Oil Company today is thinking in terms of 1923 and the years to come.

LAND CLEARING SCHOOLS TO OPEN HERE TODAY

Demonstration Plans Are Now Complete and Farmers Show Deep Interest.

Today will begin a series of land clearing operations and demonstrations in this county, according to plans made some time ago by County Agricultural Agent Joseph Turner.

Demonstration crews employed by the Michigan Agricultural College will come to Delta county today for the initial demonstration at Isabella. The remainder of the schedule for the first demonstration series follows: Osgonz, June 2; Stonington, June 4; Oster, June 6, and Maple Ridge, June 7.

Travel in Two Sections.
Land clearing demonstration crews sent out by the agricultural college for work in the peninsula are traveling this year in two sections, and following the first five schools another crew will arrive in this county from the south, probably about June 19 and the series of ten schools, originally planned, will be completed at that time.

Land clearing demonstrations arranged in this county a year ago attracted a great amount of interest and because of the practical information disseminated at that time, Mr. Turner is enthusiastic in the belief that the demonstrations of this year will attract even greater crowds of farmers than last year.

The possibilities of land development and improvement through ditch blasting, and the economic method for accomplishing this work are outlined in a letter, recently received by the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, from T. R. Shane, county agent at Manistique.

Mr. Shane describes the results accomplished on one of the farms in Schoolcraft county.

Particular emphasis is placed upon this feature because of the fact that Mr. Shane has compiled figures relative to the cost of the ditch digging by dynamite.

The experiment was carried out on the farm of Robert Arrowood, and the actual blasting was witnessed by over three hundred residents of Schoolcraft county. The ditch blasted at the time measured approximately sixty rods. Mr. Shane writes that it cost approximately 86 cents per rod to blast.

Actual Costs.

S. B. WILLIAMS TO OPEN PENNEY STORE IN WEST VIRGINIA

Assistant Manager of Local Store Becomes Manager in Martinsburg, West Virginia.

S. B. Williams, for the past four years assistant manager of the J. C. Penney Store in this city, received information from the company this morning that he had been selected as the manager for the new store which is to be opened in Martinsburg, W. Va. In conformity with the J. C. Penney plan of expansion, Mr. Williams becomes a third owner in the new enterprise and his promotion comes as a fitting recognition of his thorough merchandising ability.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams have made many warm and abiding friendships during their residence in this city and friends will learn with deep pleasure of this step which starts Mr. Williams on the road to greater success than he has achieved heretofore.

The new location is one of about 100 new stores which the J. C. Penney Company is opening this year. Mr. Williams expects to leave about July 1st and will carry with him the best wishes of many friends in this city. The territory into which he is going is not unfamiliar to him, as he comes from Norfolk, Va., and is familiar with the customs and characteristics of the trade in that portion of the south.

Demand for Facts.
The above information is given in response to various inquiries reaching the office of both the Michigan Agricultural College Extension workers, and the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau officials, since the land clearing by explosives has been encouraged in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

Arrangements are already under way for the land clearing schools to be held throughout the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, this year. Larry F. Livingston, land clearing expert for Michigan, is now completing the organization of two motorized land clearing tractors, which will operate through upper Michigan. The peninsula has been divided into two distinct territories for this purpose—eastern and western. The schools will be under the direct supervision of George Amundson and A. J. McAdams, both of the Michigan Agricultural College Extension Department.

SCHULTZ SLATED TO HURL HERE SUNDAY IN MARQUETTE TILT

Many Old Time Faces Will Be Seen On Visiting Team's Initial Appearance Here This Year.

When Marquette's crack baseball organization hits Escanaba Sunday, it of course, will be with an ardent hope, if not confident expectation of tucking the local scalp in the old belt, but Marquette is going to find a very pleasant surprise, it is indicated. Escanaba has been unbeaten this season. With quite a bunch of new, and local material, it has been winning its games against all comers and the team is showing improvement each week.

So local fans are looking forward with eagerness to Sunday's fray. Schultz, who pitched a fine game with Iron Mountain here last Sunday, is slated to do mound duty for the visitors. The Norw. Ind. has the advantage of that experience to guide him in his battle next Sunday and if given the sort of support he has a right to expect, he hopes to make it much more interesting for the locals than the Iron Mountain crew did.

Marquette always has had a fine team. Many of the old timers are with the club again this year. In addition to Schultz, in the pitching department, they have the redoubtable Painter Harris and the "Hon. Snapp. Snuck, both of whom are of proven reliability, speed and cunningness. Richardson will be behind the bat, with Cameron holding down the initial station and Doc Emberton on third.

Manager Perrin has not announced his choice of pitchers for the Sunday contest. He is relying on the old hand and when the time comes will send in the man best conditioned to do the job. Moberg has been going in great shape so far this season and there is every reason for local fans to keep their faith pinned to the home team for a victory here Sunday, although Perrin admits that he expects the hottest tilt of the season up to this time.

One Small Boy Travels Over Sea To Join Mother

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, June 1.—When the Maurentina docked a little boy in a French sailor suit, with tar on his breast, stood peering over the rail. He had come all the way from France alone, and his journey is only half completed for he is going to his mother, Mrs. Joseph Gilbert, of San Diego, Cal.

The youngster, Rene Ivanza, a son of Mrs. Gilbert by a former marriage—who speaks only French, was put aboard at Cherbourg by his grandfather. Everything has been provided for his care—except a mother. And Miss Anna Fitzmauld, of this city, accepted that responsibility for the voyage as soon as she saw the small, frightened human conviction settling out on a 6,000-mile trip alone.

President's Pipe His Chief Solace When Blows Fall

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, June 1.—President Harding, after reading assaults on his administration, sometimes lays down his newspaper and turns to a fresh pipe of tobacco for consolation, he says in a letter to Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi.

The letter was occasioned by an article written by Senator Harrison concerning the visit of the executive's father, Dr. George Harding, to New Orleans to attend the Confederate union.

In your capacity of chief party trouble maker in the senate you have said some things which have made me lay my newspaper down and turn to a fresh pipe of tobacco for consolation. This very general and considerate article has anticipated all the things that have gone before.

Have You Really Compared Values

Taking Quality As The Basis of Your Comparison?

THE vast number of people who have made such comparison here, compared what they have seen in stores in cities away from Escanaba with our Better Quality Goods...

Here prices are always marked in the first place at the very lowest figure for which Equal Quality can be sold consistently.

No merchant anywhere, in the regular course of events, underbuys The Fair Savings Bank. To the contrary—through our metropolitan connections, we are at all times able to pick up better kind of merchandise at prices that enables us, from time to time, to offer values that are absolutely unmatchable elsewhere.

Management of this store, have for own satisfaction, made a state-wide comparison, and have found, after a most exhaustive investigation, that nowhere else are we undersold. In cases where, to appearance, prices were lower, we found that in every instance the goods did not come up to the standard maintained by this store.

prices were invariably the lowest.

Prices at The Fair Savings Bank must withstand comparison, or else The Fair Savings Bank could not expect to maintain your confidence, and to merit your patronage, and without these our house would be built upon the sand. That it stands upon bedrock is proven by the fact that from the small insignificant start over 25 years ago, it has grown into the biggest institution in the north country.

Today, and always, we invite value comparison. It is our sincere belief that prices on staple lines of merchandise today are considerably lower than they will be at a later date, as market indication points to further advances in many lines.
