THE SHIP LIQUOR SEIZURES.

Considerable lobby comment regarding the seizure by the American government of liquors carried into New York harbor by British ships has been written on both sides of the Atlantic. And a good deal may be forgiven the newspapers in Great Britain even if they are condemning the United States for doing to ships carrying their flag what their government has done to a vessel carrying the German flag. What has happened at the port of New York must naturally be galling to a proud people, and the same attitude taken by Premier Baldwin marks him as a man of clear vision and poise.

But if there is excuse for the rise in temperature in some circles in Great Britain, there is none for the ridiculous attitude assumed by certain American newspapers. Those that are "slamming" Washington for the course it has steered, are either consciously dishonest for political sake, or they are willfully ignorant.

The government in Washington is not seizing liquor brought into territorial waters by foreign merchantmen because it enjoys the process. It is not doing so because it believes the action is wise or will accomplish any real good. The question of the melioration of the authorities is not involved. Quite conceivably they may think the whole business is unfortunate and even stupid. That however is not their affair. The federal officers have seized the liquor aboard certain British ships and are preparing to proceed along the same lines with regard to all other vessels that come to this country carrying intoxicant other than medical supplies, because as persons sworn to uphold the laws of the country, they have no choice in the matter.

Congress in its wisdom of wisdom put certain very far reaching provisions into the Volstead act. For a time there was some doubt about the real meaning of the one affecting the presence of sealed liquors aboard merchantmen entering ports of the United States, and the government interpreted the act liberally. Now, however, the supreme court has spoken, and has put a strict construction on the law. From this ruling there is no appeal. It stands as final, and the executive department has only one honest, law abiding course left open to it, the course it is taking. If President Harding were to ignore and undertake to nullify the supreme court ruling by non-enforcement, he would be justly open to impeachment charges. He should not be blamed for what he is doing. If there is place for censure, it ought to be directed toward congress, which passed the provision that is causing all the trouble.

There is another objection which points to the wisdom of the government's action. It is that the government is confiscating property without compensation. This is true, but it is also true that the government is confiscating property which is being used for a purpose which is against the public interest.

NO GREAT LOSS.

As an aftermath of the anti-suffrage campaign, a question has been raised as to whether the senators-elect to accept diploma after Dr. M. L. ... sacrificed anything. A balance of events seem to show that on the whole they were not.

What they gave up was a square of parchment on which was recorded the fact that they had completed certain amount of study and were entitled to a degree which they could, if they chose, attach to their names. They also declined to take part in ceremonies which would have made a pleasant culmination of their academic careers, and it is not unlikely that they suffered more or less at the thought that they had, perhaps, disappointed their fond parents. That seems to sum up the sacrifices.

They did not give up anything that they had learned or any discipline incident to their work. If they cannot appeal at A. B. to their names that is no great loss, since few of them would have done so if they had acquired the right; but they can say to themselves and on proper occasions to others, that such sacrifices as they made were in defense of a principle that they believed too important and right.

TREASURE IN THE ROOF.

The owner and occupant of an old house in Berea, Ohio, was troubled by a leaky roof. He had been troubled by it for quite a while. He felt about that roof like the man in the story who explained that when it wasn't raining, he couldn't see it. But finally this owner made up his mind to do a little patching.

When he got to work and tore off a few loose shingles he observed, tucked away between two rafters, a package of green stuff wrapped in a frayed piece of paper. It consisted of perfectly good greenbacks to the amount of $2,000.

That roof is now getting very thoroughly repaired, and it is safe to say that as this highly moral story spreads about, some of other leaky roofs likewise will be overhauled. You never can tell where some idiot may have hid his money.

A member of the Mexican congress who shot a man recently was not arrested because of parliamentary immunity. If that rule works both ways so one who shoots a congressman now and then gets off it is all fair enough.

We still insist that a young person who deliberately chooses to go to summer school after an all winter grind is either posing or else intellectually over-beamed.

One of the courses offered in Detroit summer schools is swimming. That is a subject all of the boys will wish to specialize in.

Gasoline Flow Blocked... The quartette of officers many times in practice had succeeded in getting the pipe from one plane to another but never before had the gasoline been sent from one plane to another, the precious fluid, of which a few drops scattered over the hot exhaust pipes would have spelled disaster for at least one of the ships.

Overcome Difficulties... Preliminary training in previous tests developed one fault that was remedied quickly. That was the inability of the racing plane pilots to haul the hose back into the fuselage.

OBITUARY

MRS. ELIZABETH DOUCETTE KANE

A telegram received in the city yesterday announced the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Doucette Kane at Ebergreen, Colo., Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Death was caused from complications which set in after she had suffered from an attack of influenza three years ago while she made her home in Chicago. After a few weeks' illness Mr. Kane took her to Denver, Colo., in the hopes that her health would be benefited. Later he took her up into the mountains and under the care of a trained nurse and her sister, Mrs. Estelle Lambie of Chicago, who spent the winter with her. All that science could do to save her life was tried, but was of no avail. She is survived by her husband, Frank Kane, her mother, Mrs. Jane Doucette, of this city; two sisters, Mrs. Estelle Lambie of Chicago; and P. L. Sullivan, of this city, and four brothers, Wm. Doucette, of this city; Walter Doucette, of Chicago; Robert and Arthur Doucette, of this city; Walter and William Doucette and Mrs. Lambie will come to this city for the funeral. The body will be shipped to this city and will arrive either Sunday evening or Monday morning. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Mr. Kane was well known in this city, having been reared here and attended the local schools. She left Escanaba about 15 years ago, going to Chicago where she met Mr. Kane and was married. Her many friends in this city will be shocked to hear of her death. The body will be taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Sullivan, 215 South Sixteenth street, on its arrival here.

Funeral home and redecorated Grand opening Sunday, July 1st.
