Harriman Electric Co. Receives Warm Letter of Approval.

The Harriman Electric Co. has received the following from The Electric Storage Battery Co., manufacturers of the Exide Battery, regarding the new Marshall Potential charging set, recently installed:

"The Harriman Electric Co., Escanaba, Mich.

"Gentlemen: We understand, from your letter of the 4th, that you are installing a Marshall Constant Potential charging set and would like our endorsement of the system as a whole so that you can combat the propaganda which someone is spreading around to the effect that charging at such high rates will damage plates.

"We are certainly glad to hear that you are putting in the constant voltage system and believe that your experience will be the same as that of others we have heard of and that after it has been used and you are familiar with it you will not want to go back to the other scheme.

"It is true that, in the past, SLI batteries have been charged at constant rates but this does not mean that constant rates were necessary or the best. The practice was a survival of the early days when ignition batteries were charged at constant rates at it was the most convenient scheme for charging a few batteries such as a station would have to handle.

"For the past ten years we have been advocating tapering rates of charge for the more expensive power work, that is, for mining locomotives, commercial trucks, industrial trucks, etc., where the batteries charge and discharge daily and usually to the full capacity. Using the tapering system of charging, we have batteries that start the charge as high as 125 amperes and taper to 13 amperes twice a day. The fact that these batteries give normal life and good service shows that they are not injured.

"We would certainly not advocate the use of the tapering system of charging, or what we know technically as the Modified Constant Voltage System, on batteries costing thousands of dollars if the batteries were damaged by the use of this system, as our reputation would be at stake.

"We are enclosing a copy of our bulletin on Modified Constant Voltage Charging as applied to motive power batteries and also copies of operating service bulletin applying to SLI Constant Voltage Charging, as you request.

"Yours very truly,
"OPERATING DEPT.,
"W. M. BECK, Engineer."

GUARD CHILDREN
AGAINST DIPHTHERIA

LANSING, Oct. 8.—"All children must be closely watched this fall."
Thus spoke Dr. R. M. Olin, state health commissioner, when asked about the menacing condition of diphtheria throughout Michigan. "Much light diphtheria and diverse throat troubles are about and a doctor ought to be called immediately, should a child manifest suspicious symptoms. Young sters are often easy victims of diphtheria and the utmost care must be exercised in their care."

Mothers in particular are warned to be on the lookout for sickness. The high incidence of diphtheria among children is noted in the "first year in school" class. But diphtheria death rates run highest among the "at home" group, particularly those under 5 years of age. Of this group, 70 per cent of those afflicted with diphtheria die of the disease.

Diphtheria conditions, so threatening during the summer, remain unchanged. This token of "at least no more ground lost" might appear as an encouraging sign but the presence of so many potential carriers of the disease indicate diphtheria as a black cloud on the health horizon. Conditions incident to the concentration of children in school are being watched with apprehension by the Michigan Department of Health. This will assume graver proportions when the cold weather sets in and the school room windows will have to be closed.
Holland already reports an epidemic started in the schools and a rash order for swabs has been complied with by the state laboratories.

TRYING TO MAKE HONESTY AUTOMATIC.

Machinery wages incessant war against the crook? Which wins?

An ingenious machine has recently been invented to make it impossible for a receiving teller to "frisk" the depositor's money. He enters all deposits in cash books with a machine that at the same time prints the amount both on the pass-book and on a ribbon of paper that is enclosed in a locked box. At the end of the day this tape is taken from the box, and every entry thereon, originally a credit to the depositor, now becomes a debit to the teller and an automatic check of his work.

The contest between the safe-maker and the safe-breaker goes merrily on. It is closely parallel to that between the builder of battleships and the inventor of explosives. Both are tests of the defensive strength of steel. At the moment the gun-maker is victorious. Just now the safe-breaker has the advantage. The acetylene torch, reinforced by oxygen, can not cut a window in any safe that has been made, it literally consumes the steel.

Since ninety-five per cent of all financial transactions are carried on by the use of checks, unusual ingenuity has been employed on mechanical check-protection. Reliance has been put in special papers and in paper-perforating machines. These precautions would be sufficient if they could be kept in legitimate hands. But no paper has ever been devised that cannot be purchased or imitated by a crook and any check-protecting machine can be bought by anyone who finds it worth while to own one.

On the whole, machinery cannot be depended upon to make the world honest. The most it can do is to set more difficult problems for the clever crook. By insurance of various kinds we may recover the losses that come through theft and deceit. —National Honesty Bureau.

FIGHT THIS SACRIFICE.

Did you know that every minute of the year we pay out $1,000 for fire losses, and that one human life is consumed by flames every half hour? A thousand dollars a minute—two lives an hour—a terrible toll, and a needless one.

It has been estimated that 1,500 fires break out in the United States every twenty-four hours. Every one of these fires is caused by some improper condition, usually one which is the result of negligence, and which can be removed with little or no difficulty.

Anyone who allows rubbish to accumulate in or near a building is just as negligent as he who carelessly tosses his glowing match into the pile. Electric irons and other appliances, when left turned on, cause many fires. The use of wooden boxes for ashes is like sending an invitation to the nearest fire station. Metal containers for matches and oil mops and dust cloths will prevent many fires. Eighty-five per cent of all fires are preventable—that is, are the result of downright carelessness. Every owner can help cut down this waste by removing these causes around his property.

The exclusive use of fire-safe structures would cut our fire loss to but a fraction of its present figure. And when confronted by the fact that fire-safe construction such as concrete in various forms as well as other types costs but three to five per cent more than inflammable construction, no building owner can justify himself in risking a contribution to our already tremendous fire loss, to say nothing of our sacrifice of human lives.

A GUIDE FOR NEWSPAPER MEN.

An insight into our late president's character will be gained by reading his instructions to reporters and writers on the Marion Star. They are as follows:

Remember there are two sides to every question. Get them both.

Be truthful. Get the facts. Mistakes are inevitable, but strive for accuracy. I would rather have one story exactly right than a hundred half wrong. Be decent, be fair, be generous.

Boost—don't knock. There's good in everybody. Bring out the good and never needlessly hurt the feeling of anybody.

In reporting a political gathering give the facts, tell the story as it is, not as you would like to have it. Treat all parties alike. If there is any politics to be played, we will play it in our editorial columns. Treat all religious matters reverently.

If it can possibly be avoided, never bring ignominy to an innocent man or child in telling of the misdeeds or misfortunes of a relative.

Don't wait to be asked, but do it without the asking, and above all be clean and never let a dirty word or suggestive story get into type. I want this paper so conducted that it can go into any home without destroying the innocence of any child.

If, as a scientist has recently reiterated, the human race ultimately disappears from the face of the earth, the world will probably enjoy unwanted peace and quiet.

Billy Sunday says he is in favor of Bryan for president and the next thing, one may suppose, would be an anti-evolutionist biological survey.

ADMITS TURNING IN FALSE ALARM

Act Caused Girl's Death; Is Sentenced to Prison.

IRON MOUNTAIN—John Giacobina has told the truth about the fateful night when the car he was driving crashed into the rear end of the No. 1 fire truck, resulting in fatal injuries to Miss Mary Blojo, who was a victim of his carelessness.

He not only confessed his guilt of the accident, but also admitted to Judge Richard C. Flannigan that he turned in the false alarm that sent the fire truck racing to the corner of G street and Stephenson avenue. Retracting his denial that he was responsible for the alarm and as a member of the fire department had followed the truck to assist the firemen in case of an emergency, Giacobina stood before the court as a man who, because of his willingness to originally plead to a charge of negligent homicide, narrowly averted facing trial for a more serious offense, that of manslaughter.

And a few days hence Giacobina will be known only by a number for he was sentenced to serve from one to five years in the state reformatory at Ionia with a recommendation by the court that the term be limited to one year.

Giacobina stood mute as Judge Flannigan reviewed the case, deduced to be one of the most unusual because of its circumstances in the history of the court. The young man was given every opportunity to change his three given plea of guilty to that of not guilty. Brought into court at the opening of the term, he pleaded guilty to negligent homicide. As he was without counsel, the court instructed him to consult a lawyer and return later. On his second appearance he repeated the plea. Still another chance was given him when he was arraigned for sentence. At that time he presented a note to Judge Flannigan in which he stated he did not turn in the false alarm and followed the fire truck because he was a member of the department. Action on his case was then deferred one day, with the result that Giacobina confessed.

ESCAPES TOLD BY NAVY MEN

Destroyer Commanders Relate How They Saved Their Ships.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 6.—The destroyer squadron No. 11 was headed straight for Point Arguello, when it changed its course to the eastward and rode into the rocks of Honda, Cal., September 8, according to Lieutenant Commander Thomas A. Symington, captain of the U. S. S. Thompson, last in the column, when the squadron's flagship struck.

When he saw ships ahead of him turning east about 5 p. m., the witness said, 10 minutes before his dead reckoning showed he was abreast of Point Arguello, and when the change of course was followed by a confusion of lights and whistling sirens, he decided not to make the turn and instead slowed down to take soundings.

These soundings, he said, showed the Thompson was in 10 fathoms of water, so he turned out to sea.

Lieutenant Commander Calvin H. Cobb, the next witness, said that his ship, the Percival, received no radio bearings in the hours preceding the disaster.

He took the eastward turn signalled by the Delphy, he testified, but when he saw confusion among the ships ahead, he sheered out of column and manned a searchlight. The beam fell upon the U. S. S. Young just as she capsized, he said. He immediately reversed his engines, and backed out of danger.

JEWELRY THIEVES GET $17,000 LOOT

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—Jewelry valued at $17,000 were taken by thugs who Friday held up M. C. Levee, president of the United Film studios, and a party of three guests as they were returning home from the opening of the fashionable Biltmore hotel, according to police reports.

STANDARDIZED WOOL IN SIGHT

United States and Britain Reach Agreement Upon Uniformity.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Successful negotiations have been concluded between American and British governmental and commercial interests in the first step of a movement for the establishment of uniform wool standards, which will be applicable in trading throughout the world, similar to the universal cotton standards recently adopted, the department of agriculture has announced.

Conferences were held recently at Bradford, England, between a delegation of Americans sent there under auspices of the department of agriculture and representatives of the British government and British wool industry. The conference endorsed the general idea of universal standards and pledged co-operation toward their establishment.

A set of sample grades, representing the ideas of the British trade, was agreed upon to be used as basis of research work. Several sets of grades based on samples approved by the British wool authorities are to be prepared, after which a conference of American government and wool industry representatives will be called to pass upon them. They then will be distributed among the British wool interests for their approval before final adoption.

In the negotiations, George T. Wilbur represented the department of agriculture; P. H. Bates, of the department of commerce, and Marland Hobbs, the research and standardization committee appointed by American manufacturers and spinners' associations. Captain J. E. J. Brady represented the British department of industries and manufactures.

LOT OF PRESIDENT HAS AMELIORATED SINCE OLDEN TIMES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Modern presidents may have a large amount of routine work devolving upon them, but there are some details, attended to regularly by their early predecessors, that are hardly considered important enough nowadays to refer to the White House.

Among these, according to Charles Kohlen, Washington philatelist and document collector, was the trifling detail of signing ship's clearance papers. Amon a number of ancient documents Mr. Kohlen recently picked up were two such clearances for small vessels, one signed "G. Washington," the other bearing the large, scrawly signature of John Adams.

The paper signed by Washington in September 1794 attested to the fact that the 82-ton schooner "Eliza" of New York was owned by citizens of the new nation and was duly allowed to set sail for the West Indies with a cargo of flour, hoops, onions, staves, shingles and scallings. The form was made out in English, French and Dutch.

The document signed by President Adams bore also as a countersign the signature of Timothy Pickering, secretary of state; was dated August, 1795; showed the proper nationality of the small sloop "Endeavour," and gave leave to depart from Portland, Maine, to Demerarra, with a cargo of boards, oars, butter, fish, flour, tar, pitch and beef.

The most interesting section of these clearance papers was an attest at the bottom of the sheet praying that "Most Serene, Serene, Most Pleasant, Puiasant, High, Illustrious, Noble, Honorable, Venerable, Wise and Prudent, Lords, Emperors, Kings, Republics, Princes, Dukes, Earls, Barons, Schepens, Judges, Councillors" and a long list of other officers "of all the good cities and places who shall see these presents or hear them read" to recognize the American registry.

Mr. Kohlen has also a number of envelopes showing the difference in postal rates and speed of service since the early days of the post office. One contained a letter signed by James Madison as secretary of state, in 1804, to James Sheafe of Portsmouth, N. H., and bore a stamp showing the fee for the trip to have been ten cents. Another carried a letter from the recent Amundsen polar expedition, addressed to President Harding, which was sent by airplane mail to Nome, Alaska, and thence across the continent to Washington for 12 cents, including registration fee.

Another interesting document in this collection is one relating to the history of the famous Lord Fairfax, who was granted large estates in Virginia by the King of England during early colonial history. Lord Thomas prayed the sheriff of London County, which adjoined his estates, to take into custody Ann Seward who was charged with trespassing upon the Fairfax estate in 1763. According to the yellowed, torn manuscript, the said Ann had wrought damages estimated at 250 pounds, for which the said Lord Thomas required payment.

Gov. Groesbeck Turns to Work of Engineers

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 8.—Governor Groesbeck, a lawyer by profession, has turned highway engineer.

Since the state administrative board took over the general supervision of highway work, and the state went into the road building business with prison labor, the governor has given his personal attention to the state projects. He has been particularly interested in the Dixie Highway in Genesee county. The original unsatisfactory pavement there, it is claimed, was the result of poor workmanship.

The governor, to make sure the state built highway will meet all specifications, went diligently into the subject of road surfacing and construction.

As a result his cross examinations are feared by engineers and contractors who appear before the state administrative board. He frequently interrupts discussions of involved technical matters to tell how it can be done another way; he talks glibly of surface preparation, proper cement mixtures, reinforcing strengths, drainage and bridge constructions. He has bewildered many local highway commissioners by leading them back and forth through the category of road building details.

The Pennsylvania railroad, employing tens of thousands of men in practically all lines of work, ordered that rehabilitated veterans of the World war hereafter be given preference.

THE RUSSIAN CATHEDRAL QUARTET

The great, marvelous richness of the songs of Russia—songs until recently little known to America—is poured forth in wonderful fullness by the Russian Cathedral Quartet.

This splendid group of singers has achieved singular prominence both in Russia and in this country as well. Through the personal interest of the late Czar Nicholas of Russia, they became a part of one of Russia's greatest cathedral choirs. Later in America they scored remarkable successes with the St. Nicholas Russian Cathedral Choir in New York City, and also as the singing gypsies in the spectacular production of Tolstoy's "Redemption."

In their programs—unique, magnificent, and at times of a childlike simplicity—are Russian chants, folksongs and operatic selections sung in Russian; while favorite English and American numbers are rendered in English.

Enhancing the beauty of the program are the choir's vibrant and quaint peasant costumes worn by the members of the quartet. The Russian Cathedral Quartet is being offered to Lyceum audiences at a time when Russian music is enjoying great popularity in the music centers of the country.

JOINT COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC HEALTH AT MEETING TODAY

Second Year of the Activities of Committee Starts With Good Record.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 8.—Members of the Joint Committee on Public Health are meeting here today to consider the program of service to Michigan for the coming year. The meeting starts the second year on the committee's existence.

A year ago the Michigan Committee on Public Health entered an untried field, according to W. D. Henderson, head of the Extension division of the University of Michigan, and active director of the work of the committee in the field. No other state has a similar organization, as far as he can learn, and many health organizations of other states are watching the movement in Michigan because of the possibility that it may point out a way to get health information to the people at large.

The function of the joint committee, to quote from its official statement, "is to present to the public the fundamental facts of modern scientific medicine for the purpose of building up sound public opinion relative to the questions of public and private health. It is concerned in bringing the truth to the people, not in supporting or attacking any school, sect or theory of medical practice."

The committee as formed at the invitation of the Michigan State Medical Society, includes representatives of that organization, of medical, health and extension departments of the University, the Michigan Department of Public Health, the Detroit College of Medicine and Surgery, and the Michigan Dental Society.

In the first week of the work of the committee 71 of the 106 members of the staff delivered 196 lectures in the state. These lectures reached 26,000 people and were delivered in towns as far north as Ironwood in the Upper Peninsula, Adrian on the south, Benton Harbor and Grand Haven on the west, and Mt. Clemens and Port Huron on the east.

Audiences addressed included public meetings of many sorts, meetings of Grange organizations, farm bureaus, educational associations and dinner clubs. Mr. Henderson says he expects the work of the coming year to reach a wider circle. The success of the plan was assured, Prof. Henderson said, when it was demonstrated that busy men would leave their work to be present when assigned. In but one or two instances, he declared, did the physician-lecturers fail to appear at the appointed place. Of the more than 100 medical men and women listed on the staff of speakers for the committee, most of them are capable of discussing two or three subjects, while others have a wider range, making it possible to present more than 300 different subjects as called upon. The subjects vary from methods for prevention of insanity and nervous conditions, through community health problems, prevention of contagious diseases, to child and parental care.

The committee meeting today has a membership as follows, representing State Medical Society:

Doctors W. T. Dode, Big Rapids; J. B. Jackson, Kalamazoo; F. C. Warnshuis, Grand Rapids; R. D. Harrison, Detroit; and A. B. Biddle, Detroit. These appointments were made at the meeting of the society at Grand Rapids Sept. 11 last.

Representing the University of Michigan:

Marion L. Burton, president, and Doctors Hugh Cabot, dean of the Medical school; G. Carl Huber, professor of anatomy; John Sundwall, director of the Division of Hygiene and Public Health, and W. D. Henderson, director of University Extension Division.

Representing Michigan Department of Health:

R. M. Olin, M. D., commissioner of Health, Lansing.

Representing Detroit College of Medicine and Surgery:

W. H. MacCracken, M. D., dean. Representing State Dental Society: Dr. James H. Taylor, Flint, president of the state society.

100 SAW SOLDIERS OFF; 2,000 SEE BOOTLEGGERS

SUPERIOR—Early on a July morning in 1917 the headquarters company, Sixth Wisconsin infantry, and the regimental band left this city to enter the World war. Less than 100 persons were at the railroad depot to bid the guardsmen farewell.

A group of bootleggers and moonshiners sentenced by Judge C. Z. Luse in federal district court to serve sentences at the Milwaukee house of correction left this city aboard a special Pullman car attached to the Chicago limited.

Fully 2,000 men, women and children were at the depot to bid the bootleggers good-bye.

Guy McIntosh, formerly meter expert with the city utilities, is now employed in Detroit with the Detroit Edison Company. He is in the meter department there and writes back that he likes the city and his work.

In fact he came to Escanaba to build the old wooden ware plant and had several other contracts in this vicinity.

IDENTIFIES PRISONER AS APPLETON ROBBER

FOND DU LAC—Oliver Jones, one of two brothers figuring in the slaying of Eino Jacobs, Soo Line detective, was Saturday partially identified as the man who held up and robbed the agent at the Northwestern depot at Appleton last Sunday morning.

Identification was made by Alexander Holt, depot agent from Appleton. Holt said that the hat, coat and voice of Oliver were identical with those of the man who entered the ticket office and ordered him to open the safe.

Holt declared that he could not swear as to the features of the man who held him up because the robber had a handkerchief over the lower part of his face.
