PRIVATE BANKS.

Rapid River people are wondering how much they are going to get back of the money they deposited in the Rapid River bank. When it was opened the promoter, Ostby, who lived in Iowa, showed the people how much financial responsibility was behind the bank. Probably at that time he told them the truth, but what Mr. Ostby was worth at that time and what he was going to be worth the next week or the next month, was a matter that neither he nor anyone else knew any thing about.

The Government for years has been striving to assure safe banking. Many experiments excluding private banks were tried and discarded prior to 1913; when the present national banking system was organized.

In 1913 this was greatly strengthened by the organization of the Federal Reserve System, composed of all National banks and such State banks as choose to comply with the requirements of membership. Very many State banks, however, are not members.

This Federal Reserve System is a mighty reservoir of credit, on which any member bank can draw, therefore the members of this system are in a very strong financial position.

No private bank can belong to this system. The two unfortunate experiences with private banks in this country are only a repetition of hundreds of similar experiences of which history tells us.

It has been pretty well established in this country that private banking is not safe banking and that any group of men who engage in the banking business and solicit deposits of neighbors and friends, should comply with the definite rules and regulations which long experience has proven necessary.

The fact that a private bank declares itself worth a certain sum may not be the truth the day following the statement.

National banks are under strict Government inspection and must comply with the United States Banking Law. State banks are under strict State inspection and must comply with the law.

There are plenty of both kinds in this country. Then why in the name of common sense should people take chances with private banks when the National and State banks are as near as your mail box.

LIQUOR IN PAST TENSE.

Some critics think it strange that the newest edition of an American encyclopedia should refer to the liquor business and its appearances in the past tense. Why not? It is gone.

It might appeal to some persons as curious that the editors of the publication should say in connection with the wine industry, "We had in the Eastern state and in California all the opportunities for success" or that "the whisky upon which the reputation of Kentucky so largely depended was that kind of liquor known as sour mash." But a second's thought shows that the book-maker was quite up to his job and was guided by accuracy in stating the case.

Just why some persons think that the "old days" will return is not clear. Certainly the sentiment on the question, if changing at all, has not changed sufficiently to warrant any hope that the decree of the constitution will be upset. For one thing the mechanics of the thing are too difficult and more appropriately there is not sufficient public opinion to get the mechanics into motion.

The real question is not modification of prohibition or its repeal, but its enforcement. There is a growing conviction that the job is not mountaintop at all if real sincere judges, prosecutors and investigators are on the job. The attack will not be on prohibition. It will be on those charged with its enforcement.

They are taking new styles from a tomb 3400 years old in Egypt because they know the women have nothing left from that date.

Man never realizes how frail and mortal he is until he comes home and finds everything in the throes of spring housecleaning.

Add agricultural statistics. America produces more "Don't's" to the acre than any other country in the world.

JENNINGS LIES, SAYS WITNESS

Ludendorf Found Not Guilty of Treason

MUNICH LIKE AN ARMY CAMP AS CASE IS OPENED

Hetler and Others Get Prison Sentences and Are Also Fined.

Precations Taken by the Government to Avoid Demonstrations That Were Threatened.

MUNICH, Bavaria, April 1.—General Ludendorf, former field marshal, was acquitted today on the charge of treason for his part in the unsuccessful revolt here last November. Adolph Hetler and former Chief of Police Pöschner were convicted and sentenced to five years in prison and fined 200 gold marks. Dr. Weber and Col. Krischer, accused of being Hetler's aids, received light sentences.

Dr. Frisch, former president of the Munich district, Capt. Roehm, Lieutenant Henry Burnet, who is Ludendorf's stepson, and Lieutenant Brandecker and Lieutenant Wagner were sentenced to fifteen months in prison and fined 100 marks each.

The main streets of Munich and all the approaches to the court house presented a picture of an army camp. Field helmeted troops and heavy reinforcements of Bavarian police patrolled the streets to enforce an ordinance proclaimed last night which prohibited the gathering of mobs.

These precautions were taken to prevent hostile demonstrations by the followers of the men on trial. Hetler followers arranged to signal news of the verdict from the rooftops by "wig working," as the police authorities prohibited public posting of the verdict.

FUNERAL OF THE NEGAUNEE HERO WAS HELD TODAY

Burned Telephone Wires Prevented Sending in Alarm at Once.

Finally an Alarm Had to Be Sent in From Residence Near Hospital; Building Inspected.

Belief that the fire which late Sunday evening destroyed the Negaunee hospital and caused the death of two patients and an attendant, may have burned the telephone wires and made it impossible for either the nurse or attendant on duty to turn in an alarm from hospital telephones, was expressed by fire department officials yesterday.

According to the story told by Dr. J. H. Sheldon by Miss Ingeborg Peters, night nurse, who discovered the fire, both she and Axel Martinson, the attendant, who later lost his life in an attempt to save two patients, tried six times to communicate with the fire station, but were unable to get a response from the exchange. Miss Peters told the physician that she first tried the telephone near her desk on the second floor, and getting no response, made several unsuccessful attempts with one of two instruments on the main floor. Mean while Martinson rushed from the building to the home of Eugene Kthjer and asked Mrs. Ethier to call the fire station. The fact that no difficulty was experienced in getting the necessary connection on the Ethier telephone has led to the belief that the telephone line may have been burned. Miss Peters was removed to her home in Hespering yesterday morning in a nervous condition, brought about through excitement and exposure and could not be reached.

Smiling bravely, despite the harrowing circumstances surrounding her miraculous escape from the burning hospital, Miss Inge Peters, 19-year-old school girl, sole survivor of the fire, told her story to a reporter when the fire broke out related again the details of her escape.

Sprivner Aroused by Woman Victim. "I was awakened about 8:30, by Mrs. Sjohland," the girl began, "who told me she thought the building must be on fire. Seeing the clouds of smoke rolling into the room I got to my feet and walked unsteadily to the window overlooking the highway over the front entrance and tried to break the glass out with my fist. Being too weak to smash the glass with my hands I returned to the room and got a book which I had been reading that afternoon. With this I broke the glass out, climbed to the balcony and began to cry for help.

In a few moments, Mr. and Mrs. Sawbridge and Louis Miller appeared with a ladder. About this time Mr. Diebert, the fire chief, arrived, and while the others held the ladder, he climbed up and carried me down and into the Sackbridge home adjoining the hospital.

"I do not know how I ever got to the window. God must have given me strength, I guess."

Martinson Funeral. The funeral of the late Mr. Martinson was held this afternoon from the Swedish Mission church, of which Martinson was a member. Services were held in the church beginning at 2 o'clock, at the conclusion of which the body was escorted to the railroad station for shipment to Iron Mountain for burial.

Martinson was born in Negaunee September 25, 1861. He attended the grammar schools here until about five years ago, when he took service as an orderly in the Negaunee hospital. During the last five years he has continued his studies in the Negaunee high school on a part-time basis.

He was a member of the Swedish Mission church and an enthusiastic worker in all church activities. Surviving him are a mother, Mrs. Charles Larson, a stepfather, and three sisters, Irene, Edith and Edna, all of whom reside in Iron Mountain.

Stueck is alleged to have charged the woman with compelling him to write the letters. Mrs. Habel denies that she had any connection with the alleged conspiracy.

Sinclair Indictment Is Grounds for Vast Speculation.

The Case Will Reach Supreme Court in Time and a Legal Question of Rights Settled.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Resuming its inquiry into the story of an oil deal at the Chicago republican convention in 1920, the oil committee today was told by R. H. Wilson, former superintendent of public instruction in Oklahoma, of a boast by Jake Hamon, the oil operator who was serving as that state's republican national committee man, that he "had put over the nomination of Warren G. Harding." Hamon was quoted as saying he had given $25,000 to Harry M. Daugherty for the Harding campaign fund.

In the early days of the campaign Hamon had appeared favorable to the candidacy of Leonard Wood. Wilson said Hamon had made no reference in talks with him of naval oil lands or leases. J. D. Dyche, who identified himself as a prohibition agent with headquarters at Oklahoma City, followed Wilson to the witness chair.

The witness said he had acted as manager of Harding's campaign in 1920 for the election. "Nothing to it," he said when asked about Al Jennings' testimony that Hamon had told him he gave $250,000 to the late Senator Trefosse of Pennsylvania, $25,000 to Will H. Hays, $25,000 to Danaherty, to bring about the nomination of Harding.

Asked about Jennings' statement that Hamon had told him he spent money indiscriminately with the Oklahoma delegation, the witness replied: "If Jennings said that he lies." Continuing, he said: "There wasn't a dime spent." Dyche declared he was with Hamon in Chicago, went home with him and Hamon didn't even buy me a meal.

Asked about Wilson's testimony that Hamon had told him he had given Danaherty $25,000 for the Harding campaign expenses, Dyche said Wilson was a reputable gentleman, "I would believe Wilson's testimony that Hamon told him that he had spent that amount, but I would say that Hamon was 'kidding' him. Jake was a great 'kiddier,' particularly when he was talking to democrats."

The Sinclair Indictment.

With the indictment of Harry F. Sinclair, the oil magnate, for refusing to testify before the senate Teapot Dome investigating committee, an effort to determine through the courts how far a committee of congress may go in forcing facts from unwilling witnesses has begun.

The case in time will reach the supreme court and the decision of the highest tribunal on this question will be one of the most important ever handed down affecting the powers of congress. In recent years congress has become a great deal more than a law-making body. It has taken on the functions of a great judicial grand jury.

Congress has conducted such sweeping investigations as that of the steel strike in 1919; the veterans' bureau scandals, which have resulted in the indictment of Col. Charles R. Forbes, former director, and the oil and department of justice investigations, which resulted in the resignation of Secretary Denby and Attorney General Daugherty.

Never Questioned Before.

All of these investigations have been conducted on the technical ground that the committees of congress were collecting facts for the information of the senate, presumably to guide it in formulating legislation. Committees of the house and senate have conducted numberless investigations which led them into asking questions regarding the personal affairs of witnesses.

Until Sinclair appeared before the oil committee a week ago the authority of a congressional committee to compel testimony never had been questioned. Sinclair decided to make a test case and upon his refusal to answer nine questions put to him by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, this fact was certified to the senate and a resolution was adopted asking that he be held in contempt of the senate. The case was then laid before a grand jury and an indictment was handed down Monday. The indictment was returned before the grand jury.

FRENCH PREPARE FOR EARLY ELECTION; RADICALS TO MAKE PLAY TO GAIN CONTROL

Millerand Is Weary, It Is Said, of Responsibilities of Office.

Much Speculation in France as to What Policy Radicals Would Assume Towards Russia and Germany.

By JOHN DE GANIT

(United Press Staff Correspondent) PARIS, April 1. (United Press) The coming elections of French Deputies scheduled for the early part of May, unless the Government decides to advance them to April, will be a fight between the job of the party of the Left with the support of the Socialists and the party of the Right, who have been ousted by President Millerand in various speeches.

This was announced by Deputy Georges Mandel in the Chamber when he developed his interpretation on the general domestic policies of the Poincare government. Mandel did not go as far as predicting who would win, but having been and still being considered the right hand man, his views reflect the old French views on the subject and these are indications that the Government of the Right will play its part in the coming elections.

While the Left are trying to form a strong front, claiming the "Bloc National" and nothing else, the Radicals are a general mass, supporting governments whose policy sent the train way down and the crest of the Republic higher than it ever was during the year. Their opponents are going to do their best to show they are not to be held responsible, but that the radicals have done everything they could do to sabotage the Republic and create a favorable current among their partisans for the election of Millerand and Maby to power.

It is already known that ex-Minister Millerand will be a candidate; there is nothing to prevent him from running for deputy, since he served his exile for Courlaux, an amnesty would be necessary, but his friends say he would refuse it because that would be tantamount to admission he was guilty, while they insist he was not.

The radicals plan that if they win of the elections and a socialist government of the Left is formed, one of the first projects introduced in the new Chamber will be for the revision of the Cullaux trial, and possibly the acquittal of the ex-Premier, who would then soon become again a member of the French parliament before entering another cabinet.

Of course, this is speculation, but it is among the logical lines of the radicals. The "Bloc National" should be the "Bloc National" during the coming elections and bring the life of the French government to an end.

Regarding foreign and domestic policies, what would a French radical parliament and cabinet do? First, he developed his interpretation on the general domestic policies of the Poincare government. Mandel did not go as far as predicting who would win, but having been and still being considered the right hand man, his views reflect the old French views on the subject and these are indications that the Government of the Right will play its part in the coming elections.

While the Left are trying to form a strong front, claiming the "Bloc National" and nothing else, the Radicals are a general mass, supporting governments whose policy sent the train way down and the crest of the Republic higher than it ever was during the year. ARTICLE FOUR A "GOLDEN AGE" OF PROGRESS

ANS like to solve their own problems— not to have the answers worked out for them by some autocrat. The half-century of American national history has been founded in 1776. The people of the United States were widely scattered. Lacking adequate transportation facilities they could have little contact with each other. It was difficult for them to realize that their country was not as citizens of the United States, but as citizens of their future than were their local interests of the day.

Therefore, the first step with the problem of building a mental unity, there came that of establishing a physical union of the widely separated parts of the country. As we shall later see, this second purpose, which concerned so vitally with the solution of the first, was not a mere matter of convenience, but a matter of national interest of all the people.

This problem took the form of the first railroad in 1825 and continued through the problem of promoting progress and prosperity has been the product of the people; it was then and is today the "American Way".

The question was not one of building and running the railroads, nor what the American people of 1825 wanted was better than what they were quick to realize that the means were not. They were not concerned with the details, they were confident that American genius, if given freedom for the exercise of individual initiative and enterprise, would be able to surmount all difficulties.

The story of our railroads is short and thrilling with the romance of American life. It deals with the conquest, not of foreign foes, but defiant nature. It contains chapters of empire-building; chapters of engineering miracles, of patient, scientific research, of political intrigue, of financial juggling. Some of its chapters show human nature treading dark and devious paths; others are splendid with heroism and a light with prophetic vision. It is an expanding history, still continuing, with its most vital chapters yet to be written.

In this romance of railroading, the people shared in the early days, not as observers, but as participants. Everybody helped to build railroads because everybody wanted them. There was little tolerance of attempts to interfere, restrict, regulate or control. Ignorance and prejudice, as always, were on hand. But dominating the public mind, there was an acute sense of need, a realization of value and a splendid confidence that whatever obstacles stood in the way, individual initiative and enterprise, backed by public cooperation and enthusiasm, could remove them all.

In this typical "American Way" the public now devoted itself heart and soul to the problem of creating adequate railroad facilities and through to the great task a faith and a spirit of cooperation almost without parallel. When private resources proved unequal to the task of carrying a new line to completion, the people, through their national state of local government, preferred assistance.

Thus railroading prospered and it did so by bringing prosperity to all the people. Because of the public enthusiasm and cooperation, progress was so rapid that by the time the Civil War called a halt to construction, there had been built more than thirty thousand miles of railroad—an average of nearly one thousand miles for each year since

Charles Carroll turned the first spadeful of earth. Four years after the restoration of peace, there was completed the first band of steel across the United States. The trail of the covered wagon from the Mississippi to the Pacific had now become a railroad. The "more perfect union" dreamed of in 1776 and fought for in 1865 had in 1869, through the railroads, become a physical fact. At last there appeared to be in sight the complete solution of the "Railroad Problem"—that of providing an adequate system of transportation to draw into closer union and cooperation the people of the United States. Then, out of the old problem, there began to emerge certain new phases which, for more than half a century, were fated to divert the mind of the public from this main objective. HERE YOU ARE FOR A HARD JOB; WOMAN WRITES WITH FULL KNOWLEDGE OF DUTIES

This Is the First of a Series of "Hard Jobs" in the City.

The Housewife and Mother Is the One Who Works Long Hours; But It's Not so Bad.

Today The Mirror publishes one of the letters on the "hard job" in the city. This letter says the "hardest job" is that filled by the housewife and mother. It is quite true and when the content was announced by The Mirror, this "job" was not thought of. It is a job of some magnitude, however, and the letter is so good that we take great pleasure in featuring it.

Tomorrow The Mirror will publish another "hard job" story. It deals with working in a bank home and the writer declares in good faith that it is not the "hardest" job it is at least the "smelliest."

Here, folks, is what "A Mother" thinks is the "hardest" of all "hard jobs."

Editor of Daily Mirror:

Of all the people on Escanaba or elsewhere who have the hardest job I have in mind one class of people with whom every one is well acquainted. Not a mother or a father, no such formal professions and a teacher, with all their hard mental strain, but our city housewife. One of his council men, not our famous street commissioner, with his job of snow and ice to be kept from the sidewalk and the public, and the baker or any other occupation I can now recall.

Here is the description of what I consider a real job. Every day my eyes if you will not believe me, a woman. She does not believe probably not a day over thirty. She is attempting a little more, possibly a real one as she, when she has her carriage with an infant in it, more not able to walk, and two girls hanging on the side of the carriage. She is tired, overworked, and has a broken night's rest, and a hard morning, trying to prepare the noon day meal, washing and dressing the children, and doing her housework. Then, after the dinner work is over, she takes the child in and feeds, dresses, bath, dresses and feeds, she walks down the street. If any woman who has not had this job, she should borrow a little experience. Just try it. The poor mother lives at the store window and looks at the things in her heart, wondering why some of the pretty things she had for now for more than seven or eight years.

The children are getting tired and want everything that she then awakes the baby and it comes to a wall. She tries to get it to sleep, she catches a remark or two from her well groomed woman or two who are flapping, as to what they would do with such children.

She turns for home and when she arrives there she is in the same condition. Can you imagine a harder job than taking care of these four children and preparing the evening meal for her husband. After that day's work she has to wash, dress and do her housework. The poor woman gets the four children to sleep and her work done and she has to wait intervals at the baby's feet from its coming and Johnnie, Abbie, and Amelia are not well as they are too tired from the trip.

This I do in and day out and never a vacation. The teacher has vacations, the doctors, nurses and every other profession or trade all take a vacation.

Even the horses have vacations planned for them, but do you ever hear of a vacation being planned for a mother of four or five children. It is true they may take a trip some where but the children go along and mother is tired enough to come back very soon. Sunday this tired mother takes all the rest but overwork. If she is so ill she can't move, some one helps her and passes it to her mother. A small, thin, anxious, tired woman, who has no one to help her, and when the content was announced by The Mirror, this "job" was not thought of. It is a job of some magnitude, however, and the letter is so good that we take great pleasure in featuring it.

No more about it. She is forgotten. If some of our city council or big men of the nation did, the things are at half past, the papers are full of accounts of all their noble deeds. Their work has been done, but they of hard had the pleasure of knowing they were appreciated and they had many a happy hour in their home. They never would be so tired, so overworked, and so much as the ordinary housewife.

If anyone thinks this isn't a hard job, just let him try it. It is the hardest job I have heard of. I have never tried it.

Very truly,
A MOTHER.

Is Joan of Arc Living in Berlin?

BERLIN (By Mail to United Press) Joan of Arc still lives, and her soul is embodied in the person of a Berlin actress, according to Hans Kimm, poet, novelist and foreign actor.

General Kimm, although that he holds contempt for the angel Gaius. The angel, he told him, himself says that Joan of Arc has been an earnest about a dozen times since she died about two years ago.

He pointed out to Kimm a red cross emblem in the German capital still existing in the German capital. He said that he himself has the soul of the great heroine, and that she lives on in the person of a Berlin actress and those people living.

UNIQUE DISPLAY BEING ARRANGED AT NEEDHAM CO.

The other day this newspaper carried an article about one of the local electrical stores always being torn up with new changes in arrangement, and we said it was customary with electrical men to do this kind of stuff right along.

People passing the store of the Needham Electric company have been wondering what is going on there for the past day or two and some said that "Needham" who is running for reelection, was building his own living home, so he could control the voting.

Not wanting to be charged with anything like that, Mr. Needham explained this morning that he is building a "residence" in his store for the benefit of electrical fixtures.

The rooms are arranged along the east side of the store and are about four feet square each. They will be furnished as a living, living room, dining room, kitchen, bath, bedroom, and a toilet. Each will be as completely furnished as possible and will give the prospective purchaser a clear idea of just how fixtures will look in the rooms for which they are intended.

Of course, everything electrical will be included, such as a washing machine, range, vacuum, electric can opener, and even a radio set. It will be an interesting display when it is completed.

FOR SALE—An awning, 16 feet long. Will sell cheap. Call 729 or inquire at 4291 Ludington street, upstairs.

Famous 'Cutty Sark' Charge Loading at Camp Sherman Cost $2,100,000

LONDON (By mail to United Press) The world's most famous and fastest sailing ship, the "Cutty Sark," is now being fitted out anew in a British port. Built fifty-six years ago, in 1868, this wonderful vessel for many years held the foremost place amongst the "cracker-jacks" of the clipper ship era.

From 1874 until 1890 nothing else could compete with her time on her runs between Liverpool and Sydney, Australia. She once covered 263 knots, more than 100 miles, with in twenty-four hours, a speed while few modern steamers, excepting the Atlantic passenger greyhounds, can equal.

In a recent speech made by Mr. P. R. Wigton, Commissioner of the Traffic Bureau, Chamber of Commerce, Water town, North Dakota, before the Rotary Club of Water town, he said, among other things, as follows: 'Under the operation of this law (the Esch-Cummins) we have seen a great recovery and improvement in railroad transportation. In the matter of service the railroads are performing a performance heretofore unequalled, although the only fair test of this law has been in the year 1923. During the past year the railroads have handled the greatest volume of tonnage in their history and this in an expanding and semi-factory manner. There was practically no shortage of cars or equipment evident during the past heavy shipping season, a condition which has not existed since the war; there was no general embargoes at terminals due to congestion and inability to move freight, and there were no serious delays to shipments due to lack of proper functioning of the transportation machine, all of which means dollars in the pockets of shippers. For these reasons I place adequate transportation ahead of cost of transportation. To have our freight rates and passenger fares cut in half would help us little if the service were to be likewise curtailed and made uncertain and unreliable. Adequate transportation is adequate transportation at the lowest possible cost.' This statement by Mr. Wigton pertaining to the Transportation Act (commonly known as the Esch-Cummins Law) is so interesting that we are giving our patrons an opportunity to read it. M. N. Aubrey"

MENOMINEE PLANT SUFFERS A FIRE LOSS OF $20,000

Crawford Manufacturing Plant Burned Saturday Afternoon; Heavy Wind Helped Flames.

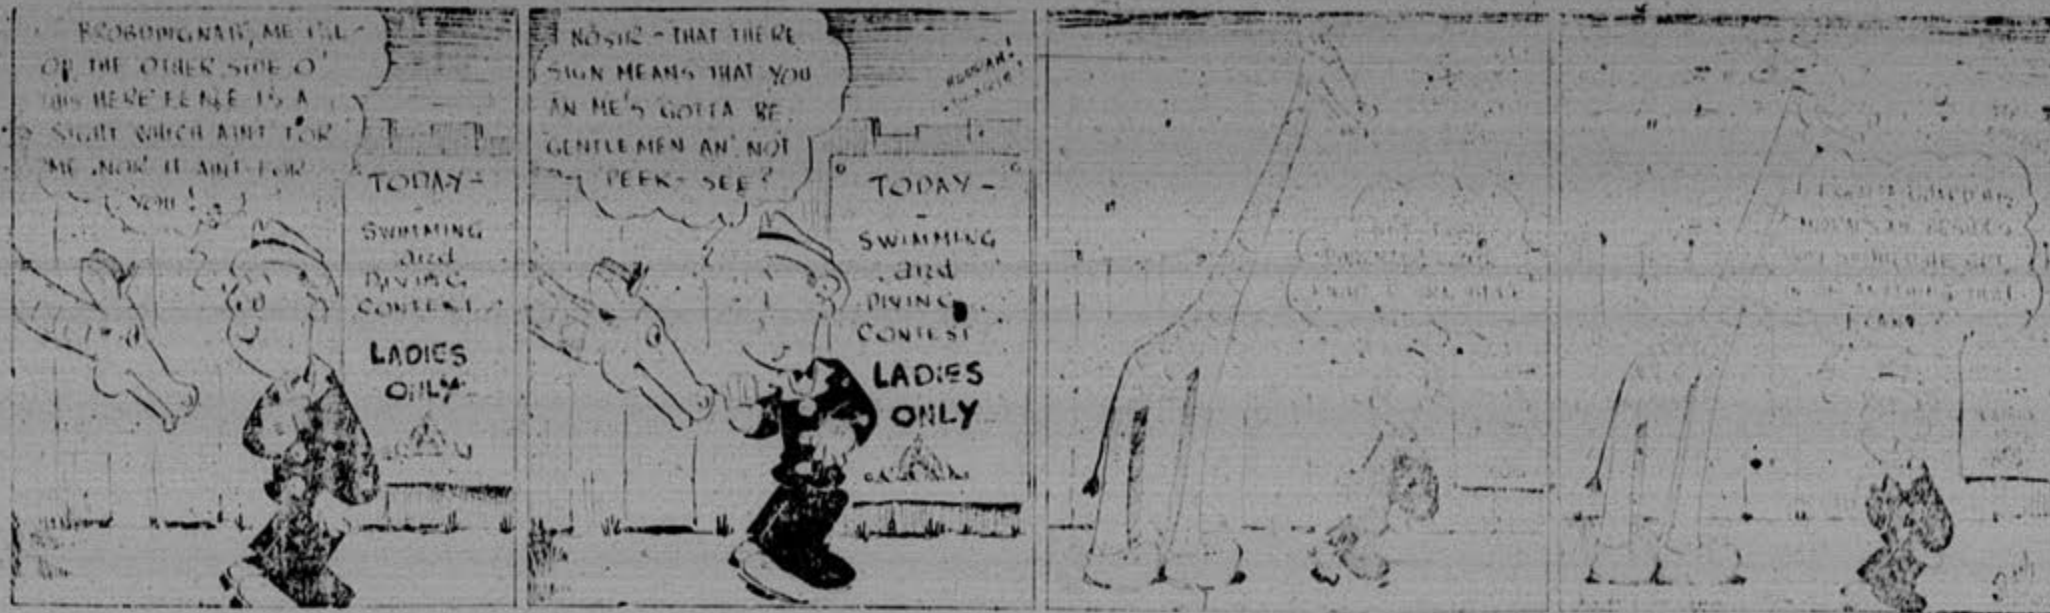

MENOMINEE, Mich. During the worst blizzard of the entire winter and with the wind coming out of the north-east at a 50-mile an hour rate, fire broke out at the Crawford Manufacturing plant on Martha avenue, Menominee, Saturday afternoon. It did more than $20,000 damage before being extinguished but the stream of water kept the blaze from endangering surrounding property.

Starts in Oiler Room. First alarm from the Crawford plant came in at 2:30 p. m. when a blaze started in the boiler room of the box factory. This was extinguished and all signs of fire had disappeared when the department returned to its station at 4:10 p. m. At 5:30 another second alarm came in from the same place and when the department arrived the fire was in the upper part of the box factory, a brick wall was ablaze.

Owned by Ralph Wells. The Crawford Box Factory is owned by Ralph Wells and J. J. H. H. The latter superintendent of the plant and employs about 50 men. During the severe storm the factory was closed down Saturday. Mr. H. H. H. states that the loss is fairly well covered by insurance and that he expects to rebuild. The second alarm of the blaze in the upper part of the plant was caused by burning boxes which were stored on the roof.

Twin Favorites of Spring

Irene Rich, playing in Cythera, Shows the Two Indispensable Items of the Spring Wardrobe.

If you can have only two new costumes this Spring, what will you choose? A wrap and an afternoon dress, a rough sport suit and a dinner gown, two fuzzy little suits? Perhaps. But no choice is quite as wise as a dress of the type that all Paris has approved and the suit that smart New York is wearing almost like a uniform. Conveniently enough, these two leading figures of the new styles are a dress and suit which answer the purposes of sports, shopping, luncheons, or afternoon teas so well that with this very limited equipment you can face any daytime occasion with the assurance of being perfectly gowned.

FASHION MUST FIT YOUR TYPE

Constance Talmadge Says Your Own Individuality Is More Important Than Last-minute Styles

Modern fashionists seem to be made for just one type of dress, a simple, severe type that looks well in slightly mannish clothes without a touch of femininity.

Constance Talmadge as she appears in "The Goldfish."

Constance Talmadge is one of the fortunate minority who can choose their own type. Her slender, straight figure enables her to wear severe boyish styles successfully and her delicate features make her equally successful in soft, fluffy feminine clothes. It would be easy for her to accept the word of fashion blindly and confine herself to severe styles, but there are occasions, as in her next picture "The Goldfish," when she wants to appear the opposite type of girl.

CITY WILL SELL SHRUBS TO ITS PROPERTY OWNERS

Manager Fred Harris Has Purchased Two Thousand for Decorating Lawns and Will Cost 25 Cents.

Harris placed an order with a big nursery firm for 2000 shrubs, suitable for lawn decoration and none of them less than three feet high and from that up to four feet. The shrubs have been selected with a view to getting the very best thing for this community.

When they arrive they will be set out near the sewage disposal plant and when any local property owner wants some of them, they will be furnished and planted for 25 cents each. This purchase by the manager is along the plan he has made to establish a nursery on the property owned by the city near the sewage disposal plant, where all the necessary flowers, trees, and shrubs can be grown for the use of the city and for purchase by the public at any time.

The shrubbery has a perfectly nice long name that does not mean anything to anyone, but it is said to be hardy, has "stickers" on it to keep the "kids" and dogs off, and during the summer months will bear cute little yellow flowers.

BAND MASTER TO ACT AS HEAD OF POOR DEPARTMENT

Joseph Greenfield Assumed Office Today and Will Also Be Market Master, Is Announced.

Joseph Greenfield, who will be master of Escanaba's band, entered the employ of the city this morning as poor commissioner and will devote the next month to thoroughly going over the poor list and becoming acquainted with the work. As soon as the city market starts, he will be named market master and will add that to his other duties.

Mr. Greenfield says he expects to have the band in shape to give concerts as soon as the weather permits and that this year the city is going to have a band it can be proud to listen to. There is no lack of talent in the city and it is only a matter of getting them working together to give Escanaba as good a band as there is in the peninsula.

preme court of the District of Columbia and Sinclair must now appear to arrange bail or a warrant will be issued for his arrest.

The indictment contained 19 counts. Nine of them are for refusal to answer nine questions put to him and the tenth is a general charge that he violated the law by refusing to answer any questions.

The Questions Asked.

The indictment recites that "for many years past the government of the United States has been greatly disturbed by the progressive diminution of the supply of petroleum from which are derived fuel oil, gasoline and other valuable products indispensable to the operation of naval vessels and consequently has been keenly interested in the subject of their conservation and economic production, handling, use and storage of oils for that purpose, especially with reference to occurrence of such supply on the public domain."

The indictment then lists the questions which Sinclair refused to answer. These questions concerned the story that he has given Will Hays, former chairman of the republican national committee, 75,000 shares of Sinclair stock to pay off the republican national committee's deficit; when Sinclair first talked to ex-Secretary Fall regarding oil leases; whether he had transferred large funds from New York to Washington; his reported payment of $250,000 to Frank G. Bonfils and J. Leo Stack, Denver, for claims to Teapot Dome; the reported contract between the Mammoth Oil Company and the Pioneer Oil Company in connection with the Teapot lease. Sinclair refused to answer on the ground that his counsel had advised him not to, thereby challenging the right of the committee to compel him to answer.

"Lucky Thirteen Party."

The feature for Thursday evening at the Coliseum Roller Rink will be "The Lucky Thirteen Party." This feature will be very interesting and thirteen prizes will be awarded the patrons. Prizes will be awarded in such events as the thirteenth person buying a ticket, checking wraps, couple on floor, couple in Grand March, lady on the floor in "Ladies Only," the lady setting on the thirteenth chair, and also for the person buying a ticket at thirteen minutes after seven. This feature will require a great deal of attention from the management and promises to be very interesting for all the patrons, as they will not know when a prize ticket will be given them to be redeemed before the close of the evening skating program.

THREE REASONS WHY NEEDHAM SHOULD BE ELECTED

FIRST He is an independent candidate - no party no state.

SECOND He is a heavy taxpayer; his taxes (including street improvements) are more than $600 per year, therefore, he is vitally interested in the reduction of taxes.

THIRD He is a practical electrician. Your electric light plant is the only money maker owned by the City. Wouldn't it be good business to put a man on the Council who would be capable of checking up this plant and see that it is being operated at its highest efficiency?

Attractive in appearance, graceful in line, soundly constructed, comfortable—they are outstanding examples of fine coach work. For the first time you are offered bodies of this type at the low Gray prices.

Mechanically, the cars are characterized by the same proven economy and dependability which won for Gray the world's official economy record of 33.8 miles to the gallon of gasoline on a coast to coast run.

In comfort and refinement of appointments, in completeness and convenience of equipment, the Gray Group is unequalled in the light car field.

See the Gray Group at the Automobile Show. You will appreciate that here are the greatest values ever offered you.
