

ASK CONGRESS TO HELP BANKS

Resolution Adopted at Fifty-Fifth Annual Convention

San Francisco, Sept. 30 (AP)—A resolution to petition congress to modify federal laws so as to permit national banks to merge under more favorable conditions was adopted here today by the Fifty-fifth annual convention of the American Bankers association. The first general session of the association convention will be held tomorrow.

The national banking resolution was adopted after George H. Hamilton, Wichita, Kansas, had told the bankers in one of the leading addresses of the day that national banks are surrendering their charters at a menacing rate and thereby tending to undermine the federal reserve system.

The reason for this, Mr. Hamilton said, are mergers which have profited state banks, more than national banks, because "they have more clearly defined rights in trust departments" and advantages from an operating standpoint "under less restrictive state laws."

The Kansas banker said he foresaw the list of national banks declining to a point where the federal reserve system will have only its own member banks as centrally controlled financial agencies unless laws are modified to permit national banks to merge under more favorable conditions.

Mrs. Gann Gives Up Honor Seat

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP)—State department worries about who is going to take who in to the state dinner at the White House in honor of Prime Minister MacDonald—and who is going to sit where—were dispelled today by Vice President Curtis waiving his social precedence right to be next to Mrs. Hoover on that occasion.

As a result, the distinguished guest from England will escort the president's wife into the dining room and converse with her from the chair at the right while the various courses are being served.

The vice president likewise waived the right of his sister and official hostess, Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann, to sit in the place of honor beside President Hoover. Lady Isabella Howard, the wife of the British ambassador, as the ranking British lady will be present at the dinner, will have the seat of honor to the right of the chief executive—a seat which would be accorded normally to the official hostess of the vice president.

U. S. BAGS ARE FIRST IN RACE

Belgian Entrant Forced Down; Distance Is Low Mark

St. Louis, Sept. 30 (AP)—Captain Ernest De Muyter, winner of four Gordon Bennett races and only balloonist to personally win permanent possession of the trophy, failed in his quest for his fifth victory when he landed at 8 o'clock last night at Corydon at Ind., 230 miles from here where the eighteenth renewal of the international classic started Saturday.

His balloon, the Belgica, was the last of the nine entrants to be reported down and left the three American entrants first, second and third, with the winner to be decided between Wart T. Van Orman, pilot of the Goodyear VIII, and twice winner of the race, and Captain William E. Kepner, pilot of the U. S. Army balloon and last year's victor. On unofficial measurements Van Orman held a lead of a few minutes, similar to last year when Kepner was reported second to Dr. Hugo Kauken, Jr., German balloonist-entrant again this year, only to win on official distances.

Captain De Muyter's message to the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce was sent from Louisville, Ky., and the only detail of his flight it gave was that the Belgica had ascended to a height of 15,500 feet. His balloon, however, struck a tree near Paoli, Ind., thirty miles northwest of Corydon at 2 p. m. Sunday. He threw the radio set from the wicker basket and also some ballast, sailing on.

Distances covered by the eight balloons reported ranged from 120 to 247 miles, which were less than in any previous international race. Heretofore the low figure was 354 miles from Paris, France, to Bridlington, England, in 1913. The world's long distance record is 1234 miles established in 1912 by Maurice Bienaimé of France in a flight from Paris to Moscow.

Detroit—A replica of the "Rocket," Robert Stephenson's celebrated locomotive which rattled through Southern England 100 years ago, was set up in Henry Ford's industrial museum at Dearborn Thursday. staunch supporter of it. Mr. Borah on the other hand is leading the fight against the principal domestic policies of administration at the moment, namely tariff revision. The democratic progressive coalition under the guidance of Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, veteran of many tariff battles is matching strength with the administration and the vote is so close according to advance polls that it will not be known until Tuesday whether Mr. Hoover has emerged victorious.

Settlement Soon.

The fact that the president came into the controversy with a definite stand in favor of retaining the flexible provisions is criticized on Capitol Hill, just as was his intervention on the export debenture plan when it was up for consideration and finally passed the senate over his protest, though ultimately eliminated in conference with the house. This may be the outcome once Mr. Hoover's bidding. The president is in control of the house and could bring about a deadlock if he so desired. The tariff bill could be conference a long period without exciting much discontent in the senate.

Mr. Hoover's relation with congress thus far have not given him much power in the senate, and the next few days will determine whether that situation will materially change for the better.

BANKER HELD AS MURDERER

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP)—The indictment and arrest for murder of Robert A. McPherson, Jr., terminated grand jury action today in a case which has mystified and astounded the city since a coroner's jury held his girl-wife strangled herself with a pajama cord 17 days ago.

The insistence of Senator Overman of North Carolina led to the reopening of the case after doubt had been cast on the suicide verdict through evidence uncovered by a police private, Robert J. Allen, Inspector William S. Shelby and Detective Lieut. Edward J. Kelly, persisted that Mrs. Virginia McPherson—23-year-old nurse—had sent her own life.

Sensational charges of police negligence by Allen were followed by his suspension from the police force, and public interest in the case was whetted further by startling newspaper disclosures and conflicting accounts of what had happened in the tiny McPherson apartment after midnight on September 13.

A bank bookkeeper and amateur football player, McPherson was quizzed repeatedly. Subsequently he appeared more than once before the grand jury, having waived immunity, and told his story of how he had visited his estranged wife on September 14 to find her strangled and bloody. McPherson said he had covered her body partly before summoning the apartment manager.

According to Allen, however, the manager says he had to force open the door to the dead girl's room to gain entrance, because the body was propped up against the door. The question of the stiffness of the body at various times after death promises to enter vitally into the case.

CASE REOPENED AFTER CORONER'S JURY FOUND WIFE SUICIDE

choices for the 1930 convention. Los Angeles and Boston are the only bidders, the former inquiring in slogans, "Orange Juice or Beans?"

The New England conference threw its entire support to Boston, while California expected to draw from the western states. Both delegations came with samples of their products, with musical organizations, banners, large numbers of members and promotion funds of around $100,000 each.

The convention's high light will be reached tomorrow in the all-day parade of the 40,000 legionnaires and their families who are here. Approximately 100 musical organizations will be in the line of colorful-dressed marchers.

Pantages Loses Initial Encounter

Los Angeles, Sept. 30 (AP)—Two efforts by Alexander Pantages, millionaire founder of a chain of vaudeville theaters, to upset the state's plans for opening his trial here tomorrow on statutory charges, met with defeat in superior court today. Judge Charles Fricke, denying motions for a change of venue and a thirty-day continuance, ordered Pantages to trial at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Both Pantages and District Attorney Buron Pitts testified during the hearing on the two motions. Pitts was called upon to answer questions by defense attorneys, W. I. Gilbert and Joseph Ford, who sought the change of venue because of alleged prejudice in the local public mind against Pantages.

Pitts was asked concerning newspaper statements he had made of alleged tampering with state witnesses in the case and of threats made against the witnesses. He was asked if he did not give to the press a story about a mysterious "Miss X" whom he believed Pantages had tried to attack. Pitts denied it, declaring that "We didn't want it to get out but the reporters got wind of it and printed it."

In seeking a continuance of the case, the defense attorneys said that Pantages had not been given sufficient time to prepare for his trial. The retired theatrical magnate admitted on the witness stand that he had conferred with several attorneys concerning his case.

Pantages is charged with two felony counts of assault upon Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, which allegedly occurred in his private office where she had gone seeking a booking of her dance act.

Hilo, Hawaii, Sept. 30 (AP)—Seismic activity, which has rocked the island of Hawaii for twelve days and is declared to be the forerunner of eruptions of one or more of the island's volcanoes, shifted to the western slope today where 430 quakes were recorded during the last 24 hours.

Thomas A. Jaggar, volcanologist, announced that his portable seismograph at Puu Waa waa, a village almost within the shadow of the volcano Hualalai, where Jaggar has been observing the activity, had registered the large number of tremors.

DAMAGE LIGHT IN SOUTHERN FLORIDA BLOW

Lauderdale were well under way today.

Damage caused by a freak cyclone which whirled out of the Atlantic at Fort Lauderdale Saturday affecting 21 buildings and inflicting cuts and bruises on more than a dozen persons today was estimated at $150,000 by J. K. Huey, city building inspector.

High water at Homestead had receded somewhat and the streets were becoming free of several feet of water that had been standing for 48 hours. Relief units reached the city and rehabilitation is considered by the 5,000 residents to be a matter of a short time.

It was feared that the crops in South Dade county and the Homestead sector had undergone heavy losses, but no accurate estimates of the damage were available. The hope of finding immediate market for mature grapefruit and avocados blown from the trees encouraged growers.

Two coast guard patrol boats have been given Sheriff M. P. Lehman of Dade county, to assist in a survey of conditions in the keys.

Washouts in both the highway and railroad tracks north of Key West caused considerable concern among the 65 passengers who arrived at that place today on the first boat of the P. and O. line to make the crossing from Havana since Friday. However, this was allayed when it was announced that the steamer Cuba registered by operated between Key West and Tampa would leave at 8 p. m. for Miami to accommodate the stranded passengers.

GIVES SENATE INSIDE FACTS ABOUT GENEVA

the story of the quarrel in Jqowl between Shearer and the shipbuilders.

"Wasn't German Spy?" Shearer said that then Clinton L. Bardo, president of the New York Shipbuilding corporation and one of his Geneva employers, told him that Frank B. Kellogg, then secretary of state, had sent word to the Bethlehem shipbuilding officers that unless they got rid of Shearer the department of justice would go to court with its $15,000,000 war claims suit against the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

Questioned by Chairman Shortridge, the witness sometimes would reply almost with a speech. He mentioned freely the name of Charles M. Schwab and other men of prominence as among those he had been associated with or had talked with. He said he had discussed with Schwab employment with the shipbuilders for a merchant marine publicity campaign in November, 1926. The steel magnate previously had told the committee he did not recall any such meeting.

Asked about the report that he was a German spy, Shearer denied it and produced his life's history. He referred, however, to one of the witnesses before the committee as a "British spy" and as a "British stool pigeon." He was unsparring in his references to the shipbuilders—whom he charged with having used him and then having cast him aside.

No American Lobby

Shearer said that he went to Geneva in 1926 "on my own" to attend the preparatory naval conference at the suggestion of naval officers in Washington, some of whom sent him in a franked envelope a confidential information regarding a prospective naval plan of Great Britain and Japan. This will be taken up by the committee later.

Asked if there was any American lobby at the tri-party conference in 1927, Shearer said the "only American lobby I saw was that of Rockefeller trying to lobby us into the League of Nations." He added, however, that there were British and Japanese navy lobbies at the party.

Shearer said he never disclosed at Geneva that he was representing the shipbuilders. When asked by Wythe Williams, of the New York Times, and Henry Wales of the Chicago Tribune, who he represented, Shearer said with some amusement that he told them he was there for a "Pittsburgh door knob company."

"You know," Shearer added as the committee and the crowd roared, "the shipbuilders have to put doors on ships and the doors have to have knobs."

Identity Kept Dark

Shearer added that S. W. Wakeman, vice president of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation, had maintained that Shearer's identity as a representative of the shipbuilders at Geneva should be kept secret.

The witness said that upon his return from Geneva he had told Douglas Robinson, then assistant secretary of the Navy, that he had gone to Geneva for the shipbuilders.

Shearer produced, upon request, the alleged Scotland Yards record of himself which he said he took from Albin E. Johnson, Geneva cor-

ESCANABA VIES WITH FAYETTE, GARDEN AS HAVEN FOR BIG BEARS

The vicinity of Escanaba takes its place along with Fayette and Garden peninsula as a haven for hungry bears, according to a story related by Mrs. A. L. Stilt, 325 South Eleventh street.

Mrs. Stilt was motoring a few miles north of the paper mill at Groos last Saturday afternoon when a small child in the car exclaimed, "Oh, look at the funny calf!" Mrs. Stilt glanced around casually, expecting to see a small calf or perhaps a large dog that the child had mistaken for a calf. She was amazed when her eyes fell upon the hulk of a baby brown eyed bruin, nonchalantly eating windfall apples by the side of the road.

She stopped the car to watch the movements of the animal and passing motorists, their curiosity aroused by the spectacle, stopped also. For five or six minutes the bear remained undisturbed by his uninvited gallery and he kept at his meal just as if he had been asked to give his patrons a treat.

After Baby Bruin had eaten all the apples he wanted, he stood up on his hind legs, surveyed the crowd that had assembled to watch him perform, and then with a shake of his head that may have meant, "That's all folks," he turned around and ambled off into the woods, leaving his gallery staring in amazement.

"HIGHLIGHTS OF LEGION MEET"

Sergeants Alvin York, Willie Sandlin and Samuel Woodfill, are distinguished guests and as such have military aides. Each has a captain whose duty it is to say: "Will the sergeant have this and does the sergeant want that?" and then step and fetch it for the sergeants.

The crowd at the opening session at the Jefferson county armory, in effect sat in the front yard of the Old Kentucky Home. A life-size—that is house-size prop of the Bardstown, Ky., shrine with its big southern pillars and roomy front porch formed the stage background before which sat the officials and distinguished guests.

It seems that some St. Louis men had no reservations but one of them was a friend of the fire chief. Fifteen "visiting firemen" are staying in the downtown barracks, with nothing to worry about so long as no alarm comes in.

A timid little woman edged her way through the crowds and reached Indiana headquarters. "May I have an Indiana badge?" she asked, and was told no more were to be had. "I want one because my boy was killed over there," the woman explained. She was promised that one would be found.

The Legion convention theme song again is "Never heard of it." These four words are sufficient answer to any wise crack.

Iowa claims to have traveled 700,000 miles to the convention and set a record—that is, 1,000 persons traveled an average of 700 miles each.

A Belgian woman testifying in a London court recently declared that girls in Belgium give their parents all they earn.

Andrew Sorum Gets 15 Days for Theft

Disposition of the cases of the three young men and two women, who were arrested in Escanaba last week, was about completed yesterday.

Andrew Sorum, Grand Rapids, pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Phil Hupp yesterday of stealing $12 from the Perkins gasoline station at Gladstone, and was sentenced to serve 15 days in the county jail.

William Jarvic of Kearney, Minn., was sentenced on Saturday to spend 30 days in the jail upon pleading guilty to stealing a fox fur from the Montgomery, Ward & company store.

Toronto authorities will come here this week to secure Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stevens, who are charged with stealing in that city the Ford coach—in which the quintet was riding.

Grace Flater, the other young woman in the party, will be returned to her home in Petoskey.

Real Dyes are easier to use

DIAMOND DYES are used by practically the same method as any other dye. They go on easier, though—more smoothly and evenly; without spotting or streaking. That's because they are made from real anilines, without a trace of fillers to injure fabrics or give things that redyed look.

Diamond Dyes contain the highest quality anilines that money can buy. That's why they give such clear, bright, new-looking colors, which keep their depth and brilliance so remarkably through wear and washings.

Next time you have dyeing to do, try Diamond Dyes—at our risk. See that they are easier to use. Then compare results. You will surely agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the highest quality dye, prepared for general use. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk and wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

CHAPTER XXXVI

Red was not a very tactful person. He had, moreover, a rather disconcerting way of coming bluntly to the point.

"What are you doing?" he asked, surveying the array of books.

"Writing an anthology of tragic loves," she told him.

"What for?"

"Because I want to."

"Good enough," he conceded. "Speaking of love, do you mind if I ask you a personal question, Molly? You won't get sore?"

"I might. But go ahead. What difference does it make?"

"Well," he said, "I wouldn't want to hurt your feelings. It's about Jack Wells."

Molly felt suddenly strange. She had felt that way twice before. Once when Rita died. And again when the censors attacked her play. She was afraid that she was going to faint.

"What is it?" she asked and her voice sounded faint to her, and far away, and it kept on ringing in her ears, long after the words were out of her mouth.

"You're not exactly engaged to him now, are you?"

"What is it, Red?" she cried.

"What has happened?"

"Oh, nothing's happened. I didn't mean to frighten you, old thing. But—well, you remember of writing me about the woman subject of loyalty was in case of a war between his country and America; but fortunately such a conflict is an exceedingly remote possibility. America admires Italy and her 'man of the hour' without desiring any similar experiment in government over here. There is no reason why the friendliest of relations shall not be continued indefinitely, and certain it is that the dictator's address to the Sons of Italy reflects a frame of mind that will strengthen the ties.

One cannot help wondering what Mussolini's attitude on the subject of loyalty would be in case of a war between his country and America; but fortunately such a conflict is an exceedingly remote possibility. There is no reason why the friendliest of relations shall not be continued indefinitely, and certain it is that the dictator's address to the Sons of Italy reflects a frame of mind that will strengthen the ties.

EARLY TO BED.

A GREAT deal too much has been said in praise of the old 'early to bed and early to rise' slogan.

To be sure, it may well lead to health. And health, possibly, may sometimes lead to wealth. But wisdom—well, that's something else again.

There are two kinds of wisdom in this world. One is the kind that enables a man to go about his daily business, keeping out of trouble, earning a living, and finding ways of laying aside a little bit of extra money now and then. The other kind doesn't bring such definite rewards. It is the serene wisdom that keeps a man from getting discouraged and downcast; the soothing knowledge that the world isn't such a bad place, after all, and that most of its pitfalls are affairs that men dig for themselves.

This is the kind of wisdom that leads to contentment and peace. And, oddly enough, you can often gain it by staying up late at night.

This isn't written in support of night clubs, late parties and the like. There is precious little wisdom to be found in such activities. If you are going to get any real good out of keeping late hours, keep them alone; keep them alone, and get out of doors.

The mind works better around midnight. To be sure, there is sleepiness to contend with, at first; but after a little while this drops away, somehow, and one is able to think more clearly, to understand more easily, to find reasons for hope where none was visible before.

Then, if one picks his nights right, there is the moonlight. Moonlight, late at night, when all of the day's noises have gone away to bed, is queer stuff. Nothing looks as it does by daylight. Familiar houses are made to look like enchanted cottages. An ordinary row of trees looks mysterious and exciting. The commonest of streets, lying deserted in this strange whiteness, becomes enticing and picturesque with a haunting sort of beauty.

Now all of this is only another way of saying that things look prettier by moonlight; that they do by sunlight. Everybody, very likely knows that. But why do we take it for granted that it is the moonlight that is false?

Maybe we're mistaken. Maybe the unattractive colors that the familiar scene wears by daylight are simply disguises, put there to deceive us. Maybe it is the sunlight and not the moonlight that puts a wrong aspect on things.

Does this sound reasonable? After midnight, when the moonlight floods your back yard, it does. Then it seems quite likely that the enchantment of moonlight is genuine. Then it is easy to believe that we have misjudged our world, and that it is infinitely more beautiful, more mysterious and more enjoyable than we generally suspect.

Maybe this notion is all a mistake. But it's a good notion to entertain, just the same. And you'll never get it if you don't stay up late at night once in a while.

To strengthen British trade against foreign competition, a British trade delegation will visit Buenos Aires, Argentina.

not in love with her! Why, it's dreadful. Red, to talk as if Jack were a squaw man! There's nothing on earth worse than a male gold digger. And Jack's the furthest thing from that I know."

"It looks mighty funny," grumbled Red.

"So do lots of things look funny. Maybe it looked funny when you and I went to St. Petersburg together. For heaven's sake, be charitable!"

Red grinned. He had an engaging grin.

"Well," he drawled, "I just hated to see a slick city feller do you Nell wrong. I thought maybe I ought to tip you off."

"Don't worry about me!" she flashed. "I can take care of myself all right."

"Sure you can," he agreed. "I don't know any girl can do that little thing any better."

Molly turned the pages of one of her reference books.

"Red, dear," she said, "I'm just burning up to get after my tragic loves. Would you mind awfully if I sent you away? I feel so exactly like writing tonight, that it's a shame to only sit and talk."

She had grown pale, and there were dark shadows under her eyes. Red was more observing than she knew.

"Pretty hard hit," he decided. "Poor kid. It's a darn shame."

"Come around tomorrow if you like," she was saying, "and I'll have Mary bake you an apple pie."

"Why sure," he said. "But let me make you some coffee before I go, will you? You're looking sort of ragged, old thing. Pep you up a bit, if you're going to be up all night."

"Honestly, Red, I don't feel like it."

"Do you mind if I make some for myself? Have a cup with me like a good girl," he coaxed.

She turned to him gratefully. "Dear Red! I'll drink coffee or arsenic, if it will make you happy. But don't get feeling sorry for me. Jack and I broke up long ago."

He patted her hand sympathetically.

"It's a hell of a world," he declared.

"Run along and make your coffee," she admonished. "And there are crackers and cheese around somewhere. Bring them in, when you come. And see if you can find some guava jelly."

Red rummaged around the pantry and fixed a tray clumsily. Measured the coffee carefully, and the water, and carried the percolator into the drawing room.

Molly lay on her crazy cubist sofa, with her head buried in the pillows, crying her heart out.

"Molly! Molly dear!"

Red set his tray on the floor, and the percolator beside it, and put his arms about her.

"Poor little girl! Want me to smash his head, Molly?"

She shook her head against his chest, laughing through her tears.

"Oh no, Red. I'm crazy about his head, dear."

"He's broken your heart—that's what he's done."

"Broken my heart, nothing!" she contradicted. "I'm just tired, that's all. I'm a poor, weak woman, and I've had a hard day."

"Well, well, 'Atta baby. Poor little girl."

He patted her hair awkwardly. And she drew his clumsy fingers to her mouth, and kissed them.

"Dear little girl," he murmured.

"Like lun she does."

"Well, anyhow, I'm sure he's mind, Bob Newton," she sobbed. "Just as if I didn't love R-Rita to death."

Red's face flushed hotly.

"You've a nerve, Newton, to talk to Molly like that! Where would you and your innocent child be, if it wasn't for her? Molly's been a perfect angel to Rita, and you know it. I've a darn good mind to knock your head off for talking to her like that."

Red's anger mounted. "And what's more," he announced, "I'm going to do it."

As he stepped toward Bob, Molly threw herself into his arms.

"Oh, please, Red! He isn't responsible for what he's saying. Don't—don't start anything. Please, Red! You'll wake Rita, dear."

"I won't make any noise," he muttered. "I'll knock him cold, and he won't let a peep out of him."

Bob had risen unsteadily to his feet. He put his hat on jauntily.

"Come on!" he challenged. "Bob! You'll wake Rita! What's the matter with you? Are you crazy?"

Molly issued commands like a field marshal.

"Get out of here this instant. This is my house, and I shan't have you here, when you've been drinking. Quickly now, or I'll call the police. I'm serious, Bob. I mean every word I say. If you don't leave this minute, I shall telephone station 16, and have you arrested. Go now—before Red murders you. Do you hear me?"

"Red murder me!" marvelled Bob drunkenly. "Red couldn't murder me, Molly. He's not the size."

"If you don't go now," she told him evenly, "you'll see whether he's the size or not."

There would be trouble in a moment. Bob's hand was reach-

LYRICS OF LIFE

THE BEST THING TO DO.

The problem of life is no problem at all! The best thing to be is the thing that you are. Yet many a girl starts to school in the fall, And many a boy to some college afar, To take up the task that is likely to pay, Yes, art, engineering, or what people say, When all of the while she just wanted to cook, And he had a dream he would scribble a book.

The best thing to do, that's the question they ask; Well, they, they alone, know the proper reply— It isn't the pay, or the ease of the task. But what you do better the better you try. Yes, heaven made all of us this thing or that, And these are the things for us each to be at, Yes, heaven made all of us that thing or this, The thing to be at is the thing that it is.

The best thing to do is the best thing you can, Yes, preaching or plumping, whatever it be, There's something for someone, each man, Each man's own hearts will tell them, not strangers, not me. A million is failure at something you hate, And many have starved who were splendidly great— Yes, here is the answer and this is the test: The best thing to do is the thing you do best.

SMOTHERING THE THRILLS.

FOOTBALL RULES are made, for the most part, by coaches and coaches live in continual dread of "upsets." To one whose job depends upon his ability to continue turning out winning teams, nothing is more nerve-racking than an unexpected defeat at the hands of an adversary which the public has regarded as weaker.

Changes in the rules during the last two or three years apparently have been designed to lessen the element of chance in the game and to push the "under dog" still farther under. A weak team with a single star kicker can no longer hope that he can drop-kick it to victory. The goal posts have been set back out of reach of his toe. The point after touchdown and the frequency of one-point victories has been made much more difficult. The new fumble rule makes it impossible for a player to convert an opponent's fumble into an unexpected score.

It is all very well to say that under the new rules inferior teams have less chance to depend upon the "breaks" to enable them to defeat their stronger rivals. That, to be sure, is the coach's idea.

But when the under dog no longer has an outside chance to win, football becomes a contest of power, like a tug of war or a weight-lifting tournament—mere competitions, not games.

Frankly, we believe that the game of football was a better game five years ago than it is today. The experimenting and tampering of the rules committee has injured it rather than helped it.

pected to turn against his fatherland, except in the event of a war between the two. "America first" is the spirit that naturalized citizens are supposed to display, and sentiment for the native country is to be encouraged, rather than discouraged, in normal times.

One cannot help wondering what Mussolini's attitude on the subject of loyalty would be in case of a war between his country and America; but fortunately such a conflict is an exceedingly remote possibility. America admires Italy and her 'man of the hour' without desiring any similar experiment in government over here. There is no reason why the friendliest of relations shall not be continued indefinitely, and certain it is that the dictator's address to the Sons of Italy reflects a frame of mind that will strengthen the ties.

ROMANCE FOR ROYALTY.

OUR FAVORITE newspaper—which is the one you are now reading—the other day urged King Boris of Bulgaria to reconsider his refusal to marry Princess Ileana of Rumania. Nothing has been heard from Boris since the editorial was printed and it is sorrowfully presumed that the King of the Bulgars very foolishly disregarded our friendly and helpful foray into his private affairs. In fact, he supplemented his original statement with the explanation that under no circumstances would he ever marry purely for diplomatic reasons.

That is a quaint attitude, to say the least, for a king to strike. It doesn't stack up with European history. And upon the heels of it—or rather alongside—comes a new biography of the Prince of Wales in which it is declared that the heir to the British throne is "not in love" and for that reason is decidedly not contemplating matrimony.

European princes and kings have always been supposed to marry for the good of their people—to avert a war, or to get a commercial treaty fixed up, or something of the kind. And they are expected, by all means, to leave behind them an heir to the throne.

But it appears that, unless the right girls suddenly creep into the lives of King Boris and Prince Edward, there won't be any crown princes a few years from now.

There isn't a thing to be done about it. Except, perhaps, we can increase our admiration of Boris and Edward and the independence they have shown in this matter which, after all, in Bulgaria and Britain is a serious matter.

MUSSOLINI AND "AMERICA FIRST"

PREMIER MUSSOLINI made a rather sensible, as well as inspiring, talk to 400 American citizens of Italian extraction who called on him the other day. "Be loyal to the land of your fathers," he told them in effect, "but before that be loyal to the land of your adoption."

In that speech Mussolini exhibited an exceedingly friendly feeling for the United States. He seemed to shed much of his fiery nationalism and recognize the fact that there can be some good in a nation not ruled by Fascism.

His admission to the American "Sons of Italy" is the same that Uncle Sam might be expected to offer. No naturalized citizen of the United States is ex-

Yonk-Bonkowski

A marriage of interest to local friends of the bride is that which was solemnized at Our Lady of Lourdes church at Marinette on Thursday when Miss Barbara Yonk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Yonk of Marinette, became the bride of Joseph Bonkowski of Milwaukee.

Miss Agnes Yonk of Milwaukee and Raymond Yonk, sister and brother of the bride, were the attendants.

The occasion was also the thirtieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Yonk, and a double celebration was held at the Yonk home.

The bride was formerly employed as a school teacher in this city and was well known here. The couple will make their home in Milwaukee.

Birthday Anniversary

Mrs. Fred Fugere, a former resident of this city, who is living at Racine, Wis., was the honor guest at a surprise birthday party sponsored by Mrs. Ellen Walker and Mrs. Dora Fugere of that city, recently.

Bunco was played, honors going to Miss Betty Campeau, Mrs. Pauline Reese and Miss Grace Flood. Mrs. Fugere received many pretty and useful gifts as mementoes of the occasion. Dainty refreshments were served.

FIRE DESTROYS LEE'S LAUNDRY

Nick Wagner, Fireman, Is Overcome by Dense Smoke

Fire, which originated in the drying room, gutted the Sam Lee Chinese Laundry building, 821 Ludington street, about one o'clock yesterday afternoon, causing a loss estimated at $2500.

Nick Wagner, member of the Escanaba fire department, was overcome by smoke while on the roof of the building, and was carried to safety by other members of the fire fighting crew. The burning of the building and its contents produced a dense black smoke which made the work of the firemen a difficult one.

Sam Lee, proprietor of the laundry, had his face slightly burned when he attempted to remove some clothing, which were hung up on the lines in the drying room. About five minutes before he had placed a large quantity of washing in the room, in which there were two stoves with fires in them.

Realizing the blaze was out of control, the laundryman ran out into the street and into the Office Service company's shop, where he asked someone to telephone the fire department.

All the contents of the building, including a couple hundred dollars worth of laundry, were destroyed. Sam Lee estimated his loss at $1500, which is not covered by insurance. He recovered the money he had in the cash register and his savings which were hidden in another part of the building, and took them promptly to the bank. The damage to the building is estimated at about $1000. It is owned by John Semer.

Motorist's Hand Cut in Collision

F. A. Shaw was slightly injured and his automobile was badly damaged Sunday night, near Menominee when the machine was struck, head-on, by another car. Mr. Shaw's right hand was severely cut when the car was overturned with great violence on the highway by the impact. Others in the party were not injured and the driver of the other machine also escaped without injury.

Horses Do Not Climb Trees! AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Anger and fear greeted the faltering efforts of the first automobile. But the hands of AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE guided the steering wheel and controlled the throttle—the automobile drove on to glorious success.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

"It's toasted" No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

OCTOBER 6-12 IS 'FIRE WEEK'

Campaign to Stress Prevention of Blazes on Farms

Fire prevention week for 1929 has been set for October 6-12, inclusive, at which time everyone is expected to take active part in making properties safe from fire destruction, through the removal of fire hazards and a general cleanup of conditions which are responsible for the great unnecessary fire waste.

These activities have been quite generally carried out in the cities and villages through the officers of such municipalities, fire chiefs and firemen, civic societies, churches and schools, with telling effect, thus materially reducing fire losses, even in the face of changed conditions bringing about new and additional fire hazards.

Only in a few isolated sections has there been any attention towards extending this great work in the rural districts, where its need is far greater than in the areas having organized fire fighting apparatus, manned with experienced fire fighters and ample equipment.

A request was recently made to Gov. F. W. Green, to incorporate in his Fire Prevention Week Proclamation, an appeal to the rural people to take active part in this laudable undertaking, to which he expressed himself as in full accord.

It would be utterly impossible for the farmers of this state to devote a week to this splendid movement, but it is unanimously agreed that they could give at least a part of one day of that week towards the inspection of their property and making it safe, and that they would gladly take part in making the undertaking a success.

Upon the suggestion incorporated in the Governor's Proclamation, a meeting was held at the office of the State Fire Marshal, Lansing, at which was present Assistant Fire Marshal, Charles V. Lane; Webster Pearce, Superintendent of Public Instructions; James Slocum, Publisher of Farm Fire Prevention; Milo A. White, Fremont, President of the National Association of Mutual Insurance Companies; Bert Wer-muth, Editor of the Michigan Farmer, Detroit; and George A. Madan, Secretary of the Michigan Association of Mutual Insurance Companies.

The manner in which the work should be carried on in the rural districts was discussed from every standpoint and it was mutually agreed that the undertaking would bring the best results by being carried out as follows:

Superintendent of Public Instructions, Mr. Pearce, will place in the hands of every County School Superintendent in Michigan, information covering every source of fire prevention on the farm, which the rural school teacher will read to the pupils on Friday, October 11th, and with the children visualize the various phases of preventing fires and what is best to do in case of fire, and the greater danger of fires as effecting loss of life and property. It is expected that this session of the school will be one of the most beneficial and instructive of the year's schooling. It should create lasting impressions which will follow the growing minds through all their future years, causing them to quickly observe the hazards and to see that they are removed.

At the close of this session one pupil from each family represented will be handed an inspection report blank by the teacher, which will be used in the following manner: On the following day, Saturday, October 12th,

The parents of the pupil will read each section of the inspection blank, and make a thorough examination of that part of the property indicated; for instance, the foundation of the chimney. Is it in good condition and not settling? Are the brick openings well lined with mortar, with no loose bricks? The chimney should be examined all the way through the building, including the attic and above the roof. Stovepipes comes next, and so on down the line of the inspection blank.

In every square, after you have made the examination, place an (X) in the space provided for that purpose. Don't mark (X) until each section is completed.

The parents and children are expected to join together in making this inspection. The parents should talk with the children while making this inspection, as to making the property safe and say how and when it will be done. The inspection will not be a success unless there is cooperation between the parents and the children. Every parent can give the time necessary to make this inspection, Saturday, October 12:

The inspection blank will be signed by the parent or parents, and the child who brought it home, will take it back to the teacher, Monday, October 14. The teacher will insist on the inspection blanks, completed, being in her hands not later than October 16th, at which time she will mail all inspection blanks handed in by her pupils, to C. D. Livingston, State Fire Marshal, Lansing, where these reports will be counted and tabulated. Should any parents fail or decline to make inspection reports as requested, the teacher will report

More New Independents Starting in Business Than Chain Stores

Babson Park, Mass., Sept. 27

It is a surprising fact that more new independent stores are starting business today than chain stores. Figure reported by the Commercial Service Company during the month of August, for instance, show 4,252 new independent retailers against 62 new chains and 937 new branch stores of existing chains—in other words, four times as many new independents as chains. This certainly does not look as though the independent retailer is passing from the picture. Today the total United States' retail trade is about $41,000,000,000 annually. 61 per cent of the total business, or $25,200,000,000 is still being done by the independent stores. Department stores are doing 16 per cent. Mail order houses account for 3 1/2 per cent, house-to-house canvassing 2 per cent, and company stores for employees 2 per cent. Hence, despite its rapid growth, the chain store is still a comparatively small factor in total retail distribution.

Unquestionably the chains are driving many small retailers out of business. We do not hear so much, however, about the many well-managed, profitable independents who are going along successfully. What is happening is that these successful independents are adopting certain new features of successful chain store technique, while the unsuccessful independents are trying to do business in the same old way their grand-fathers did. The revolution occurring in retailing is not so much a change from independent to chains, as it is a change from old buying and selling methods to new ones.

Striking examples of this are the formation of associations of independent into buying groups, sometimes in affiliation with wholesalers, and sometimes dealing direct with manufacturers. They are not, however, under one management, but are individuals voluntarily associated. In the voluntarily associated there are already about 400 voluntary associations, counting as their members over 60,000 independent grocers. More are being formed daily. These stores are still individually owned, with the spirit of initiative and close community contact which individual ownership allows, but still with a collective buying power rivalling that of the great chain systems. Many of them are "cash and carry"—another leaf taken from the chain store book. Such groupings and associations are inevitable, and actually constitute the only way out for the small retailers.

Where the Wholesaler Comes In The wholesaler has suffered just as much as the independents from chain stores. Never before has the wholesaler realized how closely his interests are bound up with those of his customers. Instead of allowing the chain stores and retail buying associations to short-circuit them completely, some progressive wholesalers have established retail associations of their own. This has been done very successfully in Chicago, Toledo, Louisville, and several other cities. One group contains 15 wholesalers and 2,000 independent retailers. Another has a membership of 99 wholesalers and 18,000 retailers. The groupings have assumed various forms. In some instances the wholesaler acts in a supervisory capacity on store arrangement, advertising, etc. Some wholesale groups are cash-and-carry. Whatever the form of grouping, however, the main idea is to minimize selling and handling costs, and to achieve united buying power which will enable them to compete with organized chain systems on a price basis as well as service. Wholesalers are now beginning to realize that if they don't take an active part in these voluntary groups, their customers will form groups just the same and deal directly with the manufacturers, leaving the wholesalers out of the picture altogether.

Too Many Retailers.

It always seems a harsh and unkind statement to say there are too many retailers and the trade would be better off without many of them. Economic tendencies, however, are inexorable, and they pay no attention to individual suffering. Our census of distribution in 11 leading cities clearly proves that there are too many retailers. Perhaps that statement should be qualified to read: "There are too many inefficient retailers and not enough efficient ones." It is the wholesalers who are largely to blame for this condition. They have made it entirely too easy to start a retail store on insufficient capital and without any special ability or aptitude. Wholesalers have suffered from this practice through small orders and unprofitable business. Still, new stores are being formed in great numbers than ever. It is a safe assumption that a large part of them are doomed to failure and should never have been started.

100 GALLONS OF 'MOON' SEIZED

Officers Seeking Norbert Fosterling of Lathrop

One hundred gallons of moonshine whisky were seized at the home of Norbert Fosterling of Lathrop by the sheriff's department and state police who staged a raid late Saturday. Fosterling left the place before the officers arrived, and is still at large. He is charged with sale and possession of liquor. It was Fosterling's home where Emil Westerenen of Rock is alleged to have stabled a companion, Kivilla, in a drunken brawl. Kivilla spent three weeks in the hospital, and then brought complaint against Westerenen because the latter did not pay the medical bill as he had promised. Westerenen was bound over to circuit court after a hearing before Judge J. J. Embs. Almost half of a deer's carcass was also found in the Fosterling home. The evidence was turned over to the conservation department, and it is expected that a warrant, charging illegal possession of venison, will be issued today.

Family of 10 Is Destitute

Eight children, ranging from six months to 12 years in age, and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Zygmund Loch of Perronville, are living in a barn as a result of a fire which destroyed their farmhouse about 11:30 o'clock Sunday morning. All furniture, clothing and about seventy dollars in paper currency were lost in the blaze, leaving the family destitute. Rev. Fr. Tom Dregacz, pastor of St. Michael's church of Perronville, yesterday issued an appeal to Escanaba Daily Press readers to contribute food, clothing and household goods to the unfortunate folks. Father Dregacz advised that if the donors would leave the articles at Sheriff Elmer Swanson's office in Escanaba, an automobile would be sent there to collect them. Mr. Loch and the two oldest children were attending church when the house burned. The smaller children were playing with their dolls around the stove, while their mother was picking apples in the orchard. One of the dolls caught afire, and the children abandoned the flaming bundle on the floor and went outside. They neglected to tell their mother of the incident, however. Several minutes later, Mrs. Loch looked toward the house and saw a cloud of smoke issuing from it.

The Michigan company serves gas to Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, Sargis, South Haven, Allegan, Plainwell, Cadillac and Traverse City, Mich., Kendallville, Auburn and Garrett, Ind., and Manitowoc, Wis. The Commonwealth Power corporation owns and operates many important properties, including gas and electric companies serving Minneapolis, Minn., Birmingham, Ala., Jacksonville, Fla., Savannah, Ga., Lowell, Mass., and Amarillo, Tex., and as well a number of properties adjacent to those now being acquired. Pineapples sometimes attain the weight of 17 or more pounds.

Leading advertisers in John P. Norton's Escanaba Press used the governor's picture in their ad copy. But the climax was at the fair ground. When the governor's party put in an appearance some fellow at the 'mike' called 'Attention,' the crowd stood up while the band played a special march song dedicated to Governor Green, which gesture of respect continued until the governor's party had taken their seats in the flag-draped box. The best of it this Buckingham Palace greeting happens to be an honest expression of a grateful community. Needless Pain!

Some folks take pain for granted. They let a cold "run its course." They wait for their headaches to "wear off." If suffering from neuralgia or from neuritis, they rely on feeling better in the morning. Meantime, they suffer unnecessary pain. Unnecessary, because there is an antidote. Bayer Aspirin always offers immediate relief from various aches and pains we once had to endure. If pain persists, consult your doctor as to its cause.

Save yourself a lot of pain and discomfort through the many uses of Bayer Aspirin. Protect yourself by buying the genuine. Bayer is safe. Always the same. All druggists.

Golf Course Is No Longer Refuge for Tired Business Men

New York (AP)—The stock market has invaded the golf links, one of the few remaining refuges where a business man can forget about profits and losses.

The stock exchange of E. F. Hutton & Co. established a temporary branch in a tent at the end of the 18-hole course at Pebble Beach, Cal., for the convenience of players and spectators.

The enterprise proved so successful that discussion has started in brokerage circles about the possibility of following up the same idea in other directions.

Recent changes in stock exchange rulings, which permitted the opening of branch brokerage offices aboard ocean liners, simplified the task of keeping traders, no matter where they might be, abreast of transactions on the floor of the exchange.

Youth Shows Way in Women's National Meet

EAST, MIDWEST TIED FOR LEAD

Par Shattered at Invincible Oakland Hills Course

BY PAUL R. MICKELSON (Associated Press Sports Writer) Oakland Hills Country Club, Birmingham, Mich., Sept. 30 (AP)—Helen Hicks, exponent of golfing from Hewlett, Long Island, and Virginia Van Wie, 20-year-old Chicago star, fractured par on the supposedly invincible Oakland Hills course by three big strokes today to stalemate the struggle for medalist honors in the thirty-third national women's championship.

The pair, representatives of younger generation golf on this side of the Atlantic, coursed the varied, hilly 6,437-yard stretch in 79 strokes, two more than the national qualifying record but equally as sparkling because of the reputation of Oakland Hills, which stopped even the great Bobby Jones in the 1924 national open.

So completely was the championship course conquered today that a new high qualifying mark was established. Thirty-two, who continue the title chase tomorrow over the 18-hole match play route, carded totals of 58 or better. The former high qualifying record for this classic was 61, established in 1927 and repeated last year.

One stroke behind Miss Hicks and Miss Van Wie in today's qualifying test was Kathleen Wright of Pasadena. Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser of Ottawa, three holder of the national crown and leader of Canada's invading contingent, tied for third with Edith Quier of Reading, Penn., each shooting 61, one better than par.

The great Glenna Collett, who is out not only to defend her title but to establish a record by winning her fourth, was too familiar with the multiple traps today but shot a par 82 anyway, which placed her in a seven-way deadlock for fourth place.

Her equals today were all top-notchers of golf—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurt of Philadelphia, three times national champion; Mrs. Stewart Hanley, Detroit; Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, western and trans-Mississippi champion; Mrs. Leona Pressler of Los Angeles, holder of the western crown in 1927 and 1928; Mrs. Leo Federman, New York; and Mrs. Harry Nelson, a young, up and coming sharpshooter from Dayton, Ohio.

MARQUETTE IS NEXT ON CARD

Esquimos Have First Test Against Prison City Aggregation

The Escanaba high school grid machine will get its first real test of the year at the Escanaba Athletic field next Saturday when it opposes the strong Marquette high school footballers.

The Puckmen came out of their game with the Parochials last week in pretty good shape and are starting a week's intense preparations for the Prison City team. Marquette is coached by two former Escanabans who have been "pointing" toward the Escanaba game all season. They are Carroll Rushton and Bud Finch.

Coach Puckewitz was a long way from pleased with his team's performance against St. Joseph last Saturday and he indicated that he would have plenty of scrimmage this week in preparation for the Marquette game.

Marquette gave the Esquimos a tough scrap last year, being defeated only after they had grabbed a 12 point lead in the first half. Many of the big fellows who worked with the Prison City crew last fall are back in harness again this year and are going stronger than ever.

KIPKE TRIMS SQUAD TO 35

Prepares for Annual Hostilities With Michigan State

Ann Arbor, Sept. 30 (AP)—Coach Harry Kipke today reduced the University of Michigan varsity football squad to 35 as preparations began for the third game of the season, the annual tilt with Michigan State college here Saturday.

With his observations of the two weeks of pre-season practice and the double-header last Saturday with Albion and Mt. Union colleges as his "yard stick," Coach Kipke chose 22 linemen and 13 backs which fall into the following classification: seven ends, six tackles, six guards, three centers, eight halfbacks, two quarterbacks, and three fullbacks.

The remainder of the 60 or more men who survived the pre-season practice were placed on the squad for the "B" team which will have a schedule of its own. In the meantime, however, upon the "B" squad, using the plays of Michigan State, will fall the heavy work of scrimmaging this week against the varsity.

Coach Kipke indicated that his choices might not necessarily be final for the season, throwing out some hope to the "B" men that they may achieve the varsity before the close of the season.

Members of the varsity are: Ends, Captain Truskowski, Draveling, Daniels, Hewitt, Jones, Cornwall and Sikkenza; tackles, Auer, Hayden, Poorman, Roach, Gitman and Bergman; guards, Poe, Steinke, Samuels, Sorenson, Parker and Grinnell; centers, Bovard, Smith, Brown; halfbacks, Simral and Holland; quarterbacks, Wheeler, Hudson, Hoston, Holmes, Dahlen, Priest, Willis and Wilson; fullbacks, Gembs, LaJunesse and Morrison.

WORLD SERIES TICKETS READY

Revenue Men Promise Tough Time for Scalping Business

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP)—The last batch of applications for the world series games between the Cubs and the Athletics to be played at Wrigley field, October 8-9 and 16, were drawn today. Only a small number of seats, all in the grand stand were available.

By tomorrow night, the entire allowance of reserved tickets will be ready for the staff of clerks who will address the envelopes. The tickets will be sent by registered mail to lucky applicants.

Tickets will be placed in the mails, probably by Wednesday or Thursday at the latest. William L. Veec, president of the Cubs, said lucky applicants should receive their tickets by Friday.

President Veec conferred with officials of the internal revenue department today to make scalping of tickets tough for the scalpers. Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackledge, collector of internal revenue, attended the conference. Thirty special agents will go on duty tomorrow as the scalping detail.

Work on the temporary bleachers being constructed over the sidewalks on two streets adjoining the park is being rushed in order that the seats may be available for the start of the series.

Huge platforms are being erected level with the walls of right and left field on which will be placed circus seats to accommodate 8,000 fans. An additional crew of carpenters was put to work today so that the seats will be in place by Friday.

No tickets are reserved for bleacher seats. These will be placed on sale at daybreak on the first day of each game. For these tickets the system of first come, first served will be employed. To prevent scalping of these $1 tickets, the purchaser will be ushered into the park immediately.

Owing to the peculiarities of the National League schedule, the Cubs were idle today, but departed for Cincinnati where they will engage the Reds five days in a row, returning to Chicago to wind up the season with the Pirates next Sunday.

STATE DOCTORS INJURED SQUAD

Ann Arbor Game Looms Up Big for E. Lansing Gridders

East Lansing, Sept. 30 (AP)—Casualties of Saturday's game and the coming game next Saturday with the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, occupied the attention of coaches Crowley and Carberry as the Michigan State college football squad went through a light workout and signal drill today.

Smead, Michigan State's big center, was in the college hospital with a severe cold awaiting the result and was unable to attend practice. Preparation for the game Saturday will include scrimmage throughout the rest of the week.

Strong opposition in Australia to the proposed government tax on gasoline to raise road-improvement funds is expected to defeat the plan.

PAROCHIALS AT BARAGA SAT'Y

Two Backs Indefinitely Out of Brunelle's Lineup

Rumors that the Baraga high school football team have dropped their schedule for this year and that the Rock high school team will take over the schedule were emphatically denied at the Marquette Parochial high school last evening. The St. Joseph Gridders will journey to Marquette to meet the Baraga team Saturday as planned.

Coach Leo Brunelle will have a badly crippled team to face the Baraga lineup in the Prison City this week. Brazeau and LaZeau are nursing sprained ankles which will keep them out of practice until late in the week. They will probably be in condition to work in the game Saturday, however. Brazeau, a half, suffered a "pulled" ligament in his left knee and Lacrosse, fullback, is having scholastic difficulties. Jacobs is also a half and Legeau is a regular tackle.

The Parochials, undaunted by their two reverses and their ill-luck which has pursued them so far this season, started their week's practice at the city park last evening with a resume of the errors made in the Escanaba game and a hard scrimmage. Coach Brunelle indicated last evening that he will send his protégés at a fast clip all week in preparation for their first conference game Saturday.

Dixie Barons Beat Dallas Steers, 8-4

Dallas, Texas, Sept. 30 (AP)—In a see-saw game in which the lead constantly changed hands, the Birmingham Barons put on a strong finish to defeat the Dallas Steers 8-4. The game was the fifth of the Dixie series between the champions of the Southern association and the Texas league. Before today's game the score stood two all. To win the Dixie championship one team must win four contests.

COACHES WORK IN BLUEPRINTS

Games Saturday to Tell Story in Football Strength

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP)—Coach Bob Zuppke and the University of Illinois football squad have no worries over what Kansas will use in the way of plays and formations in the Illinois inaugural Saturday at Urbana, but are wondering how well the Jayhawks will use it.

The Illinois and Kansas coaching staffs sent each other copies of their stuff to save the trouble of scouting, and Zuppke's squad today went to work with the blueprints. The 1927 and 1928 Big Ten champions, along with the other members of the western conference, today were on a two-hour practice session schedule, classes having started. The drill was vigorous but included no rough work and the first scrimmage against the freshmen who will be equipped with Kansas plays, will be held tomorrow.

Fritz Humbert, last year's fullback, was back at his old job today, after having spent two weeks at end.

Klipke Picks 'Em
Indiana's squad started preparation for a visit from Knute Rockne and his Notre Dame Ramblers Saturday, with a long blocking and tackling drill. Pat Page attributing the loss of the Ohio university skirmish Saturday to poor interfering.

Coach Jimmy Phelan of Purdue devoted his time to the linemen, still searching for a wall strong enough to support his backfield. A serious leg injury suffered by Bill Mackie, veteran end, did little to make Phelan's task easier.

Thirty-five men, the pick of the big squad which overcame Albion and Mt. Union Saturday, were assigned to the first squad by Coach Harry Klipke at Michigan Saturday. The "B" squad was given Michigan State college plays and will use them against the varsity tomorrow.

Iowa and Northwestern were given scrimmage sessions. Iowa worked a set of new plays and received on them in actual play. Bruce Thomas, a leading backfield candidate, who has been out because of injuries, reported to Coach Ingerson for the first time today.

Wisconsin started preparation for Colgate's invasion this week, with Whitey Ketalear, one of Coach Thistlethwaite's best tackles, back on the field. Ketalear and Witte and Larson, another pair of linemen, became eligible by passing condition examinations.

Chicago's practice was the most listless since the season started. The eligibility problem at Minnesota also became less acute today, with the report that Clarence Munn, and Bill Brownell, sophomore backs, having passed examinations. They probably will be starters against Coe college Saturday.

Ohio State put in another afternoon of fundamentals, with Coach Sam Willaman still shifting his material in hunting for a combination to send against Wittenberg in the Buckeye opener Saturday.

Kalamazoo—Western State Teachers' college has enrolled 1,914 students since registration opened Wednesday. Classes opened Thursday. The high school of the institution has a capacity enrollment of 296, while the freshman class of the college has 632 students.

RUBE'S SLANTS MAY WORRY CUBS

If Lefty Grove should fall in the coming baseball class, the A's still will have Rube Walberg, veteran southpaw, to shoot at the National league champions. Walberg is a great curve ball pitcher.

Hornsby and Foxx Stand Out in Dope for Series

BY BRIAN BELL (Associated Press Sports Writer) New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—Discussion of the infields to match strength in the world series throw the spotlight on two opposing players, standing out in bold relief, Hornsby of the Cubs and Foxx of the Athletics.

One is at the height of a great career and the other standing on the threshold. Hornsby is the Cub's leading hitter and inspirational player with few equals. Foxx led the American league in hitting for most of the season's play at one position.

Foxx is regarded as a better batsman than Grimm, who will play first base for the Cubs in the series after a six weeks absence from the game on account of injuries, but the Cub veteran is the better fielder. Foxx has many things to learn about the fine art of first base play. Grimm will have the distinction of being the only left handed batsman in the Cub lineup.

Bishop Shaded
Hornsby should outbait Bishop, the Athletic's second sacker, more than 100 points on the basis of their season's work, but here the fielding advantage will rest with the American league. Hornsby is an adequate defensive baseman, but Bishop at times is an extraordinary performer.

Moving to shortstop the Cubs will have the better of the argument if the season's offensive figures are to be relied upon, for English is a much better hitter than Boley.

Norman McMillan, the Cub third baseman probably will play a sound fielding game, but he can not be figured to hit with the power of Jimmy Dykes.

SOX OWNER IS BACK AT HELM

Comiskey, 70, Signs Bush to Lead Contenders for Flag

BY CHARLES W. DUNKLEY (Associated Press Sports Writer) Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP)—Charles A. Comiskey, 70-year-old owner of the Chicago White Sox, returned the pennant wars today, determined to develop a flag contender for the 1930 American league race.

The "Old Roman" made his first by signing Owen "Donie" Bush, until recently leader of the Pirates to manage the club. He will succeed Russell "Lena" Blackburne. Bush will assume charge in December, when radical changes in the personnel of the club are contemplated.

No reference was made as to the terms of Bush's contract, which calls for two years service. It was hinted, however, that he will receive a salary in excess of $20,000 a year.

Bush, who is 41-years old, has a reputation as a high caliber manager as the result of his achievements while piloting the Pirates, the Washington Americans, and the Indianapolis club of the American association. Under his regime the Pirates won the National league flag in 1927 but were no match for the Yankees in the world series. He generally was credited with having built up the Washington club previous to the appearance of Stanley Bucky Harris as the manager of the Senators. While leader of the Indianapolis club, he piloted the club in second place three consecutive seasons.

From Old School
Bush commanded the Pirates for three years, taking up the leadership in 1927, succeeding Bill McKechnie. He resigned on August 28, following the return of his club from a disastrous swing around the eastern end of the National league circuit. The club collapsed through illness, injuries and various other difficulties. The full details of his difficulties with Barney Drayfus, owner of the Pirates, are not generally known, but Comiskey knows about them and is satisfied that Bush is the man he wants.

He is going to manage my team," the Old Roman said today. "Let him go to it. He will have a free hand. And my baseball fortune is his to develop a pennant winner."

Bush is a ball player of the old school. He received his major league training with the battling Detroit Tigers under the leadership of Hughie Jennings. He joined the Tigers in the fall of 1908, as shortstop replacing Charley O'Leary. He starred during the pennant drive of the Tigers in 1909 and sparkled in the world's series of that year against the Pirates. Bush remained with Detroit until 1921 when he was released to Washington as utility infielder. In 1922 he was appointed manager of the Senators succeeding Clyde Milan. Then came his experience as manager of the Indianapolis, and his return to the majors as boss of the Buccaneers.

Good reserve strength is found in both benches. Philadelphia has Hale for third base emergency, Cronin for short, Eddie Collins for second, although it is unlikely that he will leave the coaching line for active service, and Burns for first.

The Cubs can toss Tolson in to relieve Grimm if the first baseman falters. Blair, a hard hitter, can play one of the four infield positions and Beck is a handy man round third, although he does not pack a heavy batting punch.

WET WEATHER UPSETS DOPE

Outsiders Romp to Victory in American Turf Events

BY ORLO L. ROBERTSON (Associated Press Sports Writer) New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—Firm sheets of the American turf were torn asunder today as mud and rain took its toll of the starting fields on three of the four major tracks and outsiders galloped home to victory over what remained of the public choles.

Out at Aqueduct, where the track was described as "not at its best" Homelike and Alayer were the sensations of the six-race card, winning the third and last, respectively, to pay 12 to 1. The Talent, however, scored in the two feature events of the day, the Sewickley stable's Humanist winning the Harbor Hill Steeplechase, which had a net value of $8,775 to the winner, and Gifford A. Cochran's The Beasle accounting for the Belame Handicap and $4,300. Humanist was quoted at 3 to 2 while The Beasle was even money to win, 2 to 5 to place and out for show money.

The victory of Humanist in the jumpers' event was a sparkling performance, the three-year-old colt winning on his own courage as Fitzgerald, who rode him, let the horse make several bad landings. He almost fell two jumps from the finish but recovered to win by eight lengths over Silver Jay. Stalker was four lengths back for third.

MACK IS VICTORIOUS AFTER 15 YEARS' EXPERIMENTING

You are looking at the 1929 champions of the American League, and possibly the world champions. Not since 1914 have Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics won a pennant. They turned the trick this season with a galaxy of stars that included Stuffy McInnis, Eddie Collins, Home Run Baker, and Jack Coombs. Since then the lank pilot of the Athletics has experimented with various players. He's had a good team the past two years, but they accomplished little compared to the New York Yankees. The needed spark was added this spring and the Mackmen proceeded to burn up the league. They have enjoyed a substantial lead over the second place Yankees all season.

LEO DIRKMAN
St. Francis Xavier's church at Spalding was filled with sorrowing relatives and friends Monday morning at 9 o'clock when funeral services were held for Leo Dirkman.

ELEANORE JEAN FIELD
Shelby, Mich., Sept. 28—Eleanore Jean Field, the six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Field, was fatally injured and expired within a few seconds after being struck by a fruit truck driven by Charles McFarland of South Bend, Ind., on Monday afternoon.

The child had gone to the Miller & Raeth meat market on Michigan avenue with her sister, Miss Charlotte Field, and as they left the place of business darted diagonally across the thoroughfare toward the family car which was parked on the other side of the street.

The fruit truck driven by Mr. McFarland was traveling south and parked cars in front of the business places obscured the vision of the driver and the pedestrian from noticing either approaching. The little child ran from behind the parked cars and immediately in front of the oncoming truck and before it could be stopped had hit her and thrown her violently to the pavement.

She is survived by her parents, one sister, Charlotte, and two brothers, Meredith Field of Shelby, and Wayne Field of California.

Her father, A. T. Field, is rural mail carrier on Route No. 4, Shelby, and her mother one of the county's most active women in club and clinic work.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Congregational church with Rev. W. H. Skendlebury in charge, and burial was made at Mt. Hope cemetery.

ANDERS WILLIAM FREYTAG
Funeral services for Anders William Freytag were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the family home and at 2:30 at the Swedish Lutheran church at Isabella with Rev. Henning Danielson officiating.

Many friends attended the funeral services and the profusion of beautiful flowers which were received at the family home proved the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock for Joseph Sudac. Rev. Fr. Bonaventura Kiltroy, O. F. M., officiated at the services and conducted short services at the grave in St. Joseph's cemetery.

The pallbearers were Nick Rodman, Frank Kolich, George Nuhllich, Marko Persin, Drago Valich and Joseph Baldwin.

SEEK TO OPEN BEAVER SEASON

U. P. Sportsmen Meet at Republic; Voght Attends

An open season on beaver in 1930 and a deer census and survey of conditions, obtaining in deer areas in upper Michigan were favored; an increase in the per capita dues from 35 to 50 cents and publication and distribution to members of a bulletin devoted to organization activities were authorized; the black bear and his depredations, alleged failure of the predatory control system and many other subjects were discussed at the annual meeting of the Northern Michigan Sportsmen's association, held at Republic Tuesday. The 1930 meeting will be held in Gwin.

All officers of the association were re-elected for two-year terms. They are Peter Trudell, Jr., Negaunee, president; M. G. DeGabelle, Negaunee, secretary, and Floyd Marble, Gladstone, treasurer. Club vice-presidents, one to be named by each of the affiliated clubs, have not yet been chosen.

The meeting opened at nine o'clock in the Pastime theater. Dinner was served to visiting delegates, officers and guests in the Finnish church by the women of the church. Attendance was unusually large and all affiliated clubs were well represented.

Among the guests present were State Senator Charles W. Richardson, Marquette; Representative Claude Coates, Munising; Representative Claude Millman, Iron Mountain; Conservation Commissioners William E. Newell, Ishpeming, and Edward Voght, Escanaba, and Pat O'Brien, Iron River newspaper man. Dr. C. T. Ferries, of Houghton, acted as toastmaster. John E. Carlson, commander of the Upper Peninsula Legion posts, also was a guest at the session.

Trapper Systems Unsatisfactory. The association went on record as favoring the opening of the bass season on June 25, if the conservation commission finds this date desirable. Many delegates expressed dissatisfaction with the present state trapper system of predatory animal control, though the association took no definite action, as this matter is slated to come before the next session of the legislature. Continued protection for the black bear was urged with the proviso that suitable safeguards be set up to protect the stock rancher and farmer from loss.

Resolutions, submitted by the Negaunee Rod and Gun club and adopted without alteration by the association, were as follows: "The Northern Michigan Sportsmen's association extends its sincere thanks to its friends of the Michigan state legislature for their interest in and support of the hunt & license amendment during a recent session of the legislature and for the many courtesies extended to this association."

"We direct continued efforts of this association for an adequate program of state-owned game refuges surrounded by public hunting grounds. The hunting license fees paid to the state of Michigan must be used to increase and protect game and to create hunting grounds in order that the American system of free hunting may be maintained. The establishment of such a program is paramount to all other issues of interest to sportsmen."

"The Northern Michigan Sportsmen's association stands for the established equity of all American citizens in any fish and game or other outdoor conservation program of state or national need. We recommend as Calumet in 1927 and at Munising in 1928 this association call attention to the need of bass hatcheries and rearing ponds in the upper peninsula. We commend the conservation department for its assurance of an equitable distribution of fry in 1929."

"We again urge the introduction of the capercaillie or some other suitable game bird in the upper peninsula. We commend the state of Michigan for the ever-increasing efficiency of its fire fighting program. We pledge our continued interest and co-operation."

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT.

"The Cocoanuts," which will open a three day visit at the Delft today, is the first film musical comedy as such. Here is the method of musical comedy brought to the screen, all talking, all-singing, all dancing, all laughing. If the lovers have a song in mind when they are in conversation, they sing it. If the chorus feels like interrupting the action with one of their dances, they skip right out. And through it all, the Marx Brothers, the world's four funniest men, the most high powered and popular comedy team on the Broadway stage, twist a ray thread of laughter.

"The Cocoanuts" is the Marx Brothers' great stage hit which played New York at $4.50 for one year. The original stage show by the king of comedians, Irving Berlin. Berlin added a new theme song, "When My Dreams Come True," for the screen presentation and Oscar Shaw and Mary Eaton, in the romantic leads, sing this tuneful melody. The setting is the picturesque seacoast playground of Florida, reproduced with lavish beauty and boundless imagination. Groups of beautiful girls make up the dazzling chorus and the photography introduces many unique and surprising effects.

Indians Arrested For Stealing Boat

Joseph and Ambrose Beaver, two Indians, who formerly lived at Nahma, yesterday began a 30-day sentence at the Delta county jail upon pleading guilty before Justice of the Peace Hupy at Gladstone of stealing a rowboat from Floyd Marble's hunting camp at Round Lake.

The theft was committed last May. After a long investigation the sheriff's department learned that the two Indians, who had later moved to St. Ignace, were involved. They were arrested at St. Ignace on Sunday by Sheriff McCauley, and brought back to this county by the Delta county authorities.

Of Course You Wouldn't Willingly Injure Your Child

Naturally not . . . yet it is surprising how many parents will unwittingly harm their children. Not a day passes in our shoe department that does not bring us at least one tragic example of a parent's negligence. Perhaps it is only a lack of proper knowledge . . . but the result is the same . . . misformed, abused and crippled children's feet.

Most foot ailments of adults can be traced to wrongly fitted shoes in childhood. Not all feet are the same, some are long and slim, others are short and stubby; some have weak or low arches, some are flat . . . they vary in a hundred ways. A child's foot requires an individual analysis of the best shoe that will permit the foot to grow naturally, free from distortions. Children's shoes must be fitted properly . . . the old idea of D and E widths for every child is a dangerous relic that must be discarded. The shoe should be fitted to the foot instead of moulding the foot to the shoe. A tight shoe means corns and bunions; a loose shoe means fallen arches and flat feet; a short shoe means cramped toes and a bunched foot . . . all of them are breeders of pain and misery later on. A well fitted child's shoe, one that fits the foot comfortably and supports the arch properly, means a happy lifetime free from foot troubles.

The children's shoe department in the Fair Store is specializing in outfitting children with correct fitting, well made shoes, at reasonable prices. Widths from AAA to EE are carried in every style. Combination lasts and arch support shoes are carried in full lines for those feet that require unusual forms to fit well. Our shoe expert has given twenty years to studying children's feet and fitting them properly. Our constantly increasing patronage is sufficient proof that the extra service we give is appreciated. The children, themselves, love to come to our new and unique Kiddies Korner shoe section because they are received and cared for properly.

Don't injure your children's feet . . . don't handicap them for life. Start them off right toward a trouble free life by bringing them to the Kiddies Korner for the correct shoes.
