

Nine Calf Club Boys Going To Big Dairy Show

"Nine 4-H calf boys representing seven upper peninsula counties will go on a nine days' tour, from October 12 to 20th, to the National Dairy show at St. Louis, Missouri," said Russell E. Horwood, upper peninsula dairy specialist, yesterday.

The tour is being sponsored by the Upper Peninsula State fair with the Upper Peninsula Development bureau co-operating. Gogebic county is also sending one calf club member.

Those attending this tour are: Egbert Taisma, Rudyard, Chippewa county; Carl Yoder, Manistique, Schoolcraft county; Harold Snyder, Trenary, Alger county; Joe Hierman, St. Nicholas, Delta county; James Rhodes, Iron Mountain, Dickinson county; William Nash, Crystal Falls, Iron county; Romeo Putz, Iron River, Iron county; Robert Johnson, Ishpeming, Marquette county; Arnold Tassava, Ironwood, Gogebic county.

Lee Stewart, county agricultural agent of Schoolcraft county and Mr. Horwood are the leaders of the tour.

Eight of the boys were picked from the calf club achievement contest held at the Upper Peninsula State fair. Each county was allowed to enter its two best calf club members over 15 years of age. They were judged on their accomplishments in club work and their knowledge of dairy husbandry.

The tour is being financed by the Upper Peninsula State fair. Assistance is being given by the Upper Peninsula Development bureau in the furnishing of signs for the tour. "It is the plan of the state fair to send the best calf club members each year on a trip similar to this, with the idea of giving an award for good work done and to stimulate all calf club members to stay in the work and do their best," said Mr. Horwood.

Arnold Tassava of Ironwood was picked in a similar contest conducted in Gogebic county. He will accompany the eight members picked at Escanaba on the tour. "The detailed plans are being worked out and will be announced later," said Mr. Horwood.

NICHOLAS WALCH

Many bereaved relatives and friends attended the last sad rites which were conducted for Nicholas Walch Wednesday morning at nine o'clock at St. Joseph's church when Rev. Fr. Bertrand Labinski was the celebrant at the requiem high mass.

The many beautiful flowers which surrounded the casket at the family home and which filled two large rooms and the large number of spiritual offerings, proved the many warm friendships which Mr. Walch had formed during his life. The home was constantly filled with friends who came to extend their sympathy to the family.

A large number of the floral offerings in baskets were placed on the altars at the church during the services, while others were banked about the grave.

The casket was borne to and from the funeral coach by George Genesee, Michael Walch, Frank Rubens, Charles Ehnerd, Frank Wurth and Nicholas Thines.

The honorary pallbearers representing the Fraternal Order of Eagles, were James Rivest, Louis Schuette, Nels Ahlquist, Emil L'Heureux, William Petry and Etienne Boisclair.

Out-of-town relatives and friends included Miss Marie Scheriff, Vulcan; Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Cook of Saginaw, parents of Mrs. Walch; Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Ayon, Houghton, and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Rantanen, Marquette.

Interment was in the family lot in St. Joseph's cemetery where a long cortege wended its way after the services held at the church.

MRS. FRANK CARL

Funeral services for Mrs. Frank Carl of Wilson will be held this morning at nine o'clock at St. Francis Xavier's church, Spalding, with Rev. Fr. J. Schaal as celebrant at the requiem high mass. Burial will be in the Spalding cemetery.

GEORGE PETERSON

The body of George Peterson will be removed from the Anderson Funeral Home this morning to the family home, 29 Highland avenue, Wells, where funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at two o'clock and at St. Anthony Lutheran church at two-thirty. Dr. C. A. Lund will officiate. Burial will be in the family lot in West Ford River cemetery. A brother arrived from Racine Tuesday and was at the bedside when the end came.

MRS. LA PIERRE

An old resident of Escanaba, Mrs. Anna La Pierre, died last night about 10:30 in St. Francis Hospital. Mrs. La Pierre was about 80 years of age, born in Ireland, and had been a resident of this city for about 53 years, making her home at 513 First Avenue South. Recently the infirmities of old age caused complications in the illness from which she had been suffering for three years, and she was in a coma for a week preceding her death.

There are no relatives in the United States, the only known member of the family being a sister in Ireland.

The body was taken to the Alto funeral home last night, and funeral arrangements have not been made.

Jack Desotelle Bound Over To Circuit Court

Jack Desotelle of Gladstone was arraigned before Justice of the Peace H. E. Ranguette yesterday on a charge of forgery. Waiving examination he was bound over to circuit court. He is being held at the county jail in default of $1,000 bail.

Desotelle was charged with forging a forty dollar check, which he cashed at the Ambrose Theoret store in Flat Rock. He was arrested by Gladstone police at the Fernwood cemetery Monday after he had escaped from a hiding place in Gladstone. De-

Farmers Urged to Report Thefts of Poultry, Produce

All farmers, who have suffered losses of poultry of farm produce as a result of the activities of thieves during the past two months, are urged to notify the sheriff's department at once.

Sheriff Elmer Ewanson stated a reward is also held for violation of parole.

Yesterday that a check-up is being made to determine the extent of the depredations, and with the information furnished by every farmer the department will be in a better position to apprehend the thieves.

A report was received yesterday that the Carroll farmhouse in Flat Rock was broken into between October 1 and '6, but nothing was found to be missing.

The Delta county board of supervisors offers a reward to persons who give information that will lead to the arrest of persons who steal livestock and produce off farms. A fifty dollar reward is given when the offense has been deemed a misdemeanor, and a hundred dollars when it reaches the proportions of a felony.

Mrs. Donald Ramsey of Loveland, Colo., arrived in Escanaba Monday, called by the serious illness of her father, T. W. McDonough.

Arrest, as a preventive or compulsory measure in commercial collection claims, is prohibited by a new law in Greece if the debtor served in the Greek Army and was discharged after 1912, but served later as a reserve.

CHAPTER XLIV.

Eventually Bob had agreed to the trial engagement.

And he began, immediately, being very nice indeed. Molly had spoken of a painting she had seen and loved in Florence. As though he were a genii, and waved a magic sceptre, Bob procured a very fair copy. It was La Maddalena by Carlo Dolci.

The usual conceptions of Magdalene, as Molly had seen them in various galleries, were of older women, with tragic faces. But Carlo Dolci had painted a young girl, of high school age, who had been bad, and was sorry. She was a beautiful, intense child. Her eyes were dark and passionate, and her lips were full, and fashioned for kissing. There was a holy light in her face, and it had been transfused by a great love. Such a girl might have lived in any age. And in any town. Molly thought of her as a girl of the centuries. She had wanted to procure a copy ever since she saw the original.

Molly knew nothing at all about paintings. She had seen only two in her life that she would have liked particularly to own. The first was La Maddalena. And the other was Correggio's Virgin Adoring the Baby.

Now Bob had found the Magdalene for her, and he had not forgotten that she coveted the most exquisite of Madonnas. He thought he knew where a copy might be obtained. A modern reproduction. Molly was touched and delighted.

She hung her lovely Magdalene where the light played on her upturned face. And, because Bob had given her the beautiful thing, she felt—almost—as though she could love him, because he had brought her unexpected happiness.

Bob was proving a rather pathetic lover. Like O. Henry's waitress who longed for romance, he tried too hard to please. He bought Molly lollipops and peanuts, because she had said she liked them.

And he took her to all sorts of odd and dirty places to eat. Molly knew that he hated restaurants that pretended to be Bohemian. She knew that a soiled tablecloth could ruin a meal for him. And that arty places were his pet abomination. But, because she liked poking about, he took her to inns that once were barns, and still smelled slightly horsey. And a kitchen where the guests sat about a long table, and ate from common dishes. They went to a French place, where napkins were never used; and to an Armenian cafe, where the chef wore a dirty apron and waited on table. And all the time, Molly knew that Bob would have sold all Bohemia for fresh linen and immaculate service.

He hated sports. But he bought season tickets for the Braves, because Molly was a baseball fan and had a weakness for Hank Gowdy.

"You're too good, Bob!" she protested. "We're always doing the things I like. It's time you took me to something intellectual. How about an art exhibit or a musicale? You must be bored to death with my lowbrow entertainment."

But that evening he bought tickets for the circus. And the next night he took her to a movie.

tion can cope with; indeed, they seem almost too tough to solve even then. Is the Mexican president sure he wants them to spread south of the Rio Grande

She felt as though she might faint, or cry aloud, or do something altogether nonsensical and hysterical.

"You don't know my voice?"

"It isn't Jack Wells?"

"Right the first time," he told her, gaily. "How are you, Molly?"

"I, I'm fine," she assured him politely. "What are you doing in Boston, Jack?"

"I came over to see you," he informed her surprisingly. "I didn't have the nerve to write, or wire. I was afraid you wouldn't see me. It's been a long time, Molly."

"An awfully long time," she wavered. "What do you want to see me about?"

"Gosh, Molly, I want to talk to you! I've got to see you. What are you doing now? Couldn't I go out tonight? Red Flynn's here. He's got a car. We could be out there in 10 minutes. Red has a date. He'd just drop me. Please, Molly."

"I, I'm afraid not. Not tonight, Jack. I'm expecting a guest now. He ought to be here any minute. I'm afraid he'd think—"

"Tell him you're not at home."

"But I can't do that, Jack. The fact is—it's Bob Newton. He'd think it was awfully funny."

"Bob Newton!" he exclaimed. "Why Bob would understand."

"No," she insisted. "I'm afraid he wouldn't. Make it tomorrow, Jack. Come in the morning, if you'd like."

"Oh, let me come now!"

But Molly was firm. She had a premonition that Bob had been drinking. Knowing how insanely jealous he was, she felt that it would be foolish to precipitate a scene. But, when she had disconnected, she reproached herself because she had not let Jack come, and now it was too late.

She would wait until 10 o'clock. If Bob had not come then, she would telephone the hotels, and locate Jack. Or perhaps Red Flynn would call, and let her know where she might reach him.

By Douglas Malloch

THE LITTLE CHILDREN

The little children, chide them not,
Though noisy at their play,
Although in yonder vacant lot
They make a holiday.
He does not know a father's cares,
The boy with ball and bat,
The girl the burden mother bears—
Thank heaven for that.

The little children fill the room
With many a merry shout,
They have not learned how great the gloom,
That shuts the earth about.
The world's a fairyland, and elves
The dancing lass and lad,
But, if we cannot laugh ourselves,
Let them be glad.

The little children find it fair,
This world we find so drear,
But time shall bring the graying hair,
The grief, the losing year,
So greet them not with frowning brow,
Reprove the shouts of glee;
For, if they are not happy now,
When shall they be?

Dear Red! It was like him to try to patch up things.

"I shan't tell Jack I've a better," she decided. "It would simply annoy him."

But she had better tell him, she decided, about Bob. Better tell him right straight off. Bob was being a perfectly ideal fiancé. While he played the game, she must. Besides, it was much safer to tell the truth. . . . Goodness, next time she saw Jack, she said Bob would probably be married!

She covered her face with her hands, and began, quite suddenly, to cry. The door bell rang, and still she cried. Then she remembered that Natsu had gone to bed. She must make herself presentable.

She dabbed her face with powder, and looked at herself in the glass. Her nose was red and swollen, and her eyes were puffed.

"If it's Bob," she thought, "he'll think I've been crying, because I was worried about him."

It may be hard for the scrub to sit on the sidelines, but he might console himself with the thought that the regulars get all the breaks.

SECOND HAND TRIUMPHS.

THE chief criticism of American sports has always been that most people participate in them as spectators rather than as players.

Several million people will enjoy our college football games this autumn—but only a few hundred will do any of the playing. The rest will sit in the grandstand and watch.

It is the same with baseball. Millions of people are extremely fond of the game—but not one in a thousand ever plays. Most of us get our baseball at second-hand, watching someone else get the exercise that we might be getting.

Now, however, comes Dr. A. A. Brill, famous psychiatrist, to say that this state of affairs is altogether proper.

Writing in the current North American Review, Dr. Brill declares that sitting in the grandstand is good for us—better for us, in fact, in most cases, than actually playing the games themselves.

Here's the way he explains it: The average man has an itch for athletic supremacy. He longs to display physical prowess. But the cards are stacked against him. It simply isn't in him. No matter how hard he tried, he could never make a good athlete.

Yet his spirit demands that he become one. So he goes to a baseball game as a spectator and, subconsciously identifies himself with the men on the field. When Babe Ruth slams the ball over the scoreboard the fan, in the secret recesses of his heart, does the same thing himself. He shares in Ruth's triumph. His psychic urge for supremacy is satisfied—and he is, actually, healthier than he would have been if he had stayed at home.

Perhaps this explains more things than our fondness for watching baseball, football and boxing contests. It may explain, also, our age-old tendency to be hero worshippers in other walks of life.

Lindbergh, for instance, did something that none of us can ever do, but that all of us, secretly, would like to do. He triumphed over darkness, loneliness, and fear. Quite aside from the mechanics of flying, we know that we ourselves could never do that. We should not have the nerve. So we transfer our desire to Lindy's shoulders, and share in his victory.

Then there was a president named Roosevelt. He was the very thing that we would like to be and are not. He was outspoken, always. He feared neither man nor devil. He had a genius for defying powerful people, powerful forces.

We—most of us, anyhow—are too submissive for our own good, and we know it. But Teddy—couldn't we identify ourselves with him, bare our teeth when he bared his, thunder when he thundered, rage when he raged? We could and we did; and Roosevelt, in consequence, was idolized by millions of people.

It'll be a long time before the race gets over its hero worship. If the day comes when all men are brave, loyal, honest, fair-minded and energetic, the Roosevelts and Lindberghs will lose their luster—just as Babe Ruth and Red Grange wouldn't excite a race of athletes.

Until then, however, most of us will have to take our triumphs at second-hand.

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

HAVE WE A RULING CLASS?

A GOOD many things connected with the Shearer hearing have given us an acute pain; but nothing is much more painful than a little incident related by Rodney Dutcher, well-known Washington correspondent.

Dutcher tells how one of a large group of people who could not get in the crowded committee room to attend the hearings protested when a guard let two women in ahead of a long line that had been waiting for hours.

"Those women," explained the guard, "are members of the D. A. R. and therefore they have precedence."

Just why this should be so, unless we are developing a "ruling class" based on birth and ancestry, with all the manifestations of snobbery that go with such an institution, is a little bit hard to understand. A D. A. R. has no more right to precedence in a hearing of that kind than a son of an immigrant.

Football is an excellent game; but did the Mexican president ever pause to consider whether Mexico is ready to cope with such perplexing questions as "over-emphasis," "alumni proselyting activities, huge stadiums, scouting agreements, eligibility rules an dall the rest?"

ORDINARY courage and honesty—which, unfortunately, aren't quite as "ordinary" as we like to suppose—have a far greater effect on the life of a community than we generally realize.

Once they are exhibited they seem to have the power to start a sort of ferment which keeps on working, endlessly.

5,000 Plumbers Are Affected by State Licensing Statute

Approximately 5,000 Michigan plumbers will be affected by the new law which went into operation August 23, requiring the licensing after January 1, 1930, of all plumbers in the state according to an announcement from the Michigan department of health which has supervision of the enforcement of the law.

Both master and journeyman plumbers are urged by the department to file their applications for licensing immediately.

Plumbing inspection will be started after the first of the year, when the system of licensing has gone into effect, the announcement continues.

Inspectors working under the direction of the bureau of engineers of the Michigan department of health will carry out the provisions of the law.

Text of Note on Disarmament Made Public in United States

Washington, Oct. 8 (AP)—Great Britain has officially informed the Japanese, French and Italian governments that the Anglo-American negotiations on naval limitation have reached "a stage at which it is possible to say that there is no point outstanding of such serious importance as to prevent an agreement."

This declaration is contained in the invitation to a five power conference at London next January which was handed to the Japanese, French and Italian ambassadors at London last night.

Since the American government concurred beforehand in the terms of the invitation, a formal draft was not handed to Ambassador Dawes. Instead he was given copies of the notes to Japan, France and Italy, signed by Arthur Henderson, British secretary for foreign affairs, and the following note addressed to himself:

"Your excellency: I have the honor to transmit to you herewith copies of the notes which I am today addressing to the French, Italian and Japanese ambassadors in London inviting the French, Italian and Japanese governments to participate in a five power conference to deal with the question of naval disarmament, which is proposed to hold in London in the latter part of January 1930."

"Two. As I understand that the government of the United States concur in the terms of the enclosed notes, I shall be grateful if your excellency will be so good as to confirm my impression that they will find it possible to participate in the conference above mentioned."

The text of the identical notes to the French, Italian and Japanese ambassadors follows: "Your excellency: I have the honor to inform your excellency that the informal conversations on the subject of naval disarmament which have been proceeding in London during the last three months between the prime minister and the ambassador of the United States have now reached a stage at which it is possible to say that there is no point outstanding of such serious importance as to prevent an agreement."

"From time to time the prime minister has notified your excellency of the progress made in these discussions and I now have the honor to state that provisional and informal agreement has been reached on the following principles:

"WILL YOUR BATTERY START YOUR CAR IN COLD WEATHER? Gamble's Super-specialty built for winter driving has 50% more cold weather power—Two tone crackle finish case—$1.50 allowance for any old battery."

"One. The conversations have been one of the results of the treaty for the renunciation of war signed in Paris in 1919 which brought about a realignment of our national attitudes on the subject of security in consequence of the provision that war should not be used as an instrument of national policy in the relations of nations one to another. Therefore the peace pact has been regarded as the starting point of agreement."

"Two. It has been agreed to adopt the principle of parity in each of the several categories and that such parity shall be reached by December 31st, 1936. Consultation between His Majesty's government in the United Kingdom and His Majesty's government in the Dominions has taken place and it is contemplated that the program of parity on the British side should be related to naval forces of all parts of the empire."

"Three. The question of battleship strength was also touched upon during the conversations and it has been agreed in these conversations that subject to the assent of other signatory powers it would be desirable to reconsider the battleship replacement programs provided for in the Washington treaty of 1922 with the view of diminishing the amount of replacement construction implied under that treaty."

"Four. Since both the government of the United States and His Majesty's government in the United Kingdom adhere to the attitude that they have publicly adopted in regard to the desirability of securing the total abolition of the submarine, this matter gave rise to discussion during the recent conversations. They recognize however that no final settlement on this subject can be reached except in conference with the other naval powers."

"In view of the scope of these discussions both governments consider it more desirable that a conference should be summoned to consider the categories not covered by the Washington treaty and to arrange for and deal with the questions covered by the second paragraph of article 21 of that treaty. It is our earnest hope that the (blank) government will agree to the desirability of such a conference. His Majesty's government in the United Kingdom and the government of the United States are in accord that such a conference should be held in London at the beginning of the third week of January, 1930, and it is hoped that the (blank) government will be willing to appoint representatives to attend it."

"A similar invitation is being addressed to the governments of (blank) and the United States and His Majesty's governments in the Dominions are being asked to appoint representatives to take part in the conference. I should be grateful if your excellency would cause the above invitation to be addressed to the (blank) government."

"In the same way as the two governments have kept your excellency informally au courant of the recent discussions, so now His Majesty's government will be willing, in the interval before the proposed conference, to continue informal conversations with your excellency on any points which may require elucidation. The importance of reviewing the whole naval situation at an early date is so vital in the interests of general disarmament that I trust that your excellency's government will see their way to accept this invitation and that the date proposed will be agreeable to them."

"His Majesty's government of the United Kingdom propose to communicate to you in due course their views as to the subjects which they think should be discussed at the conference, and will be glad to receive a corresponding communication from the (blank) government."

"It is hoped that at this conference the principal naval powers may be successful in reaching agreement. I should like to emphasize that His Majesty's government have discovered no inclination in any quarter to set up new machinery for dealing with the naval disarmament question; on the contrary, it is hoped that by this means a text can be elaborated which will facilitate the task of the League of Nations preparatory commission and of the subsequent general disarmament conference."

No white bread will be available in Soviet Russia for the next two years, it is said.

Honor Rev. Palm, Pastor 13 Years

The Rev. and Mrs. O. R. Palm were given a reception at the parlors of the Swedish Methodist church Tuesday evening when practically every member of the congregation and a large number of friends attended the function.

Talks were given by the Rev. K. J. Hammar of Norway and the Rev. G. A. Schoogren of Iron Mountain. Oscar Gidlund, a trustee of the church, gave the presentation speech and presented Rev. Palm with a substantial sum of money as a token of esteem from the members of the congregation.

Rev. Palm was reappointed at the last conference to the local church and now begins his thirteenth year at pastor here.

Mrs. Lambert Peterson, president of the Ladies Aid society, was chairman of the program and refreshments committee, and was assisted by other members of the congregation. The Misses Gleisner sang a duet and Ed Anderson gave a violin solo.

The Rev. Palm responded in a few well-chosen words and thanked the congregation for their encouragement and the purse presented to him.

The parlors were decorated with autumn leaves and seasonal flowers, and presented a beautiful picture.

Fire In Truckload Of Furniture Does Considerable Damage

Fire in a motor-truck loaded with furniture enroute to Rapid River to Gladstone did damage at about $300 before it was extinguished by the Gladstone fire department late Tuesday afternoon. The household goods belonging to O'Neil D'Amour of Rapid River was being brought to Gladstone in a truck. It is believed that a cigarette stub, a lighted match or some other burning missile was carelessly tossed into the load where it ignited mattresses and other articles. The firemen met the load at the corner of Ninth and Wisconsin where they extinguished the flames.

VALUE far above the PRICE

IN REVIEWING the many advantages of the Ford car, it is particularly interesting to note the relation between value and price.

The low first cost is a point to keep in mind at all times because it means a considerable saving to you in the purchase of the car.

Of even greater importance, however, is the reason for this low price and the manner in which it has been achieved without sacrifice of quality or performance.

Every purchaser shares the benefits of the Ford policy of owning the source of many raw materials—of making thousands of cars a day—of selling at a small margin of profit—of constantly giving greater and greater value through the vast industrial organization that has been built up for the making of this car.

A new degree of excellence has been brought within reach of all the people through the development of new manufacturing machines and the discovery and working out of new manufacturing methods.

Evidence of this is found in the extremely close limits of measurement maintained in the manufacture of vital parts. Some of these are held true to within a maximum variation of three ten-thousandths of an inch (.0003), reducing friction and wear and resulting in greater reliability, longer life and better performance.

As the quality of workmanship has been increased through the accuracy of the machine, so has the quality of materials been increased. The savings resulting from new manufacturing economies have been put right back into the car. Through typical Ford methods, materials once thought too expensive for a low price car have been made available for use in the Ford.

Today, more than ever, it is an outstanding example of high quality at low cost. Were it made in any other way, under any other business and profit policy, it would unquestionably cost you much more than the present price.

The use of the Triplex shatter-proof glass for the windshield is a definite indication of the quality that has been built into the Ford car. So are the four Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers. The five steel-spoke wheels. The silent, fully enclosed six-brake system. The aluminum pistons. The chrome silicon alloy valves. The simplicity and efficiency of the lubrication, cooling, ignition and fuel systems. The large number of ball and roller bearings. The extensive use of fine steel forgings instead of castings or stampings. The many other mechanical features that count so much in reliability, economy and long life.

All of these are important considerations to every man and woman who is contemplating the purchase of a motor car. All are important reasons why the Ford delivers a value far above the price.

HEALTH

Actually all hair is superfluous for civilized man. It is generally considered to be a vestige of the time when man roamed about without clothing and required hair for protection against wind, winter and sunlight.

In the present state of human development, it is customary to have a certain amount of hair on various portions of the body, but not every person has the same amount of hair on all of the portions. Thus, man has a growth of hair on cheeks, chin and upper lip and a considerable amount of this is sometimes taken as a sign of virility, for the simple reason that women have little or none on the face.

Women with a considerable amount of hair on the upper lip, cheeks, chin or chest, get sufficient commiseration to worry them into psycho-asthenia over the presence of the extraordinary hirsutism. It is generally believed by scientific men that the glandular condition of the body and heredity are primarily responsible for the extra hair.

It has been stated that the use of cold cream, vaseline or ointments will stimulate the growth of the hair, but there seems to be not the slightest scientific evidence to support such a claim.

The removal of the hair is a constant problem. The hair can be removed by shaving, the hair can be pulled out, it may be removed by chemical depilatories, it may be bleached with hydrogen peroxide, finally it may be removed by the use of the X-ray or the electric needle.

The electric needle removes hair permanently, but the method is difficult and it is not possible to remove more than a few hairs at a time. The removal of the hair by the use of the X-ray is not permanent and repeated use may sometimes cause the hardening of the skin and has even been related to the development of cancer.

Angina Pectoris is a painful condition of the heart which develops not infrequently in old age and which is associated in many instances with a hardening of the blood vessels that supply the heart with nutrition.

Dr. Harlow Brooks has recently pointed out that there are many families particularly likely to suffer with hardening of the arteries, high blood pressure, and other symptoms associated with hardening of the arteries. In these families, deaths from angina pectoris or from apoplexy are the usual form.

Doctor Brooks believes that any family which has such a record should train its youthful members to a course of life which will help perhaps to protect them against this apparently inevitable future. The young people of a family in which the older members have died from angina pectoris, should not undertake football, rowing or long distance running in high school or in college.

Adequate physical exercises should be begun in early life and continued in temperance as the person grows older. The special exercises for those of families with high blood pressure and heart disease are walking, golf, swimming and horseback riding, but never in excess.

The person who is a member of a family with high blood pressure or with heart disease must

Escanaba Club's President Tells Of State Session

Mrs. L. P. Treiber, president of the Escanaba Woman's club, has returned from Lansing where she attended the annual convention of the State Federation of Women's clubs as the local delegate. The meetings were held in the capitol building and many important business and social sessions were attended by the 1,000 club women, 900 of whom were delegates and 24 were from the upper peninsula.

Among the principal speakers at the convention were Judge Florence Allen of the Ohio state supreme court; Mrs. Lillian M. Gilbreth, efficiency engineer of New York City; Mrs. Poole of Washington, D. C., vice president of the General Federation of Women's clubs; and Mrs. Mina Van Winkle, president of the International Association of Policewomen.

Mrs. Gilbreth spoke on the satisfaction received from skill, and urged the women to take up hobbies to exercise their individual talents. Mrs. Van Winkle spoke on social problems and politics; Mrs. Poole discussed federation movements, and Judge Allen used "Our Heritage" as her subject. Governor Fred W. Green extended a hearty welcome to the delegates and visitors.

Several banquets, dinners and breakfasts were given with speakers at each meeting and the women were shown through the college and civic buildings in Lansing.

The $2,000,000 foundation fund which was asked for by the national federation was voted after several days' discussion. Michigan's share of the amount was set for $60,000 and women from the national federation were there to urge

Chicago Office of Bureau Is Closed

The Chicago tourist and resort information office of the Upper Peninsula Development bureau has been closed for the season. The office is located at 103 W. Jackson boulevard, and bus route officials are planning to maintain it next year in co-operation with resort organizations from lower Michigan.

"This is one of the most useful and satisfactory co-operative publicity efforts that the bureau has ever engaged in," said George N. Hardor, president. "The whole state has been featured in Chicago for the first time in an adequate way, and the results have been beyond question. Nothing like the number of Chicago and Illinois car licenses was ever seen in this territory before."

Among the cases of food adulteration discovered by test recently have been paraffin wax in lard, sulphur in barley, maize starch in mustard, sand in mixed spice and cinnamon, zinc in elder and tea cream, and rice in flour and starch in suet.

"Now he's always hungry,"

...says MICHIGAN mother!

"JOSEPH is absolutely the picture of health again," says Mrs. C. F. Moore, 85 Avalon Avenue, Detroit. "A few weeks ago we had to force him to eat; now he's always hungry."

"I knew what to do when he became bilious, half-sick and listless, because we've always known about California Fig Syrup. Joseph's coated tongue and bad breath cleared up with the first few spoonfuls; and in just a few days his stomach and bowels were acting perfectly. He's gaining right along now."

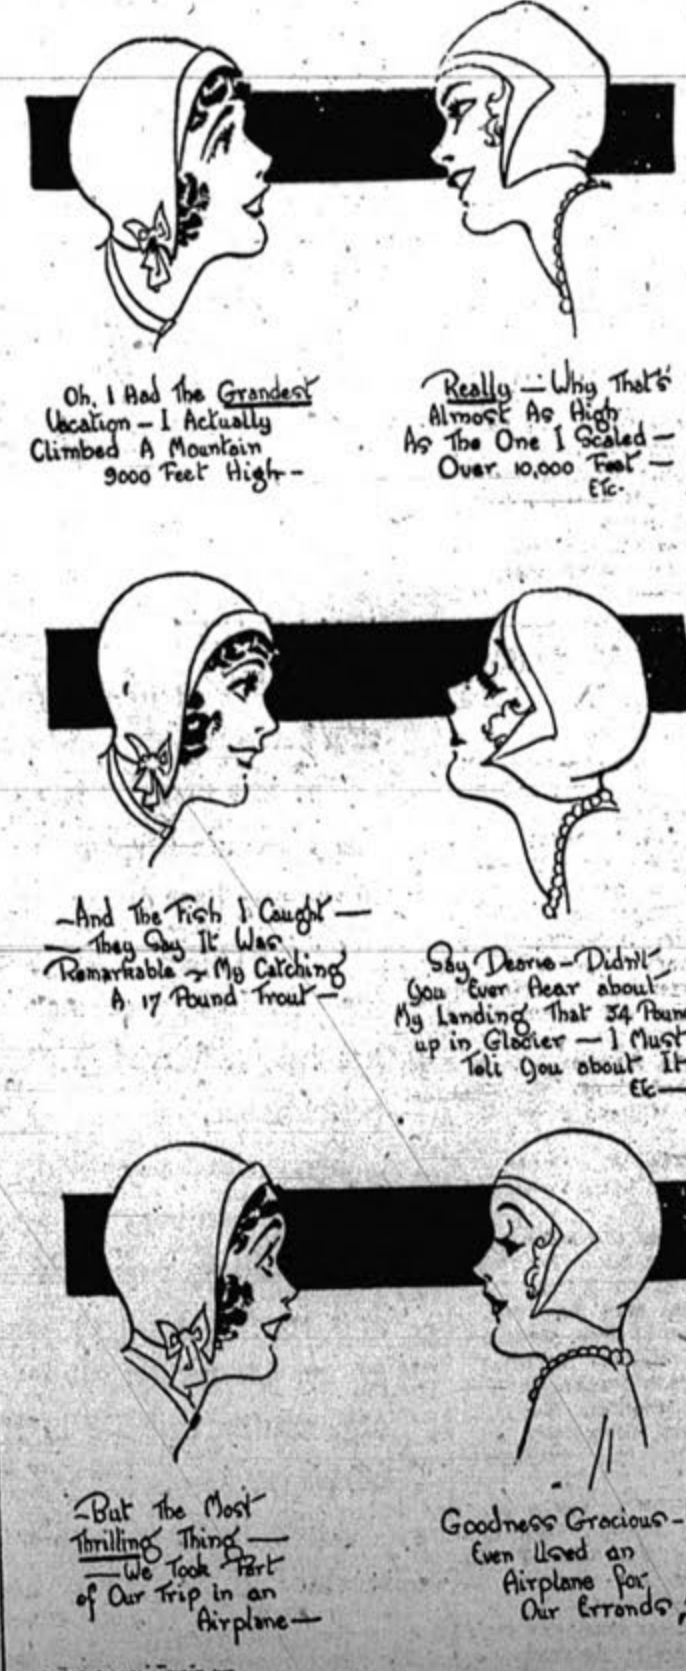

California Fig Syrup has the full endorsement of the medical world. A pure vegetable product, loved by children. A gentle, but thorough cleanser of a youngster's system and a gentle energizer for sluggish bowels. A stimulator for lagging appetites and digestions; a help in building sturdy limbs and robust bodies.

The name California is important. No imitator can put that on his product.

WHERE LINDY SEARCHES FOR LOST MAYA CITIES

The jay-buyer

You know the jay-walker—in fact, you've probably burned your tires at one time or another in avoiding him. He crosses the street wherever and however he pleases. He takes intersections on a diagonal. He's never content to follow the regular path. He thinks he's saving time. But is he? The dodging, jumping and backing use up more time than it would have taken to follow the regular path. And he's taking a needless risk.

Mr. Jay-walker has a brother—the jay-buyer. He always knows a way to buy things cheaper. He knows of a man who sells radios dirt cheap—"makes them himself." He has found a little unknown tire maker—"his tires cost about half what you pay for advertised ones." He's found a way to "beat the price of gasoline." He thinks he's saving money. But is he?

Some how or other he just can't make his income go as far as Bill, across the way. Yet Bill has the habit of reading advertisements and buying standard goods.

Contest Vocalists to Broadcast Over WWJ Monday Nite

Miss Ruth Sundwick, music supervisor of the Escanaba public schools will be among the participants in the 1929 national radio audition that will be heard over Radio Station WWJ, Detroit, at 10:30 o'clock Monday night, October 14.

Contestants from every section of the state who have won in local auditions will be put on the air. The young man and young woman scoring highest honors in this contest will represent the state at the district audition to be held in Chicago next month.

Michigan listeners may play a deciding part in the selection of the state's winners, since votes of the radio audience will count 60 points in the selection of the victors, against 40 points allowed the jury of musical authorities who will cooperate in judging. All the contestants are between 18 and 25 years of age and have never been heard professionally as singers.
