425 MILLIONS AVAILABLE TO U.S. VETERANS

BONUS PAYMENTS OPPOSED BY TREASURY

BY DAVID LAWRENCE (Copyright 1931 by the Escanaba Press) Washington, Jan. 2.—Cognizance is being taken by the administration of the growing agitation among veterans of the world war with respect to the cashing of their bonus certificates.

There are at present outstanding 3,395,000 certificates with a maturity value of $3,420,000,000 or an average of more than $1,000 each.

When congress in 1924 passed the existing law provision was made whereby the veterans could borrow on their certificates, after the latter had been in effect for two years, an amount based on a reserve value.

There are at present outstanding 3,395,000 certificates with a maturity value of $3,420,000,000 or an average of more than $1,000 each.

RESIGNS JUST GEORGE AKERSON

AKERSON WILL LEAVE HOOVER

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—George Akerson is approaching a new turn in the path which has led him from an obscure berth as cub reporter to the White House as secretary to the president.

His resignation was announced today by President Hoover, with an expression of regret that he should lose "an old friend" from his personal service.

Mr. Hoover said the new post offered two or three times the compensation provided by the government and that Akerson's responsibility to his family dictated that he accept.

The chief executive, in response to questions from Washington correspondents, said a successor had not been chosen, but probably would be appointed by the middle of the month.

"It is with a feeling of deep regret," Akerson said, "that I sever my connection with the president. However, such an opportunity to assure the financial security of my family may not soon again offer itself."

Akerson became associated with Mr. Hoover in 1926 after a newspaper career that led from police headquarters to the managing editor's chair and then to the capital as Washington correspondent.

Afternoon Nap Better For Baby, Scientists Reveal at Convention

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, (Asst. Press Science Editor) Cleveland, Jan. 2 (AP)—The fine tungsten filament in your electric lamp is the spring of the scale with which science has weighed the earth's 6,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons.

If your baby needs more sleep it is not so good to put him to bed earlier at night. An afternoon nap is better.

With these extremes illustrating the scope of its researches, the American Association for the Advancement of Science today closed its eighty-seventh annual meeting.

Eliminate Errors To weight the earth more accurately than has been done before, science merely had to send the tungsten filament supply house in Washington to get some tungsten filament, and then do six years intensive work at measuring and calculating.

The ordinary commercial filament was the heart of the scales as described by Dr. Paul R. Heyl of the U. S. bureau of standards, Washington. Stronger and more flexible than the fine steel wire previously used the tungsten helped to eliminate errors.

A wire one thousandth of an inch thick suspended a tiny bar made to resemble a dumbbell by having a two-ounce glass ball attached to each end.

The rotational movement, Dr. Heyl said, was caused by the gravitational pull of the big weights upon the glass balls, a pull equivalent approximately to the weight of the period at the end of this sentence.

CUT EXPENSES OF STATE, HE TELLS BOARD

PAYROLL MUST NOT HAVE PARASITES, SAYS GOVERNOR

BY GILBERT T. SHILSON, Associated Press Staff Writer. Lansing, Jan. 2 (AP)—Governor Wilbur M. Brucker grasped the reins of state government today with a firm demand for reduced payroll, retrenchment in departmental and institutional expenses and more work for the state's state employees receive.

Brucker laid down a broad schedule for departments to follow. He asserted that while many old state employes have been kept on the payroll because of sympathy, it is the duty of state heads to remember the "unsung song of distress of the taxpayers who must provide the funds for the governmental payroll."

NEGRO SOUGHT AS KIDNAPER

Busch Does Not Desire to Prosecute Man Who Abducted Grandson

St. Louis, Jan. 2 (AP)—Charles V. Abernathy, 28 year old negro and the father of seven children who New Year's eve kidnaped 13 year old Adolphus Busch Orthwein, traded the boy back to his parents for his liberty and still was at large tonight.

Police were conducting a wide search for the negro, however, with St. Louis county authorities planning to bring state prosecution against him as the abductor of the grandson of August A. Busch, president of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., and great grandson of Adolphus Busch, late multi-millionaire brewer.

Identification of the kidnaper came today and was followed shortly afterward by the arrest of Pearl Abernathy, St. Louis negro real estate dealer and father of the abductor. The father of Abernathy yesterday brought about the return of young Orthwein, who was restored to his parents after 20 hours captivity in a small frame house in Webster Groves, a suburb, where Charles Abernathy and his family had been living in destitute circumstances.

The police questioned the senior Abernathy throughout the day, but held him in communication and would give no details, other than that he admitted his son was a kidnaper.

Boy Is Returned
Shortly before Percy J. Orthwein and Harry Troll, his attorney, discovered "Buppie" Orthwein, the kidnaped boy standing on a county road near the Orthwein estate, the senior Abernathy had telephoned Orthwein the boy was safe and then conferred with Orthwein, Troll and August A. Busch, Jr.

"As father to father," Troll said the senior Abernathy told Orthwein "I want to give you back your boy. You are worried about your son and I am worried about mine."

The Orthwein and Busch families refused to divulge details and stood by their promise to tell nothing if the boy was returned to them unharmed. They did not desire to prosecute the abductor and Troll said if it was found the kidnaper was driven to his crime by extreme want, it was possible the Busch family would find employment for him.

No ransom money was demanded or paid, they said. Prosecutor Harry Castlen of St. Louis county, where the Orthwein estate is located in an exclusive district, said, however, the negro kidnaper would be vigorously prosecuted by the state, if he is captured and the police succeeded in getting evidence on which to proceed.

EINSTEIN TO TRY TO SOLVE BIG PROBLEM

Maitre and Tolman (mathematicians of California Institute of Technology) show a view that fits well into the general theory of relativity.

The Berlin professor seems very happy to be among so many men working on physical tests of his relativity principle. A number of them have completed tests supporting his principle and further revelations are expected.

Einstein reveals another problem puzzling research workers, it is as to the nature of light. Whether light conforms to a wave or corpuscular theory is the problem. He reveals not only light but also matter has been disclosed by modern physics to show characteristics of both theories. Einstein hopes both will be united in the same law applying to light and the construction of this law also will make it applicable to matter.

Threats to Force Extra Session Are Heard at Capital

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—New threats to force an extra session of congress in the spring were heard at the capital today but senate administration leaders countered with expressions of confidence that the business could be completed by the March 4 adjournment.

Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, threatened to force an extra session if the house fails to pass the senate's resolution to block railway consolidations. He is opposed to the proposed merger of the eastern railroads into four units.

Administration leaders have believed the pending business could be cleared away by March 4 if there was definite assurance from President Hoover that he would not call a special session of the senate for consideration of the world court. There was an impression tonight that the president would state his position shortly.

SCHOOL GIRL IS SHOT TO DEATH

This is Elizabeth Johnson, 17-year-old Port Arthur (Tex.) high school girl, who was found slain in an auto in front of a parsonage and for whose death Robert L. Williams, 18, Texas University sophomore, is held. Williams says she was shot to death by some unknown man while he was trying to get a minister to help him become reconciled to the girl after a quarrel.

during the month of January. It is too early to say whether any new legislation will be pressed for passage during the present short session but the administration feels that during the next two months the elasticity of the present system of borrowing on bonus certificates will be tested and if any modifications are needed they can be presented at the December session. Meanwhile some of the members of congress are conferring with veterans organizations to determine whether any change in the existing plan should be made. The particular impetus behind the movement at present is a belief that the advancement of funds to the veterans will put money in circulation and help those who may be unemployed. The treasury department on the other hand is opposed to any increase in expenditures at this time which would require an increase in taxation, because the latter might be an influence in retarding business recovery.

POLICE SEEK GIRL SLAYER

which he examined the girl's body. "The body had been washed, the face powdered, hair neatly roomed, arms folded across the breast. An immaculate pillow case was under the head," the doctor said.

It was the undertaker who discovered the death was unnatural. The doctor said a bullet wound, carefully plugged with hair, was discovered.

Inspector Shelby said that when his men went back to the house late Wednesday night, they found no clean pillow case, but two sofa pillows, one of which was blood-stained. A .25 calibre shell lay on the floor beside the cot in the basement room. A .25 calibre bullet was removed from the girl's head.

The suspect is not now held, the inspector said, but he believes he may secure additional information from those already detained. He said the girl had many suitors after she was separated from All-heson, about four years ago. A decree of annulment was granted last month in a suit filed by the girl's mother.

Ex-Convict Sought Assaulted Another Girl, Says Officer

Ponca City, Okla., Jan. 2 (AP)—Earl Quinn, ex-convict sought as the slayer of Jesse and Zelia Griffith, Oklahoma school teachers slain on a highway near Tonkawa early last Sunday, was identified from a photograph today as the assailant of another young woman.

From Muskogee, Okla., Sheriff Joe Cooper informed his office today a young married woman had identified a photograph of Quinn as that of a man she said attacked her almost at the same place on the highway the Blackwell school teacher-sisters were shot to death. Officers said the license number of Quinn's motor car was the same as that on the vehicle used by the alleged attacker.

Quinn, former Missouri convict sought throughout the middle west for the Griffith deaths, was known to have paraded U. S. highway No. 77, the road beside which the "sisters" bodies were found, early the day the Griffiths left their home in Blackwell to return to their respective schools. Officers say he was armed and crazed with drink.

The younger sister, Jesse, 24, was attacked. Kay county officers today confirmed Mrs. Quinn, who has been under surveillance in the Newkirk jail as a material witness.

The attack on the Muskogee woman, whose name was not disclosed, occurred "Thanksgiving Day. Her assailant, she said, crowded her motor car from the highway about daybreak, smashed through locked doors and forcing her to enter his own machine, drove to a side road where the assault took place.

players who do little but draw their pay, conditions must be remedied. Every department head is going to cooperate. There is to be no favoritism."

The governor told his aides that persons working for the state should not be allowed to derive income from private enterprises "on the side."

Economy Meetings.
"Governmental employees should not be allowed to compete in private fields. If state workers are not satisfied with the remuneration they receive from the state many others would be glad to have their places."

Brucker mentioned, as something to be remedied, families having several members on the state payroll.

As a result of the series of economy meetings Brucker decided that each department head must draft a set of rules governing the actions of employees and their expenses and submit them to him. Hereafter, he will hold a meeting of departmental heads the first Tuesday afternoon in each month. From the appointive officers he will expect a monthly, confidential report covering major departmental activities.

The governor asked department heads to consult with him before making decisions on important problems.

"I do not want you to lean too much upon me, for the duties of the executive office are excessive. I do not want appointees who 'run to the governor with every little thing' and I know you won't, but when problems of magnitude arise I prefer to have you consult with me rather than depending solely upon your lone judgment."

Brucker said he will ask the legislature to cooperate in holding down the state budget. He asked state officials and appointive officers to advocate only such legislation as is "absolutely necessary."

CHANGE MEETING DATE

Lansing, Jan. 2 (AP)—At the first meeting of the new state administrative board today Governor Wilber M. Brucker directed that hereafter board meetings will be held at 11 o'clock in the morning on the first and third Tuesdays each month. Board meetings under Governor Fred W. Green were held Monday afternoons.

Brucker named his administrative board committees, and they will meet Monday afternoons preceding board meetings.

Brucker intimated that in the future the board will respect more closely its legal limitations. He said the board has no authority and should not grant appropriations for purposes which have been rejected by the legislature. In the past many so-called emergency appropriations have been made by the board, although in many instances no actual emergency was present, he stated.

Monoplane Ready To Take Off On Trip Over Ocean

New York, Jan. 2 (AP)—The monoplane "Trade Wind" was made ready tonight for an early morning start tomorrow on the first trans-Atlantic freight flight of heavier-than-air craft.

Following the trade winds of the South Atlantic from New York to Paris by way of Bermuda and the Azores, the plane will carry a cargo of 200 pounds of food products. It will be guided by Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieut. William S. MacLaren, who seek to show that flying between America and Europe can be "taken out of the stunt class and put upon a sound commercial basis."

The flight is also expected to demonstrate, they said, that the South Atlantic can be crossed by plane in all seasons.

URGE REMOVAL OF U. S. TROOPS

American Marines Ought to Be Withdrawn From Nicaragua—Borah

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—The killing of eight marines Wednesday by Nicaraguan insurgents prompted both Republican and Democratic senators today to renew demands on the administration for immediate withdrawal of American forces from the Central American republic.

Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee, said: "I am of the opinion, as I always have been, that we ought not to be in there."

Senator King, Democrat, Utah, said it was "a bad thing to send bayonets to support American investments in foreign countries" and demanded the immediate return of the marines to the United States.

The Utahan, who, like Borah, has been an opponent of military intervention in the southern republic, said he would introduce a resolution Monday calling for withdrawal of the marines.

Too Much Intervention
"I challenged military intervention three years ago because there was neither rhyme nor reason for it," King added. "We should withdraw absolutely—politically and militarily—so the Nicaraguans may work out their own destiny."

"We have been in the habit of intervening too much—in San Domingo, Haiti and Nicaragua," he continued. "It is found to provoke resentment and feelings of ill will on the part of Latin-Americans. It leads them to believe we are imperialistic not only from a business but from a military point of view—that we are too apt to support, with military forces, economic penetration."

days, but they knew also that the end might come at any moment. When the bulletin was issued it said only, "the marshal is slowly getting lower."

A little later M. Barthou, leaving the hospital, said there was no change except now and then signs of weakness.

An official statement was issued at 10 o'clock tonight, it said: "There were several serious respiratory spasms during the afternoon. The marshal has been resting quietly since eight o'clock. The pulse is weak, the breathing rapid, and the temperature low." (Signed) "Professor Lericq, Faure and Labbe."

George King Gets Sentence Reduced

Lansing, Jan. 2 (AP)—The life sentence of George M. King, who was convicted of complicity in the murder of Philip Hiltontain, a Detroit police officer in a bond robbery ten years ago, was commuted to 12 1/2 to 25 years by Governor Green, shortly before the latter left office, Richard W. Nebel, parole commissioner, announced today.

King was sentenced in 1921. With his good time allowances he is eligible for parole at once. He is confined in the branch prison at Marquette.

Clemency for King was recommended by Warden James P. Cogan, of the prison, and by Judge William M. Heaton, who sentenced him. He was alleged to have been the driver of the robbers' car, but it is claimed now there was doubt as to his guilt. For several years King has been a trusty, driving Warden Cogan's car outside the walls. His prison record was excellent, according to the warden.

AFTERNOON NAP GOOD FOR BABY

or shorten the sleep of the night, or to render it more restless. These experiments, coupled with those which were made by a different method by doctors Boynton and Goodenough at the University of Minnesota, show that the child ordinarily rests more quietly during the afternoon nap than in any time of corresponding length during the night.

"So that if a child is judged to be in need of more rest than it is getting, the ideal way of gaining it is by means of the afternoon nap. Experimental evidence exists which indicates that it is much harder to gain more rest by lengthening the child's stay in bed at night."

This stay in bed at night is quite a circus. From 60 to 90 times a night the youngster will change his sleeping posture, this is twice as often as an adult shifts.

"Although," says the report, "many of the favorite resting poses of adults are quite contorted—giving sprained limbs and a spinal column that is bowed into a doubly compound curve and also greatly twisted—many of the sleeping poses of children are still more so."

But this does the children no harm. "The doctrine that a young child may acquire a deformity," the Mellon scientists find, "or develop a beautiful figure by lying for long times in some bodily position that he habitually prefers has been rendered very doubtful by the testimony of the motion picture camera."

Hoover Commission Ready With Report

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—The law enforcement commission tonight had virtually completed its report on prohibition and it was believed agreeable to at least a majority.

The possible was considered remote however, that this long-awaited document could be in congressional hands for another week, and certainly not by the unofficially announced date of January 6. Parts of the report were said to be still incomplete pending final decisions by some of the members.

It was believed in informed circles that the commission's final recommendation on the dry law, tentative investigation ever made into this subject, could hardly be whipped into definite shape before another meeting of at least a majority.

tion fell into the hands of the rebels. Simultaneously other attackers swarmed upon the palace, where after a brief resistance the defenders gave way and the rebels swept in. President Arosemena was confined to his quarters with several other government officials including Archibaldo Boyd, governor of the Province of Panama, and Ricardo Arango, head of the police.

After a consultation for several hours with the revolutionary leaders President Arosemena appointed Dr. Harmodio Arias Premier of Panama, then resigned as president, leaving Arias as liberty to form a new cabinet.

With the police headquarters and the palace in their hands, civilians associated with the revolutionists patrolled the city under the direction of General Manuel Quiroga. Shops remained closed, there was no bus service and automobiles dashed through the city, carrying armed men who were posted as guards on police duty.

When Governor Innocencio Galindo of the province of Colon learned of the revolution he departed its effects, and attempted to send 500 national police to support the government at the capital. The Panama railroad refused to carry the detachment.

AMERICAN WOUNDED.
Panama City, Jan. 2 (AP)—Hartwell F. Ayers, an American newspaper man employed by a Panama City paper, was wounded today as revolutionists fired upon the presidential palace.

Ayers went to the palace, where the fighting was heaviest, a few minutes after the revolutionists had captured the police headquarters and turned upon the seat of the government. When the attackers opened fire stray bullets struck him in the neck and abdomen. He fell in the street and in the excitement there was no one to give him prompt attention and it was some time later before he was taken to the hospital. There was an immediate operation.

READY TO SERVE
Washington, Jan. 2 (AP)—Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro, ambassador from Panama, said tonight he would not hesitate to accept the call to become acting president of his country.

Alfaro was informed that he had been confirmed acting president by the supreme court of justice of Panama late today.

MYSTERY DEATH IS INVESTIGATED

Inquest Scheduled in Case of Victor Hansen of Trombley

Witnesses will be called today by the Delta county sheriff's department in their investigation of the death of a man believed to be Victor Hansen, 52, whose charred bones were found in the ruins of a burned cabin near Trombley.

Little remains of the body to provide a clue for the investigation, but an inquest will be conducted by Coroner G. C. Bartley to determine whether the man met his death by suicide or by some other means. The only clue held by authorities is the blackened metal portion of a shotgun found beside the body. Residents of the vicinity who are said to have heard Hansen express a desire to kill himself will be called for questioning. The witnesses will include Gus Kargo, a neighbor, believed to be the owner of the gun found in the ashes of the cabin.

Ten States Have Half of Paving

Chicago—Half of the mileage of surfaced highways in the United States lies within the boundaries of ten states, according to a report of the American Research Foundation, just made public here.

"Of $26,137 miles of surfaced roads in this country," the report says, "316,865 miles are located in California, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas, and Wisconsin. The remaining 313,407 miles of surfaced highway are stretched over 38 states."

"The ten states which possess half the nation's surfaced roads, however, own more than 50 per cent of all the automobiles registered in the United States. The combined registrations of these states in 1930 totaled 18,354,912 out of 26,501,443 owned by the entire country."

"Of all the states of the union, Indiana leads in the amount of surfaced highways with a total of 50,995 miles. Ohio is second with 46,246 miles and Minnesota third with 34,223 miles."

Banks in the state of New York have on deposit more than $1,000,000 awaiting rightful claimants.

New Year Brings Babies to Several Escanaba Families

Several Escanaba babies will reach their first birthday anniversary on January 1, 1931, as a result of New Year's Day visits paid by the stork to parents in the community.

Listed among the new arrivals on Jan. 1 are: a son born to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Weber, 411 South Tenth; a son to Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Atkinson, Wells, and a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beauchamp of Flat Rock, all at St. Francis hospital. In addition, a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Erickson at their home, 1301 Sheridan road. One baby came just a few hours too early to check in for the first of 1931. He is also a son, born to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Larson of Rock at St. Francis hospital, Dec. 31.

In the matter of total births, the year 1930 fell behind its predecessor by 106 babies, statistics of the health officer show. The total for the year just closed was 355, while for 1929 it was 461.

As the births decreased, deaths decreased in like proportion. The year 1929 saw 257 deaths recorded, but in 1930 there were only 200.

According to the American Petroleum Institute, there are 300,000 oil wells in the United States at present.

Former Escanaban Dies In Louisville

Announcement of the death at Louisville, Ky., of Charles Doty, former resident of this city, was received here yesterday by friends of

HOCKEY SURVIVES

MARQUETTE, Hancock, Calumet and Houghton opened their amateur hockey league season this season this week, and found the results from the point of attendance and performance by the players beyond their expectations.

As the Mining Journal puts it, "Marquette puck fans had their first real taste of organized amateur hockey last night in the Palestra arena and without a single exception they left the rink voling enthusiasm for the newly organized Upper Peninsula Hockey association.

Home town amateurs, in most instances, will observe training rules better, and there is the additional asset that the community exhibits more pride toward a team that has been developed from home talent.

A CONCERN OF SOCIETY

THERE is a little boy who hasn't any place to go. He can't go home, for he has killed a man. He can't go to the penitentiary yet; he is too young.

So John Woods is as homeless as the man without a country. Other boys are blowing tin horns, flinging confetti and balloons and colored streamers as the New Year comes.

But he is no more concerned about himself than is a society which is confronted with a problem that it doesn't know how to solve. Vast fortunes have been spent in an effort to provide the proper institutions, schools, and courses of training for those who have erred.

One wonders what the reaction of the other boys in an industrial school would be to John Woods. Would they stand off, a little shyly, and whisper to each other that he is the boy who killed a man?

We don't know about such things, for each of these institutions is a world apart. But the problem which centers around

John Woods opens the door into the great brick buildings where all the other wanderers from the right path are centered. Their attitude toward others who commit misdemeanors... who shoot men... confronts society.

There will always be some, of course, who cannot be taught. There are many who can. And meantime it is never too late to "come back." Even when all one's life must be shut away from the trails where high winds blow.

This decision as to where John Woods shall go should concern society as much as it does the 14-year-old boy himself.

WHO STARTED THE WAR?

AN OFFICIAL committee of the German Reichstag, having studied the causes of the World War, finds that most of the blame for starting the trouble goes to Russia, with Serbia and Austria-Hungary sharing in the guilt.

Being a German committee, it naturally views Germany's part in the negotiations that led to the war a little more favorably than, say, a French committee would.

However, there is this to remember: all of this talk about who started the war is senseless unless it is realized that the war was chiefly a product of the European system of handling international relations.

A TIP TO SKATERS

MURDER AT BRIDGE

(By NEA Service)

By ANNE AUSTIN

CHAPTER XXXVIII

"I'd give a good deal to know which of those two suggested that it would be a good idea to get married the first thing this morning." Dundee mused aloud, as he put down the second 'extra' which The Hamilton Morning News had had occasion to issue that Thursday.

It was two o'clock, and Dundee sat across the desk from Captain Strawn, in his former chief's office in police headquarters. The first extra had screamed in its biggest head type: SECOND BRIDGE DUMMY MURDER! and had carried, in detail, Captain Strawn's comforting theory that Dexter Sprague's erstwhile friends had again been made the victims of a New York gunman's fiendish cleverness in committing his murders under circumstances which would inevitably involve Hamilton's most highly respected and socially prominent citizens in the police investigation.

But the second extra had a more romantic streamer headline: HAMMOND WEDDING DELAYS MURDER QUIZ.

"At the very moment—9:05 o'clock this morning when Cella Hunt, maid in the Tracey Miles home in the Brentwood district of Hamilton, was screaming the news of her discovery of the dead body of Dexter Sprague, New York motion picture director, in what is known as the 'Trophy room.' Miss Polly Beale and Mr. Clive Hammond were applying for a marriage license in the Municipal Building.

"At 9:30, when Miss Beale and Mr. Hammond were exchanging their vows in the rectory of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, of which both bride and groom have been members since childhood, Captain John Strawn of the homicide squad was listening to Tracey Miles' account of the strange disappearance of Dexter Sprague from the impromptu bridge game, after he had announced his intention of taking advantage of the fact that he was 'dummy' to telephone for a taxi.

marriage to her aunt, Mrs. Amelia Beale, the bride was in turn acquainted with the news of Sprague's murder and the fact that both she and her husband were wanted at the Miles home by questioning by the police, since both had been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Miles last night, although Mr. Hammond did not arrive until about 11 o'clock.

There followed a revision of the murder-story as it appeared in the first extra, with additional details supplied by Strawn, and with a line drawing of the scene of the crime—the trophy room itself and the forked driveway with its tall yew hedges. A dotted line illustrated Strawn's theory of Sprague's plan to elude the murderer who had followed him to the Miles home. Because of the curved sweep of the driveway toward the main entrance of the house, the tall hedge was less than two feet from the window with the partly opened screen.

"Captain Strawn's theory," read the text below the large drawing, "is that Sprague had good cause to fear that he was being followed on his way to the Miles home; that he telephoned for a taxi to wait for him at the

Health Tips

DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Probably every married couple at some time in their married life begin to discuss the question as to whether or not the husband is likely to outlive the wife or vice versa.

The matter is important not only from the point of view of sentiment, but also from the point of view of establishing an estate, caring for children, and in many other ways.

According to figures compiled by a large insurance company, there are more than twice as many widows in the United States as widowers. According to the figures of the last available census, there was 69 per cent widows and 31 per cent widowers.

In the majority of cases the husband is the older of the two partners. In addition, men have a higher mortality rate than women, probably because women have been for years the sheltered class.

Thus, the odds tend to be somewhat against the chance that the husband will survive the wife. There are various possibilities, however, in marriages in which the two partners are not of the same age.

The husband may be anywhere from five to 25 years older than his wife. Obviously, in such cases, his chance of survival is proportionately decreased.

If the husband and the wife are both 30 years of age, the chance of the husband outliving her is 48 in 100; if his wife is five years younger, his chance of outliving her is only 40 in 100. It is safe for gamblers to get three to two against his outliving her.

If the wife is 15 years younger than her husband and the husband is 40 years old, the chance that he will outlive her is only 25 in 100, and the odds are three to one against him.

In the rather unusual circumstance in which the wife is older than the husband, the odds are of course modified again by this situation. If the wife is 35 years old and the husband is 30, the chance is 56 in 100 that the husband will survive the wife, and in the same way the figures depend on the number of years that the woman is older than the man.

The other factors that enter into the situation are, of course, the relative amounts of care and the relative exposure to possibilities of accidents and disease that apply to the individual case. If the husband is so wealthy that the woman is constantly sheltered and protected, if he is 15 years older and engaged in an occupation which submits him to wear and tear, his chance of surviving is even less than it would be based on the ordinary calculations alone.

THE TIMES

You young folks say you'd like to know Why queer old men like me Prefer the times of long ago. The days that used to be. We knew less comfort in those days. We had less wealth in lots of ways. 'Twas different in days long since You're now a pauper or a prince.

We had about so much, no more. About so much, no less. Although today you have a store. Tomorrow's hard to guess. Today, perhaps, you're on the top. Tomorrow maybe things will drop. Today you're ragged and bereft. Tomorrow buying right and left.

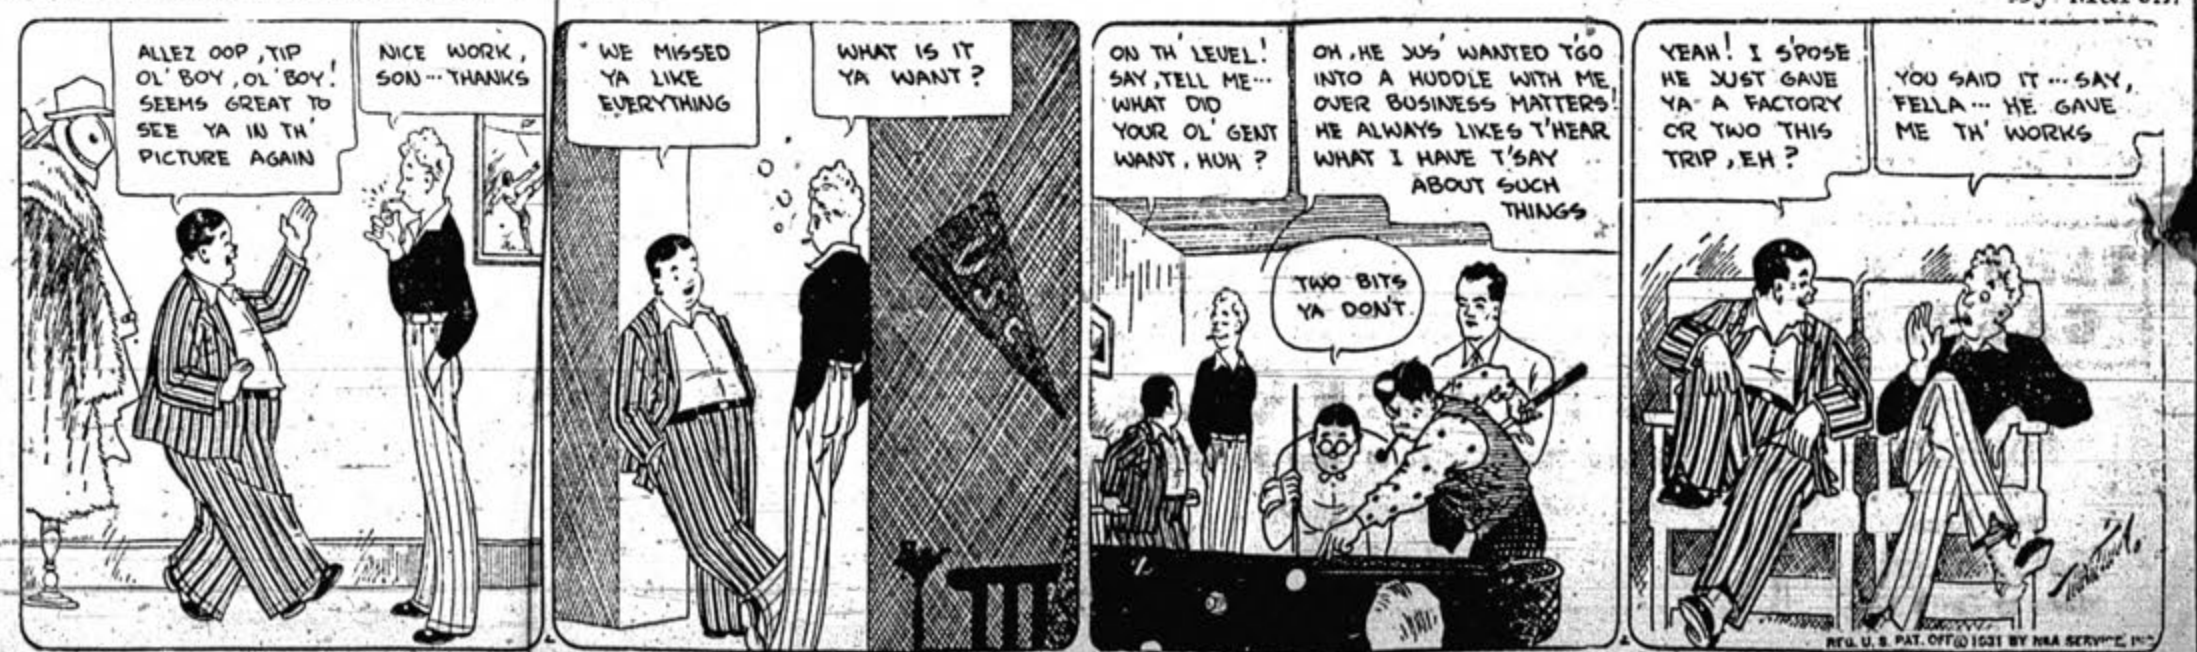

We made a little, saved a bit. And, when the times were bad. Then here is how we managed it— We lived on what we had. You think a fortune you've amassed. And then get poor about as fast. But poor or rich, in that old day. Whichever one, we stayed that way.

LYLE RUNNING FOR MAYOR; TO BATTLE GANGS

darkened closets afford a haven for those who would ransack the building. We need a rebuilding and a housecleaning—a cleaning that will have back of it the full power of a gang-busting chief of police and the authority of a judge who will weigh the character of a hoodlum as well as the possibilities suggested by some legal technicality.

Says Police Could Do It. The job of cleaning up Chicago is not as difficult as it is supposed to be, Judge Lyle thinks. Not long ago he expressed himself as follows:

"If the present chief of police would say, 'Drive the gunmen out of Chicago' and if the mayor would say it—and mean it—they'd be gone in 60 days. Could a few skulkers stand up against 5000 armed policemen?"

Effective or not, Judge Lyle's personally conducted campaign against the hoodlums has been sensational. It has also brought some genuine annoyance to some of the underworld's big shots.

It was Judge Lyle who dug up the vagrancy law procedure, under which gangsters are brought into court and accused of vagrancy because they have no visible means of support—the average gangster, naturally, supporting himself by means which have a very low visibility.

Issued Warrant for Capone

It was Judge Lyle who issued warrants for the arrest of Chicago's notorious 26 "public enemies," including Al Capone himself. Whenever one of these men is brought before him, Judge Lyle sets high bail. He also ordered the arrest of some 48 assorted gangsters, bombers, robbers and murderers. One of his best known achievements was the sending of "Fur" Sammons, a notorious gang leader, to prison for 30 years. Many of the other hoodlums he brought into court have also gone to jail.

Judge Lyle once revealed that vagrancy was not the only count against Capone. He issued the vagrancy warrant, he explained, in the hope that Capone could be arrested on it and brought into court; but he hoped that once Capone was taken, evidence could be found on which to indict and try him for murder. To date, however, Capone has not been caught.

On the other hand, the vagrancy charges have collapsed in some cases, and in other cases his brother jurists have reduced the high bail bonds he ordered. The judge's critics assert that while his campaign may have annoyed the underworld slightly it has not put a serious crimp in the underworld's activities.

Urges Honest Officials.

Honesty in public office is Judge Lyle's chief formula for a clean-up in Chicago.

"The lawlessness which these underworld rats have created exists here only because in the past it has been tolerated," he says. "But what I can do about it will be done. When a gangster is brought before me, I must see him as a human and regard whatever rights he has not already forfeited; but at the same time I see the honest, hard-working people as a whole, whose lives are endangered and whose minds are horrified by these continual bloody 'rides' that have no returning.

"We have too many laws. There are 10,227 of them on the statute books. The trouble lies not in the laws but in the enforcement machinery. I would say that 90 per cent of the public officials are honest. The machinery of the civil and criminal fighting forces is ample. It needs only the proper adjustments and the right hand at the controls. Judges, in many cases, are a weak point—they are too thorough in searching for a legal loophole through which a hardened criminal may escape.

"I would lay a good deal of the blame for non-enforcement of the laws at the door of the judges. They have allowed the habeas corpus writ, which was designed as a means of recourse to the poor political prisoners of years ago, to become misused."

Says Bribery Widespread. Judge Lyle admits that the problem of bribery is a serious one.

"What can a policeman do," he asks, "when he sees balliffs running around with stacks of bills trying to put in a 'fix' for so-and-so? The chances of his refusing the forget that he found a gun on the arrested man are slight. I never allow my balliffs or clerks to accept even a cigar. Suspicion is too easily cast."

Judge Lyle's course has not been a smooth one. He has had frequent tiffs with other judges. A year and a half ago he and Judge Frank Comerford of the criminal court had an extended verbal set-to over Judge Comerford's action in releasing, on a writ of habeas corpus, a police officer whom Judge Lyle had ordered to jail for contempt of

CANDLE UPSET; CHURCH IS BURNED

A candle in St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church at Ottawa, Ont., was upset accidentally by a parishioner who was praying the other day. The candle started a fire that set the whole church ablaze, and the building was almost completely destroyed, with a loss of $450,000. This picture shows firemen struggling with the flames.

court. Judge Lyle was called as a witness before Judge Comerford during the hearing on the first, and Judge Comerford openly hinted that he might find Lyle in contempt of court. Eventually, however, the differences of the two were reconciled. Judge Lyle testified, and the contempt threat was forgotten.

Last spring when Judge Lyle ran for re-election to the municipal bench, the Chicago Bar Association protested that "he lacks judicial temperament and the capacity for judicial office."

But regardless of how the bar association and other judges may feel about him, there are many private citizens to whom Lyle's anti-hoodlum campaign has been refreshing and inspiring. It is upon the votes of these that the judge is relying in his campaign against Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson who seeks to be renamed as the Republican nominee.

HERMANVILLE

Hermansville, Dec. 2 (Special)—The alumni was defeated Monday evening in basketball by the Hermansville high school team by 21 to 11. The high school girls won from the alumni girls 6 to 5. Neither team was at all perfect.

Miss Beatrice Panason left for Wausau, Wis., Wednesday evening, where she will take a three months training course in the hospital there as part of her nurses training course which she is taking at Green Bay.

Miss Marian Bradley left with her father, Martin R. Bradley for Lansing where she will spend a few days. Afterward she will go to Ann Arbor to continue her studies there.

ROAT SCHOOL SCORES 100%

All Students Are Now Listed on Dental Roll of Honor

Newberry, Jan. 2. (Special)—Every child in 100 per cent dental health is the record of the Roat school in Lakefield township, Luce County, according to the report of Dr. Jay Shumaker, dentist for the Children's Fund of Michigan. This school, which is one room and taught by Miss Effie Niles of Newberry, has the distinction of being the first in the county if not in the state to hang up such a record under the auspices of the Fund and Dr. Shumaker has written in to the general office in Detroit asking that county records be looked over to see just where Luce stands in the list. If leading the state a banner will be presented to this school.

Two years ago, under the direction of the health campaign being then carried out by the state department of health, the Pratt school, located in Pentland township, had 100 per cent record for corrections of dental defects of the students but since that date new pupils have entered and the record is not yet complete. It is the opinion of Miss Shilson, county nurse, that the Pratt school is nearly up to that record now.

Will Print Honor Roll Dr. Shumaker gives credit for the fine cooperation given the Fund dentists by Miss Shilson and by Miss Effie Niles, teacher of the school, and to the parents in the fine cooperation which they have given the Fund workers. The honor roll for the fund will be printed at an early date.

Dental work was started in Luce county a year ago. The Luce county health organization through the efforts of Mrs. D. N. McLeod and the county nurse succeeded in getting one of the dental clinics to locate here. The Lions club and other organizations assisting, Mrs. Victor Berglund was appointed general chairman of the county dental committee and a survey of all grade children was undertaken.

Educational Program The first dentist was Dr. R. L. Gibson. Clinic rooms were prepared for in the grade school building at Newberry and outfitted by the dental division under the direction of Dr. K. R. Gibson. During the summer months Dr. Johnson, a Detroit dentist, directed the summer clinic.

The work of the Fund during the first year of its operation has been largely educational. A program of dental hygiene was put into all schools of the county. The Lions club sponsored an essay

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT

A setting which occupied two entire stages, the separating wall of which had to be removed, was one of the special carpenter jobs at the Paramount Hollywood studios incidental to the recording of "The Spoilers."

The set, one of numerous authentic "shots" to be on view in the talking picture adaptation of a famous story and play which the Delft Theatre is showing, depicts the interior of the "Northern," notorious saloon and dance hall of Nome, during the gold rush days.

It is one of the largest sets ever devised for an all-talking picture. The Northern was the center contest in which a large number of students took part. Lectures were given to parents by Dr. Gibson in the schools. Every school child received an examination which all defects charted. The actual corrective and operative work was done partly by the family dentists and partly by Dr. Gibson. With the work so well outlined and organized it is the plan of the Fund to this year give the major attention to corrective and operative work. Students from the McMillan schools are being treated this week.

of the wild community life in Nome thirty years ago, old miners recall. It was in the largest building in Nome; a rambling two-story affair hurriedly constructed from rough lumber to provide the entertainment needs of the 30,000 people crowded into Nome at the time. Its main dance floor, this balcony being divided into booths in which serving tables and chairs were placed.

AT THE MICHIGAN

When a fireman goes into battle with flames he is hardly a human being in the dangers that he must accept with cool head and quick wit. Yet he must have a heart as big as all humanity itself to take him into those dangers to save the life and property of others.

In "The Third Alarm," the Tiffany special production showing today at the Michigan Theatre, the fire fighter is glorified. It shows him as a super-man in time of hazard. It shows him as a pal among his station house companions; as a lover; as a father.

Anita Louise and James Hall provide the love interest. Paul Hurst provides comedy and other important roles are played by Jean Hersholt, Hobart Bosworth, Mary Moran, little George Billings, Nita Martan, Dot Farley, Alleen Manning and others.

$150,000 Spent in Two Years Just to Advertise Michigan

Lansing.—The State of Michigan spent $150,000 for advertising purposes during the past two years, according to the biennial report of the Conservation Department, issued today.

These funds, authorized by the 1929 legislature and known as the Rushton-Hartman advertising act, were matched dollar for dollar by the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, East Michigan Tourist Association, South-eastern Michigan Tourist and Publicity Association, and the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association.

Of the $300,000 spent in cooperation with the state, about one hundred thousand was for newspaper advertising; one hundred thousand for folders, pamphlets, booklets, etc., the balance being devoted to various other phases of state advertising as radio, outdoor shows, posters, signs, maintenance of an office in Chicago, and direct service to tourists and resorters.

A continuation of the State's share in an advertising program was recommended in the report of the educational division of the Conservation Department. This Division having acted in an administrative capacity in the

Delta County Sent 236 Couples to the Altar During 1930

Marriages in Delta county dropped off six per cent in 1930 compared with the previous year, records at the office of the county clerk show. A total of 236 marriage licenses were issued by the county clerk's office at Escanaba in 1930, and there were 262 during 1929.

August and June were the big marriage months of 1930, with 33 licenses issued in August and 31 in June. March was the poorest, with only six, and the last month of the year, December, 1930, was also low with only eight marriage license applications filed in 31 days.

The last two couples to apply for licenses in 1930 were Burton J. Pariseau, Lathrop, and Sylvia L. Molin, Gwinn, who signed on the line December 29; and Herman Vandres, Cornell, and Agnes Johnson, Gladstone, who filed their application December 31.

The honor of being the first applicants for marriage license on the list for the new year of 1931 goes to Lawrence Brunette, Arnold, and Sylvia Mae Loper, Mashek. Their application blank was waiting when the clerk's office opened after the New Year holiday.

The record of marriage licenses issued for 1930 is practically the same as for 29 years ago, when 239 licenses were issued.

PRODUCTION FIGURES
Washington During the first nine months of 1930, 2710 airplanes were manufactured in the United States, according to figures of the U. S. Department of Commerce. Of this number, 2154 were manufactured for civil use and the remainder for the Army and Navy.

Average Farm Uses $400 of Its Crops

In a survey in New York State it was found that the average farm used about $400 worth of produce off the farm for the family living.

It might be well for every farmer to check over and see what products he is buying and how much he could save by raising them at home or using other products in place of them. Right now, according to the New York College of Agriculture, a farmer might just as well kill his own beef and if he could only make use of half of it, and had to throw the other half away, it would be cheaper to buy the meat to sell the cow and buy fresh beef.

A farmer during these times should at least furnish meat, eggs, potatoes, and other vegetables, milk and dairy products, and should raise fruit so that a supply for the winter would be assured.

CORN IS BEST USED AS FEED

Sound Economic Practice Declare Michigan Crop Experts

East Lansing (AP)—The Michigan farmer who produces corn as a feed for his livestock rather than as a cash crop is following a sane economic practice, according to a statement of average production costs in the state by farm crop specialists at Michigan State College.

A bulletin by Howard C. Rafter, head of that department, and J. H. Duncan, research associate, shows that the average cost of production was "almost identical with returns from the group as sold to elevators. The report covered 1,921 farms with an average production of 38 bushels an acre, which compares with a state average of 33 1/2 bushels. The net cost of production per acre was $28.55. On the basis of the state yield, the farm crop specialists say that the returns from corn sales to elevators would be $28.55 at a price of 85 cents a bushel. The grain valuation of the crop therefore, would be one cent above the cost of production.

On the other hand, if the crop is fed to livestock, the farmer must take into consideration the price he would pay for feed on the market. On this basis, farmers will make sufficient returns to bring net profit above taxes, cost of production and labor.

Most farmers in this state are using corn as a feed. Only 50 per cent of the Michigan crop is harvested for grain. Five per cent is hopped off, 20 per cent is placed in silos, and 25 per cent is used as fodder.

The greatest use of the Michigan crop is in silage, which serves a double purpose. Silage is needed by dairy farmers and serves as a storage for immature corn. Kent, Ottawa and Allegan counties in the Grand Rapids milk area, and Oakland, Macomb and Washtenaw in the Detroit dairy section lead in the production of corn silage, while an acreage in each county of more than 10,000.

Although Michigan ranks twenty-ninth among the states in corn production, the crop is an important one, being larger than any other except hay.

Young People Aid Growth of Grange

No surer evidence could be presented to the vitality of the Grange organization and its assurance of permanent existence, than is found in the remarkable record of the past year in the growth of Juvenile organization and membership. This department of Grange activity embraces the children of Grange members between the ages of six and fourteen years, and at the present time nearly 800 of these local Juvenile units are actively functioning, representing 30 states, and with a total membership of nearly 20,000, the latter having more than doubled in the past three or four years.

Many Grange states have deputies who are constantly organizing new Juveniles, stimulating membership and laying out projects to keep the Grange youngsters actively at work along community betterment lines, etc. In New Hampshire alone the Juveniles planted 1700 pine trees one day the past year, while other Juveniles devote much time to drills, dramatic features and other lively contributions to the social and educational life of their communities. A Juvenile loan library has been started in some states and fit others the children are making a special study of bird life, cultivation of flowers and similar worthwhile matters.

Further recognition of the Juvenile branch of the Grange has been made by the taking of steps to provide "graduation" ceremony when the youngsters having arrived at the age of 14 become eligible to membership in the Subordinate Grange, to which the Juvenile is always attached, most of the young people transferring their membership when they arrive at the specified age.

Each year the National Grange offers a prize of a beautiful silk flag to the Juvenile of the country which does the best all-around year's work. The flag for 1930 went to a Rhode Island Juvenile Grange, whose work was of most extraordinary character.

A CONTRAST
When the National Grange at Rochester, New York, a few weeks ago initiated in one day in its highest degree, a class of 11,125 persons, it broke all records in fraternal history. Furthermore, over 10,000 of the candidates came from the Empire State.

The National Grange confers its supreme degree but once a year and altogether has given it to 74,000 members. The first class initiated in that degree was at Nashville, Tennessee, in 1884, and the initiates that year numbered eight.

DAIRYGRAMS

A good dairy cow is probably the most efficient animal machine in existence for conversion of crude products to a refined product of high nutritive value for human consumption.

In the case of good milk producers, production is usually doubled at an approximate increase of 30 to 40% in feed cost, and this extra cost can generally be attributed to extra grain.

The palatability of poor hay or straw may be improved by chopping it and mixing it with two quarts of molasses dissolved in a gallon of water.

Most people will not be sorry to see the year of 1930 fade out of existence. It has been a hard year for most everyone, and yet it should have left us some good lessons: Many people have learned not to live beyond their incomes. It has brought to the farmer's attention that the old dairy cow is still the most stable and profitable of farm enterprises, and also that alfalfa is the best hay crop because of its high feed value and its ability to stand drouthy conditions.

What will 1931 bring us? Surely the depression must be at the bottom, and that a gradual rise in values is due, and a period of rising values, however small that rise may be, is a prosperous period. During most of 1930 the price farmers received for their products did not compare favorably with the prices of things they had to buy. That is a condition that is bound to change, and if it does, it matters little how many dollars we handle, as long as we can purchase the things we need to live comfortably, with the dollars we have. 1931 appears as a year offering gradual improvement in farm conditions.

New Club Leader Assumes Her Work

Miss Olga Bird, of Otisville, Mich., former home demonstration agent for Jackson county, is now in charge of 4-H girls club work in the Upper Peninsula, with office in Marquette.

Miss Bird succeeds Miss Emma DuBord, who resigned in August, 1929, to become home demonstration agent for Wayne county. Since that time five temporary workers have held the position for short periods.

The new incumbent graduated from the home economics division of Michigan state college in 1927. She taught home economics in the Yale high school until December 1, 1928, when she resigned to go to Jackson county.

Annual Extension Dinner January 7

The annual dinner of state college extension workers and 4-H club leaders in the Upper Peninsula will be held at the Northland hotel in Marquette, Wednesday evening, Jan. 7. The affair has been staged in connection with the annual meeting of Upper Peninsula county agents, which will take place in Marquette January 7 and 8. Seven outstanding northern Michigan club leaders have been selected for excellence of service during the past year, and trophies awarded them by the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau will be presented following the dinner.

Airplane Speeds Up Farmer's Business

Ralph Weberg standing alongside the plane he uses in his livestock business.

Denison, Ia.—If a farmer can double his income by adopting modern machinery, he can increase it still more by adopting a modern method of transportation, the airplane.

That's what Ralph Weberg, farmer-stockman of this city, believes after having used a plane in connection with his agricultural business for the past few months.

Modern machinery will speed up production, Weberg says, and an airplane will speed up selling and bring better prices by enabling farmers to fly to the city in which their commodities are being sold and thus assume personal supervision of sales. He has decided that flying is a necessity as a time saver to the busy farmer as well as the busy business man in the city. Recently he hopped into his plane and flew across two states to sell a consignment of 87 head of cattle which he had shipped to Chicago. Weberg believes that some day he may be able to take advantage of opening market reports and fly in with a shipment of cattle and hogs for that day's market. He has built himself a modern landing field and hangar for his plane near his farm home.

STATE TO HELP FARM MARKETS

Michigan Women Able to Convert Surplus Into Cash

East Lansing, Mich. (AP)—New extension work plans of Michigan State College contemplate the early organization throughout the state of sales organizations to help farm women market surplus produce of the home.

A vast women's marketing organization is to be attempted in an effort to bring additional income to rural families. Miss Barbara Van Heulen, Michigan State graduate, the leader of the new project, says that present economic conditions on the farm caused the decision to launch the project at this time.

Roadside Stands
"Farmers are so hard hit by taxes, drought, and mortgages," she said, "that some provision must be made for the surpluses of the home. Women can market many products that heretofore have gone to waste or have been underdeveloped."

The project has as a secondary purpose the establishment of a base level on the farms of the amount and type of production that is needed to support the family. Women will be asked to make sure of this base production and then sell their surpluses through the contemplated marketing organizations.

Roadside markets and sales agencies are included in the marketing project plans. An effort is being made to co-operate with the Women's National Farm and Garden Association to obtain the use of "The Green Door," its sales organization, for the marketing of farm surpluses in Michigan.

Successful in South
Similar projects were established a number of years ago in southern states and have been reported as successful. The Alabama state leader claims a revenue of $500,000 last year for farm women in her state.

Miss Van Heulen believes the Michigan tourist business offers a decided advantage to farm women of this state. She points out the preference for home baked pastries at resorts, the popularity of spiced preserves and other products of the farm home. She shows how farm women can gather pine cones, paint them green or red and make decorations of them, particularly for the holidays.

Although stimulated by present conditions, the project will be continuous, Miss Van Heulen said. Conferees with farm women probably will be held this month to set the campaign underway.

Co-operation of the various tourist and resort and agricultural agencies of the state will be sought. Once the project is underway, Miss Van Heulen believes that a sales organization will be conducted in much the same manner as other types of business. As a part of the sales campaign, a state label for various products of the home will be established. Advertising campaigns are contemplated. Miss Van Heulen came here from Chicago where she was in a mortgage business. She formerly was with the 4-H club department of the college.

County Has Agent After Ten Years

G. F. Biekola of Trout Creek, Ontonagon county, has been selected as agricultural agent by the Baraga county board, to take office January 1. The county has been without the services of an extension agent for about ten years.

Mr. Biekola was born and raised on an Ontonagon county farm, and he is well qualified for the above position. He graduated in 1924 from Michigan state college with the degree of Bachelor of Science. He has been superintendent of schools in Trenary and Brimley and in personal charge of the Smith-Hughes agricultural courses. He is an experienced 4-H club leader, and was Alger county club agent in 1925. Since last June he has managed the home farm near Trout Creek.

Mr. Biekola's training and experience, together with the sympathetic attitude of the Baraga county citizens, should insure the carrying out of an excellent extension program.

Upper Peninsula Census Iron Mountain—The final report of the United States census bureau shows Marquette to be the largest city in the upper peninsula, with Iron Mountain fifth, but the combined Iron Mountain-Kingsford area, with a population in excess of 19,000, is in reality the largest. Marquette has a population of 14,789, or an increase of 16.3 per cent since the 1920 enumeration. Escanaba, with a rate of growth of 10.8 per cent, steps ahead of Ironwood, which declined 9.1 per cent during the decade. The population of Escanaba is now 14,524 and Ironwood 14,259. In fourth place is Sault Ste. Marie with a total of 13,755, the rate of growth there being 13.7 per cent. Iron Mountain has a population of 11,652 and ranks fifth in the peninsula and Menominee is sixth with 10,320. While the first three cities of the peninsula are separated by less than 500, the scramble for first place in the past 30 years has been an interesting one with no city in the same position in the census ranking in any two consecutive reports.

New County Officers Houghton—Officers of Houghton county who were elected for a two-year term at the November election assumed their duties January 1. With exception of the office of prosecuting attorney, all offices will be filled by the same men who have served during the past year. Louis A. Keary of Hancock will assume the office of prosecuting attorney, succeeding John D. Kerr who, after ten years of efficient and conscientious service, declined to be a candidate for re-election. Mr. Keary has announced the choice of Frank C. Condon for assistant prosecuting attorney, succeeding Charles O. Oliver who has served in that capacity during the administration of Mr. Kerr.

New Officers Installed Menominee—This is moving day for the two offices of highest authority in Menominee county, sheriff and prosecuting attorney. Sheriff Charles Bauer is moving out with the old year to his old home on North State street, where Sheriff-elect Edward Reindl is moving into the sheriff's residence. F. Earl Lanthier, who succeeds Kenneth O. Doyle as prosecuting attorney, has a more involved task in moving. He is moving both his office and his residence from Stephenson to Menominee. The new prosecutor has leased part of the Coman Lumber company offices in the Jones building and will reside in the McDonald house at 12 Stephenson avenue. Atty. Lanthier was married shortly after his election.

Automobile Thieves Marquette—Frank Parker, 517 Park street, and Earl Rowe, of Kiva, formerly of Marquette, were arraigned Wednesday morning in municipal court on a charge of stealing an automobile. They demanded an examination. They were arrested a week ago in Evanston, Ill., driving a large sedan owned by F. H. Raiff, of Marquette, which was reported stolen Christmas morning. They were returned to Marquette Tuesday afternoon by Corporal Miller and Trooper Madders of the state police.

New County Agent L'Anse—G. F. Bieckola, of Trout Creek, Ontonagon county, has been selected as agricultural agent by the Baraga county board, taking office January 1. Baraga county has been without the services of an extension agent for about 10 years. Mr. Bieckola was born and raised on an Ontonagon county farm and is well qualified for the above position. He was graduated in 1927 from Michigan State college with the degree of Bachelor of Science. He has been superintendent of schools in Trenary and Brimley and in personal charge of the Smith-Hughes agricultural courses. He is an experienced 4-H club leader, and was Agor county club agent in 1925. Since last June he has managed the home farm near Trout Creek.

Introducing Jack Rabbit Sault Ste. Marie—Dr. J. A. Cameron of Pickford, recently returned from a hunting trip in Northern Ontario and writes of his trip telling of the great sport in shooting jack rabbits. Dr. Cameron offers the suggestion of shipping into the upper peninsula large quantities of these animals for hunting and eating purposes. "They furnish great sport," writes Dr. Cameron, "and they run from 10 to 20 pounds in weight." He also writes of one animal killed on the trip, that when dressed weighed 12 pounds. Dr. Cameron is of the opinion that if introduced into the upper peninsula, they will give great sport to hunters that come from the lower part of the state and not only feed the camps but will also cut down the tendency to shoot birds.

Skating Instructor Menominee—Leo Renner, former skating instructor for the University club in St. Paul, has been engaged in the same capacity by the winter sports organization of Riverside Country club. Mr. Renner is already actively engaged in getting the new rink in fine condition. The cold weather of last night was an aid to solidifying the ice and with one or two more nights of below freezing weather, it will be in the best shape for members to participate in the skating contests and instructions which are about to be started. In addition to his work as skating instructor, Renner does a considerable amount of fancy exhibition skating and during winter will put on displays for the members and their guests. However, his main work will be in giving instructions, especially to youngsters.

MURDER BRIDGE

By ANNI AUSTIN
"THE BLACK WAGON," "THE AVERAGE PARROT" and "MURDER BACKSTAIRS" BY ANNI AUSTIN

Nita got the chance to come to Hamilton with Mrs. Dunlap, she jumped at it, and she and Sprague sprung their racket, whatever it was, either just before or just after Nita left New York. Probably it was Nita's tipoff and Sprague did the actual dirty work himself, which explains that telegram that Nita sent him April 24, just three days after she got to Hamilton. Let's see again just what it says, and Strawn reads it which Dundee himself had unearthed the day before. "See: 'Everything Jake saw here...'"

"Yes, I remember the wording quite well," Dundee interrupted. "But you did not take it so seriously when I showed it to you yesterday. If you had—"
"All right! Rub it in!" Strawn snapped, flushing darkly. "If I had assigned a man to 'tall' Sprague, as you suggested, he wouldn't have been murdered—"
"He probably would have been murdered just the same," Dundee comforted the older man, "but we might have been lucky enough to have an eyewitness."

"Oh, you and your theory!" Strawn growled. "But let me go on. Nita meant she would feel safer about Sprague if he was here in Hamilton, too. But the way they double-crossed in New York got on their trail. It took him weeks to do it, and Sprague followed Nita's advice. He got here on Sunday, April 27, and on Monday the 28th Nita banked the first $5000!" Don't you see it, boy? Sprague brought with him the dough they'd got for their stunt, and thought it was safer for Nita to bank it in her name, since it wasn't the name she was known by in New York anyway. We've checked up on Sprague pretty thoroughly. He didn't have a bank book, either on his body or in his room, and every bank in town denies he had an account with them."

"If that theory is correct, it makes Nita Selim a pretty low character." Dundee mused aloud. "Not only did she kick him out as a lover, but she double-crossed him as her partner in crime, by willing the whole wad to Lydia Carr. Sprague must have received quite a shock when he heard Nita's will read at the inquest."

"Yeah," Strawn agreed. "It looks like Mrs. Dunlap picked a sweet specimen to make a friend out of. Well, that's my theory, and I think it explains everything. Their victim in New York simply hired a gunman, or came down here himself, when he got on their tracks. Of course it was a good stunt to make it look like a local crime—figured he'd fool me just as he fooled you? So the murderer simply trailed Nita around, and saw the whole bunch of society people shooting at a target at Judge Marshall's place, with a gun equipped with a Maxim silencer. Too good an opportunity to be missed, so he bides his chance to swipe the gun and silencer. To make sure it will like a local crime, he pops off Nita when that same bunch is at her house, but it takes a few days longer before he has the same opportunity to get Sprague. But it came last night and he took advantage of it."

"A very plausible theory, and one which, in general, the whole city of Hamilton has been familiar with since the night Nita was murdered," Dundee remarked significantly.

"What do you mean?" Strawn demanded. "It's waterproof, ain't it? Doc Price says the bullet—and a .32 caliber one at that—entered Sprague's body just below the breastbone and traveled an upward course till it struck the extreme right side of the heart. The bullet entered exactly where it would have to, if the murderer was crouching under that window while Sprague was raising the screen. And we have Carraway's report that it was Sprague's fingerprints on those nickel-plated things you have to press together to make the screen roll up or down. Furthermore, I haven't a doubt in the world that the ballistics expert in Chicago will report that the bullet was fired from the same gun that killed Nita Selim."

"Neither have I," Dundee agreed. "But what I meant was that you had obligingly furnished the murderer who fits my theory with a theory he—or she—would not have upset for the world! Listen!" and he bent forward very earnestly. "I'm willing to grant that Sprague was shot from the outside through the window, when Sprague raised the screen. But there our theories part company. I believe that the murderer was a guest in the Selim home last night, that he or she had made an appointment to meet Sprague there, on the promise of paying the hush money he had demanded. Naturally he or she—of the sake of convenience—had no intention of being seen entering that room. The bridge game was suggested by Judge Marshall at noon. There was plenty of time for the rendezvous to be made with Sprague. As I see it, the murderer told Sprague to excuse himself from the game when he became dummy, and to go to the trophy room and wait there until the murderer had a chance to slip away and appear beneath the window. Sprague had been promised that, when he raised the screen at a whispered request, a roll of bills would be handed to him, but—he received a bullet instead."

"And which one of your six suspects have you picked on?" Strawn asked sarcastically. "That's just the trouble. There are still six," Dundee acknowledged with a wry grin. "After Sprague's disappearance, every one of the six was absent from the porch at one time or another. No, by George! There are seven suspects now! I was about to forget Peter Dunlap, who admits he was alone on a fishing trip when Nita was murdered and who left the porch last night to go to the library, as soon as Sprague arrived!... As for the original six: Polly Beale took a walk about the grounds; Flora Miles went upstairs to hunt for Karen Marshall and was gone more than 10 minutes; Drake went to the dining room to get the refreshments, and no one can say exactly how long he was gone; Judge Marshall went up to get his wife, and had time to make a little trip on the side; Janet Raymond walked over from her home, and passed; but very window, arriving after Sprague had disappeared; and, finally, Clive Hammond arrived alone in his car, which he parked within a few feet of that window."

"This morning he got married," a plainclothesman, who had entered without knocking, interrupted Strawn's monologue. "I read it, then—excuse me—'Head this boy!' guess this settles the matter!" (To Be Continued)

Calendar for 1931 Has Perfect Month

The year 1931 brings an opportunity to the advocates of the adoption of a fixed and uniform calendar to show the world a rare phenomenon, namely, a perfect month in the present calendar.

The phenomenon is February, which in 1931 begins on Sunday and ends on Saturday. Such a month is the ideal sought for every month in the calendar—a 28 day month containing exactly 4 weeks, beginning with the first day of the first week and ending with the last day of the last week. Not, however, until 1942, can the present calendar produce such a month again.

The proposed 13 month calendar would make every month that way by shortening the other months to exactly 4 weeks each and combining the surplus days (except one) into a new month of 4 weeks. Each of the 13 months would be made always to begin by starting the year on Sunday and ending it with "Year Day," the one day in each year in excess of 52 weeks and which is not absorbed by the extra month. The added day in leap years is likewise given the new name of "Leap Day." Thus the calendar would become fixed as well as uniform.

The years which have a "perfect February" in the present shifting calendar run in a curious cycle. They come in years which begin on Thursday, although not in every year which begins on Thursday because some years begin on Thursday are leap years when February has 9 days, or one day in excess of 4 weeks.

The cycle of "perfect February" years began in this century with 1903 and runs from that year as follows: 11-11-6, 11-11-5, 11 until 1938, then 12 years across the non-leap year 2000 until 2010, after which the cycle of 11-11-6 is resumed.

The beauty of the proposed 13 equal months fixed calendar is that it would end the confusion caused by the incessant change in the make up of all the present months. The days of the week would no longer fall on different dates of different months because the months would all be the same and the cycling of the week days to different dates of corresponding months from year to year would cease.

DECEMBER DRY LIKE ALL 1930

Escanaba Weather Bureau Finds Precipitation Lowest Ever

When records for December, 1930, were checked up at the weather bureau in Escanaba, they presented final evidence of what had previously been predicted, that 1930 was the driest year in the history of the weather bureau.

The total precipitation for December was the lowest in history for that month, with a total of 0.20 compared with a normal of 1.75 for the month. Half of this was accounted for on December 18 and 19. A total of four inches of snow was recorded for the month, with but an inch and a half on the ground at the end of the year 1930.

The highest temperature for December was 50, on the ninth, and this was the warmest December 9 on record. December's coldest day was the first day of the month, and the mercury dropped to three below.

All in all, the weather behaved well in December. There were seven clear days, seven partly cloudy and 17 cloudy, but only seven days on which precipitation was enough to be recorded.

Marquette Wants Lake Steamships

Marquette—Announcement was made Thursday by President E. J. Hudson of the Marquette Chamber of Commerce of the appointment of a special committee to confer with officials of several lake steamship companies relative to having Marquette made a port of call for freight and passenger service.

D. M. Hackney of the Soo-Marquette hardware company has been named as chairman of the committee. The other committee members are E. S. Bennell of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, Philip Spear, Jr., of the F. B. Spear and Sons Company, E. A. Derleth of Roach and Seaber company, J. C. Gannon of Gannon company, H. W. Burkhalter of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, F. A. Johnson of Armour and Company and A. F. Jacques of the James Pickands & Company.

For nine months the Chamber of Commerce has been corresponding with lake steamship company officials in the effort to have Marquette made a port of call. Some progress has been made but nothing definite enough to insure boat service the coming season. It is the aim of President Hudson to have his committee take immediate steps to arrange for direct contact with steamship company representatives.

Detroit Library Reports Gain in Reader Interest

Detroit, Jan. 2 (P)—The tastes and interests of several hundred thousand Detroiters as reflected in their reading habits are revealed in a report from the Detroit Public Library.

The librarians who oversee the checking out of books to the institution's 307,515 card holders, an increase of 74,000 over a year ago, have found that the city is reading more than ever before and is manifesting a distinct inclination toward the "heavy stuff."

Fiction, as usual accounted for more than half of the visits to the library and its branches. The records of the fiscal year show that 54 per cent of the titles drawn upon were fiction works.

Another interesting fact is culled from the year's statistics. That is that Detroit, for all its vaunted materialism and hard-shelled industrialism, is interested in works on the fine arts. There were 6,029,121 books drawn from the library during the year, and of this number 11 per cent were in this classification.

Other topics, such as essays, poetry, natural sciences, philosophy, history, travel, biology, drama and religion accounted for from 7.37 to 1.31 per cent each of the remaining books.

And who does this reading? The librarians say that the adults do. Such was not the case in previous years when more than half of the library's circulation was among juvenile card holders. During the past year adults drew 2,563,848 books and children 2,465,273. The librarians explain this with the observation that the children of a few years ago who were taught to use the library now have grown up and retain the habit.

After this organization ceased to exist Mr. Guidebeck purchased the Moore House on Superior street and ran this hotel until he disposed of his property and moved to Gladstone, where the family have since resided.

Boys Rob Xmas Trees
Sid Moran and Joseph Desarmo, two Munising youths, were arraigned before Justice Walters on a charge of robbing the municipal Christmas trees, erected along the business streets for decorative purposes during Christmas week. Some of the trees in the central part of the city were ornamented with electric lights and it was these bulbs the boys stole. The theft was committed very late Christmas eve or early Christmas morning. Fifty-two bulbs were taken. Night officer Enzman went quietly to work and followed up a clue that led to the arrest of the young fellows. They had hidden the bulbs in a box at the old furnace location at East Munising. They returned 36 of the 52 bulbs and pleaded guilty to the charge. Justice Walters sentenced them to serve thirty days in the Alger county jail. One of the boys gave as an excuse that he was drunk at the time. No doubt they had intended to sell them in order to obtain some spending money.

Program At Methodist-Episcopal Church Sunday Night

We sometimes think that because a child is young, his brain is his experience and wisdom lacking, that our responsibility towards him is the less. But as a matter of fact the first impressions of the child are the most lasting, and the most powerful influences in determining the outcome of his life are the earliest ones. A babe starts his life at birth with nothing but in a short time he has learned to speak, and has become acquainted with much of his immediate surroundings in the world of his life. He has formed many habits which will follow him all through life. He has established the beginnings of permanent character and disposition. Realizing the impressions the child receives both in the Sunday school and the church a program dedicated to "Childhood" will be produced in the First Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday evening at the usual hour of 7:30. The pastor of the church will trace all the references in the scriptures to the "childhood" of the Master Himself. Mr. Sidney Pellowe who has written this program will present it in his own way and will bring to us his message in an illustrated song. The church extends to all a most cordial invitation.

DEBATERS MEET MAROONS NEXT

Manistique Affirmative Team Wrangles Menominee Jan. 16

Following the reopening of school on Monday, the debate team, under the direction of Coach Tanni, will resume work on their next debate, that with Menominee, Friday, Jan. 16. The negative forensic squad from Manistique will meet the local affirmative trio at the high school auditorium on that date. This is the final preliminary debate of the green and white representatives will engage in before the upper peninsula contest begins.

Teams for this elimination contest are selected on a point basis, each victory netting four so far. With a perfect score of 12 so far, and with a possible 16, Manistique is virtually assured a place among the eight highest teams in the peninsula which are invited to compete.
On November 7, the high school negative team started the season by turning in a victory over the Sault debaters, the first win for a local team over the 800 since 1923. Two weeks later the affirmative squad added another victory to their list when they won the judges decision over St. Ignace. The third battle was won when the negative debaters chalked up another victory against the St. Joseph team at Escanaba, Dec. 12.

If Coach Tanni's proteges survive their first engagement in the elimination series they will receive the University of Michigan wall plaque, which is being offered through the cooperation of the Detroit Free Press.

A DECLARATION of WAR against UNEMPLOYMENT!

WE, the people of Escanaba and surrounding territory, who are now employed in commerce and industry and enjoying regular incomes from our daily pursuits, do hereby declare a state of war to exist between ourselves and the common enemy Unemployment.

To prosecute this war to a swift and successful conclusion, to hasten the return of general prosperity, we believe that certain definite measures should be adopted now by everybody who is able to do so.

These measures we believe to be as follows:

- I. To maintain the standard of living to which we are accustomed.
- II. To continue to make regular, normal purchases of the things which we are accustomed by our living standards to purchase.
- III. To anticipate certain future needs now so as to
 1. Take advantage of present prices;
 2. To guard against the sudden rise of prices which will result if a curtailment of buying is allowed to store up a huge demand.

We believe that the above program should be adopted immediately by everyone who is able to do so, and as a pledge of our support we have signed our name below. COME ON, ESCANABA! LET'S GO!

Preceding the devotional was a program under the auspices of the Luther League, featuring readings, musical numbers and vocal renditions. Refreshments were served by ladies of the congregation. Mesdames Chas. Gustafson and Victor Lillquist being in charge.

DEATH CLAIMS GLADSTONE MAN

Ricus Guidebeck, 67, fails to recover after injuries.

Ricus Guidebeck, 67, resident of Gladstone for the past six years, passed away at an Escanaba hospital Wednesday evening at 9:20 o'clock following a short illness. He was injured three weeks ago while working at the front plant at Masonville and while the injuries were not of a serious nature, advanced age halted recovery and his strength gradually failed.

He was born August 1, 1863 at Dennisonville, Mich., where he spent his boyhood and early manhood. Thirty-five years ago he came to the upper peninsula and to Munising, where he resided until six years ago when he removed to this city. He was employed as a scaler at the Boni Manufacturing company throughout his life he has been connected with the lumbering industry in some capacity.

His passing brings the second death in the family within a year since dying January 3, 1930.

A distinguished cast including Barbara Leonard, Donald Crisp, Lumsden Hare and David Torrence is seen in support.

"Lawful Larceny," Radio Pictures all-talking drama at the Rialto theatre, is a distinguished adaptation of the original New York stage success, and is just as entertaining.

Bebe Daniels, the star scores in an entirely new role, that of a wife who sets out to recover her husband from another woman. Her performance is intensely human and convincing.

She is supported by a cast of former stage favorites, including Olive Tell, Lowell Sherman, Purnell Pratt and Kenneth Thomson.

There is not a dull moment in the picture which tells an entertaining story of a cycle of victims. The husband is victimized by a siren, the siren victimized by a clever lovable but unscrupulous man, admirably portrayed by Lowell Sherman.

Michigan Appears as Strong Cage Contenders

DANIELS LEADS POINT SCORERS

Wolverines Have Average of Nearly 40 Points a Game Thus Far

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 2 (AP)—Averaging nearly 40 points a game in its four pre-season contests, University of Michigan's basketball squad has served notice on its Western Conference rivals that it intends to be a strong contender for Big Ten court honors. The total points scored now stands at 159.

Not only as a scoring machine but on defense as well, the squad has shown during its early games. Four opponents have managed to score only 55 points, none of them exceeding 25 centers in a game.

No Set-Ups
Nor can it be said that Michigan has played only set-ups thus far. Against Western State and Michigan State, the Wolverines counted 35 and 33 points respectively and neither is a weak team. Against Pennsylvania, Michigan ran the score to 46 points, duplicating that high mark against Ohio Wesleyan. And neither of those teams is a set-up.

Of the three men comprising the Michigan forward line, Daniels is high point scorer with 49 points, an average of 12 points a game. Wells has 35 and Eweland 26.

The individual scoring summary to date:

| | FG | FT | TP |
|------------|----|----|-----|
| Daniels | 19 | 11 | 49 |
| Wells | 14 | 10 | 35 |
| Eweland | 11 | 4 | 26 |
| Altenhoff | 4 | 3 | 11 |
| Shaw | 2 | 5 | 9 |
| Downing | 3 | 0 | 6 |
| Petrie | 3 | 0 | 6 |
| Garner | 2 | 1 | 5 |
| Tessmer | 1 | 1 | 3 |

COUGARS LOSE TO ALABAMA

Crimson Tide Runs Over Washington State by 24-0 Score

Rose Bowl, Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 1 (AP)—Alabama brought a great football team out of the south to defeat Washington State College, 24 to 0, today in the sixteenth playing of the annual Tournament of Roses game. Seventy thousand spectators saw the game through in a slight drizzle of rain.

The Crimson Tide went into the game resolved to give Wallace Wade, their coach, who is leaving Alabama for Duke University in North Carolina, a parting gift and they made it a convincing one with three sensational touchdowns in the second period against the husky Cougars.

Washington held its own in the final quarter and threatened to score, while Alabama, after scoring a field goal in the third period, could not again get its attack to function.

Score After Passes
The players from old Alabama, playing with fine precision in the second period, made the contest practically safe beyond recall in this hectic session.

Two startling passes and a running play wrecked the hopes of the big boys from the northwest.

Coch Wade amazed the home folk and the small contingent from Alabama by sending out his second string players to start the game, only Captain "Toots" Clement answering the starting roll call.

Washington State started with a world of power, but could not keep the ball rolling and kicks were exchanged as the opposing teams tried each others' prowess and sparred for openings.

Manistique Legion Takes Easy Victory

Manistique, Jan. 2 (Special)—The Manistique Legion ran roughshod over the Newberry Legion in a rough battle here tonight, winning handily by a score of 12 to 13 in spite of the fact that they finished the scrap with only three men on the court.

Carlson with ten points led the attack for the Schoolcraft outfit. With nearly a quarter left to play, Captain Kelly was ejected from the game with four personal fouls against him. Lacking a substitute the Manistique team played with a four-man combination and battled on better than even terms with their opponents. In the closing minutes Bartman was sent to the showers and the Schoolcrafters were forced to complete the game with only three men. The trio prevented any further scoring, however.

Plays and Players

BY EVERETT S. DEAN
McCracken, Indiana's All-Conference center is shown here demonstrating the start and finish of good form in executing the bounce pass. Picture No. 1 shows an alert, versatile position from which he can do many things.

The bounce pass is used mostly to get a pass through the front line defense to a teammate behind a defensive man any place on the court. To execute this play correctly, the passer must use a good eye-feel, in order to prevent the guard from anticipating the play. There should be a complete follow through of the arms and body. The bounce pass can be used effectively in any style of offensive play.

The underhand pass is most suitable to the short pass, criss-cross style of offensive which calls for a crouched position of the body. This pass is good because it is short and accurate, safe from interception, and insures possession of the ball a longer period of time. The pass is aimed waist high and should carry on a level not more than 15 feet in length.

Hook passes have a place in any team's offense because they are most effective in the corners. This is a hard pass to master but it is worth the effort.

The push pass is one of the most versatile because it is quick and hard to guard. The first picture demonstrates good form for this pass as well as the bounce pass. This pass is the team pass of many teams.

TOMORROW: Pennsylvania system.

BEVENOC WILL MEET STAMBO

Play at Coliseum Gym on Sunday Afternoon; Hard Tilt Looms

The Escanaba Bevenocs will clash with the Stambaugh Big Jo basketball team at the Coliseum gymnasium Sunday afternoon in a game that promises to be one of the hardest of the season for the undefeated Escanaba crew which has piled up a record of thirteen consecutive victories to date without a defeat chalked against them.

The Bevenocs will find in the Stambaugh aggregation one of the toughest cage teams in the peninsula and their triumphant march will get a real test from the invading clan of basket tossers.

Included among the list of stellar cagers who will perform with the Stambaugh team are Pete Malone, George Harris, Nels Maki, the Flynn Finn, Jack Westberg, Walter Swanson, Vernon McCaskey, Ed Peterson, and Darold Johnson.

These boys have played on championship Stambaugh high school teams in recent years and have established themselves as cage artists par excellence. Many of them have played on college teams and in industrial leagues since their graduation from high school.

AGITATOR COPS ASPIRANT RACE

Whitney Horse Romps in Ahead of Fast Field at New Orleans

New York, Jan. 2 (AP)—C. V. Whitney, ranking money winning owner of 1929 and 1930, got away to a flying start in the 1931 financial race when Agitator carried the famous Eton Silks to victory in the Aspirant purse at the Fair Grounds, New Orleans, today.

Meeting a classy field of sprinters, the six-year old son of Pennant covered the six furlongs in 1:12 4-5 to defeat Croix, a former staminate and now racing for Mrs. B. C. Hart, by one and one-half lengths. Third went to E. R. Bradley's Broad Meadows, Agitator with Kenneth Russell in the saddle paid $7.50 for $2 in the mutuels.

Butter Beans, one of the cheapest yielding investments in the history of the Cuban racing, made good in her initial start as two-year old fillet made their debut in the Danzeuse purse at Oriental Park, Havana. The little miss cost Trainer J. M. Reed just $25 at the Audley farm sales in Lexington last fall but today she more than paid back her purchase price. In addition to winning the major share of the $300 purse, she paid 15 to 1 in the book betting. She carried the colors of the Forest Court stable to victory over Mrs. Payne Whitney's Felona and E. R. Major's Clodith.

D. Homewood's Sport Hallahan made a bid for his second consecutive victory at St. John's, but ran second to S. Ryan's Croydon in the Bayard purse, a six-furlong claiming affair. Croydon which paid 6 to 1, showed the way to Sport Hallahan and J. Howard's Gladys McClain.

Foreign Stars of Track Are Missing From Meet Tonight

New York, Jan. 2 (AP)—The thud of flying feet on the board floor of the 106th Regiment armory in Brooklyn tomorrow night will usher in the 1931 indoor track season with the annual games of Columbus Council, Knights of Columbus.

The large crop of foreign runners who have participated in past years in the "Casey" games will be missing. There will be only a mile race instead of the "mile of the century" but several events have drawn a classy field of home-bred with a promise of fast times and keen competition.

Bernard McCafferty, Holy Cross middle distance runner and winner of the event last year, heads the entry list for the Columbus 500-yard race. His competitors will include Eddie Blake, of the Boston

Miss Boehm's superior stroking and better head work overcame Mary Cutter of Winchester, 6-3, 6-1. Miss Whitmore displayed many sensational left handed strokes in her stubbornly played extra set semi-final with Katherine Winthrop of Hamilton. The scores were 4-6, 3-7, 5.

Rockne Doesn't Favor Any Football Changes

BY EDWARD J. NEIL (Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Jan. 2 (AP)—The Scandinavian master of the Irish—Knute Kenneth Rockne—planted his ailing dogs on the cushion of a soft chair in his hotel suite and gave up a vain effort to remain hidden in New York.

"Let's talk about anything," he said, "anything but football, I'm an invalid."

Whereupon the coach of the finest football team the country produced this fall launched into a lecture on physiology, all about the ganglion of the sympathetic nerve system, which seems to have something to do with the swelling of his legs and the clotting of blood in his veins. He quoted extensively from books he has been reading on the subject and seemed a trifle embarrassed that with all these things wrong with him, he still looked ruddy and hearty, anything but ill.

Infection Gone
"I'm fine now," he concluded as he wound long rubber bandages about the calves of his legs. "This will never bother me much again. A year ago my blood was full of streptococci, and that infection, probably from my tonsils, broke down the veins in my legs. Now the doctors tell me the infection is gone. I can do anything I want to, just as I always have, but I must rest two days during a week during the next football season to get back the energy I use up."

With that matter all straightened out, the Notre Dame mentor promptly switched the subject to the football. He arrived in town today for a week's visit, but his hospital stay at the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minn., forced him to miss the annual coaches' meetings here last week. All afternoon, however, he received reports from coaches still in the city on the "inside" doings of the conferences.

"Football is all right just as it is," he insisted, "if I had been at the meetings there was nothing I could have suggested. I'm in favor of letting the game alone for a while. Why even the coaches are beginning to find out what it's all about."

"If anything, football is suffering from the two false American credos.

"First, if it interests and entertains people—there must be something wrong with it.

"Second, if it's successful—there must be something wrong with it.

Game Is Alright
"As a matter of fact there's nothing wrong. The game is in the hands of a splendid body of men, the college coaches. When you stop to think of it, theirs is a precarious job, and keeping that job for another year sometimes depends for a family man on one single play of a ball game, the success or failure of a single pass, but did you ever hear of a coach telling his men to hold in the line to prevent a touchdown? Do you ever see a coach violate the rules of sportsmanship? Our one fault is that we don't stick closely enough together when the reform-

Saturday Basketball League for Students in Grades is Planned

A Saturday basketball league for grade school boys will be started in the Escanaba public schools under the direction of Edward Edick, of the high school faculty, it has been decided by the board of education. The first games in the series will be played Saturday January 10 at the Escanaba high school gymnasium.

Teams will be composed of players from the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the public schools. Players of teams need not be from the same school although they may be if they desire. Teams will be divided into classes, depending upon weight, height and age.

The object of organizing the juvenile independent league is threefold, listed by the board of education bulletin as follows: first, to give every boy an opportunity to play the game; second, to develop good sportsmanship, and third, to learn how to play the game.

In addition to the opportunity it will give the competing students, the grade school league is expected to be a great aid in developing the juvenile players for competition in their future years in high school. Sportsmanship and cooperation will be two points which will be stressed by the directors of the league.

All games will be played at the Escanaba high school gymnasium on Saturdays from eight o'clock in the morning until five o'clock in the afternoon. Teams entered and the schedules which will be followed will be announced later.

OLYMPIC PLANS BEING FORMED

Hoover Named Honorary President of the Association

New York, Jan. 2 (AP)—Organization for the next Olympiad, to be held in the United States during the winter and summer of 1932, was perfected today at a meeting of the executive committee of the American Olympic Association.

The executive committee appointed the committees under whose direction the American teams to compete in the various divisions of the Olympiad will be selected, named President Herbert Hoover honorary president of the association and the secretaries of state, war, and navy, honorary vice presidents.

New Policy Proposed
Avery Brundage, president of the association and of the A. A. U., designated one member of each committee temporary chairman to carry through the preliminary organization plans and report back to the executive committee at its next scheduled session to be held in New York City February 23.

Appointments of the committees carries into effect a new policy in the American Olympic Association, a policy of decentralization. In the past one committee has done all the detail work connected with the selection of the American team, a procedure that proved unwieldy. Under the new plan this work will be left to the specialized committees, which will have the responsibility of setting tryout dates and sites and selecting the teams in their various lines of competition.

RENAULT LOSES IN TEN ROUNDS

Relic of Old Days Drops Decision to Pierre Charles, Belgium

BY ORLO ROBERTSON (Associated Press Sports Writer) New York, Jan. 2.—A relic of the days when Jack Dempsey was in his prime, tried the comeback road tonight, and found the way barred by the youthful, but awkward Pierre Charles of Belgium.

Meeting in the Madison Square Garden before a crowd of 7,500, the lanky Belgian clubbed out a ten round decision over Renault, who once claimed the Canadian heavyweight title.

Like many of the recent fights in the Garden pit, the battle was not much to get up and shout about. Charles, with his long reach, did most of the clubbing while Renault did most of the holding on. The Associated Press score sheet gave the big Belgian seven of the ten rounds while Renault took one and two were even.

Charles started out to subdue his veteran opponent in the first round and almost accomplished the trick with the long swinging lefts that fell like perpetual motion on Renault's head. The Canadian came back, strong, however, and managed to hold his opponent even in the second session by walking inside of his lanky arms.

Starting with the sixth, Charles shifted his attack to the body and slowly wore his clinging opponent down, but by the time he had Renault tired out, the Belgian was ready to say quits. Flashing some of his old style attack, Renault managed to win the seventh round.

Charles weighed 213 pounds and Renault 213 1/2.

Southwest Stars Beat Middle West By Score of 18-0

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 1 (AP)—Striking twice through the air in the first half and again in the ebbing minutes of play on a 40-yard run by Buddy Hackman, brilliant University of Tennessee halfback, the Southwest All-Stars defeated the Middle West, 18 to 0, in the third annual Dixie classic here today.

An estimated crowd of 14,000 saw a great exhibition of football and helped swell a fund to go to the Scottish Rite hospital for crippled children here. To add to the pleasure of the occasion, it was the first time the home fans had seen their standard bearers victorious over huskies from the north country.

Chicago Journalist Loses Death Fight

Chicago, Jan. 2 (AP)—Harry Hochstadter, Chicago Tribune turf writer and sports authority, lost his valiant two year struggle against death today.

"Hoch" as he was known to thousands of race track fans throughout the United States and Cuba, succumbed to heart disease and other complications which had made him a "fighting invalid" for the past two years. During this prolonged illness, he refused to quit, writing his daily column from his beds for the Chicago Evening Post. Today his column appeared as usual and many of his friends were unaware of his condition.

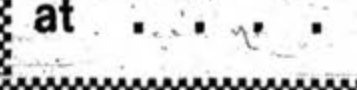

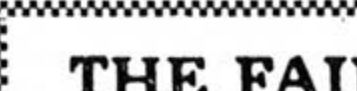

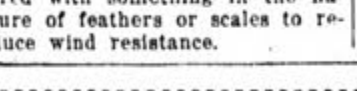

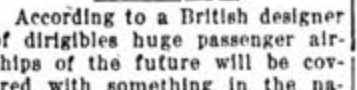

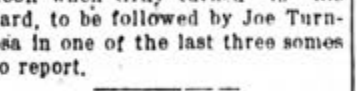

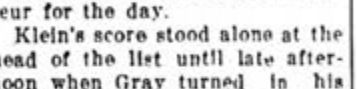

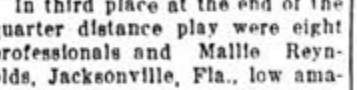

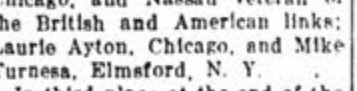

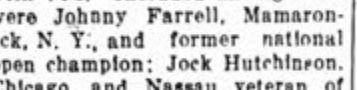

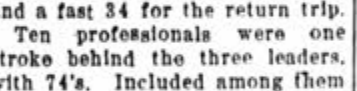

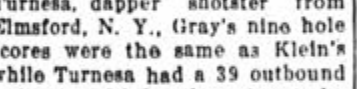

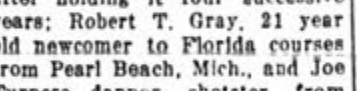

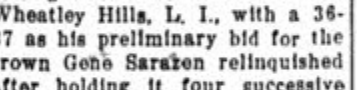

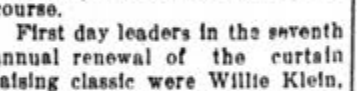

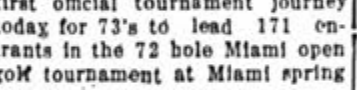

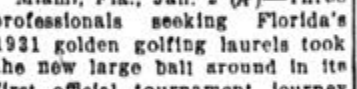

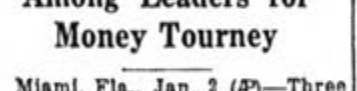

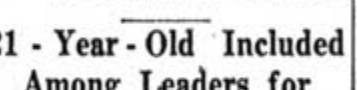

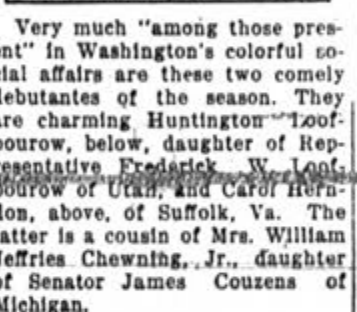

Hochstadter started and finished his writing career in Chicago, where he was born 43 years ago. He wrote successfully for the Chicago Evening American, on which paper he started as an office boy and printer's devil. The Chicago Journal and the Post. He was one of the organizers of the Illinois Turf Writers Association and one of the leading influences in the successful fight to bring back horse racing in legalized form to Illinois.
