

INCREASED STATE BUDGET SUBMITTED

CONGRESS ALL MIXED UP IN MAKING LAWS

FILIBUSTER WOULD FORCE EXTRA SESSION

BY DAVID LAWRENCE (Copyright 1931, by the Escanaba Press) Washington, Jan. 12—Congress has gotten itself into many tangles. The fight over recon- sideration of the appointment of the three men recently confirmed by the senate for the federal power commission, the attempt to pass a food loan, and the injection of a number of collateral issues such as the proposal to unseat Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania because of large expenditures made in his behalf, all have served to make it doubtful what the next six weeks will bring in the way of necessary appropriation bills.

Unless funds are appropriated in accordance with the estimates, an extra session of congress will be forced. While nobody is willing to take responsibility for a filibuster that would compel an extra session, the situation is drifting along in such fashion that congress will find itself the last part of February with so much unfinished business that any two or three senators can bring about the extra session.

Drouth Help Delayed The atmosphere at present in Washington is so filled with antagonisms that the prompt passage of the needed appropriation bills has been retarded. For example, if the president should take the position that the three members of the power commission have been duly confirmed and thus cannot be recalled by the senate, it is possible for the senate to make things uncomfortable for the president on other nominations.

It had been believed that the drought loan bills would be passed long before this, but the situation in Arkansas, prompted Senator Caraway to attach an amendment requiring the expenditure of $15,000,000 for food loans, has complicated the parliamentary status of the drought bill and the entire machinery which the department of agriculture has been preparing to put in motion for drought relief has been held up.

Within the next week the drought bill undoubtedly will be disposed of in some way and the debate over the nominations to the power commission is not likely to be extended because the prospect is that now the president will either decline to send the nominations back or the matter will get into the courts for argument, which would, of course, carry the whole thing past the power of the present congress.

Meanwhile, there is a possibility of new issues being developed for debate in congress and it is confidently expected that the Wickersham report will afford plenty of opportunity for the taking of more time that might be devoted to consideration of appropriation measures.

There is always the possibility that congress will speed up legislation in the last minutes or that a resolution continuing to be passed over into the next fiscal year. There are so many important and vital problems pressing for consideration that many members of congress who are not particularly anxious for an extra session are wondering if it can be avoided at all. As a rule the minority group decides whether there is to be an extra session when the congress expires by limitation on the fourth of March. And there are numerous influences which are trying to force the new congress into action sooner than December, 1931.

Hope Abandoned for Missing Fliers

In the Headlines From Washington

(By The Associated Press) Four of six members of reorganized tariff commission confirmed by senate.

House rules committee voted special legislative status to drought relief appropriation bill to permit sending it to conference.

Six states filed a motion in supreme court to dismiss the suit of Arizona to halt construction of Hoover dam.

Comptroller Pole advocated legislation against circulating false reports about the condition of national banks.

Secretary Doak urged deportation of undesirable aliens.

House debated Vestal copyright bill.

MANY WORKERS BACK ON JOBS

Thousands Are Recalled as Factories Speed Up Production

Detroit, Jan. 12 (AP)—Industrial payrolls in the Detroit area today were stepped up approximately $2,000,000 a week. Thousands of workers were recalled either on full or part time as automobile factories increased their production schedules.

The total number of men employed in five large factories stood at 136,000 today. These men are working on schedules varying from three to five days a week. The factories are those of the Ford Motor company, the Cadillac Motor company, the Hudson Motor company, the Buick Motor company and the Chevrolet Motor company. Officials of these factories have indicated that additional workers will be put on as the situation warrants.

Heading the list was the Ford Motor company where more than 60,000 men returned today, bringing the total employment to 75,000. Ford plants throughout the country today had a total of 107,000 men at work. The majority of the Ford workers are on a three-day-a-week basis.

The employment at other factories in the Detroit area stood as follows: Buick, 13,550; Hudson, 10,000; Cadillac, 5,000; Chevrolet, 32,100. Officials of Chevrolet have indicated that they planned to have the normal force of 40,000 at work by the end of January.

The resumption of activity was echoed in other parts of the state as two Kalamazoo plants announced their plans to start work within 30 days and four factories in Belding resumed normal activity. The Kalamazoo plants were the Kalamazoo Stove company and the United Corporation of America.

Ford Officials at Detroit said it was uncertain when their organization would start a five-day-week schedule. "Whether we shall go on a five-day basis for the majority of the men in the near future depends, entirely," the officials said, "on business conditions and the market for cars."

Alleged Rum Boat Seized By Guards

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 12 (AP)—Pierced with machine gun bullets and the after part of her pilot-house damaged by a one-pound shell, the power boat Violet, of Baltimore, was towed to this port today by coast guard patrol boat CG-221.

The vessel, which coast guardsmen said was loaded with assorted liquors estimated at 700 cases, was captured shortly after midnight after a long chase and much shooting by the coast guard craft. Three men composing her crew jumped overboard after their craft was grounded but they were captured by a small boat from the CG-221.

Army Officer, Of Ionia, Passes Away

Washington, Jan. 12. (AP)—Major Frank P. Avery, 77, of Ionia, Mich., for more than half a century an army officer, died here today. Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning in Arlington.

Although his ministry may be overthrown, he intends, he said, to introduce in the chamber of deputies; several measures calculated to ease the economic situation in France and to provide work for the unemployed. One of them is for an appropriation of about $7,800,000 for public works projects and another for a $6,000,000 appropriation to develop water power and electric power in the provinces.

TWO BELIEVED LOST; VESSELS KEEP OUTLOOK

WOMAN AND MAN IN PAYLOAD FLIGHT DEAD, THEORY

New York, Jan. 12 (AP)—Messages to The Associated Press from half a dozen ships at sea today told of the sharp, but futile, watch being kept for the missing monoplane Tradewind.

Along the French and Portuguese coasts and at the Canary Islands and Madeira, a similar watch appeared fruitless.

Nowhere was a report received to indicate that the plane, piloted by Mrs. Beryl Hart and Captain William S. MacLaren, was still in the air.

Mountainous seas, prevalent over nearly all the Atlantic, made it improbable that if the Tradewind had been forced down it could live for more than a short time.

The steamer Excelsior, heading westward from the Azores, reported a rough sea, with falling barometer and sporadic rain. Despite a sharp lookout there was no sign of the Tradewind.

Rough Water The Excelsior, just west of the islands, searched fruitlessly. She also reported squally weather and high seas.

The master of the Exton wireless from southeast of Horta that he was keeping a special lookout but apparently to no avail. The Exton was meeting a moderate easterly gale and a rough easterly sea.

The liners Resolute and Conte Grande queried other shipping but heard no report of the Tradewind. Like the other vessels they reported rough water.

The master of the steamer Bloemfontein reported from latitude 37 degrees 12 minutes, longitude 72 degrees 20 minutes: "Falling wind, sea increasing. No news of seaplane Tradewind."

Mrs. Cora Mansfield, mother of Mrs. Hart, declared tonight she did not intend to "begin to worry for another 48 hours at least."

She said she was confident the fliers were safe, perhaps on some remote island in the Azores, or on a fishing boat not equipped with radio.

ABANDON HOPE

Horta, Island of Fayal, Azores, Jan. 12 (AP)—Hope that the trans-Atlantic "payload" aviators, Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieutenant William S. MacLaren, were still alive was virtually abandoned tonight.

Not a word or a sign of them had been received since they took off from Hamilton, Bermuda, at 11:15 a. m. E. S. T. Saturday.

Alfalfa Bill Takes Governorship Chair

Oklahoma City, Jan. 12 (AP)—From the cotton patch and teepees, and from high positions, Oklahomaans joined today to inaugurate William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray their ninth Democratic governor.

The white man, the red man and the negro, formed a spontaneous pageant of Oklahoma history, as twelve thousand of them saw the author, picturesque constitutional gait, take the oath of office from his 91 year old father, Colonel Uriah Dow Thomas Murray.

Murray, who already had served notice his administration would be one of the common people, with tax slashing and grim economy, said in an extemporaneous speech he would "walk the highway alone," challenged his enemies, and promised to reform the pardon and parole system.

Steege Will Promote Jobs for Jobless

Paris, Jan. 12 (AP)—Premier Theodor Steege, who faces the French parliament once more tomorrow told The Associated Press today that whatever else may happen, so long as he remains at the head of the government he will do all he can to promote and improve economic relations with the United States.

Although his ministry may be overthrown, he intends, he said, to introduce in the chamber of deputies; several measures calculated to ease the economic situation in France and to provide work for the unemployed. One of them is for an appropriation of about $7,800,000 for public works projects and another for a $6,000,000 appropriation to develop water power and electric power in the provinces.

JURY INDICTS LEO BROTHERS

Chicago Gangster Formally Charged With Lingle Murder

Chicago, Jan. 12. (AP)—A tall young man cold-eyed, light-lipped stood before Judge Phillip Finnegan today and heard a grand jury indict him for the murder of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter.

He was Leo Brothers, St. Louis gunman whose capture is hailed by authorities as the successful culmination of the seven months search for the daring assassin who shot down the newspaperman amid homegoing throngs in a pedestrian tunnel under Michigan boulevard.

Handcuffed, he was led from the court building across the court way to the jail, where a mild mannered, neatly dressed woman waited for the son she hadn't seen in 17 months.

"One look at Leo," she told Warden David Moneypenney, "and I'll know whether he is innocent or guilty."

And then the prisoner entered amid a squad of guards. The cold look lost its chill, the tight lips softened, the air of bravado faded. And then:

"How've you been, mom?" The mother, Mrs. Cordell Jensen, made no effort to conceal her emotion. Brothers, meanwhile, sought to hide his face from photographers. He was allowed to confer with his attorneys and then was taken back to his cell in the county jail.

"One look into his eyes," said the mother, "convinced me that he is innocent."

The true bill charging him with the murder was returned at 9 o'clock and two minutes later the grand jury returned the indictment before acting Chief Justice Finnegan. Three witnesses were called: Otto Sbroda and Warren Williams, said to have

PAYNE ORDERS DRIVE TO GET NEEDED FUNDS

HOUSE CAN'T AGREE ON SENATE'S FOOD BILL

Washington, Jan. 12. (AP)—A drive to raise $10,000,000 for drought sufferers was opened tonight by the Red Cross.

The call was issued by John Barton Payne, national chairman, who telegraphed 3,000 Red Cross chapters the amount of money they were to obtain.

This was announced after house Republican leaders had devised a plan intended to bring a showdown tomorrow on the senate's $15,000,000 food provision for drought relief.

The leaders will move that the house disagree to the senate proposal and send it to conference with a view to its elimination. The administration has frowned upon government appropriations for food loans.

In his telegram to local chapters, Payne said a minimum of $10,000,000 was needed to "prevent untold suffering and actual starvation by thousands of families."

His telegram follows: "Greatly increased demands during last ten days have made imperative and immediate campaign for a Red Cross relief fund to meet the emergency situation through parts of 21 states in the drought stricken area."

"A minimum of $10,000,000 is needed to prevent untold suffering and actual starvation by thousands of families."

"Pollution of water supply caused by drying cattle has been added to winter hardships in some sections."

"We are confident your people will not fail to meet their share of this humanitarian need."

"We must not fail." Payne said the Red Cross had spent or authorized cash grants totalling $1,254,000. He added $510,000 had been spent in cash by chapters in Arkansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas and Montana. The amount in each state was not given.

Grand Rapids Plans $150,000 Bond Issue

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 12 (AP)—A bond issue of $150,000 to finance relief work among the city's unemployed and to meet a situation described in the formal resolution as a "public calamity" was authorized tonight by the city commission.

Estimates indicating that such a sum would be needed to care for the jobless until the end of the fiscal year had been laid before the commission by City Manager George W. Welsh.

The bonds are to be retired at the rate of $50,000 a year for the next three years. They will bear not more than four per cent interest.

The usual appropriation for this purpose is $40,000. It was increased to $50,000 at the start of the fiscal year in August but the amount is nearly exhausted already, the council was told.

Michigan Airman In Air Tour Crash

Sebring, Fla., Jan. 12 (AP)—A Waco plane, piloted by Arthur Davis, East Lansing, Mich., winner of several races at the Miami air meet, cracked up about five miles east of here today while flying in a statewide air tour.

Davis and Halley Skettett, mechanic, were headed for the airport when motor trouble caused forced landing in a swamp. The plane nosed over and was badly damaged, but the occupants were not injured.

Grosse Pointe Man Denied His Liquor

Detroit, Jan. 12 (AP)—Because whiskey manufactured since the prohibition law was enacted has no legal standing and title to it cannot be proved, Joe Burke of Grosse Pointe cannot recover 150 cases of spirits seized by U. S. customs border patrolmen a year ago in an illegal raid.

Notice was received in the U. S. district attorney's office today that such a ruling by Judge Charles C. Simmons in the Burke case has been upheld by the U. S. Supreme court, which refused to review the case of "The United States of America versus 150 bags of assorted Canadian whiskey," Judge Simons' ruling had previously been upheld by the district court of appeals in Cincinnati.

FILM ACTRESS SUED

SOLONS OPPOSE E. B. BROSSARD

Washington, Jan. 12 (AP)—After four of President Hoover's tariff commissioners had run the gauntlet of senate consideration today and emerged undamaged, a fifth—Edgar B. Brossard, Utah Republican—found cudgels lifted by both Democrats and Independent Republicans.

The charge was raised that Brossard was "too close to the sugar interests."

A sixth member—Lincoln Dixon, Democrat, of Indiana—remained to be considered after Brossard's nomination was acted upon. Dixon faced no opposition.

Henry P. Fletcher, of Pennsylvania, Republican, chairman; John Lee Coulter, Republican, North Dakota; Thomas W. Page, Democrat, Virginia, and Alfred P. Dennis, Democrat, Maryland, were those confirmed.

"Not Qualified" No record votes were required to dispose of these four, but Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, contended Fletcher, a former diplomat of note, was not qualified as a tariff expert and had "studiously refrained from informing himself regarding the tariff."

Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, took issue with Borah. He said Fletcher was a man of outstanding intelligence

To Reopen Case of Man Who Kept Quiet As to Booze Source

Cadillac, Mich., Jan. 12 (AP)—The case of Frank Harrand, the Grand Traverse county farmer who could not or would not tell Judge E. J. Millington where he got his liquor, will be reopened January 20.

Harrand, who was held in jail for 37 days under a contempt of court order issued by Judge Millington, was released shortly before Christmas when the Supreme court granted a rehearing of the matter on an appeal instigated by Cadillac citizens.

Prosecutor W. H. Yearnd announced today that he had filed, last week, a motion for a dismissal of the contempt charge against Harrand and that the motion would be heard next week at Lansing.

Harrand was arrested for drunkenness November 7, brought before Judge Millington he said he did not know who had given him the liquor. Judge Millington invoked a little-used portion of the state prohibition law in sending him to jail for an indeterminate time for contempt of court.

Newberry Predicts Better Conditions

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 12 (AP)—Truman Handy Newberry, former U. S. Senator from Michigan and secretary of the navy in President Roosevelt's cabinet, said today "conditions must improve because they cannot get any worse."

Mr. Newberry is here awaiting the arrival of his yacht, Truant, for the winter season. "We need to work and have patience," he said. "Conditions will improve gradually this year and in 1932 there will be a great revival of values," he predicted.

Stringent Alien Laws Recommended

Washington, Jan. 12 (AP)—Recommendations for curbing bank runs and deporting undesirable aliens were received from treasury and labor department officials today by the Communist investigating committee for presentation to the house January 17.

In secret session, Secretary Doak went on record for more stringent alien deportation laws. Comptroller of the Currency Pole asked for legislation making it a criminal offense to circulate false reports concerning any national bank or member of the federal reserve system.

Chairman Fish said he called Pole in connection with reports that runs of "undesirable" Communist propaganda.

BRUCKER WILL MOVE TO PARE ALL EXPENSES

GREEN TELLS COST TO CARRY OUT PROJECTS

BY GILBERT T. SHILSON, (Ass'd Press Staff Writer) Lansing, Jan. 12 (AP)—An increase of $7,000,000 or more a year in the state property tax would be required to meet a budget covering state institutions and departments submitted to Governor Wilbur M. Brucker today by former Governor Green and G. R. Thompson, state budget director. The executive will oppose the suggested advance. He will seek instead to cut expenses below present levels, he said.

Former Governor Green also declared he does not recommend the huge appropriations but offers them as necessary if the state is to continue all its present activities.

The budget proposes total appropriations of more than $96,000,000 for the next biennial period, an increase of nearly $12,000,000 over appropriations for the same purposes enacted by the 1929 legislature.

No Time for Increase It will be placed before members of the legislature as a guide to their financial legislation rather than as a final document setting forth actual needs. Governor Brucker will confer with members of the house and senate finance committees. Later administration bills, sharply paring the requested appropriations will be introduced, probably by either Rep. Gus T. Hartman, prospective chairman of the house ways and means committee, or Senator Arthur Wood, head of the senate finance committee.

"The state is in no position to increase expenses at this time," Governor Brucker said. "It has not shined the budget thoroughly, but I will not support appropriation measures calling for an increased outlay. I believe we can reduce the costs of many of these departments and institutions."

The governor indicated that he will attempt to hold the state property tax to its present level or below. If the tentative budget were adopted as it stands, the property tax to its present level or below. If the tentative budget were adopted as it stands, the property tax on even the most conservative basis would have to mount from the present $23,500,000.

Speed Is Urged On Flood Control Work

Chicago, Jan. 12 (AP)—The prairie states and the deep south joined in predicting at Mayor William Hale Thompson's flood control conference today a speedy response from congress to proposals for a billion dollars to curb the rampaging Mississippi.

Speakers from Kansas, Illinois and Louisiana threw their support behind augmented appropriations for work on the river. One of them—Representative U. S. Guyer of Kansas—said that flood control would be the best investment since the Louisiana purchase.

Congress has appropriated $346,000,000 for the Mississippi project. Mayor Thompson not only proposed to the conference that what remains of this sum be released at once, but enough to make a total of a billion. He said that such a sum would go a long way toward relieving unemployment.

Guyer said there was no evidence the relief project would cost a billion dollars, but added: "What if it does?"

Two Are Sentenced For Robbery Armed

Gladwin, Mich., Jan. 12. (AP)—Charles Hodgkins, 22, and Charles Nestell, 19, both of Midland, pleaded guilty to charges of robbery armed before Judge E. J. Smith in Gladwin county circuit court today.

Hodgkins, who was arrested in the same house where Edwin Cassidy, escaped Ionia convict, was shot through the head by a state trooper on January 3, was sentenced to Michigan state prison at Jackson for from 20 to 40 years. Nestell, arrested later when implicated by Hodgkins in the robbery of a store at Winagar the night before, was sentenced to one to three years in Ionia reformatory.

According to Hodgkins, Cassidy, Nestell and himself held up the store, taking $17. Nestell denied participation in the actual robbery.

ROAD PROJECTS ARE APPROVED

Highway Committee Has First Meeting; US-2 Relocation Okehd

Lansing, Jan. 12 (AP)—Holding its first meeting of the year, the highway committee of the new state administrative board today awarded road contracts amounting to $283,303.

The committee also authorized the construction of more than 20 miles of pavement and 41 miles of gravel in new projects.

Most of the awards were for crossings. Important among new projects authorized were the widening of the grade on US-27 from Lansing to St. Johns and the construction of eight miles of pavement on M-53 between Goodland and Burnside in Leapeer county. Awards follow:

Saginaw county, crossing Misteague creek, three miles north of Layton corners, $21,048.

Crossing Manistee river, on M-55 near Parkdale, $76,552.

Crossing Boardman river, US-31 in Traverse City, $71,442.

Lake crossing Baldwin creek, on US-10 one mile east of Baldwin, $9,569.

Schoolcraft crossing Millakola river, seven miles southeast of Whiteland, $10,706.

Grading and drainage, M-61, Bay county, 2,061 miles, M-30, east, $9,544.

Grading and drainage M-61 Gladwin county, 10,575 miles, $84,140.

The last two projects are between Standish and Gladwin. New projects approved for construction included:

4 miles pavement US-2 relocation from Sault Ste. Marie to Brimley corners.

2 1/2 miles pavement US-27, Cheboygan south to junction with US-23 and US-27.

9 1/2 miles gravel on trunk line 131, Kalkaska to Westwood.

18 miles gravel trunk line 78 from Grayling to the west end of the gravel east of Kalkaska.

3 miles pavement US-10 Mason county, Scottville to Custer.

2.9 miles pavement on new location, US-31 from North Muskegon south.

5 miles gravel trunk line 26, Ontonagon county, Bruce's Crossing south.

3 1/2 miles gravel north of Mancelona on trunk line 68.

Senate Opposition To Power Nominees Plan Next Move

Washington, Jan. 12 (AP)—Blocked by President Hoover, the senate drive for removal of three members of the new power commission marked time today as the senate opposition considered new moves.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, who led the movement for reconsideration of confirmation of the commissioners, said tonight he was contemplating asking the senate either to reject the nominations formally or to refer them back to committee.

The commissioners—Chairman George Otis Smith, Marcel Garraud, and Claude L. Draper—meanwhile went on with their duties supported by the ruling of President Hoover that they were legally in office.

Repercussions from the sharp exchange between the president and the coalition of Democrats and Republican Independents in the senate were confined today to the introduction of editorial comment in the Record.

Senator Walsh said he would speak tomorrow on the position taken by the president and would submit court decisions to support his contention that the senate had a right to reconsider the nominations.

During the debate on the tariff commission nomination today, Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho contended the executive and legislative branches should "keep hands off" the independent commissions after they had been appointed.

Robbers Attempt To Loot Grocery Store, Ford River

An attempted robbery by three unidentified men of the William Peterson grocery store at Ford River last evening was thwarted when the robbers became frightened by the appearance of Peterson. The men were described as short of stature.

According to Peterson, the men had pulled the slats from the window sill and removed the glass. They made their entrance into the store in this way but did not take anything, a checkup revealed.

Sheriff department officers were called to the scene and an investigation was begun.

Hungarian Woman Will Be Executed

Szolnok, Hungary, Jan. 12 (AP)—Scores of persons besieged the judges of the court here today for permission to witness the execution tomorrow of Frau Marie Kardos, convicted of the murder of her husband and 22-year-old son.

Frau Kardos was one of forty women tried last year on charges of murdering husbands, sweethearts or children, usually for gain. Three were sentenced to death and a number of others to long terms of imprisonment. They were alleged to have been incited to their crimes by a midwife, "Aunt Susie" Sordas, who committed suicide in her cell after her conviction of murder.

His counsel qualified Brothers' statement by saying that he had not meant he had never heard of Lingle, but that he had never heard of him in connection with himself. Brothers said that, during the time he was held incommunicado he was treated "fine" by police.

for Horta on the second lap of their flight in the monoplane "Treadwind" from New York to Paris.

Strong winds and high seas have prevailed since that time and it was feared that had they been forced down their frail machine could have withstood the seas only a few minutes. They had expected to take 21 hours for the flight and were due here at 8:15 a. m. E. S. T. Sunday morning.

One Possibility

Tonight, indicative of the fear that they were lost, gasoline supplies which had been kept on a scow in the harbor in readiness for refueling, were withdrawn.

There was still a possibility they had been forced to come down near one of the small uninhabited islands of the Azores group or had been picked up by some vessel not equipped with wireless. This possibility was a forlorn one, however, and little hope was felt in that quarter.

Although many vessels plying in the vicinity of the route the "Treadwind" was to follow kept a sharp lookout from the moment of the takeoff, the plane was not sighted. It was not equipped with wireless and so, in case of trouble, could not call for help.

In view of the possibility the aviators might have missed the Azores altogether and continued eastward, wireless stations in Madeira, the Canary Islands and along the French and Portuguese coasts were asked to be on the alert for any reports. Up to tonight nothing had been received.

Over a wide portion of the Atlantic storms prevailed tonight, according to reports from ships at sea.

Filipino Fanatics Riot, Many Killed

Manila, Jan. 12 (AP)—An uprising of 400 religious fanatics in Pangasinan province, 100 miles north of Manila, was reported quelled today by Philippine constabulary with undetermined loss of life.

At least three townspeople of Tayug were killed yesterday when the savages burned the constabulary barracks, the post-office and ten other buildings. The American flag, stripped from the city hall, was burned by the fanatics, who wore inscription bands reading: "We want the Filipino flag alone to fly in the Philippines."

Late dispatches from Tayug did not mention the deaths of several constabulary officers and soldiers, reported in previous messages, and it was thought the earlier reports were erroneous.

Three leaders of the fanatics were jailed by the constabulary. Others of the band, fleeing through the dense forests of the mountainous country, were being pursued.

Although only 100 miles from Manila, the terrain is difficult for troop operations. The region lies about thirty miles inland from Dagupan on Lingayen Gulf, the nearest railroad point.

Highway Building On Vast Scale Is Association's Aim

St. Louis, Jan. 12 (AP)—Highway construction on a vast scale to eliminate unemployment was announced today as the immediate objective of the American Road Builders' association which opened its twenty eighth annual convention here with more than 15,000 delegates.

Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads, United States department of agriculture, predicted state and federal road construction in 1931 would be 30 to 50 per cent greater than in any previous year. He estimated a total of $2,000,000,000 would be spent on road construction and maintenance this year.

A preliminary survey, he said, indicated local road building would maintain the level of last year, while much of the $80,000,000 federal road building appropriation would be used to aid states which had depleted their treasury through public works last year.

W. A. Van Duser, of Harrisburg, Pa., president of the association, declared if the annual expenditure were increased to $7,000,000,000 the entire unemployed population could be put to work at once. He said this sum appeared prohibitive "but is nothing compared with war-time expenditures."

INDIA SCENE OF SERIOUS RIOTS

Manifestants Battle Police in Several Parts of Country

BY JAMES A. MILLS

Bombay, India, Jan. 12 (AP)—Serious disorders broke out in several sections of India today, resulting in clashes between manifestants and the police. Many persons were injured.

The worst disturbances were at Bombay. There crowds, gathered as an expression of resentment against the hanging at Poona of four men convicted of murder during the Sholapur riots last year, became violent.

The demonstrators were eventually dispersed by the police who charged with their sticks. About 200 of the participants were injured, forty of them seriously.

Despite police threats to use firearms, the manifestants held up street cars, taxicabs and private automobiles, stoning the occupants and forcing them to walk. When the police commissioner appeared he was jeered and his automobile was the target for a fusillade of stones.

In other parts of the city native stores and business offices were closed, either forcibly or voluntarily. In one section huge iron chains were placed across roadways. Sporadic acts of violence continued throughout the day, terminating only at nightfall.

Many Injured

In a village near Allahabad seven police constables, one sub-inspector and many civilians were injured during a demonstration against the payment of taxes. The police fired on the mob, which retaliated with a shower of stones, sticks and bottles.

At Karachi 25 followers of Mahatma Gandhi were injured when police charged with their staves. Twenty women demonstrators, including the new woman "dictator" of Karachi committee of the Indian congress, were arrested on their refusal to disperse.

In Bombay heavy sentences were imposed on officers of the "war council" of the Bombay provincial congress committee for alleged illegal acts. The president, vice president and secretary were sentenced to six months imprisonment at hard labor and to pay heavy fines. Mohan Lal Thakkar, 18 year old editor of the Congress Bulletin, was sentenced to four months in jail.

In many parts of India scores of persons, including many women, were arrested for defiance of the laws or for seditious utterances.

the previous four months, since August, when the drought was first recognized as reaching proportions of a wide spread calamity," the Red Cross said in a statement.

Serious Situation

Chapter chairmen were said to have only recently realized "the seriousness of the situation." The Red Cross said in one county the chairman had considered distress reports exaggerated 30 days ago but today he requested relief for 250 families and feared many more would be in need.

The statement said a Red Cross worker just returned from Kentucky "reported a growing load of relief work in all chapters." It added that $4,500 was authorized today for La Fiere county, Mississippi, and $2,500 for Red River Parish, La.

"Giving feed for stock had not been contemplated in the early plans for Red Cross drought relief," the statement added, "but has assumed huge proportions in the past ten days."

Dr. William Deklein, medical director of the Red Cross, is en route to the drought stricken states to confer with state health authorities on plans for a campaign against pellagra, malnutrition and other health problems.

In the house, Democrats plan to propose that the conferees be instructed to accept the $15,000,000 food provision. Administration leaders said, however, they expect their forces successfully to resist such a move.

Watkins Sworn In As Police Leader

Detroit, Jan. 12 (AP)—James K. Watkins, attorney, former A. E. F. major and former University of Michigan fullback, was Detroit's newest police commissioner tonight.

Watkins was sworn into office at 11 a. m. today by Richard W. Reading city clerk; received the felicitations of Mayor Frank Murphy and Thomas C. Wilcox, the deposed commissioner, and shook the hands of a long line of patrolmen and officers who filed through his office.

It was Detroit's fourth change in police commissioners within 12 months, the post having been held successively by William Rutledge, Harold H. Emmons and Wilcox.

In an address to the policemen gathered for the inauguration ceremony, Mayor Murphy said his new commissioner was taking office under the sole condition of doing his duty. The mayor lauded the work of the retiring commissioner and said that he took office during the "most trying time in the history of the department" and "did his job well and conscientiously."

090 to $25,976,985. The budget optimistically estimates that more than $7,000,000 in delinquent taxes will be collected next year and the following year. If this should not occur the state tax would have to mount still higher. It also estimates a yield of $1,500,000 a year, from the malt tax but the law probably will be repealed.

In his letter of transmittal Green said: "This budget, carrying such a large sum of money, is not recommended, but it is necessary if all the activities now carried on by the state are to be continued."

The budget provides for continuing Green's $23,000,000 institutional program at the pace established by the last legislature. This would require an appropriation of approximately $12,000,000 for the coming biennium to complete the four year schedule. Governor Brucker believes, and proposes to recommend, that this outlay be spread over a longer period, he favors slashing the contemplated $12,000,000 appropriation for the next two years practically in two.

The budget also again sets forth former Governor Green's proposed ten year building program. It does not, however, include the estimated ten year expenditure of $42,380,659 and proposes to come before the present legislature, as no legislature could be expected to bind itself to a ten year schedule of appropriations.

Total budget appropriations approved by the 1929 legislature for the current biennium were $84,454,593. Then tentative budget would increase this nearly $6,000,000 a year. It recommends appropriation of $50,423,563 for the fiscal year of 1931-32 and $45,700,717 for the fiscal year of 1932-33 and $45,700,717 for the fiscal year 1932-33 or a total of $96,124,280.

The most noticeable reductions were in the new Jackson prison request for more than $2,400,000 to $1,200,000. University of Michigan request for $2,408,700 to $1,400,000. Central Teachers college request for $407,000 to $13,000. College of Mining for $883,500 to $101,500. Marquette prison for $1,093,174 which was cut to $4,500. Pontiac hospital for $93,317 to $35,300; Soldiers Home for $358,092 to $23,330.

The budget carried a deficiency item which would be met by an appropriation of $4,688,883 for one year only. It was estimated the general fund will be that far in the red at the end of the fiscal year next June 30.

Governor Brucker at once set to work studying the financial set-up submitted by his predecessor. Later administration measures will be placed before house and senate finance committees, which will give the legislature Governor Brucker's views. It is believed he will attempt to pare the two year budget down to the $4,000,000 figure fixed by the last legislature, and possibly lower and that he will endeavor to arrange the budget so the state tax may be held down to its present level or below.

Naval Construction Program Prepared

Washington, Jan. 12 (AP)—Shaved down by the house naval committee to such a size as its advocates hope will slide easily down the congressional chute, the administration's naval construction program probably will be presented to the house this session.

Chairman Britten said he expected his committee to bring out a bill which would allow $74,030,000 for the first stages of construction to bring the fleet up to the strength set by the London treaty. Altogether, the proposals before congress would provide $172,935,000 for the work.

The other recommendations include one before the house appropriations committee to set aside $52,300,000 authorized for ten destroyers and one destroyer leader. The navy also has asked authority to expend $30,000,000 for modernizing three battleships.

SOLON'S OPPOSE E. B. BROSSARD

and he could not "imagine how a better appointment could have been made."

Senators Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, and LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, both members of the finance committee which considered the nominations, led the attack on Brossard. Senator Reed defended him.

Harrison argued the Utahian was "too close to the sugar interests," and said Brossard was willing that the sugar tariff be raised still higher.

Both he and LaFollette charged Brossard had not been "frank" in testifying before the 1924 senate sugar investigating committee in connection with his activities as an agricultural economist on the commission.

Harrison said Brossard denied before the committee that he prepared a report on sugar costs for a minority group of the Coolidge commission showing a higher sugar duty was warranted. He added Brossard testified recently before the finance committee he did prepare data for this report.

"Men ought to be open and frank with congress and the public and never indulge in deceit or evasiveness on public questions," Harrison said.

Defended by Reed

LaFollette asserted Brossard could "not command the respect either of the senate or the country with reference to the manner in which he conducted himself under oath before the senate (1926) committee."

The Wisconsin senator read lengthy portions of the old sugar investigation testimony and concluded:

"The senate would be more than justified in rejecting this nomination if the senate is anxious to build up an impartial factfinding commission, nothing it could do could be more effective than rejection of the nomination. The appointment of Brossard broke down the morale of the commission."

Senator Reed said Brossard's testimony before the senate investigation in 1926 had seemed "the testimony of an honest man, honestly trying to give the facts."

The contest over Brossard was still raging when the senate adjourned and a vote went over until tomorrow.

BYRD'S AIDE HAS ENTERED N. Y. COLLEGE

at a Washington airport, where he learned to grease planes and to fly. "After that, of course, Admiral Byrd always was my hero," Demas said. "When I read one day that he planned a flight across the North Pole, I asked him to take me along with the party. He explained that at least a thousand others wanted to go too, but that I could file application papers if I thought it worth while. I did, got the job, passed the examination, and won my parents' consent."

So when Byrd and the late Floyd Bennett soared away from Spitzbergen to make the first flight across the top of the world, Demas was one of the greasy mechanics who waited them on voyage. He went back to his job at the Washington airport, but left for Roosevelt Field, L. I., when he heard that Byrd was there preparing to fly the Atlantic. He had a part in the exhaustive series of tests which the America was put through before its take-off, and there he met all the men and women who dared the Atlantic during the memorable summer of 1927.

On that gray morning when the comparatively unknown Lindbergh bounced down the runway and hopped off for Paris, it was Demas who raced across the field after him in a car loaded with fire extinguishers. He was well prepared for a mishap, for a short time before he had seen Rene Fonck's blazing plane take its toll on the same field. Demas stayed at the field after Byrd's crossing, and there he turned the planes of Chamberlin, Ruth Elder, Thea Rasche and Bert Acosta. But by the time the last one had vanished in the east, "Pete" found it was too late to begin his long-planned college education.

So he joined the Dominion Explorers in a project for the aerial prospecting of the vast barren lands west of Hudson Bay. They established a base a thousand miles from a railroad, and every day scrutinized more land than old-time prospectors could have covered in a year. A radio message came to their camp one night. It said that the young mechanic was wanted by Admiral Byrd for a two-year expedition to the antarctic.

Studied in Little America. "Answer immediately," said Byrd. Three days later "Pete" walked into the party's headquarters in New York and signed for the trip. That meant another long postponement of his college course, so he went to Dean C. H. Snow of the College of Engineering at New York University and asked if there were books that he might study during the long nights in antarctica. Demas called away with a great deal of wise counsel and a huge bundle of technical texts. He studied them texts. While other members of the expedition shot wild ducks and one-eyed jacks at regular meetings of the Little America Recreation Club, Demas sat on an upper bunk and got acquainted with cosines, tangents and hyperbolic parabolas. Admiral Byrd radioed reports of his progress back to the university and finally secured a scholarship for the star pupil of the Antarctic Preparatory School.

That scholarship now means a lot to Demas, for on most of his adventures he served without pay. His tuition will be accounted for as long as he makes high grades, but he is frankly worried about his examinations. In Greece, where Epaminondas started his schooling, they spared neither rod nor child, and his first instructor used the rod so effectively that he has had a mental terror of teachers ever since. "I always have wanted to be an airplane designer," said the husky, black-eyed student, "and I'll be one yet. In Greece, as a kid, I built kites so big they carried me off the ground, and over here I've made a lot of model airplanes."

"Of course, after working on so many ships, I've become a pretty good mechanic and every one has been mighty helpful in explaining technical principles. But I'll have to go through school before I can call myself a real engineer."

So in 1925, if "Pete" retains his "antarctic scholarship," and if Admiral Byrd doesn't organize another expedition to look over

George Washington Had Honeymoon in January

So much has been written on the more spectacular phases of George Washington's life that it is sometimes difficult to appreciate the really human qualities of the man. One of the finest stories ever told of Washington is that of his courtship of Martha Custis and their subsequent marriage. In this story are revealed some of the best and most attractive qualities of America's greatest hero. The firm, strong-willed leader of men who unflinchingly would face death on the battlefield found that he needed the companionship and helpful counsel of a woman. Fortunately, he met the sort of woman he wanted to preside in his home, and they were married on January 6, 1759.

The story of George Washington's marriage to Martha Custis is told by the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, in a statement intended to call attention to the 172nd anniversary of this notable event. Wed at Seventeen. George Washington first met the Widow Custis at the home of Major Chamberlayne in May, 1758. The lady had then been a widow for about a year. She had married Colonel Daniel Parke Custis when she was seventeen years old, and was left at his death eight years later, with two small children and a considerable fortune. Although it is said that Washington was formally presented to Mrs. Custis for the first time by Chamberlayne, it is almost certain that the famous soldier and the charming widow had at least heard of each other before that time.

Fate must have taken a hand in the events of that day in May when Colonel Washington was detained at William's Ferry over the Pamunkey by his friend, Major Chamberlayne, who earnestly pressed upon the young man an invitation to stay his journey and enjoy the hospitality of the plantation. But Washington was hastening to Williamsburg where he intended to ask the Governor in person for men and supplies for the frontier, which previous urgent letters had failed to obtain. Chamberlayne was insistent, however, and when it appeared that all his importunities must fail to alter the plans of the Colonel, he informed the latter that he was then entertaining the charming Mrs. Custis. This argument, apparently, was potent enough to convince the young warrior where all others had been vain, and Washington consented to remain only long enough to partake of the meal which was then being prepared.

"Hold My Horse" Bishop, the personal servant of Washington, who had served under Braddock, was instructed to hold the Colonel's horse in readiness for a speedy departure as soon as dinner was over. The old soldier knew very well his master's reputation for punctuality, and since the business at Williamsburg was important, he fully expected that this wait would be a brief one. But the some unexplored lands, and if he continues to deny the romantic longings of his adventurer's soul, then Epaminondas J. Demas will be a graduate aeronautical engineer, with other men to grease the planes he builds and flies.

dinner hour passed, the sun sank lower into the west and still Washington lingered. At last in the warm dusk of the May evening, the faithful Bishop received orders to stable the horses for the night and the journey was postponed until the next day. There is something amusing in this scene of budding romance, although it is no wonder that Washington tarried. Martha Custis was beautiful, attractive and accomplished. She has been described as being short, slightly plump and of engaging personality. Certainly the Colonel's interest in the lady was watched by her own interest in the renowned young soldier, and such mutual agreeableness was surely sufficient to crowd prosaic business into the background.

However, the Governor had to be visited, so the next day found Washington on his way to Williamsburg. But as soon as the business which took him there was taken care of, the now fully smitten Colonel proceeded to the White House, the Custis home on the Pamunkey, where it appears Mrs. Custis expected him. When he left there he must have been in high spirits, for he took with him the lady's promise to marry him as soon as he should finish his military service on the Ohio. Lone Love Letter. Washington did not see his betrothed again for several months, for it was December before he returned from this expedition. His duties fulfilled, the Colonel resigned from the army and hastened plans for the wedding. It was during Washington's absence on the frontier that he wrote the only letter to Martha which alone remains of his prenuptial correspondence with her. This dignified and gravely tender note is dated Fort Cumberland, July 20, 1758.

"We have begun our march to the Ohio. A courier is starting for Williamsburg, and I embrace the opportunity to send a few words to one whose life is now inseparable from mine. Since that happy hour when we made our pledges to each other, my thoughts have been continually going to you as to another self. That All-powerful Providence may keep us both in safety, is the prayer of your faithful and ever affectionate friend, G. Washington."

It still is uncertain whether the marriage occurred in Saint Peter's Church or at the bride's home, the White House. At any rate, the Reverend M. Mosson, rector of Saint Peter's, officiated at the ceremony. Jared Sparks, one of Washington's earliest biographers, is the authority for the date of the wedding which he established as January 6. But no matter whether the wedding took place at the White House or in the Church, it was a notable event and was attended by a great number of Virginia's prominent people. The Governor himself was there with civil and military authorities, and many of the socially elite. Only a traditional account of the festivities on that occasion exists today, but certainly the celebration left nothing lacking. All Dressed Up. Martha's wedding gown has been thus described by one writer: "It was a satin quilt, over which white silk, inter-woven with threads of silver, was looped back with white satin ribbons, richly brocaded in a leaf pattern. Her bodice was of plain satin, and the brocade was fastened on the bust with a stiff butterfly bow of the ribbon. Delicate lace finished the low, square neck. There were close elbow sleeves revealing a puff and frill of lace. Strings of pearls were woven in and out of her powdered hair. Her high-heeled slippers were of white satin, with brilliant buckles."

The attractive appearance of the bride was equalled by that of the tall, well-built bridegroom. Always particular over his dress, Washington, on this occasion, was elegantly arrayed and, according to all accounts, was the most gallantly magnificent figure in all that assemblage. "Until Death Parts" At last Mount Vernon had a mistress, but months elapsed after the wedding before the young bride saw her future home. Washington had just been elected to the House of Burgesses so the young couple remained in Williamsburg while that Chamber remained in session until May. When Washington did return with his wife to his beautiful estate on the Potomac, the place became home to both of them for the remainder of their lives.

Washington's marriage was a singularly happy one. In Martha he found all those womanly qualities which were needed to supplement those of his own character. We can measure the value of the encouragement she must have given him during the weary days of the Revolution? Certainly she was always a faithful and devoted wife, and the Father of his Country owed a great debt to her for the measure of success he attained. Among the anniversaries of the more important dates in the life of George Washington, this one of his wedding holds an element of human interest which no doubt is appreciated by all his countrymen.

Matrimony's most dangerous period is about the twenty-fifth year, according to one German expert, who adds that many of these belated marriage tragedies occur because husband or wife is too devoted to the children and neglects the other partner.

MUST CARRY ON

THE Upper Peninsula Development Bureau will hold its annual budget meeting at Marquette on Thursday of this week, when definite plans for the activities of the organization for the coming year will be outlined and adopted. The fundamental purpose of the Bureau is to advertise to the outside world, the tourist, industrial and agricultural advantages of this section of Michigan, together with the added purpose of consolidating and coordinating the activities of all upper peninsula interests in behalf of Hiawathaland. In the twenty years of history back of the development bureau great strides have been made in "selling" the upper peninsula to its own people and the past two years have witnessed the most outstanding achievements in advertising the advantages of this section to the outside world. This latter achievement has been made possible through the cooperation of the state with the four tourist resort associations of Michigan in financing an outstanding advertising campaign in newspapers, periodicals and every other possible means. That this campaign has brought highly beneficial results is conceded by every Michigan authority and that it should be continued is agreed by all thinking people of the state.

Under the plan adopted with the passage of the Rushton-Hartman act by the legislature two years ago, the state matched dollars with funds raised by the tourist resort associations in paying the cost of a commanding and impressive advertising campaign. A similar bill is to be introduced at this session of the legislature and upon its adoption depends the permanence of this most laudable movement. It is known that Gov. Wilber M. Brucker definitely favors the continuance of the state's participation and it is confidently believed that members of the legislature recognize the importance of this work and will lend their approval.

But the mere awarding of state aid to the furtherance of Michigan's advertising program will not entirely solve the problem, for it will be just as necessary for the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, and the three other cooperating associations, to raise funds, to match the dollars of the state, as it was two years ago when the Rushton-Hartman act was first adopted.

Every village, city and county in the upper peninsula is vitally interested in the continuance and the permanence of any effort that will place the advantages of this section in a truthful light before the world at large. Two years ago, to enable the development bureau to raise sufficient funds to cooperate in the fullest extent with the state in a joint advertising program, it was found necessary to place the bureau upon a membership basis. The accomplishment of that object made it possible to budget the income of the organization annually and to carry out definite plans for the retirement of an indebtedness that had accumulated over a long period of years. The membership plan was accepted with enthusiasm by practically every county in the peninsula and to maintain each county's membership at the highest possible point must be the aim and the effort of every forward looking citizen in this territory.

DIFFERENT SLANT PREDICTIONS that the railroads will always retain sufficient traffic to support themselves in face of growing competition and that prosperity is close at hand are greatly encouraging, particularly when such optimistic forecasts come from no other than Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern railroad. Mr. Budd seems to make an unselfish analysis of railroad problem, and is inclined to adopt the "live and let live" policy with regard to competing transportation agencies.

"Railroads do not wish to meet competition by legislating against it," he declares. "Legislation they desire is for the mutual protection of all transportation agen-ties so that each may operate efficiently in its own field. Railway executives know that transportation by water, by highway, by pipe line and by air will develop, each in its economic sphere, as a matter of normal progress. Admitting that water transportation is the cheapest under certain conditions, he predicted that the public will recognize the propriety that it be financed by private capital so long as the railroads, with which water transportation competes, are supported in that way. The private automobile and truck, are responsible mainly for the railroads' loss of revenue, Mr. Budd explained. He pointed out in the field of highway transportation 97 per cent of passenger carrying vehicles and 90 per cent of trucks in operation in 1930 were non-common carriers. Most of this small percentage of highway common carriers is under state regulation, but there is still a great need for regulation of interstate traffic. As Mr. Budd discloses, the bulk of the highway competition is from the persons who drive their own automobiles for business and pleasure and their trucks for hauling their own freight, but any effort to regulate this type of traffic so that railroads can meet its competition would certainly arouse a storm of protest. Several railroads, however, have already taken steps to combat highway competition in passenger traffic by reduction of fares to two cents per mile. At the same time, additional comforts are being provided so that the traveler will be persuaded to take the railway train instead of the motor bus or his own automobile. In many cases, he finds it cheaper and more convenient.

CHEERING NEWS THE Ford Motor company's accumulation of ore properties in Dickinson county is distinctly cheering news. While there is nothing definite known about the company's development program, its consistent policy of utilizing its resources may be taken as sufficient guarantee that these ore lands will not lie idle. The acquisition by the company of the holdings of the old Beaver Iron company gives it ore deposits in nearly every section of the county, which means that whatever benefits are derived from the mining operations will be widespread. A large section of the land in the city of Norway and includes two mines of former days. It is natural to anticipate that these will be among the first to be opened up, if there is any prospect of successful operation. But at all events, this property no doubt is in line for early exploration. The chief interest attaching to the Ford ore investments is the assurance that they give of the company's continued faith in its upper peninsula operations and its desire to expand them as opportunity presents itself. The one who does not see these investments as a good omen is indeed a person difficult to please or enthruse. Their significance to this district has not been surpassed in importance within recent years except by the advent of the company itself into the upper peninsula field.—Iron Mountain News.

One commission President Hoover is probably glad he didn't appoint in the New York—Boxing Commission.

The fact that wheat consumption has greatly declined in America leads Cynical Sadie to observe that conditions have gone against the grain. The fellow who leads the college yells, says the office sage, would do well to observe the Christmas card sentiment: "Good cheer throughout the year." A woman in Illinois is reported to have cut up $2000 and sewed the pieces on a crazy quilt. There's one woman, at least, who had no difficulty making both ends meet. These are the days when a college grad would just as soon have something else on his stomach than a fraternity key.

GEORGE FOX'S DEATH On Jan. 13, 1891, George Fox, founder of the Society of Friends, or Quakers, died in London. He started out in life as a shoemaker, but when convinced that he was the subject of a special divine call, he adopted the career of an itinerant religious reformer. Fox first attracted attention as a youth of 25 when he arose during a sermon in a prominent Nottingham church and rebuked the preacher for declaring the authorship of the Scriptures to be the source of divine truth. "It is not the Scriptures," cried Fox, "it is the spirit of God." For this he was imprisoned. He was subsequently jailed several times as a disturber of the peace. His leading doctrines or convictions were: 1. The futility of learning for the work of the ministry. 2. The presence of Christ in the heart as the "inner light" superseding all other lights. 3. The necessity of trying men's opinions and religions by the Holy Spirit and not by the Scriptures.

MURDER AT BRIDGE

CHAPTER XLVII "I fall to see any necessity for all this secrecy and hocus-pocus," District Attorney Sanderson protested irritably. "Why the devil don't you come clean and give us the low-down—if you have it—on this miserable business, instead of high-handedly summoning Captain Strawn to my office, so that you can give orders to us both?" Before Dundee could answer, Captain Strawn came to his assistance. "I worked with this boy for pretty near a year, Bill, and never yet did he fall to make good when he said he had a pot on to boil. If he says it will hold over this evening, provided we help him, hell over it will, or I don't know Bonnie Dundee!" Sanderson scowled, but capitulated. "All right! What do you want?" "Thanks, Chief! And thanks, Captain!" Dundee cried, with heartfelt gratitude. "First, I want to be excused from attending the adjourned inquests into the two murders, scheduled for three o'clock today." "O. K.," Sanderson agreed shortly. "Second, after about an hour of routine stuff, I wish you'd ask for another adjournment until tomorrow, on the plea that important developments are expected today." "O. K. again!" "Third, I'd like you personally to request the appearance of every person connected in any way with each of the murders, in your office this afternoon at four o'clock—so the whole bunch will be kept together and have no chance to go to their homes or anywhere else until I am ready for them. You can say that, owing to the illness of your mother during the investigations, you want to question everyone personally." "Do you want all the servants brought here, too?" Sanderson asked. "None but Lydia Carr," Dundee answered. "After about an hour's innocuous questioning, please invite them to accompany you to the Sellm house. For that"—and he grinned—"is where the pot is scheduled to boil over. I'd

'Looking Backward'

JANUARY 13, 1931 Members of the board of education have decided that graduates of Escanaba high school will hereafter wear a uniform custom of cap and gown, for the graduation exercises. The local school will be following the lead of larger cities. Among the visitors in the city yesterday were Rev. Father Stahl of Bark River, Rev. Father Bennett of Gladstone, and Rev. Fr. Corcoran of Iron Mountain. Miss Lou Anthony is in a Chicago hospital suffering with a severe attack of appendicitis for which an operation will be performed. The W. C. T. U. will meet with Miss Mattie Atkins, South Mary street, Thursday afternoon. Among those who are taking part in the Kernis are Alton Mallman, Walter Helmer, Louise Davis, Carrie Shaw, Lela Ferguson, Robert Ryal, Ethel Briggs, Edward Smith, Helen Stack, Ruth Stack, Esther Kratze, Ruth Sverson, Olive Arnold and Edward Ryan. Julius Marcus, formerly employed at the C. & N. W. office, has accepted a position in the office of the Soo Line at Gladstone. Prosecuting Attorney Torval E. Strom is getting his first real taste of the work connected with his office, by acting as legal advisor to the county board of supervisors, now in session here. Supervisor J. W. Call of Gladstone has so far recovered from his late illness to be in attendance at the meeting of the county board. The following board of directors has been named by the stockholders of the State Savings Bank: Dr. H. B. Reynolds, E. M. St. Jacques, O. N. Hughtitt, O. B. Fuller, C. W. Kates, W. R. Smith, John A. McGuire, J. R. Wilkinson and H. H. Allyn.

Health Tips

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN People of the United States spend about $2,000,000,000 a year on sickness. Of this amount, the doctors receive less than one-fourth. The major portion of the money goes for drugs, including patent medicine, for hospital care, nursing service, and similar expenditures. Quacks get one-fourth as much as the medical profession. The smallest percentage is spent on preventive medicine. If the money lost by illness were to be spent in securing physical fitness and on prevention of disease, the returns would be enormous in benefit to the people. The attainment of physical fitness would involve first a careful physical examination for detection of such defects as inflamed adenoids, infected tonsils, infected teeth, bad posture and malnutrition. Incipient cases of tuberculosis can be diagnosed and children of a tuberculosis type could be placed in preventorium so as to give them an opportunity to build themselves into a resistant state. Where as the man past middle life is in danger because of overweight, the adolescent, up to the age of 20, is in physical danger because of underweight. The greatest record of deaths from tuberculosis in recent years has been among the adolescent group. Apparently what is required in order to secure the benefits of modern scientific medicine for the majority of the people is the development of health intelligence. A proper program would require, first of all, the dissemination of knowledge to the people as to the importance of a regular physical examination; second, a recognition of the necessity for taking care of such physical defects as have been mentioned; third, the application of immunologic methods already well established, such as vaccination against smallpox and diphtheria; fourth, realization of the necessity for attention of good personal hygiene. Good personal hygiene involves, among other things, proper care of the teeth, the nose and throat, a sufficient amount of rest and exercise, and a sufficient knowledge of diet to maintain the body weight at the optimum for height.

GAS, ELECTRIC PLANTS EXPAND

Michigan Utilities Will Spend $40,000,000 During 1931

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 13.—Michigan electric power and gas utilities are planning to spend approximately $40,000,000 in new construction during the coming year, according to a compilation of budget estimates just completed by the Michigan Public Utility Information Bureau.

This $40,000,000 will be well distributed throughout the state, from the southeastern industrial section to far away Keweenaw Peninsula.

The gas companies of the state are planning to spend close to $7,000,000 and the electric power companies have budgets running close to $33,000,000.

The electric utility plans call for added generating capacity in power houses, construction of transmission lines to reach new territory and to better serve old territory, the erection of office and service buildings, the building of farm lines, the establishing and improving of switching yards and sub-stations, and like betterments.

The gas companies are planning improvements in generating and distribution facilities, the construction of new holders, and the building of high pressure lines to take gas to communities and sections which have never hitherto had service. It is expected that between 18 and 25 additional communities will be supplied with gas before the end of the present year.

During the industrial lull both the gas and electric utilities have gone ahead with their construction programs so as to be in a position to provide ample service when normal conditions are restored. There has been a solid and substantial growth in the use of gas and electricity for purposes closely related to the advancing standards of living of the people of Michigan. Added to it are growing industrial loads as various adaptations and applications of gas and electricity to Michigan manufacturing and producing operations are developed. Enlargement of capacities and facilities are necessary to take care of this new business as well as to meet the demand from established users of gas and electricity when they resume their customary production activities.

The forty million dollars budget is evidence both of the healthfulness of the present utility business and of the faith of the utility managements that Michigan after the temporary lull will resume its vigorous activity and steady advancement.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE MICHIGAN

Mid a blare of marital music and a wailing of flags, Gary Cooper will swing onto the screen at the Michigan Theatre today in the greatest soldier role he has ever played, in "Morocco." Paramount's gigantic and spectacular drama of the French Legion.

Not even in "Beau Sabreur" did Cooper attain to the colorful background which features "Morocco," and the brilliant action which makes every moment of this Josef von Sternberg picture a breath-taking experience. In "Morocco," the talking screen has found its voice of love for, with Cooper, is seen that amazing beautiful actress whom Paramount brought from Germany to feature in this production, Marlene Dietrich.

"Morocco" is a love story, emotion-swept, filmed on an epic scale, under the direction of the man who made "Underworld," whose rare combination of artistic and practical skill has proved his right, time and time again, to be listed with the greatest directors of all time. It is the story of a man and a woman; a man ruthless with all women, considering them but passing pleasures to be tasted and tossed aside; a woman embittered of life, scornful of men.

Gary Cooper, happy-go-lucky soldier of fortune, a private in the French Foreign Legion, is a young man without an illusion, even when he makes a play for the girl, beautiful Marlene Dietrich, a café singer, whose ravishing charm also interests a man-of-the-world, Adolphe Menjou.

Originally produced in New York with Fay Bainter in the leading role, "East Is West" proved one of the most popular plays of recent years, enjoying a run of three years on Broadway.

The story deals with the love affair of Ming Toy and Billy Benson, son of a wealthy San Franciscan, who rescues the little Chinese girl from a "love boat" in China.

Miss Velez, whose career as a film celebrity started with her portrayal of the mountain girl in Douglas Fairbanks' "The Gaucho," is said to have been most admirably cast as Ming Toy and in this role she makes her debut as a screen singer with her rendition of the famous "Chinese Lullaby."

Lewis Ayres, who leaped to fame overnight as Paul Baumer in "All Quiet on the Western Front," plays his first romantic role as Billy Benson.

Edward G. Robinson, noted stage star, plays his first Chinese character, that of Charlie Yong, ruler of San Francisco's Chinatown, in the new production.

Battle Ax Found By Explorer Is On Exhibition

A relic of interest because of its history, its rarity, and because of its construction of human bones, a primitive battle ax, the property of Dr. A. Samuel Kitchen, 1229 Sheridan Road, will be placed on display today at the Carnegie public library.

The exhibit is made possible through the courtesy of Dr. Kitchen. The ax was found about 1921, under fourteen feet of gravel in the vicinity of Point Hope, Alaska, by Knud Johan Victor Rasmussen, the Danish explorer, noted as a member of the Mylius-Erickson expedition, for ethnological expeditions to Greenland, and for his study of the peoples of the Arctic regions.

This particular discovery was during his isolation at Point Hope following his famous conquest of the northwest passage from Greenland which took three years to complete.

Mr. Rasmussen presented the ax to Rev. William A. Evans, Episcopal missionary of Point Hope, who was his host at the time. Mr. Evans presented it to Dr. A. S. Kitchen because of its anthropological interest.

Made of Bones The battle ax, itself, is formed of a human radius, and a human tibia, which, dull reddish brown in color, form the base and a short handle, while a piece of flint has been inserted into the bone base to form the knife of the ax.

The two bones are bound with thongs of leather, which, of course, are replaced.

The ax will be shown in the display cabinet in the reading room of the library.

Today's Bridge

Article No. 94 BY WM. E. MCKENNEY Secretary American Bridge League

"What was the most interesting hand of the recent national championship tournament?" is a question often asked of the writer. I have selected the following hand as the most interesting one of the week due to the fact that it produces a squeeze play in two different positions and a double grand coup when played at hearts. I will give the bidding and play with the three variations.

Table with columns for NORTH, WEST, SOUTH, and EAST, showing card distributions for a bridge hand.

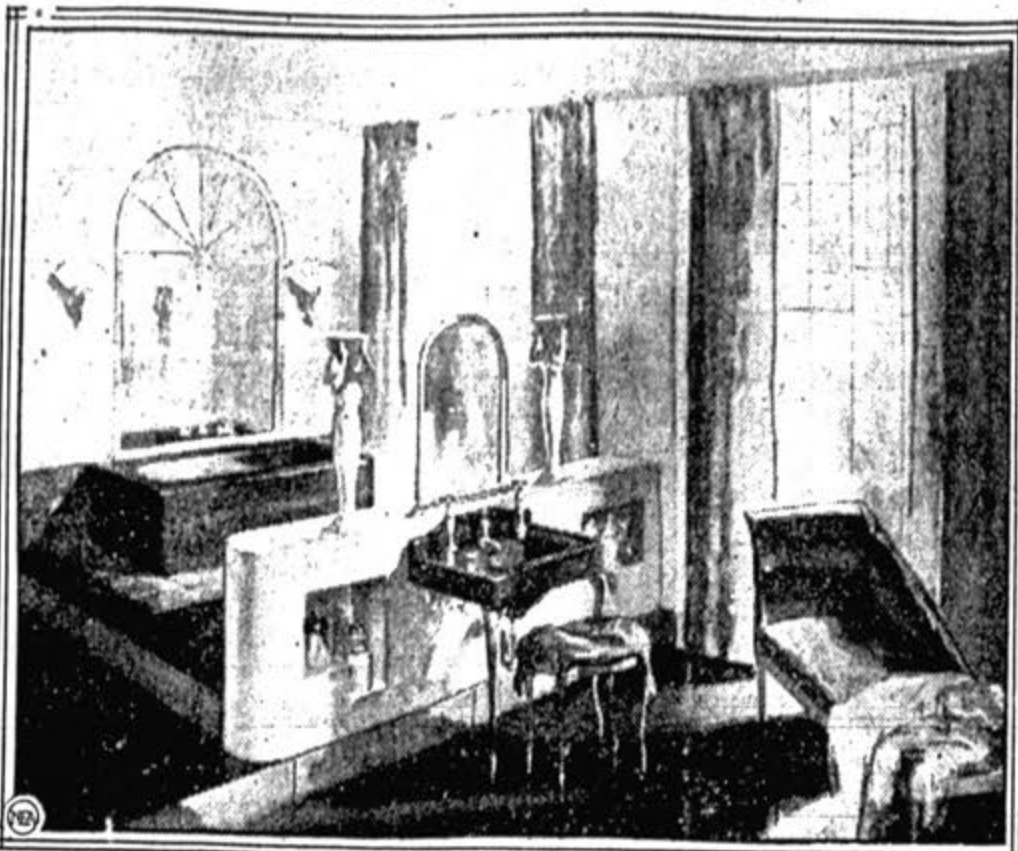

The hand was played at auction. At one table, South bid one spade, North two hearts, South three clubs. North three no trump. The six of diamonds was opened by East which the dummy won with the jack. The heart finesse was taken and the jack of spades returned. East covering, dummy winning with the ace. Another heart finesse was taken.

A club was led and won in dummy with the ace. Two rounds of spades were won in dummy and then two rounds of diamonds taken. West was squeezed on the second diamond. If he discarded a club, all the clubs would be good. If he discarded a heart, declarer could pick up his king of hearts with the ace and all the hearts would be good. A grand slam in no trump was thereby made by North.

At another table, South bid one spade, North two hearts and South went to two no trump. The four of clubs was opened by West which the declarer won with the ten. I am going to let my readers work this squeeze play out for themselves, but a grand slam can be made with South playing the hand at no trump with the club opening.

At the other table, the bidding was South one spade, North two hearts, South three clubs, North three hearts. The six of diamonds was opened by East which the dummy won with the jack. The heart was finessed and the jack of spades returned which East covered, dummy winning with the ace. Another heart was finessed and East showed out, discarding the deuce of clubs. Declarer led the king of diamonds and then the six of spades winning in the dummy with the ten. The king of spades was returned from dummy, declarer discarding the ace of diamonds. The five of spades was led from dummy, West refusing to trump and declarer trumped with the deuce of hearts. Declarer led the seven of clubs winning in the dummy with the ace, and then led the five of diamonds, West again refusing to trump, declarer trumping with the five of hearts. Declarer's three of clubs was won in dummy with the king. West following with the jack, and then the queen of clubs was led. West was forced to trump with the seven or king of hearts, but the declarer held the tenace position with the ace and nine, and at this particular table, a grand slam was made at

Modern Baths Dressing Rooms Too

Three-in-one—solum, boudoir and bath—is this invariable 1931 model. The bath tub, lavatory and other fixtures are in a new Tang red, the concave ceiling and walls are ivory, the floor ultra-marine blue and the tiles by the tub and on the steps leading to it are gray-blue, and the curtains and chaise longue's upholstery is apricot. Built-in cupboards house toilet articles and supplies, and atop them marble figures flank a rounding mirror that reflects on both sides.

Glorifying Yourself

By Alicia Hart

In such an era of ultra-feminine loveliness, nothing is more unpleasant than to glimpse hair through chiffon stockings.

You need not be bothered by hair on the limbs or arms, or under the arm pits. There are efficacious and quite harmless depilatories.

In a day when scanty bathing suits are the mode, it is imperative that you give a thought to superfluous hair.

Perhaps you have hesitated to remove it because you have heard somewhere that shaving makes it come in more heavily and coarsely. There is no scientific proof of this.

If there was such a tendency, shaving or the use of depilatories had little to do with it. If using a commercial depilatory be very careful to follow the directions exactly.

Read them several times to make sure that you know exactly how to remove the hair. It really is simple. But every depilatory has its own special mode of application and each is likely to require a different number of applications in a season from another.

If you shave your limbs and your arm pits, use a very sharp razor and dust with talcum immediately upon finishing.

You can shave your arms, also, if you have very heavy growth on them. But before you do this, for it must be continued once you have begun, try two things first.

Try using peroxide to bleach the hair for often you will not notice the growth on your arms if the hair is bleached.

If, after bleaching, you still see the hair is unsightly, then try a depilatory. Depilatories are really more satisfactory than shaving for the arms. Many women find them much more satisfactory for the hair on the limbs and under the arms.

Be consistent in the use of depilatory or shaving. It is not worth while to remove the hair during a season and then grow careless. Daintiness is a characteristic that is worth working for constantly. This is merely one detail of it. But many such details make for that pleasing feminine charm.

Megan Lloyd George Modern, Except Cars

London (AP)—Megan Lloyd George, who is a member of parliament and daughter of the famous Liberal leader, is modern in most manners, but not about automobiles.

She hates driving, says so frankly, and prefers to trust herself to the sedate family chauffeur, with the family since her childhood.

The car itself is a relic of other days. It used to be Lord Kitchener's and was used by him during the war. A gigantic pre-war Rolls-Royce, little Miss Megan is almost lost in it.

Although the grand slam at no trump counts more, the double grand coup still remains the gem of bridge plays and the enthusiasm of the player who made this play was well justified.

Due to the number of variations, all of which were made, I have classed this hand as the greatest in the recent national championship tournament.

Following this article, we will have several more interesting hands by Mr. Edward C. Wolfe.

Danger of Selfish Trend in Ministry Is Voiced by Rev. Evans at Ordination Service

Implications that the Christian ministry today is falling in many quarters to perform one of its basic functions—that of advancing the cause of social and economic justice—was voiced by the Rev. John Crippen Evans, speaking Sunday morning at ordination services at St. Chrysostom's church, 1424 Dearborn Parkway.

The service marked the elevation of Oscar Malcolm Langley to the diaconate of the Episcopal church by Bishop George Craig Stewart.

In the ordination sermon, Dr. Evans, associate rector of St. Chrysostom's, warned against the danger of the ministry becoming a "selfish priestcraft that ministers only before altars of pious pride and unctious self esteem; that seeks a heaven so small that all the wealth of those diminutives in Scottish speech would fail to portray its littleness and so exclusive that it would shrink to include nothing but the love of self."

"The responsibility of the diaconate," he continued, "reaches every human need, including a fairness in the distribution of Christ's men's goods, an unflinching race or class distinction, the instruction of the youth, and the searching for the sick, poor and impotent people in order that they may be given proper care."

Human Need Foremost "From the human side, truthfully rests upon the service of the tables of human need. The diaconate aspect of the sacred ministry knows no barriers of law, race, religion or class. It is deterred by no prejudices. It is only this aspect of Christian ministry that can keep the church at Jerusalem or in Chicago from atrophy and death."

"As in the day of the Apostles, there is still need of a two-handed ministry. The priesthood of that day was so priestly that human need was thought to be beyond religious consideration. Stark hunger could stalk the ways without denting religious conscience. Sickness, pain and suffering were of no concern to ecclesiastical leadership. The imperial domination of the priest as he walked the Jericho road permitted him to regard the man fallen among thieves to be outside the realm of his responsibility, and so he passed by on the other side."

"There are signs that a like attitude is creeping into the sacred ministry in places in our present age; that concerns of the first order of the ministry—the diaconate—are being lost. We need to rescue the ministry from this dangerous tendency. The time has come when we must reassess the diaconate aspect of ministerial responsibility."

The Rev. Dr. Stephen E. Keeler, rector of St. Chrysostom's, presented the candidate for ordination. It was Bishop Stewart's first ordination of a local candidate since his consecration, and the first ordination ever to take place in the gold coast church.

Former Escanaban Mr. Langley who spent several years in Escanaba, an assistant to Rev. Mr. Evans, former pastor of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, is well known here.

Attending the ordination service Sunday were Mrs. D. B. McIntyre, Mrs. L. J. McMartin and Miss Isobel Peterson of this city.

Water Harley Killed Marquette—A rabbit-hunting trip came to a tragic end yesterday afternoon when Walter T. Harley, 822 North Fourth street, fourth precinct supervisor and life-long resident of Marquette, was instantly killed, crushed to death under his automobile when it skidded off the Sand River road, plunged down a 15-foot embankment and turned over three times.

Two Cars Collide Marquette—Two autos were damaged, but all occupants escaped without injury when a car owned by Clarence LeMere and driven by Joseph Brisson collided with another vehicle owned and driven by N. Wolfe, of Ishpeming, on M-35 opposite the Rolling Mill school shortly before noon yesterday.

Pays $70,000 Taxes Iron Mountain—Receipt of tax payment of more than $70,000—that of the Oliver Mining company—and other collection totalling about $27,000, yesterday boosted the total collection in the city to $158,014.38, will indicate that the average daily returns will steadily increase from now until the end of the penalty exempt period, February 29, according to John Trotter, city treasurer.

Neither the Ford Motor company for the Von Platen-Po Lumber company have paid the remittances yet, however, and these two checks alone will represent a healthy addition to the total. A long list of individual descriptions still remain unpaid.

Trotter today again called attention to the fact that tomorrow is the last day for the payment of personal property taxes with out the addition of the legal interest rate.

Taxpayers are advised also that the treasurer's office will be opened only half a day tomorrow—in the morning.

New Plant Manager Iron River. L. D. Powell, of Homer, Ill., will succeed George W. Polley as manager of the Iron Range Light and Power company about February 15, Polley stated upon his return from Chicago.

Powley was recently promoted to manage the electric plant in Port Au Prince, in the Republic of Haiti, of the West Indies group of islands.

Powell is expected to arrive here within three weeks to familiarize himself with the plant, which is a subsidiary of the Central Public Service corporation, of Chicago. The Illinois Public Utility company, of Lincoln, Ill., which Powell now manages, is also affiliated with the Central Service corporation.

Winter Carnival Sault Ste. Marie. The Sault Chamber of Commerce which is sponsoring the Winter Sports Carnival February 5, 6 and 7, has written to James Maney, general passenger agent of the Duluth South Shore and Atlantic Railway and A. V. Ulrich, special passenger agent of the Michigan Central of Detroit, requesting their views on a proposal to afford excursion rates during that period.

According to William J. Cummings, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, an effort will be made to induce as many members of the Detroit-Soo Club as possible to return to their former home for the winter carnival. Through the Michigan Central and D. S. S. and A. efforts are being made to obtain excursion rates for them.

There are more than 1,000 former Sault residents who are members of the Detroit-Soo Club and if half of them come for the carnival it would be well worth while, said Mr. Cummings.

Reward Increased Iron Mountain—In addition to the $100 reward offered by the Iron Mountain city council for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the persons who killed and took one of the deer belonging to the City park herd, $25 more was offered today by John Andrews, Jr., district game and fire warden.

Although the state conservation department does not authorize the offering of rewards, Andrews said that he would pay the money out of his own pocket.

"Killing that deer in the park herd was one of the worst tricks pulled in a long time," Andrews stated.

City, county and state police and all wardens are endeavoring to locate the guilty persons.

Francis X. Bushman, Famed Screen Actor Enjoys Escanaba Visit

BY AMY BOIGER The Francis X. Bushman, whose face and name are known the world over, may have won a following of millions through the medium of the silent screen, but here surely could be no more harming personality than the one Francis X. Bushman, whose recent financial status, following the stock market crash, is responsible for his personal appearance tour east from Hollywood, and for his coming to Escanaba.

Granted that he thought Escanaba only a short way from Chicago, and at that very much near the North Pole, now that he is here, he is enjoying it—the beauty of the Bay Shore road, the lake front park in winter attire, and particularly the meeting of townspeople down the street, who in the spirit of friendliness that he in turn returned say "Hello, Mr. Bushman."

Backstage after his first appearance at the Delft theatre last Monday, while his secretary dispatched an attendant to buy five pounds of meat for the great Dane, which appears in the sketch he uses, he talked of a number of things.

He plans to continue his personal appearances in theatres east to New York, and to appear in stock unless production on a motion picture of George Washington, in which he is to appear is started.

Real Art in Talks "I like the talks, yes, indeed, I like them very much," he said. "Do you know you never saw the best of an actor or an actress in the silent productions. Just as the highest point of a scene was reached, the film went out, and a sub-title inserted and the finest acting of the entire production was lost. After all, you know, the human voice is the most perfect of all mediums of expression."

"Orchestras will return, I am confident of that," he continued. "People are tiring of constant synchronization. Why, a theatre needs an orchestra to give it life, to brighten it up. I well remember Sid Grauman taking his orchestra out of the Chinese theatre in Hollywood. He knew I was in the audience and after he showed he said, 'Well, Bush, what do you think of it?' 'Terrible,' I told him, 'your audience left as it were a funeral and had just viewed the remains. You never saw such a procession in this theatre before.' An audience needs orchestra music, a march, spirited music, to send it out happily."

Did he know Lottie Mineau and Walter Long, whom Escanaba considers its own residents? He surely did, although Miss Mineau, he knew as Charlotte, and the Lottie seemed not quite familiar.

"They used to live here," Mr. Bushman was smiling excitedly. "Well what do you know about that? I've played with Walter Long. He went on, and just a short time ago he finished directing a picture. A night's fine production, too. And Miss Mineau was with the old Essanay studio in Chicago playing with Charlie Chaplin? I haven't seen her in some time but I know she is still on the coast. I was giving a radio program one evening and the studio telephone rang. I answered, 'It'll bet you don't know who this is,' came the voice. 'It's Charlotte Mineau.' Well, what do you know about that?"

Fortune Lost He spoke of the loss of his fortune which was in the millions, of his inactivity following "Ben Hur," due to an unfortunate misunderstanding and of one of two other incidents now so pleasant, but instantly forgot them and was smiling again.

"I used to be independent," he said, "I made pictures when I wished, and I traveled royally when I wished, all over the world. It's seemingly ended. But I don't mind, I am enjoying this tour."

"Unless," he concluded, laughing whole heartedly at the idea, "unless I happen to marry a rich girl."

Too Many Styles in Traffic Signs, Road Men Assert St. Louis (AP)—A definite move is planned against the variety of traffic signs confronting the modern motorist.

At the annual convention of the American Road Builders' association, to be held January 12-16 in St. Louis, a committee that has studied traffic devices will seek adoption of a report urging establishment of a national research foundation.

They plan that the group, superior to but representative of the various interests involved, supervise and coordinate scientific research in traffic problems.

The committee in its year's study found that there were more than 23,000 variations of traffic signs in use, differing in type, shape, style, or color. The majority of these are legalized by some state, county, township, or municipality.

KIWANIS HEARS HIGHWAY CHIEF

Sharpensteen Explains Road Projects in Upper Peninsula

An interesting and instructive talk concerning the organization plan of the state highway department and its activities was delivered by J. T. Sharpensteen, division highway engineer at the Kiwanis club meeting yesterday.

He described several highway projects under way or contemplated in the upper peninsula. Bids for the Washington avenue grade separation drainage project, northwest of the city, will be accepted today, Mr. Sharpensteen announced.

The survey of the Portage Creek bridge project has been completed and submitted to the Lansing office of the state highway department. Work on the bridge is expected to start in the near future. The survey of the Escanaba-Ford River road is also under way.

Mr. Sharpensteen said he expected that contracts for the paving of U. S. 2, west of Ford River Switch, which is now being graded, will be let this summer. A survey is also being made of the Powers-Spaulding sector, involving a couple bridges and a grade separation. Another contemplated project is the retreading of about twenty miles on U. S. 2, east of Maunslake.

Discussing the matter of highway maintenance, Mr. Sharpensteen said that about 8,000 miles of trunk lines are on the program this year. A sum of $1,300,000 was available for highway maintenance in the Upper Peninsula in 1930, but the figure will be 10 per cent less this year because of economy measures adopted by the department. A total of 1655 miles of trunk lines were maintained last year, and has been increased to 1682 this year.

About $300,000 is spent for snow removal in the upper peninsula each winter, Mr. Sharpensteen said. Last year, 1500 miles was kept open for wheel traffic, and this winter, the program calls for 1683 miles.

William B. Walker, Former Brakeman, Dies at Pinecrest

William Bert Walker, 45, passed away late Saturday evening at Pinecrest sanatorium at Powers where he had been a patient for some time, suffering with pulmonary tuberculosis.

Mr. Walker was born in June, 1885, in Sturgeon Bay, Wis., and came to this city about 30 years ago. He entered the employ of the Chicago and North Western railway as a brakeman May 13, 1918, and resigned August 3, 1928.

He is survived by one son and three daughters, Mrs. G. Howk of Detroit, Geraldine, Lillian and Kenneth of this city. Five brothers and two sisters, Louis A. Walker, Escanaba; Roy Walker, J. E. Walker, and Elmer Walker, J. E. Walker, Escanaba; and Mrs. Gerald Ryan, all of Milwaukee, Wis. Walker of Chicago and Mrs. William Coy of Gladstone, also survive.

The body will remain at the Anderson funeral home where funeral services will be held this morning at 10 o'clock with Rev. R. C. G. Williams, pastor of the First Methodist church, officiating. Burial will be in Lakeview cemetery.

MURDER BRIDGE

By ANNE AUSTIN

Five minutes later Dundee sat at that desk, photographs of Dexter Sprague's dead body, just as it had been discovered on the floor of the trophy room in the Miles home, and a labeled set of fingerprints spread out before him.

"You're sure there can have been no mistake?" he asked. "No chance that these fingerprint photographs were reversed when the prints were made?"

"Not a chance—with my system!" Caraway retorted positively. "Fine!" Dundee cried. "May I take these photographs? . . . You have copies, I presume?"

It was half-past two o'clock when Dundee, after a much needed lunch, parked his car in the driveway of one of the most splendid houses overlooking Mirror Lake—a home whose master and mistress were now attending an inquest into two murders.

Half an hour later he climbed into his roadster again, his head splinting. "Did I say inexcusable?" he marveled.

He drove directly to the Sellm house, for he had much to do before the arrival of Sanderson's compulsory guests at 5:15.

His first visit there was to a small room in the basement—a dark cubbyhole next to the coal room. He had locked it carefully after exploring it the day before, for he had taken no chance on leaving unguarded—as he had found it—treasure worth more to him than its weight in gold.

And queer treasure it was that he extracted now—a coiled length of electric wire, which he and Ralph Hammond had measured the day before, with a triumphant excitement; a box of thumb tacks, many of them surprisingly bent at the point; an augur with a set of bits of varying sizes, a step-ladder, and a hammer.

If Dexter Sprague had not overestimated the amount of electric wire needed for the job of installing an alarm bell between Nita's bedroom and Lydia's, Dundee was about to close the tool chest when his eyes fell upon a piece of hardware he had not expected ever to find, although he had known of its existence for more than an hour.

At 5:15 he was entirely ready for D. A. Sanderson, Captain Strawn, and their party of indignant and unwilling guests.

"Oh, Mr. Dundee!" Carolyn Drake squealed. "You're not going to make us play that awful 'death hand' again, are you?"

They were all crowding about him—the men and women who had been Nita Sellm's guests at her last bridge and cocktail party.

"Not only are the bridge tables exactly where they were at this time on the evening of May 24," Dundee answered so significantly that all stopped chattering to listen, "but everything else in the house is precisely as it was then. Fortunately, not even the electricity has been cut off! But to make sure I have forgotten nothing, I wish you would all follow me into Mrs. Sellm's bedroom and look for yourselves."

Like sheep, they crowded into the little foyer and on into the bedroom. There stood the big bronze lamp, set squarely in front of the window frame and in a direct line with the musical powder box on dead Nita's dressing table.

At 5:25, Penny Crain, Karen Marshall, Carolyn Drake and Flora Miles, who had been requisitioned by Dundee to play the part of the murdered woman, were seated at table No. 2, and behind Karen's chair stood Lois Dunlap, Clive Hammond and his new wife were again together in the salararium. But there Dundee's resting of the original scene in the tragic drama ended. Everyone else, including Lydia Carr and Peter Dunlap, were huddled together in a far corner of the living room.

"Now, Mr. Miles!" Dundee called. "Your cue! Never mind the comedy about 'How's tricks?' Simply go into the dining room, with Mrs. Dunlap, to mix cocktails. You'll find all the ingredients still on the sideboard, exactly as they were when Mrs. Sellm sent you to mix drinks on May 24. . . . And Mrs. Miles, will you, pretending that you are Nita Sellm, go to powder your face at Mrs. Sellm's dressing table?"

Her face white and drawn, Flora Miles stumbled from the room, just as her husband, dumb for once with rage, entered the dining room with Lois Dunlap.

Dundee was about to follow the latter two when an interruption occurred. Followed by a plainclothesman, a middle-aged man strode to the bridge table, his handsome head upflung, his brown eyes fixed upon the widened brown eyes of Penny Crain!

"Dad!" the girl breathed; then, joyously: "Oh, Dad! You've come home!"

But Dundee halted the reconciliation with a stern word of command. "Please join the group in the corner, Mr. Crain!"

Regardless of the ensuing hubbub Dundee strode into the dining room, where Tracy Miles stood at the sideboard, pouring whiskey from an almost empty decanter into a small glass.

"May I drink the Scotch Tracy has poured for me, Mr. Dundee?" Mrs. Dunlap asked shakily, leaning against the big round table.

"Yes, but—Silence, please!" he cried, as there came the first faint, tinkling notes of Juanita from Nita's musical powder box, penetrating the thin wall between the bedroom and dining room.

faint, tinkling notes of Juanita from Nita's musical powder box, penetrating the thin wall between the bedroom and dining room.

"As I have said," the detective spoke loudly and clearly above the tinkle of music, "everything is now exactly as it was when Nita Sellm was murdered!"

A chair at the bridge table was overturned. Lois Dunlap almost choked on her drink of Scotch when she screamed. In a few seconds every person in the living room, including the district attorney and Strawn, was huddled in the wide opening into the dining room, their eyes fixed in horror upon Bonnie Dundee.

He spoke again, his voice very clear, but slow and weighted with a dreadful significance.

"Mrs. Dunlap, step on the bell beneath the dining table!" Lois Dunlap dropped the empty whisky glass, her pleasant face going blank with amazement.

"Step on that bell, Mrs. Dunlap, just as you did before!"

As if hypnotized, Lois Dunlap began to grope with the toe of her right pump for the slight bulge under the rug which indicated the position of the bell used for summoning the maid from the kitchen.

With a strangled cry Tracy Miles lunged across the few feet which separated the woman and himself, seized her arm and whirled her violently away from the table.

"Do you want to kill my wife, too?" he panted, his usually florid face the color of putty. (To Be Concluded)

Wells Man Elected Director of M. M. A.

For the first time in several years, the upper peninsula has two representatives on the board of directors of the Michigan Manufacturers' association. At the annual meeting of the association, George N. Harder of the I. Stephenson Co., Traverse City, was one of the five directors elected to serve for three-year terms. J. S. Weidman, Jr., of the Waldman Lumber company, Trout Creek, is also a member of the board.

S. W. Utley of the Detroit Steel Casting company is the president. Other directors elected this year with Mr. Harder are: Felix Pagenstecher, Bryant Paper company, Kalamazoo; Fred Buck, Lufkin Rule company, Saginaw; I. C. Upton, Upton Machine company, St. Joseph; L. S. Brown, Michigan Steel corporation, Detroit.

Advertising Best Sales Stimulant

Babson Recommends Merchants Use Local Newspapers to Reach Public

BY ROGER W. BABSON

It is a mistake to reduce advertising expenditures merely because sales are slow and profits lower. There is no better stimulant for sales and profits than more and better advertising.

Admittedly, business must cut out all unnecessary expenses at this time; but it is shortsighted policy indeed to consider advertising as an unnecessary expense.

Instead, look at it as the strong right arm of the sales department, capable when rightly used, of wresting profits from seemingly barren fields. Look at it as a vitalizing force in American business, as a key factor in mass distribution and mass production, as a potential stabilizer of employment, a creator of new industries, a foundation builder for future business growth.

Ask any business man today what he considers the most important department of his business, and nine times out of ten he will answer "the sales department." And yet business men who would not think of letting their factories run with broken machinery, are often guilty of giving broken tools to their sales forces and expecting them to produce business. A half-hearted or severely curtailed advertising program is a broken tool. Now, more than ever, the sales department needs every possible support.

Liberal, truthful, and well placed advertising is the most reliable tool any selling force can have.

In these days of slow sales, extreme competition, and narrower profit margins, the burden on the selling forces is greatly increased. The management relies on the sales department to lead the company out of the wilderness. Management expects sales volume to be maintained at least at a level which will justify continued operation of the factories. It is not fair to put this great burden on the selling force without backing it up with strong advertising support.

Total newspaper advertising lineage including both national and local for the first half of 1930 were 663,086,318 lines in thirty leading cities of the country. This compares with 729,750,024 lines in the first half of 1929, a decline of around 9 per cent.

The larger industrial corporations which advertise on a national scale have come to recognize more fully than have the local business men, the advantages of sustained advertising in times of dull business. Particularly the local retailers should realize that their greatest selling aid under present conditions is more and better advertising. Especially now that wholesale commodity prices have declined so extensively, retailers are in a position to offer merchandise at attractive price concessions. The retailer is now passing along to the public the savings which he is making on his purchases at wholesale. In order to increase volume of sales he should tell the public about the savings which can now be made in the purchase of staple commodities. The best way to tell them is through the local newspaper.

Whether the times are good or bad, merchandising success depends upon two principal factors. These factors are: first, good advertising in sufficient quantity and second, a good product.

Great sums of money in good advertising can be wasted if the product is not good. When you have a combination of plentiful advertising, carefully planned and constructed, plus a good sound product which the public wants, then success will come as a matter of course. The fact that sales resistance is greater at some times than others in the business cycle should act merely as a spur to greater effort.

No matter how good a product is, it must be sold. Perhaps one hundred years ago when people were offered only a few commodities, an exceptionally good product could sell itself. Without the aid of advertising today, however, when the consumer has thousands of things offered him for purchase, many of which are equally good, it stands to reason that the article which is not advertised will not be bought.

Those whose business it is to increase the sales of advertising will do well to look into new fields which have hitherto been uncultivated. For instance, the farmers are at a disadvantage as compared with business men, because their products have not been advertised to anything like the extent that they should. Some progress toward co-operative advertising of various fruits has been made, but very little publicity has been given to the merits of vegetables and other farm products. Truck gardeners, market men, and even the growers of staple grains, could do much toward increasing the consumption of their product by judicious advertising campaigns.

Advertising has played a major role in the establishment of new industries, such as electric refrigeration, oil burners, new lacquers and paints, radios, automobiles, and numerous others. Other industries now unadvertised and comparatively obscure, are awaiting the magic touch of advertising to blossom forth as great new sources of wealth and employment.

GARDEN PIONEER DIES SUDDENLY

Oliver Charboneau, 80, Succumbs to Heart Attack at Cooks

Oliver Charboneau, 80, a pioneer of Garden, passed away suddenly late Sunday morning at the John Nedeau farmstead at Cooks, a victim of heart trouble. Mr. Charboneau, despite his advanced age, had been in perfect health and had not complained of anything being wrong when he arose Sunday. An autopsy was performed on the body by Dr. Donald Ross of Manistique.

Mr. Charboneau came to Garden 35 years ago. He spent much of his time as a woodsman and also owned considerable farm land. For a short time he operated a saloon at Garden. He had been living in Cooks for the past 15 years.

The deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. G. F. Abrahamson, of Chicago; and one brother, L. Charboneau, of Ogdenburg, N. Y. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

SOCIAL

Dinner Party

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cayis were hosts at a seven o'clock dinner party Saturday evening at their home on Lake street. Covers were laid for sixteen guests. The later evening was given over to bridge, high honors going to Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Crowe, and consolation, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lavigne.

THEATRES

"War Nurse," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture which opens at the Gero Theatre today, does for the women of the war what "The Big Parade" did for the men.

It portrays the bravery and hardships and the romances of war nurses in a deft, strong and accurate manner. The leading roles are capably taken by Robert Montgomery, Robert Ames, June Walker and Anita Page. Excellent bits of comedy relief are provided by an able supporting cast.

BRIEFLY TOLD

To Hold Social—The Junior Epworth league of the Methodist church will hold a social in the church parlors this afternoon from 4:15 until 7 o'clock.

Old Time Party—The Golden Star lodge will hold an old time party at the Oddfellow hall Friday evening, Jan. 16. Music will be furnished by the Lindstrom brothers and refreshments will be served.

To Have Installation—Members of the Woodman Circle will hold installation of officers Wednesday evening at the K. P. hall. The attendance of every member is requested.

Local Legion Post To Meet Thursday

An important business meeting of Manistique Post 83 of the American Legion will be held Thursday evening at eight o'clock in the committee rooms in the First National bank. All members are urged to be present.

The reception to be held here for State Commander Charles Schutz and State Adjutant Robert J. Byers, will be given on Monday noon, Jan. 19, instead of Monday, Jan. 12, as stated in Sunday's issue of this paper. Members of the auxiliary will help in feeling the state officials and all ex-service men whether members of the Legion or not are invited to attend the banquet which will be held at the Elks' temple.

Last Rites Held For Mrs. Anderson

Impressive funeral services were held yesterday afternoon for Mrs. Edward Anderson, pioneer Thompson resident who passed away Friday morning as a result of heart trouble.

Rev. P. L. Lomas, pastor of the First Methodist church of this city, officiated at the services. Sven Johnson, local mortician, conducted the funeral and interment was made in the family lot in the Thompson cemetery.

DEATH CLAIMS BERT WHITMAN

Manistique Man Takes His Own Life Sunday Morning

Bert Whitman, 42, employed at Frank Cookson's logging camp, committed suicide at his home three miles north of the city on M94 at eleven o'clock Sunday morning by swallowing poison. The tragedy was ascribed to domestic difficulties.

Mr. Whitman came home from his work Saturday evening and early Sunday morning came to Manistique where he purchased a small quantity of the poison at a drug store. Upon returning home he told his wife he was going to take poison, but Mrs. Whitman took no credence in his statement as he had threatened to commit suicide several times previously. Whitman took a cup, poured out the contents of the bottle and drank it.

Sheriff John M. Hewitt, John Peterson, chief of police, and W. F. Kefauver, coroner, were called to investigate the case.

Besides his wife, the deceased is survived by eight children: Clarence, Clayton, Eugene, Pearl, Lawrence, Walter, Rolland and Dorothy May, his mother and one brother, both living in the lower peninsula. The body was prepared for burial at the Gunnarson & Kefauver mortuary. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Gladstone Defeats Eskymos, 20-18, in Overtime

LARGE CROWD SEES BATTLE

Sensational Shot Scored by Potvin Wins Game for Keilmen

Gladstone, Jan. 12 (Special)—A crowd of basketball fans which packed the gymnasium here to the doors saw the Gladstone high school basketball team eke out a 20 to 18 victory over the Eskymos high school quint in an overtime battle tonight. The game was packed with thrill after thrill and kept the large crowd of fans on their feet almost continuously.

From the start of the battle, it was apparent that both teams have improved since their opening games before the Christmas holidays. Escanaba took a single point lead in the first period but it was not for long and after the Keilmen forged ahead in the second period, the lead never changed hands although the count was tied on many occasions.

At the close of the fourth period the score was deadlocked, 17 to 17. In the three minute overtime period, both teams displayed nervousness and missed many scoring opportunities. Just before the close of the period, Potvin scored on a sensational one hand shot from the corner which saw the Gladstone aggregation their two-point victory.

Out on Fouls

Both teams scored seven times from the field but Gladstone made good six times on 18 attempts from the free throw line while the Puckmen scored only four of their 11 foul shots.

Gladstone received a bad break late in the third period when Damitz who had led their attack against the Eskymos was ejected from the game with four personal fouls marked against him. Wicklander, Escanaba guard, received a similar fate in the fourth period but not until he had scored three long field goals, two of them thrillers from more than three-quarters of the floor.

Besides Damitz, Jahnke turned in an excellent performance for the Keil cagers. Robert Snyder carried the bulwark of the Escanaba attack but was assisted ably by the clever floor work of his brother Walter and the long shots of Wicklander.

In the preliminary game, the Escanaba reserves defeated the Gladstone reserves, 15 to 13, in another hard fought battle.

Referee Hiney and Umpire Davis, both of Northern State Teachers' college, kept the game moving at a fast pace.

INGRAM WILL SUCCEED PRICE

Navy Bill Gets Coaching Job at University of California

Berkeley, Cal., Jan. 12 (AP)—William T. (Navy Bill) Ingram, former coach at the United States naval academy, today was appointed head football coach at the University of California for a three year term.

Ingram takes the place of G. M. "Nibs" Price, who resigned after last season. No salary terms were announced, but it is understood the new mentor will receive between $12,000 and $15,000 yearly.

W. W. Monahan, graduate manager who signed Ingram during an extensive "hunting trip" throughout the midwest and east, had instructions not to offer more than $15,000 a year for a coach.

Ingram notified the California authorities he would report here March 1 in time for spring training. He also stated he would recommend one and possibly two assistants.

Ingram was a star halfback and quarterback at Navy in 1916, 17 and 1918. He was named All-American quarterback in 1918.

Coaching Record

In 1919, "Navy Bill" returned to Annapolis as first assistant to Gil Dobie. He organized the Pacific fleet team in 1920 and 1921, while stationed in this section, and acted as coach and player on those eleven.

Retiring from the Navy in 1922 to enter business, Ingram accepted a "hurry-up" call from William and Mary college of Williamsburg, Va., and took over the head coaching duties there in

Manistique Basketeers Play Bevenoc Quint On Wednesday Night

Manistique, Jan. 12 (Special)—Confident of being able to put an end to the winning streak of the Escanaba Bevenocs, the Manistique Legion basketball team is primed to wipe out a defeat administered to them earlier in the season when they tangled here Wednesday evening in the high school auditorium.

Last Friday the Bevenocs won their fifteenth straight victory of the season when they walloped the Munising Dragons to the tune of a 36-24 score, although the Dragons made one more field goal than their highly touted adversaries. Expert shooting from the free throw line decided the contest, the Bevenocs sinking 16 free attempts. The Manistique aggregation won a close game here from the Dragons about a month ago.

Capt. John Kelly states that his men are in better physical condition than they have been all season and have strong hopes of plastering a defeat on the Escanaba cagers. The Legionnaires are showing an improved game of basketball in every contest and local fans will be in for an evening of real excitement. A high school inter-class game between the seniors and sophomores is scheduled for the opening encounter. Vern Noble will officiate in the preliminary event while Bill Cook will handle the whistle in the main contest.

The line-up of the Legionnaires will remain practically the same with Wassberg, J. Williams and Carlson, forwards; R. Williams, center; and Hartman and Kelly, guards.

BY ALAN GOULD (Associated Press Sports Editor)

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—College athletic officials are widely split in their reaction to the inquiry of the Associated Press: "What, if any changes have been made since the publication a year ago of the Carnegie report on subsidizing and recruiting?"

A substantial majority, perhaps two out of every three, to whom the inquiry was addressed, sidestepped the issue by giving a flat negative reply. The more communicative third furnished a somewhat startling range of opinion, from the statement of H. C. Byrd of the University of Maryland (the Carnegie report) gave an impetus to recruiting to the view of H. D. Gish of the University of Nebraska, that the report has forced a much more rigid check-up of alleged athletic subsidizing and recruiting.

Attempt at Clean Up

Substantially, the comment of athletic directors is that the Carnegie report, while not altogether satisfactory, has brought out into the open conditions which have effected the best interests of collegiate sport. The remedies, it seems, are as varied as the conditions themselves, but there has unquestionably developed a widespread attempt by prominent leaders in every section to eradicate alleged evils. Much of this was crystallized at the annual conventions of coaches and faculty men in New York during the holiday season but whether the ringing resolutions will have any practical effect remains to be seen.

Meanwhile, the Associated Press survey has brought out some decidedly practical developments in various parts of the country.

George E. Little, Wisconsin's athletic director, reports: "We have done away with the contact man we had and delegated the part of his work which dealt with checking on the athlete's grades to the individual coach."

While denying the specific Carnegie report charge that 17 athletes were given employment as rubbers, Little said the "athletic employment department" has been abolished.

At Penn State college, graduate manager N. M. Cleming advised the reduction of athletic scholarship from 25 to 12 under a policy adopted prior to the publication of the Carnegie report. Temple's sports publicity director, Robert V. Geasey, said "Temple never did subsidize athletes and was on a par with the average college in recruiting but this is practically done away with now."

In the southwest conference, faculty rulers have taken a more energetic interest in the upkeep of athletic standards since the report was issued. They engaged a private investigator, from another section, who visited more than 60 Texas universities, colleges and academies.

Opinions Differ

The necessity for sharp action to curb subsidizing and recruiting was emphasized by two southern leaders, W. A. Alexander of Georgia Tech and Dan McGugin of Vanderbilt. On the other hand, William G. Brill, faculty manager of Trinity college of Hartford, Conn., asserted "no such investigation as the Carnegie Foundation made can have much effect on the country at large because the evils pointed out in bulletin 23 are deeply rooted in human psychology and must simply be outgrown."

More attention to development of intra-mural sports is cited by a number of colleges as a consequence of the Carnegie report. Bill Reid of Colgate reported "at the present time 860 of our boys out of the student body of 1,000 are engaged in some form of intra-mural activity aside from the competitive athletic teams," at Northwestern. Rut Walter, former track and basketball star, has been put in charge of an extensive intra-mural program.

INDIANA BEATS BUCKEYE TEAM

Ohio State Loses Hard-Fought Cage Tilt by 23 to 21

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 12 (AP)—Indiana defeated Ohio State, 23 to 21, in a closely fought Western Conference basketball game here tonight. The Buckeyes, attempting to halt the fast under-the-basket offense of the Hoosiers, fouled frequently, and these penalties proved costly.

Outscored from the field, eight baskets to seven, the Indiana five gained its first Big Ten victory by its accuracy from the free throw line. Three Ohio players were removed for personal fouls.

Mattison and Hoffer led the Ohio State team in a dogged battle that kept the visitors constantly in the running. The score was knotted at 11-all at half time, and baskets by Pesler and Larkins at the start of the second period gave the Buckeyes a momentary lead for the first time. Indiana's winning points came a minute before the end on a field goal and a free throw by Damer.

Campbell, Indiana's midcourt guard, held his opponent without a field goal and was the key man in the Hoosier offense.

Signing of Ingram culminated a long search for a successor to Price, who was retained for one year as basketball coach. Graduate Manager Monahan spent several weeks in the east interviewing candidates for the berth.

Price resigned following an unimpressive season that saw the Bears lose four conference and one non-conference games.

Northwestern Beats Illinois by 29-27

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 12 (AP)—Northwestern chalked up its second straight basketball victory of the Big Ten season tonight by defeating Illinois, 29 to 27, after a rough sensational battle.

Thirty-five personal fouls were called, 19 on Illinois and 16 on Northwestern.

BEVENOC'S WIN EASY VICTORY

Marquette Downed Before Escanaba Avalanche; Score 38-22

Marquette proved just another team for the Escanaba Bevenocs who scored their sixteenth consecutive victory at the Coliseum gymnasium Sunday afternoon, 38 to 22. The Escanaba crew never was seriously threatened after taking an early lead.

It was a high scoring, big bang sort of a tilt with both teams hitting the loop with more than a little consistency. The Bevenocs, however, were in fine form and Ray Warner and Johansson dropped the pellet through the rim time and again as the Marquette defense failed to stop the steady march down the court.

Free-Throw Contest Starts January 19

A basketball free-throw contest among the boys of Escanaba high school is being conducted by the Orange and Black H-Y society. All boys of the high school will be eligible for this contest except members of the basketball squad.

The elimination contest will begin on Monday, January 19. Boys of the H-Y are taking charge of the contest trials which are to be held in the gymnasium during the noon hour.

Members of the contest committee are Vincent Bergman, chairman, Donald McKie, Jack Bloomstrom and Roger Hanley.

Basketball Topics

By Everett S. Dean, Basketball Coach of Indiana U.

The style of basketball known as percentage basketball was invented by H. R. Hager of Oregon and his teams have been very successful using it. Percentage basketball gets its name because it is designed for short shots which result in a high percentage of baskets.

The purpose of this offense is to spread the defense and open wide the vital offensive section, having the guards and one forward control the ball near mid-floor with the other two men stationed in the corners. Notice in the chart how the defense is spread out.

This offense calls for two big follow-up men to be stationed in the corners, and their job is to stay there as long as their guards are with them; but when the guards shift they break for the basket.

The back guard controls the ball most and because of this he should be a cool, heady general. The men located along sides of the floor in position of (F) and (C) should be the fastest and cleverest men on the team. Their duty is to get loose into the open section around the foul ring. If they are successful the offense will have three men on two defensive men and with clever passing will get a short shot.

TWO MATCHES NOW PROPOSED

Stribling Would Meet Sharkey; Carnera Is Also Considered

BY EDWARD J. NEIL (Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Jan. 12 (AP)—The big heavyweight run-around came out into the open today in a set of puzzling proposals again designed to lineup one world title bout between Max Schmeling and Young Bill Stribling, somewhere in Illinois in June and another in September between the winner and Primo Carnera, the man mountain of Venice.

The Hearst Milk Fund official—and Bill Carey, president of Madison Square Garden unofficially—joined in extending contracts for this program to "Pa" Stribling, father and manager of the Georgia pride, and Joe Jacobs, pilot of the German colt.

While neither representative of the antagonists hailed the proffered documents with glee, it seemed that some basis for agreement finally had arisen from the muddled state of affairs, provided that other complications could be smoothed away.

Although Carey could not be present at the conference under penalty of suspension by the New York State athletic commission for dealing with a suspended fighter, the contracts under which the late Tex Rickard promoted the $2,700,000 Tunney-Dempsey battle of the long count in Chicago in 1927. This charter to promote matches in Chicago still is considered "alive," although it has not been used by the New York parent organization since the biggest flaccid spectacle of modern times.

The contracts were offered Schmeling and Stribling through the Illinois branch of the New York Garden despite opposition of the Illinois state athletic commission not promoted by local talent. The contracts did not name Chicago as the site for the June match, although no other city in that state is under consideration.

Neither the Stribling nor Schmeling managements would sign the documents immediately and both were given time for consideration.

"Pa" Stribling was not in sympathy with a provision that bound his son, if victorious over Schmeling, to fight Carnera in a city not named in September, 1931, and again in 1932 against the best available opponent for the milk fund alone. The contract bound Stribling to post $25,000 of his 12 1/2 per cent share in the Schmeling-Stribling receipts as a forfeit for the match with Carnera.

Bill Duffy, American manager for Carnera, sat in on the conference today alone with the milk fund promoters and the representatives of Stribling and Schmeling.

Carnera has been under the ban here as well as in other states since his fiasco with Bomba Chevalier in Oakland, Cal., last year. Schmeling was suspended indefinitely along with Jacobs when the New York commission vacated the German's championship last Tuesday for failure to agree immediately to a title bout with Jack Sharkey here.

The contracts as offered today definitely eliminated Sharkey, who fouled Schmeling in a title match here last June, from a match with either the German or Stribling this summer. It was also predicted the wrath of the local fathers will fall heavily upon the heads of all concerned when and if the contracts offered today are signed.

MICHIGAN WINS FROM BADGERS

Wolverine Cage Team Is Winner in Big Ten Game by 23-17

Ann Arbor, Jan. 12 (AP)—Michigan defeated Wisconsin, 23 to 17, here tonight in a brilliant battle in which Wisconsin's defense was matched by Michigan's passing and defense. Try as they might, Wisconsin could not break through the last fifteen feet to the Wolverine goal while Michigan's passing worked the Badger defense to one side at times for short shots.

The game added to the total of points Norman Daniels has been piling up, the small center being high point man for both teams. Captain Chmielewski led Wisconsin.

Coach Veener shook up his line-up for the game, sending Petrie forward to team with Weles. The youngster who detracted from the height of the Michigan team was all over the floor and had an important part in the scoring. Petrie rewarded Coach Veener's confidence in him by scoring the first basket, an accurate shot from the foul line. He fouled an instant later to give Co-Captain Paul Wisconsin's first co-captain point.

The rest of the first half scoring came from brilliant passing between Weles and Daniels and a basket when Altenhoff crept in behind the Badger defense. Wisconsin scored on a mid-court shot when Chmielewski and a close-in shot when Steen slipped away from Altenhoff and dribbled under the basket.

Chmielewski started the scoring of the second period and then Daniels and Altenhoff made baskets and three foul tosses gave Michigan a long lead. The Michigan team wanted more points, however, and in trying to get these in the final minutes left openings through which Chmielewski went for two baskets and Poser for one.

Dante Scores Par 70; Take Lead In Lauderdale Open

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Jan. 12 (AP)—Jim Dante, Madison, N. J., beat a high wind around the flat, sun-lit course of the Fort Lauderdale golf and country club today to lead 18 hole play of the 54 hole Fort Lauderdale open tournament with a pair of 35's for a par 70.

John Watson, South Bend, Ind., and Willie Klein, Wheatley Hills, L. I., were right behind Dante with 71's for the day's play in the $1,500 event. In the 72 rung of the scoring ladder were Jim Noonan, Chicago, Jock Hutchinson, Chicago, Ralph Kingsford, Fargo, N. D., and Bill Thompson of Cleveland.

An octet swung into the first day finish with 73's, led by Johnny Farrell, former national open champion. The others were Albert Murray, Montreal, Norman Sommers, Council Bluffs, Iowa, Massey Miller, Norwich, Conn., J. Huot, Quebec, Charley Rice, Hempstead, L. I., Ken Martin, Bloomfield Hills, Mich., and Clarence Gamber, Detroit.

Sixty one of the 123 professionals and 22 amateurs that finished play wereunched between 74 and 80, with E. W. Rodmer, Chicago, leading the amateurs with his 86-38-74.

Campbell Seeks Fourth Title At Speed Trials in Florida

BY T. R. GILL

Daytona Beach, Fla. (AP)—Seeking to capture the world's land speed record for the fourth time, Capt. Malcolm Campbell of England will stake his hope as well as his life on one of the most powerful streamlined cars ever created.

Thrice holder of the highest crown in the racing firmament—the only man in the world holding such honors—the British veteran will drive on the ocean speedway here in February as the one major entrant in the 29th renewal of the international speed trials.

With his low, whale-shaped machine, Campbell hopes to exceed the present record of 231 miles an hour, established in 1929 by his late rival, Sir Henry Segrave.

The car Campbell will drive this year is much lower than his first blue Bird in which he set a record of 206 miles an hour here in 1928. It is equipped with a 12-cylinder super-charged engine, developing 1,450 horsepower, and has a ground clearance of only 3 1/2 inches.

Campbell's racing career has been long and varied. His first record was captured at Pendine Sands, Wales, July 21, 1925, when he achieved 150.76 miles an hour over a mile straightaway.

The next year J. G. Parry-Thomas, English driver, boosted the mark to 170.52, but Campbell came back in 1927 and skimmed across the course at 174.22 to win the record a second time.

Segrave decided to try his hand at high speed racing and sailed for Daytona Beach shortly after Campbell's victory. Here he piloted his machine across the sands at 203, the first man ever to travel 200 miles an hour on land.

Campbell came to Daytona the following year and on February 19 attained an average speed of 206.95, although on one run he touched 214. Three days later Ray Keech of Philadelphia, after about 50 trials, roared over the beach at 207.55 to bring the record to America.

Segrave returned here in March, 1929, and hung up the astounding present record of 231, while Campbell was making an unsuccessful attempt on the mile mark at Verneauk Pan, South Africa. Campbell did succeed, however, in setting a new five mile record of 212 at that time.

SAILS WEDNESDAY

New York, Jan. 12 (AP)—Regardless of the financial controversy between the American Automobile Association and officials of Daytona Beach, Capt. Malcolm Campbell, British speed king, will sail from England Wednesday in the hope of challenging time again for the world's automobile speed record on the Florida sands.

Campbell, with almost $100,000 already invested in his 1400 horsepower Blue Bird racer, today asked that officials of the warring factions meet him in New York for his arrival next week in an effort to iron out the $2,000 difference in estimates of cost that threaten to prevent the record attack.

Daytona Beach officials have offered $4,000 toward the actual costs of staging the trials, while Ted Allen, secretary of the contest board of the A. A. A., estimates that at least $5,000 is necessary.

Municipal officials at Daytona Beach, where the late Sir Henry Segrave set a record of 231 miles an hour over a "measured mile" in 1929, refused today to take action on a recent communication from Allen, setting today as the deadline. Neither did the A. A. A. officially notify Campbell in England that the trials were off unless the city increased its appropriation, as he had threatened to do. The beach authorities are expected to defray the costs of setting up telephone lines, timing apparatus, housing of mechanics and car, and the salaries of the necessary officials.

TILDEN TO GET NO. 1 NET RANK?

Many Critics Believed Doeg Will Lead All in Tennis Rank

New York, Jan. 12 (AP)—Action construed by some observers as paving the way for the ranking of William T. Tilden II and Helen Williams Moody officially as the No. 1 American tennis players for 1931 has been taken by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

It was disclosed today in "Tennis," the official publication of the U. S. L. T. A., it took the form of approval by the executive committee of recommendations by the ranking committee to consider the performances of American stars abroad, as well as at home, in making up the national ranking lists.

Tilden and Mrs. Moody, as well as several other Americans, reached the peak of their performances on British or French courts last season. Tilden suffered several setbacks at home, losing the national title to John Doeg. Mrs. Moody did not defend her national championship after an unbeaten European campaign.

Heretofore, the main basis of the national rankings has been the national championship results. As a result, the general expectation has been that Doeg would displace Tilden as the No. 1 ranking star.

Mrs. Moody's position is somewhat different. She hardly would have any opposition for the top place among women players, especially as the national title was taken to England by Betty Nuthall, who would not be eligible for an American ranking.

Nevertheless, foreign news sources today credited a report that Mrs. Moody would not be given an American ranking on the technical ground of "insufficient data." Not only did this report appear unfounded, in the light of the national association's new ranking policy, but it was pointed out the player slated had not yet been completed for consideration at the annual meeting of the U. S. L. T. A. here in February.

DUDLEY WINS OPEN TOURNEY

Southern Professional Takes First Prize in Los Angeles

BY BRIAN BELL

Los Angeles, Jan. 12 (AP)—Smiling, soft voiced Ed Dudley, who has threatened to win many important golf competitions since he left his native Georgia ten years ago, finally crashed his way into the "big money" today by capturing the $3,500 first prize in the Los Angeles $10,000 open.

The big southerner who now is professional at the Concord Country club, Concordville, Pa., home of finished two strokes ahead of Eddie Loos and Al Espinosa, Chicago professionals, with a brilliant 73 hole total of 285.

Dudley came home with perhaps the most courageous finish witnessed in highly competitive golf since Tommy Armour dropped his long putt on the 18th green at Oakland in the 1927 open to the Harry Cooper for the lead.

The former Ryder cup player came to the home green needing a par four to record a score of 285 and everybody had said from the opening of the competition that 285 would win.

He got a great drive and long second but his iron was slightly pushed and his four summer fair from easy when he came up to his ball off the green with a tall tree cutting off the cup.

With a championship in sight, the big fellow played like a champion. He pitched over the tree and the ball came to rest 16 feet from the pin. He had two putts to win at that stage he did not know it and probably would have scored to play safely if he had. He boldly putted for the par four and the ball rolled squarely into the cup.

Espinosa and Frank Walsh, another of the dead-end Chicago golfing brigade, finished just ahead of Dudley, and Armour and Diegel were on his heels. Espinosa had scored a great five at the home hole after losing a shot in a trap and Walsh had encountered all sorts of trouble and taken a six there. Walsh's 288 left him in a tie with Armour at 288 for third place and the best Diegel would do after a brave challenge was 289 and a tie with Craig Wood for sixth.

Harry Cooper made it four Chicago pros in the first octet by grabbing eighth place with 290 and Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen, two ancient rivals tied for ninth with scores of 291.

C. M. THOMPSON DIES SUDDENLY

Was Vice President of Local Transfer and Trucking Company

Chris M. Thompson, 35, vice president of the Thompson Transfer Co., and widely known throughout the city, died Monday morning at 12:20 o'clock following an illness of a few days. Mr. Thompson submitted to an operation for a ruptured appendix a few days ago. From the time he was admitted to the hospital, his condition was critical and little hope was held out for his recovery.

Mr. Thompson was born July 14, 1892, in Menominee, and several years ago moved to Cornell where he worked for some time, later coming to this city where he engaged in the trucking business.

Mr. Thompson is survived by his widow, who was formerly Miss Agnes LeDuc of Cornell, three children, Irene, Kenneth and Anna May of this city, his mother, Mrs. J. A. Thompson, two brothers, Thomas and Peter Thompson, all of this city and two sisters, Mrs. Andrew Fulton, Gladstone, and Mrs. Louis Fleury of Cornell.

The body was prepared for burial at the Allo Funeral Home and will be taken to the family home, 612 South Third Avenue, this morning at 10 o'clock.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the First Presbyterian church with Rev. Carl E. Berger officiating.

Interment will be made in the family lot in Lakeview cemetery.

Trip Ends in Ditch; Trio Held in Theft

Three Escanaba boys charged with the theft of a car owned by Romeo LaCrosse of Bark River, were arraigned before Justice J. S. Doherty Monday afternoon. They demanded a preliminary hearing, which has been set for Thursday, and have been placed under $500 bonds each until the time of their appearance in court.

The group includes: Peter Zoellner, 17, Henry Schollman, 17, and Harry Tromblay, 18. Local police say that the trio took the car from its parking place on Ludington street and drove toward Rapid River. They went in the ditch between Kipling and Rapid River, and were forced to walk back to Escanaba. Their arrest at their homes here followed.

$655 Verdict Given in Personal Injury

Circuit court came to a close in Escanaba Saturday night after a jury had awarded a verdict in the case of Frances Denny against George Froberg. A judgment of $655 was given to Denny, who asked compensation for injuries received while he was employed at the Froberg camp Oct. 15, 1929. He stated that he cut his finger while filling an ax, and that infection developed which resulted in the amputation of the index finger on his left hand.

The trial was the last one in the January term of Delta county circuit court. The next court session here will be in April.

CITY TAXES

City Treasurer John N. Korpela reports that a total of $151,300 in tax money has been paid into the city treasury for 1930 taxes. This is a little better than 85 per cent. of the total tax roll. It is expected that further amounts will be paid before the taxes are returned delinquent. This is a good showing, considering the hard times.

MRS. MARIE SAUER

"I suffered fearfully from stomach and bowel trouble," said Mrs. Marie Sauer, 2238 East Forest avenue, Detroit. "Food soured in my stomach, my heart palpitated and I had smothering spells. I lost weight steadily and became very nervous. I tried many remedies and treatments without relief.

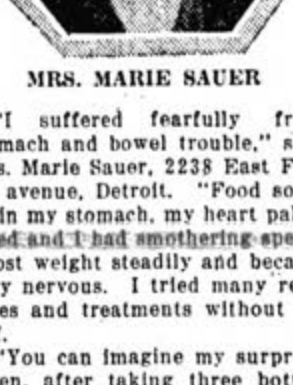

"You can imagine my surprise, when, after taking three bottles of Konjola, my stomach had improved wonderfully. My food digested as it should, I had an excellent appetite and really enjoyed my meals. As I kept on with the treatment I could feel my strength returning. My nerves became quiet and my bowels functioned normally and regularly. I still take Konjola occasionally because it keeps me feeling fit."

The files of Konjola contain many thousands of such endorsements. They have made Konjola a household word in thousands of homes. Konjola is sold in Escanaba, Mich., at Peoples Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

FIND DEER IN GOOD CONDITION

State Hunter Reports on Sturgeon River Deer Yard

Finding of deer in good condition, almost total extermination of predatory animals, and a notable increase in partridge and prairie chicken in the Sturgeon River deer yard, is reported by Eustace LeVeque, state hunter who has just completed a patrol of that region and contiguous territory. The deer yard is some 3 miles in length and between eight and ten miles wide and runs from Sixteen Mile lake to the old Howell homestead.

During his week's travels LeVeque saw no signs of predator animals. He saw plenty of partridge. These birds have increased greatly, due he believes to the establishment of closed season and because of favorable conditions during the past spring and summer. Another interesting feature of the game situation in the Sturgeon river country is the large increase in prairie chickens. He saw numerous flocks, some of not more than four or five in number, others containing ten or fifteen, and some flocks of from twenty to thirty. Mr. LeVeque says that he saw several flocks last summer and wondered if they would winter here.

The prairie chicken is a new game bird to this northern section of the country. Flocks found there are here from Northern Wisconsin, where under protective laws they increased rapidly. That they are wintering here is sufficient evidence that climate and feeding conditions are adaptable to them. If unmolested there is no doubt but that they will become numerous, as they are a hardy bird.
