Felch Man Wins Suit Iron Mountain—Judgment of 99 in favor of Louis Boon, of Felch township, in his claim against the Felch township school district in an alleged verbal contract for the sinking of a well, as returned by a jury in circuit court late yesterday afternoon. After hearing brief testimony, Attorney L. J. Archambeau, of Norway, represented Boon, and Attorney Ray Derham appeared for the school district.

In October, 1929, the school board, according to the testimony entered into a verbal contract with Boon to drill a well on some school property. The well, according to that agreement, was to be sunk 40 feet, and have a four and one-half inch pipe to a depth of 32 feet. The remaining eight feet of depth was not to be provided with pipe for the reason that the hole was drilled to solid rock, and it was not deemed necessary.

Shortly after the completion of the job, according to Boon, a heavy rain storm washed sand, rocks and other debris into the hole. In addition, he said, school children amused themselves by throwing sand, rocks and sticks into the hole, so that eventually became plugged up and failed to function.

12th Year in House Sault Ste. Marie—H. A. Osborn, for 12 consecutive years a member of the state House of Representatives and a ranking member of the important Ways and Means committee of the house, will meet his chairman and other members of the committee Sunday at 500 Junction street, in a visit to Upper Peninsula State Institutions.

The chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee is H. T. Hartman of Houghton. Other members of the committee besides Mr. Osborn of Sault Ste. Marie are McEachern, Look, Huff Campbell, Espie, Fuller and Nichols. The committee will visit the Newberry State Hospital, the Michigan College of Mining and Technology at Houghton, Northern State Teachers Normal and the branch prison at Marquette.

Mr. Osborn, second in point of service only to Rep. Charles Culver of Detroit, has served Chippewa county in the legislature since 1921. He is considered one of the influential men of the house, keenly interested in problems of the state and through his long service well-versed in legislative matters. Mr. Osborn was one of the Ways and Means committee since 1925.

Vote on Horse Races Sault Ste. Marie—The attention of several of the Chippewa county supervisors has been drawn to the action of the schoolcraft county supervisors, who at their last session, agreed to place the decision as to whether or not horse racing would be held at the Schoolcraft County Fair in the hands of the electorate.

The question will be placed on the Schoolcraft April ballots, it was decided, and although it could be nothing more than a straw vote, it will determine the sentiments of the people. The Chippewa County Board of Supervisors, in session last October, pared the fair budget to the bone, and recommended that horse racing be discontinued.

His appointment came through H. E. Powell, state commissioner of agriculture.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos and family are now spending a brief vacation in Florida. Mr. Amos will return to Lansing to take up his new duties on February 1st. He will have charge of all state institutions farms, about 18 in number. There are approximately 1,800 pure bred Holsteins on these farms.

Mr. Amos before taking over the management of the Blaney Park Resort was supervisor of county agricultural agents in the upper peninsula for many years. He was the first county agent to be employed in Schoolcraft county.

In a letter to a friend Mr. Amos states that he is sorry to leave the upper peninsula but that his duties will call for frequent visits to this section and he will always welcome opportunity to return.

MUST FACE SITUATION

THE people of Escanaba face the necessity of providing an adequate sewage disposal system, to replace a plant that has proven both unsanitary and wholly inadequate to meet the needs of the city.

Experience of the past several years has proven that whatever funds Escanaba invested in the present sewage disposal plant, some 12 or 15 years ago, was largely wasted.

THE CONSERVATION BOMB

A DISPATCH from Lansing says a legislative attack on alleged unfair practices by the conservation department is contemplated by Upper Peninsula members of the legislature.

The city of Milwaukee soon found that the plant could not be efficiently operated and could not be made to produce the results claimed for it.

THINGS appear to be breaking nicely for the upper peninsula from an economic standpoint, and prospects for its future development are unusually bright.

FOR GINGER'S SAKE

(By NEA Service) BY ETHEL HUESTON

CHAPTER IV But Joplin Westbury did not wait for Jenky to see Ginger Ella. He knew Ginger from of old and was well aware that she was not above turning a neat financial trick herself when she had a good chance.

"Say, little bond-holder," he began cheerfully, for he and Ginger were great friends, "I guess you're not so over-nourished on bank-notes but what you'll turn an honest dollar if you see your way clear, eh?"

"Well, now, you know that school teacher that used to live with you at the parsonage—who married that blind man—Yeh, Brooks, Mrs. Brooks. Well, she wants to buy a little piece of land from me, and she's going to ask your advice about it."

"Now, you know me, Ginger, I make a sale when I can. You give her the right advice, and the day she signs up for it, I'll send you my check for $100. That's what I think of your opinion, 'ness that's a fair enough proposition."

"It certainly is," agreed Ginger. "And I think I can advise her to your satisfaction if the price is right."

"Well, I'm going to make it right. Now, I'm asking 2000, but I won't stick at 1800. Listen, Ginger, just between us, I'd let it go for 1500, 250 down and 25 a month. Now, tell you what I'll do. Anything you get out of her over 1500, I'll give you 10 per cent, and in addition to your hundred, and the land's good enough, but I can't rightly use it myself, and the farmers don't seem to fancy it."

Ginger laughed delightedly. "That's just corking," she said. "I'll see what I can do. You're a great old sport, Joppy, and I think we can do business."

Her confidence was not ill-advised. They did do business, and within 24 hours Ben and Jenky Brooks had bought Mill Rush for $1500, paying 250 down. And Ginger had a check for $100, which she generously divided with Jenky, to that woman's boundless delight.

The news that Ben and Jenky Brooks had taken over the Mill Rush place to operate as a sort of summer home for themselves and a general club for the youth of Red Thresh created a sensation in the community but on the whole met with a surprisingly favorable reaction.

Ben and Jenky were well liked, and had the respect and the goodwill of every one in town. The hope that they would do well and make money out of the enterprise upon which they had so boldly embarked was unanimous.

ger. Best of all he had a sense of humor, was, in fact, what Ginger called a real human being and had fallen in love with Ginger in her days of bare-skinned knees.

It frequently happened that Ginger was tied up with engagements with different college boys home for vacation, or with the friends who came with them, in which case she usually managed to work Eddy into the party as an escort for her friend, Patsy Sears.

He was older than the others and he never lost his head. The townspeople liked and trusted him, regarding him as a sort of reliable balance for the heedlessness of the average youth, and more than once he had been efficacious in extricating his associates from the embarrassing difficulties their immature emotionalism had goaded them into.

Ginger's own emotions, as far as men were concerned, were in a state of safe but deadly somnolence. She was not at all sure that she believed in love; her personal opinion was that she probably did not. Love, she found, was apt to be either rough or messy, and neither manifestation appealed to her.

Also, as she cheerfully confided to Phil, "If occasionally one does let go for a minute and lapse into complete eroticism—see Freud—one is so flushed and perspire the rest of the day it simply isn't worth it!" Taken all together, she was against love. "Something to do," she said, "that's all people need."

ATONEMENT Whoever would reckon that such as I With neither virtue nor wit Could walk abroad with the starry sky And be such friends with it!

A lady moon leans down her face And lays her hand on my hair, While a forest of firs all bow in grace Acknowledging I am there.

O winter night, O starry night, O silver moon on a hill! The sorriest soul must know delight, The noisiest heart be still.

There may be persons upon this earth—we know that there are for we have met some of them—who are so rich with wisdom and kindly kinship that they can find themselves the best and most satisfying of companions.

Health Tips

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBAIN

The increasing realization of the fact that the mind of the sick person must be kept constantly in a hopeful and courageous state has caused more attention to be given to the matter of entertainment of those compelled to remain in bed over long periods of time.

In practically all of the veterans' hospitals in this country and in many of the larger hospitals, libraries are now made available in which those patients who are able to be about may sit and read. Traveling trucks carry a wide variety of books to those patients who are kept in bed, so that they may make a selection of the material they want.

It has been well established that a person of unsound mental condition should not be permitted to read religious books, sex books, or any type of material that will disturb his mind. People inclined to bad dreams should avoid mystery stories with dangerous situations. Books dealing with suicide, morbid books dealing with life in sanatoriums and hospitals and similar literature must certainly be avoided.

As an example of the danger that lies in some books, the opening sentence of one of the short stories by Jack London is, "Because we are sick they take away our liberty." Obviously such a sentence would be dynamite to a person with paranoid tendencies.

A person who is confined to his bed for a long period of time will probably appreciate particularly

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE MICHIGAN

Since his triumph in "The Last Frontier," Bill Boyd never has seen to finer advantage than in the Pathé dialogue picture of the west, "The Painted Desert," which is being shown at the Michigan theatre today and tomorrow. The picture is colorful, dramatic and there are numerous thrills.

With ninety percent of the picture photographed on the localities of the story in the desertland of Arizona and on the Indian Reservation, "The Painted Desert" brings to the screen a drama in backgrounds never before photographed.

The story of "The Painted Desert" concerns a feud between two old Arizona pioneers and the romance of their children. The picture is packed with thrills and action. The stampede of a herd of five hundred cattle and a deadly defying race of twenty multi-legged incidents that help raise the drama to a high pitch.

Helen Twelvetrees plays opposite Bill Boyd with artistry and fine poise. The supporting cast was excellent, the work of William Farnum, J. Farrell MacDonald and Clark Gable being especially fine. Others in the cast are Edmund Breese, Will Walling, Al St. John, Jerry Drew Wade Boteler, Richard Cromley, James Mason and James Donnell. Howard Higgin directed with meticulous results.

AT THE DELFT Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery in "Mfn and Bill" are the attractions at the Delft theatre today and tomorrow. This is the greatest picture Marie Dressler has ever made.

The fire department was called and the blaze was extinguished before extensive damage had been done to the building and automobile. Police are investigating a report that the fire was caused by two boys attempting to steal some gasoline from the garage. A can was found outside.

BRIEFLY TOLD

Not Cement Manufacturer—Press dispatches last week carried news of the death of John Galster, pioneer merchant of postmaster, and several readers as a result are under the impression that the deceased was John Galster, head of the Petoskey Portland Cement company. The Mr. Galster, who died, is a relative of the cement manufacturer, who is well known in the upper peninsula.

Congregationalists To Meet In Seattle

Garden, Mich., Jan. 17. (Special)—Word has been received by the Registrar of the Gladstone Association of Congregational Churches, that the next meetings of the National Council of Congregational Churches will be held in the city of Seattle, Wash., opening the sessions June 25, 1931 and closing July 3.

These meetings will be especially important and of unusual interest since they will be the first such gatherings to be held since the merging of the Congregational churches with the Christian church the final action for which was taken at the last meeting of the National Council of Congregational Churches held in Detroit, Mich. two years ago. While it is a fact that Seattle is far removed from the center of Congregationalism, it is confidently believed that because of their importance and their history making status, these meetings will be the most outstanding of any held in the churches concerned. H. Heatfield, representing the Gladstone Association, is the delegate from this district.

Circus Folks Settle Down Near Newberry

BY OAKLEY RIVERS
Newberry, Jan. 17. (Special)—The little cabin near the bridge on the banks of the Tahquamenon stands dark and lonely looking in its setting of white.

Two of Newberry's most colorful people live here. They are Mary and Archie Dunlap, circus people, whose wandering lives have led them into every city and town of importance in 44 of the states. Mary is a tattooed lady of carnival fame and her husband Archie, in years gone by was elephant trainer for some of the largest circuses in the world.

Have Varied Experiences.
The story of their adventures, over a period of years, from coast to coast and from Canada to the Gulf, would fill a large book.

Their pursuit of a livelihood has always been along a glamorous and romantic path. The glare of brass bands, the glitter of tinsel costumes, the heat and excitement of the first performance, under the Big Top, the care and danger and training of wild animals, the pandemonium of tornadoes descending on the tents of the circus, cages of screaming wild creatures burning in train wrecks, the terror of elephants running amuck, seeing murder committed in gold camps, facing a horrible death crossing Death Valley—these are a few of the experiences of Archie and Mary Dunlap.

Although it was dusk in their shanty, there was no light and the couple sat at a small table in a corner, eating their evening meal. Mary is past sixty. Her hair is black and she allows it to hang loosely over her shoulders. The years have left deep lines in Archie's face and he is reticent. At present Archie is working on the county road and Mary is "just keeping house." What a change for these two compared to the years in the past!

Best Cat Dies.
Three cats, one a large Angora, and a white Spitz dog, sat in a semi-circle and watched them.

"That table over there," said Mary, pointing with a fork to a table covered with a snowy cloth. "Is used for dinner only. That's why I keep a cloth on it!" She laughed heartily. "We haven't played the radio since Aberdeen died, you know," Mary went on. "Aberdeen was my best cat. I found her in Aberdeen, Washington. We toted him along through camps, factory towns, orange groves, oil fields and across the Mojave desert. While we were camping on Miller Bros. 101 Ranch in Oklahoma, Mary Roberts Rinehart was there and she took a great shine to Aberdeen. At night Mrs. Roberts would sit by a big fire that the cowboys had built, and hold Aberdeen in her lap while she wrote notes for her stories. But the other day my cat died."

"Light the lamp, Mary," Archie said, "And we'll look through the albums." And pictures! There were hundreds of them. Snapshots and postcards of every city and town that the two had passed through or worked in. There were beautiful scenes of California; old missions, palm-lined highways, snaps taken on the old Moreno ranch where Ramona was supposed to have lived, imposing views of the Grand Canyon, long vistas of shimmering sands taken in Death Valley. In each of these Mary or Archie was posed with their home on wheels, the covered truck.

Were Separated Often.
The longing for a career and the fascination of the circus separated the pair more than once. "Once Mary was working with a carnival and I got a job training a herd of elephants for a big company," Archie said. "And this time we didn't see each other for more than a year! Ever since I was 18, until lately, I have been with circuses, zoos and training companies. In 1900 I had charge of a herd of giraffes for Ringling Bros. Giraffes are a tender and sensitive animal. Great care has to be taken in their food, which is mostly vegetables. They cost $3000 each. Ringling Bros. at that time was not split up and was made up of eighty five cars. In 1901 Wallace Bros. took me as lion-trainer. I was game for anything those days and right off the bat was almost killed. I thought I knew a foxy old lion pretty well and one day walked into the cage to sweep out. The beast let out a roar that shook the wagon and threw himself on me. I've still got the scars from that scrap!" Archie smiled ruefully and showed the mass of scars on his right arm and a deep hole between the forefinger and thumb.

Elephant Runs Amuck.
Archie had his first experiences with elephants when he got the job of elephant-trainer for the Cole Shows in 1907. Among the beasts was a huge old pachyderm named Queen who weighed 3 1/2 tons. When she wanted to be, Queen was a docile pet and her great strength was invaluable in pulling wagons about location and doing other tasks. But sometimes she grew temperamental and had to be chained. One day she ran amuck and completely destroyed the tents of five sideshows.

"Where is that picture of Lafayette Square?" Archie asked; whereupon Mary, after considerable scrambling, came with the postcard. "Once we were parading through Lafayette Square in Buffalo, and a small boy fell under the feet of Queen. He was instantly killed and I was jailed because I had hold of Queen's ear when the accident happened. They didn't hold me long though."

Archie related of his escape from death at Baraboo, Wis., where he had charge of the winter animal quarters of Forepaw-Selles. A maddened hippopotamus cornered him in its cage one day and but for the quick intervention of nearby workmen, would have gored him to death. "With three foot jaws opened wide and dripping, the hippo seemed to bound at me. The depth of that red mouth froze me I guess. I sidestepped and that's the last I remember. When I came to, the lot-hands were rubbing me and the hippo was munching my hat in the cage!"

Came Here in 1911
Archie and his wife came to Newberry for the first time in 1911. Mary had been on tour with carnivals and they both needed rest. During their travels in later years the quiet peacefulness of the North drew them back after hectic seasons. Mary, who has been tattooed thirty years now, most of that time spent in carnivals and sideshows selling horoscopes and exhibiting her snakes, says that the life of the traveling show is on the wane. "People have too many other things to amuse them now. Radios, cars, dancing, the talkies. Circuses are disappearing yearly. But Archie and me are goin' to start again as soon as we can get on the road. This time we'll sell a little medicine. The East first and then make tracks for the west coast. And I'll have snakes!"

Mary loves reptiles. She dug out a catalogue of a farm in South Carolina that dealt in snakes and saurians. "Rock pythons and Texas bulls and small boss. All cheap this year. They draw a crowd quicker'n a pack o' monkeys. And are the easiest to care for. I've laid around the house most a year now, and I want to be goin' again!"

"But you and Archie will return some day?" she was asked. Mary laughed. "Yes, I suppose we will. The road after while gets tiresome—and this place's not so bad!"

Local Legislators Have Week Vacation

Senator Herbert J. Rushton arrived Saturday morning from Lansing where he is in attendance at the state legislature now in session. Senator Rushton plans to remain here for about a week before returning to Lansing. The legislature will reconvene January 15. Helmer Bruce of Hark River, Delta county representative, will participate in inspection trips of state institutions as a member of the committee on Marquette prison, Michigan Home and Training school, Boys' Vocational school, state capitol and public buildings.

Trucking of Logs Brings Complaints

Several complaints have been received by the Delta county sheriff's department regarding the practices of truck drivers who are hauling logs on US-2 from the east. Motorists report that the trucks drive too fast in passing and meeting cars, and that they take up more than their share of the road, menacing the safety of passenger traffic. The sheriff's department has issued a warning to the truck drivers, promising arrests unless the vehicles cut down their speed and observe the rules of safety in traffic when passing and meeting cars. 100th ANNIVERSARY

Of the Founding of BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS

CONCEIVED in the lap of necessity . . . just one hundred years ago . . . to the end that America might become a nation of home owners—

Building and Loan Associations have demonstrated the firmness of the foundation on which they stand—

By a century of safe saving.

They have successfully weathered peace and war times . . . feast and famine . . . prosperity and depression.

The unparalleled growth of Building and Loan Associations will continue because they have to do with the creation and maintenance of the American home . . . The Safeguard of American Liberties.

FOUR DECADES OF PROGRESS

It is interesting to note that the Detroit & Northern Michigan Building & Loan Association has never failed to pay a dividend at the rate of 5% during the past 42 years, and in that time has financed thousands of homes in the State of Michigan.

That this Association with resources of $8,997,284.70 is financially conservative, is indicated by the fact that from earned profits there has been set aside as Undivided Profits and Legal Reserve, $494,331.66—a relatively high figure—

Truly a great record of progress for a move that was inaugurated just 100 years ago.

Save now and provide for the future.

Railroad Cost 2 Million, But Never Made a Cent

In some of the principal industries of the United States, such as the oil, mining and particularly the railroad industries, there is found that class of people known as "boomers."

The boomer, usually, is a man possessed with "itching feet" and a large share of that disease called "wanderlust." The boomer of the oil and mining industries is generally a part of that riff-raff crowd which keeps moving on steadily. Ever changing with every new strike or new field that is found, these boomers rarely settle down to the humdrum of an average daily existence. They live on excitement; they thrive on new places and new faces.

In the railroad industry, the boomer is of a different category. Always, he is skillful in some branch of the service. The machinists, boilermakers and other shops craftsmen are usually exceptionally skilled in their trades.

Boomers Expert Workmen
The reason for this is because the men who become boomers learned their trades at one point, then wandered far and near gaining "experience." Working under varying conditions, they became well acquainted with various types of working machinery, acquiring more skill with every change of residence.

They are climatic birds. They care little for the rigors of the north country in the winter time. They work south as winter approaches. There are boomers from the States and Canada in Mexico and Central America in climate unusually torrid.

A boomer engineer now living in Escanaba telling of his experiences in Mexico, placed particular emphasis on the heat. He said, "I was on a 'Katayroad,' (Kansas City, Mexico and Orient), work train 120 miles south of the border in the province of Chihuahua. It was hot! Most of the time it was over 100 degrees, sometimes, over 120 degrees. We'd be running through rocky stretches that you could fry eggs on. I always did like it hot but not as hot as hell."

Another engineer boomer had a J. Byers, and other officials. The affair is scheduled for 6:30 p. m. and arrangements are in charge of a committee from Cloverland Post No. 82. A special invitation has been extended to the ladies.

narrow escape from death at the hands of a Cuban engineer. recounting the experience, he says, "I was working as road foreman of engines for a railroad in Cuba. We were having great difficulties among the native engineers, who resented our presence strongly. As I was road foreman, it was my job to see that the engines were O. K. One day I had occasion to reprimand one of them for burning a crown sheet. He was sulky and not to be intimidated. We were very short-handed so went obliged to keep him on. Months later I was going to ride with him on a trip when he indicated there was something wrong with the underside of the locomotive. I asked why he had not made a report at once. He made believe he could not understand me. I crawled under to see what was wrong. I could see nothing the matter and was about to come out when I saw the engine wheels slowly turning.

"I cried out angrily and the wheels ceased turning. When I came out I gave the man a good tongue lashing. He was almost white with fear for I believe he had every intention of dragging me to death. At about my third nerve had fallen him."

Some Settle Down
And so it goes with the boomers. They live lives often more colorful than heroes of fiction. They fear no masters. They stay maybe, one, two or three weeks, perhaps a month in one place, then comes the urge to move on. They see the boss and demand their time. They have scant fear of the morrow, secure in their own ability to make a living anywhere, even as the journeyman printers of days gone by.

Sometimes, with the ease with which they pick up and go they meet "the girl." Then the booming days are over and he settles down to such contentment as he may find and thinks less and less about the times of his boomer days. Lucky is the man who thus easily is jerked from the rut of the boomer.

Many of them never settle down. They keep drifting with the rush seasons, moving hither and yon, unceasingly, riding freights to new places ever seeking the perfect town.

Industry owes much to the "boomer." Without him there would be fewer miles of railroad track in the United States and other parts of the world. He also

Michigan Professors in Tropical Jungles

What may prove to be one of the most extensive expeditions of the University of Michigan—Museum of Zoology in search of plant and animal life of the tropical jungle will begin January 23, when three professors will sail from New Orleans for the Peten district of Guatemala, where they will co-operate with parties from Harvard, the University of Chicago and the Carnegie Institution.

Professor Harley H. Bartlett will collect plant life, Dr. Josselyn Van Tyne, birds, and Dr. Adolph Murie, mammals of the region. The great co-operative investigation is intended to survey the region of the ancient Mayan empire which reached a high civilization about 700 A. D. The University of Michigan will undertake the biological aspects of the survey, which may extend over twenty years.

C. W. Ham Speaks At Ann Arbor Meet

Ann Arbor, Mich. (Special)—Clifford W. Hamm, former city controller of Escanaba and city manager of Gladstone, delivered an address before the Municipal administration club of the University of Michigan, Friday, on "Financial Aspects of City Management."

Mr. Hamm was formerly city manager of Pontiac and past president of the City Managers' association. Since leaving the city manager field he has dealt with city finances as president of the People's State Bank of Pontiac.

While in Ann Arbor Mr. Hamm visited with Prof. Thomas H. Reed, eminent authority on municipal administration. Prof. Reed stated in the local press that Mr. Hamm had been one of the outstanding men in the city manager field.

represents a type of "empire builder" which is fast fading in America.

Working conditions are becoming more and more restricted on the railroads. There are fewer chances for men from the outside "horning in." Everything is based mostly on seniority rather than efficiency.

Today the boomer is seldom found north of Chicago. In the south the boomer is still going strong among the railroads that operate there. There is a demand for the type of labor they represent.

But they are fading out. Economic changes do not hold with the boomer of 1931. If he is to exist he must cease his ramblings and settle down.
