A Doctor Tells How to Guard Against the Flu—No. 3

Dress Warmly and Sensibly to Ward Off Winter Colds and Flu

EDITORS NOTE: This is the third of three articles written especially for The Press and NEA Service by Dr. Morris Fishbein, noted authority, on how to avoid influenza and its greatest contributory cause, the common cold. This series is especially timely in view of influenza epidemics reported in various cities.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine. Red flannel underwear for the average worker has long disappeared from the American scene. It is still occasionally seen in foreign districts and in lumber camps.

Dr. Fishbein

The coming of the automobile and the steam-heated office and home have made it necessary that a new derothing and a new derothing in general be rather light for indoor wear during all seasons of the year. It is then possible for the worker to put on enough extra clothing before going outdoors to take care of his temperature needs.

DON'T wear short and flimsy clothing on cold days.

Dr. Hoyt Dearholt has ascribed it primarily to modern dress, and he believes that it could be cut down if dress reform would be encouraged.

The vast majority of physicians are convinced that insufficient protection of the body by suitable clothing is in a measure responsible for the frequency of colds, of influenza, and of pneumonia. Tuberculosis prospers in soil that is represented by modern young women, poorly nourished and insufficiently dressed.

Whether or not excessive smoking of cigars is also a factor is another question, although Dr. Wolff Freudenthal is convinced that excessive smoking and insufficient sleep are also concerned.

The famous German hygienist, Rubner, feels that light clothing and the resultant chilling of the body are important factors in the increased mortality from respiratory diseases, particularly tuberculosis in young women.

Dr. R. L. Russell of the Missouri State Department of Health says: "A person can stand a great deal of stormy, disagreeable weather without endangering his health if he keeps his feet and clothing dry; so raincoats, umbrellas and the lowly overshoe in various forms, styles and colors, are of considerable importance."

Every hygienist knows the difficulty of securing dress reform when it is opposed to fashion. But the evidence available is more than sufficient to indicate that dress reform is badly needed from the point of view of health, so far as women of the teen age are concerned.

Cover Child's Knees Perhaps the silliest custom has been the feeling of certain mothers that little children should wear socks, going with the knees and legs bare. In order to harden them, almost invariably it is the slender, undernourished child whose mother becomes afflicted with this notion. The best authorities are convinced that the child should wear in winter undergarments containing about 20 per cent of wool.

DON'T let your child brave the winter with bare knees.

that the underwear should have full-length arms and legs, and that the child should wear long stockings, which may be part wool, during the winter season.

In addition, the child under four years of age when taken outdoors should wear leggings and an outer coat which can be fastened well around the neck and allow a knitted sweater underneath.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT

Boasting the largest cast in importance and number to support a comedy star since the inception of talking pictures, Eddie Quillan comes to the Delft Theatre today in his newest Pathé comedy feature, "Night Work."

Directed by Russell Mack from an original story by Walter DeLeon, "Night Work" presents Quillan in one of those sympathetic comic characters so well suited to his personality. As an assistant window dresser in a department store Eddie holds a unique side-line job of a "fired man." He is fired on all occasions when a disgruntled customer demands that someone be fired for one reason or another. As if this were not enough to make things miserable he inadvertently annexes a four-year-old ward at an expense of ten dollars a week and from then on things go from bad to worse.

AT THE MICHIGAN

The audience at the Michigan Theatre last night greeted with delight the unusual and altogether bewitching romance of Old Mexico in which the glorious if impossible caballero rides hard, shoots straight, captures and captivates innumerable love-ly señoritas, gets the bombastic little comic opera comandante, who has offered a reward for his capture into a ludicrous frenzy of freight and injured dignity—and at the last grants the same promise to two persons—since his word of honor is the one sacred word in his code.

Victor Vareoni is delightful as the swaggering, self-satisfied, and fantastic, rustler of cattle and disturber of homes, and Fay Wray is the bewitching lady who is robbed of her prospective groom at the altar—married to another man—widowed—a maid married to the man of her choice, all in the blink of an eye, and of course by the astonishing thunder captain. This is a picture that you'll rave about.

About $200 damages was caused. Locks were broken off, doors were torn from hinges; tarpaper and canvas covering on several shacks were cut with sharp instrument; and lines, reels, ice picks and stoves were either taken or mutilated.

SINCERITY UNQUESTIONED

WHILE some will criticize the stand taken by Congressman Frank P. Bohn, of the Eleventh Michigan District, for the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, there will be few who will charge that the position assumed by Dr. Bohn toward national prohibition, does not represent his honest convictions, arrived at after mature thought.

age tourist traffic and agriculture and city improvement. Such words of high praise could be written about the Chamber of Commerce of Escanaba and other cities. All have proven their worth to the communities they serve.

NEW MINOR SPORT

SKATING has been introduced as a minor sport in upper peninsula high schools. A. W. Thompson, director of the Michigan Athletic association, has given sanction to the interscholastic skating meet that will be held here on Feb. 14 as a feature of the third annual winter frolic.

This is the first time that an effort has been made to bring the various high schools into competition on the ice rink. In approving the plans, Mr. Thompson declared that the upper peninsula schools are to be commended for taking advantage of the natural facilities afforded in this region for the promotion of winter sports.

Escanaba high school now has a well rounded out athletic program. On its calendar are football, basketball, track and field, cross country, tennis, golf and finally skating. Prospects are also bright for the addition of hockey to winter program since this sport is coming in for so much attention throughout the peninsula.

The St. Patrick's and North Escanaba rinks are being extensively used by hockey players, many of whom are high school students. The high school already has the nucleus for the formation of a strong team. It is very likely that next winter interscholastic hockey will be launched in the upper peninsula.

As pointed out by Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of the state, the procedure is contrary to law, but is an act of courtesy in view of present unemployment conditions. All of which goes to prove that the state is somewhat of a human institution after all.

Indications are that the present legislature will fix March 1 by law as the time limit, since this is considered more advantageous from every standpoint than the present Jan. 1 date.

NO LONGER does the chamber of commerce have to argue its right of existence in a community. Throughout the country this type of civic organization is considered as indispensable—it is just the agency to perform those multitudinous public services, which no other group or individual is able or willing to render.

The Chamber of Commerce is truly the power house of Sault Ste. Marie, declares the Sault Ste. Marie News in a recent editorial, reviewing its past achievements.

The local Chamber of Commerce, by its accomplishments and its eternally aggressive activity has won an enviable reputation among contemporary organizations. During the past year, under the leadership of John R. Merrifield, the Chamber has forged ahead with the most members in its history. A list of its accomplishments, which has been printed in attractive form for use of the members, is most impressive. Every committee has results to justify its existence.

There can be no doubt that Sault Ste. Marie owes a large part of its unusual prosperity, in the face of a very considerable slump in activity elsewhere, to the cheerful energy of those who were in charge of general business policies. The C. of C. has let no chance get by to obtain fine highways, to improve railway and ferry service, to encourage tourist traffic and agriculture and city improvement. Such words of high praise could be written about the Chamber of Commerce of Escanaba and other cities. All have proven their worth to the communities they serve.

This is a timely warning. The whole purpose of the Food and Drugs act was to enable the purchaser to make sure exactly what he was buying. It is to be hoped that this fact will not be forgotten at Washington.

WHO SAID WHAT? NOW that General Pershing has declared that he did not make that famous "Lafayette, we are here" speech in Paris during the war, we are beginning to have an uneasy and skeptical attitude toward famous remarks made by other great men.

Did Lawrence, for example, really declare "England expects every man to do his duty?" Did Grant declare that he proposed to "fight it out on this line—if it takes all summer?" Did Patrick Henry demand that be given liberty or death?

All of this is disturbing. General Pershing really should not have disillusioned us. That "Lafayette, we are here" was too good a legend to kill. He ought to have left us believing in it.

FOR GINGER'S SAKE

(By NEA Service) BY ETHEL HUERTON CHAPTER XV With a large wave of his moist hand he swept his colleague away from him, drew back a step or two to allow for the proper expansion of his perfect lungs, and suddenly, like a great torrent, he deluged them with the strains of O Sole Mio, rising into greater and greater crescendo that brought Phil and her husband, and at a distance, Gooby, rushing to the door.

"Quite wisely," approved her father. But Ginger, though shocked, rallied quickly. "As long as they are here we may as well make use of them. They say that Pietro can cook. Let him. We'll order a barrel of macaroni and specialize on Italian dishes."

"We'll dress Angelo up like a baby Mussolini in a masquerade and let him wait on table. And I think if we take this Grand Opera across the river his singing will make a pleasant music for us in the interludes of dancing. We can't waste them, now they're here. Take them out, Iry, and tell Jenny to put them right to work. Turn the attic over to them."

Health Tips

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN One of the most serious disorders affecting the human eye is a disease called glaucoma. Thus, Fasset Edwards, writing in Hyge, points out that it causes 15 per cent of the total blindness in this country and about one-half the blindness in adults.

Finally he comes to the attention of someone who understands diseases of the eye. This expert will measure the amount of tension that exists in the eyeball and find it too greatly increased. Now the pain becomes worse and associated with this condition more disturbance of vision. In the end, it becomes necessary to perform operations on the eyes and, in some cases, even to remove the eye in order to take care of the agonizing pain and the associated disorders.

Parked Cars Found in Way to Be Moved Without Notice

Announcement was made yesterday by the Escanaba city management that in the future all parked cars, encountered on Ludington street by snow removal crews, will be towed to side streets without notice to owners.

In the absence from the city of City Manager T. R. Kessler, Mayor W. H. No-dham issued the following announcement yesterday.

"Because of the practice of many automobile owners in leaving their cars parked on Ludington street, at all hours of the day and night, without regard to the city's snow removal operations, it has been found necessary to instruct city crews to tow all automobiles, found hindering the progress of their work, to side streets. The cars will not be impounded but will be up to automobile owners, whose machines are found in the street, to find for themselves the changed parking place to which their cars are removed."

Former Resident Gets Written Up In Florida Paper
 The Fort Lauderdale Daily News publishes an amusing story in a recent issue concerning the fishing exploits of George B. Norton, former resident of Escanaba, who is spending the winter in Florida. Mr. Norton was employed as city editor of the Escanaba Daily Press about fifteen years ago.

The news story follows:

"This is just another fish story but hereby hangs the tale.

"Trolling off the coast yesterday afternoon in the vicinity of Holly-wood from the cabin cruiser 'Fortunate,' George B. Norton of Bloomington, Indiana, had a strike which brought him out of meditations as to what Dame Luck had in store for him as to fishing success that day. From the tugs on the other end of the line, Norton thought he had a whale or something on that order for the more he pulled the more opposition he received from the party on the other end. After a lot of maneuvering and energy being expended, the haul was brought along side of the boat where it was disclosed Norton had hooked a kingfish in an unorthodox manner, to be specific—by the tail.

"Norton's fish tale is vouched for by two eye-witnesses, namely Carl Breeden, also of Bloomington, and M. R. Mulloy of Erie, Penn. A good sized catch of kings and other varieties was reported by the party."

PUTTING ON STEAM

Some of those 212 pounds that won't come off by golfing, hiking and bathing, big Jess Petty, above, Chicago Cubs' southpaw, is steaming off at Hot Springs, Ark. Big Jess figures he still has a few good games left in his system and has promised them to Rogers Hornsby, Cub pilot. This photo shows Petty submerged in a steam closet.

NAVAL OFFICER IMPRISONED IN PERU'S REVOLT

mapping. Air forces and schools had been organized, and three commercial airlines established during his seven years in the country.

Harold Grow graduated from Annapolis in 1912, in the same class with Richard E. Byrd. The two have remained close friends ever since, bear no little physical resemblance to each other, and even have flown about the same number of miles in exploration.

Grow saw most of the world from the U. S. S. Des Moines, made seven trans-Atlantic trips on convoy duty soon after America's entrance in the World War, and was transferred to naval aviation early in 1918. His air training, at Miami, lasted exactly 17 days, when he was sent to France as armament officer of the Northern Bombing Group. At Hampton Roads Air Station, after the armistice, he became commanding officer. In April, 1919, backed by the impressive total of about 100 flying hours, he went aloft with three other officers and established what then was a world's endurance record for seaplanes.

For three years, he aided in the organization of the air squadron of the battle fleet on the Pacific Coast. In 1923, hearing that a U. S. Naval Mission was to be sent to Peru for the reorganization of its air force, he requested the assignment and was granted it.

Developed Air Force

"Like most South American countries," he said, "Peru had no roads or railroads to the interior. Iquitos, for instance, a town of 20,000 persons on the Amazon, was a month away from Lima by mule and canoe. The northern and southern frontiers, even by steamer, were two days apart. Now you can go to Iquitos in a day, and anywhere in Peru in seven hours."

"The Peruvian air force, when we arrived, consisted of a few officers and men and twelve obsolete planes. When I left, there were 99 officers, 750 men, and 50 new planes which I had bought during a special trip back to the United States."

After three years in Peru, when Grow was about to be ordered to duty elsewhere, he resigned his commission in the U. S. Navy and accepted the invitation of President Leguia to become Inspector General in charge of all civil, military and naval aviation.

"There was a lot to do," he continued. "Accompanied sometimes by Mrs. Grow, who is an enthusiastic horsewoman, I spent months in the interior, choosing sites for landing fields, making friends with the natives and getting the spaces cleared. Then, with an aerial photographer, I flew over vast areas of the Andes, and far down the headwaters of the Amazon. Some of the pictures we brought back showed towns which even the government did not know existed, and ancient Indian ruins which now are being hunted by parties of archaeologists."

Every inland landing—and most of them were made in emergencies—sent the terror-stricken natives into hiding. Once, forced down and unable to secure aid, we were lost for two weeks.

But some 20 landing fields finally were established and today three companies, Pan-American, Fawcett and a government line, now operate regularly over routes totalling about 4000 miles. They are profitable, too, for per capita, Peru uses airplanes ten times as often as the United States."

Imprisoned by Rebels

Commander Grow, or Inspector General Grow, as he was then, also had formed a Ministry of Air, an air corps separate from the army and navy, a reserve air corps with a long waiting list, and a flying school. A close friend of Leguia, he was aided in every way by the president. But then came the revolution.

With the news that there were rebel disturbances at Arequipa, a large city to the south, Grow was ordered to fly to the section with two planes and drop pamphlets urging inhabitants to remain loyal to the old regime. At Camana, about 100 miles north of his destination, Grow landed to spend the night, and to refuel for the next day's peaceful bombing.

The American literally was caught napping by revolutionaries who arrested him. Taken to Arequipa, by that time actually in rebel hands, he was thrown into jail while a shouting mob milled about outside demanding that the captive be executed forthwith. They believed he had flown down to shower them with TNT instead of propaganda.

Hastily transferred to Lima, Commander Grow spent 22 days in jail. All this time, he said, he was unable to communicate with Mrs. Grow, and although revolutionary authorities told her he was safe, she was convinced that her husband had been killed. Not until the American consul was admitted to the prison was she convinced of the truth.

Finally allowed the freedom of the city and his home, on the pledge not to flee, he was brought before a court martial and exonerated of all charges. He explained that he was not deported. It was merely suggested by certain individuals that Senator Grow would enjoy better health in some other country.

"The present attitude of Peru toward foreigners is very favorable, however," he said. "Sanchez Cerro, president of the junta, has promised that he will hold regular elections in May. Since he boasts of being a man of great personal integrity and honor, I trust he will keep his word."

County Primary

Iron Mountain. A county-wide primary election is to be held March 2 as the result of two candidates appearing for the office of county commissioner of schools.

The time for filing nominating petitions at the county clerk's office expired last night. The two candidates are B. R. Miller, incumbent, and Agnes J. Johnson, a teacher in the Kingsford high school.

For the last few terms a primary has not been necessary as only one candidate has filed for the office. The terms run for periods of four years and Mr. Miller, a resident of Iron Mountain, has been the incumbent since the appointment following the resignation of Frank Sweeney to accept the superintendency of the Hixling township schools.

Johnson is an instructor in the manual arts department of the Kingsford school and is now in his third year on that staff.

Unless there should be a slip candidate the primary winner will be unopposed at the regular biennial spring election in April, when state officers are to be chosen.
