

CHINA IS FACING NEW CIVIL WAR

Revolutionary Units to Merge Against Nationalist Government

Hongkong, June 8 (AP)—The shadow of civil war lay upon China tonight as the revolutionary government of South China sought alliance of other rebellious elements throughout the country to overthrow the nationalist government at Nanking.

So serious has the revolt become that all Americans near Poochow have been warned to withdraw to escape rebels advancing down the Min river after defeating government armies in western Fukien province.

While air, land and sea forces took oath at Canton to support the insurgent government and mined the approaches to Canton and Swatow, their leaders were reported hopeful of receiving aid from north China forces gathering at Dairen.

These asserted plotters were headed by Chang Tsung-Chang, former Shantung governor returning with several wives from exile in Japan.

Plan Conference
Yen Shi-Huan, former governor of Shanai, and General Feng Yu-Hsiang, the two leaders of last year's abortive revolution against the Nanking government, sent representatives to confer with Chang Tsung-Chang. Also in Dairen, perhaps merely as observers, were men sent by Chang Hseuh-Liang, governor of Manchuria, and other northern provinces who from Peking supposedly has been cooperating with the nationalist government.

Should active rebellion eventuate from the Dairen conferences, the government headed by General Chiang Kai-Shek might expect the advance of rebels from both south and north toward its strongholds in the Yangtze valley.

Chiang, professing little concern for the rebellion in the south, announced his intention of taking the field to crush Hunan and Kiangsi province bandits, and then retire from office to repudiate assertions he desired to become a dictator, or to found a new dynasty.

FOUR BANKS IN CHICAGO MERGE

The Central Republic Bank and Trust company.

Six Banks Close
While these negotiations were completed, a repercussion resounded in the voluntary closing of six Neighborhood banks with total deposits of approximately $29,000,000.

Three of these banks had affiliations with the Foreman group and their directors ordered the closing until their position as a result of the merger was determined. The others, all in neighboring localities, closed their doors to prevent runs.

Thousands of men and women thronged into the Foreman bank during the day. Most of them were curious onlookers.

Mr. Traynor told hundreds of them that "this is now the First National Bank" and that all deposits of the Foreman State National Bank and Foreman State Trust and Savings banks were guaranteed by the First National resources.

The First National became, by the merger America's fifth largest bank with resources of approximately $300,000,000.

BAND LEADER PASSES AWAY EARLY SUNDAY

By the impact, and the occupants were thrown free of the wreckage. Mr. Andrews suffered a concussion of the brain at the base of the skull; William Ehnerd was cut on the forehead, and his shoulder wrenched; Charles Themel received injuries to the back; Charles Sherlock suffered severe bruises about the face and body, and Mr. Greenfield's chest was crushed, with broken ribs and scalp injuries. The car was a mass of wreckage.

Lifetime of Music
At the L'Anse hospital, Mr. Greenfield regained consciousness at short intervals, and talked with members of the drum and bugle corps who remained at his bedside. To the last, his interest was in his music and in the success of the drum corps of which he had been acting as director.

"Now I can't help you boys," he said, "but you keep right on with your practices. Keep right after it and make a good showing every time."

Born at Murton, England, June 24, 1875, Mr. Greenfield came of a family of musicians. His father was the leader of British army bands which saw service in India, South Africa, Gibraltar and other colonial possessions. Taking up music when about five years old under his father's tutelage, Mr. Greenfield was playing in the regimental band at the age of 10. When he was 18, he tired of army life and came to America. He secured employment with the Ninth Regiment National Guard band at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and also played in theatres of that city. After three years in this country he returned to England in 1897, but remained only a few months. He was a member of the first band to greet Admiral Dewey on his triumphal return from Manila.

Played With Circuses
Shortly afterward, Mr. Greenfield started as a trouper, playing with a number of famous shows and circuses, including the Nickel Plate Harris Shows, Buffalo Bill, Miller Bros, 101 Ranch, Barnum & Bailey, Sells Floto, John Robinson's, and Ringlings. After quitting the road, he directed a band and taught music at Benton, Ill., and was married there 28 years ago. A victim of hay fever, he decided to try the north country, and took charge of a band at Thier River Falls, Minn. Musicians instructed by Mr. Greenfield now number among the leading members of the profession in the country.

He came to Escanaba in 1917 to direct the Escanaba Municipal band, and except for three years spent in Crystal Falls, and a visit to England with his wife to visit their parental homes and Mr. Greenfield's aged mother, was a permanent resident of Escanaba from that time.

Several local musical organizations owe their success to the directorial ability of Mr. Greenfield, who gave all of his spare time to help others in the field of music. He was the composer of several popular band numbers, and one of his marches, "Escanaba Hustler," won the praise of John Philip Sousa, world famous bandmaster, with whom the local director enjoyed a personal acquaintance. "A Home Temple" is another number composed by Mr. Greenfield which has been widely used throughout the country.

Aided Young Musicians
Some of his local musical connections included: Director of Escanaba Municipal band, Gladstone City band, Escanaba Legion drum and bugle corps, Masonic orchestra, Gas House Trio; organizer of the Escanaba Ladies' band, and Escanaba Boys' band, which later developed into the high school band,

SOLONS REPLY TO COMMISSION

Controversy Over Judicial Nominations Breaks Anew

BY FANCIS M. STEPHENSON
Washington, June 8 (AP)—Senators spoke back today to the attack by the law enforcement commission upon political interference by the senate in the selection of federal district attorneys.

Senator Walsh, of Montana, ranking Democrat on the judiciary committee, said "If the senate is to be accused of injecting politics into the selection of federal appointees and particularly district attorneys, it may be reported that politics are rarely absent in the nomination of them by the executive."

"Why assail the senate or senators in such a matter and exempt from like criticism the president who has sole power of appointment?" he asked.

Bingham Replies
Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, defended the right and the practice of senators in recommending appointments to the judiciary and insisted that the senators were in a better position than others to know the best qualified men in their states and were held responsible for the appointments.

Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, turned the criticism back to the commission. He said: "That indictment could have come in better grace from a commission that hadn't thought itself to be a political smoke screen for this administration's failure to enforce the law."

The commission's attack upon the senate brought into the open the conflict between a considerable group of the senate and the executive over the making of appointments.

President Hoover at the outset of the administration announced a policy of independence in judicial nominations. However, it was not long before pressure was brought to bear from the senate, principally from the Republican regulars, for more attention to their recommendations for judicial appointments.

MONEY FAILED TO PUT PARTY LEADER AHEAD

side matters in the Democratic party, the local leaders, are not beholden to Mr. Raskob. It's one of the paradoxes of politics that the leaders are courteous and friendly with the "Angels" but in party decisions they do as they please. Mr. Raskob with all his financial help didn't have the power to commit the Democratic national gathering here last winter to a program on prohibition which he outlined. Mr. Raskob may have a "mortgage" but it isn't convertible into anything tangible and no financial contributor ever got much out of any political party, which fact has been pretty well advertised among those who have money and is one of the reasons why money raising in politics isn't what it used to be for Republicans or Democrats.

Mr. Voorheis said no decision was reached at the conference, the final action being left with Judge Moll and the present jury.

Filipino Houseboy Confesses Murder

New York, June 8 (AP)—A Filipino houseboy—a youth with a cauliflower ear—described in detail today how he stabbed Dr. George Edward Deely to death last Tuesday when the Brooklyn specialist surprised him robbing the Deely mansion in Brooklyn.

Captured in Philadelphia and brought here by a ruse, the physician's former servant confessed, re-enacted the death struggle and was indicted and held for trial, all within a few hours.

County Prosecutor Pleads Not Guilty

Youngstown, O., June 8 (AP)—Prosecutor Ray L. Thomas of Mahoning county today pleaded not guilty to charges of bribery, embezzlement, blackmail, intimidation and other offenses when arraigned before Judge Harry W. Jewell of Delaware, sitting in Mahoning county common pleas court.

County Commissioner Albert Cooper, former commissioner Wade C. Christy and Attorney David Shermer pleaded not guilty to charges of bribery.

Shermer, Thomas Ryan, Joseph Hannon, Attorney K. H. Powell and former commissioner Griffith Jones entered motions to quash indictments of bribery against them. Thomas will go on trial Monday.

New Sewage Plant At Jackson Prison Granted Approval

Marquette, Mich., June 8 (AP)—The state prison commission today approved plans for the construction of a new sewage disposal system at the Michigan state prison at Jackson and decided to draft a resolution to the governor and the administrative board asking that a similar plant be installed at the branch prison here.

Work on the Jackson prison's plant will be started at once. The commission plans to ask the state for $20,000 from the general fund for a sewage disposal plant at the branch prison. Walter F. Gries, of Marquette, a member of the commission, suggested that two cell blocks of the branch prison be reconstructed as four-tier units. The present units are three tiers high.

Cherry Fruit Fly Makes Appearance

East Lansing, Mich., June 8 (AP)—Initial emergence this year of the cherry fruit fly, greatest enemy of western Michigan cherry growers, was reported today by Professor R. H. Pettit, Michigan State college entomologist.

The fruit fly emerged at Gobles, Van Buren county, June 5, according to advices reaching Professor Pettit. He recommended that growers in that vicinity begin their spraying program not later than next Saturday. The pest generally is seen at Gobles earlier than in other observation posts in the state.

Northern Baptists Uphold Prohibition

Kansas City, June 8 (AP)—The Northern Baptist convention reaffirmed its advocacy of prohibition and world peace today and uttered a protest against denial of citizenship to those who refuse to bear arms in defense of the nation during wartime.

In resolutions adopted at the closing sessions the convention pictured armament as a medium which "inevitably will create suspicion and fear among all the nations and diminish rather than increase the security of the United States."

The convention urged entrance of the United States into the World Court.

Federal Forester Outlines Scope of Work to Escanaba Rotary Club

Leslie Dean, superintendent of the Hiawatha and Marquette national forests in the upper peninsula, yesterday told members of the Escanaba Rotary club a most interesting story of a tremendous project that has been undertaken by the federal government in this section of Michigan. The Hiawatha National forest, a portion of which lies in Delta county, now comprises 271,000 acres while the Marquette National forest is made up of 292,000 acres. Both forest reserves are being added to each year and at the present time 45,000 additional acres are under actual contract for purchase and an additional 65,000 acres is in the process of being appraised for purchase.

The scope of the work undertaken by the federal government in the peninsula, together with administration and development planned for the future, were fully explained by Mr. Dean yesterday and made up one of the most interesting stories ever given before the Escanaba Rotary club.

In his address, Mr. Dean told of the precautions being taken by the government foresters to guard against forest fires, called by him the most dangerous enemy to reforestation. He told of the government's plans for the construction of 234 miles of roadway, through the national forest tract, providing a highway that will touch every square mile of the reserve, making it possible to rush fire fighting equipment and men to any point at which a fire may break out.

The speaker told of the plans of the forestry department for replanting with trees all portions of the tracts that have been denuded by recurring fires and asserted it to be the belief of the department that within 30 years the project would be self-supporting. Twenty-five per cent of the annual revenues derived from the selective cutting of timber in the national forests is paid into the treasury of the county from which the timber was cut and predicted a future steady source of revenue from this feature of the work.

The speaker also told of plans for developing certain sections for the general use of the public, for recreation and called attention to the fact that only the regular state game and fish laws prevail in the government owned forests and streams and insisted that every effort is to be made to attract large numbers of tourists, as well as local residents to these forest reserves each year.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT
Spencer Tracy, who made an auspicious start in talking pictures not long ago in John Ford's comedy of prison life, "Up The River," demonstrates that his success in that picture was no accident with his fine work in "Quick Millions," which had its premiere showing last night at the Delft Theatre.

This picture, an up to the minute story of quick riches, and big business, is made to order for Tracy, who takes advantage of his every opportunity in his portrayal of "Bugs" Raymond. Driving ambition and the conniving with certain people make "Bugs" the most powerful figure in the commercial, social and public affairs of his city. Everything runs smoothly until he falls in love with the sister of the man he forced to accept him as a partner. She refuses to accept him. But his old companions turn on him also for going hi-hat.

Sally Ellers is excellent as the girl who helped "Bugs" make his climb from the gutter. Warner Richmond is satisfactorily menacing as Tracy's right-hand man. Marguerite Churchill was never more charming than in her present role. Rowland Brown, author of "Doorway to Hell," directed.

Parachute Jumper Saved by Member Of Arctic Patrol

Lieut. Austin A. Straubel, U. S. A., one of the members of the Arctic Patrol squadron which stopped in Escanaba during its winter maneuvers a couple years ago, is credited with saving the life of an army parachute jumper at Chanute Field at Rantoul, Ill., Straubel's home is in Green Bay, Wis. He formerly was stationed at Selfridge Field.

The story of his exploit follows:

"The pages of Chanute Field's history, already crammed with a multitude of air thrillers had an addition today about Private Harold R. Osborne's failure to pass his parachute finals.

"He jumped all right. But he swung from the tail of a struggling airplane for almost an hour before he had a chance to use the second parachute which he had strapped to his back.

"Yesterday, graduation day,

Osborne and a companion, also a novice, strapped on two parachutes, stepped into the cockpit of an army biplane, waved nervously to their superiors, and roared off the field.

Two thousand feet over the field, Osborne's companion was given the signal by the pilot, Lieut. Howard E. Engler. He stepped out, counted ten, pulled the rip cord, and floated gently to earth.

A minute or so later, Lieut. Engler nudged to Osborne. The private stuck a foot over the side was suddenly overcome by the well-known "titters," yanked his rip cord without further ado—and started places without even jumping.

"The big skirt, blown by the propeller blast, hooked over the student 20 feet below the plane which suddenly went into a series of wild capers, as Engler struggled to wind up his stabilizer and get the ship on even keel.

"The field's siren screamed. Ambulances took out across the time, trailing the plane each time it turned. A crowd gathered.

"Lieut. A. A. Straubel rushed to the camp's kitchen, got a paring knife, tied to a sand bag, on the end of a rope, tossed it into a pursuit plane, and took off. For half an hour he jockeyed his smaller plane until Osborne could catch the paring knife as it swung by him on the sand bag as Straubel flew dangerously close to the biplane.

"Then Osborne calmly cut himself loose, started falling—this time counted ten, and pulled the rip cord of his auxiliary parachute.

"On a muddy field south of the air field his fellow students found him sitting in the mud, still patting the ground with his hands, and murmuring: "good old earth—good old earth."

SENIORS HEAR REV. J. GROSSA

Baccalaureate Service at H. S. Sunday Is Well Attended Comparing the entrance of the class of 1931 into life's activities with the launching of a ship upon an ocean, using the class motto, Rev. Joseph Grossa, pastor of the First Baptist church, delivered a splendid address Sunday evening before a large audience at the baccalaureate service held in the high school auditorium.

Neither knowledge, might, nor success in themselves are worthy or fit purposes, ideals, or aims, Rev. Grossa stated. Rather, an ideal taken from Jehovah 9: 23-24, is far more worthy of serious consideration.

"A Worthy Ideal 'Thus saith the Lord: Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might, let not the rich man glory in his riches: But let him who glorieth in this, that he understand and knoweth Me, that I am the Lord and exercise loving kindness, judgement, and righteousness in the earth, for in these things I delight, saith the Lord.'"

Other Extra-Curricular Activities Make Up Deficit That extra curricular activities practically paid for themselves was indicated in the annual financial report of the Manistique high school student association released yesterday. Statistics on track receipts and disbursements are not complete because no figures have been received as yet in regard to the Iron Mountain trip which was made last Saturday.

Athletics, football and basketball, show a loss of $101.75 in comparison to a gain of $149.39 in last year's report. Football, despite an otherwise successful season, indicated a loss of $136.73 as compared with a gain of $5.10 in the season previous. Basketball receipts exceeded disbursements by $34.95, although the 1929-30 season showed a net gain of $143.29.

The greatest financial success of the year was the high school opera, "Miss Cherryblossom," which put $141.76 into the school coffers. Debating, despite the fact it was concerned with the most interesting subject worked on in years, indicated a loss of $134.25, a trifle better than $7 less than the loss showed the year before. Oratory and declamation contests show expenses amounting to $13.57.

Howett, new secretary-treasurer of the Cripple Children's commission and three nurses will arrive in Newberry on Thursday, June 11, and prepare to conduct the clinic for crippled children at the community building.
