Peninsula's Wild Life Getting Used To Human Beings

Newberry, June 24 (Special)—Wild life of the upper peninsula appears to be getting used to humans, if one judges by the numbers of animals who stand beside the road to watch cars pass. This year, more than usual, the furred folks of the woods have allowed themselves to be observed and have even put on little sets of their own as though enjoying the sensation they can create.

Of course the deer are the most delightful to watch. There is something so graceful and lovely in the manner of their appearance and disappearance that the tourist is especially pleased if he can see a "real wild deer." Just at dusk is a good time to see them.

"Bank beavers" who live in caves under the shores of ponds and streams are thought by some woodsmen to be less ambitious and inferior members of the tribe. They have been found almost all over the peninsula and often in the same pond or stream with the housebuilders.

The open season on beaver for next fall will be welcomed not only by trappers and fur dealers but also by farmers and road men. The animals have such engineering ambitions for dam building that they flood fields and undermine highways. A few years ago a road truck broke through into a Touch your Adam's Apple with your finger. You are actually touching your larynx—this is your voice box—it contains your vocal cords. When you consider your Adam's Apple, you are considering your throat—your vocal chords.

When a lawyer makes a statement before a jury he backs it up with sound evidence and facts. Here are the facts. Certain harsh irritants, present in all raw tobaccos—which are expelled by LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process—are sold by us to manufacturers of chemical compounds. In other words, the removal of these irritants in the manufacture of LUCKY STRIKE is not a mere laboratory procedure for the purpose of getting an advertising phrase—it is a definite and vitally important process in rendering LUCKY STRIKE Cigarettes less irritating than other cigarettes. Remember—LUCKY STRIKE comes to you after certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos have been expelled through the exclusive "TOASTING" Process. Offer $1000 Reward.
Iron River—A reward of $1,000 was offered today for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the bombing of the R. C. Mahon home last Friday night.

The board of supervisors, meeting in Crystal Falls yesterday, authorized the reward. Sheriff Waite was instructed to advertise the reward, and the money will be placed in his custody.

County and city officials alike are conducting a thorough investigation into the occurrence. According to Sheriff Waite, nothing will be left undone to bring the inquiry to a successful conclusion. The public is invited to refer to the act, which may have resulted in death for some member of the Mahon family. The bomb was tossed on the ground near the southwestern corner of the house, and two of the Mahon children sleep in the room immediately above on the second story.

Automobile Accident.
Pleokford—Mrs. H. W. Lough and six children were safe in Pleokford today after they escaped through a window of their car submerged in the water of Nunn's Creek, 16 miles south of here, last night.

Mrs. Lough and her six children were driving from Detroit to DeTour where they were to join their husband and father, who is in the lighthouse service. A daughter, Ruth, 14, was at the wheel of the car. She lost control and the small sedan crashed through the bridge approach and into the water. A glass was broken in its plunge into the water, and it was through this broken window that the seven occupants escaped.

Peninsula Group Picks Up Tips On Wisconsin Jaunt

Delta county representatives taking part in the recent dairy tour through Wisconsin, noted several outstanding farm practices on successful farms visited by the 50 Upper Peninsula travelers. Among their observations were the following:

1. Every farm visited that had a good herd of dairy cows had developed them through some form of testing association work.
2. All good dairy herds were headed by a good bull with good production records back of him.
3. Practically every farm visited used sweet clover as a pasture crop, or at least had pasture good enough so that the cow could eat her fill in a couple of hours.
4. Every farm visited, showed that the farmer was supplying practically all of the feed for his cows on his own farm with the possible exception of some high protein feed.
5. Land that was producing bumper crops had either lots of barnyard manure and complete fertilizer or sweet clover plowed down with commercial fertilizer.
6. Alfalfa used almost as the only hay crop.

The situation was summed up by one of the county agents visited, in this way, large crops, high producing cows and good management was the only way the farm could be made to produce a satisfactory living under present conditions.

War Declared On Worm and Hopper

With the growing season well under way, Delta county farmers and truck gardeners are finding cutworms, cabbage worms, grass hoppers and other insects on the job ready to put a crimp in their crops. County farm agent J. E. Turner has already received a number of calls regarding insect control, and is urging early action against the plant enemies through the use of poison baits and sprays.

Cabbage worms are sure to appear before the season is over. Before the cabbages form heads, one can use a dust of arsenate of lead or calcium arsenate mixed with gypsum. Mix thoroughly 5 ounces of the poison with 6 pounds of gypsum. This can be dusted on the cabbages thru a coarse cloth.

In using poisonous dusts on the cabbage be sure that none of it drifts over on beets, lettuce or other vegetables or parts of plants that are going to be used for food.

After the heads have formed poisonous dusts are unsafe to use and one should then use a dust made by mixing one part of hellebore with four parts of cheap flour. Dust this from time to time as the worms appear. Hellebore is a poison that decomposes rather quickly and after a few days is gone, so it is safe to use during the later stages of growth.

86,000 MILES Here's an endurance record that speaks for RIVERSIDE Quality. The tire shown above was sent us by Mr. J. H. Ralston of Delano, California, as an expression of his satisfaction with RIVERSIDE service. Over all kinds of roads, and in all kinds of weather, this sturdy RIVERSIDE clicked off mileage. Twenty thousand, fifty thousand, seventy-five thousand miles—and still going strong! And at last, after his RIVERSIDE Cord had covered better than 86,000 miles, Mr. Ralston sent it back to Ward's as an example of RIVERSIDE endurance.

WARD'S RIVERSIDES are Turning in Amazing Mileage Records All Over America! . . . 42,000, 68,000, 86,000 MILES!

AFTER all, you buy a tire for just one thing—and that's MILEAGE. And you do get A MILEAGE when you buy a Riverside. Note the tire above that covered 86,000 miles. And Mr. C. A. Puariea of Portland, Ore., writes us about four Riversides that have covered 42,000 miles and are still in use. Mr. R. H. Easter of Elma, Washington, reports a Riverside in use every day on a school bus covered 68,000 miles. These three examples are but typical of the scores of letters and reports we are constantly receiving on Riverside performance. These three testimonials came to us unsolicited—they were not bought at a price!

No wonder jealous tire makers and dealers are becoming alarmed over the tremendous swing of tire buyers to Riversides. The most unfair and bitter tactics ever known in the tire industry are being used today to fight Ward's Riversides. Advertising has appeared all over the country in which mail order tires are referred to as "mongrels." Unfair comparison charts are being published and displayed by competitors. Second line tires are being offered under nationally known tire names at the same prices as first quality Riversides—BUT THEY CAN'T BEAT RIVERSIDE PERFORMANCE, AND THAT'S WHAT COUNTS, and that's what the customer wants.

We'll Match Riversides . . . on the Road . . . Against ANY Tire Made and We'll Beat it in Price!

Riverside tires are one of the best known in America. They have been sold for 19 years. They are made by one of the largest tire companies in the world. They are built to the most rigid specifications known. They are the finest quality it is possible to produce. They are backed by a guarantee that is without limit as to time or mileage. AND THEY SELL FOR LESS THAN ANY FIRST QUALITY NATIONALLY ADVERTISED TIRE ON THE MARKET! These sound like sensational claims. But they're FACTS. Montgomery Ward & Co., one of the largest merchandising institutions in the world, now in its 59th year in business, stands back of every claim made in its advertisements. Note this—the nationally advertised tires offered you at the same prices as Riversides are NOT the first quality tires of the manufacturers who make them—but their second quality tires—put on the market to meet Riverside prices. So, always compare qualities as well as prices. The table at the right lists some of the best known first quality tires that DO compare with Riversides in quality—YOU COMPARE THE PRICES!

COMPARE

Here are some leading makes of tires that are similar in quality to our 4-ply Riversides, and the published list prices:

Lyrics of Life WHEN SCHOOL IS OVER "Well, school is over," so they say. They come and put their books away. Exams are over, they have passed. And so they're through with school at last. Or so they say—and so I thought. When there was nothing teachers taught That I would ever need to know. Yes, so they think, and I thought so.

Lyrics of Life (continued) Like them I thought that school was through. And no more studying to do. And yet I find at every turn That learning is to learn to learn. The problems that had bothered one Were not all over, just begun. Life has its scholar and its fool. For life is just another school.

Lyrics of Life (continued) No patient teacher will explain. Now our own brain and our own brain Must work the problem out alone. The answer hidden, rule unknown. We now must turn from book and text. From each-old problem to the next. Now school is over, so they say; They really start to school today.

HEART of LIANE

CHAPTER I THE pavement in West 58th street burned under the soles of Liane Barrett's thin shoes as she crossed in the direction of the apartment building she called home. Tall it was, its dirty yellow brick facade laced with the unimaginative detail of innumerable fire escapes. Liane carried a limp paper bag in one hand. In this were the rolls for lunch. The curve of her left arm embraced a package containing lettuce, a few tomatoes and a jar of prepared salad dressing.

Up in the box-like room which served the Barretts as combination living and dining quarters the air had a dead, stifling quality. One of those much discussed early heat waves had descended on the city before Park Avenue-ites had even contemplated sending their down comforters to the cleaners. The women's magazines were already printing plenty of information about "lending that summery appearance" to the city apartment but the Barretts had neither the time nor the money to squander on such refinements of living. The three-room flat which Liane shared with her mother was sketchedly furnished with tables and chairs bought at auction rooms, most of them now disguised with a gaudy coat of lettuce green paint. It was a brave little place. The chintz at the windows hung rather dejectedly like a flag at half mast, but it was easy to see that, when new, its bird and butterflies had been gay. Soot and rain had wreaked a certain havoc on it.

Liane, 18, tall and lithe as a young Venus, now threw her red hair bundles on the drop-leaf table and herself into a wicker chair. She then announced, "I'm dead!" in a voice surprisingly vital. Indeed the girl looked amazingly alive on this exhausting day. Her bronze-gold hair, allowed to grow shoulder length, was caught in an engaging knot at the nape of her neck. It curled and scalloped itself about a face the color of a sun-kissed peach. Her thin dress fitted her charmingly and, since it was sleeveless, lent an air of fictitious coolness. "I'm dead," Liane continued, catching up her parcels, and going into the kitchen. Here she surveyed with some distaste the

WHEN SCHOOL IS OVER "Well, school is over," so they say. They come and put their books away. Exams are over, they have passed. And so they're through with school at last. Or so they say—and so I thought. When there was nothing teachers taught That I would ever need to know. Yes, so they think, and I thought so. Like them I thought that school was through. And no more studying to do. And yet I find at every turn That learning is to learn to learn. The problems that had bothered one Were not all over, just begun. Life has its scholar and its fool. For life is just another school. No patient teacher will explain. Now our own brain and our own brain Must work the problem out alone. The answer hidden, rule unknown. We now must turn from book and text. From each-old problem to the next. Now school is over, so they say; They really start to school today.

"I'll have to yell at Tony as I go by this afternoon. "Don't say 'yell,' precious," Cass demurred. She used the precise diction which usually caused her to be mistaken for an Englishwoman. Much to her delight, she had been born in Syracuse.

"Liane said, "I'll scream at him then." "Lordy, I hate to think of that long afternoon at Willabaugh's," the girl went on. "My feet do ache so and it is so hard to sell anything to the terrible women who are just looking!"

HER mother nodded in sympathy. "I know, my pet. It's dreadful, but when Mrs. Cronin spoke to me about the part-time work this week I thought we'd better snatch at it. After all, it's only afternoons and you can put by a bit of money for later." "I know I ought to be glad of the chance," Liane sighed, sipping her tea. "Somehow I can't get excited about it."

Cass was 45 years old, still slim, still faintly elegant. In a kindly light she could pass for 35. Not at this exact moment, perhaps. In her faded blue dress, gowned with her hair screwed up on top of her head so that the roots showed dark and the ends unaccountably golden. No, today Cass looked all of her 45 years. But the light was harsh and Cass was tired, beset by many worries. The summer, hane of the player's life, yawned empty ahead of her. Always before this she had managed somehow to pack Liane off to the country. But there was no such prospect this year. Now Liane was out of school, out of that convent to which Cass had so astonishingly managed to send her all these years, and summer in the torrid small apartment stretched before them. Summer with no job in prospect, rent to pay, food to buy. No wonder Cass looked troubled. Her season at New Art was nearly over.

She could hear Liane clattering in the kitchen. The tap hissed and spluttered, drawers were lustily opened and shut, cutlery clattered on an unseen tin tray. Presently Liane appeared in the doorway, balancing that tray on one hand in burlesque of an experienced waitress. She said, "Luncheon's served, mother," and put it down noisily on the green table.

Cass pushed aside the billows of yellow cloth and got up stiffly. "Looks grand," she yawned, pulling up a shaky chair. "That's the last of the ice," Liane complained, shaking a glass of tea.

asphalt was again a shocking reality. She traversed the few steps to the stage door feeling actually giddy. "I'm not going to be able to stand many more seasons of this," Cass thought prophetically. "My heart's not what it used to be." She felt a chill of fear. Her heart... And then, what about Liane?

Liane with all the world before her. Liane, large-eyed, trusting, and 18. Cass Barrett knew that world well enough to feel that a young girl should not be required to fight it alone.

Nevertheless, she entered the stage door with a smile on her lips. It was the smile of the good trouper. Besides, worry made one look old. That was the one thing Cass could not afford to do. Rehearsal had not yet started. She was glad to be early and have time to catch her breath in the dusty coolness.

"Got your costume finished?" chirped Elsie Minter, the ingenue, who stood in the wings greedily making away with an ice cream cone. Cass nodded. She opened the box, shook out the yellow folds. "Why, it's lovely," Elsie admired. "You've got the—I don't know—the feeling!"

Cass smiled back at her. She liked Elsie. The little thing seemed friendly. There were so many cliques in the New Art. So much jealousy? You never knew who your friends were, but Elsie appeared to be genuine.

Cass had been with the New Art for three seasons now. It was not exciting, a sort of stock company really. But it was safe and sure. It meant bread and butter for nine months of the year. She was grateful for that. She hoped she would be asked to come back next season, but—well, she didn't know.

by his coterie. As always there was a small stir at his entrance. Nods, bows, sycophantic smiles. The rehearsal began.

"Good Lord, Elsie!" he was imploring a few moments later. "Get a little fire into that, will you? You're a courtesan, remember, a Florentine woman. You're jealous. You're madly, insanely jealous! You've got blood in your veins, not milk. Let's have a little fire, a little real feeling. That's all I ask."

Cass reflected sardonically that it was not hard to believe Vernon had once directed movies. The manner was unmistakable. Cass had been in pictures herself once for a brief space.

"Now that'll be all for today," Wells boomed presently. "As you all know, we're closing next week. Haven't quite shaped up plans for next season, but we'll talk that over later." He waved his hand in a signal of dismissal. Cass looked fearfully across at the others. They were all talking, laughing animatedly. Perhaps they had already been asked to sign up for next year.

"Miss Barrett, just a minute—!" She turned to see Wells' secretary beckoning her. "Vernon would like to see you upstairs for a minute."

Cass' heart beat thickly, pounding so it almost suffocated her. She was being let down, then? Vernon Wells waited just outside the door of his office. He was talking to a woman Cass had never seen before. A big, high-bosomed woman wearing an old style white embroidered dress.

OLSON ASSUMES DUTIES AT PARK

Recreational Director Outlines Playground and Beach Work

Joel Olson, who arrived yesterday from Ann Arbor, will assume his duties as recreational director and lifeguard at the Ludington park and beach today. He was graduated this week from the University of Michigan, where he took a course in physical education.

Mr. Olson announces that he will give swimming instructions daily, from 10 to 11:30 o'clock mornings, and from 2:30 to 4 o'clock afternoons. Parents are urged to send their children in the morning for the daily lessons, so that the afternoons can be devoted to the older students.

A course in life saving work is also planned under the supervision of the American Red Cross life saving division, which would send an examiner here later in the summer to hold tests and confer badges to the successful swimmers. Such a course automatically establishes a staff of volunteer lifeguards on the beach, which gives more assurance of public safety.

An aquatic carnival, in which boys and girls will compete in swimming races and diving exhibitions, will also be arranged later on.

Besides the water sports, Recreational Director Olson plans to conduct a comprehensive playground program, including a diamond ball tournament for boys from 12 to 15 years of age, junior tennis tournament for boys from 11 to 14, and a horseshoe pitching tournament for boys from 12 to 14. The latter event will be staged as a part of the Escanaba Daily Press meet.

Entries in the diamond ball tournament should be submitted to Director Olson at the municipal bathhouse before Saturday, July 4. The opening games will be played on Monday, July 6.

Based on 1929 prices, cotton goods, such as sheeting, curtain materials, blankets, and toweling shows an average decrease of 33 per cent below prices for July, 1929, with approximately 50 per cent of this drop coming since July, 1930. Men's athletic underwear prices reveal a drop of 37 per cent as an average; work shirts and allied lines, 35 per cent; and certain cotton print goods have declined to an average of 39 per cent.

In silk goods, women's hosiery shows an average decline of 37 per cent below 1929 prices, with price drops since July, 1929, being equal to those during the year preceding. Based on the 1929 buying power of the dollar, the present purchasing power is equivalent to $1.72 in many of the silk items.

The purchasing power of the 1931 rayon dollar is equal to that of $1.55 in 1929. Wool goods reveal a decline of 31 per cent as the average for blankets since 1929, and 40 per cent on bathing suits. The average decline in prices of wool merchandise shown for June compared with prices for the same or equivalent items in 1929, is 33.1-3 per cent.

In woolen goods, one dollar this year equals in purchasing power $1.50 in 1929. In certain shoe lines, the average drop in prices has been 17 per cent.

much more than a year ago. Furthermore, they are prolonging the depression by holding back. Economists agree that when people buy freely, so that more merchandise will be needed, there will be more jobs for the unemployed, and the situation will right itself.

Naturally, we Escanaba Merchants want your business. But we don't expect you to spend money for altruistic reasons, even though you will be glad that your buying helps create jobs. The real reason you're going to spend money now is because you are going to get extraordinary bargains in Escanaba's most dramatic values in more than a decade.

Full Electrical Line
HARRY W. NEEDHAM—If it's electrical, you'll find it in Escanaba's electrical shops. The array of electric refrigerators, clocks, oil burners, lamps and all the smaller items in the appliance lines testify to the completeness of the stocks carried by this group of Escanaba merchants. Prices in these lines have followed the general downward trend and today's shopper will find that his dollar will bring him far greater values than have been offered in recent years.

Full Jewelry Line
MATT PETERSEN—In cooperation with the retail establishments of Escanaba in making the June Clearance sale an outstanding success, we wish to point out to the public several complete stocks of high grade jewelry, clocks, silverware, and many other items that can be found in this city.

We believe the Escanaba jewelers are keeping pace with the other merchants in their offerings of attractive specials and unusual bargains during this sale.

Fire Hardware Stores
A. H. GROESBECK—As a shopping center for all lines of hardware and sporting goods, Escanaba is unsurpassed as it can boast of the best assorted stocks of these goods to be found. Five well planned stores and good management puts Escanaba in a place all by itself. The buying public is urged to look over Escanaba's hardware stocks for future purchases.

Sports Shoes Popular
J. J. MANNING—Each succeeding season brings forth more and more delicate feminine footwear. Now come fabrics sheer and light, to match or contrast to the pastel frocks of summer. This is a big sport season. Black, white, sea sand, reptiles and black and white combinations in pumps, ties, cut-outs and sandals are exceptionally good. Suede cloth is popular, with white kid trimmings—natural duckling and white kid are favored.

Dollar Worth More
C. H. GESSNER—June Clearance sales present an opportunity that no thrifty and style conscious shopper of northern Michigan should pass by. The 1931 dollar buys 40 per cent more merchandise than the 1926 dollar. In addition, styles were never more attractive and more practical. Escanaba merchants look forward to three of the largest days' business in Escanaba's history.

Smart Men's Clothes
BEN F. YOUNG—"What the well dressed young man will wear in 1931" can be easily ascertained in any one of Escanaba's smart men's shops. Never before in my experience as a clothier have we offered such phenomenal values in men's wear and accessories. Smart clothes at bargain prices will greet the shopper on every hand.

Phenomenal Bargains
E. E. LARSON—Present price levels on staple materials show a sharp increase in dollar buying power. Retail prices in cotton, silk, rayon and wool materials are from 33 to 50 per cent lower than July, 1929. On certain merchandise prices are at low points not equalled in the past twenty years. Every local establishment has made special preparations for the June Clearance sale and the public will be greatly benefited by taking advantage of these phenomenal bargains.

Large Shoe Stocks
VICTOR FILLION—Some of our stores and departments are contributing much towards making Escanaba the Shopping Center of the Upper Peninsula.

Chief among the reasons for this is the fact that Escanaba offers more and larger shoe stocks with a greater diversity of types and styles than any other town in this great territory. Further, it is a well known fact that the standards of departments is far above the average for this district.

Undertakers at Hull, England, have refused to supply hearse for paupers' funerals because coffins are being made in the poor-law institutions by direct law at a saving of $13.75 to the officials.

Many Food Bargains
N. T. STEPHENSON—Escanaba's food shops offer a galaxy of bargains for the 1931 Clearance sales never before approached. The grocers and butchers of Escanaba carry the most complete line of foodstuffs available and a visit to our stores will convince you that your dollar does double duty at the food stores.

Nature,

Makes CAMELS
Mild

HARSH tobaccos require harsh measures, like parching, to make them tolerable to the throat.

But the choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos of which Camels are blended are naturally mild and gentle. Parching would only ruin their exquisite flavor and aroma.

No matter where you buy Camels you will find them always in factory-fresh condition. Their rare flavor together with their natural moisture is air-sealed-in by moisture-proof Cellophane. We call it the Humidor Pack.

This protective wrapping is dust-proof, germ-proof and weather-proof. A great boon to the smoker.

No stinging particles of peppery dust to irritate the throat; no brackish smoke from stale tobacco; no burnt tongue from the hot smoke of dried-out cigarettes.

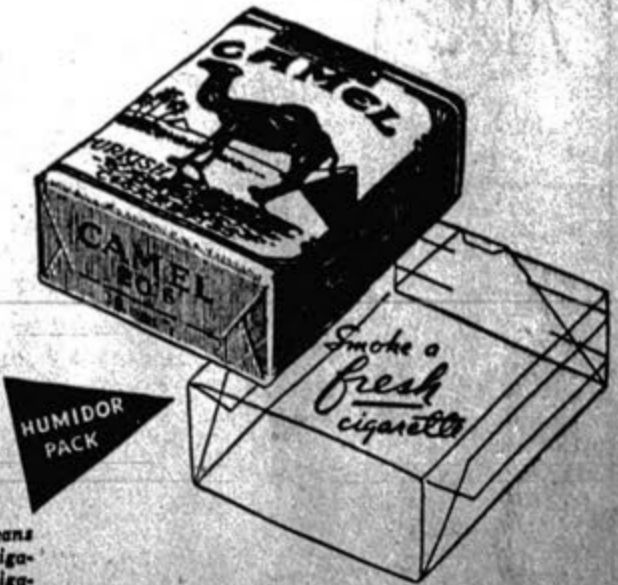

Just the cool, mild fragrance of choice tobaccos expertly blended and properly conditioned.

If you are not a Camel smoker, switch over for just one day. Then leave them—if you can.

Leaving the moisture-proof Cellophane on my Camel package when I open it protects the cigarettes against the odors of powder and perfume

Favorite Recipe Betty Ann

This recipe for a delicious pineapple ice box cake comes from Mrs. Eugene Auger.

One large can grated pineapple. One pint whipping cream. Two pounds vanilla wafers or lady fingers.

One small bottle cherries for garnishing. Line bottom and sides of tort pan with the wafers or lady fingers.

Drain the juice from pineapple. Whip the cream stiff, add the pineapple.

Cover the wafers or lady fingers with cream and pineapple, then add another row of wafers, then another row of pineapple and cream reserving some of the whipped cream for the top.

This is better if made the day before as the longer it is kept in the refrigerator the better it will set.

If you have a dark frock with white lingerie touches which you intend wearing while traveling this summer, make a substitute set of polka dotted silk with the background the color of your outfit, or else a plaid or other figured silk set. You will find it invaluable, as it will stand up under several days wear while your white set is being laundered.

Summer Muffs Worn In Paris

Paris (AP)—Summer muffs to wear with frilly frocks are fashion's latest fancy.

They have no connection with winter's fur designs, however, for they are made of myriads of chiffon petals or frills to match evening gowns.

The wearer thrusts them up on one arm like a huge sleeve when she is dancing.

Three generations of Americans have enjoyed its mellow flavor... its EXTRA quality.

Fords Hand Nortons First Season Loss

The second place Creighton Fords upset the dope bucket Tuesday evening when they administered a 7-4 beating to the hitherto undefeated Norton Specials.

The game was a see-saw affair with the lead shifting back and forth several times. The Fords led by the count in the first inning when they showed a 1-0 lead.

Putting on a game rally in the fourth, the Fords took a one run lead and from then on were never headed.

They took the game to the final frame for good measure. The hitting of Clyde Hutt, who knocked out two homers, featured the game.

The Central Markets maintained their pace at the heels of the Fords by drubbing the Independents, 16-1 on the Westside diamond.

Anniversary Picnic Reveals How Folks Traveled to U. P.

On Sunday, June 21, was held a community picnic at William A. Woods' place in Doyle township, which was attended by 75 people.

As there were no roads it may be of interest to note the line and method of travel in those days. On May 3, 1881, Dougal McGregor and Alvin Wood, father of William A. Wood, met in Saginaw.

They went from Saginaw to Potosky by rail, took stage to Cheboygan and walked to Mackinaw City, arriving too late to catch the ferry, and therefore had to remain there.

On May 8 they set out for Nantawan and then McMillan but as they could not find lodging walked on to John Tait's on North Manistique lake.

They at first thought they would settle here but as Manistique was the county seat they had to come here first to file their claims.

Mr. and Mrs. Magnus Klagstad, Rochester, Minn., have arrived in the city and are occupying their cottage at Indian lake.

Leon Willoughby is leaving today for Manistig to visit Emil Aanderud, formerly of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Rowell and daughter Katherine, Hermansville, have returned to their home after spending the week-end with Mrs. G. Gilmet, North Cedar street, and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Minor, Chippewa avenue, are the parents of a son, Leo John, born Monday.

VALUATION OF COUNTY IS CUT

Equalization Committee Slices $200,000 Off of City's Quota

The assessed valuation of Schoolcraft county for 1931 as fixed by the equalization committee in the two-day quarterly meeting of the board of supervisors held here Monday and Tuesday, was placed at $7,863,340, or $136,173 lower than that of 1930.

As a measure to relieve unemployment in the county, the board authorized the county road commission to spend $6,000 on the township roads which will be taken over by the state after September 1.

The poor commission report submitted by Henry J. Neville showed an alarming increase in county indigent. During the past eight months the report showed that the county had helped approximately 190 families, spending nearly $25,000.

Authorization was also made to the building and grounds committee to advertise for the sale of the Millar property, bids on which will be brought up at the next meeting of the board.

Showing aerial photographs of the territory to be traversed by the new state road to Wetmore, Harry L. Brightman, engineer of surveys of the state highway department, discussed three possible routes which may be laid out.

RIALTO Sooner or later men or women who take love too lightly, who consider romance just an amusing game, are brought face to face with the realities of life.

That, in brief, is the theme of "Daybreak." Dr. Arthur Schnitzler's clever and diverting romance of Vienna before the war which, beginning today, will provide a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle for the appearance of Ramon Novarro at the Rialto theatre.

The hero of "Daybreak" is Lieutenant Willi Kasda, an officer serving his Emperor in the Golden Age of peace, when a young god, when he had no worries or troubles, and no duties except to be a splendid officer and a captivating lover.

ONE-SHIRT ORDER SCORED Poor law functions in London have been harshly administered since the London county council took charge of administering it, was the accusation of Cecil Manning, Socialist member, at a recent council meeting. In siding with Manning, T. J. Blacketter said that at a meeting of one of the districts an aged applicant was granted one shirt, and the committee had the audacity to tell him he must sit in bed while it was washed.

George Lott Eliminated in Wimbledon Tourney

OTHER YANKEE STARS ADVANCE

Shields, Wood, Van Ryn Reach Fourth Round in Net Singles

BY FRANK H. KING.
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
London, June 24 (AP)—Three Americans—Frank X. Shields, Sidney B. Wood, Jr., and John Van Ryn—today won their way to the fourth round of Wimbledon tennis championship play along with seven Britons, two Frenchmen, and one player each from Japan, Austria, Germany and New Zealand.

The only American casualty of the day among the men was George Lott, Jr., who fell before the accurate stroking of England's second ranking player, Harold Lee, 7-5, 7-5.

It was a "midsommer day" on the English calendar but wintry weather came to Wimbledon instead and Lott shivered in defeat along with Elia De Alvarez, of Spain, who was surprisingly upset by Dorothy Round, an unseeded Englishwoman.

Helen Jacobs Wins

With the American trio in the last sixteen were Jean Borotra and Christian Rousseau, of France, H. W. Austin, Fred Perry, Harold Lee, Nigel Sharpe, G. P. Hughes, J. S. Ollif and Ian G. Collins, all of Great Britain, Jiro Satoh, of Japan, C. E. Maitroy, of New Zealand, H. W. Artens, of Austria, and C. N. Von Cramm, of Germany.

Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Calif., took a second round match from Billy Yorke, of England, 6-2, 7-5, and Mrs. Van Ryn won from Mrs. R. E. Haylock, of Great Britain, 6-2, 3-6, 3-6.

The only other American woman to play today—Marjorie Sachs—was defeated by Miss S. K. Johnson, of Great Britain, 6-2, 3-6, 7-5.

Shields had easy sailing in his third round match against E. Nourney, one of Germany's younger players whom he defeated, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2.

Wood drew E. Maier, Spain's leading player, and although he disposed of him in three sets, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, it was a dogfight for several minutes.

Van Ryn defeated M. Metelka, the Austrian who eliminated Watson Washburn, of New York, in the first round, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Most of tomorrow will be devoted to doubles, with Lott and Van Ryn playing E. M. Duplax and R. Rodel while Shields and Wood meet C. G. and J. H. L. Fletcher.

Miss Jacobs will play on the famous center court in the third round of women's singles against Mrs. J. B. Pittman, of England, and Mrs. Harper will meet Mrs. Marshall in a second round match.

Boston Red Sox Defeat Cleveland

Cleveland, June 23 (AP)—The Red Sox took revenge on the Indians in the third game of the series today when Moore held the Tribe to six hits, allowing Boston to win, 7 to 3.

It was a pitchers' duel until the ninth. For eight innings Moore held the Indians to three hits and two runs, while Harder allowed the Sox five hits and three runs.

The Tribe got to Moore for three hits and another run in the ninth, and Harder was yanked in the eighth for a pinch hitter, Ray Thomas, who replaced him.

By the Sox silt the game away with a four-run drive in the final inning.

In the fourth inning, Johnny Burnett was knocked unconscious by a hot bouncer of Berry's bat. He will be out of the game several days with a badly swollen eye.

Score: R. H. E. Boston—010 200 004—7 8 1
Cleveland 091 061 001—3 6 2
Batteries: Moore and Berry; Harder, Thomas and Myatt.

SIXTEEN STRIKEOUTS

Greenless, the hurling genius of the Necos, set the Wells Badgers down with one hit last evening as the Necos stroled on to their fifth victory in the American League, 16 to 2. In addition to cutting heavily into the batting averages of the Badgers, Greenless accounted for sixteen putouts via the strikeout route.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Necos—370 003 3—15 10 1
Badgers—002 000 0—2 1 8

PRINTERS WALLOPED
The Knights of Columbus No. 2 team walloped the Printers last evening by 12 to 5 in an Old Timers' league game. The Knights reaped their biggest harvest in the fourth when they crossed the platter with four of their tallies. Ted Baldwin was touched for 12 safeties.

CONQUERORS WIN

The Conquerors easily defeated the Empogs last evening 13 to 8, after scoring in every inning but the sixth. The Empogs made 13 hits but only registered eight runs while the Conquerors took advantage of eight hits plus walks and errors to total 13 runs.

BAKERS GET REVENGE

The Bakers gathered a full head of steam last evening to get sweet revenge from the Butchers in their third grudge match of the season by tripping the clever fielders, 13 to 11. It was the first victory for Matt Kross' squad and the victory tickled the veteran Baker pilot so much that he issued a standing challenge to meet the Butchers again anytime, anywhere and for anything—or what have you. The Butchers won the second battle, 5 to 4, after the first game had ended in a cloud of uncertainty, both teams claiming victory. It is expected that the teams will hold a "saw-off" battle in the near future.

Score by innings: Butchers—210 602 0—11
Bakers—311 321 2—13
Walch and Swanson; Gunkel and Barbeau.

ENDS IN PROTEST

By an umpire's decision in the ninth inning which is alleged to have turned the tide of battle and which is certain to be taken before the board of control, the Cardinals defeated the West End before a banner crowd last evening, 5 to 3. Umpire Wagenhauser, who ruled the disputed play, contended that the Cardinal man was safe after Pitcher Hamilton of the West End had dropped the ball.

The West End manager vigorously protested and promised to take the case before the board of control of the diamond ball leagues for a formal ruling.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Cardinals—000 180 4—5 2 1
West End—020 001 0—3 5 2
Batteries: West End—Hamilton and Russell; Cardinals—Ballinger and Courier.

BATTING SPREES

The Premiums walloped the Neverweats in good style in an Old Timers' league game, 22 to 4, last evening. The Premiums went on a batting spree in the second inning to bring home an even dozen tallies after collecting four in the first frame.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Neverweats—012 000 1—4 8 0
Premiums 4120 600 0—22 18 0
Batteries: Neverweats—S. Werner and Desmond; Premiums—Christensen and Klein.
Umpires: Beaudin and Pudvin.

COPS WIN BY 15-1

Presenting almost impregnable defense, the Cops took an easy victory from the Yellow Jackets, 11 to 1. Snow allowed the Yellow Jackets seven hits but was given excellent support in the pinches to keep the Jackets far away from home plate on all occasions but one, the first inning, when they scored their lone run.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Cops—016 310 0—11 2 2
Yellow Jackets 100 000 0—1 7 7
Batteries: Cops, Snow and Moberg; Yellow Jackets, LaFleur and Schou.

CHICUBS SPLIT WITH NEW YORK

Giants Win First by 2-0; Chicago Takes Second by 14-10

New York, June 24 (AP)—Baseball ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous at the Polo grounds today as the Giants divided a double header with the Chicago Cubs winning the first 2 to 0 and dropping the nightcap, 14 to 10.

Carl Hubbell pitched brilliant ball for the McGrawmen in the opener, letting the Cubs down with two singles and striking out nine. The Giants made the most of their five off Smith and Root, Ethan Allen accounting for one with a home run.

The second was an old-fashioned slugfest from start to finish with nine pitchers participating. The Cubs got off to a lead by scoring seven times in the second inning, only to have the Giants go in front with a six-run spurge in the fourth. It was settled in the first of the ninth, when the visitors scored six. Hornsby hit his twelfth homer for the Cubs and Ott and Verges for the Giants.

RYDER CUP SQUADRONS OF AMERICA, ENGLAND BEGIN FRIDAY

BY PAUL MICHELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
Scioto Club, Columbus, O., June 24 (AP)—America's battle line for the International Ryder Cup golf matches with England was completed today with the addition of a fighting Ohioan, Denmore Shute.

Shute, regarded as one of the best match players of them all because of his fighting heart and skill to take advantage of the breaks, joined Walter Hagen's team by beating out Frank Welsh of Chicago and Henry Cluel of Bridgeport, Conn., in the 18-hole play-off for the tenth and last place on the team. The Ohioan skinned over the championship Scots course in even par 72 to edge out Walsh by a single stroke after a hard fight that was uncertain until the last putt on the final green.

No sooner had Shute joined his ranks than Sir Walter called his men together and started to do some planning for the international duels, which get underway Friday. Like Charles Whitcombe, captain of the British forces, he refused to make his plans public until tomorrow although he just about had his mind made up as to the procedure of battle in the two-ball foursomes Friday and the singles Saturday.

His intention was that he would try strategy by pairing some of the supposedly weaker players of the American team together against the Britons Friday. Thus his "big shots" would not have to strain so hard in those matches and would be fresher for their singles if all went well Friday. The lineup probably would be Johnny Farrell and Gene Sarazen, Leo Diegel and Al Espino, Wiffy Cox and Billy Burke, and himself and Shute. Horton Smith may get in the two-ball foursomes instead of Shute but it was very doubtful that he would be very off form and Shute is regarded every bit as good a match player.

Stribling Has Fought 297 Battles Although He's Only 26 Years Old

LARGE ENTRY LIST EXPECTED

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
(Ass'd Press Sports Writer)
Geauga Lake, Ohio, June 24 (AP)—There was Dempsey, the colorful dynamic one; Tunney the scholar; and Schmeling the dogged German, first European ever to hold the heavyweight championship.

And if Bill Stribling brings that title back to America the night of July 3 in the Cleveland municipal stadium the prize ring will know another ruler of as strange and contrasting a type as any of these three emperors of boxing's golden reign.

No Marks On Face
He's 26 years old, this handsome, drawing Southerner who fought a light heavyweight champion, Mike McGuire, while still a high school boy in Macon, Ga. He has had more fights than any other heavyweight in all ring history, 297 is the total, and he has won 127 of them by knockouts.

Yet today, as he loafs through the final stages of training for the most important battle of his career, there is not a single mark of the ring on his dark, serious face and he looks like a college junior in a football training camp.

Dempsey was the pal of everyone he met. Tunney would talk for hours of the history and science of the ring, and Schmeling, in his still labored English, will discuss fights and the fight game as long as you want him to. But Stribling just stands and smiles slowly. He says "yes" and "no." And he lets it go at that.

Whitehill Pitches for Detroit; Rally in Eighth Wins

Detroit, June 24 (AP)—An eighth inning rally in which they scored four runs, gave the Tigers a 7 to 5 victory over Washington today in the third game of their series here.

Whitehill pitched for Detroit, allowing 12 hits and walking three men. Brown, who started for Washington showed good form except in the first and eighth innings. In the first inning Detroit scored three runs by means of three singles and muffed fly by Harris. In the eighth Brown passed Walker and allowed Owen and Alexander to double to start the Detroit rally. Hadley taking the mound after Stone grounded out, walked McManus who batted for Koenig. Brower bunted and Alexander beat Kubel's throw to the plate. Hayworth singled McManus for the final run.

Heart of Liane

By MABEL McELLIOTT

keep from making a fool of herself before these people. Who was this Mrs. Cleespaugh, with her jewel-studded handbag and the ridiculous emerald brooch on her preposterous bosom?

"Mr. Wells has been helping us with our little theater group out at Willow Stream," the lady began pompously. "He is directing the company there for the summer and we wondered if you would care to join us. I admired," said Mrs. Cleespaugh, "so much your performance in Romeo and Juliet."

Willow Stream! Like a cinema flashback Cass saw the tree-shaded lanes and blue waters of that little jewel-like Long Island village. It would mean all the difference between life and death for her to have this summer at Willow Stream. What was it the doctor had said? "Ought to get out of the city at any cost." And she had smiled at him ironically, paying her bill. But what about Liane? How could she leave her?

MRS. CLEESPAUGH was babbling on. She spoke of art as a high calling and mentioned $40 a week with infinite casualness. Well, thought Cass, it was not much but it was enough. There would be shaded lanes to walk in of mornings, salt air to breathe deeply. Oh, it was more than enough!

Cass stood up presently. Her own voice sounded unreal to her. "It's too marvelous," she said, unsteadily. "It sounds really perfect." Even her laughter sounded nervous, her little, "I hope I can have my daughter with me," she hazarded. "I should be so glad to have her out of the town heat for the summer."

"Oh, about Liane," said Wells, seeming to remember. "There will have to be a double box of office staff at Willow Stream. We have a girl engaged for the afternoons but I wondered if Liane might not take over the job in the evenings."

"She's inexperienced, but I'm sure she could manage it," Cass told him. "Liane?" Mrs. Cleespaugh's magisterial dark eyes sought Cass.

"My child, she's 15," Cass explained, with that surging of pride which always accompanied her explanation. "Going home she found the city almost endurable in the receding twilight. It was easier to be philosophic about the heat wave when one was shortly moving to the country. She looked at all the bright, clean little shops almost fondly as she passed them. The cheap, effective little dresses in shop windows. Purple and yellow and scarlet sports things. Hats which were so nearly like the creations of Agnes and Descat and Suzanne Talbot. The specious jewelry and shapely, glittering, small shoes. All seemed a promise of better days to come. Cass stopped at a butcher shop near home and bought three lamb chops. Two for Liane, that growing girl. She hummed as she unlocked the door of the apartment."

There was a note on the table. It said, "Liane has gone to dinner with me and some friends. Back about 10." It was signed Molly Cronin.

The spark died in Cass Barrett's heart. She sat down, tired, like an old woman. Liane out with Molly and her crowd! She didn't like it. Molly did well enough as a neighbor, but for Liane to accept her as an intimate hurt Cass cruelly. Molly with her hennaed hair and scarlet fingertips, her laissez-faire. "Some friends," Cass shuddered at this phrase, remembering the men who usually passed her on the stairs looking for Molly's flat. Book-makers in checked suits with huge, synthetic stones in their neckties. Hard looking individuals wearing green hats.

"How could Liane!" Cass murmured to herself. Poor child, it was easy to see why she had gone. Liane had no friends in New York. Molly had probably offered a good time as bait, dancing, delicious food.

CASS set dearly about the business of cooking her chop. She put the other two in the ice box for the next day. All the spice had gone out of her own good news now. She ate, washed up, and began to get ready to return to the theater. How strange and silent the flat seemed without the child!

She was putting on her hat when the doorbell rang. Three long peals.

Cass answered and stood there shaking as a boy in uniform handed her a note. It read:

"Dear Mother: Please come at once to 24th street—I need you."

Cass thought her heart would burst before she reached the subway station. Five steps down, turn, seven steps more. Ah, there was a train just pounding in! Somehow she got the nickel into the slot, somehow she crowded through the turnstile. And now she was praying—oh, God, help me to get there! All the dreadful things she had ever heard of, all the tragic newspaper stories of tragic happenings involving young girls, came into her poor, tortured mind. The other passengers saw only a young-old woman in a plain blue dress, a woman who twisted her handkerchief until it tore. Now Cass was in the street, running, running. "Oh, God, why does my heart pound so! My little girl!" It was a shabby brownstone house in front of which she presently stood, a house as like as possible to others in that row. There had been, she could see, some confusion, now being cleared away. A small knot of letterers. In a boy's mouth, the word "ambulance."

Her knees sagged. She said, timorously, to the officer at the door: "I'm Mrs. Barrett. I had a message from my daughter, to come to this address."

A worn face studied her keenly, somehow kindly. "Ye'll find her back there," said this officer, pointing his big thumb toward the interior of the house. Cass went in. She had never been in such a place. Cass thought it drab and horrible, with its smell of cooking and dusty carpet, its dingy walls and defunct Nottingham curtains. No thrills here, surely! But Liane—where was Liane?

THE woman caught a glimpse of a familiar red hat in the gloom of the back room. She staggered forward. "Liane, child!" she cried. She had the girl in her arms, sobbing.

Cass straightened up. She said to the young policeman standing so sternly near by: "I am her mother. What has happened?" Molly Cronin she ignored.

Shane McDermid eyed her sternly. "Plenty happened! These two were in here tonight with a couple tough boys from downtown. One of the guys pulled a rod an' his partner's in Bellevue with a slug in his chest. Whether he'll live or not I don't know but, alive or dead, it's bad business."

Cass' hand went to her breast automatically in the gesture of terror she had so often used on the stage.

"What's a kid like this," the policeman continued, belligerently, "doin' out with these gorillas?"

"I'm sure I never dreamed—!" Cass' voice was angry too now. "Liane, how could you ever do such a thing?"

She whirled on the man of the law, a new thought terrifying her. "She's not—she's not under arrest? What are you going to do with her?"

"Hold her," said the young man stolidly. Then, more mercifully, he added, "Hold her for a witness. I can and will unless you explain to my satisfaction, ma'am, why a slip of a child like this one is let run the streets at night."

"Oh, I can, officer. I can!" Cass panted. "Liane is never allowed to go out without me and she's a good girl. She really is! Why, she's only out of St. Ann's, up at Peekskill, these two weeks!"

"St. Ann's eh?" mused Shane McDermid, softening. He looked at Liane again. Cass continued, "I know she didn't know what she was getting into! It's only that she's been working so hard—at Willabaugh's, you know. On her feet all day, poor child, and no fun afterward. And then it's been so hot. Everybody does foolish things when it's hot." She was frankly pleading now. "She has so few friends in the city and I suppose she wanted a bit of excitement for once. You know how young girls are—"

"Well, she got excitement, all right," said the policeman, nodding grimly. "And though I'm ashamed to say it, it's my own cousin here that's responsible for dragging her into this." He favored Molly with a baleful stare. "My own flesh and blood," he admitted, nodding his head sorrowfully.

"Can't you let her go now?" Cass pleaded. "I'll give you my name and address. You can call on us if you need us. Only don't give her name to the papers!"

McDermid looked around reflectively. One of his men came to the door, looked in, said "Oke, sergeant," to something McDermid muttered, and went away again. Shane took Molly's arm. "Look ye here," he said, fiercely. "Take this child and her mother out that back door. It leads into a court—some store arcade—and you can get through to 23d street. And all of you say a prayer that boy gets better."

Cass tried to thank him. She couldn't, somehow. He waved them off. To Molly he said meaningfully, "I'll be seen' you!"

WHEN Molly, shamefaced, had taken leave of them Cass, very tired now, turned toward the theater with her daughter. Liane lagged along, casting occasional frightened glances at her mother's white, set face.

"Mother, I'm terribly sorry—!" she began. Cass turned to her. "Don't say another word," she commanded, in a breaking voice. "It's my fault, utterly mine. A child like you, in this town! It's unthinkable. You ought to be petted and coddled and protected, instead of being thrown to the wolves this way. My baby!"

It was better than any sermon. Liane's back straightened. She said, "You're not to say such things, mother. I'm old enough to stand on my own feet. It's not your fault. I feel a beast to have let you in for this."

Cass looked at a clock in a shop they were passing. "Heavens!" she said, in a spent voice. "It's only half-past seven. I feel as if I had been through hours of worry and even now I shall be in time to play. Thank goodness, I'm not in the first scene."

—And that was all. Liane squeezed her arm. "Mother, you're sweet!" she said in a very small voice.

"I'll sit out on the fire escape," she said to Cass, when the latter rushed in to change after the first act. "It's terribly hot out front and I've seen this at least 10 times this season." She wanted to be alone in the dark and the coolness to review the events of this dramatic evening. It didn't seem possible that she, Liane Barrett, could have been involved in such a horrible adventure. Her heart trembled to think of it. She perched on the iron balcony outside the dressing room her mother shared with a muted quality. A fire siren screamed and tore through the night. Somewhere in the flats across the way a baby howled. Taxis rushed through the darkness, their brakes screaming as they drew up at the cross streets. Trolley cars clanged and elevated trains rattled cheerfully along. It was not exactly wrylan quiet but it seemed peace incarnate to the troubled young girl.

She thought: "I wonder why they call it 'the bright face of danger.' To me danger is anything but bright." And she shivered, remembering.

When the performance was over Liane blundered down the stairs looking for Mr. Wells. There was a message for him, the callboy said. He couldn't be found.

At the door of his office she stood, slim and defenseless in the half light. A tall man unwound himself from Vernon's chair. "Are you looking for someone?" he asked pleasantly.

"For Mr. Wells."

Their glances met, locked. For a split second, Liane knew a moment of pure panic, a dizziness. There was something impelling in those dark, deep-set eyes, something almost hypnotic.

"He's not about. I'll have to look farther," faltered the girl. The stranger took a step forward. "Wait here and I'll find him," he said in that strangely compelling voice. And there was laughter in it. "Do wait, Liane," he said.

She fled, murmuring excuses. If this curious fluttering she felt were love, Liane reflected, then it was a strange thing. Because this man knew her name, and she had never seen him before in her life!

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT

William Powell and Kay Francis will be seen in an intensely stirring dramatic romance today when "Ladies' Man" shows at the Delft Theatre.

"Ladies' Man" is the tale of a suave cosmopolitan whom the moneyed ladies of New York are mad about and whom many of the moneyed men of the town are mad about—but in a far different sense. It is Powell's "way with the ladies" which causes the jealousy among New York's elite gentlemen which eventually brings disaster to the fortunes of this cool and calculating hero-villain.

As the favorite of the daughters of wealth, Powell, who neither works, sells bonds nor has an independent income, gets ahead in life by accepting gifts from his very patronizing female friends.

Of the three more important women who fall in love with him, there is one, Kay Francis, whom he himself loves. It is her arrival on the scene which signals an end to his old life as a paid lover of diamond-braceleted dowagers. He falls for Kay for herself and not for the sizeable fortune which is hers. She falls for him, because he is her beau ideal.

Comes the night of a big social event—the annual costume ball. Powell has been designated to attend as Potemkin and to lead the march with Catherine of Russia—played by the woman who had been most lavish in her gifts to him. But Powell, now infuriated with Kay, tries to cancel the obligation to lead the march. This enrages the dowager, and brings her husband into the scene. The denouement is the fight for life between Powell and the husband. Who Wins? The answer is one of the big moments of this thrilling dramatic thunderbolt at the Delft Theatre.

A machine is being developed by the American Machine and Foundry company, that will produce 2000 cigars a minute.

Drug Stores Slash Prices For Three - Day Event

Druggists Will Stage Their Greatest Sale; Have Complete Stocks

Escanaba's six up-to-date drug stores are uniting this week to stage a June Clearance sale, marking the first time in the history of the city that this group of stores has promoted a cooperative merchandising event of such magnitude.

The drug stores are well distributed throughout the city. All carry complete line of drugs, toilet articles and notions, and their prescription service reaches a wide surrounding territory. Some of the establishments are equipped with soda fountains and other accommodations.

Every Want Satisfied

The completeness of stock carried by Escanaba's drug stores is widely recognized, and the fact that they have decided to join the other retail stores in this June Clearance sale is assurance that every want of the buying public will be satisfied.

At no time have drug stores listed such rock bottom prices on their goods as during this June Clearance sale. Quality products are offered at prices that will compare with any cut-rate drug stores in the metropolitan centers.

A Little Story

Druggists are making an earnest effort during this sale to apprise the buying public of the wide range of articles that can be procured at their stores. To illustrate the completeness of the drug store stocks, the following story is told: A man went into an Escanaba drug store the other day, and asked for a horse blanket. He was politely informed that there was none in stock.

"What, no horse blankets?" he replied in a surprised tone. "What kind of a drug store is this?" Escanaba drug stores probably do not carry horse blankets, tractors, steam rollers, but they handle almost everything else. Their slogan this week is: "If you need anything, go to the drug store."

WORLD'S LONGEST LOVERS' LANE

Bordeaux, France—The world's longest lovers' lane is found between this city and Le Havre, a distance of 415 miles.

This lane is the highway "Route Nationale," and it is constantly the Mecca for young swains and their girl friends. The reason is that all along the length of the road are huge trees on which mistletoe grows in profusion. Several accidents have resulted from young men taking advantage of the presence of the mistletoe and removing their eyes from the road.

The French government has ruled that mistletoe is a parasite, however, and discourages its cultivation. This law may do away with the numerous accidents, but most romantic couples would rather the mistletoe remained.

Escanaba Stores Are Paradise for Shoppers

June Clearance Sale Biggest Merchandising Event Ever Attempted

An event that is an absolute delight to women in every part of the upper peninsula shopping district, for members of their families, too, of course, but particularly for the women, because the shopping problems are mostly theirs, is this June Clearance in which all retail merchants of Escanaba are joining in offering more real, reasonable bargains than you have ever seen in all your life.

In the first place a June clearance is an event in itself. Clearances have always been later in the season, in July, Mr. and Mrs. Shopper are going to buy at clearances prices right in the middle of the season, the merchandise of that season. They will have summer outfits for the Fourth of July holidays that every other year they have had to wait until the after-the-holiday July sales to purchase.

Latest Styles Offered
Too, the June clearance in which these merchants are uniting, will offer not only the finest styles in their spring and summer merchandise, but there will be the special purchases which all of them have made during trips to the markets in anticipation of this upper peninsula selling event.

Then, think of what you can buy. Just take the item of your summer costume—this means the ladies just now. The adorable shantungs and crepes in their lovely, cool summer shades, whose price last year probably limited most shoppers to one, may be had this season for just a little over half of what you have been thinking you would have to spend. You may have two. Or your summer accessories, the smart panama or linen hat, or turban, the slippers of linen, kid or other summer material, mesh or silk hose of off-white, your gloves and your purse of leather are yours for just about the difference. That's just one item. In every type of dress, coat in shoes, hosiery, hats, and dainty underthings, dry goods, in fact in every line of merchandise you are going to find the same values, reasonable, style values.

Values for Everyone
In men's wear, it is the same. The suit you wished you could afford is now quite within your reach, and the suit you could afford is replaced for the identical price with increased value, and this is the way with shirts, ties, hose, hats and shoes, among other items. And selection of youngsters' outfits now is just fun for the thrifty shopper. Which means that Escanaba's upper peninsula shopping center, which has brought the best in merchandise and the best in styling to upper peninsula shoppers, in this event is continuing its policy of offering the best possible at the best possible time, and that every shopper, no matter what her budget calls for, is going to find smart outfits for every member of the family at just the price she wants to pay.

DOLLAR SAVES HIM
Owosso, Mich.—Harry Bailey was saved a life sentence in prison by the slim margin of one dollar. He was arrested on a charge of stealing a $48 case of cigars. Had the value been $50, the offense would have been a felony. Bailey has already been convicted of three felonies, and a life sentence would have been the result of a fourth.

A RECORD KISS OF 8000 MILES
By NEA Service
London—Something of a record was the recorded kiss sent by a relative, 3000 miles away, to the reception which followed the marriage of Emma Myers. The kiss came in the form of a photograph record from the bride's sister, Betty, who is a nurse in America. She spoke lovingly into the record, congratulated the bride and "kissed" her and the groom.

The bride's mother broke down when she heard the record, as she did not see the transcribing machine and thought Betty had returned to England on a surprise visit to attend Emma's wedding. She was fined $10 and costs.
