

SENATOR DWIGHT W. MORROW DEAD

PASSES AWAY UNEXPECTEDLY IN HIS SLEEP

DIPLOMAT STRICKEN WITH HEMORRHAGE, 58 YEARS OLD

BY MORRIS WATSON (Assoc'd Press Staff Writer) Englewood, N. J., Oct. 5 (AP)—Senator Dwight W. Morrow died in his sleep today at the peak of a career which carried him into international prominence as a financier and diplomat.

SERVICES WEDNESDAY Englewood, N. J., Oct. 5 (AP)—Funeral services for Senator Dwight W. Morrow will be held at 3 p. m. Wednesday in the First Presbyterian church at Englewood, it was announced tonight.

scionness, and died at 1.52 p. m. of a cerebral hemorrhage. The news of his death was intensified by its unexpectedness. The father-in-law of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, who was a partner in the Morgan banking house until he resigned to become Ambassador to Mexico, appeared in excellent health last night as he addressed a large gathering in New York and was cheered by 1,200 men and women for his advice about welfare work.

Anti-Prohibitionist The passing of the man who poured oil on the troubled waters of Mexico with his doctrine of courtesy, patience and understanding between nations, removed one of the country's foremost advocates of prohibition, repeal, a man who frequently had been mentioned as a possible candidate for president or vice president in 1932, and a leader on whom New Jersey Republicans had expected to lean heavily in the turbulent campaign now being waged for the office of governor.

His death placed in the hands of Morgan F. Larson, Republican governor of New Jersey, the power to preserve the Republican's one-vote margin in the United States senate. He will name a successor who will hold office until the general election in 1932 or until a special election is called. Senator Morrow's death leaves 47 Republicans, 47 Democrats and one Farm-Laborite in the senate.

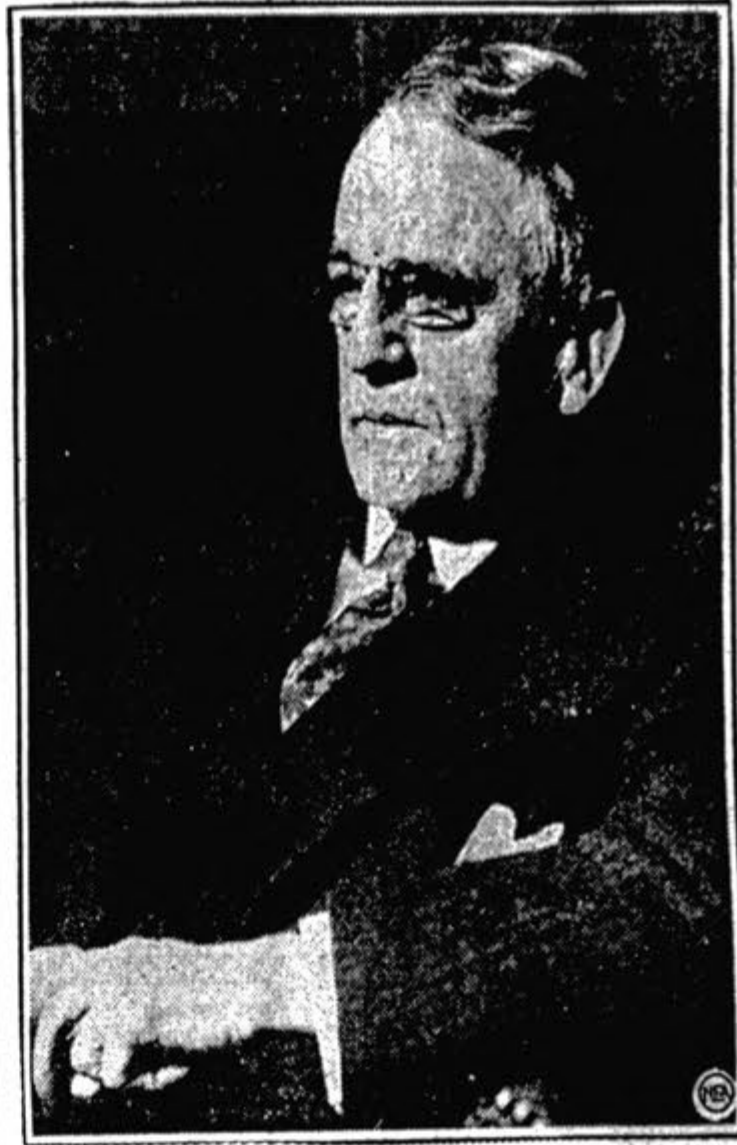

The possibility that Col Lindbergh, now in China with his wife, the former Ann Morrow, might be considered for the office appeared remote at least in so far as the appointment is concerned. It was pointed out he would not be 30 years old until next February, whereas a man must have passed his thirtieth birthday before he can be named to the senate.

David Baird, Jr., who stepped down from a temporary appointment to the senate in favor of Mr. Morrow and who now is running for governor, is regarded as a possible appointee. In the event Baird should win his present fight, it is believed that Walter Evans Edge, United States Ambassador to France, who preceded Baird in the senate, might be asked to return to his old post.

The shock of Senator Morrow's death, however, was so fresh in the minds of his associates that none mentioned the political situation.

PHONE OFFICE OPENS OCT. 10

Bell Company Expends $210,000 on New Escanaba Plant

Escanaba's new telephone central office, located in the new Bell Telephone building at 1003 South First avenue, will be placed in operation Saturday night, October 10, O. A. Sundquist, local manager of the Michigan Bell Telephone company announced yesterday.

Practically every phase of the building and equipment program has been completed, with the exception of minor last minute apparatus tests, which will be carried on up until the time the new office goes into service. In all, the completed project, including the cost of the real estate, construction of the building and the installation of the new local and long distance operating equipment, represents an investment by the Michigan Bell company of more than $210,000.

According to Manager Sundquist, county, city and telephone officials will be invited to witness the turnover operation, which is scheduled to take place promptly at 11 o'clock in the evening. That hour has been selected, Manager Sundquist explains, because at that time the number of calls passing through the equipment is light, normally. The actual operation of replacing the old office with the new will take place in a very few seconds, although months of planning and building have preceded it.

Two Cars Collide Near Groos Road; Motorists Injured

Occupants of two cars received bruises as a result of an accident Sunday afternoon at the intersection of US 2-41 and the Groos road near the Escanaba river bridge approach, in which a car driven by John Gerou, Sr., of Perkins, and one driven by Albert Johnson, 1328 Stephenson avenue, collided.

Mr. Gerou, who was driving, was coming on to the highway from the Groos road, and Mr. Johnson was driving from Gladstone. Mr. and Mrs. Gerou, were badly bruised and other occupants of the car, Mr. and Mrs. John Gerou, Jr., and Leo Gerou were seriously bruised.

Albert Johnson, driver of the second car, Miss Anna Nelson, Arlene Johnson and Miss Edith Johnson suffered bruises.

Both cars were damaged considerably.

Fortune Telling By Bumps Barred

Under a new state law, now effective, phrenology is expressly included in the statute, prohibiting fortune telling.

Escanaba officers have had experiences with fortune tellers, but in the past were unable to enforce the law when the fortune tellers claimed to be practicing phrenology or other systems based on the conformation of the skull. The act as amplified includes phrenology and allied methods of fortune telling, and gives officers a basis for arrests without the necessity of a city ordinance.

PROGRESSIVE WINS

THOMAS AMLIC.

Thomas Amlic, Elkhorn, Wis., attorney, and a member of the Progressive wing of the party, won the Republican nomination in the primaries Saturday in the first congressional district of Wisconsin, to the seat in the national House of Representatives vacated by the death of the late Henry Allen Cooper. Amlic's opponent was State Senator George W. Blanchard of Edgerton, Wis., a member of the Conservative wing, and the campaign featured an attack on the Hoover administration. The Republican nomination is held equivalent to election. The final election will be October 18.

Little Items of Interest About Former Residents.

Among the former residents who have left this city is James McDonald, who left here August 6, 1927, for Lansing, Mich., where he has made his home since that time. Mr. McDonald returns to Escanaba every summer and the "old home town" always looks good to him.

James McDonald was born November 25, 1854, in Brantford, Ont., and was married July 11, 1879, in his native village to Miss Jennie M. McCauley who died several years ago.

Mr. McDonald has one daughter, Mrs. Ruby McDonald Rawson, with whom he makes his home.

Mr. McDonald has been retired for several years. He was formerly employed as a blacksmith with the C. and N. W. Railway company and was well and favorably known among the employees of the company and local residents having lived here from 1884 until 1927.

A memorial to those who lost their lives in the R 101 disaster is to be erected at Bedford, England.

LABOR DEMANDS RIGHT TO WORK

Capitalistic Distributions of Earnings Scored at Meet

BY HAROLD TURNBLAD.
 Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 5. (AP)—Labor today attacked capitalistic distribution of the earnings of industry, and started to forge the weapon the American Federation of Labor will offer the world to combat depression and unemployment.

As the fifty-first annual convention of the federation opened, President William Green outlined labor's new declaration of the sanctity of the right to work.

Speaking extemporaneously in response to welcoming addresses, President Green declared immediate steps must be taken by leaders of industry to correct inequalities of income among workers and employers.

Must Share Work.

"The great army of the unemployed stands as a menace to the existing order," President Green told the delegates. "No urge is as powerful as the hunger instinct. It cannot be controlled by social laws.

Available work must be divided among all the men and women of the nation, the labor head declared. Labor must share the profits of industrial efficiency.

"A tremendous feeling of social unrest is developing everywhere," Green said. "Men who are temperate in the use of language are beginning to speak in no uncertain terms.

"Standards of life and living must be maintained on a high level if our institutions are to prevail. I must warn employers and leaders of industry against the life destroying, heartless policy of wage cuts.

"In my opinion the time has arrived when the representatives of labor can take a most advanced position.

"Thomas Jefferson wrote into the life of our nation, the bill of rights, which guarantee to all the right of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. I think labor can well add the right to work.

"Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness means nothing to the man who is out of work."

Should Divide Profits.

Attacking the "inequitable distribution of the earnings of industry," which permits the building up of immense fortunes, Green called for a division of excess profits in the form of wages.

"The wage standard must be built up," he said. "The earnings of industry are mostly inequally distributed. Instead of corporations declaring a forty per cent dividend to stockholders, they should divide the profits with the workers who have earned it.

"If they refuse to listen, then we will go to the sovereign people through the ballots and bring about a distribution of these large fortunes back to the people through the power of taxation."

nificance of the situation. Senator Morrow had been particularly active recently in state politics and only last week he made a trip to Washington to confer with Secretary of State Stimson, a colleague in the United States delegation to the London naval conference.

Small of stature, quiet in speech, Mr. Morrow, college classmate of Calvin Coolidge, was known best perhaps as a conciliator. He seemed to possess great ability in bringing individuals, groups and even nations into agreement. Throughout his career as a lawyer, banker and statesman he strictly adhered to what he termed "rule six." That rule simply was: "Don't take yourself so darn seriously."

Mr. Morrow spoke extemporaneously last night before the federation for the support of Jewish philanthropic societies and then motored from New York to his home here.

It was after midnight when he retired. He made no complaint at that time of feeling ill. Because he had been in the habit recently of arising late, his secretary, Arthur S. Springer, was not alarmed when he went to the senator's bedroom at 11 o'clock this morning and found him apparently sleeping soundly.

Mrs. Morrow was playing golf at a nearby country club when the news of her husband's condition was brought to her.

About half an hour before the end of a delegation of aviation enthusiasts appeared at the gates of the Morrow estate to keep a luncheon engagement which had been made several days ago.

Lindbergh's Notified.

At the senator's bedside were his wife, Miss Elizabeth Morrow, a daughter, Mrs. A. M. Scandrett, the senator's sister, and Mrs. Rebecca Greenhouse, a niece. The first word of the senator's death was received here an hour after his passing in the form of an Associated Press dispatch from Meadville, Pennsylvania, saying the family had telephoned the news to a sister there. This dispatch became public even before Douglas Thomson, who managed Mr. Morrow's senatorial campaign, had been informed. Mr. Thomson was in Mr. Morrow's office in an Englewood bank building.

Cables were sent to Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh, who were aboard a British aircraft carrier on their way to Shanghai with the disabled plane from which they were thrown into the Yangtze river last week when the plane capsized.

Miss Constance Morrow, a daughter attending Smith college, and Dwight W. Morrow, Jr., a student at Amherst, and Mrs. E. L. McVaine of Meadville, Pa., a sister, were notified and started at once for Englewood.

had considered flying on to Salt Lake City, to complete well over 5,000 miles, which would have broken the distance record Russel Boardman and John Polansky set on their New York-Turkey flight this year.

Dump Gasoline Load

"But our barograph wasn't functioning and we had to gun the motor too much in rising over the fog, so we came back," Pangborn explained.

They said they had about 100 gallons of fuel left but did not think it would carry them over the mountains to Salt Lake. The remaining gasoline was dumped before landing.

Their brilliant achievement came after failure to better the round-the-world speed record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, another pair of American airmen, and a disheartening delay in Japan.

Leaving New York on July 28, they hopped across the Atlantic ocean and headed over Europe and Asia. Their plane was damaged in landing at Khabarovsk, Siberia, Aug. 3, and they gave up the attempt for a new round-the-world record, deciding to try for the honor of being the first to cross the Pacific non-stop.

After reaching Tokyo, they were arrested for flying over and photographing Japanese fortified areas. They pleaded ignorance of the subject and denied any illegal intentions, but were fined a total of $2,950. Shen came weeks of waiting until the Japanese government, after representations from Washington, finally granted them permission to start the Pacific flight.

Edison Maintains Improved Condition

West Orange, N. J., Oct. 5 (AP)—Thomas A. Edison tonight maintained the slight improvement noted in his condition after a six hour sleep and a "comfortable day."

Dr. Hubert S. Howe, the inventor's personal physician, stated he did not consider the inventor's condition at this time "critical." He reiterated, however, that Mr. Edison's recovery was not expected.

The slight change in Mr. Edison's health lifted to some extent the pall of anxiety which settled on his Lewellyn Park home over the week-end.

Eight Banks In Midwest Are Closed

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 5 (AP)—Eight midwest banks, four in Nebraska and four in Minnesota, failed to open for business today.

the loss is irreparable. We shall see his like again," and in Paris, Ambassador Walter E. Edge said that "Dwight Morrow's untimely passing challenges comment."

In Georgia Governor Roosevelt in New York said:

"It is a misfortune for the State of New Jersey and for the United States senate the life of Mr. Morrow has come to an end at the height of its usefulness."

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald sent a cablegram of condolence to Mrs. Morrow. "I am greatly grieved by the loss of one whom I have long regarded as a most delightful personality and a much valued friend," he said.

Governor Brucker of Michigan said:

"The nation will mourn the passing of Senator Dwight W. Morrow. His sudden death brings to a close a life of unusual service to the country. His outstanding accomplishments as ambassador to Mexico will long be remembered. He was the highest type of public servant."

PRaised BY HOOVER

Washington, Oct. 5 (AP)—President Hoover tonight praised Senator Morrow as "that sort of an American who makes our country great."

On his way back to Washington from Philadelphia, the president issued the following statement to newspapermen aboard his special train:

"The country has suffered a great loss in the death of Senator Dwight W. Morrow. His loyal and generous character as a neighbor and a citizen; his public spirit as a patriot; his services during the war; his accomplishments as ambassador to Mexico; his unique contribution to the success of the London naval conference—all are the record of that sort of an American who makes our country great."

News of the senator's death was kept from the president until he boarded his train in Philadelphia.

LINDBERGH'S NOTIFIED

Shanghai, Oct. 5 (Tuesday) (AP)—The British naval wireless carried news of the death of Senator Dwight W. Morrow to his daughter and son-in-law, Anne and Charles Lindbergh, aboard the British aircraft carrier Hermes early today.

The Hermes was steaming slowly down the Yangtze estuary from Nanking and was scheduled to arrive at Wosung at the mouth of the Whangpo river, near Shanghai, at 5 a. m. today (4 a. m. E. S. T.).

Previously it was planned for the Hermes to remain overnight at Wosung, with the Lindberghs staying aboard, and to proceed to Shanghai tomorrow, but plans were uncertain in view of Senator Morrow's death.

It was arranged late today for the Lindberghs to land at Wosung at 5 p. m. today. Consul-General Cunningham and members of his staff will meet the couple and bring them to Shanghai by automobile. Thereafter their plans are uncertain.

All plans to entertain the couple at Shanghai were dropped.

It was not known here whether the Lindberghs would continue their aerial tour of China, although Mrs. Morrow cabled that it was unnecessary for them to hasten their return to America.

feats in the 1930 series. Mixing his spitball with a fast curve and change of pace, pitching smartly all the way, Grimes was in sight of the all-time goal—a no-hit world series game—when he completed seven innings without allowing the semblance of a hit. In that seven inning span only two Mackmen had reached base, on walks, and in six of the seven innings only three batters faced the veteran.

Grimes was especially wary of burlly Jimmy Foxx, whose home run beat the veteran in the fifth game of the 1930 series. He walked Foxx for the second straight time to start the eighth and then Bing Miller broke the spell with a line single to centerfield. It was the first real threat by the A's but Old Burligh, shifting his tobacco and hitching up his trousers, retired the next three batters in order, including Cramer, pinch hitting for Grove. Simmons gets Homer.

There were two out in the ninth when Cochrane, after a long duel with Grimes, received a pass. Simmons, whose only previous hit in the series was his homer in the opening game at St. Louis, caught a fast ball and walloped it over the right field barrier. Eric McNair, pinch running for Cochrane, came in ahead of Simmons. He walked in the ninth. Foxx was fanned for the final victim, however, and Grimes walked off the field with his first world series victory since he pitched for Brooklyn against Cleveland in 1920.

Burligh's two-hit stunt was the sixth of its kind to be recorded in a world series fray. The first was achieved by Ed Walsh of the White Sox in 1906 and the last by Walter Hoyt, then with the Yankees, in 1921. The closest to a perfect game in series annals was Ed Reulbach's one-hit triumph for the Cubs over the White Sox in 1908.

The Cardinals, in fighting their way into the lead, gained this advantage for the first time since they turned the trick themselves in 1926 against the Yankees. The Red Birds flew home with the world championship that year and they are now suddenly installed as favorites to repeat, on the strength of their sensational pitching and brilliant offense in the last two games.

The Cards hit the great Grove no harder today than they did last Thursday but their blows were more timely. They have now conquered the twin aces of the Mack staff, Earnshaw and Grove, in succession and they don't think they can be stopped.

It wasn't Grove's day. Whether the blister on one of his pitching fingers bothered him or not, Mack said afterward. "I don't know," he said. "I don't know his usual control. He started his own downfall in the second, by passing Jim Bottomley, and he couldn't do much the rest of the day with the bottom half of the Cardinal batting order.

Pepper Martin's single on his first turn at bat sent Bottomley to third and the first baseman scored on Wilson's single to right. Martin scampered to third and came home on Gilbert's long fly to Bing Miller.

After a brief lull, the Cardinal attack broke out again in the fourth. Chick Hafey led off this time with a single to center and galloped to third as Martin pumped a double against the wall in right center. Dykes retired Wilson. Gettler fanned and it looked as though Grove would escape a further damage but Grimes lashed a single to right that sent both runners tearing home.

Grimes' Hand Bruised

Old Burligh was fighting his pitching rival at the plate as well as the A's on the field. He sought to upset the southpaw by stepping out of the box as Grove started a windup. He engaged in a running fire of repartee with his 1930 foe, Mickey Cochrane. Late in the game, Grimes had worked so hard that he developed a "crick" in his neck and had to go under the stands for a brief massage. Again, in the ninth, Burligh's pitching hand was bruised by a drive from Haas' bat. It was after this mishap, on which the pitcher detected the ball to Gilbert for the throwout, that Grimes passed Cochrane and tossed the home run ball at Simmons.

Grimes turned back five of the Mackmen on strikes. It ran the total strikeouts for the Cardinal fingers up to 24 for three games. Leroy Mahaffey made his first appearance in the box for the Athletics in the ninth. He was wild, passing Jake Flowers to start with, Rootger forced Flowers and Frisch was thrown out on a fly play by Dykes, but Bottomley crashed a double against the scoreboard, scoring Watkins, running for Rootger, with the final Cardinal tally.

Japanese Boats Are Ordered On Yangtze

Shanghai, Oct. 5 (AP)—The tightening grip of China's anti-Japanese boycott in retaliation for Japan's military activities in Manchuria, gained added leverage today from assignment of four Japanese destroyers as reinforcement for Nippon's Yangtze river patrol.

The Japanese legation here made known its fears of anti-Japanese disorders in many Yangtze ports, and announced the consulate at Chongchow, Honan province, had been closed and its staff and all other Japanese residents of the city withdrawn to Hankow.

The Japanese destroyers Hinoki and Momo arrived here from the Sasebo naval base, and the destroyers Kaki and Yanaki were reported enroute, all for possible use on the Yangtze, in which area civic control already has been somewhat disorganized by the recent disastrous floods.

The coming of the destroyers unleashed a new crop of rumors. In Nanking, private advice said, a condition approaching panic followed spreading of a report 50 Japanese warships were coming to bombard the capital city.

Doctor Davis Will Visit Normal Today

Doctor William R. Davis of the Michigan department of health and editor of the Michigan State Dental Bulletin will visit the county normal at the Franklin school today. Doctor Davis presents a short course to each of the county normals in the state on the importance of early dental care for children of school age.

The purpose of the course is to instruct teachers to recognize serious dental conditions and the effect they have on the child's health and ability to carry on his school work. Doctor Davis stated. He explained that the teacher particularly in the small rural school is in a position to aid the children in her care in avoiding such serious dental trouble if she understands the importance of such early dental care.

Anniversary

HISTORIC CONGRESS

On Oct. 6, 1917, one of the most memorable sessions of the United States Congress ended. This, the first session of the Sixty-Fifth Congress, began by a special call on April 2, 1917, and the same evening heard President Wilson's address recommending a declaration of war.

Not the least interesting feature of the session was the extraordinary ascendancy of President Wilson over Congress, receiving authority for practically every war measure he demanded, and successfully resisting those he deemed inadvisable.

GUILTY LIPS

(By NEA Service) By Laura Lee Brockman

CHAPTER XLII NORMA earned $95 during the six weeks she typed manuscripts for Frederick Stuart. The sum went to Chris as a first payment on the amount she had borrowed.

"Lots of time to pay it," Chris always said carelessly when Norma spoke about the debt. Chris would never present a detailed statement of the money she had spent though she was always promising to do so.

The $95 was the hardest beginning—little more than enough to pay Norma's share of the rent and food bill for the six weeks.

It was because this problem was never far from her mind that Norma welcomed the opportunity that came the second week in February even though it involved separation from baby Mark.

Jennie Clark, the girl who had taken Norma's place as Stuart's secretary, resigned on short notice. Jennie explained she could return to the office where she had been let out when the staff was reduced.

When Jennie announced she was leaving Stuart telephoned Norma and offered her the job. That same afternoon she went down town and told him she could start to work the following week.

The problem of caring for Mark had been easily arranged. For $6 each week Mrs. Carey, who lived across the hall, agreed to keep the baby during the hours Norma would be away.

It is the theory of the present constitutional provision that apportionment for both houses shall be made in accordance with population. In practice, the urban centers, particularly Detroit and Wayne county, have been deprived of fair representation.

On its face the plan looks fair enough. If study of its proposals confirms this impression reasonable voters all over the state will probably be disposed to look on it with favor.

Michigan ports on the Great Lakes, and inland commercial and industrial centers utilizing these ports, will outline a definite program for port development and removal of existing handicaps to water-borne commerce at a conference of the Michigan section of the Great Lakes Harbors association to be held in Muskegon Wednesday, Oct. 14.

In picking the Athletics to win over St. Louis, many sport critics seem to be giving the Cards a raw deal.

When Norma told Frederick Stuart she could come back to work as his private secretary, she added, "I'm going to have to ask for more money, Mr. Stuart. I want $35 a week. I think I'm worth it and if any manuscripts come in to be typed I can do them in addition to the other work."

"Thank you, Mrs. Carey," Norma said, rising to her feet. "I-I couldn't help but feel worried. It's the first day I've ever left him, you know! You've taken beautiful care of him and I'm not going to let myself worry any more. I'll see if I can't be home a little earlier tomorrow night."

Chris arrived a few moments later and the two girls were soon busy preparing their own evening meal.

Schooling herself not to worry over the baby's welfare was the hardest part of Norma's new scheme. She liked working with Stuart. It was true Jennie Clark had been slack about keeping the files in order.

On Saturday afternoon at the end of her first week's work Norma took the baby to the hospital clinic. She learned with a mingling of shock and thankfulness that Mark still kept his rating of perfect health.

Chris liked the baby, played with him and worried over him almost as much as Norma. "He's going to be spoiled—and spoiled badly," Chris predicted.

Bob Farrell continued to pay an occasional visit and gifts for Mark often served as the excuse for these calls.

"Here's something I thought might amuse your Skeerix," he would say, handing over a package which might contain anything from a toy pop gun to rubber blocks.

Twice he was invited to dinner at the apartment—both times on Sunday when Chris and Norma had the entire day at home.

Whenever there was any talk around the apartment regarding a man's skill, when the electric fan refused to operate or a piece of furniture became unsteady Bob put it in order.

LYRICS OF LIFE

By Douglas Malloch

(Copyright 1931 by Douglas Malloch)

FATHER'S COAT

I recollect I started once when just a boy to drive to town; It was a quiet winter day; the snow was slowly sifting down; And just as I had said "Giddap" my father came upon the run And, taking off his overcoat, said, "Here, you'll maybe need it, son."

I never saw a finer day; I never saw a wilder night; At last the cutter overturned, and then the horses took to flight. The blizzard whipped me in the face, the road was hid, I dared not stir.

I think I learned a lesson then—no, no, not then, in later years; I used to smile at Father's faith and used to laugh at Father's fears; I did not need my Father's God, the cloak that wrapped his soul around; But years rolled by, and night came on, and then that cloak I sought, and found.

If friends proved false, or dreams in vain, and earthly hope was but a wraith, The thing that helped me through the night was Father's old and simple faith.

Mrs. Carey. "He hasn't been a bit of trouble. Good as a regular little angel all day! I did everything the way you said, Mrs. Travers, I gave him his bottle at three o'clock and he went to sleep when he'd finished it. Look at him!"

Mark's wide blue eyes considered his mother with interest. He wiggled a foot and gurgled contentedly.

Norma, down on her knees beside the bed, felt a wave of overwhelming relief. There was tiny Mark exactly as she had left him. No frightful accident. No unforeseen tragedy. The baby was as happy and safe as if she had been with him all day.

"Thank you, Mrs. Carey," Norma said, rising to her feet. "I-I couldn't help but feel worried. It's the first day I've ever left him, you know! You've taken beautiful care of him and I'm not going to let myself worry any more. I'll see if I can't be home a little earlier tomorrow night."

"Here's something I thought might amuse your Skeerix," he would say, handing over a package which might contain anything from a toy pop gun to rubber blocks.

Twice he was invited to dinner at the apartment—both times on Sunday when Chris and Norma had the entire day at home.

Whenever there was any talk around the apartment regarding a man's skill, when the electric fan refused to operate or a piece of furniture became unsteady Bob put it in order.

Shortly after the second dinner invitation he asked both girls to attend a musical comedy—a very good one just on from New York. Chris and Norma accepted but on the evening of the performance Norma developed a headache. She refused to let the others change their tickets for another night.

There could be no doubt about Norma's pleasure in Bob's company. She always welcomed him. More often than Chris she urged him to drop in again soon and it was Norma who suggested inviting him to dinner. However, she and Bob were never alone.

THERE were times when she was sure Norma's fondness for Bob was developing into a deeper affection. A safer, surer affection than the mad-cap plunge into romance that Norma's marriage to Mark Travers had been. That, Chris felt, was the solution of Norma's problem.

But did Norma really care for Bob? One day Chris believed she did. The next she was uncertain.

"If she's foolish enough to turn down a fine boy like Bob," Chris told herself, "to keep faith with a good-for-nothing like Mark Travers she doesn't deserve sympathy! Bob's worth ten Marks. Probably he's in love with Bob and doesn't realize it yet. Well they'll have to settle affairs for themselves but I know what I'd do!"

After Norma returned to work the days sped rapidly. Weeks evolved again into the old routine of rushing to catch street cars, taking and transcribing dictation, hasty lunch hours, more dictation, clinging to a strap for a crowded ride home and blessed evenings and week-ends with little Mark.

March made its entry lamb-like. The sun melted and bright winter sunshine made heavy winter wraps actually uncomfortable. Norma scrimped on lunches and made the first payment on a cheap carriage for the baby.

After the carriage arrived Mrs. Carey spent two hours daily wheeling him up and down the block. Saturday and Sunday Norma always took him out. She felt immensely proud when passersby glanced into the carriage and said, "What a pretty baby!" or stopped to ask how old he was.

Above his blue blankets the infant's hooded head was just visible. It was not easy to keep him covered. Mark, that child of perfect disposition and deportment, was showing an increasing tendency to wriggle upright when he was supposed to be asleep. He wanted to be independent.

On a Sunday morning in mid-March Norma was wheeling the baby down the street. She crossed the first block and the second. Roslyn avenue, just ahead, was a thoroughfare for cross-town traffic. Norma approached the curb, waiting cautiously for the signal light to change from green to red.

Intent on the problem of getting across the street, she'd not notice the limousine that approached and slowed abruptly. (To Be Continued)

POLICE CHIEF DIES SUDDENLY

Joseph Pellissier Succumbs Sunday at Age of 70

Joseph Pellissier, chief of police of the City of Munising, dropped dead upon the pavement on Superior street, north, between the City Drug store corner and Leiphart's news stand, Sunday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. Chief Pellissier, a veteran of the service, died with his uniform on and in the active performance of his duty. Old friends and acquaintances had accosted him and conversed with him during the day, and he appeared to be in the best of health and spirits. Just a few moments before he was stricken he was engaged in conversation with Herman Johnson at the City Drug store corner. While talking with Mr. Johnson he observed a group of young men staggering down the street and, leaving Mr. Johnson, he followed them a few feet as far as Leiphart's news stand, requesting them to keep off the street or consider themselves under arrest. This was his last official act. He turned to walk to the corner to resume his conversation with Mr. Johnson and, after taking a few steps, Mr. Johnson observed him fall face downward upon the concrete walk.

Mr. Johnson hurried to him and with the assistance of the bystanders, rolled him upon his back and held up his head while he gasped for breath and made inarticulate sounds. The ambulance was quickly summoned and the chief was taken to the hospital where he was pronounced dead. The remains were then taken to Bowerman's undertaking parlors and remained there until yesterday when they were taken to the Sacred Heart church by the Holy Name society remaining there until this forenoon when services were held, with Rev. A. C. Pellissier, celebrant; Rev. Peter Dapper, deacon, and Rev. Ovid Lamotte, sub-deacon. From here the remains were taken to Marquette. Funeral services will be held at St. John's church at a

How to train BABY'S BOWELS

Babies, bottle-fed or breast-fed, with any tendency to be constipated, would thrive if they received daily half a teaspoonful of this old family doctor's prescription for the bowels. That is one sure way to train tiny bowels to healthy regularity. To avoid the fretfulness, vomiting, crying, failure to gain, and other ills of constipated babies.

nine o'clock high mass, with the same clergymen officiating. Interment will be made in the Marquette cemetery. The pallbearers selected from old friends are as follows: John A. Vixena, Dr. T. W. Scholtes, Henry Gollinger, Thomas N. Hannah, John Ryan, Frank Runsat. Honorary pallbearers are: C. G. Kemp, T. G. Sullivan, Peter Flavin, N. Lobb, Alfred Engman and D. R. Potter.

Joseph Pellissier was born at Yamaska, Que., Canada, January 2, 1861, and came to Marquette when a young man, where he was married to Mary Henne in 1889. Mrs. Pellissier died September 23, 1922. A daughter, Irene, who was employed as stenographer, in this city for several years, died three years ago. The remaining surviving members of the family are: Rev. Albert C. Pellissier, of Detroit; Miss Edna, clerk in the conservation department in this city, Oral and Joseph of Crystal Falls, Phillip in U. S. navy, and Miss Marie, who is with her brother at L'Anse.

Joseph Pellissier came to Munising with George L. Burtis, mill man, both from Marquette, when Timothy Nestor started the promotion of the new town of Munising in 1895. In June of the following year, 1896, he moved his family to Munising, erecting a dwelling house in the west end, where he reared his family and resided for several years, until he built a new home on Superior street. While employed at the Burtis plant he became engaged in political activities, becoming a member of the local police force, serving as nightwatchman, city marshal and two terms as sheriff from 1913 to 1917, as under sheriff, deputy sheriff and ending his political career as chief of police, leaving behind a record for efficient and faithful service. He was a shrewd student of human nature and possessed a keen sense of humor. During his official career of over thirty years in this city, his sense of responsibility never permitted him to neglect an act of official duty, yet he performed many a generous one through sympathy for human weakness. His familiar figure and his genial greeting will be missed by all, and, particularly, by the old timers and the old pioneers who knew him in the years long since gone by.

Sault Ste. Two of the group were charging 10 per cent discount, and one of the two was charging no discount on silver. Two were charging 20 per cent today, but one charged no discount on silver less than 50 cents.

Sheriff's Deputy Wearing Black Eye

A Delta county deputy sheriff is explaining how he got the black eye in which he blossomed out Monday. Three officers were sent out at midnight Sunday to get a violent insane man who lived back in the woods about eight miles from the main road. The man resisted the efforts of the three officers who attempted to take him into custody. He threw a kerosene lamp at one of them and lunged out with hands and feet. Several bruises were administered one way and another until the job was completed, but the one deputy with the decorated eye has the most prominent souvenir of the encounter.

Federal Court
Marquette—With a top-heavy docket of liquor cases, the October term of the United States district court will open here Tuesday with Judge Fred M. Raymond on the bench. A check of the records Saturday showed that no less than 89 cases in which violation of the prohibition law is charged are scheduled for presentation to the grand jury. The cases involve 113 defendants, the largest number of persons to be brought into a single term of federal court here since the beginning of prohibition enforcement.

Drug Store Raided
Iron River—Federal prohibition officers early last night seized a half barrel of beer in an old log barn on the Camins farm, north of the city, and later conducted a raid at the Leo F. Camins pharmacy, 423 Third avenue, which almost resulted in their arrest.

John Camins, about 47, was arrested by Kenneth Putnam, deputy enforcement agent for the upper peninsula prohibition department at Marquette, and two hours later was released, subject,

You purchase shoes, fruit and candy. You call for cigarettes.

It's like this: WHEN YOU GO TO BUY A PAIR OF SHOES, you examine the leather, the way the shoes are made, their shape. You try them to see if they fit—if they satisfy you.

Why not follow the same method in purchasing your cigarettes? You want cigarettes that are made from the very best tobacco—mild, ripe, sweet. You want them made right. You want them free from harshness and bite and "pinches." In other words, you want cigarettes that satisfy you.

WHEN YOU GO TO BUY FRUIT—oranges, grapefruit, apples—you want ripe fruit, fruit that has matured before being taken from the tree; fruit that has been handled right and packed right; fruit that's the same throughout—not green on one side and ripe on the other.

Why not apply the same test in purchasing your cigarettes? You want cigarettes made from tobaccos handled right by the farmer—ripened, sweetened in the sun and cured right. You want cigarettes that taste the same, day in and day out. You want them pleasing in taste—mild and satisfying.

WHEN YOU BUY CANDY, you want to know, above all things, that it is pure. Is it real candy or are there a lot of other things mixed in with it? And you want it fresh. You want it freshly made and you want it so packed as to reach you just as it was when it was made.

Why not apply the same test when you buy your cigarettes? You want a cigarette that's pure; for purity counts in cigarettes just as it does in candy. Then again, you want a cigarette that's just as fresh as when it was made.

Now, if you apply to cigarettes all the tests that you apply in buying shoes and fruit and candy you will purchase CHESTERFIELD like millions of other smokers.

First, because tobacco men will tell you that in Turkey, Kentucky, Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia, and Maryland, only the mildest, ripest tobacco is bought for CHESTERFIELD—tobacco cured by the sun's pure rays, by the farmers' slow-burning ovens, and finally by great high-pressure steam drying machines. In the tobacco regions where they grow tobacco and know tobacco, CHESTERFIELD is usually the leading seller.

Second, because the carefully selected CHESTERFIELD tobacco leaves are blended and cross-blended. This exclusive CHESTERFIELD blending method is not just mixing together different tobaccos—it is mixing them in such a way as to bring out the finer qualities of each. It's like producing a new and better type of tobacco—tobacco with greater mildness, more smoothness, much better taste.

Third, because the cigarette paper is selected with the same care. CHESTERFIELD paper is the purest, the best that money can buy. Then the cigarettes are made and packed by machinery in clean, sanitary factories. And the moisture-proof, attractive package—free from heavy inks or inky odor—comes to you just as if you passed the factory in the morning and took your CHESTERFIELDS from the machine.

Good . . . they've got to be good.

CITY PIONEER PASSES SUNDAY

Short Illness Fatal To Charles Ackerman; Had Lived Here 58 Years

Charles Ackerman, one of Manistique's oldest pioneers, passed away Sunday morning at 9:30 a. m. at the home of Andrew Ekstrom, 508 Range street, as the result of complications due to old age. Mr. Ackerman was in fairly good health until five days preceding his death.

The deceased was born in Skoane, Sweden, May 31, 1847, coming to this country while still a young man. After residing in Chicago for a short time, Mr. Ackerman came to Manistique in 1873 after the disastrous Chicago fire. A year later he was united in marriage to Mrs. Mary Gunnarson in the second marriage ceremony ever conducted in this city.

Throughout his life, Mr. Ackerman worked at the trade of mason contracting doing most of the work for the Chicago Lumbering company. He has also erected many of the fine homes in this city and established a fine reputation for the building of fireplaces. Mr. Ackerman was closely identified with the early colorful lumbering days of this community. His cheerful fine personality and character endeared him to many and his death is mourned by the entire community.

Immediate survivors are a daughter, Mrs. Victor Bergstedt, of St. Paul; two sons, Elmer of St. Paul and Albert of this city and five grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his wife four years ago.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Andrew Ekstrom residence, 508 Range street, with Earl Holmberg, student pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church in charge. Interment will be made in the family plot at Lakeview cemetery with Gunnarson & Kefauver, local morticians, conducting the funeral.

Effects of Alcohol Explained to H. S. Students Yesterday

Manistique high school students yesterday morning heard a splendid short address by Mrs. Lottie Abbott Woodford, nationally known temperance lecturer, who spoke on the subject, "It Is Brains That Count."

Emphasizing the effects of alcohol on the brain, Mrs. Woodford stated that she was speaking merely of intoxication and not drunkenness and proceeded to show by means of charts how moderate use of alcohol reduced personal efficiency in every day life.

The brain is composed of the following centers, heart, lung, locomotion, knowledge and inhibitory, which develop in the normal individual in the order named. Mrs. Woodford stated, "Alcohol is a poison having a special affinity for the nerve centers of the brain, paralyzing those centers in inverse order to their development and hence the inhibitory center is the first effected. Alcohol is a narcotic habit forming drug and is not a stimulant as is commonly supposed."

Mrs. Woodford spoke to a large congregation at the First Baptist church Sunday evening and also addressed Junior high school students yesterday morning.

MEETING HELD FOR FARMERS

Federal Land Bank Officials Discuss Mutual Problems On Loans

Much interest was shown in the meeting held here today by members of three national farm loan associations, operating in Schooicraft and Delta counties. Approximately 65 of the farmer members were in attendance. E. E. Thwing, assistant secretary of the Federal Land Bank of Saint Paul, was the principal speaker. Other speakers included Ben P. Pattison, field representative of Escanaba, Mich.

The associations involved were the Manistique, Thompson-Inwood, and Garden associations. Gottfrid S. Johnson, director of the Federal Land Bank and secretary of two of the associations participating in the meeting was in charge of the arrangements for the conference, which he said had been called to discuss mutual problems of these organizations in connection with the making of long-term Federal Land Bank loans in this locality.

Mr. Johnson described the Federal Land Bank system as the world's largest farm loan cooperative. There are over forty-three hundred of these national farm loan associations, he stated, and they have made long-term loans to more than 50,000 farmers, aggregating more than one billion, six hundred million dollars. They operate through twelve regional Federal Land Banks, Saint Paul Federal Land Bank being one of the largest of the twelve.

Farmer Owned
Mr. Thwing laid emphasis on the fact that the Federal Land Bank system is actually farmer owned. "Every dollar of the capital of the Federal Land Bank of Saint Paul," he stated, "has been subscribed by the farmers of this district, through the arrangement, whereby each farmer buys stock in his local farm loan association, for an amount equal to 5 per cent of his loan, and the association in turn buys a like amount of stock in the land bank."

The speaker also emphasized the fact that these banks do not lend government funds. "Practically every dollar that they have loaned out has come from the sale of bonds, which are secured by the association members. The bank has no source of income from which to meet interest on its bonds, except as interest is paid by the borrowers."

The borrowers were urged to avoid delinquencies because of this responsibility, and also because, the speaker pointed out, delinquencies greatly increase the expense. "Delinquencies greatly increase the expense of the bank and the association, and inasmuch as the institution is a cooperative one, this falls as a burden on all borrowers alike."

The suspension of dividends in recent years was attributed by the speaker to increased delinquencies. Mr. Thwing stated that 84 per cent of the Michigan farmers are meeting their installments promptly as they come due, having an encouraging note in the present agricultural situation was presented in the speaker's statement, that the land bank is finding this year the most active market for farm land that it has experienced for a number of years. "Since January first, the bank has sold 102 Michigan farms," said the speaker, "which is an increase over the sales of the same period a year ago."

Mr. Ben Pattison drew a comparison of the situation confronting many thousands of city dwellers and pointed out that, in spite of the low prices for farm products, the advantages were with the farmer.

"This has resulted," he continued, "in a decided back-to-the-land movement. According to the 1930 federal figures, 1,392,000 000 left towns for farms, the largest number since the government recorded such movements in 1922," stated the speaker. "The farmer is able to raise food for himself and his family and farm homes provide shelter at a low cost. High wages for city and factory workers must practically all go to meet these necessities and when the wages stop, the wage worker is in a difficult place," he said.

The meeting was held in the K. of C. hall and convened at 10 o'clock in the morning, continuing well into the afternoon. All noon those who were in attendance was served an excellent dinner.

Among the many in attendance from the Garden association were the officers, as follows: Dayton Beardsley, president; Alton Spaulding, vice president; Phillip Plante, Dave Horing and Frank LaLonde, directors; and Aristide Thibault, secretary-treasurer.

Officers of the Manistique association are: Isaac Pawley, president; Carl A. Carlson, vice-president; both of Gulliver; William Durno, director, Gulliver; Arthur Graham, director, Route 2, Manistique and Fred Peterson, director, also of Manistique.

Officers of the Thompson-Inwood association are: Albert Huebscher, president; Otto Winkel, vice president; James Tebo, Jules Tanguay and Charles Laakoski, directors, all of Cooke.

THEATRES

RIALTO
"Guilty Hands" which will open tonight at the Rialto theatre places Lionel Barrymore in the spot of featured player, offering him the most powerful role he has essayed for the talking screen.

The story was written especially for the talking screen by Bayard Veiller, master of mystery drama and author of such theatre hits as "The Thirteenth Chair" and "The Trial of Mary Dugan." It is his first original for the talkies, and in the opinion of preview critics, the most baffling murder plot he has ever conceived.

Particular interest is directed toward this new M-G-M production because it follows Barrymore's personal triumph as the veteran criminal attorney in "A Free Soul," and is the first picture he has carried as principal player in several years, his efforts having been confined to directing since the advent of sound films.

W. S. Van Dyke, astute producer of screen thrills, noted for his direction of "White Shadows in the South Seas," "Trader Horn" and "Never the Twain Shall Meet," was at the directorial helm in bringing the mystifying Veiller story to the screen.

Loeff was arrested as a result of an accident which occurred Saturday evening on Lake Shore Drive near the Empson home. The car driven by Loeff crashed into one driven by Otto Goodman of Gladstone. Goodman attempted to avoid the crash by driving off the road but his car was struck just back of the rear door and rolled over several times. Carol, 12 year old daughter of Mr. Goodman received a severe cut over her eye which necessitated 12 stitches to close.

Arthur Tongway, driver of the Michael Kane car which figured in an accident with the car of Louis Creten about ten days ago was arraigned before Justice Alguire on Monday morning on a charge of reckless driving. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and costs or spend 45 days in the county jail. He took the jail sentence.

When TEETHING makes HIM FUSSY

One of the most important things you can do to make a teething baby comfortable is to see that little bowels do their work of carrying off waste matter promptly and regularly. For this nothing is better than Castoria, a pure vegetable preparation, especially made for babies and children. Castoria acts so gently you can give it to young infants to relieve colic. Yet it is always effective, for older children, too. Remember, Castoria contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics—is absolutely harmless. When your baby is fretful with teething or a food upset, give a cleansing dose of Castoria. Be sure you get genuine Castoria with the name:

DEATH... entered the room with her!

The Law was on her husband's side—that Latin "Judas" who claimed her child. She came to plead for mercy—armed—prepared to kill, but then FATE stepped in to play an amazing role in this great true-life story of war, infidelity, and mother love!

"I LOVED that man, Paul-Louis," this confessing woman writes. "I loved him with all the yielding devotion of a country girl from Illinois. We met and married in France during the war, and gladly did I sacrifice all my citizenship and property—to let him possess me."

"But Paul-Louis was French—a gentleman of a foreign land with a foreign code of morals—and soon his faithless kisses fooled my lips, his honeyed phrases sickened my soul."

"How could I—how could any woman endure such torture and still go on? I had to smother our child out of France, because the Law gave it to him. We sailed to New York. He followed and had The Law take my baby from me!"

"Francis—I had almost given up the battle—WHEN—a murderous thought blazed through my mind. At any cost, I'd save my precious baby boy from being brought up to the degrading morals of his faithless father. And so I rushed madly to Paul-Louis' apartment—and it was on that terrifying afternoon—that I—"

Here, into this thundering climax, Fate hurled a bolt that shook the very depths of this suffering woman's soul. If you love all that is clean and fine in life—if ever you have been tortured with the helplessness of a loved one's unfaithfulness, here is a tremendous true-life story that will grip you through every starkly-told detail. The story is called HER LORD AND MASTER. You will find it complete in November TRUE STORY MAGAZINE—just as it flowed from the pulsing pen of this brave woman who fought for the Right. # Cubs Beat Sox in Sixth Game of City Series

GRIMM'S BLOW GIVES 3-2 WIN

Seventh and Final Game of Chicago Series to Be Played Today

Chicago, Oct. 5. (AP)—Charley Grimm, the Cubs' slugging first baseman, kept the National League in the battle for the Chicago city baseball title today with a ninth inning double that gave his team a 3 to 2 victory over the White Sox and an even break of 3 games each. The seventh and final game will be played tomorrow.

Trailing by a single run as the ninth opened, the Cubs appeared hopelessly beaten, for only four hits were made off Frasier. Then Vince Barton rolled a single over second base. Dan Taylor, whose home run had provided the only Cub score until the last inning, bounced to Kerr back of second and Kerr's throw to Cissell in an attempt to start a double play was wild, both runners being safe.

Grimm took advantage of the break by pounding a line drive for two bases, long enough to score Barton and Taylor.

Frasier hurled the entire route, allowing six hits, while the Cub pitching was divided between Bush, May and Root, the latter receiving credit for the win.

Grube batted. After Taylor started the scoring with a home run in the second, Bush walked, and the Sox team's pitcher rushed to the plate to protest. Catcher Grube rushed at the umpire, but Coach Kelly of the Sox stopped him and they rolled in the dirt. When the game was continued Grube was banished and Tate took his place.

In the fifth Watwood opened with a double, was sacrificed to third, and after Jolley had been purposely passed, Ponseca drove home the tying run with a single. On the next play Bush turned his ankle trying to complete a double play at first base. He resumed catching, but after passing Sullivan and Kerr, had to retire. May "kissed" his place. The pass to Kerr forced over Jolley with the run that put the White Sox ahead.

Tom Gander Makes Long Drive; Golf Ball Still Going

Tom Gander, member of the Escanaba Country Club, made what he considers the longest drive of his career, while playing at the Highland Golf club's course Sunday.

Driving off No. 1 tee, Gander sent a ball out of bounds. It landed on the pavement of Highway U. S. 2-71, which runs parallel to No. 1 hole, and kept rolling. When it stopped, the ball had travelled about six hundred yards and was headed toward Escanaba on the pavement.

Cubs' Fan

George Sullivan Attends Nine Games; Meets Gaby Hartnett.

George Sullivan, 215 North Nineteenth street, retired railway engineer, has followed the Cubs for years.

When the Cubs win, his face just radiates with joy, and when they lose, he's as gloomy as the mascot. Since the North Western placed him on the pension list, one of his occupations is tuning in his radio for the Cubs games, and when he can no longer control his craving to see them in action he takes out the old "annual pass" and beats it down to Chicago for a week-end of baseball.

George got the thrill of his lifetime in Chicago recently. He shook hands with his idol, Gaby Hartnett, and chatted with him for a long time, even though there were scores of others waiting to congratulate the Bruins' catcher for his wonderful performance in the double header victory over the Glants.

"It's funny how it all happened," explained the veteran Cubs' fan yesterday. "I was sitting in the grandstand with my wife, and I remarked to her, 'Gosh, I'd like to meet Gaby.' An old fellow, sitting in front of me, turned and said, 'I'll introduce you to him.'"

"After the game, he took me to Gaby's car. After shaking hands, Hartnett inquired about Dr. Corcoran and some other friends in Escanaba, and told me he had a wonderful time on a hunting trip near here two years ago. We also talked baseball."

Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan attended nine ball games while they were in Chicago.

Charlie Horses

Sam Smith of Menominee Knows How to Handle Them.

Menominee—Sam Smith, trainer. Simple words, but meaning much to all who know the man and especially to those whom his skill has helped.

Acknowledged throughout the peninsula and northern Wisconsin as the best trainer to ever wear the name in these parts, Smith for 21 years has served the high school and city athletic organizations here. Twenty-one years of work he enjoys for the boys he loves. Sixty-one years ago, yet fit and able.

"Sammy," as his familiars call him, has a record to arouse envy among collegiate and professional sport trainers. He is experienced in almost every line of sport from cycling to football. Many thankful athletes vouch for Sam's skill. They remember care that put players in condition when it seemed certain that they would not play.

Many examples of Smith's skill are remembered by athletes here. When Laerman's Twins, upper peninsula semi-professional champions of 1921, were in the midst of a strenuous season, one of their star players was stricken with lumbago. Sam was called. He had the player carried to the high school gymnasium and laid out on the training table. The player was almost unable to walk, but an hour of expert massage and he was on the gymnasium floor getting into shape for the next game. The Twins won the game. Sam was credited with a large part of the victory.

There is the case of Tom Warne, Northwestern university pole vaulter. A year ago Warne gave an exhibition at the upper peninsula relays at Escanaba. It was a cold day and after Warne performed his legs were cold and

RANGERS LOSE AT IRONWOOD

Escanaba Team Succumbs to Pass Attack; Score, 14-6

Ironwood, Oct. 4 (Special)—Two long passes, one in the first and the other in the fourth period, gave the Ironwood Polar Bears two scoring opportunities which they converted into touchdowns to defeat the Escanaba Rangers, 14 to 6, in a peninsula football league game here today. The defeat was the first of the season for the Rangers and sent them into a tie for second place with Ironwood while Stambaugh took the league lead as the result of a 9 to 6 victory over Ishpeming today. Escanaba scored their touchdown in the third period with Goulais logging it over from the one-yard line.

The Polar Bears' first touchdown was the result of one of those breaks which are seen often in hard-fought football games. With fourth down, eight yards to go on Escanaba's 25-yard line, Almi, flashy Ironwood star, dropped back to pass. The Escanaba linemen swarmed through to rush the passer and Almi ran back 20 yards to get loose to throw the pass. After being pushed around and seemingly tackled twice, Almi heaved a long pass, apparently to escape a 25-yard loss more than for any other reason. The ball fell into the hands of F. Jacisin on the 10-yard line, however, for a first down. An Escanaba offside put the ball five yards nearer to the goal and then on the fourth line smash, Zambovitz went over for the touchdown. Almi kicked goal.

Another Long Pass

The Rangers came back in the third period to completely outplay the Polar Bears, marching steadily down the field with a series of first downs. Goulais carried it over on first down on the one-yard line. Blink's placement kick was blocked. Ironwood was still leading, 7 to 6.

Ironwood safely put the ball game away in the fourth period. Almi heaved a long pass to Serbin putting the oval in scoring position again and Almi finally carried it over the goal. The placement kick was wide for the extra point but Escanaba was offside and with the ball placed on the one-yard line, Almi logged it over for the extra point on the next play.

Ironwood made 13 first downs during the game against 12 for the Rangers. Three of the Polar Bears' first downs were the results of Escanaba penalties while one of the Rangers' was due to an Ironwood foul.

Puckelwartz and Peltin, Ranger speedsters, were held pretty much in check during the game but they did manage to shake loose on several occasions for first downs. In addition, Puckelwartz tossed some beautiful passes for the Rangers and came through with long punts in the pinches.

The game attracted the largest crowd that ever attended a game at Ironwood this year.

Grimes, Fighting Ball Player, Gets Revenge

BY GAYLE TALBOT, (Associated Press Sports Writer) Philadelphia, Oct. 5 (AP)—It was the eighth inning, the Cardinals were at bat, and outside the crowd that filled Shibe park was yelling for the blood of big Burleigh Grimes. Up to that time he had allowed their beloved Athletics one lone hit, and he had been truculent in his attitude.

The crowd saw in Grimes an ill-treated machine, a man who was mowing down the home boys with remarkable precision and doing his level best to keep a third straight world championship from coming to Philadelphia. Out there in the sunlight, in other words, Grimes was a villain hatching the darkest of plots.

Down in the dim light of the passageway that led to the Cardinals' dugout there was an entirely different Grimes. He stood there almost crying, as the husky trainer of the National League champions grasped him about the chest from behind and squeezed him until something cracked. Then he scrambled back out there, tears in his eyes and fighting mad, determined to pitch that last inning.

Fighting Player

There was a close play on a Cardinal at first base. The umpire called him out and you could hear Grimes above all else as he told the arbiter in no uncertain terms what he thought of him, personally, and his decision. He is a fighting ball player, this bewhiskered veteran who stopped the A's today. He was in pain from a "crick" in his neck, but he would not give either the Athletics or the crowd the satisfaction of realizing his plight.

Had Grimes been built that way, he might have got out of pitching that last inning and going down on the records as having allowed one of the most dangerous collections of sluggers in the world only one hit in eight innings. But he finished his game, even if he was deprived of a shutout by Al Simmons' mighty drive into the stands.

There was a happy scene in the Cardinals' dressing room as they gathered about Grimes and pumped his hand, but there wasn't a slap on his back. They were jubilant. They yelled, they laughed and they predicted they would finish the Athletics without the formality of going back to St. Louis.

"I knew I could take those guys," chortled Grimes. "They beat me twice last year when I had them all wrapped up, but they couldn't do it today. Yeah, I'd like to have pitched a no hitter. Sure. But I made the mistake of trying to slip a fast one by Bing Miller in the eighth, and that was that. Simmons got hold of one high and outside in the ninth."

Did he intend to take another shot at the Athletics if the series lasted long enough?

"Sure, I'll be ready to take my regular turn, if we go back to St. Louis. I think I can beat 'em again."

Street Jubilant

Gabby Street's face spread in a wide grin as he herded his athletes into the clubhouse. He was in a hurry to get dressed and catch a train for New York, where he and Mrs. Street were to attend a musical comedy, but he took time to tell the crowding correspondents how it happened.

"What a game that Grimes pitched. One of the greatest I ever saw. He had everything, especially control. They couldn't get hold of him. And how my boys worked on Grove!"

"We've got the edge now and I think we'll win. We've beaten Mack's two best pitchers—Earnshaw and Grove—in the last two games. That's all we had to do. All my pitchers are ready to go and the whole club is keyed up now. They'll have a hard time stopping us."

"Who'll I pitch tomorrow? I don't know; wouldn't even guess. But whoever it is, he'll take a lot of beating."

Grimes' great form today was a surprise to Connie Mack, venerable pilot of the Athletics.

"He surprised me both as a pitcher and a batter. He apparently was pitching better than he did during the regular season. My boys just couldn't hit him."

"Naturally, I must say that Martin has been the most unusual player in the series. You seldom see a rookie so dominating the attack as he has. He seems to have supplied the punch St. Louis needed. He was responsible for both runs Friday, while today he was a factor in the second and third inning scoring."

"But the whole Cardinal team was on its toes, hustling and playing splendid ball throughout, and they deserved to win."

"Grove's finger did not bother him. I figure he pitched good ball, but the Cardinals were in a hitting mood." Rather than blame him, I would praise the Cardinals.

"For the first time in three years now, we must come from behind if we are to win the championship. If our boys were hitting as during the season, I would have more confidence. Nevertheless I know they have their heads up and will not acknowledge they've been beaten until the series is ended."

Notes On Series

Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Oct. 5 (AP)—Jimmy Dykes contributed the fielding gem of the third game when he speared Chick Hatter's line smash in the eighth inning. Jimmy lunged, grabbed the ball and was thrown to the ground by the force of the blow. Dykes made another fine stop and throw out on Frisch in the ninth.

Sparky Adams returned to his regular third base station for the first time in the series, making the third player in as many games to start at the "hot corner" for the Cardinals. His injured left ankle appeared satisfactory, but Gaby Street took no chances and replaced Adams with Jake Floryers in the sixth inning, thereby conserving Sparky's energies for tomorrow.

Pepper Martin, the colorful Cardinal rookie outfielder, has now faced Robert Moses Grove seven times and rapped the southpaw for five hits. Pepper collected two off Earnshaw. His batting mark of .636 is at a record breaking pace. Babe Ruth set the all time series "high" when he batted .625 against the Cardinals in 1928 in four games.

President Hoover's control was not so good in tossing out the first ball. He motioned to Cochrane to come closer and then threw the ball over the backstop's head.

After the presidential party was seated, Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, came across from the St. Louis side of the field and shook hands with the president. A moment later, Connie Mack was escorted to the presidential box and paid his respects to Mr. Hoover. Gabby Street also greeted the president.

WOLVERINES IN LIGHT WORKOUT

Many Bumps and Bruises Received by Kipke's Grid Warriors

Ann Arbor, Oct. 5. (AP)—Signal drill and work on new plays occupied most of University of Michigan's football practice session today. Coach Harry Kipke dispensed with blocking and tackling drills because of numerous bumps and bruises received by his players in Saturday's double-header.

The coach indicated another light workout would be in order tomorrow, with offensive scrimmage against the freshmen scheduled for Wednesday. Stan Hozeguard and fullback, was at practice but did not don his uniform and was limping from a leg injury received in the State Normal game. Estil Tessmer, punter, is completely recovered, he will not see much service Saturday. Kipke hopes he will be in shape to kick against Alonzo Stagg's warriors next Saturday.

Some members of the squad were full of "pep" this afternoon, but most of the players were stiff and lame and lacked what Fielding H. Yost calls the "go go." Harry Newman, forward passing ace, still is limping from the injury received in practice more than a week ago and did not do much running today. Unless he completely recovered he will not see much service Saturday. Kipke removed him from the Normal game last week after two plays because he saw Newman limp and did not wish to risk further injury to his quarterback.

Kipke was fairly well satisfied with the team's showing last week-end, but indicated he had noted some glaring faults which must be corrected before the Chicago game. Some work on pass defense was given today with more in store for the squad later in the week.

"SEZ ME"

by Ken Gunderman

Our predictions for twelve high school football games last Saturday resulted as follows: Eight correct, two upset, one tied game and one scheduled game that would be one long run in the second half of the Escanaba-Maronette game proved true. Ballaroon sprinted 87 yards for a touchdown in the second half of the game which is long enough to be called a long run. Now isn't it?

The two games in which we picked the wrong winners were the Stambaugh-Menominee battle and Calumet-Negaunee. The tied game was Soo-Newberry in which we picked Newberry. The game not played was Lake Linden-Hancock.

The two games that we lost were due to overrating one team—Negaunee. For that we blame Ted Baldwin who led us to believe the Miners were stronger than they really are. Ted who has worked many games in that territory in this and other seasons reported the Miners as being an offensively strong machine. It appears that Negaunee was overrated because of the comparative weakness of Ishpeming and Marquette, other teams in the Marquette county.

Menominee upset Negaunee a week ago Saturday so we figured the Maroons had another exceptional aggregation. We picked them to take Stambaugh. On that same line of reasoning, we believed Negaunee would defeat Calumet, a team which has not shown anything too powerful this season. Both of these predictions proved wrong. Stambaugh licked Menominee and Calumet galloped all over Negaunee. We learned a lesson and, honest, it won't happen again.

Next Saturday the Eskymos play Menominee and we can see sweet revenge for the plastering the Maroons gave the Eskymos last fall. Any thing can happen and usually does happen when Escanaba plays Menominee; but if this is not Escanaba's turn to sink the Menominee battleship, we are sadly disillusioned.

ARMY IS NEXT FOR SPARTANS

Crowley Pessimistic as Squad Points for Cadet Game

East Lansing, Oct. 5 (AP)—Michigan State today was patted by its coaches for the same they regard as the biggest of the year, the Army at West Point Saturday.

While Coach James H. Crowley limited the actual workout to the introduction of two new plays and limbering exercises, he and his assistants kept up a running fire chatter all afternoon emphasizing the Army game. Scrimmage will open tomorrow and continue through Wednesday. The team will leave here Thursday afternoon and have its final workout on Michig. Field in West Point Friday afternoon.

Crowley Pessimistic

Crowley's constant fears this season of entering the Army game in a crippled condition were somewhat allayed today as a full squad reported for practice. Although the Cornell game Saturday brought the usual assortment of bruises every man was able to go through the drill today, including Don Warren, who dislocated his shoulder in scrimmage last week.

Crowley assumed his pre-season pessimistic attitude today seeing only an outside chance of winning from the Army. The fact that the military school considers State one of its own major engagements has not helped Crowley's attitude. However, the outlook would apparently be comparable with that before the Colgate game last year when State upset all the dope to win. Colgate, however, regarded the Spartans as somewhat of a set-up.

State's 47 to 0 victory over Cornell, while impressive, revealed a number of weaknesses which Crowley believes can easily be remedied. He will set about tomorrow to rectify these mistakes and build his offense and defense to their greatest point of perfection this year. Crowley indicated today he will pay particular stress upon a pass defense and offense.

Bob Monnette Leads Spartan Scorers

East Lansing, Mich., Oct. 5 (AP)—Bob Monnette, flashy Michigan state halfback, had a slight lead today over Abe Ellowitz, fullback, for high scoring honors on the Spartan football squad. The score is: Monnette 55, Ellowitz 42.

Each has seven touchdowns to his credit, five in the Alma game and two each in the Cornell frame. Monnette has 13 extra points through five placements after touch-down against Cornell and eight in the Alma game.

Bearcats and Rock Play to 6 to 6 Tie

Rock, Mich., Oct. 4 (Special)—The Rock "Spartans" were held to a 6-6 tie by the Escanaba Bearcats in an interesting football game at the local athletic field today.

The game was marred by much dispute and rough tactics were employed by both teams all through the game.

Both scores came in the first quarter and were results of passes. Rock scored first when Fosterling scored a 20 yard pass to Trombly, who galloped 40 more yards for a touchdown. A line plunge for the extra point failed.

The Bearcats scored a few moments later when Hanson snared a 10 yard pass from La Chappelle over the goal line. The extra point failed when a pass was incomplete about five yards out of bounds.

The two teams were fairly evenly matched all through the game, with Rock making ten first downs to seven for Escanaba. The Spartans were playing without three of their best players, and their playing was ragged.

LaChappelle and Boyle starred for the visitors with some occasionally flashy ball totting.

Hubert Shepeck Wins Prize in Tournament

Hubert Shepeck, member of the Escanaba Country Club, won the blind bogey tournament in the inter-club play at the Highland Golf club's course Sunday afternoon. The prize was a set of golf clubs.

Words will not describe it. One puff will. The first El Producto you smoke will tell you more about its mild, distinctive character than an encyclopedia of claims. And every El Producto tells the same story of real enjoyment.
