

ANTI-DRY LAW PETITIONS OUT

Congressional Districts Modification League Campaigns Here

D. E. Boyce, representative of the Congressional Districts Modification League, with headquarters in Washington, is in Escanaba this week obtaining memberships and signatures to a national petition, asking for a modification of the Volstead act to permit light wines and beer.

Mr. Boyce stated that about 80 percent of those called on are signing the petition. He said it requires 49 senators and 218 representatives and to bring about modification of the Volstead act, and that to date the league has promises of support from 27 senators and 160 representatives.

The Congressional Districts Modification League, incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia, is an educational institution. It has no stockholders, no stock and makes no profits. The income received through membership fees is spent in the national campaign for a modification of the Volstead act.

The league further states its purpose as follows:

"The Congressional Districts Modification League was founded by a group of plain liberty-loving, law-abiding Americans, whose only desire and ambition is to see that the Constitution of the United States is respected and honored; that the stigma of lawlessness, intemperance and cowardly hypocrisy shall be erased from the pure robes of American liberty and decency.

"The Congressional Districts Modification League is sponsoring a national petition, being signed through the respective representatives, asking for the repealing or modifying of the Volstead act."

Escanaba Stores Will Be Closed Thanksgiving Day

Escanaba merchants will observe Thanksgiving day by remaining closed all day on Thursday. It was announced yesterday by the retail merchants committee of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce.

The stores will close at 6 o'clock this evening. In previous years, business establishments remained open the evening before Thanksgiving day.

What Are They Doing Now?

Little Items of Interest About Former Residents.

Francis A. "Jack" Eastwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Eastwood, 317 South First Avenue, is among the former Escanabans who has made good in his chosen field of work.

Francis A. Eastwood, "Jack" as he is more familiarly known, was born July 4, 1902, in Joliet, Ill., and was brought to this city by his parents when a baby. He graduated from Escanaba high school with the class of 1920 and later entered the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, where he graduated in 1925.

That same year he entered the employ of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company as commercial agent at Ann Arbor and was later promoted to local manager at Lansing, Mich., and in 1928 was appointed to Commercial Supervisor with offices in the Michigan Bell Telephone Company's building in Detroit.

Jack is engaged to marry Miss B. Bone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bone of Glasgow, Scotland and Detroit. The engagement was announced by Miss Bone's parents some time ago.

Escanaba Stores Hold Christmas Opening Friday

Tomorrow's edition of the Escanaba Daily Press will carry announcements of the formal opening of the Christmas shopping season on Friday.

Special preparations are being made by Escanaba merchants for the Christmas opening. Holiday decorations will be used in the business district, including the customary red and green lights, "Shop Early" and "Merry Christmas" signs, and Christmas trees. Stores will be supplied with "shop early" signs to place in their display windows.

A trade extension supplement of the Daily Press will be issued Thursday, Dec. 10, to the entire trade territory. Starting Dec. 14, the stores will remain open evenings.

ARCHERS KILL ANOTHER BUCK

License Filled With Bow and Arrow at Blaney Park

Blaney Park, Nov. 24. (Special)—The efficiency of the bow and arrow method in getting a deer was demonstrated at Blaney Park again Monday afternoon, when H. H. Stroud of Wayland, Mich., brought down a ten-point buck in the local archery preserve. The deer was shot through the heart. This was the second buck killed by the group of half a dozen archers staying here for the deer hunting season. H. J. Cooper, Kalamazoo, brought down a 165-pound buck Saturday.

Mr. Stroud is one of the leaders of the Michigan Archers' association, which has been promoting deer hunting with bows and arrows as an addition to the winter archery program. Rifle hunters have a game preserve at Blaney Park, but they are not allowed on the 6,000 acres set aside for archers.

Will Leave Station.
Sault Ste. Marie—P. W. Robbins, forester in charge of the Dunbar Forest Experiment Station, has left for East Lansing where he will take up his winter duties in the forestry department of Michigan State College.

Mrs. Robbins and daughter, Carolyn Jane, have left Dunbar station to visit with Mrs. Robbins' mother at Iron Mountain.

U. S. TO ADMIT SOVIET SPRUCE

Can Not Prove Convicts Entered Into Its Production

Washington, Nov. 24 (AP)—Another shipment of Russian spruce lumber will be admitted to the United States tomorrow because the government lacks evidence that convicts entered into its production.

The cargo, totaling 3,000,000 feet, will be landed in New York by the steamship Christiansborg from Archangel. Lumber shipments to the United States from this area are banned unless the importer can show that convicts had no part in the production.

Representatives of the Amtorg Trading corporation, the Russian commercial organization, said the shipment was not produced by convict labor.

Twice before the treasury has admitted shipments of Russian timber. More than a year ago nearly 100 shiploads of Russian pulp wood were admitted under the ruling because there was insufficient evidence to show convicts shared in their production.

No Prison Labor
The treasury then ruled that in the future all Russian lumber importations from north of latitude 60 would be denied entry unless the importer could show that convicts were not used in the forests.

A. E. Magidson, vice president of Amtorg, A. Tretuchin, and E. Wattenberg of the Amtorg organization, appeared before Commissioner Eble of the customs bureau today and testified that convicts had not been used to produce the lumber arriving tomorrow.

They submitted a report from a committee sent to the lumber regions by the Timber Federation of the United Kingdom, which said it found no evidence of prison labor being used.

The government had no testimony to the contrary and while no official decision was announced, customs officers said the lumber would have to be admitted.

SENATE GROUP HEARS REPORT BY CHAIRMAN

ing, that there was nothing he would not tell.

Questioned by Chairman McNary, Stone said 47,500,000 bushels of wheat had been sold to foreign governments, based on the Chicago price at the time of the deal.

The average price for all of the board sales was estimated by the chairman at between 53 and 54 cents a bushel. It was purchased at 81 cents, on the average.

Stone said the grain stabilization corporation was controlled by the farm board, but the farmers' national grain corporation was not.

The board has $45,000,000 of uncommitted funds remaining from its $500,000,000 revolving fund, Stone testified. It has $22,000,000 of funds committed but not used, he added.

He estimated the board's losses on loans outside of wheat and cotton stabilization would not exceed two per cent. McNary attempted to get an estimate of the entire loss, but Stone said he could not give it then, but might later.

Now Six Turkeys Are Gobbling In White House Bin

Washington, Nov. 24 (AP)—The before-eating theme song for President Hoover's Thanksgiving dinner today grew to crescendo volume.

Where one lone turkey gobbled in the White House cellar yesterday, six gobbled tonight.

The five husky and protesting additions to the executive mansion's turkey bin arrived early this morning as a gift from an old friend of the Hoover's, Michael Gallagher, Cleveland coal operator.

Only a short distance away from the bird pen in the president's cellar is a bin filled overflowing with good Maine potatoes, each one scrubbed and shining.

They were delivered yesterday by Young Lee of the Cumberland Center Maine, in an ancient farm cart drawn by two husky oxen.

Not all the birds, of course, will grace the president's table. Probably one or two will be given to his secretaries, Lawrence Rieker, Walter Newton and Theodore Joslin.

Gas Distributors Test State's Power

Lansing, Nov. 24 (AP)—Litigation to test the authority of the state to force gasoline dealers to defray the expenses of gasoline tax investigations had been instituted, according to notice served upon Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state, today.

A temporary injunction was granted, Newell brothers, Detroit gasoline distributors, by Judge Robert M. Toms, in Wayne county. The company may operate without a license under the injunction. Fitzgerald suspended the license some time ago on charges that the company owed $3,500 in gasoline taxes. The company paid the tax and interest but refused to honor a $1600 bill for an audit of its books, and as a consequence its license has not been renewed. A hearing before Judge Toms has been set for December 5.

JAPS DRIVE OUT BANDIT TROOPS

Offensive Not Aimed at Chinchow Where Chinese Are Massed

(By The Associated Press)
A drive against 12,000 bandits southwest of Mukden, started by Japanese airplanes and troops yesterday morning, cleared out the area, Tokyo was informed.

Japanese dispatches said the bandits were driven west of the Liao river.

Military authorities in Tokyo denied the offensive was aimed in any way at Chinchow, where 50,000 Chinese troops are reported to have been massed.

The Tokyo government decided not to ask the League of Nations to persuade Chang Hsueh-Liang, deposed governor of Manchuria, to remove a threat of future conflict by withdrawing his forces from Chinchow as it had intended.

Colonel J. G. McIlroy, the first American army observer to reach the scene of the Manchurian conflict, arrived at Mukden with other Tokyo military attaches.

An encounter between Chinese and Japanese troops at Kautsalan, originally reported by Japanese army headquarters to have resulted in heavy fighting, turned out to be a minor affair.

Shanghai learned that a Japanese cruiser, with fresh troops and munitions, arrived at Chingwangtao, on the Gulf of Liaoting, just south of the Manchurian border.

A Chinese dispatch said the Japanese were planning to sever communications between Peking and Manchuria.

The Chinese delegation at the League of Nations council prepared a last desperate gesture to force a demand for Japanese evacuation. They planned to ask the league leaders whether there was any meaning in the articles of the league covenant providing for the territorial integrity of members and setting forth military and economic measures to be used against nations that violated the covenant.

Boats On Lake Are Hurrying to Port

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 24 (AP)—A northwest wind, sweeping across Lake Superior at 45 miles an hour, sent the few remaining boats in commission rushing toward port tonight. Temperatures fell sharply as anchors were dropped in the lee of islands and other boats, nearer port, tied up to await calmer waters.

Shipping men forecast the storm was the first of several which would bring an early close to the navigation season. The United States lighthouse tender Clover will start taking in the floating lights marking the St. Mary's river tomorrow and replace them with winter spars.

Snowfall May Halt Search for Hunter

Ironwood, Mich., Nov. 24 (AP)—A snowfall which began today threatened to put a halt to the search for Paul McDowell, Muskegon, Mich., deer hunter lost in a heavily wooded area near here since Nov. 14.

Experienced woodsmen who have searched for McDowell during the past week reported today they had found no traces of the man, and said they held no hope that he would be found alive.

McDowell's disappearance is the only tragedy to accompany the deer hunting season to date in Gogebic county. There have been no fatalities from the shooting season.

Fishermen Rescued From Sinking Tug

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 24 (AP)—A radio message from the freighter L. E. Geer today reported the rescue of Wesley Garrow and Ed Fink from their sinking gasoline fishing tug, five miles off Presque Isle in Lake Huron. The rescue was made in the face of a strong westerly gale which made it impossible to save the tug, the message said.

TEXAS ELECTS DEMOCRAT TO SEAT IN HOUSE

Mr. Garner watched the returns closely as they dribbled in from the big southwest Texas district that stretches from the mountains in the heart of the state to the palm bordered gulf coast.

The White House asked that reports on the returns be relayed as fast as they were received. Kieberg had declared for modification of the eighteenth amendment, adding to the victories of the anti-prohibitionists in recent special house elections to fill vacancies. The Republican, C. W. Anderson, stood for prohibition. Five anti-prohibitionists were elected November 3, over drys.

AUTO INDUSTRY OUTLOOK BRIGHT

hope, it may actually be of great importance.

"Slight tangibles which have appeared in the last few weeks are the betterment of the position of wheat, small actual gains in industrial activity which are beginning to appear, a strengthening of the commodity prices at their lower levels, and decreases in two successive weeks of 'money in circulation,'" he said. "This latter is taken to indicate a release of hoarding funds. It may be the first indication that the shackles of fear which have held the American dollar are beginning to loosen."

The public, he said, every day is growing more and more in need of new automobiles, due to the wearing out of cars which have not been replaced for many months.

Sicilians On Trial Howl at Prosecutor

Palermo, Sicily, Nov. 24 (AP)—Two hundred alleged Sicilian racketeers tried to howl down the public prosecutor today from a cage in a Palermo church as he asked a jury to sentence them to a total of 900 years in jail.

The prisoners, alleged members of the Mafia terrorist society—the last of that gang, police said—sat in a huge cage where once was the high altar of the Church of St. Zita.

The trial was transferred to the church because no local courtroom was large enough to hold the 200 prisoners, 300 witnesses and hundreds of spectators who applied for admission.

Waldfogel to Stand Trial December 1

Detroit, Nov. 24 (AP)—Detective-Lieut. Max Waldfogel will go on trial in recorder's court Dec. 1 on three indictments charging him with perjury and neglect of police duties.

The date for the trial was set today by Judge Henry S. Sweeney after Waldfogel's case was certified from the circuit court. The defendant previously had pleaded guilty on arraignment in circuit court.

He is under bond of $1,000 for each of the three indictments. A bank note for $10 issued in 1884 was found in a bank's daily receipts at Pinehurst, N. C.

Newberry News

Impressive Rites Held for Surrell

Newberry, Nov. 24 (Special)—One of the largest funerals ever held in this city was that on Monday for the late Charles Surrell, Newberry garage and automobile man who died following an extended illness on November 20.

The out of town relatives who came here to attend were: Miss Margaret Surrell, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Surrell, Toledo; Matthew Surrell, Jr., Ann Arbor; Mr. and Mrs. James Walker, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. P. Polier, and Phillip Polier of Marquette; Mrs. Matt Anderson, Marquette; Miss Helen Beaulieu, Detroit; Miss Ora Beaulieu, Sault Ste. Marie; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Huggins, Georgetown, Ont., and Mr. and Mrs. William Huggins, Pontiac.

A large number of friends from outside places also were here. Among them were: R. K. Hurd, Hastings; Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Dalley, Flint; Mr. and Mrs. Harrington, Finley, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Biglow, Peninsula, O.; George E. Abbott, Grand Rapids; Mr. and Mrs. N. Norton, Cannonburg, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Lundstrom, Manistiquette; Mrs. Doris Garner, Flint; George Glover and Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Kege, Flint; Paul Hackett, representing G. M. G. C. Flint; H. McCara, Flint; Mr. and Mrs. M. O'Toole, Sault Ste. Marie; A. B. Jacobs, Wallace, Lundv and Mr. and Mrs. L. LeLierre, Sault Ste. Marie; William Cox, Munising; Miss Julia Flynn, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. H. Brackett, Escanaba; T. Grapbos, Manistiquette; Dr. Dan Rahlly, Manistiquette; and Mr. and Mrs. V. Hemmes, St. Ignace.

Young business and professional men, friends for many years of Surrell acted as pallbearers. They were S. C. Sleeper, A. A. Mattson, Larry Wyse, Verold Gormely, Dr. George Swanson and Thomas Shimmins.

HUNTER'S BODY SHIPPED
The body of Charles Keddell, downstate hunter who died from injuries received while hunting north of Sney on November 21, was prepared for burial at the Beaulieu Funeral Parlors and shipped to his home at New Hudson on the evening of November 23. His wife and two daughters arrived here before his death.

TAHUQUAMENON RISING
A two foot rise of water has been registered on the Tahuquamenon in one week. A first measurement taken from the surface of the stream to a certain bolt on the bridge structure showed seven feet eight inches on November 16 and five feet eight inches on Nov. 23. This is unusually high for this time of the year.

PAID FINE
Charles Latourneaw of East Detroit paid a fine and costs amounting to $17.10 before Justice Gormely on Monday after pleading guilty to having a loaded gun in his car. He was arrested by conservation officers near the west fire tower on Saturday morning.

Corporal Relates "Story Of Jake" At School Session

Newberry, Nov. 24 (Special)—"The Story of Jake" was told by Corporal Ray Sullivan of the Lansing state police in a chalk-talk given on Tuesday morning before the high school assembly. The officer, who is on a speaking trip through the peninsula, was expected to give the address of the evening at the Lions club on Monday but due to car trouble did not arrive on time. He is a clever cartoonist, and good speaker, making his points clear and none the less real because of the humor with which he suggests his lessons.

He says that "Jake" the criminal is a very uninteresting person, living generally in poor quarters, with about a fifth grade education or less lazy and a coward, and often comes from the same sort of people.

"There are three sources from which the public might expect to receive information in this subject of crime," he stated, "the newspapers, the magazines and the movie." He then went on to show how these institutions picture crime and the criminal, giving the greater part of their space to them rather than to the victim and his family. "When a dog has a flea he scratches and scratches and hurts his own hide but does little damage to the flea. If he were a thinking creature he would go to the shelf, get a can of flea and spray himself. Society has a flea, the criminal, and society is or should be able to think a way to get rid of this trouble. It means a fight for liberty and justice as much in time of peace as in time of war." He asked the cooperation of the public with all officers and said that cooperation would solve many of the problems.

SHOT OWN HAND

The old story of holding his hand over the muzzle of his gun resulted in a shattered member for Charles Button, aged 22 of Farmington. Mr. Button was hunting with a party of other downstate men north of Escanaba when the accident happened about 8:30 on Monday morning. He was brought to the local hospital when an X-ray showed two bones damaged. After an operation to remove fragments and a night in the hospital he was able to leave for his home on Tuesday.

NEWBERRY BIRDS

The committee serving the school children in the community building at their noon luncheon this week are Mrs. Jack Baetz, chairman, Mrs. John Brown, Mrs. Guntman and Mrs. Charnoy.

Sam Mattson, who has lots of troubles anyway, having recently recovered from a beating given him, he claims by his wife and one of her gentlemen friends, is in the hospital recovering from an operation for appendicitis. When the physician told him what he needed he said: "No, I'm tough man, I keep it." But shortly he was back, holding his side, and quite willing to go to bed. He is doing well.

PLANT PERCH

Lakes in northern Leuce county were planted with 40,000 perch on November 23, the fish coming up from Traverse City in the new tank truck. Because of so much water in the streams and lakes it was impossible to take the big truck to some of the farther bodies of water where the planting had been planned for, so they were placed in several closer to the main highway.

M. J. Fox of Iron Mountain and Roy L. Hogue of Lansing, conservation officials, called on Newberry friends on Monday.

Gas Distributors Test State's Power

Lansing, Nov. 24 (AP)—Litigation to test the authority of the state to force gasoline dealers to defray the expenses of gasoline tax investigations had been instituted, according to notice served upon Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state, today.

A temporary injunction was granted, Newell brothers, Detroit gasoline distributors, by Judge Robert M. Toms, in Wayne county. The company may operate without a license under the injunction. Fitzgerald suspended the license some time ago on charges that the company owed $3,500 in gasoline taxes. The company paid the tax and interest but refused to honor a $1600 bill for an audit of its books, and as a consequence its license has not been renewed. A hearing before Judge Toms has been set for December 5.

COMMUNITY SPORTS ENCOURAGED

Development of a community recreational program in Escanaba has been enhanced to no small degree by the liberal policy pursued by the board of education in recent years with regard to the use of school facilities.

For several winters, the Webster and senior high school gymnasiums have been made available to the amateur basketball league. Increased gymnasium facilities, with the construction of a new junior high school, will make it possible this year for the board of education to accommodate a men's volleyball league.

The amateur basketball program was planned to provide an opportunity for healthful and fun-giving recreation to the boys beyond school age. The volleyball league was organized primarily to serve the adult group, such as business and professional men and others, who because of the nature of their employment, find that they need the sort of exercise that they can get in such a game.

The only aim of the volleyball league is to provide healthful recreation for as many men of the community as possible. The matter of winning games is relegated to the background, and teams are urged to endeavor to give all players an opportunity to play in each contest of the league's season.

LYNCH LAW

ONE of the most dismaying bits of current news is the report recently issued by the Southern Commission on the Study of Lynching. After a year's survey, the commission finds that there is a real doubt of the guilt of at least half of the victims of mob violence, and adds that the claim that lynchings are necessary because the courts fail to convict accused negroes is without foundation.

SOUND ADVICE FROM MICHIGAN FARMERS

LAST week an organization which is representative of one of the State's greatest industries adopted in annual session the following as the first of its recommendations to its members: We believe that the withdrawal of funds from the banks of our State as the result of unfounded rumor has been largely responsible for the bank failures which have occurred. We urge farmers and citizens everywhere to recognize that those banks which have withstood the acid test of recent months have earned the confidence and support of the public and we appeal to the public to realize that a further withholding of support is merely prolonging the interval which must elapse before final recovery. Where any lingering doubt exists as to the condition of some one bank, we suggest that deposits be divided temporarily among several banks, thus minimizing any risks, real or imagined. To those who can not accept the wisdom of this policy, we most urgently recommend that they avoid the risks of theft and fire, as well as total loss of income, by purchasing United States government bonds from their local bankers, thus insuring themselves of the highest margin that is obtainable and at the same time releasing much needed cash that would otherwise be hoarded. It may surprise the reader to learn that this sound advice comes not from an association of bankers or a committee of professional depression exorcists, but from the representatives of the Michigan State Farm Bureau in annual meeting at Lansing. Expressing, as it does, the considered judgment of a class of the population, which certainly has not suffered less than others from the business maladjustment and which by common rumor has been prone to seek radical and sometimes fantastic remedies for economic ills, this recommendation gives added testimony to the sober and thoughtful attitude of the average citizen during these trying months. The economic storm has made it hard for him to keep on his course, and he is convinced of the need of some new aids to navigation, but he has not laid down the oars, much less has he attempted to rock the boat.

The patience with which employees have accepted fewer hours, with which stockholders have accepted cut dividends, and with which depositors in closed banks have accepted loss, has been due not so often to discouragement and resignation as to an intelligent understanding, not of the causes of the bad times, but of the fact that the situation demands the loyal co-operation of all good citizens. We have heard of an automobile company whose employees volunteered to take a lower hourly rate so that it could cut the price of its product to meet the demands of a deflated market. There are numerous corporations operating at a loss in order that those who depend on its payroll may not feel the last pinch of want. And how often this year have the depositors in a bank forced to suspend by "frozen" assets met to pass resolutions of confidence in the bank's officers?

These are not the propitiating gestures of a beaten and panic-stricken people. They are the significant movements of courageous citizens whose erstwhile carefree confidence and optimism have been hammered by misfortune into generous understanding and resolute determination. Of these movements, that which is voiced in the Farm Bureau resolution is but another and by no means the least significant.

The News has often differed from the policies and aims of the State Farm Bureau, and will probably do so in the future, but it seems to us that no more sound and timely recommendations for the guidance of bank depositors in times of stress has come from any source than those which we reproduce above.

And now that the depression has taken the place of the war, it's more difficult for army officers to say, "Charge it." The French athletes say they'll be slowed down without it. But if they drink the stuff here they'll stop.

Anniversary

VISIT LAFAYETTE TOMB On Nov. 25, 1917, Colonel House, General Bliss, and Admiral Benson and other members of the American Mission visited the Picpus Cemetery and placed on the tomb of Lafayette a floral wreath bearing the inscription: "From the American War Mission, in grateful remembrance."

Meantime, French forces in the Verdun sector captured first and second German lines and deep dugouts between Samogneux and the region to the south of the Anglemont Farm. The British battled for Bourlon Wood. The First Italian army went into action on the offensive at Meletta and captured some machine guns. Venice was raided by Austrian airmen. U. S. Ensign Kenneth Smith, Frank J. Brady, gunner, and I. F. Wilkenson, mechanic, were rescued off the French coast from a disabled hydroplane where they had been clinging for 80 hours.

GEMS OF PERIL

CHAPTER XXXVI

HER frightened heart thudded in her ears (ill she could hardly speak. The operator's broad, moon-clad back was toward her, but Mary saw with joy that he was young, husky and might be useful in a scrap.

"Did I startle you?" She hadn't spoken—only smiled, rather feebly. "Oh, no," she said quickly. "I was just thinking of something else."

"I did startle you," the suave voice went on. "I'm sorry. Won't you let me make amends? Have some tea on the roof and perhaps we can practice a bit—for tonight!"

"Practice a bit, indeed—Mary thought. That's clever of you." She said, "Oh, thank you, but I haven't time. Time to dress for dinner. I just ran down to—to get my mail."

Instantly she was sorry for that fib, for she was sure De Loma had seen her at the safe and was perfectly aware what her errand had been. Instinctively she clutched the handbag under her arm more tightly. Even a less interested and astute person than The Fly would have caught the gesture and been promptly informed that the bag held valuables. Mary realized this even as the girl nervously betrayed her into the give-away gestures she regretted.

The car stopped at her floor. "I'll see you tonight!" she said and moved to leave the car. In pressing his invitation, De Loma had stepped between her and the door. He was facing her, his hat in his hands. As if just aware that he was blocking her way, he murmured "Oh, pardon me!" and backed off the car. Mary stepped off, after him. It was the only thing she could do, although she realized with horror, even as she did so, that she was about to be left alone with the man there in the hall.

The elevator operator was about to close the door when De Loma changed his plans abruptly. He lifted his hat to the girl and stepped on the car again. "Tonight," he said gallantly, and his bow was cut short as the door slammed and the car shot upward.

It was only then that Mary, slightly dazed by the swiftness of what had happened, looked about and saw Bates. He was standing at one side, apparently waiting for a descending elevator. Hands in his trousers pockets, a key ring jingling, a low whistle coming from his lips, he was apparently the most casual figure possible.

"Oh," Mary cried. "Oh!" She clasped the detective, shamelessly about the neck and kissed him a resounding smack on either dusty cheek. "My hero! How did you happen to be there—you saved me—I'm sure he meant to get off, but when he saw you he didn't!"

"Just waiting for an elevator, believe it or not," Bates replied. "But why—what's he following you for?"

Mary told him in a whisper. Not that whispering now would do the least good. Bates looked grave. "You'd better stick pretty close to home base," he warned. "Didn't know you were getting that out yet. I'm getting the boys organized now. Was just going out to the yacht to see Hendricks." He stopped and chewed his lip thoughtfully.

"But if you've got that here, I'd better stick around." THEY moved down the hall, talking in undertones. "I'm sorry!" Mary apologized. "But I thought he was safe in his room. And I had some other things to look up and it seemed like as good a time as any—"

"S all right," Bates muttered back. "You were O. K. But you see I was right. He's on the prowl."

"Oh, maybe it just happened. Maybe I just imagine—" Mary began. "Tut, tut, sister! Believe me when I say he probably knows as much about your affairs as you do, right now."

"Now," Bates continued briskly. "I'll put you in your room and then I'll go summon the boys. We can have our little conference here as well as anywhere else—we're careful about it."

The detective entered her room first and looked about. He raised the window, lay across its sill and studied the surrounding windows. There was a fire-escape which zig-zagged downward some distance away—from which it would be possible for a man to swing to the small decorative iron balcony which enclosed the lower half of her window.

Bates pulled his head in, flushed with his efforts, and brushed off his hands. "Well, I think you're safe enough from that direction," he said, and inspected the bathroom which had no other door. "Now, lock your door when I go out and if you see or hear anything that frightens you I'll be right in the next room. Pounded on the wall."

"Or telephone?" Mary suggested. Somehow the wall-tapping business sounded too Mata Hari—she suspected detectives of going in for theatrical behavior where theatrical behavior was not always strictly necessary.

"And have your throat cut while you're trying to get the operator?" he said. "Come here and I'll show you how to lock this door."

Now that the necklace was immediately in his keeping, Bates was a different man from the lounging, lackadaisical "inventor" he had been impersonating for days.

He manipulated the locks swiftly, and Mary watched. When he went out she obeyed meekly—pushing all the various catches several times to make certain they locked. As a matter of fact, in pushing them about she became confused and when she at last felt herself satisfied with them, she had really succeeded in unlocking the door quite thoroughly.

Mary did not realize this for some time, however. She had bathed, done her nails and her hair, and had just wriggled into the Paris dress, when a tap came at the door. She did not answer. The knob turned slowly.

AS the doorknob turned, Mary watched in fascinated terror. She picked up the first heavy object her hand touched—a silver jewel box from her dresser—and waited, ready to hurl it if the intruder were De Loma.

The door opened and the Countess slipped in, looking backward into the hall. "Oh!" Mary cried angrily. "You frightened me half to death!" The Countess signaled for silence. "Let me have it, quick!" she whispered, darting anxious glances into the hall. "Bruce is in the bath."

"Have what? Oh, you mean the bracelet?" Mary asked. "Oh, my dear, I put it in the safe!" The Countess' head jerked about; her shocked eyes fastened on Mary suspiciously.

"You don't think I'd leave it lying about, do you?" Mary laughed, mildly defensive. "In a hotel room?"

The Countess closed the door. The blazing eyes had narrowed. Slowly hands on hips, she lided forward until she was within a foot of the girl.

"So!" she hissed. "You think you will trick me, eh? I knew you would try that. Well, you will return that bracelet to me now, or I will scratch your eyes out! Do you understand?"

"Why—how awful you are!" Mary gasped in horror that was real enough. "What are you suggesting? Of course you will have your bracelet—in the morning!"

"Tonight!" Mary shook her head inflexibly. The Frenchwoman breathed heavily for a minute, during which Mary knew actual bodily fear of the tigress she had aroused. Then slowly the other woman relaxed. A mocking smile curved the corners of her mouth down.

"Oh, nonsense!" she rolled the consonant fearfully. Mary turned indifferently to the mirror, touched her hair idly with her fingertips. Like a flash, a hand shot out and snatched the chamois bag lying on the dresser. The intruder backed away swiftly to the door with it laughing triumphantly. Mary threw herself at her but the other woman held her off, ripping open the talon fastener to plunge a swift white hand into the depths of the bag.

She lifted her clenched hand from the bag and held it behind her while with the other she made an awkward search of the bag's emptiness for the bracelet. Panting with disappointment, she threw Mary off with a lunge of her elbow, and brought her right hand out to inspect the jewels she clutched. At sight of them her mouth fell open.

"Oh, oh—how beautiful!" she breathed, rapturously. "So that is what they are like—the Jupiter rubies! And they are yours—!" Unconsciously she emphasized "yours."

Mary nodded. "They are mine." She held out her hand. "Give them to me, please." The Countess jerked the necklace back out of reach. Her eyes were coldly calculating.

"Where is my bracelet?" "I told you! It's in the safe," Mary snapped. "Now give me those before I call the police."

Sulkily the other walked past her to the dresser, jerked open its drawers, searched hastily among the contents, slammed them shut. Blinked, she let the rubies fall slowly, musically, reluctantly, through her fingers to the glass dresser-top.

MARY picked them up, slipped them gently into her case again. Hungry, the green eyes watched them disappear. Mary tossed the bag into a drawer. She raised insolent eyes to the other's envious face.

"What would I want with your silly bracelet?" she asked witheringly. The Countess straightened.

Her teeth came together with a click. "Tomorrow, then," she said. "But no later!"

Suddenly Mary drew the surprised house back into the room, and closed the door. "Would you really like to own those rubies?" she asked in a tense undertone.

The other merely stared. She was too surprised to answer. "I'll give them to you—the day you sail for France and promise never to see Bruce Jupiter again." The Countess' eyes widened. Then she jerked her arm away. She laughed, shortly. "So that's what you want? Well, you won't get it." She drew off and her contemptuous gaze swept the girl. "Why, Bruce wouldn't look at you, you—baby! If you knew how he despises you!"

Arseneault Tells Story Or Attack Sunday Morning

Conservation Officer Peter Arseneault of this city, who was beaten up last Sunday forenoon near his lodge eight miles south of Gwinn, was in town yesterday forenoon, still suffering from the wounds inflicted upon his head and back by Tolvo and Leonard Koski.

ran to the scene of conflict. They had a first aid kit, helped bind up Arseneault's head wounds and took him to Gwinn, where he received treatment. State police were taken to Marquette for a hearing and bound over for trial at the next term of the Marquette county circuit court.

Officer Arseneault states that he is firmly convinced that the shot that perforated his fender and hood and traveled exactly where he would have been sitting, had he been in his car, were intended for him, and that it was just a trick of fate that he had just previously vacated his seat in the car and gone into his cabin.

Venison to Grace Tables Of Many On Thanksgiving

It is presumed that some of our people will have venison for their Thanksgiving dinner tomorrow; still venison is more expensive than turkey, counting the cost of license, time, use of car, etc.

Thirty five years ago a hunter was permitted to kill five deer during the hunting season and he did not have to go far to hunt. Turkey was then selling at about twenty cents per pound. This year it is selling at from 30 to 35 cents.

OBITUARY

JOSEPH MAUHER

Funeral services for Joseph Mauher, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mauher of Ensign, will be held this morning at nine o'clock at St. Charles' church in Rapid River with Rev. Fr. O. J. LaMothe as celebrant at the requiem high mass. Interment will be in Rapid River cemetery.

MRS. AUGUST ANDERSON

Stambaugh—Funeral services for Mrs. August Anderson, 79, plunger Stambaugh resident who died at her home Saturday morning after a week's illness with pneumonia, were held Tuesday afternoon at the Baptist church of Iron River, with the Rev. Axel Anderson officiating.

Mrs. Anderson was born in Sweden and came directly to Stambaugh about 50 years ago. Together with her husband, who came here a year before her, they settled in what is now First street, living there ever since.

Mrs. Anderson is survived by seven children, all married. They are Leonard and Axel, of Iron Mountain, Mrs. Richard Anderson, Mrs. Edwin Anderson, Mrs. Charles Rae, Gust and Albert, of Stambaugh.

HANS MADSEN

Menominee—A telegram was received in Menominee by Mrs. Anna Madsen of 420 Saxton avenue, telling of the death of her son, Hans Madsen, 33, who was burned to death early Sunday morning at Sturgis, Mich.

Mrs. Madsen lived alone in a little cottage on a lake near Sturgis and according to the information received, it is believed that the cottage caught fire during the night while he was asleep.

Mr. Madsen, who is a World war veteran, had lived at Sturgis for about 14 years. Besides his mother he is survived by four brothers, Peter, Emil, Axel and Vander, Menominee; and two sisters, Christine, Menominee and Mrs. William Hamr, Racine.

As a general rule we must oppose curtailment of production, price fixing, or other artificial economic make-shifts. —Henry Ford.

ENGADINE

"Safety-Sealed" FOR FLAVOR-PROTECTION Alaska-Canada-Panama stored it away for 3 months... but all the original flavor was there when opened! M-J-B Coffee was stored in Alaska, Canada and Panama. After four months we asked impartial experts to test this coffee for freshness and flavor. "The M-J-B Coffee stored away under these different climatic conditions was as fresh and flavorful as coffee just roasted," the experts declared. Here's positive proof that the richer blend of M-J-B stays rich. This is because M-J-B (which is the only coffee company owning its own vacuum process) protects its rare blend with the patented "Safety-Seal" that cannot close unless all the air is removed.

Illegal Slaughter of Deer Has Increased Greatly This Season

MANY HUNTERS SELL VENISON

Various Methods Employed in Violating State's Game Laws

Conservation officers in the deer districts of the upper peninsula are being overburdened with work day and night during these days of the open hunting season. Their particular problem is the illegal slaughter of deer which is expected at every season. Unemployment conditions this year have served to increase the seriousness of this problem.

Supplementing their efforts, a small citizen army of conservation sleuths has been mobilized. Director Hogarth of the department of conservation has commissioned these special deputies to serve without compensation during the open season and they are now operating as a battery of undercover men nosing out violators especially in the remote hunting camps at times and in places beyond the reach of the regularly commissioned deputies.

The types of hunting season violations fall in three distinct classes, headlighting at night as an aid in taking the "one buck" prescribed by law; shooting camp deer which rarely bear license tags unless the hunters using such meat become "leery" of the approach of an officer to their woodland sanctuary; and "pot hunting" as practiced by "dead shots" both men and women who furnish hunting parties with deer to cover their licenses frequently without the necessity of leaving their camps.

Killing Deer for Pay
Of this latter case of violators in some districts, the female of the species constitutes an important factor. These leave their households in the care of relatives or friends and clad in masculine regalia go forth to the woods to do their share in the annual deer slaying.

Some of these amazons have not only been successful in filling their own licenses and their husbands' but have been known in past seasons to have brought into the family coffers between $75 and $100 as a result of their prowess and marksmanship.

Hard times in the rural districts have furnished something of an excuse for "dead shots" to accept considerable business in furnishing venison this fall. They are at this time more than ever, finding ready demand for their services. Many hunters report that, coming into the deer territory, they are met by these dead shots or their representatives who ask if they are in need of such services as they can render.

Ordinarily, downstate hunters are good sports and prefer to kill their own deer but conditions are different this season. Deer are more scarce than usual. There is no snow to aid in tracking. The past two months have been the wettest in many years, making it almost impossible to get to otherwise good hunting ground. Licenses cost a little more than in previous years. Incoming hunters feel the pinch of hard times and are unusually anxious to take back a deer.

It is believed that all of these factors together have created something of an unsportsmanlike attitude toward law observance. The thing of importance is to "get the deer," and in many cases, any or every subterfuge known in the past to have been successful, is employed. There is always someone ready to supply the demand created by such a situation. Officers know that these dead shots go out with their licenses in their pockets and trail deer all day long through the open season but few of the deer they bring down wear the license tag of the hunter who shot them, except in emergencies.

It is common knowledge in any deer district that the current price for a deer, freshly killed, is $25, and instances have been known in the past where this service has been rendered for $15 or $10 and even less. Cases have been reported in past years where lumber camps have furnished a large part of the winter meat for their crews, through the professional "pot hunter."

Headlighting Prevalent
This service invariably includes the messy business of dressing the carcass which in the case of a two hundred pound buck, which would have to be hoisted 12 or 15 feet, would be something of a problem for a mere tenderfoot.

The unlit, passing over the highways at night and observing an occasional flash in the woods has perhaps thought that fairies were flitting back and forth. One may make a safe guess that these are hunters' spot lights. Many of these go out with powerful lights, current being furnished by an ordinary auto or radio battery.

The writer has talked with a number of men, who have surprised themselves at their own endurance as they have tramped many miles in various kinds of weather and sometimes through dense brush and undergrowth, carrying a heavy battery and lamp furnishing a "spot" for some friend. These hunting "caddies" are not over-enthusiastic about the pleasures of such a night for it is hard work even for the strongest men. A more approved method in use these days perhaps is to use one of the very powerful flashlights so many of which are on the market. These are much lighter and handier to carry and are, it is believed, displacing the heavier wet battery.

With these portable plants, the plains and woods are swept for great distances in all directions. Mostly every automobile owner who has done much driving on the country roads at night, knows something of the effect of a headlight upon an animal in the road. Wherever the light strikes a deer it is held hypnotically so that the hunter can walk right up to the animal. It is virtually "deer murder" and it is safe to say that hundreds of deer are falling by this method. Wardens find it difficult to catch and convict a "headlighter" and any advantage is always with the hunter. It is like searching for a needle in a haystack. Numerous stories are told from time to time of certain persons, who on the approach of officers, quickly hid their guns and lights and any other evidence and while the officer may be sure of a violation, he is lacking the evidence necessary to convict unless perchance after diligent search in the woods he finds the missing evidence and can definitely prove ownership, which again is difficult.

No Pleasant Job
It is not an enviable job which these wardens face at this time: When on night duty, the danger is so pronounced that they go in the full uniform furnished by the department. This is made of woolen khaki and includes a military style cap with its gleaming golden cap device which immediately attracts attention and can be recognized at reasonable distances. The bright buttons of the uniform also give some protection as they flash the information that here is an officer, duly commissioned by the state department of conservation and not an animal to be shot. It is presumed that very few men would deliberately shoot at a man but the danger is in being mistaken for a deer.

Most of the headlighters at present in the woods are duly licensed to hunt by the approved methods. A number of arrests and convictions have been made this season, many of these being for the killing of does and fawns. In spite of the increased incentives to violations, it is believed that some little progress is being made in suppression.

The regular officers are courageous men who do a difficult task in an obscure way and they deserve the moral support of all good citizens.

Special Deputies
Reference has already been made to the special deputies. They are in a way subordinate to the regular officers. Director Hogarth, who is responsible for the system, has seen fit to deny these auxiliaries the privilege of bringing any cases before the courts in their own names. They must bring their prisoners whom they arrest, with their evidence to a regular deputy of the department in order that the case may be heard in court. Notwithstanding, they are invested with the authority but apparently with no supervision. Their credentials consist of cards announcing their authority, and commission and bearing on the reverse side, over the signature of Mr. Hogarth, certain rules and regulations. These official cards bear striking resemblance to the courtesy cards issued by sheriffs' departments and state troopers organizations as well as to the police cards and fire badges so familiar to every urban dweller.

Apart from the present season and its special incentives to violation, there appears to be a little improvement in the public mind regarding observance. Local people are beginning to realize the community value of an abundance of wild game. Years past, there has been wholesale slaughter of deer out of season. There is still much of it in certain districts but for the most part such violations are considered to be inconsequential.

Much Venison Wasted
There is always the man who pleads the need to furnish meat for a hungry family. The hand of the law is generally not so heavy in a genuine case of this kind. There is the man who goes out of season for the thrill it gives him. He is the man who may be expected to take a small portion of the choicest meat and leave the rest to spoil just where it was shot. Stories are numerous in all deer districts of the large number of carcasses left in the woods, with only small portions for family use, but a check-up generally indicates that there has been much exaggeration. An observer may find many spots where a pole has been hung over the crotches of two trees and use for dressing the deer. There is still a pronounced conviction in most deer districts, that conservation laws are made largely to prevent the poor man from getting his venison so that the rich man may get all he wants. Invariably, this conviction presupposes the right of the rural dweller to ignore such laws and get as many deer as he can without being caught.

Salt Lick Lure
The salt lick method was once a favorite form of out of season violation. A block of salt was placed where deer were known to come. A miniature booth was built in a nearby tree and used as a lookout station. In a short time a group would be attracted and the rest was easy. But deer are not so common now. Moreover, this type of violation is more easily caught and the salt lick is not so much in favor as in the past.

There are still groups of sports in villages and country districts who prowl the plains and forest roads, in flivvers and on foot. Their spot lights are flashed hither and yon enabling them to pick off an occasional deer for the mere pleasure afforded, as also for the enjoyment of the venison, but in scattered populations convictions are necessarily few and constitute a minute element in the prevention of game destruction.

The usual signal for a violator to give to his chums when a warden is believed to be approaching is two shots in quick succession followed by a third at a greater interval. Practically no outsiders come into this deer country bent upon out-of-season destruction of deer.

Cattle Shot Often
Numerous farmers who range cattle on the plains have lost valuable cattle which have been shot by headlighters who have mistaken the mildly luminous bovine orbs for the distinctly different flashing eyes of the deer. Horses have also fallen as a result of a similar inexperience on the part of the headlighter.

There is still need for much education. The people do not yet fully appreciate the value of a live deer upon the highway. They think more in terms of "venison." They are not disposed to cooperate with the department in their program of conservation. It is considered mean and unmanly to "sneak" on a neighbor who is successful in the illegal hunt, especially if he is liberal in remembering his friends with a portion of the spoils. Officers expect and receive little help from this source.

The finger of scorn is seldom pointed at the violator. Rather, he is considered a good sport and something of a hero. Nevertheless, the people are not altogether lacking in a sense of fair play and sporting spirit. A number of cases are on record where in various places, pet deer have been shot. These are generally some animals which have been rescued from some particular danger when it was and have remained near their benefactors as pets. Quite often they are very trustful and they have been known to show no fear at the sight or sound of a gun. Occasionally, some poor sport will take advantage of such an animal's trustfulness and shoot at close range. He may be entirely justified so far as the law is concerned but public opinion considers him a poor sport even if he had a license to hunt.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Perseverant coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified croceote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, croceote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to croceote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected the fresh cigarette!"

FRESHNESS

— that's the thing!

CAMELS are never parched or toasted

HAVE you noticed the new trend in cigarettes?—freshness is the popular thing.

That's because a fresh cigarette, as demonstrated by Camels, is something smokers have discovered as better than anything they ever tried before.

Camels are fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack because they're made fresh to start with—blended of choice, delicately mild, sun-ripened tobaccos in which the natural moisture and fragrant flavors are vigilantly safeguarded.

The tobaccos in Camels are never parched or toasted—the Reynolds method of scientifically applying heat guarantees against that.

That's why we say with so much assurance that Camels are truly fresh. They're made fresh—not parched or toasted—and then they're kept fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack.

Try Camels' freshness for a change. Switch over for just one day, then change back—if you can.

BRIEFLY TOLD

Will Wed—Marriage license applications have been filed at the county clerk's office in Escanaba by Napoleon Desotell, Gladstone, and Evelyn Degrape, Carney; Leonard Kivi, Cornell, and Sigrid Maki, Foster City.

Stores Stolen—The sheriff's department was notified yesterday of the theft of two stoves, valued at about $150, from a camp owned by Jovite Roberts, Escanaba township. The theft is being investigated.

Government Boat In—The Hyacinth, U. S. lighthouse service boat, was tied up at the Escanaba dock Tuesday. She is now engaged in picking up buoys at points on the lake.

Telegraph Office Robbed—Officers at Escanaba were asked to be on the lookout for two men who held up and robbed the Western Union office at Ironwood at 9:30 Monday evening. One of the robbers, wearing a blue coat and black hat, stood at the door, while the other, about 28, with brown coat, hat and trousers held up the operator with a pearl-handled revolver.

Pupils Bring Food—Collection of the foodstuffs donated by the pupils of the various school buildings will be made this morning. The children have been asked to bring non-perishable fruits, vegetables and canned goods to school to be turned over to the Salvation Army for Thanksgiving Day baskets.

Thanksgiving Program—The girls of the Esky Motorboard will have charge of a Thanksgiving program which will be presented in the Senior school auditorium this morning during the activities period which begins at 10:10 o'clock.

Terrace Gardens—The Wolverine orchestra will play for the big Thanksgiving holiday dance at Terrace Gardens Thursday night. There will be no dance at the Gardens Saturday, Nov. 28.

Leadership Banquet—The date of the annual 4-H club leadership banquet has been changed from Dec. 4 to Dec. 10, H. P. Lindsay, secretary of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce, announced yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Puckelwartz are leaving today to spend the Thanksgiving holiday in Chicago.

THE OLD RELIABLE OFFICER: There are stowaways on board—four of them.

CAPTAIN: How do you know there are four? They're singing "Sweet Adeline."—Passing Show.

SIFT GROUND FOR BULLETS

Dickinson Officers Are Hunting Lead Which Killed Cross

Iron Mountain, Nov. 24 (Special)—While state and county officials today were still vigorously pressing their investigation into the death of Carroll Cross, 32, of Niles, Mich., who was found dead Friday morning in the woods near the Calumet Mine location, no clues had been revealed, and nothing was reported to indicate that the officers are any closer to a solution than they were yesterday.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Rudolph Freeman and a party of workers equipped with shovels and a screen left early this morning for the spot where Cross' body was found. It was their plan to dig up the ground and sift it in an effort to find the bullets which caused the man's death.

Own Gun Used? Their principal motive is to determine whether or not Cross' own gun was used in his killing, and, if possible, learn from the condition of the bullets which of them found their mark in his head.

Interest in the mystery which surrounds Cross' death continued high today, with various inquiries coming in from the lower Michigan territory. Cross was well known in the community in which he lived and the officials, as well as his friends in that district, are eager to learn every detail of the investigation as it progresses.

COPPER TARIFF IN U. S. URGED

Industry Must Be Protected, Expert Tells Producers

New York, Nov. 24 (AP)—A. E. Petermann, counsel for three large copper producers, said tonight that with the copper market outside this country already lost to foreign competition the industry in the United States faces oblivion unless it is protected by a tariff.

Petermann, counsel for the Calumet and Hecla, Consolidated Copper company, Phelps-Dodge and the Calumet of Arizona company, was a speaker at a dinner of copper producers and experts at the Engineers' club.

Tracing the growth of foreign production since the producers here curtailed their output to meet a situation similar to the present one ten years ago, he said that at that time the metal business of the world was controlled by companies in the United States due to the fact that over 62 per cent of all the commodities came from American mines.

Foreign production ten years ago, he said, was not sufficient to meet the demands of consumers abroad. But, he continued, the output abroad now in excess of that of the United States, is at the present time not only able to take care of all foreign demands, but is sufficient to ship the metal into this country and at a price lower than the cost here. Meanwhile, he said, the United States has no market for its surplus.

Opposition to the opinions voiced by Petermann came from P. E. Harbour, mining engineer and consultant, and W. W. Lynch and Arthur Notman, officials of the United Verde Copper company.
