PINCHOT ASKS FEDERAL HELP FOR JOBLESS

GOVERNOR TO GIVE FOURTH INCOME TO CHARITY

Washington, Nov. 30 (AP)—To the door of the national government, Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania tonight brought a demand for federal relief for the unemployed to be paid out of the pockets of the wealthy.

The spare, grey-haired Pennsylvanian, who has been mentioned as a presidential possibility, assailed the relief program of the administration as inadequate. He spoke his views in an address before the District of Columbia League of Women Voters.

During the day, leaders of several liberal organizations met to discuss unemployment on the eve of the congressional session. They also criticized the government relief efforts.

Norman Thomas, 1928 Socialist presidential candidate, said "the so-called progressives in congress have failed."

Analyzing current economic conditions, Pinchot said "concentration of wealth had reduced consuming power" and had increased production beyond the limits of demand.

He took issue with the administration's reported plan for sponsoring a selected sales tax as a means of meeting the treasury deficit, and called for higher income tax rates on the larger incomes to solve the deficit problem.

"But I am willing that the government shall take more of my income," he said, "than that mine should suffer from want and hunger," he continued.

Makes Offer Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 30 (AP)—The Pinchot Davis correspondence on unemployment relief became more caustic today with the promise that the Pennsylvania governor would give one fourth of his annual gross income.

The governor, giving his 1930 gross income as $52,650.46, dismissed as "fantastic" the senator's proposal that Governor and Mrs. Pinchot and Senator and Mrs. Davis their entire annual incomes. The proposal, he said, was "obviously not in good faith and requires no further attention."

From Washington, Senator Davis greeted the Pinchot promise with the terse statement: "P. T. Barnum, the master showman, also always had a way out."

The governor, saying he proposed to proceed without Davis, quoted U. S. treasury department figures as placing his 1930 net income at $37,139.49 and the gross at $52,650.46.

"My contributions to relief this year will amount to one quarter of my gross income for 1930, he added. "If my gross income in 1931 is larger than in 1930 I will contribute one quarter of the larger sum."

Should the governor's income from 1930 sources continue and be supplemented by his $18,000 annual salary as governor, the 1931 gross would be $70,000. One fourth of this amount $17,500, would represent practically the contribution of his full gubernatorial salary to relief work.

REICHERT WILL GO ON STAND

Banking Commissioner to Be Called as Witness in Allan Trial

Detroit, Nov. 30 (AP)—Rudolph E. Reichert, state commissioner of banking, will be called as a prosecution witness in the trial of Robert M. Allan, former president of the defunct American State Bank, on a charge of embezzling $106,000.

The state's request to call Reichert was granted today by Recorder's Judge W. McKay Skillman after Gordon Fearnley, former executive vice president of the bank, had testified that Reichert had declared the American State Bank solvent and recommended the declaration of a dividend two weeks before the bank was taken over by the Peoples Wayne County Bank.

Reichert was president of the bank from Monday to Wednesday preceding the suspension of operations last March. Later Gov. Wilbur M. Brucker reappointed him banking commissioner. He had resigned the office to accept the presidency of the American State Bank.

Fearnley's disclosures were made during his fifth day on the stand and at the beginning of the third week of the trial. He said Reichert's recommendation of a dividend was made at a directors' meeting February 28, 1931, and that later a dividend was declared. He was unable to recall whether the dividend was declared at the meeting of February 28.

Last Friday defense attorneys charged that Reichert was aware that the bank was continuing its loans to the American-Detroit company, one of its three subsidiaries, despite his order for their cessation.

FLOOR LEADER HOWEVER NOT YET SELECTED

LONG DEBATE FAILS TO SETTLE CONTROVERSY

Washington, Nov. 30 (AP)—Representative Snell of New York emerged from the bittermost house Republican row in years tonight with the party's nomination for the speakership but no assurance he had won the prize he actually was seeking.

With the Democrats in a position to organize the chamber, his goal was the floor leadership of the party, claimed by Representative Tilson of Connecticut, his principal opponent in today's contest for the speakership.

Tilson was chosen for the post when the party renominated the late Nicholas Longworth as speaker last February. He claims this decision still stands, whether or not the party succeeds in electing Snell to the speakership when congress convenes next Monday.

Snell still remains. Snell contends that if the Democrats win an organization, he will become floor leader automatically by virtue of his nomination for the speakership.

Today's party conference attempted to straighten out the snarl in which the question is entangled, but after much debate deferred a final decision until after congress convenes.

Seven ballots were taken before the speakership nomination went to the New Yorker. Throughout the voting, Tilson's support steadily decreased and finally he conceded the battle to his opponent and moved that he be nominated.

The action was then taken unanimously. The Connecticut member has been for years one of the most rigid of regular Republicans. He has consistently upheld President Hoover's legislative policies.

Snell on the other hand has broken with the administration in several instances, notably on the question of redeeming the soldiers' bonus.

Tilson took the lead on the first ballot with 59 votes to Snell's 55. "Favorite sons" trailed with support confined largely to their state delegations.

Tilson still led on the second ballot with 64 to Snell's 63 but in the third the New Yorker forged ahead with 70 to the Connecticut member's 65. Mapes, of Michigan, who ran third, picked up some votes outside of Michigan.

The fourth ballot gave Snell 80 to Tilson's 69. On the fifth, the New Yorker gained four more while Tilson lost two. The sixth ballot showed a definite trend toward Snell who gathered 87 to Tilson's 66. The New Yorker gathered nine votes from the other contenders to give him 96 on the seventh ballot while Tilson dropped to 64.

DEER HUNTING SEASON POOR

Nimrods Found Weather Unsatisfactory, Several Fatalities

Marquette, Mich., Nov. 30 (AP)—The most unsatisfactory deer hunting season in many years ended tonight and a recapitulation showed four hunters killed in the field. Two other men were killed as they made preparations to open the season and one man is missing. There were 59 fatalities during the 1930 season.

Mild weather during the early part of the two-weeks open season handicapped the hunters. It was so warm that deer carcasses had to be removed within three days at the most. Not until the declining days of the season was there snow and then only in the upper peninsula. In some portions of that section, the snow was too light to be of material benefit in tracking game.

The fatalities are as follows: Carl Seagrave, 18, Hudson, Mich., killed when the gun of his partner, Ellis Potter, was discharged accidentally November 18.

Reinforcements were sent from Mukden to repel the expected advance on the walled city. The Nanking government accepted the League of Nations proposal for the establishment of a neutral zone.

The Chinese commander at Chinchow was informed of this decision, and instructed to communicate it to foreign military observers there, one of whom is the American military attaché at Peiping. It was said at the Nanking foreign office, is considered by China to be in the hands of the neutral observers on the spot.

At Peiping both Chinese and Japanese authorities denied agreement had been reached to stop hostilities, but said negotiations were under way. Secret discussions of peace terms continued in Paris. Japan's delegation to the League of Nations council insisted the Japanese army have the right to chase bandits in the proposed neutral zone and declared the Chinese troops must retire behind the Great Wall.

4,750 CARCASSES

Mackinaw City, Mich., Nov. 30 (AP)—The official count at noon today showed that 4,750 deer carcasses had been ferried across the Straits of Mackinac this season, compared with 5,900 last year.

The count also included 70 bears, eight bobcats, 10 foxes, 17 coyotes, six timber wolves and one bald eagle which was alive.

Tom Mix Definitely On Way to Recovery

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 30 (AP)—Physicians said tonight that Tom Mix, motion picture star, is definitely on the road to recovery after lying near death for a week as a result of an attack of peritonitis.

The infection began after an operation for appendicitis Nov. 23. Last Tuesday his doctors said, "if Tom Mix recovers, he will be the luckiest man alive."

Saturday night a cold with resultant temperature increased concern, but tonight's bulletin from Dr. R. Nichol Smith reported: "His condition is satisfactory, and it looks now he will be out of the hospital in a couple of weeks."

VICE CRUSADER SHOOTS YOUTH

Undercover Man Drunk, Witnesses Say; Boy Seriously Hurt

Chicago, Nov. 30 (AP)—Daniel L. Gilday, 65, vice crusader and undercover agent of the state's attorney's office, was held tonight in connection with the shooting of Herman Knol, 17, who with a companion sought to aid Gilday as they were on their way to church last night.

The boy's condition was very serious, physicians said, but there was some hope of recovery. The charges to be placed against Gilday would be determined, prosecutors said, by the recovery or death of the youth he admitted shooting.

Two versions of the affair were related today, with statements upholding the character of both parties. There was agreement on this much—that Gilday, vice president of the Englewood law and order league, director of the better government association and for many years a leader in reform movements, met young Knol and Herman Alkema, 16, on a southside street last night, that he shot Knol and that he was found by police lying not far from the wounded boy.

Find Whisky Bottle. Alkema said, and three other boys who claimed to have been witnesses to the shooting substantiated his story, that he and Knol approached the elderly man because he appeared to be intoxicated. He said they helped Gilday stand up and offered to take him a pistol, shot Knol and then fell to the sidewalk. The policemen who found Gilday and who booked him at a southside station said he was intoxicated and that they found a pint bottle half full of whisky in one of his pockets.

Gilday said the two boys tried to hold him up and that he shot in self defense. He denied being intoxicated and asserted that the bottle was "planted" in his pocket. Gilday said he was an investigator for the state's attorney's office and Pat Roche, chief investigator, admitted he had given Gilday a star to conduct undercover work. Gilday said he was given the pistol four years ago by Alexander Jamie, now chief investigator for the "secret six," then a government employe. Jamie denied having given Gilday the pistol.

"I never gave Gilday that gun or any other," he said. An associate of Gilday's, in a statement reaffirming his belief in the man's character, suggested that he may have staggered and appeared to be intoxicated because of an attack of heart trouble.

The pastor of a mission the two boys were headed for last night said both Knol and Alkema had excellent characters and were regular church attendants.

Lindbergh Returns To Mitchel Field

Mitchel Field, N. Y., Nov. 30 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh landed here tonight on his return flight from the south where he inaugurated a new air service across the Caribbean.

Col. Lindbergh set his plane down at 9:45 p. m., one hour and 25 minutes after he had taken off from Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md.

He circled the field twice before landing, but the unfavorable weather of earlier in the day had lifted somewhat and he had no trouble in landing.

He appeared greatly fatigued and immediately entered a waiting automobile and left the field. The colonel was flying the army plane which he borrowed Nov. 13 to fly to Miami, Fla., to take the controls of the giant new cabin plane American Clipper for a portion of its maiden flight from Miami to Cristobal.

BODY OF ROCK CHILD TAKEN FROM QUARRY

TOM WURTZ VICTIM OF TRAGEDY ON WAY HOME

Rock, Nov. 30 (Special)—Falling through a thin film of ice, Tom Wurtz, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wurtz, of Rock, was drowned today in an abandoned quarry. The child's body was recovered in four feet of water shortly after six o'clock this evening.

The Wurtz boy, a kindergarten student, left school at 7:30 o'clock this afternoon, presumably to go home, in company with Benny Lippens, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Lippens of St. Nicholas. When the Wurtz child failed to appear home before dark.

ISSUES WARNING. The Delta County sheriff's department again issued a warning yesterday for persons to be especially careful of walking on the ice. The department pointed out that there has not yet been enough cold weather to make the ice solid enough for walking or skating and that the practice is exceptionally dangerous.

apprehension for his safety was aroused and a search began. Searchers traced the boy to a quarry which is located at the rear of the school gymnasium. One of the child's mittens was found near the quarry and the hole in the ice offered mute testimony of the tragedy. The body was found at the bottom of the water.

Pulmotor Is Used. Sheriff's department officials who were called on the case arrived just as the child's body was being removed from the quarry. A pulmotor was used for more than an hour in an effort to resuscitate the young boy but it was apparent that he had been in the water for at least two hours, and the efforts were futile.

When the body of the Wurtz child was recovered, fear for the safety of the Lippens child who was seen nearby, was allayed. The Wurtz child was immediately aroused. The quarry was a deep hole.

It is certain that the Lippens boy had not met his death with Wurtz. An investigation at St. Nicholas as revealed that young Lippens was home safe. The child, frightened, at first denied that he knew anything of the drowning of Wurtz but later admitted to his mother that he was with Tom Wurtz and that he saw him fall through the ice.

The Lippens boy said that he immediately left the scene of the tragedy, too frightened to report the case. As the Lippens child boarded the school bus to return to St. Nicholas at 4:30, it was apparent that the Wurtz child was drowned between 2:30 when he was released from school and 4:30 when the Lippens child left for home on the school bus.

The body of the Wurtz boy was taken to the Alto funeral home in Escanaba for burial preparations. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

149 Congressmen Ready for Popular Vote On Dry Laws

New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—With its canvass less than half complete, the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform tonight announced that 149 members of the seventy-second congress had replied affirmatively to its question of submitting the Eighteenth amendment to popular vote.

Forty-nine of the 251 members so far responding replied negatively, while 53 were noncommittal. The question, which was sent to all 531 members of the house and senate, was: "Will you vote in favor of a proposal under article V of the Constitution of the United States for the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment thereto, to be submitted to conventions in the several states for ratification or rejection?"

Mrs. Charles Sabin, national chairman of the women's anti-prohibition organization, computed the number of replies at 47.3 percent of the congressional membership, of which she said 59.3 per cent favored submission, 19.5 per cent opposed, and 21.1 per cent were noncommittal.

PRESIDENT NEARING CRUCIAL TEST OF HIS CAREER

GANDHI PLEADS FOR FREEDOM

Indian Leader Says He Is Ready to Start Campaign Anew

London, Dec. 1 (Tuesday)—Mahatma Gandhi emerged dramatically from his customary Monday of silence with the fervor of a crusader to launch into a stirring speech in behalf of Indian independence at the round-table conference early today.

India's foremost orators previously had joined in dramatic midnight appeals to Prime Minister MacDonald to ignore "diehards" and give India a federal constitution with responsibility at the center.

Would Renew Fight

Throughout the day there had been a torrent of addresses lasting 13 hours and totalling nearly half a million words, which swamped official stenographers and newspaper reporters.

In the midst of the flood of oratory, the Mahatma in his inimitable sat muts and inscrutable until the end of his day of silence. Then he suddenly spoke.

"I would strain every nerve to secure an honorable settlement without exposing the millions of India's men, women and children to the terrible ordeal of civil disobedience," he said. "But if the fight has to be forced, I will renew it with joy."

"Call it by whatever name you will, but I want complete independence," he said. "I crave the friendship and do not wish to break the bond between England and India, but that bond must be of real friendship based upon freedom."

"I agree this conference has secured a considerable measure of agreement, but we have not yet come to grips with the real subject. I fully realize we have baffling problems; but we will be able to find solutions."

The preliminary voting included Representative Hoch of Kansas, Dowell of Iowa, Harbour of California, LaGuardia of New York, Purnell of Indiana, Schneider of Wisconsin, Luce of Massachusetts, Cooper of Ohio, Clague of Minnesota, and Britton of Illinois.

Immediately after Snell's election, Tilson took the floor and asked the conference to decide whether he would be floor leader if the Republicans lost house control to the Democrats.

Two hours of debate resulted in a stalemate. Unable to settle the issue, a number of parliamentarians conceded that Tilson's selection as floor leader at the February conference would continue until action was taken to remove him.

Tilson said after the conference "I am ready to go forward as leader until positive action is taken to remove me."

"It has always been the custom for the speakership nominee to assume the minority leadership whenever his party fails to control the house," Snell said.

The conference began at 10:10 and lasted until after 5 o'clock with no time out for luncheon.

It adjourned until one o'clock tomorrow, when consideration of a program to liberalize the rules of procedure will begin.

Snell said tonight the Republicans would continue their plans to organize the house as the majority party. He said it would not be known until Monday whether the Democrats would be successful in selecting Representative Garner of Texas as speaker and in assuming control of the house.

With Speaker Longworth, Snell and Tilson in recent congresses constituted the Republican high command of the house. Tilson was floor leader and Snell chairman of the powerful rules committee, which decides what legislation shall reach the floor.

Movie Stars Will Be Asked To Take Big Salary Slash

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 30. (AP)—Indications that the stars of the cinematic firmament will be asked to take less money for their services came to a head today when Warner Bros.-First National notified their contract players they would be asked to agree to 20 to 30 per cent salary cuts.

This major studio has on its roster such high-salaried stars as Richard Barthelmess, George Arliss, Dorothy Mackall, William Powell, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Bebe Daniels, Edward G. Robinson, Ruth Chatterton, Joe E. Brown, and Winnie Lightner.

These people, many of whom draw as much as $7,500 a week, and the lesser known, whose pay checks start at $100 and go up, have been asked, it is reported, to agree to cuts as high as 30 per cent.

House Enemy Camp; But He Wields Veto

By KIRKE SIMPSON

Washington (AP)—On the threshold of his fourth year in office, Herbert Hoover is face to face with the most perplexing and perhaps most critical moment of his presidential term. There is no parallel for the hair-line status of party power in both houses as the new congress, the seventy-second, meets. A last moment travel accident could upset the delicate balance between Republicans and Democrats.

Yet for the president the session may have vital personal results. It may make him a one term president.

Or it may bring him next November that vote of confidence that is always the goal of first term presidents—which means a second term.

Armed With Veto Power

Mr. Hoover goes to this test of his presidential leadership, of his ability to guide the course of legislation, armed only with his constitutional veto power.

The firmly held and used Republican majority in the house of the last congress, which staved off for him many a resort to the veto budget of presidential coercion, has been swept away.

In the senate the ranks of his Democratic foes have been strengthened to lack but a vote or two of a majority.

Holds Whip Hand

The president can count on no pre-election urge for party unity to aid him as the clash of judgment and political interests opens, save in one respect.

Except in rare cases, his veto probably could not be overridden in the house.

He still holds the whip hand to prevent legislation he disapproves.

He may not dictate an affirmative program to overcome a two-year cycle of depression, to meet the deficit, or to better the appeal of himself and his party at the polls next year.

Initiative With Hoover

Initiative rests with the president. It would do so even had both senate and house been so swept by the Democrats in 1930 and subsequent special elections as to have established them in definite working majorities at both ends of the capitol.

That Mr. Hoover appreciates the situation in which he finds himself goes without saying.

Long before the congressional session date rolled around he was working long hours than previous chief executives have usually found necessary.

Every suggestion of an extra session to meet emergency purposes was cold-shouldered.

Presidential silence met every turn of the political cards at regular or special elections which whittled away a Republican majority in the house.

Poets Crisis Exists

Yet even to the casual eye it was apparent that Mr. Hoover found these portents day by day to add to his worries.

The president feels and has said that the economic crisis confronts the government and people of the United States and an emergency no less grave than a major war.

Behind that lies his realization that, lacking dictatorial powers such as are always promptly vested in the president in war times, no machinery exists with which to deal quickly, efficiently with each new phase of the situation as it presents itself.

Planned His Message Early

Mr. Hoover began work on his first message to the new congress weeks before the session was ready to open.

In his handling of the debt-reparations moratorium emergency, still to be formally ratified by congress, and in connection with the banking pool plan for releasing frozen credits he urged, there has been the intimation which he hoped for a virtual coalition in congress as in war days, behind depression relief measures he would propose.

Democratic and Republican leaders in both houses were called into council at the White House in both those instances.

There have been indications of an even wider and confidential effort by the president to pave the way for this session by preliminary understandings with key men in both parties.

To what extent he has found sympathetic listeners among the congressional leaders of either party to whom he has talked privately during the months while congress was not in session has not been clearly apparent.

Garner Rejects Truce

As prospective Democratic speaker of the house should his party take over organization of that body, Rep. John Garner of Texas has rejected the idea of any general political truce.

Nor has there been any word from Republican irregulars in the senate like Brookhart of Iowa or Johnson of California that they were prepared to lay aside intraparty political differences.

On the contrary, they have both openly declared themselves against Mr. Hoover's renomination for the presidency.

With party lines so closely divided in the new congress, it is to be expected in normal circumstances that a battle royal for partisan advantage would mark its sessions from the hour it assembles to the moment of adjournment next summer for the two national political conventions.

All members of the house and more than a third of the senators will be up for reelection in November, 1932, unless they volun-

arily step aside or, as in the case of a score or so house members, they have been crowded off the stage by reapportionment changes.

Political Fortunes At Stake

Too many personal political fortunes, other than those of President Hoover, are at stake for politics to be wholly adjourned this winter save in specific cases.

How President Hoover will deal with this troubled congressional situation nothing in his political career clearly forecasts. He has few presidential precedents to fall back upon.

President Cleveland faced a hostile congress with relentless use of the veto. That and his powers of persuasion seem Mr. Hoover's only reliance.

Yet vetoes are two-edged weapons, often dangerous politically to presidents.

That is a circumstance political veterans "on the hill" who oppose Mr. Hoover for party or other reasons are not likely to forget.

OPPOSE CHANGE IN BANK LAWS

Federal Reserve System Not in Favor of Hoover Plan

Washington, Nov. 30. (AP)—Disapproval of proposals to liberalize rediscunt requirements as suggested by President Hoover, came today from the federal reserve system in answer to a questionnaire from the senate subcommittee on banking.

Meanwhile, taxation and farm relief arose on Capitol Hill again to vie with banking in holding the interest of senatorial circles in preliminary legislative skirmishing.

Chairman Jones of the appropriations committee joined others in advocating higher income taxes to help meet the deficit.

Senator Brookhart, Republican of Iowa, gave an idea of what might be expected if threats are carried out to abolish the farm board. He said he would offer a bill to give the board another revolving fund—this time $1,500,000,000, or three times that agency's original fund.

Under his proposal, the board would be empowered to fix prices on staple farm commodities.

Hoover Asked Changes.

The banking subcommittee, headed by Senator Glass, Democrat of Virginia, buckled down to the task of revising a rough draft of a measure to tighten federal reserve credit against stock speculation. In addition it made public the replies of the reserve banks to the questionnaire.

When President Hoover launched his national credit pool plan he told assembled party leaders he favored changes in the federal reserve act under which certain types of paper not now eligible for discount at the banks of the system would be made so. The purpose of the move was to enable smaller banks to liquidate sound paper now classed as "frozen assets."

With a few exceptions, the 12 reserve banks were against altering existing regulations, rulings of the reserve board or provisions relative to paper eligible for rediscouting, now largely notes that can be readily liquidated.

The replies of the banks are expected on Capitol Hill to be given serious consideration in studying President Hoover's proposal.

Glass has opposed making certain types of paper eligible for rediscouting, particularly railroad securities, which many small banks now hold and are unable to liquidate conveniently. He has promised a bill for early submission to congress, however.

The general purpose of the bill will be to plug up the holes through which millions of dollars of federal reserve credit has leaked out into the stock market for speculation. It also will seek to curb chain banking.

INDUSTRY FILLING UP.

Washington—The ranks of aviation's manufacturers are rapidly filling, according to a recent report of the Aeronautics Department of Commerce. The Aeronautics Trade Directory shows a listing of 2818 manufacturers, an increase of about 200 over last year. This listing includes plane, engine and parts manufacturers.

Secret Service at Work Checking All Communist Demands

Washington, Nov. 30 (AP)—Secret service operatives in several cities were active today checking the courses of telegrams to President Hoover demanding free food and lodging for the self-called "National Hunger Marchers" converging upon Washington for a demonstration.

The name "Hunger Marchers" was applied to the group in unsigned literature it has disseminated. Some of this is in the hands of the secret service, officials of which have said the movement is led by communists.

Immediately upon receipt of fresh telegrams to the president, long distance telephone calls set agents at work determining whether communist leaders are connected with the demands for food and shelter.

This was part of a far-flung inquiry instituted when similar messages were received at the White House last week. The secret service said at least one organization involved was "straight out and out communist" and that one signer of a message was a "radical communist."

Cannon's Counsel Pleads His Defense

Washington, Nov. 30. (AP)—Bishop James Cannon Jr., came to court today to hear a barrage of legal verbiage derided at an indictment charging him with federal law violations during the 1928 presidential campaign.

The Southern Methodist churchman sat holding his crutch within the enclosure of the District of Columbia supreme court's criminal division. Nearby were his six attorneys, supporting his demurrer alleging the corrupt practices law is unconstitutional.

Two of his counsel spoke and Assistant District Attorney John Wilson began the government's reply. Arguments will be concluded tomorrow afternoon and Justice James Proctor will take the case under advisement.

Old Escanaba River Accident Recalled

"The American Lumberman" in its "Fifty Years Ago" department contains the following item which will be of interest to Escanabans, particularly the older residents of the city:

"Recently three young men employed by Ben Young in constructing the bridge across the Escanaba river, Michigan, undertook to come down the river on a raft they had constructed for the purpose. The raft broke up at Chandler's Falls. Peter Grant reached a jam of logs and drifted the falls; Henry Prodenzart clung to a log and got ashore two miles below the falls; he, Peter B. Young, was drowned. Grant was saved by the L. Ludington company's mill crew after being imprisoned on the dam 28 hours."

The Ben Young, the employer mentioned in the item, was the father of Ben Young and A. J. Young of this city, and the B. Young who lost his life was his cousin.

GERMANY STILL IN BAD STRAITS

Country Heavily in Debt With Much Pressure From France

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER.

New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—The German situation is gradually reaching its climax, and two conferences to be held in the near future will to a considerable extent determine the economic and political fate of Germany.

This view was expressed in an interview today by Dr. John T. Madden, dean of the School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance, and Dr. Marcus Nadler, professor of finance, at New York university.

They explained that at present Germany's total amount of short term debts may be conservatively estimated at between $2,200,000,000 and $2,500,000,000. This is substantially above the $1,900,000,000 estimate in the report of the British committee.

In discussing the cleavage of opinion between France on the one hand, and Great Britain and the United States on the other, they said: "If the French are to have their way, Germany will be forced into bankruptcy which will not only weaken the status of the private creditors, but will also destroy Germany's capacity to pay reparations."

Dr. Madden and Dr. Nadler are well-known in the financial world as director and assistant director, respectively, of the Institute of International Finance. They emphasized, however, that in discussing the German situation today, they were speaking strictly as individuals, and not as representatives of the institute.

This institute was founded five years ago by the Investment Bankers Association of America.

Prominent New York bankers have been reluctant to issue any formal statements on the German situation, in advance of the discussions at Berlin and Basel for which Albert H. Wiggin and Walter W. Stewart sailed on Saturday. In informal interviews, however, they take a somewhat optimistic view of the matter, pointing out that it now is in a bargaining stage, which may be expected eventually to develop into a more conciliatory attitude all around.

American short term private credits to Germany have been estimated as high as $500,000,000, but are now undrafted to have been somewhat reduced.

New Schedule Now for State Ferries

Starting today and continuing until the close of navigation, state automobile ferries at the Straits of Mackinac will operate on a new schedule, dropping the extra trips maintained during the deer hunting season. Only five round trips will be made daily between Mackinaw City and St. Ignace, a decrease of six sailings as compared to the regular fall schedule.

An early boat will leave St. Ignace at 6 a. m. as during the fall, but the first boat from Mackinaw City in the morning will leave an hour and a half later than previously, the time being changed at 7:30 a. m., instead of 6 a. m.

Previously the last boats at night left Mackinaw City and St. Ignace at 9 p. m. Under the revamped schedule, the last St. Ignace boat will depart at 6 p. m. and the last Mackinaw City ferry will leave at 7:30.

The new schedule follows:
 Leave Mackinaw City — 7:30 a. m., 10:30 a. m., 1 p. m., 4:30 p. m. and 7:30 p. m.
 Leave St. Ignace—6 a. m., 9 a. m., 12 noon, 3 p. m. and 6 p. m.

After the state boats cease operation, ferry service will be furnished by railroad car ferries at the same rate which motorists pay on the state-operated boats, plus regular railroad fare for passengers crossing the Straits. The railroad is reimbursed by the state for the difference between the regular state boat rate and the railroad ferry rate.

Navy Man Tells Clubs Of China

Members of the Escanaba Rotary and Kiwanis clubs participated in a most enjoyable joint session at the Ladington hotel at noon yesterday when Ernest Stevens, in charge of the Escanaba recruiting station, gave a short talk and presented two reels of pictures, showing the activities of the United States Navy. The scenes shown in the pictures were largely taken in China and Chinese waters and were of particular interest at this time, because of the war now threatened in Manchuria.

Members of the "Little German band" of the Escanaba high school appeared during the serving of the luncheon and presented several numbers, each of which drew enthusiastic applause.

Munising News

Illegal Slaughter Of Deer Numerous

Last Sunday night boys informed William Cromell, conservation officer, that a wounded fawn had run down the west Munising hills, traversed the Brown Addition and taken to the water. Mr. Cromell, guided by the boys and using a flash light, found the still warm carcass of the animal lying on the beach. It was a very small buck. The deer had been shot through both thighs, had run a considerable distance and taken to the lake. Mr. Cromell divided up the venison for use among needy persons. Game Warden's have informed the Press that dead does have been found lying near the highways in Alger county this fall, evidently shot from automobiles and left where killed on account of fear of possession which might lead to detection of such violation.

MUNISING BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Axel Johnson and two children Peggy and George are back from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Wickholm at Escanaba. Will is a Munising boy who has worked his way through college and spent his spare time in newspaper work, developing exceptional ability as a writer. CAUGHT SIX COYOTES

H. P. Williams, leader of predatory animal control has captured six coyotes in traps in the locality of the McDougall farm, on M94, near Munising. In addition he has also caught eighteen skunks. Livestock is slaughtered upon the farm and it is believed that the coyotes have been attracted to that locality on account of the refuse from the slaughtered animals and the scent of the blood.

It may be noted here that coyotes were unknown upon the Upper Peninsula until within comparatively recent years. They gradually worked their way from the western country into Minnesota and Wisconsin and since into Upper Michigan. This country is particularly well adapted as a habitation for these animals and they have increased rapidly within the past few years. The so-called "brush wolf," frequently found in Wisconsin has not appeared in this section of the country. He is evidently a cross between a coyote and a timber wolf. Clubthis .plut

TREE INSPECTOR IS HERE TODAY

Christmas Evergreens Must Be Tagged Before Shipment

Christmas trees and evergreens slated for shipment, either in large or small lots, will be inspected at Escanaba today by John Garver, state tree inspector who is working in the peninsula. He will be at the county agricultural agent's office.

This will probably be the last opportunity to have trees inspected here, as Mr. Garver is closing up his work in the district, and his visit today is to accommodate the number of shippers who have been unable to get their inspection tags before.

Several tree growers and shippers have called at the office of County Farm Agent J. E. Turner during the last week with trees to be inspected, but the county agents are not making inspections this year. Those who wish to have their shipments approved and tagged are advised to get in touch with Mr. Garver at Mr. Turner's office today. The law requires that all such trees must have a state inspection before they may be shipped legally.

Funds Budgeted For Farm Tree Planting in 1932

Forty states and territories of the United States will spend a total of $201,917 for growing and distributing trees for planting of farm forests in 1932, according to budget figures received by A. B. Hastings, Chief of State Cooperation of the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture. The federal government will allow $73,288 to these states under the cooperative farm-forest planting clause of the Clarke-McNary act. The states cooperating have budgeted $645,298 for various forest tree production and distribution purposes for the fiscal year 1932, lacking less than $5,000 of reaching the mark for 1931. About 31 per cent of the total state funds will be used for farm-forest planting arrangements in which the federal government is cooperating.

In addition to the $73,288 in federal allotments for 1932, $3,150 is to be available for administrative purposes and $18,561 as a contingent fund for allotments to new states entering the cooperative arrangement making a total federal budget of $95,000 for aid in farm reforestation. With last year's state and federal funds the states furnished approximately 25,000,000 trees for planting in farm forests.

Nylic's Radio Programs for the Next Two Weeks

Our Radio Programs are broadcast every Tuesday evening at 8:30 P. M. C. S. T. over W. E. N. R. or W. L. W. by Nylic's radio biographer, Frazier Hunt.

December 1: Daniel Willard; President of the Baltimore and Ohio R. R., who started his career as a section hand when railroad engines were wood-burners and were gayly decorated with the names of famous war generals; who became fireman, brakeman, engineer, district superintendent, and so on up the ladder to the top; a romance of the rails in their formative days. Mr. Hunt will report some of Mr. Willard's impressions of present day problems compared with those of earlier times.

December 8: Hellen Keller's Teacher; Every one knows the story of Hellen Keller, who could neither hear, speak, nor see, and has nevertheless become one of our most highly cultivated women of America. She acknowledged that she owes her training and education to Anne Sullivan Macy who, as a half blind graduate of the Perkins Institute of Boston, was sent to Hellen Keller as a teacher, and opened up a living world to this seven year old child, who, until she met Miss Sullivan, had been living in a black and silent void. Frazier Hunt says that the association of these two extraordinary women is the most remarkable story of human endeavor, in the face of apparently unsurmountable obstacles, that has ever come to his knowledge.

VALUE OF CAVALRY

WHATEVER else the current unpleasantness in Manchuria may have done, it has at least restored to the art of war a traditional feature that some of us had supposed extinct forever—the cavalry.

Soldiers on horseback are figuring largely in nearly all of the dispatches that describe Japanese and Chinese military operations.

Indeed, as a matter of fact, cavalry was used considerably in the World War. It was only in France that it lost its utility.

Of course, the day of the old-style picturesque cavalry charge, as in Waterloo, is ended. Machine guns and rapid-fire light artillery have made that a certainty.

After all, it has been chiefly the amateur who has proclaimed the extinction of the cavalry. The trained soldiers in charge of the world's armies, it is worth remembering, have insisted on keeping their cavalry units. The operations in Manchuria indicate that they knew what they were doing.

ON BOOSTING MINOR SPORTS

THE suggestion made by L. I. Forsythe, president of the Michigan Federation of High School Athletics, that minor sports should be emphasized more in school days, is worthy of serious consideration.

Such major sports as football and basketball hold the spotlight in school athletic programs nowadays and attract the largest crowds of spectators. Comparatively few students participate in such major sports, however, and the greater percentage of those who have played these games in school, drop them when their student days are over.

In recent years, more attention to the minor sports has been given in the Escanaba public schools with the establishment of a comprehensive physical education program.

WOULD CONFISCATE REAL PROPERTY

AGENTS of the prohibition force have been going about the upper peninsula warning the owners of real estate, in which it is believed the prohibition law is being violated, that if conviction is obtained against the tenant in federal court that confiscation of the property is not unlikely.

When asked by a representative of Iron Ore about this new procedure, a federal officer replied that there is nothing in the recent liquor laws that permits such a course, but that there is an internal revenue act, passed 50 years or so ago, that provides for confiscation and public sale of real estate when conviction has been obtained for violation of liquor laws.

The officer further remarked that it is intended to try out the archaic statute in the upper peninsula because this part of the United States court of western Michigan is caught up on its liquor cases, whereas nearly all of the other districts throughout the country now have many cases awaiting trial.

It is the contention of Iron Ore that a test is to be made in upper Michigan because the government has been highly successful in the prosecution of its cases in the territory mentioned. Few violators have escaped after being taken into the federal court. The grand juries have been given their support by voting true bills and the traverse juries have in most cases voted for conviction.

If the law is, however, applicable here, it should be made to serve in all other judicial districts. That old game of flesh for one and fish for another never did meet with favor.

To go back three-quarters of a century and dig up an old act, looks like an admission on the part of the authorities charged with the enforcement of the prohibition laws that the Volstead act and the Jones law are not meeting the situation. The Volstead act specifies that motor vehicles used in the liquor traffic may be confiscated and sold at public auction, but the lawmakers did not specify real estate. The more recent legislation also permits the padlocking of a building after a conviction in court.

This publication holds no brief for the man engaged in illicit traffic, but it does appear to us that to take real property from an innocent property owner would be going just a step too far. Suppose you lived in Ishpeming and owned a building in some other upper peninsula city that you rented to good faith to a tenant whom you believed to be reliable in every way and intent upon conducting a legitimate business and that the tenant violated the federal laws and was convicted as charged; that the government took possession of the building and ordered it sold for what it would bring at public sale, would you consider that you had been treated fairly by Uncle Sam, in whom you always had every confidence? We doubt very much if you would.

If it is legal to take property in this manner, why should it not be legal to apply the same ruling to other criminal violations of the federal laws. If a narcotic peddler is caught in a Chicago hotel plying his game, why not order the hotel confiscated and sold? If aliens smuggled into this country are found hidden away in a private dwelling, why should not the dwelling be seized and disposed of? There is no reason under the sun why prohibition laws should have any higher rating in the eyes of the law than any other federal statute.

The federal government is going to find itself with a heap of property on its hands if it insists upon a strict interpretation of the old law. Many a building seized will not find a purchaser. Money is altogether too scarce at this writing.

The federal government is going to damage the cause of prohibition, which is precarious at the present time, when it starts in to take property away from innocent parties. Confiscation tends to weaken law, and it will do just this in this instance.—Ishpeming Iron Ore.

GEMS OF PERIL

(By NEA Service) By Hazel Ross Haller

CHAPTER XLII

Although he had made no protest, the manager yelled at him as if he had—mostly for effect. "I don't know whose fault it was! I don't care. But if you're still here in five minutes I'll call the police—the lot of you! Where do you think you are? You New York rowdies come down here and think you can—"

His muttering trailed off as he hustled away, scattering a gaping group of waiters with snarled commands, vigorously nodding to the orchestra leader who obediently struck up a noisy jazz number. An excited buzz of conversation rose in the dining-room as they left, surface order having been restored.

Now it became clear what had become of Cornelia and Ethel! With the instinct of self-preservation rising above every other consideration, they had allowed themselves to be taken in tow by a glittering dowager, who was taking it upon herself to see that they were shielded from unpleasantness. Mary recognized the woman, who was preparing to hand her charges into the first elevator that came up, as a rich climber, who no doubt thanked her stars for this Heaven-sent opportunity of making herself "solid" with the right set.

What she did not know, however, was that the flower of the Tabor clan tomorrow would not be able to recall having met her. In the meantime, Cornelia and her chum would have sneaked away from the sordid scene of battle, and by the time the newspapers got wind of the affair, they would be safely entrenched behind their locked hotel-room doors. Dirk could look after himself! It was his fault, for having precipitated such a scene.

His fault! It was her own fault, Mary knew. And although she despised Cornelia for her heartlessness and self-interest, she also burned with shame for her own part in the ugly business. Now Dirk was here, for the time being. She would take care of him until the foot heaved, at least. Then if he chose to go back to Cornelia, she would have to let him go. She hugged to her heart fiercely the hope that this time they would never be parted again.

THE manager dog-trotted ahead of them, clearing the way for the two men who were carrying Dirk—a waiter, and a tall young man with the build of a football player, who had volunteered to help. The dowager, secretly hoping that the man was a reporter no doubt, threw her arms about the girls, shoving them behind her. "Sir! These young women have nothing to do with it. I reluctantly struck up a noisy jazz number. An excited buzz of conversation rose in the dining-room as they left, surface order having been restored.

"Madam, I don't know what you're talking about, but stand back away from the elevator, please. This man must be taken to a doctor." Miffed, the lady huddled her chicks a few feet away. Dirk was lifted into the car and let down gently on the elevator man's stool. Dirk's eyes were closed and his lips drawn tightly back with the effort not to cry out. Mary could not bear the sight; he looked as if he might be dead. Her heart clenched cruelly.

She stepped on the elevator quickly, and beckoned De Loma after her. He hesitated, then followed. It was at this point that Cornelia became aware of what was happening. In her desire to avoid undesirable notoriety, she had not noticed Mary's presence in the party until she was already on the car. Jealousy overcame discretion, and Cornelia rushed out, crying sharply "Stop! Don't let her—"

"All right, George," the tall man said hurriedly under his breath, and the elevator dropped suddenly, cutting off her words in mid-air. The car's plunge swung Dirk about, and he moaned faintly. Mary, clasping his shoulders with fingers like steel, held him motionless, pleaded with the operator to go more slowly. The car steadied, crawled smoothly down, bounded a little at the bottom, and that stage of the painful trip was completed. "Now here to, lady?" "Can you carry him a little farther—just to a taxi?" She remembered suddenly that there had been a dinner-party before all this happened. "The check," she cried, impatiently. "Did anyone pay it?"

"You're with Mr. Jupiter's party, ain't you?" gasped the waiter, stooping to put his weight under Dirk's limp shoulder. "It's all right, Mr. Jupiter paid it. Take hold of his legs, there, brother. That's it!" "Say!" the tall man interjected—he was, as she discovered later, the house detective—"there's a doctor right here in the hotel. Why lug him any farther?" "He's with my party on the 'Gypsy,'" Mary interrupted hurriedly. "The captain is a very good doctor. If we can just get him out there—before any reporters come. It would embarrass his family frightfully—to say nothing of me—"

"The house detective hunched his shoulders indifferently. "Anything you please. Have you got a cab?" DE LOMA, who had been hovering restlessly nearby, now started forward as if galvanized. "I'll get one!" he called back, and ran swiftly to the door. Before she could cry out, he had pushed past the gaping doorman and plunged into the street. "Stop that man! Oh, stop him!"

"What?" The detective frowned. "I took his gun off him, sister—he's harmless—"

She nearly choked trying to explain to him in time that De Loma had her handbag and that it held a necklace worth hundreds of thousands of dollars. She ran after De Loma, the slow-witted detective following, behind them an openmouthed waiter and a bellhop struggled slowly along with Dirk groaning in their arms.

But when she had gained the sidewalk, she was surprised to see De Loma walking toward her at a restrained pace. He was perspiring, as if he had been running, but apparently he had looked in the wrong direction for a cab, for one was already drawn up at the curb, waiting.

Mary simply could not figure it out. He had started out on the run—why should he be walking back so sedately? She gave the detective a puzzled look, and he looked at her as if he thought she must be drunk—or crazy. Then around the corner of the hotel a policeman walked, billy in hand. He approached and eyed the group suspiciously.

He tapped De Loma on the arm. "Hey, buddy, where were you going in such a hurry?" "I told you!" De Loma snarled. "To find a cab for this man here—" he indicated Dirk just being lifted out the doorway. The policeman looked at the house detective. "O. K.," he said and moved off.

"Now," said the house detective to Mary, "what's all this about your handbag?" Mary reddened, as she looked at De Loma. She was in the right, but they made her feel as if she were in the wrong.

"I thought I'd lost it," she stammered. "I forgot you had it!" There was nothing to do but hand it over, which De Loma did grimly. Mary opened it—there was the excuse that she had to tip the waiter and the bellhop who were mopping their brows and panting on the curb, after having got Dirk safely into the waiting taxi. Her hand searched the silted depths desperately. The necklace was not there!

AS Mary stood shivering with dread, uncertain what to do, she heard the sound of oarlocks and the bump of a boat as it hit against the suspended gangway. Picking up her skirts she ran into the arms of Bates, coming up the gangplank. She could have kissed him. "Oh, Bates, I'm scared! The fly is aboard!" she whispered, as my guest, and I think he's prowling around after the rubies. I just came out on deck, and some one ran from near Mr. Jupiter's door. I told him Mr. Jupiter had them!"

"Stay here," Bates commanded. He unbuttoned his coat and loosened the revolver from its holster under his arm. Staying in the shadow of the upper deck he moved quietly along the bulkhead. She saw him stop and test Mr. Jupiter's door, then disappear under the corner where the shadowy figure had run but two minutes before.

The seconds passed like hours as Mary leaned back against the wall, straining her ears to catch every sound. Then Bates reappeared so noiselessly that he startled her.

"All serene," he reported. "The old man's door is locked and the fly is back in his stateroom—three, isn't it?" Mary said "Yes." "I heard his moving around and there's a light under the door. You run along to bed now and old Henry Q. Bates will take care of things. I'll camp right up there on the upper deck in a chair where I can see both your stateroom door and Mr. Jupiter's. Run along, and pleasant dreams."

Mary wrung his hand. "Bates, you're a darling!" "Sure I am. But listen, what's the program now? We didn't find a thing in De Loma's room. Not a thing. Had to tear up carpets and everything. That's what took me so long. You didn't worry, did you? Anyhow, your necklace is safe—right here in old Bates' pocket." He reached into a capacious inner pocket, and drew out the rolled up bundle of napkin—unfolded it bit by bit in his palm, saw that it was empty. A horrible pop-eyed expression froze on his face. "It's gone!" he gasped. It was like the last groan of a dying man.

"Do you mean to say you didn't know that, until now?" Mary cried. "You picked up an empty napkin—I've got the necklace. It's in Mr. Jupiter's safe." Devoutly, Bates ejaculated "Oh my God!" His arms fell limply at his sides.

"Well, how did you—what did you—did you have any trouble—" he stuttered, overcome with shame. "Plenty! I got back with it, but my hair's snow white. Tell you all about it in the morning. Now don't you fret—it wasn't your fault!" It was her turn to pat his shoulder reassuringly. To help him out, she changed the subject.

"Can we get under way at once? Did you see Bruce and the Countess anywhere?" "They're on the pier—the kid's gone back for them now. By the way, here's something your fat friend sent you. He was sitting on the dock waiting when I came up—he wouldn't give it to the sailor." He handed Mary a thick envelope. Curious, she took it to her room.

A single sheet of note paper held the words. "Here's the dope. Keep these. I stole 'em out of the morgue, and I've got to return 'em. But I couldn't resist telling you the good news." There were clippings, yellowed, tinged about the word "De Loma" with a blue pencil and stamped on each clipping was a date—the date of its appearance in a Miami paper. The clippings, read in chronological order, gave the newspaper account of the doings of the celebrated French actress, Louise De Loma, on board a Havana line steamship way back in the year 1924. The steamship line and all other parties concerned had evidently suppressed the news from his face. "It's gone!" he gasped. (Continued On Page Eight.)

SUICIDE

Jim Jones has gone and shot himself, and ev'ryone's excited. They've tromped over Jones's farm, unast and uninvited. The men are talkin' at the store, and women over fences. And ev'rybody seems agreed that Jim just lost his senses. The neighborhood is horrified that Jim'd go and do it. And say he musta been insane, and that's what led him to it.

But no one in the village seems to do a bit of thinkin' About some other suicide whose method's over-drankin'. And no one seems to come right out and say a word in meetin' About some fellah in the town inclined to over-eatin'. Some fellah's doin' sixty mile around the county ridin' But no one seems to notice all the ways of suicidin'.

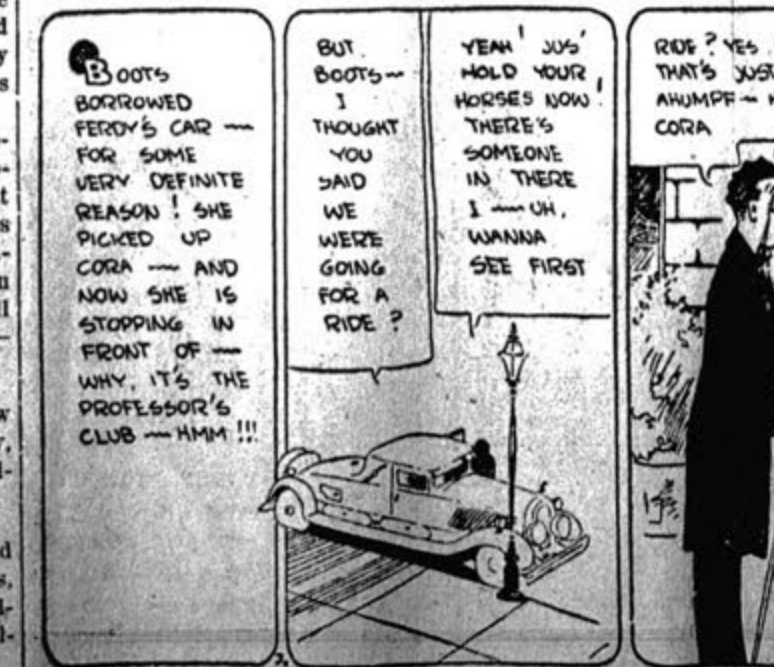

Some woman is so anxious to attract the men's attention The things she likes to call her clo'es are hardly worth the mention. She's goin' to a party, but you'd think she's goin' swimmin'. Pneumonia is another thing that's popular with women. Some fellah's stayin' up at night and playin' bridge or poker. But sometime, maybe party soon, old Death'll lead the joker.

Jim Jones has gone and shot himself—it's just a little quicker Than too much meat, too little clo'es, or lack of sleep, or hicker. We say they had an accident when autos have collided, But ten to one that one of them has simply succided. If you're neglectin' of your health, or on the road to ruin, You better call the coroner and tell him what you're doin'.

FAYETTE GETS OUT YULE TREES

Milwaukee Man Makes Annual Trip to Buy Decorations

Fayette—The Fayette district is again furnishing a large quantity of Christmas cheer for city dwellers.

Joseph Alberts of Milwaukee, who has been a frequent visitor in recent years buying Christmas trees, is again in the district for a similar purpose. With him are Frederick and Joseph Haynes of the same city. They are being assisted by William Smith, William Folio and son, Junior, and Patrick Mc Phee, all local men. Together they expect to cut and ship to the Wisconsin city, about six thousand trees, ranging in size from one or two feet to twelve feet. As usual, the trees, which are all balsam, are of excellent quality. They have not all been cut from one place, but have been purchased from various farmers in the Fayette district. In spite of the liberal cutting of recent years, it is said that there is still an abundant supply for coming years. Here is a fine dollar and cents argument for the prevention of forest fires. The production of Christmas trees here represents an industry of considerable importance.

James Adams of Garden hauled one truck load of Fayette trees to Milwaukee. The balance was hauled down to the Fayette dock by truck, and from there shipped by boat to the same destination. It was expected that all the work would be completed and the men on their way home by the end of the month.

B. I. Mohandis is cutting a load of about a thousand trees which he expects to take personally by truck to Milwaukee. He hopes to be in a position to sell them direct to the householders there.

At various other near by points, including Ensign, St. Jacques, Isabella and Cooks, large numbers of trees are being so that it appears that the number of trees cut locally is greater this season than in any previous year.

GARDEN NEWS

Garden, Mich.—Shipments of fish from the Garden district have taken a decided slump during recent days. Prior to this falling off, they were being caught in unusually large quantities. One night, as many as two hundred and sixty-five boxes, all whitefish, were shipped from the Cooke's depot.

Local schools were closed Thursday and Friday on account of the Thanksgiving season.

Henry Deloria, local representative of the Red Cross society, has completed his canvass for the Garden township. He has met with a ready and cheerful response to the appeals for support for this worthy cause.

Martin Birk and son, Leslie, have torn down one of their old log barns and are rebuilding on a larger scale, a cattle barn, twenty two by thirty. They expect to have it completed within a few days.

Gibbs City Sawmill Will Operate Again

Iron River—Under lease arrangements completed last week, Gust Plutchak, of Iron River, has taken over the Gibbs City store, blacksmith shop, sawmill site and other properties owned in the old lumbering town by R. F. Gibbs, who resided there for the past 15 or 16 years. The lease is for a period of five years and Mr. Plutchak plans, within that time, to restore to the little town part of the industry which it lost when the big timber vanished from the district.

Mr. Plutchak has established a tourist store and shop this side of Fuller's Spur near Watersmeet on US-2. It is located near the feeding plant established at what is known as the "Big Springs" by the state fish hatchery at Watersmeet.

Last Friday Mr. Plutchak and his family moved from their residence on Cayuga street to Gibbs City and Wednesday reopened the Gibbs City store, which has been closed for the past one and a half years or more.

To Establish Sawmill
Sometime in the future Mr. Plutchak plans to locate a sawmill in Gibbs City and saw railroad ties and chair and furniture stock. He owns two mills, one a large one which he has used the past several years in sawing for the Von Platten Fox and Platten Timber companies. The other mill is a portable and will probably be the one which he will establish at Gibbs City.

It is not likely, Mr. Plutchak said this week, that he will start mill operations before next spring as it is probable he may saw again this winter for the two lumber companies.

The chair and furniture stock which he plans to saw is readily marketable and is sawed from yellow and white birch and maple. Mr. Plutchak owns no timber, and will purchase the logs from loggers in the county.

Employ About 15
When the mill is running at full blast, it is expected that employment will be afforded about 15 men. There are a number of empty houses in the town and Mr. Plutchak expects, if his plan is successful, to repair these houses for occupancy by his employees.

The store, which he reopened Wednesday, is fully stocked with groceries. A gasoline pump has been installed. Because of the hunting season, Mr. Plutchak reports a good gas business.

Mr. Plutchak is well acquainted with mill work, having been engaged in it for the past many years in the county.

In former days Gibbs City, first known as Atkinson, was a thriving lumber town which was thronged with saw hands and lumberjacks. Old timers told of 15 million feet of pipe logs piled ready for the sawmill which was located there.

With the going of the big pine, however, Gibbs City went the way of all lumbering towns of the north and for the past number of years has been a true "ghost town" of the north.

If the Iron River man's plan is carried out, Gibbs City may again become a place of activity, with happy homes and busy men.

Observance of Universal Bible Sunday Is Urged

Lansing, Nov. 30.—Governor Wilber M. Brucker urges the observance of Universal Bible Sunday on next Sunday, December 5, by the churches of Michigan. The American Bible Society, an interdenominational agency, engaged in the circulating of the Scriptures, and which last year put into distribution over twelve million volumes of Scriptures in two hundred and eighty-five languages, has promoted Universal Bible Sunday for over a decade. Each year an increasing number of churches in America and in foreign lands unite in the observance of Universal Bible Sunday in order to remind church-goers of the important place the Bible holds in the development of Christian life and character. In commending Universal Bible Sunday Governor Brucker says: "In commending the observance of Universal Bible Sunday, I am suggesting to my fellow citizens that they turn once more to the greatest source of spiritual rejuvenation known to man. We need the Bible today as never before."

Attic Trunks Yield Treasures In Furry Trims

BY BARBARA BEAUFORT (Associated Press Fashion Editor) Paris (P) — Autumn chic is being extracted from attic trunks these days. Many a smart woman with limited clothes budget is pulling mother's old fur coat, tippet and muff from storeroom boxes and cutting them into pieces to garnish her new fall gowns. For the new fall costumes are fur trimmed from head to heel, while muffs, capelets, fur-trimmed chapeaux and gloves bring even accessories into the "furry flurry." The newest note is the fur ensemble—huff, scarf and fur-trimmed hat. The muffs are generally tiny barrel affairs just large enough for the hands, but the designs of scarves are legion. There are coachmen's capes which button snugly around the throat and extend over the shoulders, ring collars which fit over the head like a necklace, and throwscarves which tie about the neck. The short close-fitting bolero jacket is one of the most practical furs, for it may be worn with a new wool frock and again fitted over a coat as a detachable jacket. Half the wool frocks seen in Paris are touched with a bit of fur somewhere in the design. Reverses are edged with narrow bands, lower sleeves are made entirely of fur, and high collars are banded with a narrow strip. Fur vests belted snugly to the figure and gauntlet gloves banded at the top in fur are the favorite gadgets for the new tailleur. The pelts used are naturally short haired or shaved, since fluffy pelts are impractical for accessory trims. Astrakhan, mink, seal, geylak, leopard, broadtail, caracul and ermine are those most often seen. Buying Stockings. Be sure your stockings are exactly the right size. If you buy them too short, the heels and toes will wear out sooner than they should, and if they are too large they will show wrinkles around the ankles.

New Scarves Are Ostrich-Edged

Paris (P) — Ostrich-bordered scarves are a new trick for evening wear. Three cornered chiffon scarves are edged with a wide band of ostrich and tossed about the throat in a manner reminiscent of the feather boa in vogue during the gay nineties. Long Necklaces. If you have a triple strand of beads that hangs very long, why not re-string them yourself to make a choker of four or five rows of beads? They are stylish that way now.

Von Hindenburg's Daughter-in-Law Is "First Lady"

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER Berlin (P)—Little did Brunel, blue-eyed Baroness Margaret von Mahrenholz dream, when in 1921 she became the wife of Oscar von Hindenburg, that she would four years later be the first lady of the land. Her father-in-law was a famous field-marshal, and it is safe to say that nobody then imagined that the second president of the Reich would be a retired general and a widower. When the call to duty came to the venerable Field Marshal von Hindenburg, his son was a major at the cavalry school in Hanover. "Drafted" Daughter-in-Law. The father accepted the candidacy for the presidency on condition that his daughter-in-law would, in the event of his election, be willing to exchange her quiet home in Hanover for the German "White House" on Wilhelmstrasse, Berlin. And so Margarete von Hindenburg, then 27, moved to Berlin with her husband, who became the president's personal adjutant, her two girls, Gertrud and Helga, then aged three and one year, and with the field-marshal's shepherd dog, Rolf. Her Job Not Easy. Frau von Hindenburg's task is no easy one. At all dinners in the president's palace she, as hostess, sits opposite her father-in-law. The chancellor of the ranking ambassador offers his arm and leads her to the table. If it is a stag lunch, she attends as the only woman in the party. As the guests arrive, she stands alongside her father-in-law. Outside of the president's palace, however, she merely occupies the rank due to her husband as colonel in the army and as adjutant to the president. Yields to Frau Curtius. She there ceases to be the first lady of the land. As Chancellor Bruening is a bachelor, Frau Curtius then occupies first rank. One of the very few private parties President von Hindenburg gives during the season is in Margaret von Hindenburg's honor. It is a ball for young folk, friends of the von Hindenburg children. At it the venerable octogenarian kisses the hands of his daughter-in-law's friends and bows to them with the grace of a cavalier. By the end of the social season, she is more than ready for rest at the paternal estate near Hanover. The time of her vacation usually coincides with that of the president in the Bavarian highlands. Although Colonel Oscar von Hindenburg travels with his father, her three children—one son born this year—go with her to visit their grandmother.

MARTS FINANCIAL A LATE RALLY

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES (By The Associated Press) Table with columns for Standard Statistics Co., 1931, and various market indices.

BY JOHN L. COOLLEY (Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Nov. 30. (AP)—The decline in stocks was broken today by a rally which Wall Street assumed to be technical, although it was none the less welcome, especially since it started from a level that was seriously near the Oct. 5 lows.

The advance averaged into a net rise of 2.6 points, the best gain in about three weeks, and was accomplished against an unusually large break in sterling exchange rate.

Nevertheless, the market's ability to turn after an early sag had made an escape from last month's average lows seem doubtful.

Sterling offered an extreme drop of about 13 cents to the lowest rate in a decade. The decline was ascribed to the same series of factors which were held responsible for last week's break, including withdrawal of French balances from London and seasonal considerations.

DAY'S MARKETS IN BRIEF

New York, Nov. 30. (AP)—Stocks strong; favorites rise to 5 points.

Bonds irregular; rails weak. Curb strong; short covering brings rally.

Foreign exchanges irregular; sterling touches new low. Cotton higher; trade buying. Sugar unsettled; poor spot demand.

Coffee barely steady; Brazilian buying. Wheat firm; bullish European weather; bullish Argentine crop reports.

Corn firm; good cash trade; sympathy with other gains. Cattle lower. Hogs easier.

CHICAGO PRICES

CHICAGO LARD. Chicago, Nov. 30.—Cash 6.02. CHICAGO EGGS. Chicago, Nov. 30.—Eggs, 768, steady.

CHICAGO POTATOES. Chicago, Nov. 30.—Potatoes, 89, on track 185; total U. S. shipments Saturday 554.

CHICAGO BUTTER. Chicago, Nov. 30.—Butter prices declined 1/2 cent on top scores today because of heavy selling pressure and lack of buying demand.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK. Chicago, Nov. 30.—Hogs 10,000 including 11,000 direct; closed active, 5 to 10 below.

CHICAGO GRAIN. Chicago, Nov. 30.—In spite of a sharp break in sterling exchange rate, all grain prospects bright today.

PRINCIPALS IN FILM TRAGEDY

eeded in hushing up the matter pretty thoroughly, but enough had leaked out through the excited tales of fellow-passengers to show up the lady as an adventuress of an old, familiar type.

THE sun was shining in her stateroom porthole when she awoke. Mary stretched, yawning and her cramped muscles.

The strange death of Robert Ames, stage and screen star shown here, whose body lay in a dressing gown was found in his New York hotel suite, led authorities to order an autopsy.

Bonds Are Erratic; Rails Enjoy Bounce

New York, Nov. 30. (AP)—Visible signs of resistance were indications in a decidedly erratic bond market today.

While the utilities and foreign obligations plumed the depths for a number of new records, the badly pounded rails snapped back just before the close enough to enable the average of 60 corporate issues to show a slight gain over Saturday's session.

The entire foreign list was unsettled by a sharp break in German government loans. With the exception of Argentines, which were strong, the South American obligations were off.

Selling Resistance Bolsters Curb Mart

New York, Nov. 30. (AP)—The stronger resistance offered by the curb market to scattered early selling finally brought a fairly active covering movement today.

Activity centered chiefly in the utilities which have been harboring a rather large short interest but industrial specialties and oils moved higher.

Electric Bond & Share rallied to 17 1/8 and closed at 16 5/8, up 1 1/4. Brazilian Traction, United Light A. American Superpower and Middlewest were fractionally higher at the close.

There was an occasional roll of the ship as it was caught by a half-sun, and a slight quiver of the deck as the powerful engines drove them through the Atlantic at 35 knots.

Anything was possible—any nice thing, that is—on a day like this. Even Dirk might have relented and forgiven her.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT Acoustic difficulties of an unusual sort even for the tried engineers of a talking picture studio, were encountered by Paramount during the recording of a scene for Ruth Chatterton's new feature, "Once a Lady," at Hollywood.

Oddly enough, the difficulty came with one of the smallest speaking roles in talkie annals. One after another was disqualified because none could "hear" the two words required, "Hear! Hear!" in a way that did not make the court procedure sound as if it were a summation to a definite location.

There is a difference between "Hear" and "Here" as one candidate subtly discovered. With a supreme effort he managed to join in the right English with a comitant that sounded to other competitors like, "Hair! Hair!"

Eskymo, Parochial Cagers Will Meet Friday

TO DEDICATE JUNIOR COURT

Excellent Progress Reported by Both Prep Coaches

The junior high school gymnasium will be formally dedicated Friday evening when the Escanaba and St. Joseph high school basketball teams face each other in the first cage game of the year for both aggregations. The reserve teams of the two schools will meet in a preliminary game.

The basketball game will be the first interscholastic affair held in the junior high school gymnasium and officials are planning dedicatory services for the occasion.

Court fans who have watched the Eskymos and Parochials play basketball games in previous years at the senior high school gymnasium will be pleasantly surprised on Friday evening when they get their first real opportunity to see the new gymnasium with a capacity basketball crowd.

Coaches Nordberg of Escanaba and Brunelle of St. Joseph have been drilling their teams for the past two weeks and both report excellent progress.

The Parochial coach indicated that he expected the best cage team that he has had in the history of the school to represent the Purple and Gold this season. Nordberg stated that his team is gradually being whipped into shape but that he would not know how strong they are until after the Parochial game.

Brunelle has been experimenting with two combinations, one a tall crew and the other speedy. The latter quintet consists of Larson, center, McGovern and Bodette, forwards, and Brateau and Boddy, guards. The other combination is Brateau at center, McGovern and Larson, forwards, and Harvey and C'atmont, guards.

The Escanaba coach has not selected his lineup yet, but Monson, Johnson, Johnson and Anderson will probably be four of the boys who will be in the starting lineup. There has been some talk of a flight from England to South Africa, came back today on a liner with two lion cubs and one egret.

TEXAS CO-EDS BAR 'CAVEMAN TACTICS'

By NEA Service
Eaton, Tex.—Friends of Baylor college co-eds aren't trying caveman tactics on their fair friends. A survey of the college girls, some 200 of them, shows that 191 dislike the primitive type of wooing and prefer to be fondled gently.

The survey also shows that jealousy is preferred in suitors, that the prospective husbands should be able to play tennis, swim or golf, with tennis preferred.

Good looks were not shown to be essential by the check, but neatness was demanded. Blond men were much in the minority of taste, only 25 out of the 200 preferring them.

MAKES 'EM 'KUSS'

Kuss is his name, pronounced in the long u sound, but he's plain "cuss," and plenty merry to opponents of Indiana's Scragg Hoosters football team. Otto (Cowboy) Kuss is Indiana's 225-pound tackle, hailing from Pine City, Minn., a sophomore who lands a mere six feet three inches in the showers. Big Ten gridriders will probably "cuss" him plenty before he finishes his football career.

NO MATCH

Chicago — Albert Glatfelter learned he is no match for penny-matcher. He saw two men matching pennies. He asked to participate, agreeing to wager $720 in travelers checks against $700 in money. "No, stranger, it wouldn't be fair to you, playing against experienced men," said one of them, returning the envelope containing Glatfelter's checks. The would-be penny-matcher walked away. Shortly after he opened the envelope to find his checks gone.

TROJANS MIGHT CHOOSE TULANE

Southern Team Has Best Chance Since Northwestern Has Lost

BY PAUL ZIMMERMAN (Associated Press Sports Writer)
Los Angeles, Nov. 30 (AP)—Although Tulane has moved into the throne west, it is still open season for the selection of a football opponent for the University of Southern California in the annual Pasadena-New Years Rose tournament game and probably will remain so until next week.

An official silence has existed at the Trojan institution since Northwestern's defeat by Purdue Saturday, and while the Big Ten team hasn't been scratched off the list, the green wave has swept in more closely to the coveted prize.

Much depends on Tulane's showing against Washington State at New Orleans Saturday. Should the Cougars be beaten somewhere near as decisively as they were by Southern California early this season, 38 to 6, it is quite likely the invitation immediately will go south again this year.

Play for Charity

Northwestern is still in the running, assuming the Big Ten conference should make it possible for one of its member to compete at Pasadena for charity, as he game will be played this time. This fact is based on the close relationship of the presidents of the two institutions coupled with the fact that not since 1921 has a Big Ten team been permitted to participate, although the west has been willing.

Likewise Pittsburgh and several other teams are open for possible selection. Talk of a far eastern opponent was revived following the Panthers' 40 to 0 victory over the Big Six champions, Nebraska.

The outstanding factor which might preclude Pittsburgh is the fact that the Trojans played the Panthers in the Tournament of Roses game in 1930. The invaders lost in the most one-sided game of the sixteen years history 47 to 14. Pitt also appeared in 1928, losing to Stanford, 7 to 6. Army has been mentioned as a result of its 12 to 0 triumph over Notre Dame.

HE WANTS ARREST

Denver, Colo.—The title of the "most arrested youth" in this city belongs unquestionably to Sammy Matz, 17. He has been picked up 25 times, the last time on a vagrancy charge after he had stolen a pair of overalls. The judge fined him $150 and upon Sammy's statement that he could not pay it, sentenced him to county jail to work out the fine at $2 per day. During most of his checkered career, Sammy escaped being sent to reformatories because it was believed he was a diphtheria carrier. Twice, however, he had been sent to institutions other than county jail.

RANGERS CRUSH ALGER QUINTET

Escanaba Cage Squadron Wins Opener Here by 40-15 Score

Opening their season with an amazing show of strength, the Escanaba Rangers basketball team swamped a stellar Munising Dragons aggregation at the Coliseum gymnasium Sunday afternoon, 40 to 15. The decisive victory indicated that the Rangers, powered with some of the talent from the championship Bevoenoc team, have one of the outstanding teams in the north this season.

The Rangers took the lead in the first period and thereafter the game was just a breeze for the Escanabans. At half time the count was 18 to 10 but the visitors could not maintain this pace in the last half and they fell steadily behind.

Ernie Johannsen and Ray Warner, forwards, were the offensive stars of the day, the former netting seven field goals and the latter five. Bill Wood aided the Ranger cause with four goals.

Manager Byrns used his entire squad of twelve men in the fray and expressed satisfaction after the battle with the work of his men. Johnny Andrews and Snyder performed well at guards for the Escanabans.

The Dictators won the preliminary, 19 to 13.

Next Sunday the Rangers will play the Wakefield Wolverines here. The box score:

BRAINS FOR BRAINS.

Washington—Two new weapons in the battle against dreaded pernicious anemia are foods which a lot of people like to eat—brains and oysters. Dr. Charles C. Johnson of Yale has found oysters to be a source of anemia in rats, and believes the same cure will work with humans.

LITTLE PICKS ALL-AMERICA

Columbia Coach Chooses Eugene McEver as Quarterback

BY LOU LITTLE (Head Football Coach, Columbia University)
(Written especially for The Associated Press)
New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—After looking the field over and talking with other coaches who have come here from all parts of the country, these are my selections for the 1931 All-America football team:

Right Guard—John W. Baker of Southern California.
Right Tackle—John M. Price of Army.
Right End—Gerald Dairymple of Tulane.

Quarterback—Eugene McEver of Tennessee.
Left Halfback—Marchmont Schwartz of Notre Dame.
Right Halfback—Erny Pinckert of Southern California.
Fullback—Ernest Rentner of Northwestern.

Perhaps I should explain first why I picked McEver instead of either Barry Wood of Harvard or Bill Morton of Dartmouth for quarterback. It's simple enough to me: he is a better all-around back.

Wood is a fine field general, but neither he nor Morton compares with McEver as a runner and blocker. The Tennessee see boy also can pass and kick, if necessary, and he has had greater experience. In my opinion, calculated to make him a first-rate field general. Besides he came back after a year's layoff to play great ball.

Schwartz did not go so well against Army, but he has all-around class. Rentner, Schwartz and McEver all can work the passing game. Pinckert adds just the right measure of power. He is a great blocker.

On the ends we have two men, Orsi and Dairymple, who can do everything well and do it consistently. I prefer either to Catfish Smith of Georgia because they are steadier. Orsi is a wonder at working on the opposing tackle, besides being fast down the field and a good man at sensing plays.

Hardy is one of the most aggressive, hard-charging tackles I have seen and Price is not far behind him. The Harvard man opens up a big hole consistently on offense. Price was the outstanding lineman on the field in the Army-Notre Dame contest and that's saying a great deal. Kurth of Notre Dame, Riley and Marvill of Northwestern, MacMurdo and Quaise of Pittsburgh and Schweiger of Washington all are fine tackles, coaches tell me.

Picks McDuffee

For the guards we have two men in Munn and Baker who are extremely fast for their size. They are a big help in the running game because they know how to block and cut down the secondary after getting through. Both are good kickers. Hoffman of Notre Dame, I am told, has had a fine season, but he was hurt against Army.

I pick McDuffee of my team for center because he is the best and smartest pivot man I have seen in a long time. Daugherty of Pittsburgh and Yarr of Notre Dame are good, but neither is as strong defensively as McDuffee. The latter has not made a bad pass all season. He is remarkable at diagnosing plays. Against Dartmouth, as an example, McDuffee intercepted a pass 25 yards back of the line of scrimmage, right out of the arms of McCall.

Kircher, Liberty Win Sweaters On M. S. C. Grid Crew

East Lansing, Nov. 30.—Only 13 major letters, one of the smallest totals in several years, have been awarded to members of the Michigan State College football players. The athletic office announced the winners of the "S" today.

Lester Exo, of Holland, and Reuben Dill, of Saginaw, reserve linemen, were the only players to be rewarded with the major distinction other than the famous "iron man" combination of 11 regulars used by Coach Jimmy Crowley during the season.

Eleven players were singled out for the service awards, a heavy green sweater. Leonard G. Logan, student manager from Detroit, was given a manager's letter.

Others named for the major honors were: Captain Milton C. Gross, Salline; Jacob P. Fass, Grand Haven; Ralph H. Brunette, Green Bay, Wis.; Abe Ellowitz and George B. Handy, Detroit; Joseph Kowatch, Ionia; Francis H. Meiers, Muskegon; Robert C. Monnet, Bucyrus, O.; Myrton I. Vandermeer, Grand Rapids; Arthur Buss, Benton Harbor; Gerald R. Jones, Bay City.

The service award winners elect a captain early next week.

Rockne Knew 8 Months Ago Notre Dame Would Lose Two Grid Games

BY ALAN GOULD (Associated Press Sports Writer)
New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—Knute Rockne eight months ago foresaw the break that was bound to come in the march of Notre Dame's football forces, checked by Southern California and routed by Army.

"Don't expect us to keep up the pace we have set in the past two seasons," Rockne told the Associated Press at Miami, Fla., in one of his last chats on football. "In the first place we have lost key men like Carideo and Brill. Secondly, there's always a reaction to any winning streak that may come at any time. Finally, our opposition for 1931 is going to be unusually tough.

Started Off Strong
"I would not be surprised if we lost two, maybe three games to teams like Northwestern, Southern California and Army."

Rockne's death did not prevent similar views from being held by his successors, Jesse Harper and Hunk Anderson, but through the early stages of the 1931 campaign and well on into November it seemed Notre Dame was "on fire" and headed toward another unbeaten season. Consequently the machine's sharp decline, starting with the final quarter of the game with U. S. C. caught the football world by surprise.

The answer, as gathered from about a score of famous coaches who watched the Army's decisive victory in astonishment, is that "the inspiration ran out," in the combined effects of a stiff schedule and the last-period defeat of Southern California.

As to West Point, Lou Little of Columbia voiced a consensus of views when he remarked: "No team and no system would have looked good against the Cadets. It wasn't so much that Army adopted the right tactics but the way they employed them."

Army's forwards were across the line of scrimmage so fast that it was impossible for Notre Dame to get plays in motion. Army's 6-3-2 defense, with the center going with the Notre Dame shift, was and always has been effective against the Rockne system of play. It looks great when it works but I have known times when it wouldn't look so good.

"I don't think mud and weather had much to do with the outcome. Aggressiveness by the Army was the deciding factor. The cadets were breaking up plays before they started."

From West Point today came revelations of secret inspiration or any "inside" explanation of Army's sharp reversal of form.

"It was just another Notre Dame game for us," remarked the Army's official spokesman, quite calmly. "We have always given our best teams a good run and what did we have to fear this time? Look over the scores and you will see that in four successive years, Army scored 24 points to Notre Dame's 24."

The Army disclosed, incidentally that Captain Jack Price, hero of the cadet line, finished his third game against Notre Dame with a record of having played every minute—180 of them—of these inter-sectional classics, two in New York and one in Chicago.

Chocolate Kayoes New York Fighter

New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—Kid Chocolate, Cuban lightweight star, came back from his failure to win the 135-pound title from Tony Canzoneri and knocked out Maxie Leiner of New York tonight in the first round of a ten-round bout at the St. Nicholas Arena.

A crowd of about 3,000 saw the card, the proceeds of which were donated to Black Bill, former crack Cuban flyweight, who has lost his sight.

Chocolate scaled 129½ pounds; Leiner, 133.

Joe Barbara, New York, 132½, outpointed Mel Aragon, 137½, Peru, in eight rounds. Valentine Campolo, younger brother of Victorio, won a four-round decision over Chris Karchi, New York heavyweight, in four. Campolo floored Karchi for eight in the first round. He weighed 208½; Karchi, 190.

He explained that this sum was the total of bills for candy, peanuts and ice cream he had provided for her during the last 20 years.

SPARTAN HOLDS MANY RECORDS

Chamberlain Closed His Collegiate X-Career Last Saturday

East Lansing, Nov. 30 (AP)—A rugged little Michigan State distance runner who took to the track two years ago for the first time today looked back upon one of the most remarkable cross-country records in this section of the country. He also looked ahead to winter competition along a trail leading to possible membership on the American Olympic team.

Clark S. Chamberlain, the 135-pound giant among distance stars, closed his intercollegiate cross-country career Saturday with perhaps the greatest race of his life. He won the senior A. A. U. championship meet over the six mile Ypsilanti course in the record time of 23 minutes, 49 4-5 seconds. In winning, Chamberlain staged a comeback from the recent defeat he suffered as the defending champion in the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet.

The A. A. U. competition brought Chamberlain his twelfth victory in thirteen cross-country meets within the last two years. In eleven of these meets, state's ace has established new records.

Strange Career

Chamberlain will not be seen again in competition until the winter season when he will represent State in the distance runs over the indoor boards.

Chamberlain's career is stranger than fiction. One afternoon two years ago, Chamberlain turned out for cross-country weighing 115 pounds and without previous competitive experience. Morton F. Mason, former State distance coach, was dubious but not for long. Before the season was over Mason said that Chamberlain some day would be the greatest distance runner in this section of the state. Last year he won the national collegiate meet in his second year of competition.

Chamberlain said he was attracted to cross-country running through a friendship with Leonard Dowd, of Hartford, former Michigan State runner. "I thought if he could run the distances I could, too," Chamberlain explained.

Cuban Lightweight Put Under Arrest

New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—Following his knockout victory over Maxie Leiner in the St. Nicholas Arena tonight, Kid Chocolate, Cuban lightweight, was arrested and taken to the federal detention house on West street to await extradition to Havana on an assault charge pending against him there.

The arrest was made by a United States marshal. All efforts to have the fighter released on bail failed and he was forced to spend the night in the detention house awaiting a hearing tomorrow.

Tom Smith, backfield man, has been the star of every game played by Louisiana State university this season.

Stuart Chandler played every position on the North Carolina football team this season.

3 LA BRANCHE FOLK IN JAIL

Another Long Standing Reud Flares; Kidnaping Charged

Menominee, Mich., Nov. 30. (Special)—A woman, mother of five children, her husband, and a neighbor are held in the county jail today after the alleged attempted shooting and kidnaping of Chester Mileski, LaBranche farmer. The attack on Mileski, and his imprisonment overnight in the home of Albert Wojcik, in which he was forced to write a confession implicating him in attacks on the Wojcik livestock and that of Tony Krause, is the climax of a long standing feud between the Mileski family and the Wo-ick-Krause alliance, officers say. Hold Hearing Tuesday. Sheriff Edward Reindl is holding the trio in the county jail in default of $1,000 bonds each on charges of assault with intent to murder Mileski. They are: Mrs. Albert Wojcik, 35, who is charged with launching the attack on Mileski as he hunted near LaBranche November 23, by firing a .38-calibre pistol at him. Her husband, Albert, 40, LaBranche farmer and Tony Krause, neighboring farmer.

The three were arraigned before Justice Dan Burns who fixed 10 a. m. Tuesday as the date for the preliminary hearing.

Mileski's Story. This was Mileski's story. He told the prosecutor that he was hunting three miles from LaBranche when he heard a shot and something whistled by his head. Turning he saw Mrs. Wojcik standing about 45 feet distant with a smoking pistol in her hand. Mileski said he started to raise his gun to defend himself, but before he could do so he was pounced upon from behind by Wojcik and Krause, who wrested his gun from him, and pushed the muzzle against his abdomen. The captors then debated whether they should shoot him or take him to the Wojcik farm. The death debate was in Polish, but it was understandable and dreadful to Mileski. They then removed him to the farm house where a bag was tied over his head and the gun again pressed against his abdomen. Mrs. Wojcik and Krause kept him there through the night while they debated as to whether they should shoot him. It was finally decided to make Mileski sign a confession to the effect that he, Mileski, knew who hurt the Wojcik and Krause livestock. Mileski was forced to sit at a table and write. His captors dictated.

This is what Mileski wrote: "I hereby confess to the following prevarications." The Wojcik-Krause alliance did not know the meaning of the word prevarications and merely thought that it was used to make it look better. Continuing, "I saw Charles Lany, Ed Long, and Mrs. Joe Kwop, Sr. and Joseph, Jr., poison cows of Tony Krause on supply road and saw him break cow's leg with car on road. Stanley Solorzki and Frank, his brother, chased cow on road for him. Cow belonged to Albert Wojcik."

The above mentioned persons are all of LaBranche. Mileski said that he was held prisoner all night and the next day he was made to lay in the bottom of a car, was covered with gunny sacks, and brought to the Krause farm. The shells were taken out of Mileski's gun. It was handed to him and he was told where the main highway was and to go. He was warned that if he turned around he would be shot in the back.

Krause and Wojcik stood on the farm house porch as Mileski started off to freedom, uncertain whether he was really free or was going to be shot in the back. Out of sight of the farm house he hurried home and thence to Menominee to report to the sheriff's department and Prosecutor Lanthier. Arrests of the Wojciks and Krause followed.

HORNER PLANT WILL OPERATE

Flooring Plant Will Be Put Into Shape, Committee Reports

Newberry, Mich., Nov. 30. (Special)—The Horner Flooring Plant at this place will be put into condition for immediate operation, according to present plans, following the session in Grand Rapids last week when a delegation of local businessmen waited upon Judge Fred Raymond of the United States court with a petition asking for the opening of the plant in order to reduce unemployment in this locality.

Frank Ennis, local superintendent, says that he has so far received no notice from the Grand Rapids Trust company, receivers for the Horner company, but he believes that the word brought back by the local men will be supported by an order for operation. It will take him a week or ten days to get the plant in operating condition. Last year it was operated on a part time basis and was forced to close down during the summer. The payroll is about $8,000 per month and they generally employ about 110 men.

Plans for an organization of creditors to take over the operation under their own management are now under way and are being sponsored by A. C. Wells, of the Maple Flooring Manufacturers Association and the Sawyer-Goodman company of Menominee, Michigan.

Returns Coming In Fast On Seal Sale

Newberry, Nov. 30 (Special)—Returns from the Christmas seal sale have been coming in to the office of C. P. West, Lions Club chairman in direct charge of the campaign, at the rate of more than $30.00 a day, according to the records kept at that office. This is especially gratifying in view of the present business conditions. It is the hope of the committee to collect at least as much as last year's fund and this will mean hard work on the part of everyone connected with the sale.

Money for the anti-tuberculosis work has never been needed so badly as this year, children being in many cases on restricted diets and with improper clothing so that the local health workers are getting ready for a closer check up of all of those cases where the little folks are known to be "contact cases" and also to those cases of persistent underweight.

The hot meals provided by the local Food Fund are already showing good results, and the work of the United Service in furnishing clothing and other supplies is very effective. However the need for cash for work in tuberculosis both in treatment and prevention will be greater than ever this year.

Each year the Lions club appoints someone from their organization to manage the seal sale under the auspices of the Luce County Health organization. E. H. Campbell is chairman of the committee from the Health organization to carry on the work, the other members being Mrs. Andrew Westin, Mrs. A. L. Newmark and Miss Eva Buerman.

Hunters Report Fewer Deer Were Killed This Year

Newberry, Nov. 30 (Special)—The last day of the hunting season found most of the nitrods already out of the woods, driven by fear of being caught in a snow storm or bound by muddy roads.

Local sportsmen report about half of the usual kill of deer made in this locality, partly due to the fact that only about half the usual number of hunters had come in and partly to what many believe to be a decreased number of deer.

This decrease is credited to two causes: the cutting off of the timber and the increase of wolves and coyotes. Ed Logron and party hunting south near the new Finley camps reports a pack of coyotes working in the locality north of Mille Kokia Lake. George Finley, who is building a new set of camps there, says that there were plenty of deer in the woods until the last of the week when a pack of coyotes came through. Two of the animals were sighted and shots made at them were missed but the deer are pretty well driven out. Jerry Skulina reports sighting five large wolves in the Tahquamenon Falls district and has so far succeeded in capturing three of them. Other localities also report plenty of the animals.

Last winter was mild, allowing the whelps an excellent chance to survive. Woodsmen report that an increase of all animal life is noticed following a mild winter and as if this season continues as warm as it has started next summer will see an added number of young wolves, coyotes, fox and other predatory animals and a further decrease in deer, birds and rabbits.
