Smith Told Demos Will Draft Him

Boston, Jan. 14 (AP)—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential nominee in 1928, maintained silence on his plans for 1932 tonight in the face of a prediction that the party will "draft" him as its candidate.

The prediction came at the close of an address by Smith at a Democratic "victory" dinner here. The former governor had appealed to the members of his party to make a "frank, open and honest declaration" on prohibition in its 1932 platform and to take a straight forward platform stand generally but had avoided all references to whether or not he would himself be a candidate.

Receives Ovation As he stopped speaking, Daniel Gallagher of Boston, jumped to a chair. Addressing the governor, he said: "Governor Smith, the newspapers have been saying to you for the last few days, 'tell us your plans.'"

MINER GUILTY, JURY DECLARES

Hightower, 77-Year-Old Coal Digger, Faces Life in Prison

BY R. H. HIPPELHEUSER (Associated Press Staff Writer) Mount Sterling, Ky., Jan. 14 (AP)—A jury of eleven Blue Grass farmers and a barber today convicted William Hightower, 77-year-old Ervats coal digger, of counselling the death of a Harlan county deputy sheriff and fixed his penalty at life imprisonment.

Instead, in his address, he criticized his own party for its failures to function between elections and appealed to the Democrats to take a constructive stand on issues this year. Aside from the two terms provided over by Woodrow Wilson, he said, the Democratic party had never functioned between elections. This, he thought, was largely because of discouragement among the rank and file.

Both Jones and Hightower were ordered to appear Monday before Circuit Judge Henry R. Prewitt for sentences and for a ruling on their motions for new trials. Both men have asked under the paupers' oath that the county pay the costs of the appeals and the county will offer its objections to that at Monday's hearing.

Merchants Accept Loss by Boycott to Get Gandhi Freed

BY JAMES A. Belching

Belching Made Him An Outcast

He was a clean-cut, clever, likable chap, but his friends carefully avoided him. Business associates were not always so tactful. His life was miserable because belching, one of the forms of hyperacidity (excess acid) in addition to the physical discomfort, virtually made him an outcast. Most numbers of people today, because of the way we live and the scolding foods we eat, are victims of an acid condition of the stomach and intestines. Belching, indigestion, gas, heartburn, sick headaches, dizziness, loss of sleep, pain after eating indicate the need of correcting the acid condition of the stomach and intestines. There is no need for anyone to have the offensive habit of belching or any of the rest of these torturing troubles. Markay's Tablets offer quick and certain relief by neutralizing the hyperacid condition and reestablishing the normal alkalinity of the system. Know today how easily acidity can be routed. MAKE THIS SIMPLE 1-DAY TEST Go to any good drug store for a package of Markay's Tablets. Take one after each meal as directed for 7 days. If you find Markay's Tablets do not give you better digestion, more refreshing sleep, heartier appetite, more genuine pep, then return with your package, and the druggist will gladly refund your money at once.

Beams Beagel (called Ben-Gay in English) has to work down deep into the skin and bring such instant comfort and relief to the pains of headache, backache, rheumatism, neuralgia and neuralgia, acts so quickly to break up chest colds, that they often loosen up overnight. At the first sign of tightness, pain and congestion, rub Ben-Gay freely into the chest, back and throat and cover with flannel. At once, you will begin to breathe easily as Ben-Gay's penetrating fumes and heat begin to break up the dangerous tightness. The pain and congestion begin to go quickly and in the morning, you should feel great relief. Ben-Gay causes no dizziness or burning, for it contains no turpentine, chloroform or ether and is gentle to the skin. But don't be absent-minded and just ask your druggist for "something for a chest cold" or for "something to relieve pain." Ask him for Ben-Gay by name. His left leg was badly scalded from the ankle to just above the knee and his right leg also badly burned, although not so severely. Mrs. Meier, who was finishing her household task had just set the pan of starch in the back room to cool when the boy, who had been in the living room, looking at a story book, suddenly ran out into the wash room, and before either of his parents could stop him, stumbled into the boiling mixture.

BETTER TIMES SEEN

DEFINITE signs of better times in the upper peninsula appeared this week with announcements of the resumption of industrial operations in various communities.

From Menominee comes news of increasing activity at the plants of the Lloyd and Prescott companies, which will effect a material improvement in the employment situation there.

In Escanaba, there are indications pointing to a general improvement in the employment situation. Forty men will be put to work at the ore docks next Monday, and this force will double early next month.

Additional prospects for relieving unemployment loom in the plans now under way to establish playgrounds in various parts of the city and to improve the Ludington Park beach.

IT IS a gloomy moment in history. Not for many years—not in the lifetime of most men who read this paper—has there been so much grave and deep apprehension; never has the future seemed so incalculable as at this time.

In France, the political caldron seethes and bubbles with uncertainty. Russia hangs, as usual, like a cloud, dark and silent upon the horizon of Europe; while all the energies, resources and influences of the British Empire are sorely tried, and are yet to be tried more sorely, in coping with the vast and deadly Indian insurrection, and with its disturbed relations in China.

It is a solemn moment, and no man can feel an indifference (which, happily, no man pretends to feel) in the issue of events. Of our troubles no man can see the end. They are, fortunately, as yet mainly commercial; and if we are to only lose money, and by painful poverty to be taught wisdom—the wisdom of honor, of faith, of sympathy and of charity—no man need seriously despair.

appeared in October. Seventeen months later, in March of 1932, business was back at normal again. Of our own troubles no man can see the end. They said it in 1857, and it has been said many times, before and since.

ROAD WORK: ROAD construction and road work are never done. We have built thousands of miles of fine highways. But the inexorable march of progress makes more and still more roads necessary.

Modern engineering practice and materials have made it possible to build weatherproof, surfaced, secondary roads for a fraction of the cost of high-type main highways.

A "HIDDEN HUNGER?": UNEMPLOYMENT emergencies have reduced living expenses of many families to the primitive necessities of food, shelter and clothing.

READ ALL OR NONE: IT IS a gloomy moment in history. Not for many years—not in the lifetime of most men who read this paper—has there been so much grave and deep apprehension; never has the future seemed so incalculable as at this time.

It is a solemn moment, and no man can feel an indifference (which, happily, no man pretends to feel) in the issue of events. Of our troubles no man can see the end. They are, fortunately, as yet mainly commercial; and if we are to only lose money, and by painful poverty to be taught wisdom—the wisdom of honor, of faith, of sympathy and of charity—no man need seriously despair.

Good friends—let our conduct prove that the call comes to men who have large hearts, however narrowed their homes may be; who have nothing but manhood, strong in its faith in God, to rely upon; and whoever shows himself truly a God-fearing man now, by helping wherever and however he can, will be blessed and beloved as a great light in darkness.

Now comes the remarkable fact. What you have just read was not written yesterday, about the condition of today—but is a verbatim reprint of an editorial which appeared in Harper's Weekly on October 10, 1857.

THREE KINDS OF LOVE

(By NEA Service) By Kay Cleaver Strahan

CHAPTER XXXII: "WELL—wasn't there something about his book?" Ann asked.

"Yes. But that wasn't my fault. But that hateful creature in New York sent back the last two chapters of Barry's book and said that they had fallen flat! Reasonably, Ann—not because I'm your sister or anything—could that have been my fault?"

"Barry thought it was my fault," Cecily said. "He acted so right out; but he acted as if it were my fault. He said that he'd either have to spend less time with me or more. He meant get married, and he knows I can't right now. He had to blame someone, and he wouldn't blame that wonderful person Mr. Ammington, so he blamed me. When Mr. Ammington returned the chapters in May, and Barry was leaving me all the time, then, his praise was so extravagant that Barry said he saw himself in New York quelling the literati with a look and a gesture. And now, just because these aren't so good, he blames me. Maybe he didn't blame me, I don't know. Oh, Ann—Ann, what am I going to do? What am I going to do? What—'Sh-h-h, honey,'" said Ann.

"I was talking kind of loud then, wasn't I? But that's just because I'm so—so wretched. I don't usually say I didn't. Ann, I couldn't have screamed at him, do you think? I don't know. I can't remember. When he wouldn't answer me, and wouldn't answer me, no matter what I said. Think of it. Ann—we came almost 15 miles, and he wouldn't answer me; just drove along with that terrible expression—set and white—on his face. I felt as if I were going crazy. I felt as if I had to make him speak—say anything. I may have raised my voice. Ann, do you suppose I did forget and raise my voice?"

"Dear, how can I tell? But I can tell this—if he loves you he won't stay away and not try to make up just because you raised your voice when you were talking to him. If he'd do that, you couldn't want him, would you, Cecily?"

"I would. Of course I would. You don't understand. The more I think of it, the more it seems to me like it was all my fault. And yet, I was so tired Thursday, and I, she declared, and put a still more miserable expression on the face in the mirror while Ann filled the wash basin with water and stole a pinch of pink from Rosalie's bath-salt jar.

"It made all the difference," said Cecily, "whether I didn't go then; or whether he didn't wish to go."

"Men are like that," Ann said, and squeezed a face cloth out of the water, and tried to wash Cecily's face for her.

"Don't. You dab so. I'll do it," she said, and took the towel. "Where did he go?"

"That isn't far. Only about 50 miles. Isn't it?"

"Beloved," Mary-Frances answered. "I wish you'd remember about my not saying 'see' all the time. I love it, of course; and I wouldn't change a thing about you for the world, if I were the only one, but it would give people who didn't know the depths of you and all a kind of false impression of you. That's why I wish you'd stop. I don't want people who—"

"Sure, I know. But listen, hon. What I was getting at was, how about that classy little vaudeville act? I'm telling you, hon, and I'm not kidding you a bit, that you'll never have a better chance for cleaning up money, and cleaning it up easy—see? You give me your promise, a long time ago? Give it your consideration and all. But you won't do it. You won't look at it serious, nor—"

"Heart's dearest, I have. Honest and truly I have. I've talked it over with my friend and everything. And I just think the same thing—that unless a girl has exceptional beauty and talent she is foolish to select the stage for a career. That was Ermitrude's mother talking."

"Oh, yeah? Well, that's where you're wrong, Frankie. That's where you and me differ—see? And maybe I'm in a position to know a little more about it than you are. If a couple has the looks and the act, they don't need hardly any talent. Besides, I told you, I got talent. And it isn't like you couldn't do steps nor anything. You got the rudiments down pretty good; and, anyway, mostly you'd just feed me—see? You and I in a little act that this guy in Denver would fix up with us—we'd get swell bookings, and I'll tell you why. I can step, see? You got the looks, see? The public is sick of red-hot mamas. They want something young and innocent; see? A little hot stuff coming from you—the contrast would go big. You got a sweet voice. Like I've been telling you all along, you're the perfect ideal swn-jew-nay type. You know that, sweetness?"

"I don't know. I wish it were China," Ann said. "You do?"

"Yes, I do. And then I wouldn't be hoping all the time."

"DON'T hope," Ann advised, and filled an eye cup with Grand's boracic acid solution. "What is he doing in Albany, for pity's sakes?"

"I don't want that eye stuff. The new hotel building I told you about. He wasn't going. He'd talked his uncle out of sending him. Don't—I don't want it, Ann."

"Of course you want it. What will you say if Grand or Rosalie asks you what you've been crying about?"

"For once—just once in my life I'll give myself the dear delight of telling them it is none of their business."

Anniversary

NOTE TO BOLSHEVIKI

On Jan. 15, 1918, the British Labor Party placed itself on record regarding war issues in a message to the Russian people and an appeal to the peoples of Central Europe.

The message followed the refusal of the Germans at the Brest-Litovsk conference to admit the principle of self-determination of peoples and the doctrine of no annexations.

"The British people must proclaim to Russia and the Central Powers that its aim is identical with Russia's... we see no solution of the evils of militarism except self-determination and no indemnities."

"Peoples of Central Europe, this catastrophe of the human race, this fatal schism in the civilized world, can only be ended by the defeat of militarism on both sides and by the victory on both sides of moral and intellectual fair dealing."

Looking Backward

JANUARY 15, 1912

The assessed valuation of any of the railroads touching Escanaba was not raised for the coming year over the figures set by the state board one year ago. The assessed valuation of the Northwestern is $11,975,000; The Soo Line $6,850,000; the St. Paul $3,500,000; the Escanaba and Lake Superior $1,350,000.

The Owls have issued invitations for a dance to be given at Clark's hall, Monday evening.

In the intense cold of Monday morning, and with the roads badly drifted from Ford River to Escanaba, a party of eight people moving from Ford River to Wells, suffered terribly from the cold and finally reached their new home nearly exhausted.

Three heavy teams were used to move the families and so intense was the cold and so badly were the roads drifted, that one of the teams gave out completely on reaching the Escanaba Brewery. It was necessary to leave the animals and their load at that place until yesterday when it was possible to continue the trip to Wells.

LYRICS OF LIFE

By Douglas Malloch

(Copyright 1931 by Douglas Malloch)

NOW: Oh, love them while they're here, not when away. And you will never have a yesterday. That you regret, no moment you recall. When you, who had so much, gave not at all.

Speak kindly when the loved are here to hear. And you will never look down some long year. Or years of years, and wish that you had said. The words that might have cheered or comforted.

Do little deeds, and learn to do them now. And you will never wish you had, somehow. When yours the chance, for nothing ever brings. As great a grief as life's neglected things.

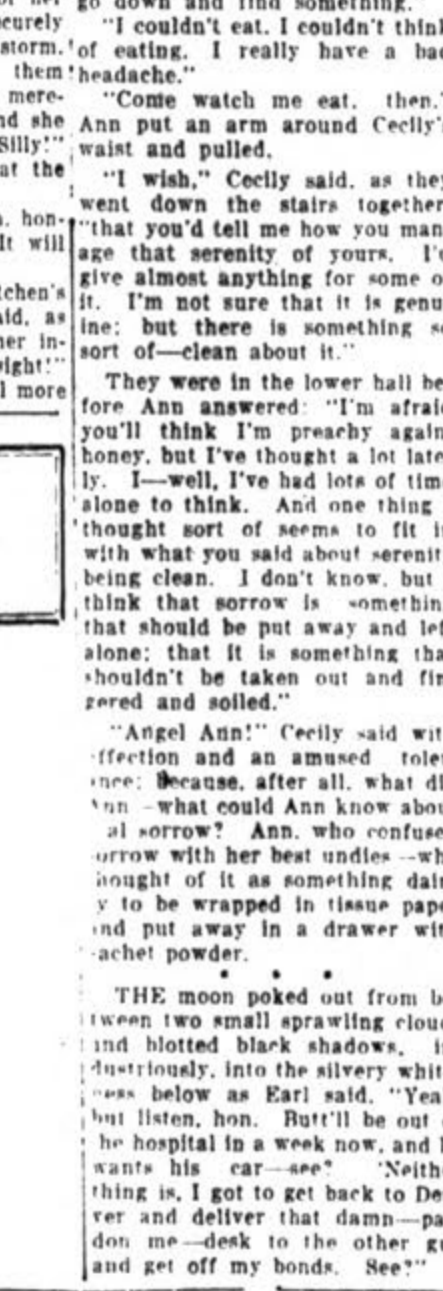

Encourage them, their battle just begun. And you will never think they might have won. Had you but spoken, when your gentle touch. That seemed so little, might have meant so much.

Yes, love them now, and never let love wait. And you need never sigh. "It is too late." Do little deeds, say what you have to say. Oh, love them while they're here, not when away.

New York, Jan. 14 (AP)—Large-scale covering by the short interest added substantially to the stock market's gains during the morning hours today.

Thereafter, the advance was subject to profit-taking, but a late uptick by the bulls served to keep the balance of the day's changes comfortably in the plus column. At its best, the list was 1 to 4 points higher.

In addition to the rails, which were up 1 to 3, tobacco accomplished further recovery and several independent steels reacted well to speculative hopes for a revival in their industry later this month or early next.

U. S. Steel climbed 4 1/2 pts, but closed 1-8 lower at 44 1/2. For most other leaders extreme gains were pared to fractions. Turnover of 2,653,100 shares was the largest in nearly a month.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank's rediscunt rate remained at 3 1/2 per cent, nor was there anything in the weekly statement to point toward a credit expansion policy.

Brokers' loans, contrary to some forecasts, sagged $5,000,000, thus maintaining the trend of more than four months.

DEATH CAUSED BY BAD BURNS

Cause of Accident to McFarland Woman Not Learned

Mrs. Ellen McColl, 77, formerly of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., died Wednesday evening at St. Francis hospital where she had been admitted several days ago suffering with burns on her hands and legs sustained while she was alone at the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Findley, at McFarland.

Mrs. McColl was found sitting in a chair with one hand wrapped up by members of the family when they returned after a brief absence from the home. She had on a clean housedress and the dress that she had worn when the family left the house was nowhere to be found. She was immediately taken to this city to a physician who dressed the burns on the hand and who asked her if she had other burns. She said she had none and was taken back to McFarland. After reaching home the family insisted on finding out if she had other burns and discovered that her legs were also badly burned, but she would give them no information regarding the injuries. She was then taken to this city and would not tell anyone how the accident happened. Although there was a quantity of gasoline in the house, none of it had been used and there were no signs of fire in the building.

Mrs. McColl is survived by two brothers, James of McFarland and Alec of Owen Sound, Ontario. She was born in Scotland and lived at Sault Ste. Marie for 30 years.

The body was prepared for burial at the Allo Funeral Home where it will remain until Saturday afternoon when it will be taken directly to the Congregational church at McFarland where funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock with burial in the cemetery at McFarland.
