was safe for the workmen. Shortly after 6 p. m., rescue squads tunneled to the intersection and met mute evidence of tragedy. Buried in debris they found two "mine trips," cars used for transportation by miners. Apparently the cars were the last to go in this morning and their human cargo was missing. Whether the men fled back in the recesses of the tunnel to safety was conjectural. No bodies were discovered. Flashes of light stabbed the gloom at the mine opening as the search went on in the darkness. Giant searchlights were brought in to aid the workers.

No Sign of Life

But as hours passed with no signs of life from beneath the ground, Millhouse became pessimistic—unofficially. He wouldn't tell the relatives what he thought, he didn't want to break their forced bravery, but to newspapermen he said: "I doubt if they'll come out alive."

Said J. E. Hickman, superintendent of the mine: "There's not a chance."

Millhouse said additional rescue squads were on the way from Du Quoin, La Salle and Vincennes, Ind.

Fifteen doctors idled impatiently near the mine entrance, ready to do their best if needed. Contrary to previous reports, it was learned that most of the trapped miners were members of the newly organized Progressive Miners union, opposing the older United Mine Workers organization. But all differences were forgotten in tragedy's presence. Members of the United Mine Workers rushed in from nearby towns to be of help. Some of them even went down on rescue work.

Millhouse said if the miners were not rescued alive, the McWaugha disaster might rank as the second largest in the state's history. The greatest, he said, was at the Cherry mine near Peoria, Nov. 12, 1909. Some 250 persons lost their lives in that disaster.

Weather Not Atune With the Holidays

Everything but the weather was in harmony with the spirit of the season yesterday. But that element which nature alone controls was decidedly out of tune and instead of brisk air with a slight snowfall, mild weather and rain ushered in the holiday.

A rainfall of 1.45 inches from 8:35 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. evening was reported by Observer Harvey Spindler. This is believed to be close to the record for December and it made driving conditions decidedly treacherous.

Former Resident Of Schaffer Dies

Azarie (Jerry) Bourdeau, 85, former long time resident of Schaffer, passed away yesterday afternoon at the home of a daughter in Detroit, according to a message received here yesterday. Death was attributed to pneumonia and complications. The deceased spent 30 years of his life at Schaffer in the pursuit of agriculture, removing some eight years ago to the lower Michigan city to make his home.

Surviving is his wife, two daughters, a brother Joseph of this city, and one sister, Mrs. Sam Belanger of Bourget, Canada.

The body will be shipped to Escanaba and will be taken to the Anderson funeral home where it will repose until funeral arrangements have been completed.

Resort Trade May Replace Lumbering In Luce County

Citizens of Luce county, looking forward to the time when lumbering will be on a much smaller scale, are planning for the future. They see, most of them, great chances for the development of one of the finest resort sections to be found anywhere. Many of them suggest portions of this development as a part of the reconstruction, through which the R. F. C. funds and other monies might be used.

Larry Wyse, local chairman of the committee in charge of the R. F. C. has asked that suggestions be made so that the committee can make a program of work to present to the board of supervisors at their meeting on the 29th of this month and also take to the next 1. P. meet of the R. F. C. which will be held in Marquette.

Talking with many people throughout the county a series of projects have been suggested. Many of them are away in the future. Others are but bright dreams of what might be. Several, however, are very popular and would be given hearty support. These have been listed more or less in the order of their popularity.

NEWBERRY BRIEFS

Eugene Suanto, who has been spending several months with his mother near Bessemer, arrived on Thursday and will work at the Newberry state hospital.

Mary Ruth and Roletta Martin, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. R. Martin, are home from Michigan State college, East Lansing, to spend the holidays.

There will be no Epworth League service at the M. E. church Sunday night because of the Christmas services.

Mrs. John Nelson, Jr., of Marquette is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hedberg.

Laverne Nicholls of Ironwood and Margaret Nicholls of Iron Mountain are home for Christmas with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Nicholls.

Lola Autin, domestic science teacher at Marquette, is spending the vacation period here with her mother, Mrs. Anna I. Autin.

A daughter was born on Dec. 24 to Mr. and Mrs. Clare Farewell of Trout Lake at the Perry-Spinks hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Burns of Marquette are spending the Christmas holidays with their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Burns. Among the students home for the holidays are Robert Gibson from Detroit City college and Herman Hahn from Olivet.

Burt Cronk and Alvin Hand, sailors with headquarters at the Sault, are spending Christmas with friends and relatives here. Mrs. Burt Cronk will arrive from the Sault on Saturday night.

Deer Park Road

Complete the Deer Park Road. This road is good gravel as far as the Second Dawson. Run it on to Deer Park where a fine state park is already located between Lake Superior and Muskegon Lake, two bodies of water of different levels and only a few hundred feet apart. The high sand bluff of the Superior and its coast guard station and the fine bathing beach and quiet beauty of Muskegon Lake, together with the lake and stream fishing easily reached from this point, could easily be made one of the most popular tourist locations in the state.

Build an attractive cover for some of the springs along this road, such as the one near Gravelle's. Arrange for a few camping sites on the shore of the little lakes along the way.

Continue and improve the road to the Two Heart station. Some of the best game country in the world would be opened up. This territory is now used mostly by a few rich down-state families who, from the vantage point of their holdings, have things pretty much their own way. Make it possible for a large number of people to enjoy this country, much of which already belongs to the state.

Tahquamenon Falls

Much as sentiment says "nay" it is becoming plainer every day that the upper falls of the Tahquamenon must be opened by an automobile road. It is suggested that a road be swung in from Pine Stump Junction to touch the river a few miles above the falls and to locate a park there. Then have a possible road or trail down to the falls with a stairway on the west side of the stream. Chippewa county will take advantage of this great attraction if Luce does not. It has been suggested that the river trip will always be popular and that, with the coming of a greater number of persons to the locality, the interests who already are cashing-in on this stream will be in a better position than ever.

Sewer Disposal

Build a sewerage disposal plant. The state has already set aside money enough for part of this project. Why not do it while labor and material is cheap and the need for work is great?

Clear a tourist park at the old McLeod landing on the north side of the Tahquamenon near the bridge. There are some fine old elms there and good drinking water could easily be obtained. A night camp beside this historic stream would be an attraction to many.

Plant trees and otherwise beautify "Victory Way." This was planned to be a double drive reaching from the village limits to the cemetery with trees between the drives. This plan might have to be modified somewhat because of the new concrete highway.

Landscape the school grounds. Excellent plans can be obtained from the state and federal government and trees and shrubs can be taken from the local woods.

Road Side Beauty

The importance of roadside beauty is rapidly becoming known and travelers will select the prettiest road through which to drive and will purchase gas, the spare tire, the candy bar and the postcard from the stores along that way.

Repair and improve the highways.

Beautify and plant the cobblestone spring west of Newberry. Plant along the highway all through the country from east to west.

Open up possible roads to some of the prettiest lakes: Bodt, Holland, Piko and others.

Construct a lumbering exhibit. Local plants and old time lumbermen would cooperate. Reproduce an old time lumber camp.

Plant burned-over territory both north and south of the village. Before we shall have finished paying for this depression this new planting will be large enough to give good game cover besides being valuable water conservation.

Have village or county wild-life exhibit. Have village or county zoo. The conservation department would assist with this. The large numbers attracted to the deer in the village park proves how popular such a zoo would be.

NEW OFFICERS PICK DEPUTIES

Victorious Democratic Candidates Take New Jobs Jan. 1

Democratic candidates for county offices, all of whom were victorious except the one who opposed County Clerk R. H. Labre, will assume their new duties officially on Jan. 1. Since the first of the month falls on Sunday, all offices excepting that of sheriff will be closed on the first day, however.

There will be a complete change in the sheriff's office, but four of the deputies who have served in the court house the last several years will remain on the job.

Sheriff-elect William E. Miron has announced his staff of deputies. John Frederickson, well known former street car conductor, will be his undersheriff; Arthur Sawyer of Gladstone will serve as desk man and Harold Johnston, for several years an employee of the delta road commission, will be stationed in the office at night.

Treasurer-elect Ralph Olsen has selected Mrs. A. B. Stowe, who before her marriage was Grace McArthur, as his deputy. Mrs. Stowe has had long experience in office work.

The new prosecuting attorney, William J. Miller, Rapid River, will have his offices in the Cleary building, 815 Ludington street, where he first started the practice of law with Atty. John Cummings, a quarter of a century ago. Atty. Jack Erickson, Escanaba, a graduate of North Dakota university law school, will be assistant prosecutor, and Miss Beth Olson of Rapid River will be the office stenographer.

relief work. Asserting that he was convinced "there should be some direct appropriation for relief in 1933-34-35," the governor-elect added that there appeared to be no way of making an immediate appropriation to become available in January.

Mr. Cumstock, seeking to evade a horde of job-seekers, was in a sort of semi-seclusion, working on the message he will send to the new legislature.

Meanwhile plans are going forward for his inauguration. Brief and simple ceremonies are planned to be held in the chamber of the house of representatives at noon, Monday, January 2. The oath will be administered by Chief Justice John S. McDonald in the presence of other supreme court justices, the principal state officers, and as many other persons as the chamber will accommodate. Other newly elected officers also will be sworn in. There will be no formal addresses.

A reception will be held in the governor's office at 2 p. m. Monday, and in the evening a dinner for a group of friends, probably not more than 30 in number, will be given at a Lansing hotel.

While all the Republican elective officers except Frank B. Fitzgerald, secretary of state, are preparing to turn their offices over to the Democratic members of the legislature which will automatically cease to exist December 31, are making ready for one more fling at law-making in the second special session summoned this year by Governor Wilber M. Brucker.

Green Bay, Wis.—Joseph M. Conway, president and general manager of the Hoberg Paper and Fibre company has returned from Chicago where he attended the meeting of about 75 manufacturers of pulp and paper in the states of Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota and Ohio. Some time ago a meeting of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan mill operators was held in Green Bay to form an organization of paper and pulp producers and those allied or in any way identified with these industries to do something about the demoralized condition of the industry due to the fact that more than 20 nations had gone off the gold standard and had debased currency with the net result that wood pulp was coming into this country and these states from foreign lands and delivered at prices far below what it costs to produce domestic pulp.

The whole industry was reported as threatened by annihilation unless a duty be imposed upon this foreign pulp to equalize the currency. A committee was appointed, met at Wausau later and called this session for Chicago. At the Congress hotel Tuesday a permanent organization was perfected and Mr. Conway elected president.

Plan Congress Battle
The pulp producers are going to carry the facts of the situation and to industries depending in whole or in part upon the pulp and paper industry. They also propose a battle in congress to bring about countervailing duty to offset the tremendous advantages the foreign producers of pulp are enjoying because of low cost of production at the debased currency rate and the sale of the product here for good American gold. A bill already is with the Ways and Means committee of house and senate and this organization is preparing to exert every pressure for its passage and the saving of this vast industry in the middlewest. Facts will be marshalled and laid before the congressional committees and the legislators to impress them with the genuine seriousness of the situation, and the great need for currency corrective legislation at once.

There were some paper converters at the meeting who opposed the move while contending that it would increase the costs to them of their pulp supplies. The proponents argued that the American purchaser was not receiving all of the benefits inherent in the situation; that the foreign producers were getting all that the traffic would bear and were holding their prices just below the American cost of production. They argued with paper producers further that the debasement of the currency had practically nullified the tariff protection on paper products and paper and that while paper importations were not yet large they were sufficient to have already demoralized the paper market.

Must Save Industry
In addressing the gathering of mill executives Mr. Conway is reported to have said among other things; the following:

"Our immediate unity of purpose should be to quickly find ways and means of saving from destruction the great industry entrusted to our care. And if our unity of purpose is strong enough, unselfish enough and broad enough to square with the standard credo of American business, we shall have no difficulty in adjusting and harmonizing our unity of opinion."

"We are today trustees of the welfare, the employment, the sustaining of the families, the education of the children and the maintenance of the home of thousands of American workmen."

"We are the fiduciary agents of several hundred million dollars invested in the Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota activities which we represent here today."

"Depending upon our ability to weather this storm are thousands whose whole or part time jobs are in jeopardy."

"If we fail, we severely injure our already hard pressed railroads and those who depend upon them for employment."

Entire Industry May Suffer
"If we fail, we retard the development of agriculture in our several states, and deal a body blow to the pioneers who are struggling to turn the cut-over lands of the northwest into productive farms."

"If we fail, thousands of men in related industries, as well as those industries themselves, will have lost a contributing support at a time when every support is sorely needed."

"And, with charity to all and malice towards none, we sincerely believe that if we fail we will drag down in a few years, although some of our co-workers do not see eye to eye with us at present in this conclusion, the whole structure of the pulp and paper industry in the middle west, at least, to the extent of making it a more or less helpless dependency upon the greed and avarice of foreign producers, who know little of and care less for American standards of living, of wages and conditions of employment."

"This is perhaps a long prologue to a statement which lacks nothing of hard facts and figures."

"The big fact is that today the paper and pulp industry is waging a losing fight with European competition, due, not to existing tariff schedule per se, but to depreciated foreign currencies which now run 27.8 per cent against the American dollar."

"If our industry is compelled to surrender, the disaster will reach far and wide. Thousands of men, thousands of families, thousands of children, thousands of farmers, hundreds of communities, millions of invested capital and millions of related industries will be dealt a death blow."

It seems difficult to realize that some of those in our own industry, now engaged in the operation of "converting" mills, fail to realize what will happen to their "converting" mills, if domestic production of pulp is allowed to wither and die, the victim of debased foreign currency."

Give Foreign Advantage
"The entire source of wood pulp would then be the foreign producer."

"Would he continue to hold the price down to a profitable operating level for American mills or would he step up his figure in an exclusive market entirely under his control?"

"Can it be doubted that, under such conditions, American buyers of foreign pulp, then the only remaining world supply would be at the mercy of the foreign producers; and would pay heavily for the doubtful privilege."

"Until 1931 we held our own against Europe in the manufacture and sale of paper and pulp. We met the competition of the free list foreign products, while the tariff on finished paper (newsprint excluded) was a reasonable equalization in world competition."

"But when the depreciated currency of Sweden, Norway and Finland gave our competitors a handicap of 31.8 per cent, as it stands today, we discovered that the cards were stacked against us."

"Many important and painstakingly built up American industries are being bled white by the depreciated foreign currency of 1932."

"Consider the national scope of our paper and pulp industry in terms of totals:

"In normal times some 800 domestic pulp and paper mills are in operation."

"They represent investment of a quarter of a billion dollars, not including millions invested in allied and dependent industries."

150,000 Men Employed
"They employ 150,000 men, with a direct auxiliary employment of thousands of farmers, woodmen and railroad employes, plus an indirect employment which cannot be calculated."

"They disburse annually in wages more than two hundred million dollars."

"Their annual products exceed one billion dollars in value."

"Obtaining raw products largely from the forests, producing national wealth in extraordinary amounts, furnishing employment for legions of men in the mills, the woods and on the farm, the paper and pulp industry is one of the country's greatest assets."

"Under the established tariff protection covering paper, and the entry free of duty of all pulp and newsprint, we believed ourselves fortified to at least hold our own until the clouds of depression, common to all business, had rolled away. We had, and took, a fighting chance."

"But the foreign currency slump has deprived us of the equalization of existing tariffs and has practically put a subsidy on imported pulp and newsprint."

"Depreciated European currencies have wiped out American tariffs in many lines of leading industry. For example:

"General Electric has on hand and unsold five million Christmas tree lamps, although Japan has this year found in the United States a market for 115 million similar lamps, sold at below our cost to produce them, thanks to the Japanese currency depreciation of 80 per cent."

"Because the English pound sterling is down below $3.25, British cement is selling in New York for 40 cents a bag. The labor cost alone on American cement is 37 cents a bag."

Forced Tariff Down
"Wood pulp from Norway, Sweden and Finland was being delivered at Great Lake ports at the close of 1932 navigation at from $6 to $8 per ton less than the bare cost of production in our largest and most efficient mills."

"Debased foreign money has forced our protective and equalizing tariffs on imported paper to some 25 to 30 per cent under the competitive basis on which we establish our manufacturing budgets."

"Our sales are down, our costs are up. Practically all of our protecting tariff wall has been washed away in the collapse of the gold standard, foreign exchange. And it looks as though the worse were yet to come."

It is a significant fact that today more than half of the products are being imported into the United States are benefiting from the advantage of depreciated cur-

TECHNOCRACY, WHAT IS IT?

ready would be practically nonexistent if they had been making the best possible products instead of ones which would wear out quickly and require replacement. Howard Scott, chief Technocrat, has mentioned a tungsten-edged razor blade which he says could be made for 30 cents and would last a lifetime. Metallurgists, among them Gregory Comstock, of the Fifth-Sterling Steel Company, declare their experiments with tungsten carbide steel for that purpose have been successful. They say further that if such a blade, or any of the other sensationally superior products mentioned by Scott were perfected, they could not be withheld from a competitive market.

Technocrats have spoken of a fibrous nettle plant called ramie as another example. Ramie, they say, has 28-inch fibers, is stronger when wet than when dry, and when made into cloth wears seven times better than wool. Ten times more of it than cotton can be grown to the acre, and it can be harvested with machinery.

Textile experts, however, say that ramie cannot compare with wool, cotton or linen in commercial quality. As for the wet-dry question, all vegetable fibers are stronger when wet. Ramie has been known for 100 years, and during the last few decades has figured in a number of stock-selling schemes.

MACHINES AND MEN

Consider the subject of technological unemployment. Technocracy says it finds that mechanization has been increasing at a geometric rate since 1919, when man-hours of employment in each industry began to fall off, while production continued to increase. Mr. Van Deventer, however, along with officials of the National Industrial Conference Board, can show that up to and into the depression year of 1930, the machine actually opened more employment doors than it closed.

"Forty years ago," said the editor of "Iron Age," "when the electric motor was being introduced to skeptical industry, there were 69 workers per thousand of population in all our manufacturing industries. In 1929, after intensive mechanization, there were 27 1/2 workers per thousand in these same industries."

Technocracy believes that because the whole purpose of mechanization under our present system is to reduce production costs, plant executives are counting on bigger and better machines to pull them out of the present slump. If our peak production of 1929 were to be resumed today, they say, not more than half of our unemployed could get on the payroll again. The other jobs already are being done by robots.

BRICKS AND PIG IRON

The Technocrats have stated that 100 men working in five modern plants could turn out all bricks the nation needs—at a rate of 400,000 bricks a day per man. R. S. Tilden, manager of the New Jersey Brick Association, says that 2000, instead of 400,000, is the maximum. He also points out that the transportation of brick throughout the country from five centralized plants would cost more than the bricks themselves.

Pig-iron productions has been another subject of controversy.

"Who will deny that greatly lowered exchange has placed a subsidy on many products listed for free entry; and, on protected items, dangerously reduced or virtually destroyed the equalizing tariff?"

"The American pulp industry stands in the line of the heaviest fire. Domestic production has, over a period of seven years, accounted for 72 per cent of all pulp consumed in American mills."

"If the American pulp industry, therefore, is destroyed in this death struggle with foreign competition, under depreciated currencies, our paper industry may quickly follow on the list of dead or missing."

Technocracy has claimed that the industry has been mechanized to 650 times its productivity of 50 years ago. John Van Deventer, editor of the magazine, "Iron Age," showed this reporter government statistics proving that productivity had been stepped up only 23.2 times. Scott, in rebuttal, said he had been talking in terms of man-hours per ton instead of in terms of number of men employed. Van Deventer, however, declares that the figures must be pure guesswork because they are based on payroll records which do not exist further back than 1921.

Such inaccuracies as have been proven against Technocracy may not materially alter the bases of its contentions against our industrial system. But those mistakes have seriously shaken the faith of many persons who have been told again and again that Technocracy is a coldly methodical and ultra-scientific movement.

But Vanderlip, along with other leaders, declares that our present system has learned its lesson and will find its way out. They do not believe that we are ready to bow to the robot.

our modern machinery and the labor of our normally employed man can turn out."

John M. Carmody, president of the Society of Industrial Engineers, admits that many of the Technologists' general charges are true—especially that technological developments tend to increase industry's debt load. But he believes that industry will readjust itself, will shorten working hours to provide men with jobs, and will keep wages at the highest possible peak to preserve, or create, consumer buying power.

Frank A. Vanderlip is the one Wall Street financier who has publicly spoken a kindly word for Technocracy. He says that Technocracy is not making an important contribution to the understanding of our paradox of unemployment and wants in the midst of plenty. He agrees that industry, through its rising debt load, has been mortgaging the future.

But Vanderlip, along with other leaders, declares that our present system has learned its lesson and will find its way out. They do not believe that we are ready to bow to the robot.

Horses Are Guests At Christmas Party

Detroit, Dec. 24. (AP)—One hundred horses and their owners were guests of the Michigan Humane society at a Christmas party yesterday afternoon at the humane society's shelter.

There was a Christmas tree and everything, including hay and oats for the horses and sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee for their owners.

Before the horses went back to their life work of hauling coal, ice and junk wagons, each was presented with a blanket, a half bushel of oats and a half bale of hay.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

THE Press wishes everyone a Merry Christmas. In extending the greetings of the season, we realize, however, that in many homes Christmas will not be the happy event that it has been in former years.

Unemployment has spread gloom into many a home, and the breakdown of the morale of the jobless is a damage that will take years to repair.

Fortunately, a splendid system of welfare agencies has been developed in this country, so that no one is going unfed, unclothed or unsheltered during this depression. But such relief is only temporary.

Charity can never take the place of a job, the opportunity for man to earn his own living. The importance of work as a means of providing happiness and contentment has never been better realized than during the last three years.

The troubles of the last three years, however, should not deter us from our usual observance of Christmas. If at any time in the history of civilization that the spirit of Christmas is needed it is in this twentieth century.

Peace on earth and good will to men. These are the familiar words of Christmas time, and the ideas they express apply particularly well to the present conditions in which the world finds itself.

The world war, with its butchery and horrors, followed by years of distress, which we now experience, has taught us clearly the necessity for developing peace among nations and men.

There is also a definite need for good will between men for all are dependent upon the other. Those who have wealth must have a little more concern for those have little.

The interests of capital and labor are closely intertwined in this modern-day complex life. Capital cannot gain unless labor, which represents the bulk of the consuming power, is able to obtain purchasing power.

Let's hope that out of our dutiful observance of Christmas the world will fathom the true meaning of the event and start on the way to a better day.

SERVICE CLUBS HIT BECAUSE of the cost of affiliation, the Lions club of Iron River voted at a recent meeting to withdraw from Lions International.

Community service activities, which were launched by these service clubs during the better days, now impose a heavy burden upon them. Some have been forced to curtail their programs in order to reduce expenditures.

That hard times should hit the service clubs is lamentable, indeed. During the last score years that they have been flourishing, they have been accomplishing a lot of good in their respective communities.

have set well with the press of the upper peninsula.

The Iron Mountain News, after reviewing his newspaper and political career, declares that Mr. Fjetland understands the needs of the upper peninsula, and expresses the opinion that Fjetland will help Comstock "to avoid the rocks and shoals in this part of the state."

The Menominee Herald-Leader, which was staunchly Republican and pro-Brucker in the campaign, also looks with favor on the appointment of Mr. Fjetland. The Herald-Leader comments: "The new executive secretary has an interesting background. First of all is his fine war record, established when he enlisted as a private in 1917 and was mustered out with the rank of captain."

He has had many years experience as a newspaper editor and writer, and will bring to Governor Comstock the benefits of that great school of public service training, newspaperdom. "This appointment will be good news to all the upper peninsula, where Mr. Fjetland has been an active promoter of development and progress."

Cloverland will certainly benefit by having this kind of executive on the bridge with the commander. "There goes with the office of executive secretary the honorary, if no longer, official title of 'Major.' But Mr. Fjetland has won his own spurs on a broader field, and will doubtless content himself with giving to his chief and the people of Michigan unselfish and worth while service."

ARMS EMBARGOES PRESIDENT HOOVER is reported to be on the point of asking Congress for authority to lay an embargo on the export of arms and munitions as a means of preventing hostilities such as those between Bolivia and Paraguay in the Chaco district of South America.

Acts of Congress in 1898, 1912, and 1923 give the President authority to forbid or regulate the exportation of munitions of war to American countries or to lands in which the United States exercises the right of extraterritoriality (China) where conditions of domestic violence exist.

The purpose of this legislation was primarily to discourage revolutions, inasmuch as constituted governments usually are better supplied with the materials of war than rebels. If the governments also need arms and munitions, the President may make an exception in favor of them while continuing the ban on shipments to revolutionists.

In 1905 Roosevelt forbade the shipment of arms and munitions to the Dominican Republic. In 1912, Taft took similar action with respect to Mexico. In 1914, Wilson revoked the restrictions on munitions shipments to Mexico, in order to maintain neutrality between the Mexican revolutionists and the Huerta government.

The following year the United States definitely supported the revolutionists by allowing such shipments to the Carranza forces and to the territory controlled by them while forbidding shipments to Huerta. At present the United States has embargoes upon general shipments of arms and munitions to Nicaragua, Honduras, and China.

Such embargoes must obviously be supported by similar action on the part of other countries in order to be effective. Thus in 1914 the United States naval forces were able to prevent the landing of a shipment of munitions from Germany for the Huerta government only by seizing the port of Vera Cruz, for which the shipment was destined.

A considerable advance over the present authority of the president would be represented by any act or resolution of Congress bestowing the right to forbid or regulate the shipment of arms and munitions in order to discourage wars between nations as well as revolutions within nations.

Such increase in presidential authority might develop into an implementation of the Kellogg treaty. It might even allow the United States to join in any boycott by the League of Nations

THE HEART COMES HOME

Tonight, no doubt, the bell will ring At our old church, the choir will sing, And here am I, a world away, Although back home it's Christmas Day.

Back home! I see the church again, The little church the same as then, But I have wandered from its aisles, Yes, I have wandered more than miles.

And yet I know back home they are Still looking at the Christmas star, The star that still must shine for me If I will only look to see.

Oh, little church, look down the road; Here comes a pilgrim with his load, For God is good, although we roam, On Christmas Day the heart comes home.

Week-end Murder

(By NEA Service)

BY GABRIELLE E. FORBUSH

CHAPTER XLIII By the time Tom opened the room door Linda's damp suit lay of the bathroom floor, ready to be hung from the window, and Linda herself was wrapped in the negligee of turquoise mist.

"Oh, Tommy, I've found out something!" she exclaimed. "So've I."

He slap-slapped through the room, violently turning on the shower. She heard the spatter of cold water on hard flesh, a quick toweeling, and her impatient "hurry!" came even as he emerged, grinning at her excitement.

"All right—yours first!" he said. "Hurry yourself!"

"Mr. Statlander picked up the towel from the nursery floor and put it into the hamper himself. He admits it."

"And Mr. Statlander is a little deaf, in one ear or both, and he doesn't admit it."

She blinked as she took this in. "Oh! How—? But that—"

"Answering your highly intelligible question, I reply, 'Yes, it's the truth. Shaughnessy told me. He overtook Statlander as he and DeVos walked down the lawn and Statlander not only didn't hear them coming—which perhaps is natural on the grass—but didn't hear his first hall, Shaughnessy says he whirled around at the second one, sort of guiltily. He thinks the man's sensitive and didn't want it known. We tried once or twice on the raft when he had his back to us and it worked. That is, he didn't hear unless we raised our voices a little.'"

"He made me repeat one sentence," said Linda thoughtfully, "but that often happens—be's seemed to hear all right. I didn't notice anything—"

"Usually he was facing you—especially when you talked to him. And it's not very bad. If it hadn't been for Shaughnessy I wouldn't have tumbled to it at all."

"Mr. Shaughnessy pointed it out," she said slowly.

"Yes, but I proved it to my own satisfaction, Binks. And that—as you saw and started to say—makes a lot of difference about his hearing the noise of the door."

"If it's true he wouldn't be bothered if either one of the doors were shut."

"Exactly. But he still could probably have heard it if both doors were wide open. Did you find out about his?"

"Open."

"Hm! That makes it difficult."

"What's more, he opened the nursery door and the casement window in there for the current through. That was how he said he came to go out on the balcony. He might have heard it from even closer—"

"Still he couldn't have been there long. A noise like that only bothers if you hear it over and over. And you must remember his hearing is distinctly dulled. Certainly the worst edge would be taken off."

"Then, Tom—it's between Marvin and Mr. DeVos?"

"No, the devil of it is we can't definitely eliminate Statlander any more than we can Shaughnessy. We think they're out but it's all based on such small things. How did he take the towel business?"

She repeated the conversation.

"And for some reason he not only wasn't offended but seemed to like me better than before because of it. Explain that if you can."

"I can," said Tom. "And I think it covers a lot we have against him. He's a born old maid—or, if you prefer, an efficiency expert. Things out of order upset him. He straightens the ruffing and picks up the towel. Also he believes a woman's home is her job and disapproves of one who takes her sacred responsibilities lightly. He's thought us both altogether too young and flighty, and suddenly you betray against an aggressor nation to the extent of shipments of arms and munitions. If a new grant of authority were to include along with arms and munitions "any materials of use in war," it might be stretched to authorize a general boycott in case of war, because modern war requires for its prosecution foodstuffs, raw materials, textiles, and almost every kind of merchandise.

Overoptimistic or not, the wats are wishing one another a happy brew year.

One way of learning new words is to ask a taxi driver to change a ten.

old-fashioned house-wifely instincts and call him to account on the number of towels he uses and the fact that one has gone astray. Probably he believed he had done you a terrible injustice and felt highly apologetic."

"Which would show itself by his just being a little less grumpy," added Linda. "Entirely possible, my dear. Well isn't it about time for Marvin to be home from church? Are you sure you shouldn't go after him?"

"I'm not at all sure whether to leave him to do what he said he'd rather do or whether he'll secretly be insulted if I take him at his word."

"He likes to subdue the flesh," said Linda. "It'll do him good to walk, and he can take a quick dip alone before luncheon."

"All very well," answered Tom. "But, Linda, I'm worried. We don't seem to be making any real progress."

"We've time yet, Tommy. I have a feeling—had it all along—that some one thing will suddenly turn the scale and settle it. What's the program for this afternoon?"

"DeVos and Pratt are playing tennis—you know we have the courts. Dolly Alger wanted to have her sister play but Fleur vetoed that. She'll be right on deck herself. Then, as you know, DeVos is booked for the Stoners' blowout this evening. He certainly seems lashed to Fleur's chariot wheels. Not ordinarily an impressionable chap, either, I should think. I suppose it's her money. You can't help thinking of it."

"She's the one that's made it impossible to think of her aside from her money," observed Linda coldly. "I can't imagine Fleur concealing her sense of its importance. Has he any of his own?"

"A very fair amount, I should say. His family's considered extremely wealthy on the Continent and even over here he'd rank as a pretty rich man. This mixing in his uncle's perfume business is probably just a passing fad. He's notorious for having them but usually they're more decorative than useful. He met Valeska at Cap d'Antibes last season and she fell for him like a ton of bricks. I imagine the old man wanted to keep in with her—their American perfume business is a gold mine of course—and so coaxed DeVos to follow up the acquaintance and make the trip for that purpose."

"He didn't seem to me to have that—well, passionate devotion to duty which is such a characteristic of my beloved Mr. Statlander," remarked Linda. "Valeska won't care for it if she hears DeVos has been dancing attendance on Fleur Stoner."

"She'll care for it if it means the prestige of having Fleur and her crowd as customers," retorted her husband. "Remember Valeska is first and last a fiend for profits. All that artistic languor takes second place to the question of cash in hand. I shouldn't wonder if she'd regard it as the best stroke of business I've done—getting him in with that gang of showy spenders and letting him alone to make himself solid."

"Well, take all the credit you can for it. I doubt if your other office representative will speak so well for you."

"Oh, heavens—Statlander! I must talk to that man this afternoon! First I thought he just wanted to go on with last year's figures and the estimates for next year but now it looks as if he had something else on his mind. He started to speak of it on our way down to the water but stopped when the others caught up with us. Gosh, Binks—look at the time! I'll bet they're all so hungry they could eat each other."

At the moment there came a discreet tap on the door. Linda opened it.

"Please, ma'am," said Rosie's voice, "it's past one and luncheon is ready this 10 minutes. But Mr. Pratt is not back yet. Should we be serving it before he comes?"

Before Linda could answer Tom's voice behind her spoke authoritatively.

"He should be here very soon, Rosie. He was to walk up from church and perhaps he's been delayed. We'll be right down and if he isn't here by half-past one we won't wait."

Linda closed the door with excessive caution and looked at her husband.

"Service is out by 12:15 prompt," she said. "I've never had to wait luncheon for anyone who attended it."

"It's 15 minutes' walk at the outside. You thought he'd have time for a swim and to dress again."

"Let's go down!" she exclaimed. "I'll feel better there—on the ground, somehow. Tom, what ought we to do?"

"Exactly nothing." His hand on the knob arrested her a moment. "But if by the time luncheon is over—I'll have to think about it, Linda. I hope to heaven—"

He broke off abruptly, flung open the door and motioned her to precede him. They went downstairs in anxious silence.

Well I see where they got some more new Rules now for playing Bridge cards just as it was getting so people with Ordinary intelligents was beginning to find out what it was all about and I guess they are afraid too many people will learn it if they let it get too easy and then the Experts can't make any money learning other people how to play or selling their books of Rules and by my way of thinking they could cut out all the rules and let the players go into a Huddle before each game or else have a system of secret Signals on how to play and that is all these rules turn out to be a way and the only rule I would be in favor of would be to cut out the flying tackle and Kicking under the table.

Well they talk about having such a hard time to collect these here debts from the old country but I know a fellow I am sure could get the money if they let him go over there and right now he is collecting installments on Raddios and lectric washers.

Texan Will Make Sure His Buddy Has Good Burial

Detroit, Dec. 24. (AP)—All the way from Texas David G. Stockman is coming to Detroit to make certain that his army buddy, Vernon B. Sustental, is given a burial fitting for a soldier.

Stockman and Sustental served in the army together in Hawaii after the war, but separated after they were discharged. When Sustental was killed in an automobile accident on December 11, he had not worked for two years and the only name found on his person was that of Stockman.

Stockman had done well after he left the army. A telegram from Wayne county morgue officials caught up with him in Huntsville, Tex., as he and his wife were on an automobile tour.

At once he set in motion, by return telegram, the machinery which will give his army buddy a suitable funeral. And he is interrupting his trip to see in person that it is done right.

Farewell Dinner Held for Doyle, Goes to Lansing

Menominee—Plans for rehabilitating the forces of the Republican party in Menominee were discussed Thursday night at a farewell dinner given at Hotel Menominee in honor of Senator-elect W. F. Doyle who left Saturday for Madison to spend Christmas at the home of Mrs. Doyle's parents. From there Mr. Doyle and family will go to Lansing to take up their temporary residence during the 1933 session of the legislature.

The gathering, attended by Republican county office holders, who were successful at the November election and the officers of the Doyle-for-Senator club, was presided over by Harold Eastberg. Mr. Eastberg directed the campaign for the first Menominee man elected to the state senate in more than 30 years.

Other officers of the organization present were Herbert Doran, Frank Redinger, Robert McNeely, Alfred A. Henes, Joseph Madden and W. L. Leahey. Attorney M. P. Sawyer, circuit court commissioner-elect, discussed the needs which exist in many counties for proper organization and leadership if the Republican party is to be held intact for future elections.

Cabinet Rumors Give The Edge to Liberals

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington—If half the advance dope is true, Mr. Roosevelt is going to present us with an interesting cabinet.

The dope flies thick and fast. It is not to be taken too seriously, but the preponderance of prediction indicates a likelihood that the Roosevelt cabinet will contain several members distinguished for their liberalism or lack of orthodoxy. Instead of the stiffed yawns which greeted the announcement of the Hoover cabinet, the Roosevelt list may create considerable excitement.

Roosevelt has said he wouldn't actually choose anyone before February, so his decisions thus far may be considered tentative. But among recent apparently authoritative revelations bearing on the business of cabinet-making are:

First, your old friend Colonel Edward M. House, who is credited with picking most of Wilson's cabinet, is now actively engaged in helping Roosevelt select one.

Second, the shrewd Roosevelt's policy will provide for appointment of an intimate acquaintance in every department either as the cabinet member or the official second in authority.

Third, Roosevelt believes the Democratic party should be liberal to the extent of steering "left of the center" and selection of the cabinet will be the first official act in which he may demonstrate what he means by that.

Everyone takes it for granted that Democratic Chairman James A. Farley will be postmaster-general. Because of its political responsibilities the job is the job for Farley and Farley is the man for the job.

But you don't hear much more about such distinguished gentlemen as Newton D. Baker, Owen D. Young and John W. Davis as possibilities for secretary of state.

Now the rumors run strongest to two Roosevelt friends, Norman H. Davis and Frank L. Polk, who were "little cabinet" members with Roosevelt in the Wilson administration. Davis, a Democrat, has a great wealth of experience in the financial and economic phases of diplomacy and is now Hoover's most important representative in Europe.

Then there's Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, now a favorite for secretary of the treasury over Barney Baruch and Melvin Traynor. Glass is the outstanding Democratic authority on banking and finance.

Although sound and conservative, he breathes fire in many of his attacks on the practices of Wall Street and the stock brokers. Glass is getting along in years and has had the job once, but feels so strongly about the necessity of a "new deal" in that field that he probably could be persuaded to take the job.

The name of Prof. Felix Frankfurter of the Harvard Law School pops up as a likely attorney general, taking precedence over Governor Ritchie of Maryland, who doesn't want the job and perhaps couldn't have it, and Sen. Tom Walsh of Montana, who has four more years in the Senate which he would rather serve.

Frankfurter is a brilliant, thorough-going liberal and was one of the chief defenders of the anarchists Sacco and Vanzetti before their execution. He is Roosevelt's friend. Progressives are pulling for his appointment.

Hardly any appointment could be more revolutionary than that of Frances Perkins, New York state commissioner of labor, as secretary of labor. Not only because Miss Perkins is a woman but also because selection of a person of her experience and progressive viewpoint would be an entirely new departure.

Leaders of the American Federation of Labor are campaigning for Daniel J. Tobin, head of the teamsters' union, whose chief claim to fame is his recent position as head of the Democrats' labor bureau in the recent campaign.

Hunters Disagree On Deer Scarcity; Fill Tally Cards

The average Michigan deer hunter saw 25 deer during the open hunting season, it is indicated from 100 deer tally cards selected at random from among the thousands received by the Department of Conservation.

The 100 hunters, 64 of whom hunted in the upper peninsula and 36 in the lower peninsula, saw a total of 2,595 deer.

The 64 upper peninsula hunters saw 208 bucks. They reported seeing 600 does and 404 fawns or unidentified deer.

Ninety of the 100 hunters reported their observations of deer conditions. Forty six said they believed the number of deer to be increasing; 19 believed the deer herd decreasing and 25 said they saw no change in deer conditions.

Practically all of the hunters expressed opinions on their tally cards of their reactions to present deer laws, of deer law enforcement or made suggestions relative to some particular angle of the situation in which they were interested.

Opinion was divided as to the continued efficacy of the one buck law, hunters in the same camp differing both as to the success of the law and whether deer are increasing or decreasing in that vicinity.

One hunter said there were more deer in the locality he hunted than there were 20 years ago. Another said, "There are 50 deer now to one 20 years ago."

"Too much country for the amount of deer in it," a Presque Isle county hunter reported. "Have game wardens visit deer camps and leave a card saying 'I will be back,' it will save deer," a hunter suggested.

A compilation of all information given on all cards received is now being made by the Game Division.

The REINDEER HAS CONTRIBUTED TO THE SUPPORT OF MAN IN ONE COUNTRY OR ANOTHER FOR ABOUT 30,000 YEARS.

"SILENT NIGHT" is sung in every country where people celebrate the birth of Christ. In 1928, a tablet was erected in Oberdorf, Austria, where the song was written, in honor of Franz Gruber and Father Mohr, its authors.

ONE STAGE of human history is known as the Reindeer Age. At that time there were more reindeer in Europe than any other large animal. Some of the earliest known efforts in art are carvings on the antlers of reindeer.

THE LINDBERGH HORROR—The outstanding news story of the year and one that stands alone in the annals of modern journalism was the kidnaping and murder of the 19-month-old baby of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. The veterans battled with sticks and stones but fled before the troops' tear gas. Two of their number were killed in the fight.

VETS RECEIVE XMAS GREETING

"Spirit of the A. E. F." Is Theme of Card Sent To Disabled

Disabled veterans of Gladstone and the vicinity have received greetings and wishes for a merry Christmas and a happy New Year from President Hoover and Louis A. Johnson, national commander of the American Legion. President Hoover through his secretary, Lawrence Richey, had requested the national command to help in extending his greetings to the disabled. In the cases of the veterans receiving hospital care the messages are being distributed to each man on Christmas Day through the cooperation of officers in charge of U. S. Veterans' Hospitals.

Mr. Johnson's penned message is engraved on a card illustrated with a photograph made famous by General Pershing who gave it the title of the "Spirit of the A. E. F." Beneath the picture, which shows soldiers singing while one of their number plays the organ in a church at Vaux, in Ardennes, a small town just south of Somme, the national commander has written the following message:

"Dear Comrade: Our thoughts turn to you at this season of cheer and happiness, of peace on earth and good will toward men. But it is not only at the Christmas season, comrade of ours, that we think of you—we of the American Legion are with you in thought and spirit throughout the year.

"This little card—with its reproduction of the picture designated by the commander-in-chief of the A. E. F. as the 'Spirit of the A. E. F.'—was never more appropriate than it is today—the spirit of the boys who carried on in 1917 and 1918,—who could lift their voices in song, while within sound of their ears the battle raged! They carried on. The spirit of '17 and '18 must be the spirit of 1932! You can count on us.

"To YOU I give the old, old greeting: Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year! May peace and contentment be with you, yours always, Louis Johnson, National Commander."

The message of President Hoover follows:

"Once more it is my privilege to send to you my cordial Christmas greetings and an earnest wish that the New Year will bring you restoration of health and much happiness.

"Your country's continued remembrance of your sacrifices in its behalf is evidenced in the establishment and maintenance of a vast service dedicated to your needs; its gratitude and affection you have always.

"That the New Year may bring you many blessings and a complete return to health is my heartfelt wish.—Herbert Hoover."

THEATRES

"Poor Apache," "The Song of Patsy," and "How Are You?" are titles of three numbers sung by Maurice Chevalier in "Love Me Tonight," a Rouben Mamoulian production, his latest picture, which comes tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday to the Rialto Theatre.

Chevalier is heard in seven of the ten numbers, written for the production by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart, noted Broadway composing team. Those listed above he sings as solos. Four others he sings with other members of the cast.

Jeanette MacDonald, leading woman in the picture, sings five numbers, one a solo. And she is heard with Chevalier in "Love Me Tonight," the theme song.

Practically every member of the large cast . . . Charlie Ruggles, Charles Butterworth, Myrna Loy, C. Aubrey Smith and others . . . sings during the action.

Titles of their numbers are: "Mimi," "Lover," "A Woman Needs Some Thing Like That," "The Man for Me," "The Song of a Gun is Nothing But a Tailor," and "Isn't It Romantic?"

Rodgers and Hart, writers of many a hit song, are best known for their words and music for the musical comedy, "A Connecticut Yankee," which enjoyed a long Broadway run.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Bushong are spending Christmas in Toledo, Ohio.

Army Distributes Christmas Food Baskets Saturday

Christmas cheer was brought to the homes of thirty-five needy families in Gladstone, Brampton, Rock, Maywood and other communities in this section of Delta county yesterday afternoon when the local unit of the Salvation Army distributed Christmas baskets. Grocery supplies for the holiday were put up in 100-pound sacks, each containing about 17 articles.

Vegetables, canned goods and other foods, the receipts of the annual "Basket Matinee" were received from the Rialto theatre. Other items were donated by various business firms of the city and a number were purchased by the Salvation Army with the proceeds of the kettle.

Articles from the theatre included: potatoes, rutabagas, cabbage, canned fruits and vegetables and jellies. Capt. E. Halborne gave the following list of items which were bought by the Army for each basket: two pounds of sugar, one pound of coffee, 1/2 package of Macaroni, two pounds rice, two pounds lard, one can milk, one bar laundry and one of toilet soap, a box of matches, unclass jelly and one can of vegetables.

The splendid cooperation received by the Salvation Army makes any suffering for lack of food unlikely here on this holiday.

Army Issues Call For Clothing To Meet Urgent Need

While the distributions of food by the city and other agencies are relieving any suffering that may exist from lack in that quarter, there is an urgent need for clothing, especially clothing for children.

Saturday brought an almost steady stream of applicants for aid to the Salvation Army, one of the most pitiful being that of a little seven-year-old boy who wanted a new suit of overalls for Christmas. The little fellow came to Capt. Halborne during the rain in the morning clad only in a pair of shoes almost fallen apart. He had neither stockings nor underwear, and his shivering little body was covered with a worn pair of overalls, a ragged scrap of a coat and a battered cap.

Capt. Halborne took the lad to a local store where for a cost of a few cents over five dollars new clothing was provided. Even after he was dressed in new shoes, rubbers, stockings, underwear, pants, a shirt, necktie, sweater and a warm overcoat and new cap the youngster still could not believe in his good fortune and seemed almost dazed.

When the captain returned the child to his home he discovered that the child was one of a family of 12 ranging in age from 17 years to 18 months, all of whom are in nearly as great need of clothing. An attempt is being

Any contributions, especially those of clothing for children, will be gladly accepted and distributed to those in need by the Salvation Army.

CHURCHES HOLD XMAS SERVICES

Gladstone's Observance Of Holiday to Center In Churches

Conforming to the custom of past years, Gladstone's observance of Christmas will center in its churches, where elaborate preparations have been made to commemorate this greatest of Christian events, the coming of Christ. Special programs will be presented today in all churches.

Last evening a Christmas Eve program was presented by the Sunday school of St. Paul's Ev. Lutheran church, which night services were held at the Swedish Mission church and midnight mass was held in the All Saints' Catholic church.

Morning services are being held in most churches of the city today and this evening Sunday School and special Christmas programs will be held in many churches.

At St. Paul's Ev. Lutheran, divine services will be held at 9 o'clock and Sunday school at ten o'clock in the morning. Morning services at the Methodist Episcopal Memorial church will be at 10 o'clock and Sunday school at 11:15 a. m. The Junior Choir of the Methodist Episcopal church will present the Christmas cantata "The Festival of the Nativity" at 7:30 this evening.

Julotta services at 5:30 o'clock this morning are being held at the Swedish Mission church and at seven o'clock in the evening the Sunday School program of Christmas songs and recitations will be presented. The first Lutheran church is holding Julotta services in English and Swedish at 5:30 a. m., and a Christmas pageant will feature the Sunday School program at 6:30 o'clock in the evening.

There will be a sermon in the Swedish language at the Julotta services at 5:30 o'clock this morning at the First Baptist church and in the evening at 7 o'clock the Sunday School will give its annual Christmas program. A Christmas service with songs and music will be given at the Salvation Army at 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

In addition to the midnight mass at All Saints' church there will be masses at eight and nine o'clock this morning. The Sunday School of the church of Latter Day Saints is presenting a Christmas program at 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

In St. Martin's Ev. Lutheran church at Rapid River Sunday School services will be held at 9:45 a. m. and special Christmas Day services with Holy Communion at 10:45 a. m. Services in both the English and Swedish languages will be conducted in Perkins at two o'clock this afternoon by Rev. C. E. Olsson of the First Lutheran church.

Unfair Chain Store Tax Not Permitted

Detroit, Dec. 23 (AP)—Circuit Judge Theodore J. Richter Friday issued a permanent injunction restraining the city of Hamtramck, Detroit suburb, from enforcing a licensing ordinance which placed higher licenses on chain stores than on those independently operated. He injunction, sought by a chain grocery store, was issued, the judge said, because the ordinance is arbitrary, unjust, illegal and unconstitutional.

DELIVERS TOYS TO YOUNGSTERS

Firemen Play Santa to Poor Kiddies This Morning

About a hundred or so youngsters whom Santa would otherwise have forgotten will receive pleasant surprises this morning when members of the Manistique Fire department will deliver renovated toys, looking like new, to children designated as most deserving by the Welfare committee of the Manistique Woman's club working in conjunction with the Welfare council.

Although the volume of the toys received by the department this year was not near as great as that received in the past two years, the majority of the play-things are quite substantial and are more than mere trinkets.
Fortunate recipients will find many hours of pleasure in their use.

Repair work and delivery of the toys have been assigned to the fire department which had no choice as to whom the parcels should be delivered to. The work of assignment was placed in the hands of the welfare committee which is more familiar with the conditions of local families.

Owing to present conditions, the members of the fire department this year had to forego the customary pleasure of providing candy for the youngsters, a beneficial act through which they always derived a great deal of enjoyment.

The department is deserving of praise for the time and effort toys have been brought to them spent in this worthy project.
In a condition which in some cases seemed beyond repair, but their experiences gained from years of experience has given them the ability to make some old doll, kiddle-car, tricycle, or desk, some out of the shop looking like new and ready for at least another year of hard use.
Members of the department are thankful for the cooperation of local residents which has enabled them to perform this service.

REXALLS IN TIE FOR 1ST PLACE

Elks' Bowlers Resume Schedule Following Week's Layoff

The remaining two series of games in the first half of the Elks league schedule will be resumed this week after a week's lay-off necessitated by the approaching holidays. The cessation of the schedule last week enabled various teams to roll off postponed games and this week finds all teams up to the 21-game quota.

Superb bowling by the Rexalls has enabled them to go into a tie for first place with the Browns who got off on the short end of a postponed match. The Giants also showed a reversal of form by copping off two matches to put them in third place, while the Southpaws, although idle, came up a notch to capture fourth place honors.

A merry scramble is predicted for the last place in the first division with the Cubs, Paper Makers, and Tigers tied with nine games won and 12 lost, and the remaining three teams, Yanks, Pirates, and Lions in a tie for last place just one game behind the former trio.

By hitting the maples for a 200 average last week, Tony Busch displaced Jack Quick as individual league leader, showing his average ahead to 181 with Quick trailing by two points.

Grandpa Vic Remel is following close upon the heels of the leaders with 181 and Graphos and Christensen close to the leading quintet with 173 each.

The schedule for this week is as follows:
Monday—Lions vs. Browns.
Tuesday—Rexalls vs. Giants.
Wednesday—Southpaws vs. Cubs.
Thursday—Yanks vs. Pirates.
Friday—Tigers vs. Papermakers.

Team Standings: W. L. PCT.
Tweens 14 7 667
Browns 14 7 667
Rexalls 13 8 619
Giants 11 10 524
Southpaws 10 11 476
Cubs 9 12 429
Papermakers 9 12 429
Tigers 9 12 429
Yanks 8 13 381
Pirates 8 13 381
Lions 8 13 381

WILL RECEIVE GRID TROPHY

Noted Most Valuable to Team in Close Race With Berry

Chicago, Dec. 24 (AP)—Harry Newman, Michigan's All-America quarterback, will receive the Chicago Tribune's annual football trophy as the Western conference player of greatest to his team.

The Wolverine star won the award, the ninth offered, only after a close battle in the voting over Gil Berry, captain of the University of Illinois eleven. Newman received 25 points, to 26 for the Illini halfback.

Newman is the first member of an unduplicated championship eleven to win the trophy, and Michigan becomes the first institution to be represented twice. Benny Friedman, another All-America quarterback, having won in 1926.

Walter (Micky) McGuire, Wisconsin halfback, and Roy Horstmann, Purdue's fullback, tied for third place. The other players named by their teams as most valuable, and voted upon for the trophy were: William Cassels, Ohio State; John Kocikich, Ohio State; Joe Laws, halfback, Iowa; Roy Oen, center, Minnesota; Ernest (Pug) Renner, halfback, Northwestern; and Lew Hinchman, halfback, Ohio State.

Previous winners of the trophy were: 1924, Red Grange, Illinois; 1925, Tim Lowry, Northwestern; 1926, Benny Friedman, Michigan; 1927, Ken Rouse, Chicago; 1928, Chuck Bennett, Indiana; 1929, Willis Glasgow, Iowa; 1930, Wesley Fisher, Ohio State; 1931, Clarence Munn, Minnesota.

Olympics of 1932 Bring 25 New Athletic Records

BY JIMMY DONAHUE

Track and field competition in the United States during 1932 centered around the Olympic games, staged in Los Angeles, in which track stars of the United States set 11 world records, 14 new Olympic records and tied two world marks. These records are destined to stand for some time, as a few of those broken have stood for many years.

There were, however, some notable exhibitions before the Olympic god under way. Among them were Gene Venke's new world record for the indoor mile—1 min. 10 1/2 sec.; a new high jump record of 6 feet 8 1/2 inches set by George Spitz, New York University sophomore; Ben Eastman's breaking of Ted Meredith's 16-year-old 440 record by one second—46.4 sec.; Don Bonnett's cracking of the world record for the 220 in 20.5 sec. and his equaling of the 9.5 sec. time for the century; and Ralph Metcalfe's official new record for the 220 in the same time as Bonnett.

So to the Olympics. Out of those games came the names of Leo Sexton, Babe Didrikson, Eddie Tolan, Lillian Copeland, George Saling, John Anderson, Bill Miller, Bill Carr, Jean Shiley, James Baugh and E. L. Gordon to put the United States far out in front at the finish.

The Texas Babe was the big noise in the women's events. She outshone Stella Walsh who, until Olympic time, had run under United States colors and who, at the last minute, switched to the colors of her native land, Poland.

The Babe set two new world records in female competition—javelin throw, 143 feet 4 inches, and the 50m. hurdles, 11 7/10s. Eddie Tolan, dusky Michigan flash, was the other two-time winner in the track and field events for the United States. The bespectacled, bandaged Eddie, running five of the greatest races of his brilliant career, flashed across the wire in nearly a dead heat with his countryman, Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette University sprinter, in the 100-meter dash. Eddie set a new Olympic record and tied the world record in this event, doing the distance in 10 3/10s.

Eddie's other win came in the 200-meter dash. In this the negro flash sped across the tape in a new world and Olympic record of 21 2/10s.

Leo Sexton and John Anderson were the United States' best bets in the weight events. Big Leo heaved the shot for a new Olympic mark of 52 feet 6 3/16 inches. Big John grabbed himself a discus and hurled it to a new Olympic record of 162 feet 4 7/8 inches.

George Saling, of Iowa, held up Uncle Sam's end in the hurdles. Pitted against the class of the world, George tied the world record for the 110-meter hurdles with a mark of 14 4/10s.

E. L. Gordon bested the field in the broad jump. He flashed down a narrow runway, hit the board and hurled himself a distance of 25 feet 3/4 of an inch and won the event. This was one of the world events in which a world Olympic record was not broken.

Two Bills, Carr and Miller, added several points to the United States total when they finished first in the 400-meter run and the pole vault respectively. Carr, University of Pennsylvania runner, set a new world mark in the 400-meter event, flashed across the tape in 46 2/10s. Miller also set a new world record in his event, going up and over at a height of 14 feet 1 7/8 inches. Jim Bausch, former University of Kansas football and track star, grabbed a big share of the spotlight when he won the Olympic decathlon with a world record number of points—8462.

Two pals of Babe Didrikson who flashed to Olympic glory were Lillian Copeland and Jean Shiley. The former won the women's discus throw, with a world record toss of 133 feet 2 inches, and Jean copped the high jump, beating Babe Didrikson on a jumpoff at a height of 5 feet 5 1/2 inches, a new world record.

The United States won three other track events—the 1600-meter relay for men, the 400-meter men's relay, and the women's 400-meter relay.

The American quartet in the 1600-meter run was composed of Bill Carr, University of Pennsylvania; Ivan Fuqua, Indiana University; Ed. Ablowich, Southern California; and Karl Warner, Yale. These boys set a new world mark of 3 min. 8 2/10s in this event.

The 400-meter crew was composed of Bob Kiesel, Emmett Topplin, Hector Dyer and Frank Wykoff. They also set a world record—40 seconds flat.

The women's quartet, not to be outdone by the men relay teams, also stepped out and set a new record in the 400-meter relay. The Team of Mary Carew, Evelyn Furtich, Annette Rogers and Wilhelmina von Bremen ran the distance in 47 seconds.

Other world records established during the Olympics were: T. Hampson, Great Britain, 800-meter run in 1 min. 49 8/10s.; Stella Walsh, Poland, 100-meter run in 11 9/10s.; and C. Nambu, Japan, hop, step, jump for distance of 51 feet 7 inches.

As an aftermath of the Olympics, it was decided by the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States to adopt the metric plan of measurement in all track meets. By this decision, yards and miles are replaced by meter and kilometer measurements, which will help to bring about a universal measurement for track and field events.

Pictures of the boys appeared in yesterday's edition of the Chicago Tribune. Paul holds the boys' jumping record at 185 feet.

Puck Enthusiasts Meet Tuesday Eve

A meeting of all those interested in hockey will be held Tuesday evening at 7:30 at the Escanaba Motor company. All of the players who skated last year for the Escanaba Athletic association are expected to attend.

Plans will be made at the meeting for future hockey activity in the city. In previous years hockey has proven popular as a winter sport. Some of the men expected at the meeting are: H. Brotherton, Petaja, Starr, Miller, Murphy, Christensen, Carlson, and Alex.

Those who still have suits worn by the team last year are asked to bring them to the meeting as they will be sent to the cleaners and repairs will also be made.

JOCK ASKING LUCK OF SANTA

Both Sutherland and Jones Optimistic as Game Nears

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 24 (AP)—When John Bain Sutherland hangs up his sock tonight it will be in the hope Santa Claus brings him a big package of good luck. For it appears the University of Pittsburgh football coach believes only good luck will enable his Panthers to beat the Trojans of Southern California at the Pasadena Rose bowl January 2.

"Pittsburgh has as good a team as its record indicates," Sutherland said today. "But Southern California has a better record—and a better team. They deserve to win."

Sutherland called attention to Pittsburgh's two scoreless games this season, against Ohio State and Nebraska, while the Trojans won all their games. Bill Kern, assistant coach, interposed to say he believed Pittsburgh found Notre Dame on an "off day" when they defeated the Irish 12 to 0.

Heavy work of the University of Arizona gridiron was the schedule for the Panthers again this afternoon. A third string eleven, using Southern California players as reported by scouts, was sent against the regulars. This same method was used Friday afternoon and the result apparently was not pleasing to the big chief.

"They should have done better," Sutherland complained when he came away from the secret session.

JONES ANGRY

Los Angeles, Dec. 24 (AP)—Tonight before Christmas found Coach Howard Harding Jones of the University of Southern California football team in anything but a benevolent mood so far as Pittsburgh and the Rose tournament game are concerned.

But Troy's head man is a bit afraid that come January 2 his players still will be clinging to the spirit of Yuletide and perhaps will present the game to the Panthers.

"It's pretty hard to figure the moods of thirty or forty players," said Jones. "But if they have the same attitude my boys did a year ago against Tulane we'll take a licking. He hastened to add that the breaks helped out his eleven last New Year's day.

"The boys certainly were in no football mood a year ago, but they had better be when we meet Pitt because the Panthers are every bit as good as was Tulane."

Coach Jones knows Pittsburgh is going to administer some of his team's own medicine in the way of quick-wicks. Both teams have used this weapon to advantage this year.

He realizes both teams are in possession of remarkable defensive ability and have offenses which strike quickly and accurately when the breaks come.

That leaves the situation, in his opinion, pretty much of a toss up with the outcome hinging on the possible mental attitude of the opposing players.

Franklin Roosevelt Near Death At Birth

New York, Dec. 24. Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, writing in the January issue of Good Housekeeping, says her son, the present-elect, almost died at birth and again when he was two and a half years old.

In the first installment of a biography of her son, Mrs. Roosevelt writes that she was given too much chloroform when Franklin was born and "it was nearly fatal to us both."

She writes that her son took a nursing tour of the Black Forest in Germany with his tutor and talked his way to freedom four times when police arrested him for breaking rules.

Depression Explained-- It's Foreign Fighters

BY JIMMY DONAHUE

NEA Service Sports Writer

When Tex Rickard brought handsome Gene's eye to America to build up a reputation and take a crack at Jack Dempsey, he started a parade that still goes on in the city where Tex Rickard, in an eight weeks' tour, with a purse of $250,000, raised $1,000,000 for the relief of the unemployed in Michigan. It is reported that he raised up to $2,000,000 and acquired nearly an equal amount in victory over Bar Logan.

The grand prize, however, was reported to be between three and five hundred thousand for his fight with Dempsey. So Gene left the deal with Tex Rickard some three quarters of a million richer than when he arrived.

Even Phalaris Phil Scott, the English marvel who looked marvelous when assuming his favorite horizontal position in the ring, got himself fouled into plenty of sugar.

He split about $50,000 in his fight with Otto von Porat, Norwegian heavy, and crossed more than $100,000 in his fight with Sharkey at Miami. It is said, Phil's purse in his brief sojourn with us, probably totaled around $200,000.

Two foreign fighters of the present day are continuing to slice off a good share of the American fight melon. They are Max Schmeling and Primo "Freight-All-Feet-Eddie" Carnera.

Der Maxie has taken his dough in huge slices. His first fight in the United States was in 1928, and a year later he was doing main stands in New York rings for prices with plenty of commas and naughts.

His fight with Johnny Risko brought him $14,000. He tangled with another furrier, Paulino "Laudon of Spain," and enriched himself by $47,000. In his two bouts with Jack Sharkey, he cleaned up better than $250,000. With moxie, tours and all, the rest that goes with it, the Black Ulan probably picked up $750,000.

Carnera, the Italian mountain discovered misplaced in France by Monsieur Leon See, is getting his in short, but numerous purses. In four or five months of 1930 the giant fight carnival engaged in some 30 bouts and gathered himself some $250,000. A conditioning tour, they called it, but he was probably in a very poor condition after the circuit, for there wasn't a good fighter in the lot.

He's still continuing the tour. He has more than 14 bouts lined up from Dec. 19 to the middle of January, and stands a good chance of cleaning up nearly $100,000 from these travels.

Among his sorrows were "the very sad conditions" in Russia, Mexico and Spain.

The dean of the sacred college, Cardinal Pignatelli Di Belmonte, 81 years old, in presenting greetings to the pontiff, referred to the pope's previous messages.

"Unfortunately," the cardinal said, "those holy words have not yet had the effect of budging the obstinacy of the minds and hearts of some of those men, who, placed in positions of rule over the destinies of peoples, make themselves practically responsible directly or indirectly for so many evils, without having a sincere and efficacious desire to cut them short at least in part, by collective sacrifices."

Directors of the Pacific Coast League have voted to cut the player waiver price from $3000 to $1250.

AAU ANSWERS BABE'S CHARGE

Brundage Says Didrikson Capitalizing on Publicity

Chicago, Dec. 24 (AP)—Mildred Babe (Mysterious Mildred) Didrikson, by a vote of the experts ranked as the world's greatest woman athlete, was located in Chicago tonight just as she left for another unannounced destination.

Since she left St. Louis yesterday going West, the Texas eye-balls had managed to keep out of 121st as she went about her business in Chicago, presumably the business of lining up professional contracts.

She was found at a loop hotel accompanied by her sister, Esther, and had nothing but "hello" and a large grin as responses to questions. She had no further comment to make on her difficulties with the Amateur Athletic Union and declined to be photographed. She had an appointment at the offices of a chain radio broadcasting company, but did not keep it and gave no explanation as to why she hid.

Babe, who captured two championships in the games of the tenth Olympiad at Los Angeles, was suspended by the A. A. U. about three weeks ago for alleged violation of rules prohibiting endorsement of commercial products. The suspension was lifted this week after she had declared her intention of becoming a professional.

At St. Louis she commented vigorously on what she called ambiguity of A. A. U. rules. President Avery Brundage of the National A. A. U. answered her charges, adding a light touch in saying that the ancient Greeks were not right in keeping women out of their athletic activities.

"I'm tired of all these charges that A. A. U. rules are ambiguous," she said. "The entire situation is covered in rule five x x x. Miss Didrikson knew all about it a year ago. At least the club to which she belongs at Dallas, Tex., wrote us when the subject of advertisement of a certain brand of milk came up.

"The whole story of the Didrikson case had not been told. I regret to say that she is a girl who delights to see her name in the papers and she is attempting to capitalize on her present publicity. She has been badly advised."

THEATRES

As a distinct departure from entertaining "drawing room drama," the lightning fast motorboat thriller "Fast Life," is offered on the Delta screen for today with an exceptionally strong cast headed by William Haines and Madge Evans.

Scenes of the boat races filmed at Catalina Island and in the Los Angeles Harbor show high-powered craft pounding over the waves at close to 100 miles per hour. Cameras were mounted on speedboats to follow the racers, which gives the spectator the same effect as though he were actually riding in the race.

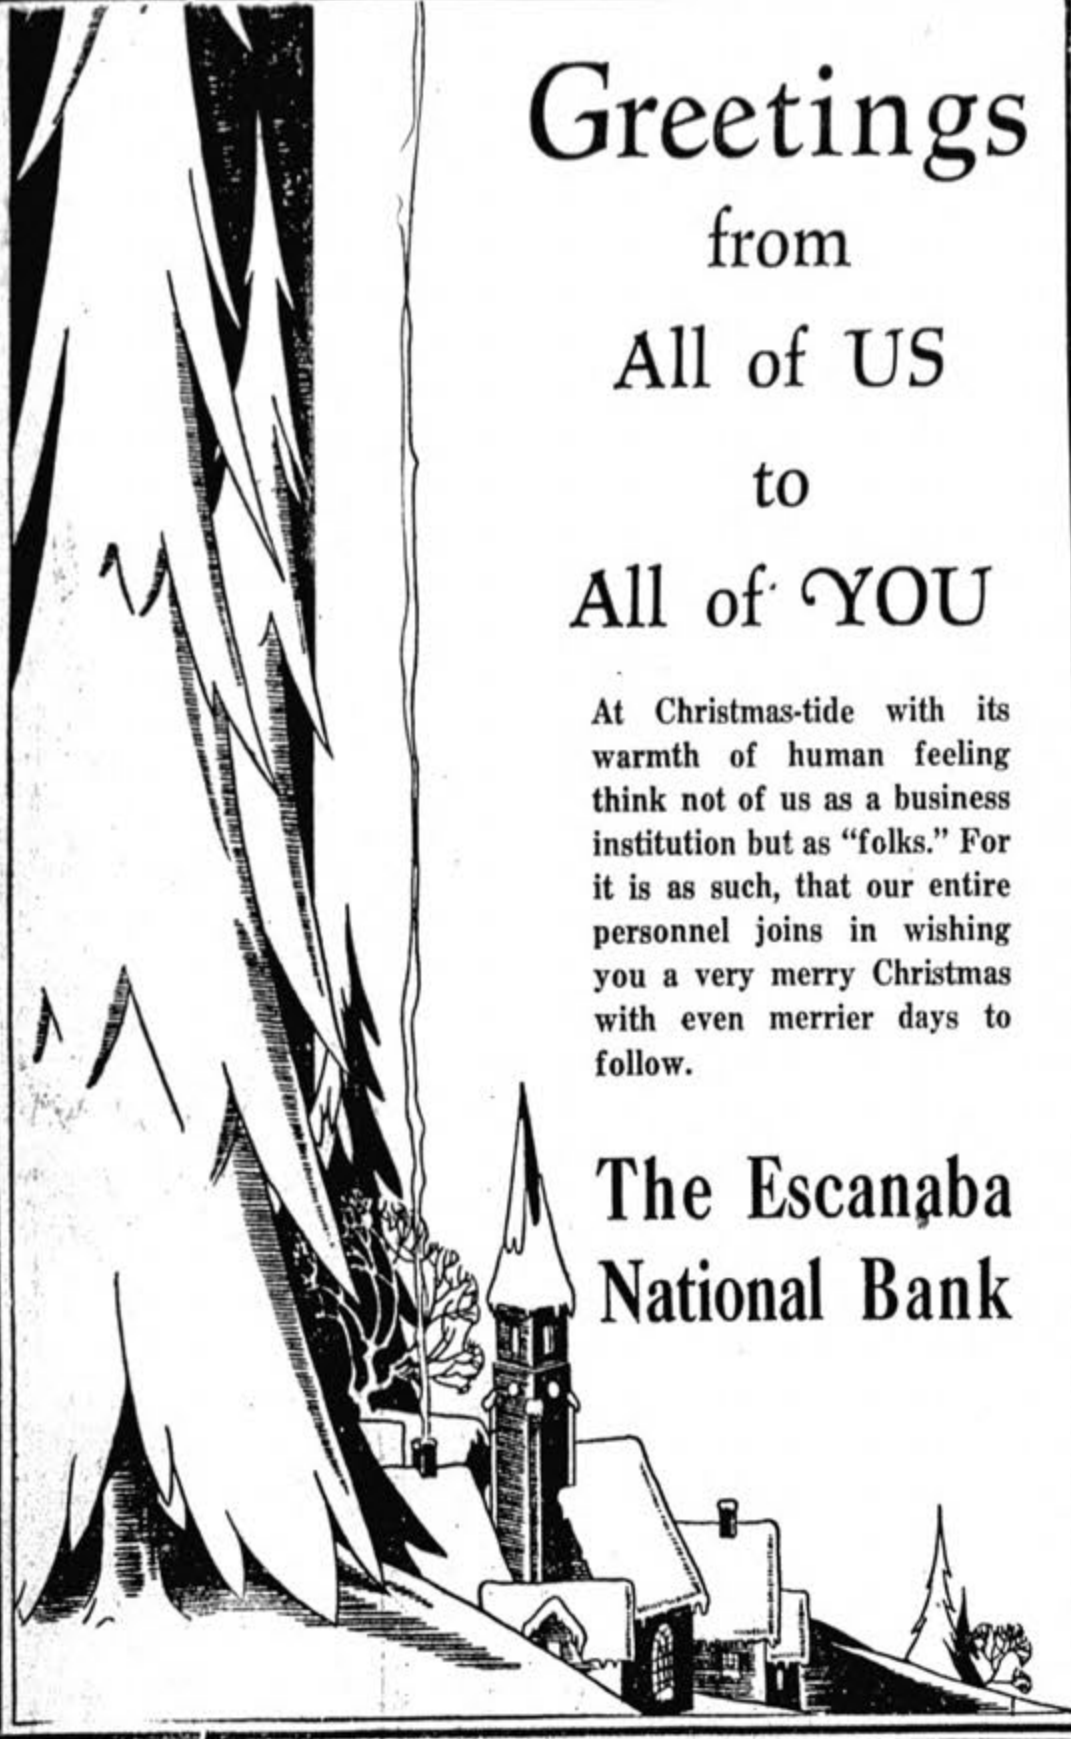

The picture is based on E. J. Rath's novel, "Let's Go," dealing with the adventures of two motorboat mechanics who are determined to enter their boat in international competition. The various complications in which they become involved are worked out through a blend of comedy and drama that is packed with sure-fire entertainment.

It took 70 years to complete the Capitol in Washington, D. C.

"White Christmas" Preceded by Rain

Streets and highways were unusually slippery Saturday because of the rain, and a number of automobiles were ditched on highways near Escanaba. Colder weather promised by the weather bureau began to be felt in the afternoon, turning the rain to snow, and if the storm continues over into today it will be a contribution to a "white Christmas." The lower temperatures will continue today, the weather bureau says.

Christmas

THERE is never justice without mercy; there is never love without forgiveness, and there is never good will without faith in others. We are happiest in helping those less fortunate.

The Way is determined, the opportunity is at hand. Christmas Day is the ineffable harbinger of Hope and Trust, the sacred hostage of Good Will, Love and Peace!
