Water and sewer rates will rise in anticipation of infrastructure deadline

MANISTIQUE – The Manistique City Council has ap-roved the majority of its budget for the fiscal year 2018 including water and sewer rate increases to help cover necessary updates to the city's infrastructure. A budget review and public hearing was held Monday during coun-review and public hearing was held Monday during coun-cil's regular meeting. According to Manistique City Manager Sheila Aldrich, the city's fiscal year for 2017 closes on June 30. The city began this fiscal year last July with a fund balance of $471,598. It will begin the 2018 fiscal year on July 1 with a lower fund balance of $376,580. This, Aldrich explained, was due to several factors, in-cluding property tax, which she said ended the year lower than usual.

Vater base and per 1,000 gallons rates will rise 51 cents and 38 cents, respectively.

Additionally, Aldrich said the city loss of state fire protection revenue affected the 2017 and 2018 general fund. "That is a revenue that we received for many years that, this year, we won't receive with the sale of Camp Manistique," she explained, adding that the state had giv-en the city these funds to provide fire protection for the former prison. Aldrich pointed out that the 2017 budget had been amended to reflect a $20,000 donation which was used toward the purchase of the former Schoolcraft County toward the purchase of the former Scholerar County Chamber of Commerce building. Amendments to the same budget also reflect the actual purchase of the build-ing, which was, in total, $44,960. "We normally would have put any land acquisition or capital outlay in the line (item) right ahead of it, but we decided to make a new line (item) so it was very distinct in there (the budget) and it wasn't mixed in," Aldrich explained

In the building and grounds department, Aldrich said the city spent extra funds to demolish a home that had burned down.

"We decided to use some of the fund balance to take out a burned out house," she explained. "I believe that was the one on North Fourth Street – which sat there by the road." Aldrich also explained that more funds were spent in Lakeview Cemetery.

160 local hunger-relief organiza-tions across the Upper Peninsula "We welcome the opportunity to assist with this critical program on an annual basis and support the great work Feeding America does to help facilitate access to food in our local markets," said Kelly W. George, mBank's President W. George, mBank's President and CEO, "It is part of our core mission statement to give back to our local communities, contributions of time and money, and this tions of time and money, and this program certainly is very worth-while in the fight against hunger some residents in our towns have to cope with daily. We want to do what we can to make sure all femilies have access to read food families have access to good food to better their quality of life."

As a company, mBank makes fi-nancial contributions in the areas of education, literacy, human ser-vices, animal welfare and healthcare. Food insecurity, as Feeding America West Michigan's Sean Little points out, certainly fits the human services description, but it affects the wellbeing of a community much more broadly. "If you're constantly having.

choose between paying your mortgage and buying food or bemortgage and buying food or be-tween fixing your car so you can get to work and putting a meal on the table, that creates an incred-ible strain on families and on the community as a whole," Little said. "By providing nutritious food to people and lifting that burden, you help them move for-ward in these other areas of their lives."

He also noted that mBank's support comes at a critical time. The port comes at a critical time. The grant that had supported many of the Upper Peninsula's Mo-bile Pantry distributions was not renewed this year, which could have left a gap in basic services in Delta and Schoolcraft counties.

"We're so grateful that mBank has chosen to support our Mobile Pantries," Little added.

Each Mobile Pantry provides a variety of fresh produce, dairy products and baked goods and is open to anyone who finds themselves in need in the community Mobile Pantries in Manistique and Escanaba contain 20,000 pounds of food, enough to pro-vide several days' worth of gro-ceries to 400 households.

Manistique's Mobile Pantries are scheduled for June 28 and July 26 and will take place at School-craft Memorial Hospital. The Es-canaba distribution is expected to take place in June, although the date is still being finalized.

LANSING - The Michigan Department of Health and Human Services is encouraging residents to maximize the health benefits of swimming with healthy and safe habits. As part of these efforts, MDHHS is recognizing May 22–28 as Healthy and Safe Swimming Week.

For the years 2012-16, eleven outbreaks reported in Michigan were linked to swimming in treated and untreated water locations including pools, hot tubs, and freshwater lakes. More than 600 estimated recreational water illnesses (confirmed of suspected) were reported.

chlorine and other Ŵhile while chlorine and other disinfectants kill many germs within minutes, some germs can survive for days even when water is treated appropriately. For that reason, it's important to keep germs, urine, feces, sweat and dirt out of the water we swim in. In addition to making us sick, these materials can combine with chlorine and form chemicals that can make our eyes red and trigger asthma attacks. Here's what you can do to keep your family safe and healthy this imming season:

SENIOR CENTER NEWS

in Naubinway for older drivers

NAUBINWAY - An AARP Smart Driver Course will be offered June 7 and 8 in Naubinway. The class will take place at Top of the Lake Snowmobile Museum from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day with a one-hour lunch break

The class is intended for older drivers, as traffic laws and even vehicles have changed since first taking a driver's education course.

Attendees are asked to bring a driver's license and AARP card (if applicable). The course costs $15 for AARP members and $20 for non-members. Space is limited, and those interested are asked to register by calling (906) 477-6298

Unon completion attendees may be eligible to receive an auto insurance discount.

Here are five tips from AARP Driver Safety to help bring you up to speed. 1. Use a three-second following distance to help spot driving distance to help spot driving hazards and give you time to react. When the car ahead of you passes a landmark, such as a tree or sign, start counting. If you pass the same spot before you count to three, you're following too closely.

2. Adjust your fit. Adjust your seat so that you are greater than 10 inches away from the steering wheel. This provides the best vantage point for observing the road and also minimizes the chance of injury due to airbag deployment

3. Avoid distractions. Stay alert, aware and ready to react to the actions around you. Avoid texting, talking on your cell phone (even with a hands-free headset), eating, adjusting the radio, and other distracting activities.

4. Get your vision checked. At age 40, your vision starts to change in ways that can impact your driving. Common changes include difficulty seeing at night, changes in color perception and medical conditions like glaucoma and macular degeneration.

 Refresh your driving skills (and save money in the process).
 For more tips on how to stay safe on the road, take the AARP Smart Driver Course, available in a classroom or online setting. You may be eligible for a multi-year insurance discount upon 'course completion.

Grandparents Teach, Too

Little children have moments of crisis and frustration. A toy doesn't work, older siblings bully, or a drawing is not going well. There is a problem that at the time seems insurmountable. Waaaaa! However, children can learn techniques to take a break, stay calm, and think straight, according to psychologists. Adults can teach them the "This too will pass" principle. First, children can learn to blow off a little steam themselves or others. Then they can learn steps to calmly solve problems. Expend Energy in Positive Way Sometime the first step is to step away. Take a moment to walk away that is so freeing for them and adults, too. Adults can walk or run with children when they are frustrated, angry, or have bottled up energy. In fact, it is a good habit to do a little even when we or the kids are not overly stressed. Families who do a little daily finds the children are no longer in a foul mood and can calmly discuss a disagreement, solve a problem, or more easily change to another exercise are teaching children to destress before they feel like blowing up. We can give them the words. "Whew! I need a break. Let's go for against Brunke, Noble requested the assistance of the Michigan Attorney General Bill Schuette's office. Also assisting with the case was the Michigan State Police. During last week's court hear-ing Brunke's defense attorney, Derek Swajanen, stated that Brunke should receive a sentence on the low end of the sentencing guidelines, as he had no record prior to his first prison sentence. He also noted that the count's prosecutor had used an abun-dance of "resources" in this case, not because of the drug crime it. self, but because of "underlying issues" related to the triple homicide.

Swajanen pointed out that drug activities have persisted in Schoolcraft County, even without Brunke in the area. He ended his statements by recommending the court not use the Brunke's sentence as "retaliation" for the murders.

During Noble's statements to During Noble's statements to the court, he explained that the triple homicide had occurred as a result of Brunke's drug dealing, as Cordell has admitted to being at Brunke's house the day of the murders to ensure none of the murders to ensure none of the drugs on the premises were tak-en by the victims. He also noted that "drugs cause death" and that Brunke, in his years in the area, had packaged and distributed enough cocaine to get "everyone in the county high". Noble wrapped up his closing statements to the court by ing statements to the court by explaining that the murders and Brunke's drug dealing were re-lated and the crimes committed that day in April 2015 were "what happens when you bring drugs into a small community". Well, it is really hard to believe we are still getting weather from one end of the spectrum to the other. One day we figure we are over the hump of cold-wet weather only to have the cold-wet weather return. But seeing we are fast reaching the end of May we should only have one more month of wonder weather. This is the type of U.P. weather when you wonder what the next day holds for you. I was talking to some of the family over on the west end of the U.P. and they said they have received so much rain it is unreal. Some of them are planning to sell off the grass in their yards for hay because they can-not seem to find a period long enough where it will dry out and they can mow it

One thing is, with the rain we have had, if you should need a supply of night-crawlers for the summer it would be a good time to go out and pick a few. As for me, if I had a dozen night-crawlers I figure I would have a year's supply with all the luck I have when fishing. I heard somewhere ive when these guys were not catching fish off one side of their boat to try the other, side and even that does not the other side and even that does not seem to work for me. This is my safety message of the week. From what I have heard it seems that those "horse playing" around on ATV's seem to think they are invincible. I have heard of a nu ber of ATV accidents and even a fatal one so just be careful and realize your limits when out having fun on them. As grandparents, it seems you worry nore about grandkids than you can remember ever worrying about your kids. You think age may have some-thing to do with it?

Wildlife Unlimited and Forest Service partner to provide wildlife internship

ESCANABA - Wildlife Unlimited of Delta County has partnered with the Hiawatha National Forest and the planticed wait of rindwala various in order and the Hiawala Interpretive Association to employ an in-tern for the summer. Makhayla LaButte, of Garden, is a junior enrolled in the Wildlife Management program at Lake Superior State University and will be serving as an intern to assist Forest wildlife staff this field season whethe to assist revest whith start this held season. Wildlife Unlimited has been a long-time supporter of the Youth Conservation Corps, providing the forest with funding for a crew of six high school students and reve leader to perform one week of wildlife and this here is work each summer over the last decade. When the forest announced they were not going to fund a VCC erew in 2017, Brenda Madden, District YCC Coordinator, worked with Lundquist to find an atternative means by which to provide a young person with the opportunity to work on the forest this summer.

work on the forest this summer. The idea of providing an internship for an aspiring natural resources college student was born out of their efforts. Five former YCC enrollees were interviewed for the internship and according to Lundquist, LaButte stood out among the candidates.

LaButte will be interning for an eight-week period and Labitte with be interning for an eight-week period and will receive a diverse field experience according to Janet Ekstrum, wildlife biologist for the Rapid River/Manis-tique Ranger District. The YCC crew always spent a few days each summer monitoring and maintaining bluebird boxes so in their absence, that task will fall to LaBute.

In addition, she will participate in wildlife surveys that will include monitoring historic raptor nests for pro ductivity and surveying the presence of the newly-listed federally Endangered Rusty Patched Bumblebee. She will also gain valuable work experience on several other projects that have been supported by Wildlife Unlimited projects that may each supported by whith Committee including larval monitoring of the Monarch Batterfly at Peninsula Point, monitoring and installing kesterl boxes and conducting fish surveys in area lakes. And to round out her internship, LaBatte will also have the opportunity to sit-in on Interdisciplinary Team meetings to learn from other resource specialists such as foresters, engineers and hydrologists neers and nyarotogiss. In addition to working with Ekstrum, LaBatte will also be working closely with Anna Keenan, a third year seasonal field biologist for the forest who gradu-ated from the University of Wisconsin – Stevens Point in December. Keenan is anxious to share her knowledge and experience with LaButte, as is Ekstrum, who se the two young women as representing the next genera-tion of natural resource conservationists. Luncquist re-inforced that observation, noting that the internship con-tinues Wildlife Unlimited's tradition of providing young people with hands-on natural resource opportunities, just like the YCC program did for so many years. When asked why she decided to major in Wildlife Bi-ology, LaButte sad that her experience on the YCC crew in 2013 was pivotal. The purpose of the Youth Conserva in 2015 was provail. The purpose of the Youth Conserva-tion Corps program was to provide young people with an understanding and appreciation of the nation's natural environment and heritage while accomplishing needed conservation work on public lands. During her eight-week YCC program in 2013, LaBut-to environment and even the conservation in the second

During net engin-week tree program in 2015, Labure to participated in a variety of natural resource projects that not only included wildlife and fisheries work, but forestry, recreation, hydrology, soils and engineering. It was during her YCC reew experience that LaButte was introduced to wildlife management. "Prior to being on the YCC reew, I wasn't even aware they middlife/boom uner even exting in the soil wild by WCC that wildlife biology was an option," she said. "My YCC experience provided me with the foundation upon which to focus my education and now build my career in wildto focus my education and now build my career in wild-life biology. I'm grateful to both Wildlife Unlimited and the Forest Service for this opportunity." Wildlife Unlimited of Delta County is celebrating
