Insuring a century

Area agency celebrating 100 years of business

MANISTIQUE - It's been 100 years of insuring the residents of the area, and the Savings Agency has no plans to quit any time soon.

The agency got their start as a bank-owned agency, operating in this capacity from 1917 until 1956. The initial staff included: William J. Shinar, agent; H.K. Bundy, agency manager; Beverly A. Jahn, agent.

R.G. Hentschell joined the agency in 1955 as an agent in 1955, and in 1956, the agency was incorporated as Savings Assurance Agency, Inc. Despite the incorporation, the agency remained in the bank building.

Elizabeth K. Smethurst worked as a licensed solicitor for the agency from 1957 until 1976.

William L. Hentschell, Sr. purchased the agency in 1962. He dissolved the corporation and opened as the Savings Assurance Agency, while renting a building in Manistique. In 1969, a new building was constructed on South Cedar Street - the same location the agency resides today.

Hentschell, Sr. worked as a licensed agent from 1962 until 1983. William Hentschell, Jr. joined the agency in the summer of 1974, starting out as an agent and later as a Certified Insurance Counselor.

The agency was again incorporated in 1976, this time as Savings Agency, Inc. Hentschell, Jr. and his wife, Diane, purchased the agency in 1986, working there until his retirement in 2010.

"My grandfather ran it (the agency) for the bank," Hentschell explained. "Sometime in the 50s, legislation passed that banks couldn't own insurance agencies anymore ... so they had to remove it to another building."

Hentschell Jr. explained that he had been away from Manistique for 10 years, serving in Vietnam at the time the Savings Agency constructed the building on South Cedar Street.

"I got out of the service and I went back to school," he explained. "By that time, I knew I wanted to come back to town."

After working nearly 10 years at the agency, Hentschell, Jr. said he learned that his father was seeking a buyer - an opportunity he eagerly welcomed.

Resident charged with home invasion and felony assault

MANISTIQUE - On Aug. 9, Manistique Public Safety Director Kenneth Golt released a press release involving a home invasion and felony assault arrest.

The release stated at 11 a.m., Aug. 8, Manistique Public Safety Officers were called to investigate the report of a home invasion and assault upon Karissa Gregurash, who resides at 626 Manistique Ave., in the city of Manistique. Investigation at the scene determined that a violent home invasion had occurred in the early morning hours and that there was a second victim, Joshua Phelps of Manistique who resides several blocks away on Garden Avenue.

Officers immediately located Phelps at his home and found he had serious injuries which required immediate transport by ambulance to Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital. The press release further stated investigation determined the suspect in these crimes was Jordan Thomas Ramey, 19, also a resident of Manistique. Police attempted to locate Ramey and he was eventually taken into custody and lodged in the Schoolcraft County Jail during the evening hours of Aug. 8.

Schoolcraft County Prosecutor Tim Noble reviewed the investigation and issued formal charges against Ramey which include: Count one - Home invasion first degree, a 20 year felony and or $5,000 fine; Count two - Assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder or by strangulation, a 10 year felony and or $5,000 fine; Count three - Assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder or by strangulation; Count four - Habitual offender second offense notice, which is a sentencing enhancement upon conviction of above said crimes.

Jordan Thomas Ramey was arraigned before 93rd District Court on Wednesday for the above crimes.

District Court Judge Mark Louma set bond at $50,000 cash or surety and a preliminary hearing was set for Aug. 30 at 2:30 p.m.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,
To Whom it May Concern:
I am writing about an issue I have taken to three places over the past 1 1/2 years. Some time ago, Hidden Estates, on the corner of Lake and Main Streets, had some large trees removed. During removal, the Main Street grade rail was taken down and not replaced at the top of the hill.
There is no margin for error here, so it is a serious accident waiting to happen, most likely during the winter on icy roads. It is not a short drop to the bottom, and could certainly cause critical damage to driver and vehicle.

Again, this has been brought to the attention of three different offices, with no response. I have returned for updates, with no answers. I will not point fingers or name names. It is well known where I have gone to voice my concerns. Is there a possibility of a fix before another winter is upon us? If not, what route can be taken to get this corrected? There is significant traffic on this street with the Medical Care Facility and residential area. I hope this is taken seriously.

Thank you,
Jeffrey Orr

Dear Editor,
For the third consecutive year, the Manistique Area Kiwanis members are offering "School Tools", a fall community project aimed at supplying enrichment materials to area teachers for special classroom projects. The money the school system has available to budget for each classroom is minimal and often teachers end up buying needed items out of their own income. Our goal is to help alleviate their financial burden in providing learning experiences for our community's childrer.

Between Aug. 15 and Sept. 30, people may donate a dollar toward School Tool projects at the local banks. Kiwanians will also be selling at Jack's Fresh Market on Aug. 18 and Sept. 8.
Thank you to our great community for their support. Last year, one of our elementary students set up a lemonade stand and donated all her proceeds to this fund. We were so touched by her generosity. Together, we can help our teachers as they help our students to succeed.

State's no-fault law at fault for rising costs

LANSING - A new report by Insure.com found that the requirement that all Michigan drivers purchase unlimited, lifetime medical benefits under the state's broken, outdated no-fault law was the number one reason Michigan topped its list of most expensive states for auto insurance.

"We've known for a long time that Michigan's broken auto no-fault system that hasn't seen any updates or changes in more than 40 years is to blame for drivers' skyrocketing premiums, and now is the time to make meaningful reforms that will bring much-needed relief to all Michigan drivers," said Dyck Van Kovering, general counsel for the Insurance Alliance of Michigan.

The report also found that Michigan's one-of-a-kind insurance law causes more uninsured drivers on the road, leading to higher costs.

In June, IAM released the findings of a poll conducted by Washington D.C.-based Greenberg Quinlan Rosner Research. More than 70 percent of Michigan voters say it's time to reform Michigan's broken, outdated auto no-fault law, according to the results of the poll. Respondents to the poll overwhelmingly supported cracking down on fraud and abuse, and creating a fee schedule for what hospitals can charge auto insurance companies for medical procedures.

The IAM has called upon leaders in both parties to make three common-sense reforms to fix Michigan's broken system:

- Crack down on fraud by creating a fraud authority to significantly reduce insurance fraud and scams, which cost the average Michigan family hundreds of dollars a year in additional premiums.
- Stop medical overcharging and the gouging of consumers by enacting a medical fee schedule. Many experts agree that the workers' compensation fee schedule is an effective model for reining in insurance costs.
- Drive down costs by giving consumers a choice of different levels of medical benefits - much like a cell phone plan or cable TV subscription - so they can have the flexibility to choose what works best for them and their family.

Craft brewers ask Snyder to shut down Line 5

TRAVERSE CITY - Michigan business owners in the tourism and craft brewing industries called on Governor Rick Snyder and Attorney General Bill Schutte to begin the process of shutting down Line 5 immediately, citing the tens of thousands of jobs put at risk every day by the 64-year-old pipeline.

"A Line 5 rupture would be disaster for my company, my family, my 300 staff members and my community," said Bob Sutherland, president and founder of Glen Arbor-based Cherry Republic, which also released a new video today highlighting the dangers of Line 5.

"As owner of Cherry Republic, I feel a deep responsibility to protect the land, water, and air of Michigan for my family, employees and community. Enbridge has taken no responsibility for protecting the resources of this state and has lost the right to pipe one drop of oil through its obsolete, 64-year-old pipeline." According to Michigan State University Extension, the state of Michigan had 113.4 million visitors in 2014 and Michigan's tourism industry sustains 214,000 jobs annually. According to a 2016 University of Michigan study, a Line 5 oil spill could impact up to 700 miles of Great Lakes shoreline.

"An oil spill in the Great Lakes would have a tremendous impact on fresh drinking water, and many communities do not have an alternative water source," said Rich Bergmann, owner of Lake Charlevoix Brewing Co.

"Craft breweries like mine depend on this water as the number one ingredient in our beer. The Great Lakes are essential to our economy in Michigan and across the region, which is why leaders should take action now and shut down Line 5 to prevent a catastrophic oil spill in the Straits." More than 250 Michigan businesses support the Oil and Water Don't Mix campaign, including Short's Brewery and HopCat, which is spearheading its own campaign to encourage customers to support decommissioning Line 5.

Head football coach Ron Rubick will not be back at Manistique High school this fall. Rubick announced Tuesday that he is leaving to take over the job of offensive backfield coach at Lincoln High School in Manitowish, Wis. In his letter to the area board of education, Rubick said "I regret that under the existing circumstances in the Manistique Area School system I can no longer continue as varsity coach and teacher. The millage defeat and the subsequent decision of the school board has left me no other alternative. The offer I accepted at Manistique gives much more stability for my family. At this time I would like to thank the board and the community for the cooperation given me over the last year. I would also like to wish the board good luck with the coming millage election. Rubick coached here one year, compiling a 4-5 record after a slow start. The year before he coached St. Ignace to eight straight victories without defeat. The former Manistique High School scoring champion also starred at Michigan State University before entering coaching. His departure leaves the future of football here uncertain. Limited practice for varsity was scheduled to have started Monday. Supt. Edwin Wuehse who was hopeful one of the assistants could take over the job.

County Juvenile Officer Jimmie DuBois has resigned, effective July 12, and a replacement is being sought, Probate Judge John Fackety said this week. Is the Manistique Area Chamber of Commerce defunct? It is, according to President Chris Curran, but at least one member of the chamber's Board of Directors hoped to urge its continued operation at a meeting that was held Wednesday. Curran said Tuesday that five members of the Board of Directors who attended a meeting last week voted unanimously to close down the chamber. He said that Wednesday's meeting was scheduled so representatives of the Manistique Merchants Association and the Manistique Area Tourist Council could meet with chamber members to discuss how its functions could best be split up between the two organizations. However, Carolyn Wegener, owner of the Old Deerfield Resort and also a member of the Board of Directors, said she hoped to reinstate the chamber at Wednesday's meeting. She did not attend last week's meeting and said she was "just shocked to hear there was discussion" on closing the chamber. She noted that a majority of the 12-member Board of Directors was not present to vote on whether to close the chamber. Nonetheless, Curran confirmed a formal vote had been taken last week and that the chamber "definitely is" closed. Curran said the final meeting of the chamber would be Sept. 14 to "shut everything down." Wednesday's meeting was to have settled how the chamber's on-going projects would be taken over by the Merchants Association and Tourist Council. Those concerns include application for a grant to groom a area snowmobile trails and use of the chamber's treasury's $1,300.

The Schoolcraft County Fair began Thursday, Aug. 7, with the Miss Schoolcraft County pageant. Brandy DuPrie was the winner out of a field of five contestants who were judged in an evening gown and costume category. DuPrie, the daughter of Dennis and Donna DuPrie, wore a tie-dyed, 1960s style costume and also recited a poem during the pageant. On Friday, Aug. 8, the Little Miss and Little Prince pageant attracted a large crowd to the stage area of the fair building. Fera Schumar was named Little Miss and Gwendy Charlier was named Little Prince for 1997. Schumar is the daughter of Gwen and Don Schumar and Charlier is the son of Scott and Jamie Charlier.

Longtime Schoolcraft County Fair volunteers Lester Rogers, Dick Ketic, Christine Keener, Donna Rogers and Jean Anthony were honored for their service to the community during the Miss Schoolcraft County Pageant Thursday evening.

Members of the Manistique City Council learned just how expensive repairs to the city's water treatment plant may be during a presentation on the matter at the Monday, Aug. 11, council meeting. The report recommended a total of $3.675 million in repairs to the aging facility, located on the west side of the Manistique Harbor.

Camp Manistique will close. That was the final, apparently irrevocable word given to members of a local workshop Tuesday, as they held their first meeting to discuss the future of the local level-one correctional facility. The panel, which includes representatives of the city, county and other local interests, along with State Representative Steve Lindborg and officials from the Michigan Department of Corrections, was formed Aug. 2 after Corrections Director Pat Caruso said the scheduled Sept. 8 prison shutdown was being postponed to give the department time to "take another look." Matt Johnson, Upper Peninsula aide to Gov. Jennifer Granholm, confirmed in a phone interview Tuesday that pushing the closure date back was exactly what Caruso said it was a postponement, not a reprieve.

Over 300 community members attended last Saturday's appreciation day open house at Manistique Papers Inc., enjoying refreshments, health screenings and other activities, including paper mill tours led by employees Fred Tanner and Jody Wnuk. Many other MPI employees and family members helped out throughout the day.

The 19th-century-themed event celebrates Fayette's rich social and industrial heritage. Special guests include:

- Michael Dere, immersing his audience in music and history as he plays the role of an 1870s iron worker.
- Blacksmith George Potvin and blacksmith/ bladesmith Dan Chozszczyk, demonstrating their skilled trades.
- Dodworth Duo Strolling Serenades, giving a concert at 11:30 a.m., and performances at various locations across the townsite in the afternoon.

"Our visitors have fun, memorable and unique experiences at Heritage Day," said Fayette Historic Townsite historian Troy Henderson. "They hear authentic 19th-century music, see a blacksmith operating a real forge, play games that children enjoyed more than 100 years ago — all against the backdrop of the historic townsite and its beautiful natural setting."

This year's event marks the sesquicentennial anniversary with a special reunion for descendants of Fayette's original families.

"We are continually striving to learn as much about the historic townsite as possible," said Henderson. "There are many descendants of the original families who lived in Fayette. We hope they will join us for Heritage Day, meet other descendants and share their stories of our past."

Fayette Historic Townsite is one of the nation's premier examples of a 19th-century industrial community and company town. In operation from 1867 to 1891, its furnaces produced more than 229,000 tons of pig iron, becoming the second-largest producer of charcoal iron in Michigan. Today, 20 buildings are preserved, including the furnace complex, hotel, town hall, company office and several residences. Eleven buildings contain exhibits and are open to the public, including a modern visitor center with a scale model of the townsite as it looked in the 1880s.

STC has new home at Welcome Center

MANISTIQUE - Schoolcraft Tourism and Commerce has a permanent home in the old Chamber building on U.S. 2. The transfer of the property to the non-profit organization is complete and will be celebrated in a donation ceremony on Aug. 11, at noon, on the steps of the newly named Welcome Center. The public is invited to attend.

STC is the combined entity under which chamber of commerce and economic development functions for all of Schoolcraft County are executed. Memberships will include one set of dues for these two former separate organizations, as well as the Manistique Merchants' Association.

"Streamlining these former three groups into one gives us a single stronger organization and eliminates a lot of overlap in activities," reports Board Chair Jennifer Watson of Limestone Federal Credit Union. Acquiring the building gives us a base of operations from which the community and our area visitors can interact with us, and allows us to better serve as a central point for all tourism and commerce based activities."

mBank President and CEO Kelly W. George commented regarding its donation of the building, "As has been planned for months, mBank is very happy to now be able to make this building donation to the Schoolcraft Tourism and Commerce organization, to assist with its organization and help forward as it embarks on a new mission and vision to help expand our economic base and tourism activities throughout the County, providing benefits to all constituents. Its strong leadership is diverse and highly committed to slapping a new positive direction for overall County commerce growth and they are moving forward with many initiatives. We look forward to continue to support STC in various ways into the future as part of mBank's culture and ongoing community commitment and involvement in the Manistique area."

"This building and location have been serving our community for over 30 years, and we are so pleased to have the opportunity to use and enhance this property as part of our overall economic development strategy," states Alan Barr. "Schoolcraft Tourism and Commerce is extremely grateful for mBank's donation and support in advancing our mission."

The Welcome Center is the new name for the building. Plans are underway to update signage, create a pocket park, and a dog run for travelers' pets.

Volunteers have been operating the Center since mid-May seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. "There has given an enormous outpouring of support for the work we are doing here," said Barr.

"None of this would be happening without our outstanding group of over 50 volunteers. This is a new venture for most of us, and our volunteers have already made a mark for themselves and Schoolcraft County in being both helpful and friendly. In fact, I am getting feedback that area visitors are touting their experiences with volunteers when they stop into other visitor centers in our region. We could not be doing what we're doing without our volunteers, period. And, there are a variety of volunteer activities for which we can always use more folks to help out. Just stop by the Center anytime for more information on volunteering."

An open house is being planned for the near future.

THE DINNER DIVA

BY LEANNE ELY

Fat isn't your enemy!

For years, we've been fed a whole string of misleading information telling us to go fat free or low fat and to avoid butter, meat and eggs.

As old as that (mis)information is, it's still upheld by the mainstream media and unfortunately, a lot of the medical community.

The research however, is mighty clear: fat (good fat, the kind that comes from clean sources—more on that later) is not only helpful for satiation and appetite, it's also your ticket to greater health.

Let me explain...

Fat—the good stuff like fat from avocados, nuts, wild fish (especially oily fish like salmon and sardines, etc.) and grass fed beef help your body, giving it the nutrients (and the fats) it needs.

Did you know your brain is 70 percent fat? Brain cells need fat—this is how they function and do their job.

I've always said you have to do your own research to know the truth of why you do what you do and eat what you eat.

The Journal of the American

Leanne Ely

Medical Association found that the sugar industry had actually paid for the studies that minimized the connection between sugar and heart disease. These studies pinpointed instead, at as the main cause of heart disease.

Interesting, isn't it?

Especially considering the American Heart Association recommends that you should be getting about 30 percent of your daily calories from good sources of fat, like fish, nuts and oils.

I would take on the AHA with the oil recommendation—corn, safflower and canola oils are less than optimal and are in fact, inflammatory.

As a matter of fact, a study published in the British Medical Journal, analyzed data collected from older unpublished studies and found that the link between vegetables oils and heart health to be on shaky ground. The study revealed that too much vegetable oil could actually increase the risk of heart disease, contrary to what is commonly accepted as gospel: that these types of vegetable oils (canola, soy, etc.) are good for you.

And then there was the coconut oil debacle from a few weeks ago. Again, that too was debunked and shown to follow very old research that had no basis with today's research.

My dear friend Dave Asprey from Bulletproof Exec, did a great blog post on that very subject and completely obliterated that USA Today's article.

My point here is not to bog you down with too much information, but instead, to plant the seed that good healthy fat, the kinds I just wrote about above, are the very things your body loves to run on. As a matter of fact, running on fat is your body's preferred fuel.

In other words, moving from being a sugar burner and instead becoming a fat burner, gives your body an opportunity to deescalate inflammation, clean up your mitochondria (the energy centers of each cell of your body), and run on optimal energy.

The advantages of being a fat burner versus a sugar burner are several:

- 1) Effortless weight loss because you're using your own fat as fuel rather than glucose.
- 2) More energy.

- 3) Clearer skin.
- 4) Better mental clarity.
- 5) Less cravings, no hunger.
- 6) Possibility of reversing type 2 diabetes, PCOS, lower blood pressure and control epilepsy.
- 7) Fix your broken metabolism. Eat great and feel great.

For more great information like this and recipes that will help you be a fat burner instead of a sugar burner, go to www.savingdinner.com.

Kids and Sleep: Much Is Enough?

What happens when your kid doesn't get enough sleep? Does he turn into Oscar the Grouch? Not a surprise, really. But moodiness isn't the only downside of a lack of shut-eye.

Sleep is critical for mental and physical development. In fact, a lack of sleep can lead to serious health problems such as high blood pressure, injuries, diabetes, and obesity in kids, as well as depression in teens (and adults).

Sleep guidelines for kids. About a year ago, the American Academy of Pediatrics came out with new sleep guidelines for kids. In case you missed it, here's what they now recommend:

- Infants 4 to 12 months: 12 to 16 hours (including naps)
- Kids 1 to 2 years: 11 to 14 hours (including naps)
- Kids 3 to 5 years: 10 to 13 hours (including naps)
- Kids 6 to 12 years: 9 to 12 hours
- Teens: 8 to 10 hours

Guidelines are more challenging to devise for infants younger than four months. That's because there is so much variation among young infants as they begin to develop regular sleep-wake cycles.

Signs of sleeplessness. How can you tell if your child isn't getting enough sleep? Here are some tell-tale signs. Your child may:

- Have trouble waking up and getting moving within 15 minutes.
- Sleep for at least two hours longer during weekends or vacations than during the school week.

- Fall asleep during short car trips or at school.
- Have trouble remembering, paying attention, and learning.
- Be irritable or hyperactive.

About that hyperactivity—that's counterintuitive and can really throw parents. When you're tired, you probably slow down. But kids can really wind up when they haven't gotten enough sleep, and will resist going at bedtime, even if they're bone-tired. This sign can look a lot like attention deficit-hyperactivity disorder.

What you can do. Yes, we know: Getting kids to bed at night is easier said than done. But it's worth the effort, because quality sleep is not a luxury. You can make a difference in a number of ways.

For example, help your child learn how to prioritize and focus on the activities he or she really enjoys—maybe not three sports all at the same time! Limit your child's access to caffeine—remember it's in chocolate, too. Make sure the bedroom is cool and dark. Set a regular, relaxing nighttime routine. Most important, keep TV and computers out of the bedroom, and turn off all screens at least 30 minutes before bedtime. Whether it comes from a bulb or a smartphone, light promotes wakefulness.

If your child isn't getting enough sleep, it's also important to rule out a sleep disorder or other medical condition. Snoring can be a sign of sleep apnea in kids, not just in adults. We'd be glad to talk over your concerns or maybe its time to make an appointment with the pediatrician.

Nothing herein constitutes medical advice, diagnosis or treatment, or is a substitute for professional advice. You should always seek the advice of your physician or other medical professional if you have questions or concerns about a medical condition.

Local welcome to Medicare seminar set

MANISTIQUE - UPCAP's Michigan Medicare/Medicaid Assistance Program is offering a free seminar in the area to help folks new to Medicare understand their benefits and choices. The seminar will be held on Aug. 30 from 2 - 4 p.m. at the Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital Conference Room, in Manistique. According to Sherry Whitman, UPCAP's Regional MMAP Coordinator, Medicare has become much more complicated over the past several years. Whitman states, "Medicare now includes choices on how to receive your health benefits, as well as offering prescription drug coverage. Most people have a difficult time understanding their options and have no idea how to choose the ones that are best for them."

Seeley attends Techs Engineering Program

HOUGHTON - Kyle Seeley, son of Amy and Kenneth Seeley, of Manistique recently attended the Engineering Scholars program at Michigan Technological University. More than 150 students from eight US states, Turkey and Pakistan were accepted into this highly competitive scholarship program. Engineering Scholars is part of Michigan Tech's Summer Youth Programs. Engineering Scholars is a fun and intensive weeklong look at engineering careers in areas such as mechanical, computer, environmental, electrical, biomedical, civil, geological and materials engineering. The students explored engineering with group projects such as designing a building strong enough to withstand an earthquake, creating an artificial intelligence army and more. They received inside information from role models working in engineering fields. The students learned about the college application process and tips for succeeding in university engineering programs. Students accepted in the Engineering Scholars program receive a scholarship valued at more than $1,000 that covers tuition, room and board, and supplies. Following intensive classroom and lab experiences in the day, they enjoyed team competitions, a variety show and many outdoor activities in Michigan's beautiful Keweenaw Peninsula.

working for the agency in 2000, first working as an office assistant before moving into a full-time agent. She served in this position until 2010, when Hentschell, Jr. expressed a desire to retire from the business.

Braun said her fondness for the agency led her to step into Hentschell, Jr.'s role and purchase the agency.

"I really enjoy it - I love what I do and I couldn't see myself anywhere else," she said. "It's just what I wanted."

Hentschell, Jr. said he remembers an out-of-towner visiting his office one day to ask when the agency would be for sale.

"He walked out the door and Amy walked in, and she said that she wanted to know what her future was there," he explained. "I remember that very well. That made me feel good, because I knew I had a prospect to buy it when I was ready to retire - so it went very smoothly."

Since purchasing the agency, Braun said the community has continued their support and patronage.

"It is because of the community that this agency has been able to thrive in the Manistique area for 100 years," she explained.

MARIE — At its Annual Board Meeting, prior to the June 23 monthly meeting, the Cloverland Electric Cooperative Board of Directors elected Virgil Monroe of Manistique as chairperson; Ron Provo of Manistique as vice chairperson and Charles Litzner of Sault Ste. Marie as secretary/treasurer.

Chairperson Monroe has served on the board from District C since 2011. He has attended national training and has earned his Credentialed Cooperative Director certification from our national electric co-op association in Washington, D.C.

Vice Chairperson Provo has been on the board since 2012. He too has satisfied the course work to earn his CCD certificate.

The board also welcomed a new member, William LaLonde from District B has served on the board since 2012 and also holds his CCD certificate.

President and CEO Dan Dasho.

Viral hepatitis surveillance report released

LANSING — The Michigan Department of Health and Human Services recently issued its annual Viral Hepatitis Surveillance Report on hepatitis B and C, as local health officials and MDHHS continue to investigate an outbreak of hepatitis A cases in Southeast Michigan.

As vaccines exist to protect against hepatitis A and B, and hepatitis C is linked to the growing opioid crisis, Michigan is urging residents to learn the facts, particularly steps residents should take to protect themselves.

The annual report shows that morbidity and mortality associated with viral hepatitis infections are on the rise. Viral hepatitis-related hospitalizations, liver cancer incidence, liver transplants, and viral hepatitis deaths have all increased over the last decade.

Hepatitis A Virus is transmitted person-to-person through the ingestion of fecal matter containing the virus. HAV can spread through food or water if proper hand hygiene is not used by food handlers, and close contact such as household or sexual contacts.

Importantly, HAV is a vaccine preventable disease and MDHHS encourages HAV vaccination of at-risk individuals, particularly in light of the recent HAV outbreak in Southeast Michigan.

Hepatitis B Virus is a pathogen transmitted person-to-person via contaminated blood. In 2016, 1,284 new HBV diagnoses were reported in Michigan. As HBV is also vaccine preventable, incidence has declined in recent years largely due to increased HBV vaccination coverage. However, there remains a significant burden of HBV in developing countries and immigrant populations.

Hepatitis C Virus is also a blood-borne pathogen, but there is no vaccine for HCV. In 2016, 11,883 new HCV infections were reported, making it one of the most common reportable diseases in Michigan.

HCV treatments, which can cure over 90 percent of persons with HCV, are effective at reducing the risk of death from cirrhosis and liver cancer.

For more information about viral hepatitis, visit www.michigan.gov/hepatitis or www.cdc.gov/hepatitis. For important information about immunizations, visit Michigan's 1 Vaccinate Campaign.

drugs, the primary risk factor for HCV transmission, was reported by 84 percent of those new HCV diagnoses. Statewide increases in HCV were correlated with a rise in heroin overdose deaths and heroin substance abuse treatment admissions over this same time frame.

Battling the opioid epidemic continues to be a major focus of Michigan's Opioid Taskforce and Stop Overdose Campaign.

For more information about viral hepatitis, visit www.michigan.gov/hepatitis or www.cdc.gov/hepatitis. For important information about immunizations, visit Michigan's 1 Vaccinate Campaign.

It might be August but it's not too late!

If you have a three or four year old child and are interested in enrolling them in a quality preschool program, contact Emerald Elementary for information on what we have to offer.

As the excitement of the new school year continues to grow over the next few weeks students will be anxious to get to see their classrooms and meet their teachers.

and pick up procedures that will be implemented at Emerald. That information will be repeated at 5:45. Teachers will be available in their classrooms from 5:30-6:30.

With the transportation procedures changing at both Emerald Elementary and the Middle/High School this year it is extremely important that all students and parents are educated on the changes.

At Emerald Elementary, bus loading and unloading will take place in the newly reconfigured parking lot. Buses will enter from Cattaraugus and exit on Oak. The new driveway and parking lot will be closed to all car traffic from 7:45-8:30 a.m. daily.

All of these transportation changes will create a process that is much safer for our students.

Students are not to report to school more than 25 minutes before the start of the school day. That means students at the Middle/High School should not report to school before 7:50 a.m. for an 8:15 start time.

As always if you have any questions please call the school at (906) 341-4300.

With a new starting schedule in the works for the Emeralds this football season, the squad will take direction from their new, former coach, Todd Kangas. The 2017 practice season started on Monday. Kangas (above) and Ed Marietti (right) run the players through their respective training drills.

Heat management concern during fall sports practice

LANSING - As summer turns toward the beginning of fall sports practices this week, the Michigan High School Athletic Association is providing a familiar but vital reminder that student-athletes need to prepare for activity in the hot weather that traditionally accompanies the beginning of August and the first training sessions of the school year.

Each year, the MHSAA provides information to its member schools to help them prepare for hot weather practice and game conditions during the late summer and early fall. Football practice began at MHSAA schools on Aug. 7, followed by first practices for all other fall sports on Aug. 9.

For football, there must be four days of acclimatization before going to full pads and contact on Aug. 17. During the first week of practice, only helmets are allowed the first two days, only shoulder pads may be added on the third and fourth days and full pads may not be worn until the fifth day of team practice.

The topic of heat-related injuries receives a lot of attention at this time of year, especially when deaths at the professional, collegiate and interscholastic levels of sport occur, and especially since they are preventable in most cases with the proper precautions.

UP Fish Report

slow as water temperatures were too warm. Those fishing the river reported good walleye catches when casting jigs with crawlers near the end of the rapids near the Upper Dam. Good smallmouth action for those casting plastics, spinners and crank baits along the edge of the barriers. Several good size pike were caught in the same areas.

Marquette: Good numbers of coho were still being caught in top 30 of waters 50 to 60 feet deep in the Lower Harbor and off Shot Point. Short cores and copper, dipsies and downriggers have all taken fish. Lots of lake trout were caught between the white rocks and Granite Island in 130 to 200 feet and deeper.

Au Train: Limits of lake trout have been taken at Big Reef as well as the sand flats in front of Shelter Bay. A few coho were also caught.

Munising: Water temperatures finally reached the low 60's offshore and mid 60's near shore. Lake trout including some limit catches were caught off Wood Island and the Big Reef. Boat anglers caught a fair to good number of coho and a few chinook salmon. The coho were about 30 feet down in 50 feet outside the breakwall. Pier anglers at the Anna River dock reported slow action with only a couple whitefish and splake caught. Try small red worms for the whitefish or spawn sacs and shallow running stick baits for the splake.

Grand Marais: Lake trout anglers reported good catches near the shipping lanes in 160 to 200 feet and near Big Reef. Those trolling did well on dodgers with spoons or flies and downriggers near the bottom. A few were also jigging around Big Reef. A couple coho were caught when trolling to the east with stick baits or spoons in 50 feet. Hot colors were silver, gray, orange and gold.

Tahquamenon River: Pike and musky were a bit more active for boat anglers casting or trolling. Most of the pike were on the small side but the musky were legal length. Those fishing near the Dollarville Dam caught small bluegills and rock bass. St. Marys River: Was still producing some Atlantic salmon behind the Cloverland Powerhouse. Walleye were caught in 10 to 15 feet on the sand or mud flats. Lake George had decent smallmouth fishing in the shallows. In the lower river, walleye and perch fishing were very slow. Most of the catches were undersize pike. Schools of lake herring have been found near Lime Island but the fish appear to be inactive or traveling in schools around Raber Bay. Those trying to catch them had not gotten a single bite.

Detour: When boats could get out, a few lake trout were caught with downriggers over the 90 foot flat with sort leaders no more than 18 inches and spin-glo's in chartreuse or orange with white. A few chinook salmon were caught on spoons 50 feet down in over 90 feet with chartreuse and chrome or white and orange spoons. For those targeting chinook, it is about that time to look upstream in the river between the lighthouse and the Ferry Boat lane that runs to Drummond Island.

Drummond Island: Those targeting walleye are back now that the lake herring are gone but catch rates were still poor as very few were caught. Good bass fishing continues along the drop-offs, Scott Bay and the shallow waters near Maxton Bay when floating crawlers or chubs. Deep diving crank baits, swimbaits and spinners were also taking fish. Pike were hitting on chubs and stick baits around Harbor, Rutland and Peck Islands.

Cedarville and Hessel: Cedarville and Hessel: Yellow perch were caught off Cedarville when drifting spinners in 8 to 10 feet off Corners Point in the early afternoon. Fish were also caught just north of Island #8, and in six to eight feet around Little Joe Island. Small schools of yellow perch also move throughout the Les Cheneaux Islands, with anglers targeting docks and weed beds in five to eight feet with worms or shiners. Panfish and largemouth bass are being caught off the Hill Island Bridge one quarter mile south of M-134. Northern pike were caught straight south of the Hessel at Cube Point when drifting chubs and frozen smelt in six to eight feet along the weed beds early or late. Small perch and sunfish were caught east of Hessel Marina. For walleye, try drifting or jigging in 12 to 18 feet along the south end of Mackinaw Bay in the early morning. A few walleye were caught with a crawler harness and bottom bouncer.

St. Ignace: A few boats were trolling spoons around Mackinac Island but had no luck. Shore anglers on the Carp River caught walleye on leeches and worms under a slip bobber of a crawler harness. Walleye fishing in the Pine River was slow. Shore anglers fishing the bottom with worms and leeches had little success.

Heat management

Head volleyball coach Amy Nixon gathers her troops after a quick trip outside to stretch their legs after sitting around all summer by running a few laps on the track. Nixon's practice season opened up on Wednesday morning.

"We emphasize preparation for hot weather at the start of each fall, but this cannot be repeated enough. If we take precautions and plan as we should, heat illness is almost always preventable," said John E. "Jack" Roberts, executive director of the MHSAA. "We encourage student-athletes to come to their first practice prepared for hot conditions. But coaches also are trained to assume not all student-athletes will be ready, and to be vigilant in making sure all participants are hydrating properly."

A number of member schools continue to follow the MHSAA's Model Policy for Managing Heat & Humidity, which while not mandated for member schools was adopted as a rule for MHSAA postseason competition in 2013. The plan directs schools to begin monitoring the heat index at the activity site once the air temperature reaches 80 degrees and provides recommendations when the heat index reaches certain points, including ceasing activities when it rises above 104 degrees.

The model heat & humidity policy is outlined in a number of places, including the publication Heat Ways, which is available for download from the MHSAA Website on the "Health & Safety" page at <https://www.mhsaa.com/>

Schools/Health-Safety-Resources: To also assist in acclimatization, the football practice rule changes adopted in 2014 allow for only helmets to be worn during the first two days, only shoulder pads to be added on the third and fourth days, and full pads to not be worn until the fifth day of team practice. The policy in detail can be found on the Football page of the MHSAA Website at <http://www.mhsaa.com/portals/0/documents/FB/practice-policy.pdf>.

Heat, hydration and acclimatization continue to be focuses of the MHSAA's required preseason rules meetings for coaches and officials. The online presentations discuss the need for good hydration in sports, regardless of the activity or time of year, and informs both how to recognize the early signs of heat illness and the immediate steps to take to respond to those symptoms. The MHSAA requires all head varsity, varsity assistant and subvarsity coaches at the high school level to complete the rules and risk minimization meeting requirement.

The first days of formal practices in hot weather should be more for heat acclimatization than the conditioning of athletes, Roberts reminded, and practices in such conditions need planning to become longer and more strenuous over a gradual progression of time. He noted that schools also must consider moving practices to different locations or different times of day, or change practice plans to include different activities depending on the conditions.

Roberts also noted that student-athletes should make sure to hydrate all day long - beginning before practice, continuing during and also after practice is done. Water and properly-formulated sports drinks are the best choices for hydration, while energy drinks, high-carbohydrate fruit juices (greater than eight percent carb content), carbonated and caffeinated beverages are among those that should be avoided.
