PALMIRA, N. Y., Nov.—A regular manufactory of bogus ballots, with which it was proposed to flood the state between now and next Tuesday has been discovered in Wayne County. The ballots have been prepared for every county in the state. On these ballots the electoral ticket is headed with the names of Henry W. Sage and Jesse Seligman, the rest of the ticket being made up of the names of democratic electors. The rest of the ticket is republican except for counties where republicans are supposed to be likely to vote a split ticket for local offices where the ticket is made to correspond to what is believed to be the favorite combination. It was proposed to mail these ballots to republicans throughout the state with instructions for pasting, folding, etc., purporting to be issued by the republican state central committee.

Read the mammoth advertisement of Mr. Winkelman in another part of this impression. He gives you these prices that cannot be discounted.

The scandals that have been invented for use in this campaign only served to make votes for the men that the scandal mongers sought to down.

Democrats expected to win this fall by getting the votes of dissatisfied republicans; but we don't happen to have a Corporal's guard of that kind.

Hon. J. W. McMahon spoke to a large audience at Thompson Saturday night, and everybody seemed to feel the force of what he said to them.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Smith mourn the loss of one of their twin children. It was placed in the cemetery on the hill Saturday. Services at the Catholic church.

Thanks for a call the fore part of the week from Mr. Joseph Mason and J. A. Robinson. Mr. M. looks very well after his sojourn of five years in the state of Washington.

LOCAL GLEANINGS

Elect the whole Republican ticket.

Remember that every vote counts.

Rick will be elected by 15,000 majority.

Was on and barges arrived Friday afternoon.

No need of splitting the Republican ticket to-day.

About 125 new names were placed on the Hiawatha Township rolls last Saturday.

Republicans, vote your straight party ticket. The entire ticket is an unusually strong one worthy of your support.

Mrs. Daniel Brown and babe left last week to spend the winter with her mother in Green Bay, while Mr. B. is absent at camp.

Who will get the prize at the Opera House dance this evening. One will be given for the neatest mask and another for the most comical.

No man that believes in justice can endorse the Democratic county ticket. Broken pledges, made from one man to another, is not justice. We refer to the pledges made by John Castello to several men here.

C. P. Hillis out with another special "ride out" to-day. He does not ask you how you are going to vote, but wants you to take advantage of the splendid offers he is making on the prices of goods. Go and see him.

Not a voter yet, but just in time to be one in 1913, when Republican voters will be born to celebrate a glorious victory. Born Sunday morning to Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Phippey a son. This will be a family of voters—five boys.

C. M. Atkinson, of the Diamond Drill, was arrested last week on the charge of changing the names on election tickets last spring. He will have a hearing this week, and will most likely come out on top, as he usually does.

The Democratic party for 1892 asked for "adequate protection" while the same party in 1892 want free trade. Individual Democrats tell us they are still for protection! Then make your words good by voting for Harrison & Reed.

Saturday was a great day for Democratic but on looking out the question of what they make much at it.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church meets in the church parlors next Wednesday afternoon.

A new sensation started last week, too ridiculous to print, causes considerable merriment among the men.

No flowery rhetoric can tell the merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla as well as the cures accomplished by this excellent medicine.

Mr. Booth, of Page & Serchen, of Detroit, has been in the city since Saturday, with a splendid line of samples of holiday goods.

You will make no mistake by making a single cross under the head of Harrison and without another mark vote the entire ticket.

The labor cost on a ton of bar iron in England is $3.65, and in Pittsburg $11, the latter being 203 per cent in excess of the former. The price of the finished bar in England is $25.65 and in Pittsburg $35.84, the latter being only 40 per cent in excess of the former. The Pittsburg labor cost is 203 per cent greater than the English, while the price is only 10 per cent greater than the English. Why doesn't Roger Q. Mills, indulge in some facts like that? Those laborers get a trifle over the $0.75 mentioned by the gentleman from Texas, out of $10.19 difference in price.

Stradler Ellis' friends boast, greatly of what he did in a professional way in this county; but the facts are that he did no more than any other Attorney could have done with the same evidence at his command. The whole trouble heretofore has been that the evidence in that particular class of cases was lacking. The majority sentiment had been with the defendant, and under Ellis' administration it was unanimously with the people. ## PROCLAMATION.

To ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

In pursuance of the requirements of section 9385 of Howell's Statutes of Michigan, I hereby make the inhabitants that said Act makes it unlawful for any person to sell, borrow or give away any spurious, vicious or malt liquors on the day of any election within this state, and that all violations of said Act will subject the offenders to prompt and speedy punishment.

And I do require all Sheriffs and Constables to close all houses and places found violating the provisions of said Act, and to report to me forthwith all violations thereof, so that the violations may be immediately presented.

Given under my hand at Manistique, Michigan, this 4th day of November, A. D. 1892.

W. H. HIGGS,
Supervisor Manistique Twp.

Last Words.

This is the last issue of this paper before the ballot box settles all matters of controversy in this campaign, and we are proud to know that we have not a candidate that has been a dead weight on the hands of the party this fall. Not one whose record needed explaining. Every man on the ticket is a Republican from principle; each one fully competent to discharge the duties of the office he was nominated for. This "this has" been a pleasant campaign, and we have not the least doubt of the success of the Republican ticket, from President to coroner. There has been some muttering but no more than in 1877. The so called Democratic voters, for the want of something better to do have thrown the mud. With them the case was a desperate one and, with all they have said and done, they only sank deeper into the mire.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—The President today requested the publication of the following card:
 "The expressions of sympathy with me and our family in our great sorrow, from individuals, from societies, from church conventions, from public meetings, from political clubs and committees of all parties, and indeed from all our people, have been so tender and so full of respect and love for Mr. Harrison that I reluctantly abandoned the purpose of making a personal acknowledgment of each. We are grateful, very grateful, for your great outpouring of sympathy and for your prayerful intercessions. May God give to each of you that grace and strength which you have asked for us."
 BENJAMIN HARRISON

Adlai's "Golden Age"
 Rockford Republican: Lieutenant Governor Fay says no claim to spell-binding oratory, but his speeches are none the less effective. The Lieutenant Governor is much older than his appearance indicates, and his possession of a long memory. He was a general merchant in what Adlai Stevenson has term the "golden age" when free trade prevailed; and, in speaking of the good old Democratic days, he said in a recent speech: "Frequently in 1859 I took five dozen eggs from a farmer's baskets and gave him a pound of sugar in exchange, and it wasn't white sugar at that. To-day you can get twenty pounds of sugar for your five dozen eggs, and it's the best granulated. When free trade was in vogue I sold coffee at 12 to 20 and 25 cents per yard, while now, under a protective tariff of 1 or 5 cents, even better coffee can be bought for 6 or 7 cents." In those days it required more labor to get the money with which to buy coffee at "12 to 20 and 25 cents per yard" than it does now and frequently when a man did earn a dollar in the money of the "golden age" by more than a day's work it would shrink to 50 cents in value while he was traveling from his place of labor to a store. And yet the Democratic party expects the farmers and laboring men to vote for a policy of free trade and wild currency.

Electricity Again.
 Since, in medical matters, we should have no prejudices and should approve of any means whereby a patient can be relieved, especially in a complaint like pulmonary consumption, I do not hesitate to call attention to the success which a Russian physician claims to have obtained by treating tuberculosis with electricity.

The case of consumption in which M. Soupinsky used electricity was that of a woman 28 years of age, who showed signs of tuberculous infiltration of both apices, with effusion in the right pleural cavity. The patient had no emphysema, profuse perspiration and had lost weight. The applications of whiskey were made each day, lasting 10 minutes, by means of sponge electrodes dipped in salt water and applied to the chest, and two weeks after the beginning of this treatment the patient's condition was manifestly improved. Coughing, oppression and night sweats had diminished, sleep and appetite had returned. At the end of a month the liquid in the pleural cavity had also diminished considerably, and after three months treatment had completely disappeared. At that time the patient had gained flesh, ate and slept well, had no more oppression or night sweats and the rattles which formerly had been heard in either lung had disappeared, only leaving a little rough breathing. Two years and a half later M. Soupinsky saw the patient and found her in excellent condition.—N. Y. Herald.

"Woman is a conundrum to which the world has never found an answer up to date," says the Somerville Journal. But nobody is inclined to give her up.

Is there at present any part of our country which has any reasonable ground for viewing with disfavor the political incorporation of her dominions with the United States? We are perhaps justified in inferring from the cold tenor of the Boston Advertiser's comments on the subject that a certain class of New England fear that the in the event of union with British North America the northeastern states might be swamped by an inundation of French Canadians. Such a fear, however, has no foundation. The existing political separation of the two great sections of North America is the arrangement most adapted to produce the evil possibly dreaded in New England. It is their political isolation at home which keeps the peasantry of Quebec so intractably French in language, habits, feelings and ideas; and it is the commercial atrophy inseparable from isolation which irresistibly impels them to migration. Where the provinces of Quebec once admitted to the union, the process of assimilation to the great body of our citizens would go on rapidly among the French-Canadians, and as the latter would find themselves much better off, they would be more likely to stay at home.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Annual reports by the cabinet officers for the year ended June 30, 1922, will be ready for the president soon after the election next week, and all except those of the secretary of the treasury, the attorney-general (who makes his direct to congress and not to the president) and the secretary of state will be given to the press in advance of the meeting of congress.

The most voluminous of these department reports is that of the secretary of the interior. It is well understood, and will probably be one of the first reports given to the public. Postmaster-General Wannamaker has also been hard at work on his annual report for more than a month. He will urge his plan for postal telegraph, and, as an argument for one-cent letter postage, he will present the fact that the post-office department will probably be self-sustaining in another year.

The recommendation of the greatest popular interest in the forthcoming report of the secretary will be that for the establishment of a national quarantine.

The president has not yet begun work on his annual message, and will probably not do so until after the election.

The state commissioner of insurance has revoked the license of the Ohio Farmers' Insurance company to do business in Michigan from and including this date. An examination by the commissioner of insurance of Ohio shows the net assets of the company have been reduced to less than $70,000. At that time of the admission $200,000 surplus was treated as capital stock and under the Michigan insurance law this would not be done. The company is solvent and it is thought that when the company's affairs are settled its license will be restored.

David B. Hill, in a speech at Washington on the evening of the 25th, thus sized up Wayne McVeagh: "I have nothing but contempt for the ostentatious zeal of a new convert who after having for years enjoyed the honors and emoluments of position conferred on him by his own party assails his former associations with venomous vituperation."

They take the cake. Pears' Little Balm.

For lame back there is nothing better than to saturate a flannel cloth with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bind it on the affected parts. Try it and you will be surprised at the prompt relief afforded. The same treatment will hyperaemia. For sale by Thompson and Putnam.

Spramen cases.

S. H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis., was troubled with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, his stomach was disordered, his liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away, and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Sheppard, Harrisburg, Ill., had a running sore on his leg of eight years standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Swacker, Catawba, O., had five large FEVER sores on his leg, doctors said he was incurable. One bottle Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold at Thompson & Putnam's Drugstore.

An honest Suezle tells his story in plain but unmistakable language for the benefit of the public. "One of my children took a severe cold and got the croup. I gave her a teaspoonful of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and in five minutes later I gave her more. By this time she had to cough up the gathering in her throat. Then she went to sleep and slept good for fifteen minutes. Then she got up and vomited, then she went back to bed and slept good for the remainder of the night. She got the croup the second night and I gave her the same remedy with the same good result. I write this because I thought there might be some one in the same need and not know the true merits of this wonderful medicine." CHARLES A. THOMPSON. Des Moines, Iowa. I put my gun on two staves that crossed... "You are a fool, not a paltry, ordinary fool, but a pig-headed, obstinate, blundering, blithering idiot."

DEATH ON THE DESERT.

The following story is but an example of many and was outlined to me by a man who lost his companion when actually within sight of the railroad track.

Swearing I generally find brings more sense into a man's head than entreaty, but if you had only known Riley as I knew him you would have given him up long ago as an uncommonly fine specimen of an ass.

"I'm going to Salton, and shall be in San Francisco on her birthday," I was sure that he would go. Now, this was in July, and we were in the Chuckawalla district.

"Yes, but old Connors will be passing in a day, or so and he'll return the burro, dead sure. So why not wait?"

"He said he would be here to-day and he isn't! You can't believe these fellows, anyway. Paul and I'm going to start. Of course you needn't hoof it if you're afraid."

Riley had no right to sneer. I knew the desert better than he did, and the sneer wasn't comfortable. Besides, I never believe that foolishness is pluck.

It was a blazing day. Ho! Why, there is no word for that heat. The sun came up at 4:30 a. m. He rose in a furious mood, and I could tell by his blood red crescent as it tipped the low range of hills to the east that we were in for a scorching time.

If you have never seen a sunrise on the desert it would pay you to go out there and see it. The sand, shining here glittering with strange whiteness and were motionless as death.

"How, how hot it is, Riley!" I said as my cheek felt the first beams. "We are in for it my boy."

"Yes, we," returned he coolly. "Are you going?"

"Shall I see you go alone?" "Oh, come now, it's no use your coming. You'll be a nuisance with your platitudes."

"Not at all, my son," I cheerily answered. "I want to see how an amateur behaves when tormented by the terrors of thirst. It will be as funny as the stories which follow, write of the 'sun-stubbed silence,' which they have never seen."

The way is immensely dreary and rather rough in the vicinages of the claims—queer rolling ground liberally bespattered with stones and rubbles. The walking is not particularly hard. It is only when you get to the level plain that the weariness of the desert commences.

Four feet first seem to glide over the surface; then they begin to sink, and finally they sink so deeply that every step is accompanied with difficulty.

Riley was not used to this sort of exercise, and therein soon began to tell on him. We had not walked an hour before he expressed a wish to make a short halt.

The heat was suffocating, and the sun, which was well up in the heavens, sent down a flood of glory which we consigned remorselessly to greater glory.

They were generally bright, but the green glass looked more gray. A queer light shined in their, and they danced as if mischief thoughts were lurking in his brain.

"Oh, yes," he answered, reasonably, "and from there we can see the sea."

"I looked at him, Riley, the cool-headed, the unimaginative, to sing out some absurd rhyme composed of the wretched stuff himself, and above all how it with such beastly fervor in 'sun-stubbed silence.' It was incomprehensible.

The sand was baking hot and the red-hot sun beat down on his shifting, heaving bosom was exceedingly painful.

I buried the end of a stick and rubbed the charcoal under Riley's eyes. He submitted to the operation gracefully and made a trifling comment upon my skill as an optical artist.

Still he was pulling at his canteen, and I could tell by the gurgles it was running low.

"Yes, curse it!" he said fiercely. We stumbled along for a few rods when he turned savagely on me.

"No, but you have been imprudent and selfish, and you deserve to suffer." "You lie, you ugly brute!"

"Look here, I am not going to stand being called names, and you had better have a full canteen!" "Ha, ha!" he shouted, "you object to being called ugly. You're the ugliest man in Chuckawalla. Ha, ha!" and his demoniacal laugh reverberated over the desert, and to add to its grotesqueness he executed a fantastic dance.

"Give me some water?" he asked sullenly. I put the canteen to his lips and he drank it long to moisten them and dragged it away.

He made a dash for the flask, but I beat his hands down. He looked as if he would make a race of me and I bet on the canteen. I knew what it would soon be—a fight, and a desperate one for the water.

"Supposing now," I said to myself, "I give the fellow all the water he wants he'll take that a gulp and then there'll be no more to drink." With care and patience we may both pull through."

Ahead of us was a low range of hills. It is the outcropping of the divide that separates the Mojave and Colorado deserts.

"We'll get some shade there, Riley," I said, pointing to the hills, "and perhaps a cactus."

"That is so," he answered, reasonably, "and from there we can see the sea."

I shall never forget the walk. Our bodies were dry—actually cracking with heat. We could hardly have perspired we were so parched more comfortable and at least safer.

My tongue was getting swollen. It grew thick down the gullet at first, and it felt as if it intended to close the orifice. So choked was my throat that I breathed through the nose.

"Why carry the water much further?" I argued. There were but a few drops left. I put my hand to the canteen and found it empty.

drops were gone. Before us yet were many miles. We stumbled on and reached the rising ground.

There we threw ourselves for the south, by the afternoon we had been pulled slowly down the slopes of a noble, castellated, light-colored mountain.

There we lay, blinking out across the great sand plains at the cities and verdurous meads of imagination, enjoying the distant sight with the pleasure a critical audience experiences when a well-acted play, suddenly the mirage lifted, and the blank sea met our gaze.

Every thing I had said or done, every thing I had not said or done, presented themselves to me. The girls I had known and loved in the quiet depths of my heart passed like shadows before me.

Here was I, lying on my side, crouching close to a rock, dying by inches. Would God let me linger long? How could I ever have dared to even think of her in the pleasant fancies of dreamland, and the thought and now a reigning belle! I thought of the palms that filled her drawing-room corner; I heard the swell of the voluptuous music; I even felt the taste of the wine trickling down my throat.

I looked at Riley. His eyes were fastened upon me in furious glare. He had drawn his revolver from his belt and was pointing it at me threateningly.

I closed my eyes. Indeed, I felt thankful that he would end my misery.

Suddenly I heard him shout. He had jumped up and was pointing at nothing. "Yes," he screamed, "I will come. Nothing shall keep me."

A new strength seized me. I ran to the spot. Riley was lying on his face, foaming at the mouth, the barrel of his gun was smoking but he was unharmed. "Water," he said, and then tried to raise himself. As he did so he fell, dying with the name of his sweet heart on his lips.

I was rescued from Salton. We were only one day away. The shots had attracted the attention of the mill people.—San Francisco Chronicle.

"August Flower"

"What is August Flower for?" As easily answered as asked. It is for Dyspepsia. It is a special remedy for the Stomach and Liver. Nothing more than this. We believe August Flower cures Dyspepsia. We know it will. We have reasons for knowing it. To-day it has an honored place in every town and country store, possesses one of the largest manufacturing plants in the country, and sells everywhere. The reason is simple. It does one thing, and does it right. It cures dyspepsia!

TORNADO OF HUMOR.

A WHIRLWIND OF FUN THAT WILL MAKE YOU LAUGH.

Some Humorous Definitions of Popular Phrases—A Few Floating Characters Collected from the Stream of Human Nature.

Showing the Time.
Friend—"Don't be late back and forth to the country every day seem very long."
Mr. Suburb-Long? It's too short. When I take the train in the morning, I know I've got to pitch in and work like a horse the moment the train reaches the city. That makes the ride seem so short, doesn't it?
"I presume it does. But how about the ride back?"
"Well, I always remember after I start that I've forgotten something my wife wanted particularly, so that ride is always over too quick."—New York Weekly.

A Feather Wait.

Chickens Come Home.
Mrs. Goodsoil—I think it's a perfect shame that the early settlers killed off the Indians the way they did.
Miss De Prety—Indeed it is. Just think what lovely furs they used to sell for a few glass beads.

Activity Explained.
First Citizen—The members of the Board of Health seem to be very active in trying to prevent the spread of cholera.
Second Citizen—Y-e-s, I guess they're afraid they might catch it themselves.

Mixed Up.
Mrs. Hardhead—I can always tell what kind of a wife a man has by his views on the woman question.
Stranger—Then all sorts of views.
Mrs. Hardhead—Then you are a Chicago man.—New York Weekly.

Value of Music.
Mrs. Maternal—I am sorry you are going back to Germany. Had I not better get another music teacher for my daughter?
Prof. Von Note—Needs not necessary. She knows enough musick to get married on.

Protection Assured.
Stranger—I don't see how you folks get across Broadway without getting hurt?
New York Boy—That's easy 'nough. Just wait until a pretty girl comes along, and then follow her.

Not Able to Rough It.
Mr. Wallstreet—Aren't you rich enough to ride to your office in a carriage?
Mr. Gotham—Y-e-s, but I'm not tough enough.

A Fellow Feeling.
He was telling his wife about a small game of poker in which he had lost 45 cents.
"It was the worst game I ever played," he exclaimed, still angry over it, "and I got so mad I couldn't see."
"What did you do then, dear," she smiled sweetly, "go to blind?"

As a Matter of Fact.
Swimmer Hotel Doctor—I hope there will be no accident in administering these medicines.
Servant—Have no fear, doctor. I am a professional nurse, and make it a professional habit.

Remembering Under Examination.
Doctor's Wife—No wonder. We are right in the midst of a Presidential campaign, and he's nearly dead writing prescriptions.

A Silver Lining.
Winks—What's that?
Jinks—When any one begins "When I was in Europe," you can run without giving offense.

Never Forgotten.
Little Boy—Teacher said the Emperor of China has ten men to carry his umbrella. What's that for?
Papa (thoughtfully)—I suppose it takes that many to remember to bring it along.

Chickens Come Home.
Mrs. Goodsoil—I think it's a perfect shame that the early settlers killed off the Indians the way they did.
Miss De Prety—Indeed it is. Just think what lovely furs they used to sell for a few glass beads.

To clean a kitchen sink, dissolve some soda in a little water and scrub the sink with it; when a stiff brush in applying the first wash and a coarse cloth for the second. Two such washings with a final rinsing with hot water will leave the sink as free from dirt as could be wished. The soda solution is also very good for cleaning hair-brushes.

A silk umbrella is much injured by being left open to dry. After coming in out of the rain, let the umbrella down and stand it on the handle, that it may dry uniformly, the water dripping from the edges of the frame. If left open the silk becomes stretched and stiff, and is much more apt to split than if the folds are allowed to lie loose.

BERNARD'S PILLS cost only 98 cents a box. They are probably known throughout the world to be "worth a guinea a box."

It is almost as bad to be a gambler in the billiard business, as to lend money to your friends.

OFFICIAL.
It is our earnest desire to impel you upon the minds of the Public the superiority of the service offered by the Wisconsin Central Lines to Milwaukee and Chicago, via East and South. Two fast trains leave St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth daily, equipped with Pullman Vestibuled, Dining Room Sleepers, Dining Cars and Coaches of the latest design. The Dining Car Service is unsurpassed, which accounts to a great degree, for the popularity of this line. The Wisconsin Central Lines, in connection with Northern Pacific R. R., is the only line from Pacific Coast points over which both Pullman Vestibuled, first-class, and Pullman Tourist Cars are operated via St. Paul without change to Chicago.

OPIATE.
Mrs. Homer A. Nelson, one of the leading society ladies of New York declares that the use of opiates is more widespread than is generally imagined, and that among the better classes it is rapidly gaining ground. She made this statement before the Woman's Christian Temperance union of New York. She declared that it was a common practice for well-to-do ladies to drive up to a drug store, send in for a four-ounce vial of laudanum, get it, and drive away, and she added that women used opiates as men do liquor. This ought to be a warning against the lavish use of opiates in medicine. Most of the cough remedies of to-day are largely composed of opiates. It is the German Cough and Kidney Cure is the only cough medicine in the market that contains neither opiates nor narcotics and whose use can be persisted in without the slightest danger. The child of Hector Chase of Wady Petra, Stark county, Ill., drank the contents of an entire bottle without the slightest injury. Get it of any dealer. Small bottles 5c. 25c. large ones 50c. cents. SYLVAN REMEDY COMPANY, Peoria, Ill.

Self Torture!

That's what it amounts to, when you attempt to do washing and cleaning, now-days, without Pearline. And the strange part of it is, that you should be willing to suffer, when it's only for your loss and not for your gain. That needless back-breaking rub, rub, rub isn't saving you anything. It's costing you money. It is simply wearing out the things that you're washing. Why would you rather do it? That is what the women who are saving their strength and their clothes with Pearline can't understand.

Beware

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as or" the same as Pearline. IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled. If your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—and it's best.

JAMES PYLE, New York.

SEMI-WEEKLY PIONEER

The rain and wind Sunday night was terrible.

Look out for accounts of more weeks, the outcome of Sunday night's storm.

The knowledge drawn from experience is of quite another kind from that which flows from speculation or discourse.

Ch'ui has been appointed the next Chinese minister to the United States. He now holds the post of chief supervisor of instruction.

Said in the election reports, just as soon as counted out. What we want tonight is the vote on a verdict and the full country ticket.

A man cannot get along in this world without a fair allowance of cheek. There are times when a pre-ponderance of chin will serve him as well.

The use of tobacco by children in the schools should be prohibited. Pools of tobacco juice on the floors are not at all nice.—Taylor's Falls Journal.

Fashion having been kind enough to cease to make trousers so as to make them look like shelf-worn goods, should now be philanthropic enough to go one step further. Cut new trousers with a bag at the knee.—New York Herald.

After next Tuesday the art of business will be out of date, and instead of making positions, congressmen and governors, the main occupation of the people will be cabinet making, for everybody always knows just what kind of timber is most suitable for bracing up a president.—Croskston Times.

Pittsburg, Nov. 5.—The jury in the Iams case came into court about 10 this morning and asked for further instructions. After receiving it they retired again. At 11.15 the jury acquitted Col. S. Hawkins, Col. Storer and Surgeon Grimm of the charge of assault upon ex-Private Iams. The county and the defense are to divide the expense.

Pittsburg, S. D., Nov. 5.—Chairman Green of the South Dakota state central committee has completed a thorough canvass of the entire part of the state east of the Missouri. He estimates a republican plurality of 15,000 in South Dakota east of the Missouri and claims a plurality of 1,200 in the Black Hills for the republican national and state tickets.

Wausau, Wis., Nov. 5.—Mr. Halford, the President's private secretary, has gone to take part in the campaign in Indiana. Secretary J. W. Foster is now the only member of the cabinet in the city. Elkins is in West Virginia, Charles Foster in Ohio, Tracy in New York, Miller in Indiana, Noble in Missouri, Root in Wisconsin and Wanamaker in Indiana.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—A Pall Mall Gazette dispatch from Rome says that the pope is very ill. The clerical papers make every effort to conceal the fact of his illness. A few days since his holiness was found motionless in his room, and his condition caused a panic in the Vatican. Physicians were hastily summoned and they succeeded in restoring him to consciousness. His holiness is very feeble and faints easily. He has been forbidden to do any work.

It is probable that New England has even more to gain than any other section of our country by political association with the British-American provinces. With Lower Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Cape Breton and Prince Edward, the commercial and industrial relations of our northern states could not fail to be of the most intimate and reciprocally profitable character. Indeed, their interests would soon become identified. But the whole truth is that a tremendous impetus would be imparted to the trade and manufactures of all the United States by a union with British North America. We assure our friends that when Canadians are ready to join our confederation, they can count upon receiving a hearty greeting.—New York Sun.

By Word or Deed.
Corbett and Jackson are engaged in terrific warily contest. As there is no chance for a fall of time, the round will probably continue for some time. Wise sporting editors have much to say as to whether Corbett forfeits his title as champion by avoiding these challenges; and it is apparent that no one carries any less about the matter than Corbett. James is a man of considerable intelligence by his own right, and he has a more well-equipped mental armory than most men with pugilism. He is not without his fine honors, his dignified, sturdy character was entirely a financial venture. Corbett has acquired value of his reputation. He knows that for the time being it is sufficient to make him the greatest drawing-card in America, and he will not fight as long as this highly satisfactory condition continues. Without fighting anyone he will be worth $100,000 more a year from the date of his fight with Sullivan. When the earning power of his reputation begins to weaken he will fight again or retire. Any talk that he may indulge in with reference to the acceptance of the challenge is given out purely for advertising purposes. Mr. Corbett is managing his campaign as champion entirely upon business principles.
