Murdick McNeil left Friday to take charge of a camp up in Alger county.

Wall Carpenter opened up his westside harbor shop for work last Sunday.

Monday morning we were greeted with a slight fall of snow. No poetry thank you.

Good reports reach us almost daily from the camps. The boys report good times.

The people were not satisfied to let well enough alone. They will be sick of the change.

It is reported that the steamer
Engene Hart is to be lengthened 24 feet this winter.

The schooner Pomroy has been pulled off the beach near Cheboygan.
She leaks badly.

Wing & Thompson will sell beef by the quarter cheaper than any other house in the city.

ness local, in the 2d or 3d column of the first page.

Having become a worthy member of the "B. C. Chiric of Good Club" John Dillon will now assume the role of a model husband.

We understand that some of the enthusiastic westsiders are nominating our friend Archie MacLaurin for postmaster. Why not?

It is not what its proprietors say but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does that tells the history of its merit. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures.

No great amount of mud thrown during the last campaign. What little there was met with a stinging rebuke, especially in this county.

You will want a Thanksgiving Turkey next week. Weing & Thompson will supply all who want at a low price. Warranted fresh and fat.

Democrats are already at work to settle on the right man to succeed W.
H. Hill as postmaster. Boys, you'd better let Hill remain until after March 1st.

St. Alban's Guild had an interesting business meeting at Mrs. Putnam's Friday evening. They met at the Prosser parsonage next Friday evening.

The Hart line of boats were the first out last spring and will be the last to go into winters quarters. They made good time this season and must have earned some money.

With some men politics are always a lively subject for conversation, and they have begun work upon the spring campaign. Keep quiet gentlemen until after New Years, anyway.

The report that Doyle township had 204 ballots in the box at 4 p. m. election day was probably manufactured for the occasion. The total vote of that township was only 101.

Several gossips around town are thoroughly disgusted with Manistique and all because they cannot find stock enough to keep their tattle machine running seven days in a week.

The man in whom you cannot put any political trust is he who shouts with the Republicans until the week before the election, and then suddenly make up his mind to vote the Democratic county ticket.

William St. Peter, who had been an employee of this office for the past two months, left last week to accept a position in a machine shop at Cheboygan. Will is a good man and we wish him great success.

Attorney Oren, of Sault Ste. Marie, was a caller Monday morning. He came from the banner county of the upper peninsula for elective Republican campaign work, and is, himself, all right on all the live issues of the day.

Dillon at the Opera House Saturday night.

been postponed until the 28th.

The men who won on the election are at the front while those who lost say nothing about it.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Baptist Church will meet with Mrs. Hiram Quick, Wednesday afternoon.

Attention is called to the new advertisement of the W. L. Co. store. Phippen means business every time.

Little or no attention was paid to the question of a new constitution in this state, at the late election. That question should be brought up at the April or a special election.

Germfask township should be divided. As it is now, with a polling precinct 25 or 30 miles from the railroad, and the majority of the population in the south end of the township; at least 100 votes were lost on Tuesday.

Good Preaching.
The Rev. Mr. Tooker (Episcopal) preached a very interesting discourse last Sunday morning at the Central school building. He is a missionary working on this peninsula under the charge of Archbishop Williams, and will preach here once in two weeks until a permanent pastor is sent us.

John Dillon.
The famous conelike, Mr. John Dillon, will appear at the Star Opera House Nov. 19, after an absence of three years, in a new comedy entitled
"A Model Husband." The new play is said to be one of the best ever written for Mr. Dillon, and is filled with comical situations and ridiculously funny complications. Of the supporting company it can be said that never did a star have a better one than surrounds Mr. Dillon this season. It contains such well-known and high-salaried people as Anna M. Quinn, Hattie Foley, W. J. Denning, Arda LeCoid,
Ida May Blake, May Noble, Vernon
Sowers, C. J. Richardson, T. E. Barry and others. Admission 75, 50, 35 and 25 cents.

After Riggs Again.
W. F. Riggs, formerly Prosecuting Attorney of this county, located at Red Jacket, Houghton county, last August, and now J. A. Hubbell is after his scalp. Last week Hubbell filed a petition in the circuit court of that county asking that Attorney Riggs be disbarred from practicing in that court. He bases his petition upon the investigation that took place here last summer. Here the investigation occupied considerable time; but we have reason to believe that the written evidence never reached the Governor. Mr. Riggs resigned and the Governor accepted his resignation. We shall watch with interest this new attempt to "down" a former citizen of this county.

"Had the pine barons of Michigan
been able to foresee the present prosperous condition of the hardwood market they would not now feel like kicking themselves," said a well known hardwood dealer the other day. "A few years ago they lumbered large tracks of pine and, after removing all that was valuable of that timber, permitted the land to revert to the state for taxes. It is needless to state that they much regret their inconsiderate action as the hardwood on thousands of lands has become very valuable and the demand seems to increase. The present season has been the best for the hardwood industry that the Michigan manufacturers have ever enjoyed.
The present owners do not feel like disposing of their lumber, as they are confident that they can soon get a better price than are now obtainable.
Capitalists are beginning to pay special attention to the hardwood industry in the upper part of the lower peninsula.—Timberman.

THE BREATH OF A GIRL.

AN INDIAN LEGEND ABOUT CALIFORNIA CAVES.

MANHATTAN. A young Vermont, who was refused by the girl he loved, climbed through her chamber window a few nights ago...

Up in some of the northern parts of the state they have an arrangement by which ice cream and other cooling things are possible...

Of course the Indians have a story by way of explanation of the mystery, though the simple white man may not believe it.

THE MUSEUM FREAKS.

WHEN FREAKS MARRIED THEM.

A preview of freaks and natural curiosities to the museums of the country undertook to answer these queries the other day.

CAN'T ALL THINK ALIKE.

The Orator of the Corners Who Successfully Sat on the Fence.

I was the other day told a story about a prominent congressman whom I will call James Smith.

FEMININITIES.

Really beautiful parquise are very rare.

Women generally commit suicide by drowning, men by shooting.

A woman at Yuma, Ariz., is said to be the mother of 21 children.

A teaspoonful of salt in a kerosene lamp is said to make it burn better.

The woman who paints her face forgets that the world is full of people who have good eyesight.

Diamonds are now worn sewn all over velvet or silk ribbon which is loosely around the neck.

In France peep and ravies are at the present time, far more fashionable than any other precocious stone.

It makes no difference how pretty a girl is, or how sweet her voice, if she wears glasses, all the young men are afraid of her.

At a number of recent weddings the bridesmaids' bouquets have been horse shoes, with the nails worked out in contrasting blossoms.

Three young ladies stopping at a village inn in Switzerland, filed in the column in the visitors' book headed "Occupations with the words 'Looking up a husband and a deposit must be water before it is ice—comes out of the atmosphere."

An English lady who has lived in California is enthusiastically advocating in London the employment of Chinamen as a panacea for the afflictions resulting from servanthood.

"You have spurned me!" he cried bitterly. "If I go into the army I will fight, and win. My name shall be known and my riches envied."

"Then," she interrupted, "try me again."

"You have heard of a dog with a jeweled collar and fancy trappings of a most exaggerated description, but a few days ago a young lady was leading about a dachshund on one of whose hind legs was a bangle of hammered silver."

"Nonsense," remarked Synnec, "it isn't love that makes people marry. It's the fancy, rank and glory. The man is pleased because the woman is so fancy to so inferior a being as he knows himself to be, and the woman's vanity is tickled for a precisely similar reason."

ENGLISH TABLES.

A Frenchman on the Taste of His Neighbor Across the Channel.

The English are not appreciative of cooking, and the table of the greatest lord is covered only with large pieces of meat. Bisques and potatoes are good as unknown.

To Furnish a Dowry.

A somewhat similar and equally interesting scheme to the matrimonial insurance organization in Sweden, recently mentioned, is a dory insurance which has been introduced by an insurance company, also in Sweden.

CURRENT AFFAIRS.

An automatic slot machine for matches for forgetful smokers is a late invention.

A pair of shoes and stockings were found in the stomach of a shark eight feet long, which was caught at Brunswick, Ga.

French florists are cultivating a plant which bears a flower that is white in the morning, red at noon and blue at night.

When the Turk goes to his mosque to worship he keeps his hat on, as he thinks he would be unbecomingly familiar with divinity if he removed it.

Raphael's "Three Graces," a part of Lord Dudley's collection was purchased by the Duc d'Anjou for £24,500. It cost Lord Dudley only £1,000.

The sultan of Morocco offers $8 apiece for the heads of the rebels who are making trouble in his dominions.

Mrs. Theodosia, a Boston Methodist, related, got drowsy in church on Sunday, and yawned so vigorously that she dislocated her jaw, and her contortions at once broke up the services.

A milk entered the lot of Mr. Wellford Stanley, near Fredericksburg, Va., and seized a large rooster and started to leave with it, when the rooster suddenly arose and flew a distance of over one hundred yards with the milk hanging to him.

Finally the milk let loose its hold, and the rooster, after flying about ten yards further, came to the ground, none the worse for his voyage save a slight bruise.

The little town of Delmar, Del., gets the name from a combination of the first syllables in the names Delaware and Maryland.

It is this time the two syllables of Maryland to the southern boundary of Delaware, and is the last station on the Delaware railroad before the territory of Maryland is reached.

Another village in Delaware on the edge of Maryland is called Maryland, but this time the two syllables of Maryland to the southern boundary of Delaware, and is the last station on the Delaware railroad before the territory of Maryland is reached.

Mortality is greater among Alaskans than among any other citizens of the United States.

In 1880 there was but one cremation society in the United States; now there are, in all, thirty-two.

The Republican party will not ask for an administrator to be appointed. Not dead yet by any means.

Our democratic friends are not so overflowingly jubilant, after all. They simply get Grover and his fishing tackle.

As a rule, married men live longer than bachelors; yet out of every 1,000 persons in England more than 600 are unmarried.

Poor Finn is laid on the shelf, and he dies (politically) hard. His paper talks about J. Maurice contesting for the seat. Give us a rest.

The Skamokawa Eagle reports a sturgeon caught near that place weighing 900 pounds. How these people in the new state of Washington like to brag.

A man in Western Texas fired in the dark at a man who was stealing his corn, and the next day the county Sheriff was around with his arm in a sling.

Last week French's hotel at Pemberton was the ground as well as one store in which was the Post office, Charles Johnson, a section hand, could not escape and his remains were found among the ashes.

Michigan redeemed herself politically last week and the Republicans will be again in power after Jan. 1, 1893 and will continue there for long years to come. If you want to see a Democrat squirm ask him if he has heard from Wayne County.

The sugar trust has contracted with John T. Bailey of Philadelphia for 5,000,000 bags to take the place of barrels for the shipment of refined sugars. The bags will be delivered in New York, New Orleans and Boston as well as in Philadelphia. This is by far the greatest bag contract ever made in the United States.

A Mr. Grundy said at the Manchester diocesan conference that church service should be "bright, beautiful and brief," and that church-going ought to be more social than it is. Prayer should be condensed and sermons should not exceed ten minutes at most. He could see no reason why string and brass bands should not take part in the service.

Men have various ways of carrying money. Butchers, grocers and bakers carry it in a crumpled wad. Bankers in nice clean bills laid in full length in a morocco pocket-book. Brokers always fold their bills twice. The young business man carries his money in his vest pocket, while the sporting man carries it in his trousers pocket. Farmers and drivers carry their money in their inside pocket. Editors carry theirs in other people's pockets.—Ex.

The Supreme Court Friday handed down an opinion declaring unconstitutional an act providing for a trial by jury with a less number than twelve, which has been in force for thirty-one years. In this case of McRae et al. vs. Grand Rapids and Detroit Railway Company, a verdict for the plaintiff for $91,531.38, was rendered by eleven jurors, one of the panel having been excused on account of sickness. The defendant brought error upon the order of the judge to proceed with the trial and his contention is sustained. The court, which holds that there has been a mistrial, reverses the judgment of the court below and orders a new trial. Justice Long writes an opinion in which Justice Montgomery writes a dissenting opinion in which Chief Justice McGrath concurs.

Fetters and the Pulpit.

It there is any one thing more than another that will raise the banner of the average adherent of a political party, concerns his tongue and not his hands. It is the possibility of putting the party in power, and the power which represents the party, that is the object of the pulpit. The pulpit is the place and sphere of the party, calling the wrath of God down upon the head of the perpetrator and hurling anathemas at him like rocks at a venomous serpent. He may think the "man of God" is a "little off," but he does not give expression to the thought. He simply sits with placid countenance through it all, hugging the impression to his soul that it is the "other fellow" that the preacher is driving at. He may, in the course of the sermon, even utter an inaudible "amen" to the scathing allusions to his neighbor in the next pew. Of course there is nothing in the sermon that in any way alludes to self, though his personal sins may from up like mountains to the eyes of those who know him best. But once let the person diverge from the regular orthodox line of dealing with the glittering generalities of sin and strike a line of thought parallel with but in opposition to the infernal principles that move and actuate men in the field of dirty politics, and lo and behold every male occupant of a pew who exercises the privilege of franchise and has convictions enough to belong to a party, at once considers himself an aggrieved martyr to the truth as he understands it and his party advocates it, and forthwith he proceeds to hurl his thunderbolts of wrath at the revered gentleman's head for "preaching politics in the pulpit." Paul declared the right to be against "principals" and the "powers of darkness," but Paul to the Romans. What did he know about America! and American institutions. There are doubtless many who pre-terrate the pulpit to political purposes, but it by no means follows that every divine who refers to the principles that should actuate men and parties in the government of a great nation is a teacher of politics.—Liberator.

Where Sponges Come From.

There are at present but four centers of sponge supply and distribution known to the commercial world, and of these the most important is Key West. In the waters tributary to this post the sheeps' wool, which outranks all others as a general utility sponge, attains a perfection of form and texture unknown elsewhere. Here, too, are to be found any number of sponges, trained to the business from boyhood, with whom to man the sponging fleet. Thus, although the American sponge industry is only about 60 years old, it leads the world in the volume of its business, the equipment of its vessels, and the intelligence with which it is conducted. From "Sponge and Spongers of the Florida Reef," by Kirk Munroe, in the November Scribner.

The latest swindling scheme is one worked by two sharpers with a bicycle. One travels through the country on a first-class machine, stops at some town, claims to be hard up for cash. To raise some he sells his wheel for a small sum and leaves town. A few days later the other fellow comes along looking for a stolen wheel and gives a description and number corresponding to the one his pal sold, discovers it is in town, claims it, proves his property and departs. The swindlers then divide the spoils.

Johnnie Vanchamp attempts to shove a billet doux into the hand of Miss Highkicker, but she refuses to accept it, saying:

"There is only one man in the world from whom I receive letters."

"And who is this most fortunate of men?" asks Johnnie.

"The letter carrier."—Texas Siftings.

Marshal McMahon, who was reported recently to be in ill health, was found out shooting by a correspondent who hunted him up to confirm the rumor. The marshal and a servant had started out after a o'clock breakfast to trudge through the stable and along lanes, and returned at nightfall with a full bag.

"German Syrup"

I am a farmer at Edom, Tex. I have used German Syrup for six years successfully for Sore Throat, Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Pain in Chest and Lungs and Spitting-up of Blood. I have tried many kinds of Cough Syrups in my time, but let me say to anyone wanting such a medicine—German Syrup is the best. We are subject to so many sudden changes from cold to hot, damp weather here, but in families where German Syrup is used there is little trouble from colds. John F. Jones.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM, M.D., LOWELL, MASS.

The Maryland route was a... of... through Jackson's valley campaign and the Seven Days' battle, and was pretty badly frayed out. So after the Seven Days' battle the colonel in command of the line was ordered to take his command to Charlottesville to recruit.

The command consisted of the elite of the youth of Maryland, nearly all the historic families of that state being represented among the commissioned officers and in the rank and file. It contained as bright and gay a set of young fellows as ever drew saber or shouldered musket, and as a natural consequence the girls of Charlottesville had as jolly a time as though war had never existed.

Conspicuous among the beauties of the village was Miss Gay Holting, a refugee from within the Yankee lines, which then extended along the Hapannock. Her eyes were at Culpeper and there was just enough spice of danger and alertness to render romance doubly alluring.

Foremost among her admirers was Colonel Ridgely of the cavalry, and Captain Booth, adjutant of the line, and Captain Williams, junior captain of infantry.

They were not in love. They were simply doting. Handsome brave and accomplished, they got just the letters to set a girl crazy. Although they were rivals they were nevertheless all devoted friends and as cavaliers to each other as they were devoted to their honorata. They thought of nothing but fighting; they did nothing but fight. Morning, noon and night orderlies (couriers) they were called, and they were gentlemen at home, though private soldiers in the line, were kept busy riding their horses to death bearing offerings of peaches, grapes and flowers to the sardine of Miss Gay from her admirers.

Finally the patience of the colonel was exhausted; he could stand it no longer, and one day he summoned the three to his tent and said: "Gentlemen, this command is going to the devil. All discipline is gone, and none of you are attending to your duties. Callio has set you crazy. Now, this is the end. Stop. Miss Gay can't marry you all. I doubt whether she wants either. So you've got to settle the matter at once. I love rank doesn't count. If it does in war, you are to draw straws, and court Miss Gay. By drawing straws this evening. Get on your horses and proceed to business and report to me the result after parade."

The young fellows looked rather scared. They would have charged a battery or rushed on a line of battle. They had often done so at the top of the drum or the sound of the bugle, but the idea of attacking this ravishing, entrancing bit of divinity and eliciting at a moment's notice under-orders was appalling. However, they knew the colonel's word was law, so they drew straws. Captain Booth got the longest and had first chance according to orders so he went. The others followed at a regular pace.

After a short time Captain Booth came storming back to camp without saying a word. This encouraged the other two, and Captain Williams spurred ahead very gallantly. But before Colonel Ridgely had ridden a mile back came the ardent captain. "So in, colonel," he cried as he rode past. "The ranks are shaking, but the line's firm."

This was discouraging but the colonel walked bravely up and got his conge like his predecessor.

Three attacks in sixty minutes and Gay routed the attacking column, horse, foot and artillery.

She never knew she had been courted by command, and is now a handsome matron with eleven children.

I told her about it the other day, writes Bradley Johnson in the New York Advertiser. Brilliant. Ridgely was killed at the South Anna on Grant's advance to the James.

The other two are solid, middle-aged gentlemen, with wives and children.

A Birch Bark Manuscript.

The "Bower MS."—the oldest Indian MS. yet discovered—is described in the last proceedings of the Asiatic Society of Bengal. It is written on birch bark and was dug out of what is generally regarded as a Buddhist stup, just outside a subterranean city near Kuchin. The characters are Sanskrit of a very archaic type. Dr. Hoernle of Calcutta, has succeeded in deciphering them, and finds the MS. consists of two medical works, some proverbial sayings and the story of a charm against snake bite.

"Is the doctor in?"
"Yes, but he's resting to-day, and can't see any one. There was a child's party in the block night before last."

He was suffering with a disease similar to hysteria," said he to a San Francisco Examiner reporter, after one of his gesticulatory outbursts that shook his frame as if with ague. "I don't know how it took possession of me, but up to five years ago I was like other men. Now I am a total wreck, and am slowly but surely being torn out of me with a machine."

Another bit came on, and the fellow gave vent to such hearty peals of laughter that a large and curious crowd gathered about and gazed at him in amazement. "What he was striving to represent the sounds that issued from his lips a look of intense pain spread over his wrinkled face and tears stood in his eyes."

"People think I'm drunk," said he, regretfully, when a spasmodic attack away. "But I do not drink a drop on the advice of my doctor. My name? Well, my name is John French, and I've just come from Kansas to see if I can't get over my trouble here. You see it's highly provoking to get laughing fits every ten minutes in the day and wake up at night chucking it and take the dead. It's downright painful, and every time these fits come on it seems as if my insensibility were being torn out of me with a machine."

"A doctor of Kansas City examined me a year ago and he says it is epileptic convulsions or something like it of the windpipe. A spiritualist doctor said it was a laughing spirit as possessed me, but I don't believe in spirits. Well, any how, it's awfully bothersome. I can't go to church, restaurants or a funeral without laughing fit to kill, and all the time I'm doing it I'm wishing I were dead."

The gloomy expression on Mr. French's face gave way at this juncture to one of apparent joy, for another spasm had seized him. It was an unusually long one in duration, and when he was making away he sighed heavily, as if in pain.

"I remember sometime ago passing a house before which stood a hearse," said he reflectively. "I stopped to see the funeral cortege, and just as the hearse was about to start I took me and I laughed until I was sore. A crowd gathered, and I was nearly mobbed before I could explain matters."

"Another time I went to church and the preacher talked of the solemnity of death and the vanities of this life, and just in the middle of his discourse I felt the laughing fit coming on. I got up in a hurry, but before I went ten steps you could hear my laugh echo from wall to wall. They thought I was crazy, and I came near being arrested. Another time—"

French was interrupted by another spasm, which continued until the Piedmont was restored to the wharf. Then, as he took a Market street car, he said bitterly:

"A dime museum manager in Omaha offered me $30 a week to travel with him as the champion laughing freak of the nineteenth century, and I think I will accept the offer unless I can be cured. Maybe, if I don't, I will commit—ha, ha, ha!"

As the car sped up Market street his ringing laugh was still heard, but the secret of the malady that is wearing his life away he keeps locked up in his breast, while men smile pityingly upon him and say: "A light touch of snarks."

Heat Without Fire.
French chemists have demonstrated that it is possible to produce heat without fire and the discovery is to be utilized on the railways and street cars of the country. The device consists simply of a block of acetate of soda, which is plunged into hot water. As it solidifies after the immersion it gives forth as much heat as a coal fire for the space of six hours. There is no danger of fire from the use of this substance, and as the fuel can be used a score of times its cheapness will be of great recommendation with many managers of corporations.

Not Friday, But Monday.
A statistician of the German government has come to the conclusion of those persons who do not share the widespread superstition that Friday is the most unlucky day of the week. A short time ago he determined to make a scientific investigation of this question. The most of the time was spent on week day, according to the investigator, is not Friday, but Monday.

The waters course down the hillside laying a coat of white, pink, purple, blue or green, made by the mineral salts they contain upon everything with which they come in contact.

In the midst of these hills is the Lake of Ink according to the Chicago News-Record. There run into it scores of streams of clear mineral hot water, others that are warm and two that are cold. The lake, one-fourth of a mile in length and one-eighth in width, lies like a gem-set in these hills or these ancient volcanoes. The black, ink-like water which fills the lake comes up to within three or four inches of the level of its shores. The temperature near the edge is about 110 degrees, gradually growing warmer as you get down in it, and as you approach the center of the lake on the surface, it is about 150 degrees, and at a depth of 200 feet it is 210 degrees.

Near the shore on the east south and west sides the water is only four to six feet in depth for twenty feet or more into the surface, it is still blue perpendicularly, and there no bottom has ever been found. To the touch the water feels smooth and oily. The ashes and oil which cover the lake when its waters are quiet are from one-half to one inch thick. The water of the lake is jet black, though it does not color the skin of those who bathe in it.

Under a glass the coloring matter seems to be a minute black substance held in suspension by the water, which adheres to white cloth immersed in the lake. To the taste the water is warm, salt and bitter. To the bathers the sensation on entering the water is grand, exhilarating to a wonderful degree, so much so that a bath of ten or fifteen minutes makes one feel as if he were under the influence of the very best brandy.

Millions of bubbles formed by escaping gases, keep the surface of the lake agitated at all times, till it rolls, boils and foams as if ready to break over its banks and escape, and again only in myriads of sparkling globules, glittering in the sunlight. Whenever the volcanoes rage with anger the lake rises, and the light of its mad-dened waters is well worth seeing.

From the immemorial days the correspondent waters have been used by the different tribes of Indians far and wide, at war and in peace, as the great all-healing remedy. Following a bath in hot mud of the peacemaker volcanoes for all fevers, rheumatism, scrofula and venereal diseases. They take the invalid and bury him, all but his ears, eyes and mouth, in the hot volcanic mud from twenty to thirty minutes, then carry him covered with mud on a blanket the fifty or 100 feet to the edge of the lake and put him into the water, holding his head above it, for from fifteen to twenty minutes.

Then, rolling him in his blanket, they carry him a few feet away to a shade which they have provided, and lay him on the hot sulphurous sand or rock, and there let him repose in the hot mud in the afternoon. At night they remove him to a place where the ground is not so warm, and let him sleep, and if possible, where he can breathe the gasses or vapors of the neighboring volcanoes. The cures wrought are perfectly wonderful and could not be believed if not seen. A few white men have been there and tried the remedies, and thus far without a single failure.

He Makes Cyclones.
Professor Douglas has succeeded in manufacturing miniature cyclones and tornadoes by means of electricity, thus proving the electrical character of the "spirito terrorum." In carrying out his plans he suspended a large copper plate by silken threads and charged it from a battery. He then used arsenious acid gas, whereupon the combination of gas and electricity could be seen hanging from the under side of the plate in the form of a perfect funnel-shaped cyclone cloud. When everything was ready, the professor swung the plate and the miniature cyclone to and fro across a table littered with matches, pieces of paper, pens, pencils, etc. The lighter objects were instantly sucked up by the heavier scattered in all directions. The effects were exactly those of destructive cyclones. These curious experiments explained cyclonic phenomena. Low clouds become charged with electricity, descend and form a connection with the earth. Then a violent electrical commotion ensues finally settling into a whirl which comes until an electric equilibrium is established.

It is too plain to need a demonstration by chart or diagram that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the best preparation for the protection of the throat.

Tanning by electricity is a new discovery in France. The new system transforms the skins of dogs into fine leather in three or four days. The old process requires from four to six months.

All for 55 Cents.
The Monon route has added to its already splendid equipment, two brand new dining cars, which are now in daily service on the fast day trains between Chicago and Louisville.

These cars are models of convenience, comfort and beauty, and are operated on the a la carte plan, which means that a passenger can get anything he wants and pay only for what he gets. A elegant steak, with bread, butter, coffee or tea with cream is served for only 55 cents.

Watch for the Monon's new schedule to Florida.

A strange discovery was made by Mrs. J. F. Hazard of Nyack, N. Y. She was canning peaches, and in one of them, which she had freshly cut, she found a penny lying close to the stone. The fruit had grown all around the penny.

The Oldest Pen Patch.
The oldest resident of Pen Patch Island in Delaware bay, the governor's residence upon which Fort Delaware stands, has just died after having lived forty years at the fort. His name was John Madden, and his wife, who still lived at the dismantled fortress, is remembered with affection by hundreds of Confederate prisoners, as the kindly matron of the post hospital during the civil war.

A Convict Inventor.
One Melchor Farber, a convict in the penitentiary at Szeged, in Hungary, has invented a patent shaving machine whereby he can shave a man in twenty-five seconds. The machine he shared all the inmates of the prison, 150 in number, to the complete satisfaction of the Governor. What the prisoners said is not stated.

OFFICIAL.
It is earnest desired to impress upon the minds of the public the superiority of the service offered by the Wisconsin Central Lines to Milwaukee, Chicago and all points East and South. Two fast trains leave St. Louis, St. Paul and Duluth daily, equipped with Pullman Vestibule Drawing Room, Dining Car, Buffet Car, and the latest design of Dining Car Service is unsurpassed, which accounts, to a great degree, for the popularity of the line. The Wisconsin Central Lines, in connection with Northern Pacific R. R., is the only line from Pacific Coast points over which both Pullman Vestibule, first-class, and Pullman Tourist Cars are operated via St. Paul without change to Chicago.

Dear Jim: Please accept thanks for desk you bought for me at 70-797 Wabash Ave. Desk and Seating Co., 20-279 Wabash Ave., Chicago. It is a beauty, and you bought it as low a price as John who is a furniture dealer, could possibly buy a like desk for.

I sent you draft for $20.00 for a desk 2 1/2 ft. long, and you have sent me one. It is a real beauty, and I like it very much. I will send you back two adjustable partitions in each drawer, card rest, secret pen drawers, complete set of drawers, and elegantly finished, and I will send you only spent just the money that I sent you. I cannot understand it.

Your No. 38 catalogue is received, and gives prices on a fine line of very low priced desks.

Accept my thanks for your kindness.
Sincerely yours,
JACK.

There's Always War.
General statistics prove that, since the Trojan war, 3,000 years ago—that is, since the beginning of history—no single year has elapsed in which some war has not killed a large number of men.
