Blumson moved into his lake-side residence on Monday last. The building is now completed except the painting of the outside, and Mr. House will soon be engaged to that.

The greatest calamity hower in town now seems to be the one that said "I don't know." I don't know what others do. I shall vote for Cleveland. He is being rewarded.

L. O. Kirshine has established his connection with the tailoring establishment of Julius Peterson, and gone into business for himself at his residence on Lakelse. Repairing and cleaning in connection.

Some people in business stop advertising when trade is dull. That is a good way to close up business altogether, as most people trade with those who let the world know what they have for sale.

There being no services at the Methodist church next Sunday, on account of repairs not completed, the members attended either the Baptist or Presbyterian churches, giving to each large congregations.

The post-office at Evanston was ordered by robbers one night last week several registered letters taken. The safe was blown and the lock destroyed but the explosion sprang the iron jaws so that the door could not be opened. No clue to the post-paets.

The W. L. Co. store is doing a big business in the clothing line. They lead all competitors in low prices. Why, the price is almost yours, even if money is scarce. "A pinch" bought at the agency, has a minimum stock and of course can meet all requirements.

Some men who have a surplus of funds on hand will only put the same in circulation whenever they can see an interest that will double the principal in about two years. Such money-lenders are no benefit to community at large. They ought to be allowed with bristles.

Owing to the delay in getting the Schuman store building painted that business will not open the same for business until about the 25th, when they invite the public to call. They will have a complete line of furniture, goods, hats, caps, boots and shoes. They intend to make that a model store.

The editor has lots of fun and some expense with that triple of his. It was made at a factory, looks stout; but one joint after another gives out and we have to send it to the blacksmith to be put together. By the time he gets through we shall be the owner of a machine better than it was when sent out from the factory.

PERSONAL.

Isaac Pawley, who has been a subscriber for many years to this paper, having commenced when a mere boy, don't study agriculture without purpose. Yesterday he left two boxes of strawberries upon our table, each weighing from three to five pounds, and all sweet and nicely flavored. When you get ahead of the young Mr. Pawley you will have to get up quite early in the morning. Thanks for the luxuries meal all hands partook of.

Occasionally a genuine kicker comes to this office and complains of the way business is done here, the hard times comes in for the lion's share, and winds up by saying that he will work a new location. We have got so that we ask "when will you start?" But we know that a better place can't be found at this stage of the game, other towns are harder pressed with money stringency than we are here. If you doubt the statement go and see, but buy a round trip ticket, for you are sure to return.

Hardly a week passes but that certain parties in the city fancy that the papers are after them when the truth is that they were not thought of by the editor. They are entirely too sensitive. It may be that the garment got by the reporter may fit more than one person. If so any one who desires to see it, everything we write about has no reason to see it, and we have no apologies to offer. We shall not attempt to divide who shall or shall not wear the garments we send out.

Struck by Lightning.
During the heavy shower of rain last Sunday lightning struck the residence of Mr. James Smith, on River street, and tore up things generally. It came in contact with the roof, near the chimney of the main part, ran down the roof, tearing off shingle, rather and plastering, then the flash divided one portion passing into the lower rooms and at the front screen door, breaking picture-frames, etc. the other part went down the roof, struck the ground and played a furrow out toward the parsonage. Mr. Smith and family were none or less shocked. Miss Maud and Hattie were upstairs, near where the lightning first attacked the building and the latter was protected by the door. The flash left its mark on several members of the family wearing. Fortunately all escaped, but the house shows many marks and needs repairing.

Another action of the "penitential hunters" has been exploded. A great deal was made over the allegation that Alex. C. Peck, a Rhode Island veteran, received his pension on account of being a member of the "penitential hunters" with the statement that his application was on the ground of serious physical disability, and that it is not his fault if the pension officers "picked out a name circumstantially" and falsified as to the basis of his claim. So falls another of the slanders on the ex-soldiers of the Union army.

In his written opinion submitted as the expression of judgment of the majority of the United States Supreme court on the constitutionality of the Gary Chicago exclusion law (that is the Full Act). "If the (Gary) law contains within it the germs of the arbitrary and unlimited arbitrary power in general incompatible with the immutable principles of justice, consistent with the nature of our government, and in conflict with the written constitution by which that government was created and those principles secured."

Principles survive though laws change. It is not at all unlikely that it will show the "Chief Justice" to have expressed the definite judgment of the American people, a people consecrated to fair play, and that this position on his question will prove himself sound enduring monument.

Maxims, Tenn., July 15.—Latest from Sheriff Warner of Crittenden county, Arkansas, stopped at the Free Mountain tract at the junction of the river, and an unknown man shot at him. The sheriff returned the shot, but on the next shot the sheriff was hit in the right arm. The sheriff's gun dropped from his grasp and the unknown, leaping upon the officer, rolled him at $12,000 and escaped. The sheriff is at Gaston's hotel, but will not be in a few days.

Washington, July 15.—Over 2,500 pensioners have been suspended under Secretary Smith's ruling requiring pensioners to prove total disability when they are drawing $12 a month under the act of 1890. The suspension are not confined to a particular locality, but are well distributed throughout the country. No pensioner had yet been dropped under the decision, for the reason that sixty thousand of the pensioners have not been notified of their suspension. Many of the cases suspended will not result in the dropping of the pensioner, but may be confined to the degree of disability and its cause, as shown by the "proofs" submitted.

EDITORIALS AND CLIPPINGS

The Lady Macbeths of Raglan continue to quarrel.

Hay City people are determined to crush out Sunday liquor selling. Admission will spend $20,000 this year for school purposes.

Eighteen recruits from the barracks of Columbus O., will be transferred to Fort Brady at the Soo and distributed to O's. B. and D.

Several Democrats are the loudest in their denunciations over the hard times. Were there an election this fall would they vote as they did last?

William Johnson, a five-year convict, sent up from Flint, Mich., escaped from the local correctional at Tonin while working outside the walls.

Sturgeon General Wainwright: "We have an excellent case of swine-pox here, but it will not become epidemic," if you are sure to return.

Wood has gone down, away down, for fear of the draft reduction by the Republicans, and still the Democratic party is as silent upon that question as an unvisited graveyard.

Miss Ella Davis, of Powersville, has a relic in her possession in the shape of a Masonic apron, which was her grandfather's. The apron is over 100 years old and is made of white silk.

A Southern Democratic paper boasts that "organized labor associations voted for Grover Cleveland for President." Possibly they did. They are now themselves wondering why.

Editor Knight of the Norweg Current, has our deepest sympathy in his loss, by death, of his agent here. He lived at Ironwood and became a victim of that dreadful disease, typhoid fever.

The people are yet in ignorance of the laws passed by the last legislature and will be until they are issued in book form. In some states all "immediate effect laws" are published in the papers.

When it comes to purchasing any article of clothing, it will pay you to inspect the quality and price of suits at the W. L. Co. store. You will be surprised the low cost at which they can get it.

The number dropped from the pension rolls by death and re-arranging of widows in 1892 was 25,000. This rank will increase largely from year to year. If pension growers will be a little patient the veterans will reduce the list.

A law should be passed making it a crime to point a revolver at another, without regard to whether the gun is loaded. The "didn't know it was loaded" took are altogether too numerous for the people.

An Ohio church is reported of the state of religion as having sold its parsonage and put the proceeds into a savings bank. Whether the minister is expected to live in the streets is not stated and the state of religion indicated by this move is left to be inferred.

Manistique Semi-Weekly Pioneer. A Republican Journal.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 19, 1906. Price per copy, 10 cents. Advance, $2.00 per month.

A year ago everybody thought the fate of the nation hung upon the conflict at Homestead. Except the men who lost their places and the merchants who were bankrupted by trusting them, everybody has forgotten about it.

Although the editor of the Philadelphia Times is passing into the sea and when his spirit rises to the top of the sky, speaking of the recent royal marriage: "We ourselves felt a thrill when we read of the queen wearing the garb."

An important trial is in progress at Fresno, Cal., and at the entrance of the court room is posted this notice: "Gentlemen, please to enter the court room with the plaintiff here this is the clerk's office."

The effort of politicians in Michigan to overthrow the law recently passed in that State giving women the right to vote at all municipal elections and making them eligible to all offices for which they vote will have a strong tendency to confirm the wisdom of that measure.

One section of the new law requires that women who register shall send certain sections of the State Constitution in the presence of the Board of Registry. This provision excites the alarm of the Democratic bosses of the Wolverine State.

There is one class of laborers who never strike and seldom complain, says the Woman's Journal. They get up at 5 o'clock in the morning and never go to bed until 10 or 11 o'clock at night.

Several men on the outskirts of the crowd began to feel in their pockets. "And I am selling it at actually less than cost." A half dozen tried to struggle through the surging throng with their money in their hands.

"It is composed of distilled water and bromide of potassium, and is guaranteed." But he was talking to a street full of space tinged with stale disgust.—(Inimitable Commercial Gazette.)

An incident of the Wilderness. "This is the twenty-eighth anniversary of the third day's fight at the Wilderness," said the veteran the other morning. "Are you in it?" "Yes," answered the veteran; "my company lost its first man to-day—twenty-eight years ago."

A Philadelphia abolitionist went upon a balloon the other day, and notwithstanding he came down safely, the newspapers there are urging the other abolitionists to try it. A good strong upper current may at least carry them to the north pole or Alaska.

"Everything seems to have been improved about vessels except the gang-plank," says a lake-faring gentleman. "There has been no radical change in that important particular. It is practically the same old plank with unimproved sides, unwieldy mechanics for hoisting and lowering, and adjustment to the rise and fall of the boat when light or loaded, and yet it is one of the most important things about a boat."

The sentiment among men of experience in business is widespread that state currency would be a worse calamity than free coinage of silver. Even if a dollar be worth only about sixty cents as a metal, it is still worth more than a paper dollar.

Such proposals of that region, however, have made little hope of the repeal of the Sherman act unless the votes of Southern Democrats can be secured by a promise of the wilder currency. It has been asserted that President Cleveland has manifested a disposition to make his concession, but the assertion is not authoritative and for the sake of the country it is hoped that it has no foundation.—EX.

"Gentlemen," cried the first street fakir of the season as he hurriedly scanned the horizon for the police, and got on a box by the gutter, "gentlemen, I have here a dead sure cure for all snake bites, insect bites, tarantula bites, and scorpion stings."

"Yes, sir," said the fakir, "this bottle," and he waved a flask containing red liquid in the air over the heads of the enthusiastic throng. "This bottle contains a dead sure cure for snake bites."

A half dozen tried to struggle through the surging throng with their money in their hands. "It is composed of distilled water and bromide of potassium, and is guaranteed." But he was talking to a street full of space tinged with stale disgust.—(Inimitable Commercial Gazette.)

"This is the twenty-eighth anniversary of the third day's fight at the Wilderness," said the veteran the other morning. "Are you in it?" "Yes," answered the veteran; "my company lost its first man to-day—twenty-eight years ago."

"How was he killed?" "He was shot by one of our company," came the reply. "The fact is we were frightened by the movements of the enemy. He was playing 'dixie' and the 'Honnie Blue Flag,' so near to us that we could distinctly hear him, when suddenly there was an alarm, and every man in my regiment shot off his gun. That created a terrible racket, and I—who had been under fire—supposed that we were being attacked by the whole of the federate army. In the midst of my confusion I heard the voice of the colonel of my regiment shouting, 'Charge firing, men!'"

"I told them that he had been shot in the battle of the Wilderness, but I gave no particulars. It was better so.—(Littell's Observer.)

A tramp does not consider it a misfortune to be sent to prison, but it is a very real world that will compel him to work while he is serving out his sentence.

It is said that all the suitors for a girl named in Borneo are expected to be generous in their presents to her. These presents are never returned. Therefore the silly female selects on of the happy man.

The contest in the late school election at Manistique was a bitter one between sectarian bodies, Catholic and Protestants. J. H. Walton and Hon. B. S. Waite, prominent here, elected by 183 and 182 unopposed. Everybody, and their wives voted.

It is said that Lucy Stone does not believe in women's rights. "Women are nearly always a woman's most severe critic." Mrs. Stone here stands on the rock of history. Nor is she lived that twelve women would die out of summary justice to a male criminal of cheap fanaticism.

The Durham (N. C.) Globe says that Northern papers charge that the Southern people to be hyenas and centipedes. No, they do not, at least not all the Southern people. But after reading the article printed in the Globe during the last campaign, northern newspapers believe that the editor of that paper is an ass that has not sufficiently cleared the cobwebs from his eyes to see that the rebellion was put down thirty years ago.

There is a curious kind of a driver at Manistique. Does he tell you all the legends and expatiates on all local traditions? The writer, who had regarded him with fear and trembling, naturally expected the usual bling of historical information, but to his surprise and delight none was offered.

"That's skull-crap," said the driver briefly, and after that his principal occupation seemed to consist in walking the line of the horse's ears.

"What's the story?" "Dunno. I used to tell it when I was young and had no regard for the truth."

There he came to a Leaver's Leap. "What's the legend?" "Forget it. Got tired asking people to believe that rubbish."

"Made you ashamed to tell it?" "Yep."

"You must be some relative of Truthful James."

"Never heard of him."

"When he reached the Devil's Kitchen one of the party asked:

"Aren't you going to tell us about that? Why it is called by such a name, etc?"

"Nope."

Then everyone in the party asked the hand of the driver.

"Thank! If they murmured. The laconic driver was voted to be a jewel and the party looked him down with signs, after taking a fearful farewell of him and promising to send all their letters and democrats need a little of that kind of experience.

Eastern summer resorts are in great luck this year when they have enough to make up a tonnage. They have even impressed old gray headed veterans into service. One paper remarks: "It is even wonderful how quickly the old folks do learn under the tutelage of a pretty girl."

There is a law in Canada which provides that children under the age of ten years of age should be accompanied by a parent or guardian shall be fined or imprisoned if a law were in force throughout the American Union, it would insure to the benefit of all the people therein.

Another wonder is a man gotten up like a tramp who calls at doors for something to eat. Whether accosted or refused, just as he leaves he prevails to pick up a gold ring for its own sake, and says it must be a valuable ring as it is marked 18k and his hands were engraved. No one about the house knows anything about it, and then he offers to sell it in several places but has succeeded in getting as high as $5, but has disposed of one or two for $1 each. These rings cost many dollars each.

The Iron Mountain Claps mine, the largest in the Manistique Iron range, has been discovered several months in the last few weeks and will probably be closed down entirely in a few days unless sales of ore can be made.

According to the inter-state commission 2,200 railroad employees were killed last year. If it is this number he added the passenger cars and employees were not absolutely necessary to keep down the population.

By the breaking of a scaffold used in the building of the Garfield, O. J. Thomas, Fairchild, Joseph Leppold and William Long were precipitated twenty-five feet. Fairchild was instantly killed and Leppold probably fatally injured.

The population of the silver states is at the outside two millions, while the population of the gold states is at the outside six millions. Still the forty per cent of the sixty-five million is subjected to enormous shrinkage in order to advance a single product in which the two millions are interested a few cents an ounce.

Some time ago Frank Racine was accused from his wife on the ground that she had transferred the money to Joseph Polite. Racine removed from his home at Champion and went to shipping with Mr. Racine lived with Polite. Several days ago Racine returned to Champion. He found his wife with Polite. A quarrel ensued and Polite shot Racine in the hand. The latter fell, while the former has disappeared and cannot be found.

The coming session of Congress is bound to be divided on the silver question, the next against the east, with the south watching their best throes her strength. That part of the country has some "scores" to settle with northern democracy, and will conduct during the rebellion, and will begin to know with which faction they can unite and average that lack of affiliation in those dark days, and eripie the greatest number of "dime-trats."

The heroic conduct of a young man, Basil Luskwood, the day of the Ford's disaster has been remembered by the gift to him of a handsome watch, suitably inscribed. This man, passing along by the scene of the horror, ran and fetched a ladder, and, climbing up, held the ladder horizontally for persons to escape out of the windows of the ruined building. The ladder being too short, Luskwood, who is a powerful man, bore on the strength of his legs, the weight of several persons, who one by one crawled out of the window up on the ladder.

Wild oat banks will be the last nail in the Democratic coffin and they are bound to come, or our southern brethren will be very mad. Some of our old claps remember those days way back in the "60s." From all these Good Lord letters we have written remembering from Monroe, this state, with $100 dollars of Kalamazoo bank bills to a town in Ohio remained over Sunday and the land lord told us Monday morning.

"When you are here, I read no Michigan simplifiers." Walrova's Michigan horse back to Monroe. Some of your latter-day democrats need a little of that kind of experience.

To the most successful farmer a man should be well posted and well educated. There are few branches of knowledge from the amount drawn in every-day life. In the natural instillations of learning in the land in the ordinary work of the farm a post-graduate course will not be of great value. The more that is received in the curriculum of our schools. The introduction of a line of study in this direction given at our schools can be carried on indefinitely and to the advantage of the farmer in determining among the insects which surround him his friends and his enemies; and being able to protect the one and destroy the other may be of great value. The same is true in regard to birds, beasts and reptiles. It is along this line that an education may be put to practical use. Intelligent effort is always rewarded.

The prodigal son may return, but how about the prodigal daughter? As far as the world is concerned there is no money for the prodigal daughter. The son may wallow in the mire and filth of pollution fed upon lacks of an anatomy and if he comes back and in coming ramment and knocks at the door of society, he is likely to be received within the portals of a respectable daughter, small and simple-sweetly at the moral leper, and unmanly very gracious and kind.

The progress of invention and discovery and applied sciences is constantly adding new words to our language. The words and phrases under the letter "H" in Webster's 8,358, in 1890 are 15,021, and in the Standard, now in process of publication, 19,736.

Cholera infantum has lost its terrors since the introduction of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. This remedy is used and is always directed with each bottle. It is followed, a cure is certain. Mr. A. W. Walters a prominent merchant of Watertown, N. Y., says: "I cured my baby boy of the infantile cholera, even after other remedies had failed. My child was so low that he seemed almost beyond the aid of human hands or reach of any medicine." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Thompson & Putnam.

The latest official reports from Samson, received at the Department of the Interior, make no direct reference to active hostilities, but do state that serious complications have arisen in connection with the administration of the tariff laws and the operations of the land court, which is burdened with an almost insupportable mass of conflicting claims. These reports have, in a measure, prepared the department to give credence to the unofficial reports of increasing hostilities between Matanzas and the island. It is felt to be desirable that the Philadelphia should touch at San Juan at the earliest possible date.

A carpenter by the name of M. S. Powers fell from the roof of a house in East Des Moines, Iowa, and sustained a painful and serious fracture of the wrist, which was cured with one bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Mr. Van Pelt, Editor of the Spring, Mo., paper, went to a drug store at Eldridge, Iowa, and asked the physician in attendance to give him a dose of something for cholera morbus and looseness of the bowels. He says: "I had so much better the next morning that I concluded to call on the physician and get him to fix me up a supply of the medicine. I was surprised when he handed me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He said he prescribed it regularly. He best he could get or prepare. I can testify to its efficiency in my case at all events." For sale by Thompson & Putnam.

The Regular American Beauty. Miss Elizabeth Green, of Detroit, seems to be the representative of American beauty in Europe just now; she is turning Parisian heads at present. While at the silver wedding festivities of the Queen of Italy, had she not been employed as a military escort to keep him safe from the pretty American, the Roman shop windows displayed photographs of Miss Green standing beside the young Count of Turin.

Still another couplet was given by an Englishman, who said she was the only woman he met in Italy sufficiently intelligent for conversation, since which speech the young lady has been called "the Kaiser's Miss Green." London Figure.

HE POPPED. But for several reasons They Are Not Now Engaged.

The two were two fair young things who were engaged to be married, and were changing conditions as they prepared to retire.

"Oh, Katie," said the blond one as she drew out her hairpins, "what has happened to that awfully handsome fellow who used to take you driving so often?"

"Oh, never! Did I never tell you all about that fellow? asked the brunette. "Yes, but he has just popped, you mean that, and I am just going to hear all about it."

"Well, I'll tell you—but what perfectly lovely rascal! Where did you get him?"

"Oh, brother the school! I am just dying."

"Oh, yes. As I was saying, he was perfectly lovely. It is a pity, but he was equally attractive to my cousin Nell."

"I remember. Because it was only because she looked so much like—"

"Well, it just goes on that way until the fellow was worn out. If he took me driving a messenger boy would call in on me with a box of flowers at once for Nell. If he took her to the matter, he left me a book or a magazine, which he especially wanted me to read. That was a little hard on me, she went on sentimentally, "but I have an intellectual love and a pair of eyes, and I must have Nell."

"I know, I know—go on with your story."

"Well, and as I was saying, it went on for a long time like that until Nell and I got tired. We had a bet as to which one could provoke him to a proposal first. The one who won him was to receive an emerald ring as a wedding present. I always wanted an emerald ring. The result was to be ridiculous, but she had the choice of the best man at the wedding."

"What a splendid idea! Did you?"

"Yes, we just worked right along in that line. I heard a lot of the boys and I developed a fondness for buying the most beautiful. Nell got him to teach her to play on the guitar and sing love songs to him in the evening. We kept on comparing notes, but neither of us seemed to get much out of it, and I was almost discouraged."

"Don't stop now. Tell me just what he said."

"Well, I was in the parlor in the twilight. I wore my white dress with blue and gold trim, and I was sitting when I heard his footsteps. He came in and I saw a beautiful emerald and diamond ring on his finger."

"Of course. Oh, it's wildly interesting!"

"There was a great bunch of flies on the table near me, and across the way somebody was playing in the tub. The one who could think of anything more clever for a proposal, and I knew that if Nell would just keep out of the way, I would win it all right. I told her to go to her room with the dress maker, and I said:

"Yes—no—I don't know. In your chair—I told you I was a low-down, mean fellow. You know that I love you. You could not tell me that you were interested?"

"We were. The parlor door flew open with a bang and in came the housemaid with a lighted lamp."

"But he had said so much that that it was all right anyhow," declared the blond girl.

"Well, not exactly, for, you see, he had mistaken me for Nell in the dark." Chicago Tribune.

A Long Piece. Mrs. Fitzloft was making an earnest effort to have her son Johnny taught to play on the piano. A few days ago Mrs. Fitzloft called on her sister.

"Why ain't you practicing your piece, Johnny?"

"You are not. You haven't touched the piano in the last half hour."

"You are not. You haven't touched the piano in the last half hour. There are no pieces in this march, and I am practicing them over and over until I know them perfect."—Arthur's Home Magazine.
