BEET-SUGAR INDUSTRY

Governor Pingree Thinks Michigan Should Try It.

WOULD MAKE MUCH MONEY BY IT.

What the Governor Said on the Subject of a Few Days Ago to the Lansing Correspondent—Barber of the State Want Legislation—No's Bill for the Execution of Michigan by Twenty-Five Other States of Interest from Lansing.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 16.—Governor Pingree is very much interested in the bills providing a bounty for beet sugar of Michigan production. The bill which provides that the bounty is the proper way of getting this industry started, and has no doubt whatever that it will be a great thing for Michigan. He is convinced that there is money in it, and says that the state that makes the state is the one that will reap the greatest benefit. He is not altogether sure that this sugar beet industry does not afford a solution for the much-needed convict labor problem. In conversation with your correspondent a few days ago he said:

"Wouldn't it be a good thing for the state to set the ball rolling by establishing a beet sugar plant. Let it be located in the heart of that section of the state which needs developing and which promises the best returns in the way of sugar beets. The farmer would have a sure market for their crop and would be encouraged to make their land yield the best possible returns. What if a beet sugar plant does cost several hundred thousand dollars? It would be a permanent and growing investment. Not only that, but it would pave the way for a permanent and growing industry which his own best interests and the farmers of Michigan, and would cause worthless lands to yield handsome returns. My experience has been that the people never look for the best use of money in the way of permanent investments, which are sure to yield good returns. It is the frivolous and useless expenditures that they protect against."

The Purchase of Belle Isle.

"I have had nearly eight years' experience in Detroit, and make this statement advisedly. Take the purchase of Belle Isle, for instance. That cost us $381,191. That's a big sum of money, but the people of Detroit would not sell the island for $125,000. Even if you were now we could get $5,000,000 for it, enough to pay the entire bonded indebtedness of the city and leave us a balance of $1,500,000. Not a word of investment was it? And yet some people howled when it was made. You don't hear any howling now, do you? It would be with the beet sugar factory in my opinion. If the state established such a plant it would give employment to the convicts with work in which they would not compete greatly with free labor, but the farmer would be furnished with a market for their crop at a good price.

"I believe in the convict farm idea, too. That was mentioned in my message to the legislature. There is no reason why these convicts could not be set to work farming in stockades. Let them build the stockades out of logs or lumber just as the convict stockades were built during the war. I was in two of them for a long time and I know something about them. Then when it was not the proper season for the convicts could replace the temporary walls, and we would have something permanent. We build at all seasons of the year; now, winter as well as summer, and there is no reason why this building could not be done when it is too cold to farm."

Beet Work for Convicts.

"The state has use for all the farm products the convicts would raise, so that competition with the farmer would be reduced to a minimum. They might do a good deal of experimenting in the way of raising various crops not now raised in Michigan, and give the Michigan farmer the benefit of the experience this afforded. This would have a tendency to raise the standard of farming in Michigan, and with such a raise would come better prices for the better produce. People have always got to depend on the farms for what they put in their stomachs. There is nothing temporary about the farming industry, but for this reason it is one of the very best kinds of work the convicts can put at."

Again Referring to the Sugar Beet Industry.

Gov. Pingree mentioned the marvelous growth of the industry in Germany, France and other foreign countries where the annual production of beet sugar has assumed enormous proportions. He expressed himself in favor of paying a bounty of 1 cent per pound for all beet sugar manufactured in Michigan, such payment, however, to cease whenever the congress shall provide a bounty for the country generally. He also thought it might be well to fix in the bill the minimum price per ton Michigan farmers should be paid for their sugar beets.

The Committee on State Affairs in the House.

The committee on state affairs in the house has reported a substitute for the bill providing a bounty of 1 cent per pound to manufacturers, $5,000 being appropriated for this purpose for each of the ensuing two years. The bill also provides a minimum price of 14 per ton to be paid to Michigan farmers for their beets.

Barber Was Legislation.

The barbers of the state are after legislation this year. Two years ago a number of Detroit barbers came out here and secured the enactment of a law requiring that all barbers should be kept open on Sunday. Now the same fellows are sick of their bargain and want the law repealed. The indications are, however, that they will have to get along with the law as it is. Another legislative proposition calls for the creation of a state commission to be composed of three members to be appointed by the governor, and to be known as the state consular commission. The bill provides that it shall be a misdemeanor for any person to shave or cut hair for a person in Michigan who does not hold a certificate from the consular to the effect that he is qualified to do this work. The fee for a certificate is $5. By the terms of the bill the commission is to have sole power to determine the qualifications necessary, and may require the applicant for a license to undergo such an examination as it may see fit to provide. The bill was introduced by the Michigan Federation of Labor at its annual meeting held here in December.

Execution by Electricity.

The fact that there are nearly 100 life-sentences hanging over the heads of Michigan prisoners by representatives of Michigan led Representative Leavelle to give notice early in the session of a bill providing for the execution of persons sentenced to death by electricity in the first degree. Mr. Leavelle has been in the house for the past two months and has not yet been introduced. It doubtless will be, however, before the constitutional limit of fifty days provided for the introduction of bills expires on the 24th inst. There is no reason to believe that the bill will pass, some ten years ago the late Congressman Ford, a member of the legislature, succeeded in getting a hanging bill through the house, but it was killed in the senate. That is the way it is with the bill now pending. It is over two years old, and it is still in the hands of the senate. It is still in the hands of the senate, and it is still in the hands of the senate.

SURPRISED SPANISH

A DETACHMENT PRACTICALLY WIPED OUT BY INSURGENTS.

Battle Lasted Two Hours, the Troops Losing One Hundred Men—Colonel Also Successful in an Escape to Justo Matanzas.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 17.—The Commercial Tribune's special from Havana says: A detachment from General Garcia's column made a dash upon the camp of Colonel Resaca's encampment near Matanzas last week and in two hours defeated the Spanish, inflicting a loss of 100. The Spanish had sent out to destroy a camp of pacifists and had encamped for the night. The insurgents fell upon them about midnight, and, though greatly inferior in numbers, the surprise was so complete that they routed the Spanish completely.

One of General Arango's bands was defeated in this province last Sunday, 15 miles out from the city, by a band of guerrillas under Major Rio. The insurgents were outnumbered, but they fought fiercely and the Spanish loss was double that of the Cubans.

VERY NEAR HAVANA.

Battle in which Cuban Lost 100 Men and Spanish 200.

HAVANA, via Key West, Feb. 16.—A detachment from General Garcia's army, now operating in this province, had a pitched battle with a band of guerrillas under Major Salas and a portion of Havana volunteers under Colonel Sanchez. The Cubans attacked a blockhouse 10 miles west of Havana, and after a desperate fight of two hours they were victorious. The Cubans were victorious and for several hours the fighting was hot and furious. Finding that they could make no progress against such odds, the Spanish retreated to the rear and offered a passageway for the insurgents. Through this they passed with a loss of some 100, the Spanish losing over double that number. Notwithstanding their defeat the insurgents managed to so dismantle the fort that it had to be destroyed by their falling into the insurgents' hands and the large supply of ammunition there destroyed.

Outnumbering Them Two to One.

The Cubans, by a skilful feat, drew off part of the volunteer corps and thus made a furious and unexpected onslaught on the other, compelling them to retreat and offering a passageway for the insurgents. Through this they passed with a loss of some 100, the Spanish losing over double that number. Notwithstanding their defeat the insurgents managed to so dismantle the fort that it had to be destroyed by their falling into the insurgents' hands and the large supply of ammunition there destroyed.

MUST HAVE MORE TROOPS.

The Brazilian Pantheist Much More Than Supposed.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The Herald's correspondent in Rio Janeiro tonight telegraphs that Colonel Moreira Costa, who was ordered to Bahia to suppress the rebellion of the fanatical bands and Congress, has sent word that he must have more troops. He declares that the strength of the fanatics is largely underestimated.

IOWA RAILWAY LAW.

Adopted, With a Few Changes, by the Iowa Legislature.

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 17.—By a unanimous vote the house has adopted the bill for the regulation of railroads, recommended by the railroad committee to pass. The bill is practically the Iowa law, with a few changes and rather stringent in its provisions. Its discussion occupied the attention of the house during the entire session.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS SUMMARY

Wednesday, Feb. 16.

Senator Morgan, the champion of the McKinley bill, announced that he would resign his seat in the senate and generate his abandonment of that measure for the present session. The bankruptcy bill introduced by the senator in the position of "unfinished business," but the debate went over for the day. The agricultural bill was taken up and by Mr. Tillman (Dem., S. C.) called up the bill limiting the effect of the federal law on the liquor traffic so as to give each state control of the subject. No action was taken.

After the joint session for the purpose of officially unting the vote for president and vice president the house adjourned.

Thursday, Feb. 11.

The senate passed the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill and fixed most of the time for the day on the time for a final vote on the immigration conference report. These were the only features of the session, when Sherman cut short early in the day by the executive session on the arbitration treaty. The diplomatic and consular bill as passed carries $3,416,000.

The house passed the fortifications appropriation bill, carrying $4,857,714. The senate spent the day in discussion of the arbitration treaty. Senator Sherman, who had been in the house for some time for its consideration at this session, when, if not completed, it might go over to the extra session.

Friday, Feb. 12.

The house passed the postoffice appropriation bill, carrying $4,857,714. The senate spent the day in discussion of the arbitration treaty. Senator Sherman, who had been in the house for some time for its consideration at this session, when, if not completed, it might go over to the extra session.

Saturday, Feb. 13.

This was a field day in the house. The study civil appropriation bill was before the body for general debate. It was used as a basis for an attack by the Democrats on the vast appropriations made by the McKinley administration. Mr. Sherman estimated they would aggregate $1,015,000,000. The latter paid a high tribute to the McKinley administration, but he took responsibility for the large appropriations. The relative merits of the McKinley and Wilson bills were discussed. The McKinley bill was attacked and defended, the income tax measure and Judge Silliman's change of position came in for a share of attention, and Mr. De Arment of Missouri concluded the day with a brilliant play for struggling Cuba, which drew from the house shouts of approval.

Sunday, Feb. 14.

On motion of Mr. Morgan the senate took up the resolution to abrogate the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. This was done in opposition to the wish of Mr. Sherman, who desired to continue consideration of the arbitration treaty. There were several sharp speeches made, in one of which Mr. Sherman declared that the Clayton-Bulwer treaty would not be held by antagonizing other business.

Every possible effort will be put forth, and money freely spent, to make THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE preeminently a NATIONAL FAMILY NEWSPAPER, interesting, instructive, entertaining and indispensable to each member of the family.

GREECE IS WARNED

NOTIFIED BY THE POWERS TO WITHDRAW FORCES FROM CRETE.

Unless the Complex Within Forty-eight Hours Hostilities Begin—Sold in Favor of a Change of Policy Is Improbable.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Vienna says that it is reported the powers have addressed a collective note to Greece demanding the withdrawal of her naval and military forces from Crete within 48 hours, failing which the port of Piræus will be blockaded and general hostilities commence.

A dispatch to The Times from Cairo says the commanders of the foreign squadrons sent a joint note to Ismail Bey, the newly appointed governor of Crete, informing him that they had addressed an ultimatum to the commanders of the Greek fleet requiring him to withdraw from Crete within 48 hours. They requested the governor, Ismail Bey, to advise in a way of notifying the insurgents of this fact and of announcing them.

To Yield Up Their Arms. Also of informing them that the powers had taken measures to prevent Greece from interfering in the affairs of Crete. An Italian officer was also dispatched with a flag of truce to the lines of the insurgents of Akrotiri. He delivered the message, but the chief of the insurgents replied that they would maintain their present position, and send a deputation to the powers.

The Greek army of occupation has taken up a position between Gata and Platani. Firing was heard all day in the Western districts.

Everything now depends upon the decision of the Greek government, whose predicament is unenviable. Nothing can justify Prime Minister Deloufias from continuing the useless struggle. King George could hardly have taken any other course than that of yielding to the ultimatum.

POWERS PREVENTED IT. Greece and Crete were in a position to occupy Crete.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Henry Norman, who went to Washington as special correspondent of the Associated Press, has just arrived at Athens. He telegraphs that 1,400 Greek troops, carrying 4,000 rounds of ammunition, have landed 7 miles from Crete. Eight thousand Creteans joined them. If the powers had not issued the ultimatum, Crete would have been occupied by the Greeks and Creteans within a few hours. The government has officially informed the powers that Greece is unable to reverse her policy in the matter of the occupation of Crete.

MORE TROOPS FOR CRETE. Greek Regiments Constant to Embark.

ATHENS, Feb. 17.—Two classes of the naval reserves have been called out. The Greek ironclad Spezia has arrived from Zoulo.

The Napoli di Romani regiment has started for Crete. The Kalamita regiment will follow at once. The Macedonian and Cretean committees have agreed to pursue a policy of united action in regard to the troubles in Crete.

RHODES ON THE RAID. Cent Frankly Amuse His Connection With the Transvaal Fiasco.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The committee appointed by parliament to inquire into the Transvaal raid met in Westminster hall. While the general public was excluded, the hall was crowded with members of parliament, counsel, ladies, reporters and other interested persons in the inquiry, including the Prince of Wales, the Earl of Salton, the Duke of Abercorn, Canon Wilberforce, James Bryce, M. P., Murray Ferguson, M. P., Sir Ellis Ashmead-Bartlett, M. P., and other men of prominence.

Cent Rhodes, when called, read a long statement, he said, covered the whole ground, and recited the grievances of the foreigners against the Transvaal government. "After long efforts," the statement continued, "the people there, despairing of redress by constitutional means, resolved to seek by extra-constitutional means such change of government as could give the majority of population, possessing more than half the land, nine-tenths of the wealth and paying nine-tenths of the taxes, a share in the administration."

He assisted the Movement. "I sympathized with them, and as a land owner, was largely interested. As a citizen of Cape Colony, I suffered under the persistently unfriendly attitude of the Transvaal towards Cape Colony."

"I assisted in the movement with purse and influence, and acting within my rights, placed troops under the command of the Hon. Mr. D. Jameson's orders on the borders of Transvaal, prepared to act under certain circumstances. I did not tell the Hon. Mr. D. Jameson that I was a member of the Chamber of Commerce. There is nothing in regard to the raid. Mr. Jameson went in without my authority. All my actions were grossly influenced by my belief that the policy of the present Transvaal government was to introduce the influence of another power (Germany) and thereby complicate the situation."

"This journey goes into history as the greatest railroad feat ever accomplished. The best previous railroad long distance record was 10 hours and 57 minutes for 954 miles over the New York Central and Lake Shore railroads from New York to Chicago."

CANTON, O., Feb. 17.—President-elect McKinley is kept in bed by his attack of influenza, which is epidemic here. He is not believed to be able to take his contemplated trip to Cleveland at present. Mrs. McKinley is also confined to her room. It is not thought Major McKinley will be able to receive callers for several days.

At 2:30 p. m. Dr. T. H. Phillips, the attending physician of the president-elect, said:

"Major McKinley is better, but still unable to see any visitors 'till noon. He must remain quiet for several days and may not be able to go to Cleveland until the latter part of the week. He still is in bed, but the rest he has received during the past two days has been very beneficial."

Senator George Jackson Recovered Sufficiently to be taken to his home, where it is hoped climatic and other influences will hasten his recovery.

MILLIONAIRE HANGED. Murderer Arthur Duestrow Executed at Union, Mo.

UNION, Mo., Feb. 17.—Dr. Arthur Duestrow, the St. Louis millionaire, who on Feb. 13, 1894, shot and killed his wife and child in that city, was hanged here in the courtyard of the county jail, at 12:55. A few hours before the execution took place, Duestrow threw off the mask of insanity, sobbed like a woman, and admitted that he killed his wife and child. At the time of the execution, however, he was cool and collected.

PROFITS ON SUGAR.

John E. Seaver Agrees Before the Lowest Quotations.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—John E. Seaver, secretary and treasurer of the American Sugar Refining company, which resumed the investigation committee, was greeted with the question by Chairman Lewis:

"Have you those figures with you, Mr. Seaver?"

"I have," he replied.

Senator Lewis then questioned Mr. Seaver as to the margin of profit between the raw and refined material during the five years preceding the eruption of the sugar trust.

Mr. Seaver, in reply, said that the average margin of profit for the five years preceding the trust was 83.34 of a cent per pound, and during the five years preceding the trust was 1.86 per pound.

"Is it not true that the average price of the raw material after the trust dropped .567 per cent a pound, while the charge for the refined increased .176 per pound?"

"Undoubtedly, sir,"

Mr. Seaver contended that as the years preceding the trust were years of disaster in the sugar business, there could not be any fair basis of comparison placed in regard to the figures for the five years succeeding the formation of the trust. He denied that there was a sevenfold capitalization of the stock of the company.

FOR BETTER HIGHWAYS

Recent Progress Made in the Good Roads Movement.

GETTING RID OF AN OLD SYSTEM.

The Efforts of Working Out Road Taxes and the Economy of Modern Being Realized by Intelligent Farmers—What the Wheelmen Have Done.

The good roads congress which is soon to be held at Orlando, Fla., is only another straw which proves that we are rapidly becoming civilized. If we keep it up we may some day rank with Germany and France. If, however, we were to be judged today by our roads alone, we would be classed with the Chinese and the Patagonians.

But Americans, as a rule, do not realize how bad our common roads actually are. Not all of us can visit Europe and BUILDING THAT OVER A FURROW ROAD, get an object lesson which cannot be forgotten from the magnificent highways which stretch all through the older countries.

Most of us live in sections where really good roads are unknown. We have been accustomed to sections of mud in the spring and fall, months of dust in the summer and other features which have made traveling by wagon something to be indulged in only in cases of stern necessity.

The fact is beginning to be realized, not that bad roads are poor economy, that they mean not only a perpetual inconvenience to the people who have to use them, but a heavy financial loss. This loss comes because, of course, as the farmer, who depend upon these roads as an outlet for their farms to their market. It also affects the people who buy the farmer's produce and incidentally the whole people of the country at large.

Mr. Isaac B. Potter, a noted New York real-estate man on this subject, has most clearly expressed these points in his article on "The Gospel of Good Roads." He figures that in a country where there are 10,000 farms, the most possible roads are about the most expensive thing which the county maintains. Assuming the cost of keeping about 25 cents a day on an average road, which compels the farmers to delay their work and keep their animals standing in the barn, means a loss per day to the county of $25,000 or $7,500 per week, enough to build over 17 miles of the finest kind of macadam roads.

If there are still some farmers who doubt that good roads will mean a personal and direct financial benefit to them, they need not go abroad to be convinced. In several states certain districts have done a large amount of good road building within the last five or six years. In most of these localities agriculture is the chief industry, and whatever may be the condition of farmers in other parts of the country, those who have built good roads are notably prosperous.

But there are few farmers in intelligent communities who are today willing to dispute the advantages of the economy of building good roads. The trouble is they are hampered by a moss growth system that they do not know how to get rid of. This system is generally known as "working the roads." In many states it is still in use. Instead of paying the road tax in cash, the farmer is given an opportunity to "work out the tax" on the road.

Almost every one knows what happens there. A dozen neighboring farmers get together on some day convenient to all and prepare for a sort of a picnic. They go out with shovels, plows and perhaps a scraper. If it is dry weather, the road is probably in fair condition for a dirt road. There are wheel ruts of from six inches to a foot in depth and a lot of loose stones. Along the side of the road stretches turf and soft soil. They carefully scrape the road surface until the highway. Then the road is "fixed," and they have ended their road tax.

When the next rains come, the roads are "fixed" indeed; every deep rut which has been taken from the gutters turns to mud much more easily than it

REAL CO-OPERATION.

THE SUCCESSFUL COLONY OF AGNETA PARK IN HOLLAND.

The Experiment of a Practical Philanthropist Results Most Happily—Ideal Conditions For an Industrial Community—Has Grown and Prospered From the Start.

One of the most striking examples of a successful co-operative community is to be found near Delft, Holland. It is known as Agnetta Park, and it consists of an almost ideal little village, located near one of the largest water and spirit distilling manufactories to be found anywhere in Europe. More than 1,000 persons are employed in this large concern, but each one, from the humblest to the highest, has a personal interest in the business and gets a certain share of the profits. The workmen not only own the houses which they live in, but the public parks, concert halls, and the public buildings of their ideal little village. The ownership is not individual, but communistic. Although Agnetta Park represents an industrial paradise which has probably no equal in any other country.

The whole scheme is the materialized ideal of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Van Marken. Mr. Van Marken is a practical philanthropist of an unusual type, and his wife is an able helpmate. When young man, Mr. Van Marken attended the General Engineering academy of Holland at Delft, and after completing his studies there gave evidence of his thoughtful and independent spirit by deciding to master some useful trade. So he went to Austria and there acquired a thorough knowledge of the manufacture of cast-iron and the construction of the industries closely connected with it.

Returning to Holland, he married and settled down in the quaint old city of Delft. On the outskirts of the city was a large marsh, and on this site Mr.

Van Marken determined to build his great factory. It was a bleak and poor district, but the transportation facilities were so good that the formation was soon begun. Besides the factory were erected a spirit distillery, a glue and gelatin factory and oil works, these being kindred industries.

Thirteen years ago Mr. Van Marken purchased a tract of land one mile square adjoining the factories. Then he called his workmen together and explained his co-operative plan to them, inviting them to join in erecting houses on the common property plan. The proposition enthusiastically entered into the project. Deeds were made out, and in a short time 50 cottages, which were models of neatness and sanitary construction, were built. Co-operative stores were opened, and Mr. Van Marken began the erection of a model villa for himself. It was not long before other employees wanted cottages in Agnetta Park, and in a few years the waste land had been transformed until it looked like a garden.

The cottages are all owned by the community, but are rented by the shareholders at remarkably low figures. Trees, shrubs and flowers were planted and beautiful walks laid out. Then came public buildings of various sorts—clubs, dances, a gymnasium, a co-operative restaurant, a ballroom, a band stand, a library and other structures which the employees might find amusements and instruction were created. There are now more than 500 families living in Agnetta Park, and the heads of all of them are stockholders in the Park community.

The government of this little commonwealth is vested in three elective councils and since the scheme has been in operation there has not been a single subject of serious disagreement. The members are divided into five classes, the grading being done strictly in accordance with needs. In the main sense the business of the factories has increased wonderfully, and while the profits are large the men work fewer hours and get higher wages than others similarly employed.

There is an intricate and complicated system of positions and benefits connected with the organization, with which the workmen are fully familiar and which they heartily appreciate, for they know that their future welfare is secure no matter whether they are sick or well. There are death, marriage and birth benefits, so that any unusual expense can be met, and the workmen are assured that their families will be cared for whatever happens to them.

The education of the children of the workmen is most carefully looked after. There are kindergartens and grammar schools which the boys may attend until they are 14, and for the next four years they work half the day and study the other half. In this ideal community any young man is given the opportunity to fit himself for a high position. Girls from the ages of 13 to 16 are taught to give up, and to dress, sing and act, or they are 16 they are advanced to classes where dressmaking and cooking are taught. It is hardly necessary to add that these girls are practically made the best wives.

A few months ago, Mr. Byron Freney, of Woodstock, Mich., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. His right leg was swollen the full length, causing him great suffering. Mr. Ward F. Smith, of Fredericton, N. B., a student with chronic diarrhoea for over thirty years, had been finally satisfied that it was only a question of time when he would be obliged to give up. He had been treated by some of the best physicians in Europe and America but got no permanent relief. One day he picked up a newspaper and chanced to read an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He got a bottle of it, the first dose helped him and its continued use cured him. For sale by A. S. Putnam & Co.

I have given Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a fair test and consider it one of the very best remedies for cough, that I have ever found. One day I was out on a drive, and my horse became very sick, although I used it freely. I called my children to my side and risked very readily to try this medicine. I can conscientiously recommend it for cough and cold in children. Geo. E. Wolcott, Clerk of the Circuit Court, Ferrisburgh, Vt. Sold by A. S. Putnam & Co.

PROTECT THE ROAD! DON'T ALLOW IN THE SAME TRACK!

WARNING TO DRIVERS.

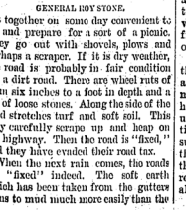

It is a vital principle of roadbuilding that stones even as large as a hen's egg will not mix in a firm, compact mass. Macadam, the great English roadbuilder, used to tell his foremen, "If you use a stone bigger than you can put in your mouth, I'll not pay for a foot of the work."

This necessitates the use of a stone crusher, and such machines will never be used as long as the old system of "working out" road taxes is in vogue. After a good macadam road is built it is very easily kept in repair. Narrow tires and heavy loads will, however, wear ruts in the hardest roadbeds.

The League of American Wheelmen, which has probably done as much to encourage the building of good roads as any other organization, has introduced a method which it is hoped will tend to preserve the roads. It has caused signs to be erected along fine boulevards where heavy cutting is done, requesting drivers not to keep in one track. In European countries still further precautions are taken by compelling the use of wide tires, and, in the case of four wheeled wagons, of wheels that do not track, the front axle being shorter than the rear one, thus distributing the load.

What would an American farmer think of piling four tons of loose hay on a wagon and driving to market, 10 miles away, with only three horses to haul the load? Yet this is not an unusual load for a French road, the broad tires rolling over the loose stones on the surface with but very little strain on the horses. It is such pictures as these that give a new impetus to the good roads movement, and every horse that is already a good start in this country.

Engagements should last about 24 hours and no presents should be returned. Most men give to those they like for the pleasure of giving. It may be correct to return the diamond ring, but no man will ever want to use it again if he really cares for the girl who once wore it. In the novels the hero throws the ring cast as his feet far out into the ocean, and as he walks the beach lonely and sad at midnight he might his regrets with those who have crumbled as the sun baked sands cast ashore by the sobbing, sorrowing sea.
