MR. W. H. HILL LEAVES US.

Condensed Resume of his History while a Resident of Manistique.

For the second time since the advent of 1897 it becomes our duty to chronicle the departure from Manistique of a citizen who has for many years been a prime factor in the social, business and political history of the village since its advent. Several weeks ago J. D. Henserson who had been so closely identified with the interests of the village for twenty-one years, left for his new home at Highland Park, Ill. On Monday last, Mr. W. H. Hill, who, because of his prominence in local business, social and political circles is known to every inhabitant of the county, left us to accept greater responsibilities as general manager of the Manistique River and Sparling Lumber Companies at Manistique and Cedar River. The subject of this sketch was born in the state of New York. At an early age he engaged in the lumber business, and mastered every detail of its manufacture in that line of schools and experience. The greater portion of his life prior to 1884 was spent in the state of New York. But for a time he was located in the Pacific coast pines.

He came here in 1881, from Lindley, N. Y. to fill the position of superintendent of the Weston Lumbering Co. From that time until January 1st, of the present year he attended to the selling and shipping of lumber for the Weston Lumber Co. His vast fund of practical experience, coupled with a keen knowledge of human nature, made him an invaluable man for the companies of which he was so important a factor. His worth was promptly recognized and his salary was promptly raised.

He was instrumental in organizing the Manistique Bank and was president of the institution during the greater portion of the time he resided here. He was also a prominent stockholder of the Weston Pulp Co., and had an important part to play in the disincorporation of that company. The Marble Lims Co. of which he was vice president for years.

He was equally if not more prominent in political circles than in business. His first induction in office was in 1885 when he was elected supervisor of Manistique township. This position he held from that time until 1895 when he was defeated by one majority by Dr. Bowen. The voters soon ascertained that they had made a mistake in shelving Mr. Hill, and he was elected last spring by a large majority and his tenure of office would, no doubt have extended to an indefinite period had he remained a resident here. He was chairman of the board of supervisors practically the whole time that he served on the board. Being a man of more than ordinary intelligence he was amply qualified to fill the position. He was quick to curb the wasteful expenditure of public funds, and economy in the administration of the county's affairs was his hobby.

On September 1, 1894, he was elected a member of the school board. He proved himself such an invaluable member that he was in continuous service until last Saturday when his resignation was accepted. He was an enthusiastic advocate of improved methods of teaching, and the high plane that our schools occupy today are the result of such agitation, and the care taken in the selection of progressive and up-to-date teachers. He was one of the prime movers in creating the public library. He, with W. S. Ransey, his associate on the library committee, spent much time in compiling and cataloging the books on hand, and in the wise selection of new books.

Mr. Hill was a Republican of the partisan stamp, and closely attached the workings of the political enemy in national, state and county affairs, and was frank and fearless in decrying wrong principles and mismanagement whenever it was apparent. He was an important factor in the Republican politics of the upper peninsula, and was in touch with all the leaders. He was the postmaster of the town the greater portion of the time that he resided here, and always had the faculty of securing employees that were reliable, energetic and decorous. He conducted that office, as well as all the other offices to which he was elected, in a business-like manner - in the same manner in which he conducted his business responsibilities.

Mr. Hill always took an aggressive part in the advancement of Manistique's interests, and his loss will be sorely felt by the community of which he has been a component factor.

Mr. Hill was united in marriage with Miss Helen M. Leach, of Synonco, N. Y., in 1876. To them was born three children. The second born, Grace E., died in 1890.

Mrs. Hill has been a very prominent factor in society during her residence here and the palatial Hill home has been the scene of many fashionable entertainments and gatherings.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill are members of the Presbyterian church, and responded liberally to all the calls of the church. Their many friends wish them abundant success in their new home.

The Hill Reception.

The reception accorded Mr. and Mrs. Hill at the Ossawimamee Hotel last Saturday evening was neatly planned and executed.

Nearly two hundred persons responded to the general invitation extended, to pay their respects to Mr. and Mrs. Hill upon the eve of their departure for Marinette.

The guests were received in the sample room. Those in line with Mr. and Mrs. Hill were: Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Quick, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Orr, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. H. Bayall.

The reception room and banquet hall were very nicely decorated. Pot-pourri plants and beautiful flowers abounded everywhere. After the presentation the guests were ushered into the dining room where elaborate refreshments were served.

Shortly after all the guests had arrived, Mr. Norman Roy, in a neat speech, in behalf of the donors, presented Mr. and Mrs. Hill a costly silver cup set, and Miss Helen was given a silver cup. Mr. Hill was so surprised that his scarce found words in which to express his thanks.

Prof. Olson's orchestra discoursed sweet music during the entire evening.

The affair was an unqualified success and Messrs. Kelso, Baxter, Davall and Howell, who had charge of it, are to be congratulated upon the success attending their efforts.

For Charity's Sake.

The ladies of St. Vincent de Paul Society will give a supper at the opera house on Wednesday evening of next week, the proceeds of which will be used for the alleviation of the wants of poor. Supper will be served from 5 o'clock to 7:30 p. m. At 8 o'clock a program will be rendered. Later in the evening ice cream, and coffee will be served. The nominal price of 25 cents will be charged for supper.

The ladies of this society have a well earned reputation for furnishing a first class fifty cent supper for 25 cents and all should make an effort to patronize them upon that evening. You'll get your money's worth and at the same time will help a worthy cause.

Miller Lost It.

The validity of tax titles has again been established by the supreme court in the case of Mersereau vs. Miller. The supreme court affirmed the decision of the circuit court in the matter of the ownership of the land contiguous to Indian Lake, yesterday. The Chicago Lumbering Co. has been paying the taxes on the property in question for the past seventeen years. Miller purchased the land from the original owner and cleared a portion of it in the vicinity of the resort beach last spring and raised a crop of potatoes thereon. If potatoes are raised on that particular spot the coming season the C. L. Company and not Mr. Miller, will reap green the bags. The case was hotly contested and lawyers throughout the state were very much interested as to its final disposition. C. W. Danton has reasons for feeling proud over the results of this legal battle in which he took such a prominent part.

Methodist Episcopal Church.

The time draws near for the coming of the singing evangelists. They have just closed a very successful series of meetings in Detroit, and on Thursday of this week begin work at the school - from there they come here.

Mrs. Shank who has enjoyed a life-long friendship with the wife of President J. H. Finley of Knox College, Galesburg, Ill. in recent correspondence, found a note from the President speaking in highest praise of these evangelists, who conducted a great meeting in that city. He speaks of the high appreciation of both their preaching and singing resulting in the most successful revival effort known to the history of that church. They held meetings there on their way North from the South.

Rev. Shank found a large number of people at Thompson in attendance at the evening prayer meeting there last Tuesday.

This week brings in requests for the Talbotville lecture on Lansing, Mich., and also at Pond Du Lac, Wis.

Sunday evening a prayer before the service will be given at the recent village elections. All are invited.

his death he started to walk about the room. He fell to the floor, and before he could be summoned he died.

The captain has visited this port frequently during the past few years with a trading vessel. Late last fall he came here with a cargo of apples and other which he has been retailing during the winter. Very little is known of his prior history. He was a widower and formerly lived in Chicago. A son of his recently graduated from a Chicago law school. His daughter is a Mrs. Brooks, the wife of a wealthy Minneapolis business man. These parties were telegraphed this morning by Coroner Sattler. He was evidently about 58 years of age.

The cause of his death was so apparent that Coroner Sattler did not deem it necessary to hold an inquest.

BREVITIES.

House to rent cheap. Handy to mill and furnace. W. W. Orvick.

Mr. J. Casper returned from Chicago this week, where he purchased extensively for the firm of which he is a member.

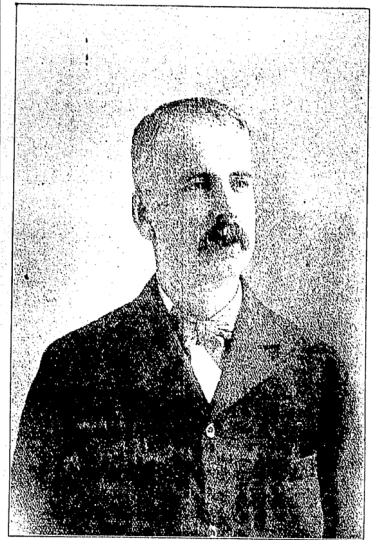

Geo. Platt residing near the city Tuesday. He was adjudged insane in Judge Mersereau's court Wednesday afternoon and will be taken to the asylum at Newberry as soon as there is room for him.

M. H. Quick was elected as member of the school board to succeed W. H. Hill, at a meeting of the board held last Saturday afternoon. The choice made was an excellent one. Mr. Quick has been a member of the board for years and is not a stranger to the duties and responsibilities such membership entails.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Blunson should be given a reception prior to their removal to the Soo. Mr. B. has been one of the city's foremost business men during the past fourteen years, and has shown his faith in Manistique's future by erecting a six room business block. The removal of such a person should not be unnoticed.

Mr. W. H. Hill presented the school library bound files of the Pioneer for the past twelve years. The school board has decided to continue the files by placing a standing order for a yearly file of "The Pioneer-Tribune." A well conducted newspaper is a concise history of the city in which it is published. Mr. Hill's gift is a valuable one.

Game Warden McCoson arrested Herbert Warner, living in Doyle township, last Tuesday on the charge of killing deer out of season. The doctor secured a quarter of venison and ten hides, as proof of the man's guilt. Warner has been accused of supplying several camps with venison the whole winter. If this be true he deserves every punishment. He will be tried next Monday forenoon.

MR. WILLIAM H. HILL.

The Village Election.

A Sudden Death.

Capt. Billens died quite suddenly at the American Hotel at 2 o'clock this morning. The symptoms all point to apoplexy, as he was a very heavy man weighing over 300 pounds. He took several drinks during the day and last night. He very rarely retired, as owing to his complacency he was fearful of sleeping. As usual he was sitting in the office of the hotel after midnight. A few minutes before President McKinley has issued a call for a special session of convene Monday, March 15th.

"Poor Parson" of the Manistig News, has a rival in "Jos. Le Vent" of the Manistig Enterprise. Both write good readable stuff.

The Escanaba newspapers refuse to handle advertising for the department store located in that town. The proprietor of the store issues a paper of its own.

The ruling passion is strong in death. As soon as Cleveland turned the affairs of state over to McKinley he left for the Carolinas Sounds, on a ten day's duck shoot.

Mr. Lincoln once said: "If ever this free people, if this government itself, is ever entirely demoralized, it will come from this incessant man wriggle and struggle for office, which is but a way to live without work."

McKinley's inauguration day should have been regarded by every one of the millions of American laboring men as a day sacred to labor, a new Labor day. It means the dawn of a new era of prosperity to American labor, it is the forerunner of the time that will bring back to American workmen the work of the American people.

The country can again hold up its head. We have once more an American in the White House—a man who believes in American and in Americans, who is the friend of the American people and not a pliant tool of their shrewd foreign rivals; a statesman who puts American interests and American prosperity first and who will give Protection to American labor, to American industries and to the American home.

There never was, probably, better feeling personally between the members of an outgoing administration and the incoming one than there was last week at Washington. President Cleveland and the members of his Cabinet have shown the greatest courtesy toward the incoming President and the gentlemen of his Cabinet. The peculiar circumstances of the campaign last fall dulled partisanship to an extent never before witnessed in official circles.—Inter Ocean.

Cleveland's Last Day.
 Ex-Senator John J. Ingalls, who is writing letters from Washington to the New York Journal, thus characterizes President Cleveland's last day in office: "Had the American people no other cause for universal joy this alone would suffice."

"He went into power with much opposition. He goes out with none. The Nation shares the relief with which he professes to anticipate, liberation from the cares and burdens of state. If he has a hearty, cordial, sincere friend, advocate, and champion in either house of Congress he lurks privily in ambush and makes no announcement. Intrusted with plenary power by the people in 1893, the failure of his administration in every department stands confessed.

"His policy at home has been destructive, and abroad humiliating and ignominious. The degraded coalition by which he was elected made no promises that he has not violated, and gave no pledges that he has not betrayed. His tariff reform has afforded neither revenue for the treasury, protection for capital, nor wages for labor. His financial measures have restored neither confidence nor prosperity. Upon the pretext of replenishing the gold reserve the national debt has been increased, and bonds sold to favored syndicates to meet deficiencies in the ordinary expenses of the government.

"His diplomacy has been apologetic and vacillating to the verge of dishonor, saved only infamy by its grotesque and diverting imbecility. The Hawaiian episode would be a fitting finale in the prospectus of a comic opera. There has been no day in the last four years that has not witnessed some new triumph in Clevelandism. Some bank closed, some railroad in the hands of receivers, some merchant broken, some furnace extinguished, some mined and disabled veteran stigmatized and branded with dishonor, driven to the asylum or the grave. Boasting of his robust and incorruptible integrity, he retires with a vast fortune accumulated during the most disastrous period of his country's history, in which millions have been reduced from affluence to want and from poverty to beggary.

"History will record in incredulity that such an impostor could so long escape detection. He is the central figure of one epoch to which no lover of his country will ever revert without the blush of indignant shame at the destruction of its resources and the degradation of its dignity and honor; a period that has no parallel, except in the time of Walpole, described by Macaulay as the era of dwarfish talents and gigantic vices; the paradise of cold hearts and narrow minds; the golden age of the coward, the bigot, and the slave. He bequeaths to his successor falling resources, disordered finances, prostrated industries, and social discontent, which has already obliterated political frontiers and will compel the readjustment of parties to meet the conditions of the revolution upon which we have entered."

Attorney General's Salary.
 The legislature of this state, with the greatest unanimity, and without party division, have determined to amend the constitution of Michigan, by giving the attorney general a salary for the great and important services that he renders the state. The question now is, will the voters ratify and approve of that which their representatives have done?

It is safe to say that there has not been a legislature assembled at the capital in the last twenty-five years that would not, with an almost unanimous vote, have given the attorney general a larger salary than that which is now named in the proposed amendment, for the simple reason that they, being on the ground, ascertained the true facts of the case, and from those facts they are convinced that, not only does the interests of the state imperatively require the constant and best service of a most able attorney, but that by giving him a living salary, thousands of dollars would be saved to the state each year.

The question now is, as to whether the voters of this state can see what is for their interests and vote accordingly. The single proposition that is submitted to them is this: To compel the lawyer who becomes attorney general to take up his residence, during his term of office, at the seat of government and give all of his time and strength to the duties of his office, and as compensation for such services the state agrees to pay him the sum of $3,500, which is just one-half of that which each member of the supreme court receives $2,500 less than is paid each of the six judges of Wayne county, and $1,500 less than the prosecuting attorney of Wayne county and the corporation counsel of Detroit receive, respectively, for their services yearly. Or, if this is not done, then the voters must decide to let the attorney go as it has been for the last 40 years—the attorney general receiving no compensation to speak of, residing at his home attending, for the most part, to his own business, and making the great interests of the state subordinate thereto, or compelling him, without compensation, to give up his entire private practice through the conscientious purpose to discharge well the duties of his office. On this issue, therefore, there ought not to be a dissenting vote. More and more it is absolutely necessary that the interests of the people should be protected. Constant encroachments, undoubtedly, have been made upon their rights, by those who, finding the field unprotected, have entered in and taken possession thereof.

It is time, as Gov. Rich, in one of his messages to the legislature, said: "By paying the attorney general the insignificant sum of $800 per year (the same that is paid printers and messengers, while the state is losing enough each year to pay a reasonable salary to four attorney generals, through lack of paying a fair compensation to only 1. How long will the voters of Michigan "save at the snigot and wastant the bung-hole?"

Characterization of Harriet Beecher Stowe.
 During the time when this country was freely in the grip of slavery, and when the cotton states were pushing their territory to the west, and rapidly growing stronger the feeling of opposition in the north was very strong. But when the work of this wonderful writer, Harriet Beecher Stowe, was published in which she presented in the most interesting way the plain facts and terrors of slavery, this feeling was greatly intensified.

Mrs. Stowe, one of the greatest of American women, was born June 14, 1811 in the town of Litchfield, Conn. Her father, Lyman Beecher, was a famous minister of wide reputation. Her mother, Abigail, was the daughter of Harriet Beecher, who was also a well known minister for twenty years in Brooklyn, N. Y., and became noted all over the United States for his powerful work against slavery and for his loyalty to the Union during the war.

Mrs. Stowe's early school life was spent at Hartford, Conn. The school she attended was kept by her sister, Catherine; here she was a student for eight years from the age of 13 till she was 21. After this she removed with her father to Cincinnati, Ohio.

She also spent several years as a teacher in Hartford after she had finished her school life.

In 1830 she was married to Rev. Calvin E. Stowe then of Lane Seminary, Cincinnati, Ohio. But soon after this, Mr. Stowe received an appointment as professor in Bowdoin College, after which he immediately removed to Brunswick, Me., and it was here that Mrs. Stowe wrote the book which has since made her name so famous in all parts of the world.

This was Uncle Tom's Cabin. The object of this book was to present to the people of the North the true character and condition of slavery, and in this direction it obtained the success. For so affecting and pathetic was the tale of Old Uncle Tom, and yet at the same time that of Topsy and others was so amusing that the reader had all that he could do to keep from laughing and crying at the same time.

Uncle Tom's Cabin was not at first printed in book form but was given to the public in the form of serial dating from June 1851 to April 1852.

This was thought the National Era of Washington. "For the first time it received three hundred dollars which seemed to her, then, a good round sum, but when in the same year the story was given in book form, its sale was marvelous. Three hundred copies went off the first day. Within a year three hundred thousand copies, and in a remarkably short time the total sales had reached over half a million.

The great success and popularity which this story acquired may well be judged from the large number of translations which has been made from it. Within a year there had been two or three French versions and more than a dozen German ones. Besides this, it has also been translated into Danish, Swedish, Portuguese, Spanish, Italian, Welsh, Russian, Polish, Hungarian, Wendish, Wallon, Rumanian, Armenian, Arabic, Chinese and Japanese. In 1853, Mrs. Stowe, as proof of the truthfulness of the story published a key in which were shown the main facts upon which the story had been based.

Soon after the publication of Uncle Tom's Cabin, it began to be played upon the stage and even to the present day people in great places in witnessing when played by a good company. The first time that it was ever played was on a river steamer passing up and down the Ohio river.

Uncle Tom's Cabin was written under some disadvantages and against Mrs. Stowe's great deal of hard labor for she mailed, took care of her house, and prepared the walls with her own hands and wrote far into the night on her story.

Once when Mrs. Stowe had gone quite old, she was visited by an old sea-captain. "When I was young," said he respectfully, "I read with great delight of a certain man and I remember I liked you very much and I am happy to shake hands with you, Mrs. Stowe who wrote it." "I did not write it," answered the white-haired old lady. "You didn't?" he ejaculated in amazement. "Why did he then?" "I did not," she replied simply. "I merely did his dictation." "And you were captain as he walked thoughtfully away."

It has been nearly 50 years since Mrs. Stowe wrote her first book. The May Flower or sketches of the descendants of the pilgrims. Among others of her works are Dwight (a tale of the great inland swamp) this is thought by many to be an equal to Uncle Tom's Cabin. The Minister's Wooing (1850), The Pearl of Orr's Island (1852), Agnes of Sorrento (1853), Old Town Folks (1851), My Wife and I (1872), A Dog's Mission, Bible Heroines (1878), and Sunny Side at Florida Lands (1854).

Besides these she was a frequent contributor to different papers and magazines.

In April 1853 Mrs. Stowe, accompanied by her husband and brother, made a visit to Europe where she was received with the greatest of welcome; especially in England where she was presented with a golden lance by the Dutchess of Sutherland. The bracelet was so made as to represent the shackle of a slave, and on it was this inscription: "We trust it is a memorial for a chain that is soon to be broken." A dozen years later Mrs. Stowe had these words engraved on the chain: "Constitutional amendment forever abolishing slavery in the United States."

In the latter part of her life Mrs. Stowe became quite weak, constitutionally and physically and so she retired from public life to her quiet home in Hartford, Conn. where the best of care was also of less time than any other treatment. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by A. S. Putnam & Co.

Railroad Investigation.
 The House of Representatives of the State Legislature recently authorized the appointment of a special committee to investigate any violations of the laws of this State in regard to freight rates, etc., by the railroad companies doing business within its borders.

The committee is now organized and engaged in its work. It desires to ascertain whether the people of the state who have business with the railroad companies have any just cause of complaint or knowledge of any violations of law. It, therefore, invites through the press of the State any person who has knowledge of excessive rates, discrimination on the part of companies in favor of one firm, or of individuals as against another. Whether any communities are discriminated against by either making more favorable rates or granting special concessions to shippers of such community which are not granted to others. In fact the committee will be glad to hear from any person who has information which will enable it to intelligently recommend any remedial legislation, if any, which may be found necessary. Any response by those interested will be appreciated by the committee.

IN THE OTHER DAYS.

When hearts turn back to the other days, where youth ran on in hoarse ways...

Clearly before him doth arise a vision of his youth again...

A dream, perhaps, of a glorious land, where two night wanderers, hand in hand...

Wholly apart he the path that took; yet, as it dawned in her quiet soul...

For a fleeting glimpse of the other days, that flash through the Chicago Times' interstices.

THE MISTRESS OF THE MINE.

Copyright, 1913, by Robert Barr.

CHAPTER XXV. When Edith Longworth entered the office of George Westworth...

"Then you have heard from Canada?" said the young lady.

"Yes, a short message, but to the point," he handed her the cablegram...

"Oh, yes," said George, with the easy confidence of a man who doesn't at all know what he is talking about.

"Oh, I did that in my own right," said Edith, holding out her hand to him...

"What were your orders for the rest of the barrel?"

"I think it is a very good idea," said Edith, holding out her hand to him...

"Very well, then; it seems to me that the best thing you could do over here would be to get what orders can be obtained."

"When he comes over here you and he can have a consultation as to the best thing to be done after that."

"I don't know," said Edith, "but I think it is a very good idea."

"Then you will write to him about getting a fit and proper person to manage the mine?"

"Yes, I don't think there will be any necessity for doing so, but I will make sure that I imagine John will leave there until he sees everything to his satisfaction."

"I don't think there will be any necessity for doing so, but I will make sure that I imagine John will leave there until he sees everything to his satisfaction."

SONG OF THE PINES.

Dear forest, hark! From pine trees dark, A whisper comes to thee, Sweet, low and clear...

A countless train Takes up the strain Among the forest land: In hearts forlorn New life is born...

Thy hands how low 'neath winter's snow, Submission to the snow That smothered thee...

Thy heart how low 'neath winter's snow, Submission to the snow That smothered thee...

Drear forest, wait! The frozen gate Will soon be open to thee, Then through the pines And among the trees...

The warm south wind will sing, —Mary S. Hopkins, in Ladies' Work.

ROSE PEMBERTON'S TEST.

DEAR H, I wish to tell you how much I love you, and how much I love my home...

My physician said that my illness was dangerous, and that I must be careful...

It was just in the flush of her happiness that Rose met at a village hotel...

Mr. Severance launched at once to her rescue, and when he had brought her pale and exhausted, to the shore...

Rose offered but faint objections; and thus began the acquaintance which was destined to prove so important to both.

quilo good friends," she said. "And I think he will come back to you yet, Miss Stewart; indeed I am—no almost sure he will."

And rising quickly she murmured a few hurried words, then touching her cold lips lightly to Cary's forehead...

"Oh, why didn't I tell him 'yes' at once last night, when I loved him so!" he murmured in anguish of heart...

"You cannot mean, Rose, that you have deliberately intended to deceive me?" he cried. "Surely no woman under heaven could have a heart so hard and false as that!"

"I should like to ask you to do me one little favor," she said, calmly, not seeming to have noticed his bitter words...

"Of course he had no choice but to accept the trifling task, and with a cold, distant look, he took back the note from her hand and went his way..."

"I have sent him to her, and surely she can find some way to win him back again," she mused on the subject...

"Look up, my Rose, and let me tell you what has happened," he was saying sadly, yet with a deep undertone of joy in his laughing voice...

THE KING'S REPLY

GREEK RULER ANSWERS THE ULTIMATUM OF THE POWERS.

Ready to Withdraw His Fleet From Crete, but Not the Land Force—Action of the Foreign Governments Now Annually Awaited.

LONDON, March 9.—The Greek reply to the powers has been received here. The reply of Greece is conciliatory in tone, fully recognizing the important objects the powers have in view and offering to withdraw her fleet from Crete waters. Greece, however, insists on the fact that it is impossible for her to withdraw her troops from that island in view of the danger of further massacres. On the other hand, Greece offers to place her troops under the control of the powers in order that they may be available for the restoration of order.

Referring to the demands made to the effect that the Cretans prefer autonomy to annexation to Greece, the government of Greece suggests that the Cretans be allowed to choose their own government.

Autonomy Will Not Satisfy.

Greece, the reply adds, is convinced that autonomy will not satisfy Crete and that such a chapter in the history of Mussulman fanaticism will be added to the six periods of anarchy which have already devastated the island. Outlining the reply says it is possible, in view of the past, to advise the Cretans to lay down their arms, holding that this advice would not be obeyed, even if tendered.

The Greek government holds that order in Crete would be immediately restored if the powers would have confidence in the Greek troops and permit them to join in the work of pacifying the island.

It is understood that the foreign admirals have recommended the retention of the Cretan ports by one battalion of infantry from each of the powers.

The Fleet at Athens.

On the text of Greece's reply to the powers, becoming generally known throughout Athens the populace exhibited great excitement and on all sides there was heated discussion of consequences likely to follow. The warship Hydra has already been called from Crete waters, leaving only two small Greek vessels in that quarter. This is regarded as a virtual yielding to the powers so far as the fleet is concerned. The offer to place the Hydra, chairman of Crete under a foreign general indicates the readiness of the government to regard the forces as gendarmes to assist the foreigners in restoring order.

GREEKS MUST RETIRE.

Not the Slightest Cause That the Powers Will Accept George's Heirs.

LONDON, March 9.—It was learned in official circles during the afternoon that there is not the slightest chance that the powers will tolerate the presence of Greek troops in Crete. As soon as the powers have had time to exchange views on the subject, Greece will be notified of the measures which have been decided upon for the immediate enforcement of their decision. The negotiations will be conducted, it is known that Germany and Russia are pressing for immediate action.

In the house of commons Sir William Vernon Harcourt spoke in support of a proposition that the British forces should not be used against Greece before parliament had been consulted. Mr. Balfour, first lord of the treasury, declined to pledge the government to the course suggested by Sir William Harcourt, but said that the ministers wished parliament to feel that they were acting with a full sense of their responsibility and in behalf of Crete liberty and European peace.

Sir Charles Dilke invited Mr. Balfour to agree to make a statement on Thursday next with respect to the plans of the powers in view of the text of the Greek reply. To this Mr. Balfour answered that he did not think the negotiation would be far enough advanced to make such a statement practicable on Thursday.

FIGHTING HAS CEASED.

Innate at Akrotiri Moving Their Camp to Avoid Bombardment.

CANEA, March 10.—Fighting between the insurgents and the cordon of Turkish troops drawn around Akrotiri has ceased and the insurgents are now removing their camp with a view to avoiding a naval bombardment. It has been ascertained by foreign consuls at Candia that the report, formerly denied, of the massacre of 400 persons in villages in the Sitia district, is correct.

REBELS' VICTORIES.

St. Petersburg, March 10.—The government expresses its determination to adhere unwaveringly to its decision to push the execution of Greece to the farthest limit, if necessary, and if it seems likely that the other powers will display equal firmness. Besides the blockade of the island of Crete and of the Piræus, it is understood that the foreign admirals have decided to stop any Greek torpedo boat approaching the warship.

CAPTAIN HARTY'S SENTENCE.

Two Years Imprisonment and a Fine of $500.—Philadelphia, March 8.—Captain John D. Hart, owner of the filibuster Lusania, was sentenced in the United States district court at 10 o'clock a. m. to two years imprisonment, to pay a fine of $500, and the costs of prosecution.

TOPKA, Kan., March 10.—Governor Leedy has vetoed the railroad bill in a lengthy message of over 4,000 words. In his message Governor Leedy makes six objections to the railroad measure, which has passed both houses.

COMPACT AGREED ON.

SUSPECT A WIFE OF MURDER.

Defendant Believes Mrs. Schorn Is Responsible for Two Deaths.

DETROIT, March 8.—Nicholas Schorn, formerly a saloon keeper, and his stepson, Mattie, aged 10, were found dead in their home on Howard street, Mrs. Schorn asserted that the deaths were due to coal gas. The fact that Mrs. Schorn occupied the same room with her husband and that the son slept in another room at once caused doubt of the explanation, and as the woman's theory was otherwise contradicted by the fact of having Tuesday afternoon on suspicion of having caused the deaths.

She states that she was unable to arise in the morning, and that until noon she discovered that both he and her son were dead. The police have taken charge of the premises.

New Electric Railway System.

DETROIT, March 7.—The Detroit Motor Electric Railway Transit company, recently incorporated with a capital of $100,000, has let the contract to the City Engineering company of Cleveland for the construction of the motor railway between this and the neighboring cities. The contract calls for the completion of the system by September 1st, and the fact that the first section of the line is to be completed by the end of the month has been a source of surprise to the public.

Not Yet Settled for Justice.

Grand Jurors, Mich., March 8.—Judge George L. Taylor, of Jackson, the juror of the Pontiac for Justice of the peace, is now in jail, and will not accept the honorarium until he is released. He is now in jail in New York in connection with the case of the Chicago platform, which he believes in free silver, but the other jurors do not fall him. The election will have no bearing on national politics, but the state conventions injected the matter into the campaign.

Retirement Resisted.

DETROIT, March 8.—Nicholas Schorn, formerly a saloon keeper, and his stepson, Mattie, aged 10, were found dead in their home on Howard street, Mrs. Schorn asserted that the deaths were due to coal gas. The fact that Mrs. Schorn occupied the same room with her husband and that the son slept in another room at once caused doubt of the explanation, and as the woman's story was otherwise contradicted by the fact of having Tuesday afternoon on suspicion of having caused the deaths.

To the victors belong the spoils, and in this axiom is not lost sight of by the new village administration; the doctor will be taken care of when the appointments are made.

The case of the people vs. Ida Manson attracted much attention in Justice Thompson's court Tuesday and Wednesday. The judge's office was found to be entirely unable to accommodate the spectators so the court room was pressed into service. The testimony was very rich, and is unfit for publication. It was a jury trial, and resulted in an acquittal for Mrs. Manson. Geo. E. Pardee, prosecuting attorney, secured the services of F. H. Peck to assist him in the prosecution of the case, but the combined efforts of these gentlemen failed to secure a conviction. Messrs. Duntion and Loranger were the attorneys for the defendant.

It is wholly needless to say that Rose Bros' store is the best lighted store in town since the new method of illumination by means of gasoline and air, has been placed in their store. The new light is more satisfactory than electricity or gas. The illumination is softer, steadier and pleasing in effect. By the side of it, kerosene lamps appear to make a red, dim light and after comparing the two lights one instinctively praises the new system. Messrs. Guinan & McLeod are agents for the new idea in Manistique and placed the Rose machine in position last night. They did their work so well that the lights were a success from the first minute the jets were ignited. This system of illumination is cheaper than kerosene, and no doubt many other business men will follow the example of the enterprising firm of Rose Bros.
