Why the Moslem is Tolerated.

The daily papers are mentioning with increased frequency the details of Armenian massacres. The Moslem is becoming emboldened because of the diabolical attitude of the Powers toward Greece. The spectacle of christian guns being fired upon christians—all for the sake of Turkey, has made the "Sick Man" of Europe strong in his determination to annihilate the christians residing in his domain.

Although a young man, W. L. Loranger will make an ideal justice of the peace. He is by profession a lawyer, and for that reason would attend to all business coming before him in a highly satisfactory manner.

M. H. Quick will have no opposition and his election is doubly sure. That he would have been elected no matter what the opposing candidate would have been, it is needless to add.

A rather curious thing happened down in Virginia, a short time ago. A young man of a party that were going over one of the old battlefields, ran a snag in the sole of his foot, which, upon examination, proved to be the sharp point of a broken human rib, evidently that of a soldier killed in the battle.

Dr. McKesson's election to the clerkship will be well nigh unanimous. His opponent, Mr. Lewis, is a nice gentleman but he is making the race on the wrong ticket and for that reason merits the defeat he will receive.

Mr. Dana of the New York Sun suggests that the sound-money Democrats had better drop their opposition to the enactment of a protective tariff. He says that the Wilson tariff bill "recalls a disgraceful record of perfidy and stupidity which, for very shame, all Democrats would wish to forget, with the treachery and dishonor of Grover Cleveland at its head, and William L. Wilson as its chief and unblushing sponsor."

Carl Knuth will succeed himself as highway commissioner. The London Spectator says that if war broke out between Greece and Turkey there would be a financial crash "such as has not been seen since Black Friday." The debts owed by Turkey to Greek financiers would go where the woodbine twined, if Hellen and Ottoman once got to blows.

Uncle Sam's border line. Do any of our people, asks a writer in one of our exchanges, ever query how the dividing line between the United States and the Dominion of Canada is marked, and how travelers in those wild regions northwest of the great lakes ran tell when they step from the domains of Uncle Sam into those of Queen Victoria?

Accordingly the country in that vicinity was surveyed, and monuments were set up at even mile intervals, the British placing one between every two of ours. These extend from the Lake of the Woods to the Rocky Mountains.

The pillars are hollow iron castings, fitted over solid cedar posts, and well bolted through, and are sunk four feet in the ground. They are eight feet high, eight inches square at the base, and four at the top; and upon opposite sides, facing north and south, are the inscriptions cast in letters two inches high: "Convention of London" and "October 20; 1818." The pillars weigh two hundred and eighty-five pounds each, and were made at Detroit, Mich.

So you see Uncle Sam's border line is very distinctly marked all the way from the lakes to the summit of the Rocky Mountains.

CAPTAIN GLOSE

BY CAPTAIN CHARLES KING.

I.—CONTINUED.

Quitting New Orleans after a long day's sight-seeing with his friends, he had sought a berth in the Pullman and dozed soundly until about midnight...

With this cheerful outlook to greet him at three points of the compass, Lambert turned him to the north. There was a siding with a switch on each end...

"Beyond the car stood a dusty open square, bordered on three sides by dingy wooden structures, some of two stories, but most of them only one in height...

"I was sun-up and snapping cold when the brakeman shouted 'Tugalo,' and gratefully Lambert stepped from the train and felt the sun on his face...

It was sun-up and snapping cold when the brakeman shouted 'Tugalo,' and gratefully Lambert stepped from the train and felt the sun on his face...

fields where they flinck of cotton still cling to the brown soil withered stalks. In a coal of steam the train pulled away, leaving Lambert and his trunk to look after each other as best they might...

It was standing on a rude wooden platform whose shrunken planks left black, jagged seams between the hoist-up, open faces, now, at least, beautiful in their thick coat of sparkling white. Except where the footmarks of the train men and the white-washed, sun-baked, and where in two or three places the planks were gone entirely, this gleaming sheet stretched the length of the platform to the white bulk of his trunk stock on each of the eastern ends...

Under the shed were two couple of plows and some boxes. Out on the bare slope, midway between the track and the "snako" fence that paralleled it some twenty yards to the south, cotton bales of cotton were heaped, three of them partially covered by old war-worn pauldri and pouches, the others entirely exposed to the rain squawks...

"You don't belong 'round here, do you?" queried Tugalo next. "I don't," and the Lord knows I don't want to be 'round here. I'd give you and send you of getting myself and my trunk yonder, out to camp. Can you suggest any?"

"Well, you might walk. Don't reckon your trunk kin, though. Know the way?" "No." "You'll come the track down that a piece, and you'll come to a path along the side of the road."

"Thank you, my friend. You're the first live man I've found. I suppose you can send in for my trunk?" "Reckon you can. They've got 'em all 'wagons enough."

of the gateway farther along. A path of red brick led to the flight of steps, and Lambert followed by a meter or so behind. Dinky went up the stairs, and Lambert, thought of arousing the negro, but after one glance at the wild, red-crowned bird in the hand of the negro, he decided in favor of the snail.

A short walk brought him to the side of the white-washed, sun-baked, and where in two or three places the planks were gone entirely, this gleaming sheet stretched the length of the platform to the white bulk of his trunk stock on each of the eastern ends...

On two sides of the square, facing each other and perhaps 20 yards apart, stood two "A" tents of the same pattern, ten on a side. At the flank farther from the road and pitched so as to face the center of the inclosure was the guard-house, built by one or two of the smaller pattern. Nearest the road was a second wall tent, used, possibly, by the guard—though no guards were visible...

Standing at the edge of the winding road, and looking long and earnestly at the mist of the camp, Lambert paused a moment and studied the scene. Resting on his sword, still in its chamise cover, he saw the camp and stretched (thrown over his shoulder, the young officer became suddenly aware of a man watching the eavesdropper of a corporal who, sitting on a bench, was standing just beyond a clump of bushes behind and looking up at him with an expression on his countenance, "Dovey-bird's" face in white and impudently staring at him...

"You don't belong 'round here, do you?" queried Tugalo next. "I don't," and the Lord knows I don't want to be 'round here. I'd give you and send you of getting myself and my trunk yonder, out to camp. Can you suggest any?"

After the commune was crushed he was court-martialed at Versailles, being sentenced to death. He was spared because of his age and was banished to New Caledonia on March 19, 1874, and in the same boat with M. Rochefort and M. Pachel Groussier...

The little word "again" once threw a large assembly into his laughter. It was the first time he had been in New York since he came to the city. He was the only one of the speakers, Rev. Mr. R., had the misfortune, when he tried to take a seat, to miss his chair and come down from the platform...

Spring cleaning need not necessarily be made the drudgery it is if properly done. Paints, floors, hard walls and windows may all be cleaned without scrubbing, by rubbing over with strong solutions of lye soap and hot, soft water, then rinsed and dried. A room thus cleaned will be fresh and sweet, with an unimpaired color of strong colors or cleaning fluids.

The French Spy.
The principal topic of conversation seems to be the coming production of the French Spy, or siege of Constantine which is to take place on Wednesday April 7th. The romantic story of the French Spy is known to many of our readers.
The first act opens with a detachment of the famous Chasseur D'Afrique regiment on outpost duty while being a siege of Constantine. Marthe de Meris, a dashing girl, arrives in the camp disguised as a French officer. She succeeds in saving the life of her lover in the murderous assault of an Arab prisoner. She is entrusted with a mission of great danger, being sent into the Arab stronghold.
The second act introduces Asmet Bey's palace, and his oriental court, and in the last scene of the act the Moorish battlements and prison by moonlight. The act is closed by a terrific broadsword encounter between the spy and Mohammed which forms the most thrilling climax in the piece.
The third act is still laid in Constantine, introducing new costumes, and ends with the destruction of the fortress, and the triumph of the French arms. The characters follow:
Mohammed.
Ahmet Bey.
Col. De Courcy.
Capt. Diller.
Tony Bayard.
Scot Dubourg.
Mirad.
Capt. of the Detachment.
Marie Dubourg.
Madeline.

Annual Meeting of the Presbyterian Church.
The annual meeting of the Church of the Redeemer was held last evening. The reports from the clerk and treasurer, as well as those from the various branches of church work, revealed a very healthy state of affairs. The financial showing made was a happy surprise to the members of the church and congregation. Next week we will publish a detailed statement. Six members were added to the membership last evening making a total of thirty for the year.
The election of officers resulted as follows:
For Elders—W. J. Weber and John Mosher.
For trustees—Geo. Nicholson, Geo. Ross and John Mosher.
Rev. J. M. Rogers, the pastor has reasons for feeling proud of the continued yearly advancement the church has made under his pastorate during the past five years.
Notice is hereby given that I will sell my farm of 80 acres, described as follows, to wit: The east half of the northeast quarter of section twenty-four in Township 41 North of Range 18, west. It is situated on the M. S. P. & S. S. M. railroad, 1 1/2 miles west of Cooks station.
I have 35 acres cleared and enclosed with a good wire fence. My buildings consist of a good 1 1/2 story house, good barn, milk house, and other out buildings. A fine spring of living water is located near the house from which flows a creek that passes nearly through the center of the farm. The 45 acres underlaid is principally maple with some other timber.
I have a quantity of apple trees, current bushes and strawberries which are all bearing.
The Iron Cliffs wood camp is near my house and is quite a place, containing at least 200 people, and in my judgment it would be a fine location for a school.
On account of the health of my wife, I will sell the above described property.
Terms—One-half cash down; the balance on yearly payment at 6 percent interest.
I will receive sealed bids for the above described farm from this date up to 12 o'clock noon, April 27, 1897, when said bids will be opened. All bids are to be sent to D. W. Thompson, Manistique, Mich., and should be marked "Bids for Farm."
I reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

I would advise, in such a case, that you put yourself under an efficient trainer, such as Ayers or some other good Sarsaparilla or good blood and nerve tonic and now is the time to begin. Don't wait until you are ordered to the hospital. Several good and tried trainers make my store their headquarters.

Don't wait until you are ordered to the hospital. Several good and tried trainers make my store their headquarters.
Alarm the House.
Its time to get up. I have the kind of alarm you can depend upon to get off on time, but keep good time, and I warrant them for a year's time, and only ask you a dollar this time.

Do You Expect to Win in this Fight?
I mean the fight between poor and good health. If you have "that tired, discouraged feeling," poor health is getting the best of you. I would advise, in such a case, that you put yourself under an efficient trainer, such as Ayers or some other good Sarsaparilla or good blood and nerve tonic and now is the time to begin. Don't wait until you are ordered to the hospital. Several good and tried trainers make my store their headquarters.
