Decoration Day Services. The local G. A. R. Post has decided to observe Decoration day on Sunday instead of Monday.

The Post, W. R. C. and Sons of Veterans will meet at the Post's hall at 1:30 o'clock p. m. From thence these organizations will march to Cedar street where the procession will be formed under the supervision of the officer of the day, Dr. Barwick. The Old Fellows and Macebears will participate in the procession. The band will lead.

At the cemetery the exercises will be very simple. The program follows: Prayer.....Rev. Rooney, Commandant's Charge.....The Church Song.....By Choirs of the Churches, Lincoln's Address at Gettysburg.....Rev. J. M. Rogers, Music.....A. O. U. W. Band, Select Reading.....Prof. J. J. Hornberger, Decoration of Graves.....Benefaction.....Rev. Shank.

Pingree's Proclamation.

The great civil war was waged to maintain the union of states and the equality of man. It was won by the common people of our country. Our soldiers came from the fields and the farms, the mines and the mills, the forests and the shops. They were not drawn from favored exclusive classes; they were the toilers of the land. They followed the flag because they loved it and not because its triumph would bring them any special privilege. They enjoyed liberty themselves and fought to give liberty to others. The bravest and the best are dead. They are beyond the reach of honors. A grateful nation can only best their memory and cheer the hearts made desolate by their loss.

Our soldiers have taught us the lesson that in times of trouble it is to the least favored of our people that we must look for safety and protection. The army of the future, as from the past, must come from those who love liberty for its own sake—the unselfish workers of the country.

In honoring those who are gone, let us care for those who are to come, and in every way of our power add to the happiness of those who, in life's great struggle, are near the bottom of the ladder. Let us do what we can to build homes, to open up the avenues to knowledge, and to impress upon all the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of man.

Let us cheer the remaining veterans as they move forward, to their graves, they will soon be gone. In the last year they died at the rate of two in every hour; every thirty minutes recorded another soldier dead. In a little while there will be none left to tell the story; experience will have given us a history.

"Cover Them Over"

WILL GARLAND.
Cover them over with beautiful flowers;
Deck them with garlands, those "brothers of ours."
Laying silent, by night and by day,
Sleeping the years of their manhood away,
Years they had marked for the joys of the brave,
Years they must waste in the death of the grave,
All the bright laurels that promised to bloom
Fall to the earth when they went to the tomb,
Give them the most they have won in their life;
Give them the honors their merits forecast;
Give them the chaplets they won in the strife;
Give them the laurels that faded with their life.
Cover them over—yes, cover them over—
Parent and husband and brother and lover;
Cover them over these dead heroes of ours,
Cover them over with beautiful flowers.

How they have thought of the day of distress,
Glimpses you have flashed by the tender caress,
Faces that brightened at your softening cry,
Faces that streamed when they made you goodby;
Faces that glowed in the battle's red flame,
Faces that sought till the Death Angel came.
Cover them over—yes, cover them over—
Parent and husband and brother and lover,
Kiss in your heart these dead heroes of ours,
And cover them over with beautiful flowers.

How they have thought of the day of distress,
Glimpses you have flashed by the tender caress,
Faces that brightened at your softening cry,
Faces that streamed when they made you goodby;
Faces that glowed in the battle's red flame,
Faces that sought till the Death Angel came.

How they have thought of the day of distress,
Glimpses you have flashed by the tender caress,
Faces that brightened at your softening cry,
Faces that streamed when they made you goodby;
Faces that glowed in the battle's red flame,
Faces that sought till the Death Angel came.

How they have thought of the day of distress,
Glimpses you have flashed by the tender caress,
Faces that brightened at your softening cry,
Faces that streamed when they made you goodby;
Faces that glowed in the battle's red flame,
Faces that sought till the Death Angel came.

He Will Be Missed.

The late W. E. Clarke was a private factor in the organization of the United Army Post in this city and since his inception up to the time of his death a year ago, was identified with it in an official way. He always made much of Decoration Day, and the uniformly successful observances of the day in times past may, in great part, be attributed to him. He was lavish with his time and talents in planning for such occasions. That he is missed in the community it is needless for us to say. That the absence of his counsel is felt by his comrades in the Post is also apparent.

His resting place will not be forgotten by his comrades next Sunday. A few years hence not one of the living and named veterans who will participate in the exercises next Sunday will remain, but their last resting places will be ever remembered by patriotic liberty-loving people.

In this connection we think it proper to publish a tribute to the memory of Mr. Clarke, written by his life long friend, Major H. Duval.

"None but kindly, charitable memories are worthy to cluster around the tombstones of the noble." On Friday May 22 A. D. 1896, Major Wright E. Clarke, a notable resident of Manistique, since April 1880, attained to the ineffable. Many in this community realize to the fullest extent that they had lost a reliable and sincere friend for he by his expressed thought and notable actions and with which he had had relation to feel that was their friend and the record of his life while a resident here was proof positive that they were justified in the conclusion that by nature's stern edict they had lost in his "passing" one who had shown that he was ready and willing to help those who stood in need of help. He was ever ready to assist in any possible way—by counsel and advice—by service or purse—by cheerful words and beaming eye and merry, if even feeble attempts during his later days to shed rays of sunshine into the lives of passing friends and also to sojourners in our midst. In this regard it may truthfully be recalled that he was a hero; not because of the ordinary acceptance of the term but nevertheless a hero; in the absence and a comfort to those with whom he came in contact.

It is a matter of history that he was a veteran of the wars of his country during his lifetime; and also in the wars of the pure in mind against all forms of slander and intolerance. Those who know him best, and who held him in high regard and esteem, for he was a most companionable man—always pleasant and cheerful, hopeful, considerate of the feelings of others, thoughtful of giving the kind word of welcome and any information requested, and in fact all those little courtesies which truly indicate a thoughtful consideration for the welfare of others.

He was a public spirited citizen, writing and working in support of everything tending to the development and growth of this village—he was uncompromising with pen and tongue in his warfare against the reign of intolerance, vice and lawlessness which prevailed here at an early day and did not waver when the stand he took imperiled his life and caused the destruction of his property by incendiarism—yet through it all he seemed to entertain no resentment or personal bitterness. His fight was not personal—not against individuals but their methods. He was charitable and disposed to be friendly towards those whose practices he condemned (the most severely—he looked for and sought out the good in every man and often mentioned some good quality he discerned in those, others were deeming as totally bad.)

He almost always seemed to have on his hands some drunkard he was trying to reform, some unfortunate who was down on his luck—sick and broken, away from home, or some friendless and he faithfully picked up and helped to make a start.

He was loyal in support of his friends as many in this community can recall if they will, substantial aid and encouragement freely given when most needed in furthering their political or business projects, often without praise or expectation of fee or reward, more than appreciation upon the part of those assisted.

He was true to his friends, kind to his family, loyal to the interests of his country and particularly to those of his locality, faithful to the discharge of every duty, a moral, upright and upright citizen in this community during the many years he spent working for his welfare and whatever clouds may have shadowed his path under other skies and in other times and places, his life here was beyond reproach and an example worthy of all emulation—no one here ever doubted his sincerity and no one ever questioned his earnestness of purpose or his ability to help and assist his fellow-citizens.

The pen in his hand was endowed with most estimable qualities; justice impartial—fortitude unshaken—and his point with mercy unrestrained. It is now removed beyond the effect of our praise or censure. That he had faults and foibles, is but to realize that his mortality demonstrated that he had a human nature—no divine.

"After I am dead, think of me not as I was, but as you know I wished to be," was a request made by him to the writer shortly before his death.

The memories of his virtues linger in our remembrance and reflect his shining light beyond the portals of his tomb."

Lincoln at Gettysburg.

Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battle field of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who here gave up their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper to do this.

But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow, this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our power to add or detract. The world will little note or long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth.—Lincoln Oct-

Memorial Day.

Memorial Day! Who does not have Memorial days; and how eagerly and religiously they are kept, and all to keep in memory some special event. The name of the author of our National Memorial Day, will probably never be known; but in his breast there certainly was a heart full of gratitude—not only to those brave men who died on the battle-field and in prison-pens, but also to the bronzed veteran as he came marching home, after having served his country faithfully and saved the Nation from its dissolution.

Our government has never paid a cent too much in pensions—do not deal sparingly with the old soldier—they deserve many times what they receive—but while the pittance they receive as pensions, helps support them in their old age, yet the gratitude and homage they discover in us as we drop a wreath and a few tears on the graves of the heroes gone before, is also prized by them. Money satisfies some men for their deeds, and gratitude, others; but a liberal amount of both is due the men who faced death to preserve the Nation and save "Old Glory" from dishonor. As Americans we enjoy the proud distinction of being citizens of a government that never suffered defeat in any of its wars, which is due partly to the righteousness of our cause, but in a great measure to the bravery of the men who fought on both land and sea.

One thing we have noticed in the old veteran, and that is, he is almost invariably modest in regard to his achievements.

All honor to the old veteran! We always feel like taking off our hat to them whenever we meet them.

W. C. BRONSON.

Decoration Day.

Over one-half a life time has passed since the war began, which Decoration Day recalls to us in its impressive way. The time has already arrived, when not merely boys and girls, but youth and even mature men and women have no other experience in connection with Decoration Day, than that which now surrounds it.

To surviving soldiers this must be almost startling to fully consider. The scenes and experiences of the war are all vivid and real and all press to them, and those living in those trying days.

But to one-half the people now living, all that is history, and not experience. No man or woman, three years younger than the writer can have any such understanding of the war, as he and those of his age or older.

So, if at times the old soldiers are tempted to feel that Decoration Day has not as sacred and complete possession of the hearts of the present youth and crowding world as it deserves to have it, will, perhaps, help them to bear it, if they consider fully what thirty and six years have wrought.

Likewise let all middle aged, and younger people consider that they ought, therefore, the more faithfully to try to realize the full meaning of this day.

"Think of 110,070 killed in battle; 240,487 dying of disease; and 270,175 wounded, a total of 764,930 and consider that we enjoy a heritage bought by that price. Occupy Decoration Day with such thoughts, and it will be worthily and profitably spent."

"Four hundred thousand men,
The bravest, the best, the truest;
On battle field and in prison pen
Laid down for us and for good friends,
Laid down for us and for good friends,
Laid down for us and for good friends."

We should guard their graves with sacred vigilance. All the consecrated wealth and taste of the nation can add to their adornment and security is but a fitting tribute to the memory of her slain defenders.

Let no wreath foot tread ruddy on such hallowed grounds; let pleasant paths invite the coming and going of revered visitors and fond mourners; let no vandalism offend or neglect, no ravages of time, testify to the present or to the coming generations that we have forgotten as a people those of a free and undivided republic.

Other eyes grow dull and other hands slack and other hearts cold in the solemn trust, ours shall keep it well as long as the light and warmth of life remains to us.

Let us, then, gather round their sacred remains and grand the passionate months above them with the choicest flowers of springtime; let us raise over them the dear old flag they saved from dishonor; let us in this solemn presence renew our pledges to aid and assist those whom they have left among us as a sacred charge upon a Nation's gratitude—the soldiers' and sailors' widow and orphan.

Who the Sleeping Heroes Are.
The following veterans are buried in our local cemetery and their graves will be decorated next Sunday: W. E. Clarke, Co. B, 14th N. Y. Lewis Reno, Co. B, 5th N. Y. Amos E. Coon. John O'Brien. Theodore Trush. Geo. P. Fuller. Mr. Pillow. The following Sons of Veterans are also buried here: Frank Niles. Walter Smith.

Mrs. Dr. Dube arrived in the city from Montreal last evening.

David Hurst of Thompson, was a pleasant caller at this office yesterday. Mrs. Ed. Ashford left for England this morning. Her many friends wish her a pleasant voyage and visit and a safe return.

J. W. Knowles, manager of the grocery department, of the C. L. Co's store, visited friends at Corinne and Gould City Sunday last.

The Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church will give a Missionary tea at the residence of Mrs. Dr. Satter, on Friday evening of next week. Any one having flowers, to contribute for the decoration of the graves, are requested to leave them at G. A. R. Hall, before 10 o'clock Sunday, May 30th.

OFFICIAL PAPER.

Decoration Day.

Flowers, the delicately tinted creations of that master artist, God, are emblematic of pure love. It is fitting, then, that they should be utilized in decorating the lowly earthen homes of our heroic dead. We as American citizens possess a noble patriotism if we do not appreciate the services of those who placed health, wealth, and life itself upon the country's sacrificial altar in its hour of need when treason's waves threatened to shatter the structure of government.

Rapid indeed is the degeneracy of that country whose citizens forget the sacrifices of its heroic defenders; when paeans of praise in their honor are no longer heard about the hearth stone. It will be a sad epoch in our history when the memory of the heroes who bequeathed and preserved the priceless boon of liberty, becomes dormant. The present strength of this country among the nations of earth may be attributed to the unity and patriotism of its citizens.

Decoration day is being more and more generally observed as the years roll by. Whole communities march with the ever decreasing column of veterans on this spring day to the cities of the dead, there to show their love for and appreciation of the services of the sleeping heroes.

The perpetuation of this heritage—a free and undivided country, lies in the hands of present and future generations. The youth of today should be schooled in the history of the country, should be taught its national songs, and due reverence for the flag.

Do your duty as an American citizen next Sunday afternoon. March to the cemetery with the veterans. Assist in the singing of the national airs, and by your gifts of flowers make it possible for the committee in charge of the decoration to be prolifac.

BREVITIES.

No man is so worthless but that he can't get a good man to recommend him.

M. Blumenson of the Soo, was in the city this week looking after his extensive business interests.

There is a lurking suspicion in the minds of some people that the manufacturers of bicycles are heavy stockholders in arctic factories.

Munising has a third paper. It announces itself as the champion of the laboring class, and is published in a neighboring town and circulated at Manisting.

A marriage is soon to take place that will paralyze the natives. The couple have been twenty years making up their minds that they were intended for each other.

Rev. J. A. Broden left Monday evening for Negaunee, where he will visit with his family several days before starting for Sweden. Mr. Broden has promised to write a series of letters for "The Pioneer-Tribune" during his absence.

Hon. Peter White is in Washington endeavoring to persuade the government to again take possession of Ft. Mackinac. The park board believes that the maintenance to the fort would be a decided advantage of the island.

The first thing that Editor Holbein, of the Manistique Pioneer-Tribune, knows he will find himself in water. He has been putting on altogether too many frills to please brethren of the pen and pencil in the Upper Peninsula, and protests are being hurled at him from the four points of the compass. Mr. Holbein has seen fit to carpet his office floor with Brussels, has had its interior painted, and even talks of adding a sofa—think of it—to his office furnishings. The recalcitrant editor should be brought to a proper realization of the enormity of his offenses before he decides also to place soap and a clean towel in his sanctum.—Soo News.

Chas. Bridges has purchased a handsome piano through Mrs. Babcock's agency.

A man isn't very much of a man after all when he proves himself equal to the task of robbing a poor widow.

Julius Peterson is an expert angler. He recently caught a string of fine bass at Indian river dam before breakfast.

Al. Brnigan received a fine St. Bernard dog from Detroit this week. It is a beauty and weighs 180 pounds.—Soo News.

In answer to the question "can a politician be a christian?" John J. Ingalls replied: "All things are possible with God."

Ron Ross of Beaverton, Mich., is visiting his brothers Geo. F. Ross and Don Ross in this city. He will remain here several weeks.

A Munising man was too tired to help his wife clean house, but was able a few minutes later to start on a four mile walk to the fishing grounds.

Arthur Owen has a new wheel—the Waverly. The Waverly is one of the very best wheels manufactured and Mr. Owen has secured the local agency for same.

Most men who work are too busy to acquire a smart business air. About all a sure enough business man can acquire is stooped shoulders, gray hairs and a dislike for every loafer.

H. W. Clarke was twenty-six years old last Saturday and the significance of the day was impressed upon his mind by a surprise party that evening. Those present report a very enjoyable occasion.

Joseph Boncher has gone to Green Bay, where he will engage in the grocery business. A corner brick block has been erected for his convenience. Mrs. Boncher will join him within two weeks.

An exchange says that the hog lives only about twenty years. This leads a contemporary to observe that it is a consoling thought to know that the fellow who will take a newspaper for a number of years and then refuse to pay for it isn't long for this world.

Revs. Rogers, Shank and Rooney were the guests of the crew of the fishing tug Agitator Monday. The party experienced very rough weather. Mr. Rogers was the only one of the party that proved to be impervious to mal-de-mer. They undoubtedly rated that the Agitator was rightly named.

Mrs. Arthur Owen gave a five o'clock tea, on Friday last, in honor of her cousin Miss Jennie Smith. The hour from four to five was pleasantly spent "flower gissing". The guests were: Misses Smith, McLellan, Withernill, Gilbert, Benily, Rooney, Garner, Nettie Fuller, Edith Fuller and Lillian Quick; Messdames Edward Miller, Alta Fuller and Archie MacLaurin.

Messdames McDonald and Winkel, of Cooks, have been in the city the past week soliciting aid for the purpose of building a union chapel at Cooks. There are twelve or fifteen Protestant families in that town and they feel the need of a place of worship. The people of Manistique have donated liberally to the enterprise and the ministers of this city have promised to frequently visit the proposed congregation for the purpose of holding services.

In another column we publish a lengthy clipping from the Minneapolis Journal concerning the richness of the Canadian gold fields. The Sene River and Rainy Lake Co., of which A. C. Hubbell is vice president, has valuable claims in that region. The Randolph mine promises to be one of the best paying mines there. Mr. Hubbell has disposed of a large amount of stock and the first purchasers have more than doubled their money thus far. There is no doubt but that the stockholders of this company will realize handsomely on their investment.

A New Departure.
 C. P. Hill, manager of the Chicago Lumbering Co.'s store, is making an extraordinary offer to his customers. All persons becoming interested are given tickets. When purchases to the amount of $10 have been punched out on sums, the holder of same is entitled to receive a large crayon or water color portrait of himself or any member of his family. The picture is guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction, and Mr. Hill will cheerfully re-order for you if the work is not satisfactory. If you wish a frame and glass for same he will supply you at the marvelously low rate of $2.50. Avail yourself of the liberal prices quoted in the advertisements announcing the special sales at this store, and at the same time secure a first class portrait free of charge. Pictures are enlarged from portraits or tin-types.

The bicycle path to Indian Lake is an assured fact.

T. L. Baxter of the C. L. Co.'s office, was in Chicago last week.

Bishop Vertin, well known here, has gone to Europe on a vacation.

Messdames George Ort and Ed. C. Brown left for Chicago last Sunday morning.

Grand Marais bicyclists may ride the sidewalks but they must pay a tax of $1.00 for the privilege.

Capt. Sunderland, captain of the ill-fated Allegheny, is now the mate of a steam barge hauling from Hay City.

The case of Andrew McDonald vs. the Soo railroad company appears on the June docket of the Supreme court.

The twenty-third annual meeting of the Michigan Pioneer and Historical society will be held in the senate chamber at Lansing on Wednesday and Thursday June 23.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Ellis J. Munsey of Duluth, an eight pound son, Sunday May 23rd. Mrs. Munsey will be remembered by our citizens as formerly being Miss Hessi Kimball.

An ice cream and cake social will be held at the home of Mr. Enoch Pastman, Friday evening of next week. The proceeds will be applied to the purchase of an organ for the Marblehead Sunday School.

A. M. Lelby spent many years at Miles City Mont., and has a number of interesting Indian curios, among which are Indian scalp, arrows, bows, pipes of peace, a large soap stone bowl, etc. He also picked up a portion of a gun barrel from the battle field where the gallant Chasler and his little army were annihilated.

The Memorial sermon was preached by Rev. J. M. Shank at the Methodist church last Sunday evening. The G. A. R. Post, the W. R. C. and the Sons of Veterans marched to the church in a body. Revs. Rogers and Rooney assisted in the service. The M. E. choir, consisting of Misses Yttilu, Hamilton and Dandy, and Messrs. Strong and Tuttle led in the singing. The sermon was very well received.

Men who use the newspapers more or less will be interested in knowing about the rates charged by some of the publications in this country. The last page of Munsey's Magazine has been sold for one year to four advertisers, each of whom occupies a quarter of a page and pays $3,000, making a total of $24,000 for the page. One line in the Youth's Companion costs $5.00 a time, while a page in the Ladies Home Journal costs $1,000 an issue.

The Salaries Reduced.

The board of education has reduced the salaries of all teachers engaged for the grades below the eighth, for next season $5 a month. The principal of the west side school alone is exempt. While the reduction is slight and may not work any hardships, yet we are of the opinion that the idea is not a good one. Usually there is a lowering of the standard of schools in the same ratio. Good teachers will hesitate to apply for situations that carry with them a mere existence.

Good teachers cannot be paid too much and poor teachers are dear at any price.

Few people comprehend the vast responsibility resting with the teachers. The future of this country lies in plastic form in the hands of the teachers of today. Too much care cannot be exercised in the selection of the moulders of futurity. This competency is not gained in a day, but years of careful preparation and the expenditure of large sums of hard earned money are needful to secure that competency. The person of that ability deserves more than a mere pittance.

If you own very intricate machinery you would not think for one moment to employing an ignorant fellow to operate it because he would be willing to work for a mere pittance. On the other hand you would employ a person conversant with every feature of that machine, and would also be willing to pay him good wages for the exercise of this knowledge. A human life is more than a piece of mechanism, and ability to properly train, rather than the saving of a few paltry dollars should dictate the action of any school board.

They good wages and see to it that you secure the very best teachers obtainable if you wish to raise the standard of the schools. A teacher that has spent years in acquiring a classical education, and that possesses the ability to impart that knowledge, deserves a larger salary than an inexperienced grade teacher.

We admit that there was need of adjustment of salaries in the public school of this city but that adjustment did not call for the decreasing of wages. On the other hand one or two teachers should have been presented with a substantial increase.

Arrangements have been made with Hon. James J. Brown of Manistique, to deliver the address before the graduating class in this city this year. Mr. Brown is one of the most eloquent speakers in this state, and the board of education is fortunate in securing his services for this occasion. He is a leading attorney of the upper peninsula, and his services as an orator are always in demand. It is to be hoped that our citizens will turn out and give him an audience corresponding with anticipated superiority of his address. The writer has often heard Mr. Brown speak and cannot recommend his eloquence too highly.—Menominee Enterprise.

The Rainy Lake Gold Fields.
(Menominee Journal)

It is now pretty generally known that one of the greatest gold mines of the American continent is located half a mile from this city, and is known as the Little American Mine, says the Rainy Lake Journal of May 13. It was the first one discovered in the Rainy Lake Region, and development has proved it to be one of the best. On the 100-foot level a 65-foot body of ore is exposed that runs from $30 to $50 to the ton, which is something phenomenal in the gold mining line, and a recent article in the Journal demonstrated that the little 3-acre patch of vein is probably one of the richest to be found on the face of the globe. A very conservative estimate of the value of the ore body being $25,000,000, and there is no doubt but that it will go above that figure. There probably is only one other mine that approaches it in richness, and that is the original discovery at Cripple Creek, the Independence mine, owned by Mr. Stratton. The proving of the worth of this big property is due to the Lyle Mining Company, with O. A. Watzke, of West Superior, as general manager. The company holds the property under a 30-years lease from the Bettev Mining Company, of Minn. The 5-stamp mill of the property was started by yesterday morning and will run constantly under the care of John Sutherland and El. F. Russell, with James McGuire as engineer. The work of development goes rapidly forward. The main shaft is now completed to the 100-foot level and is being pushed down indefinitely. The quartz is very rich and fine in character.

About the same time that the Little American was discovered by George W. Davis and Charles Moore, the Big American, a few rods north of the town and the Little Canada were also discovered by them. In the division of a partnership deal the Big American fell to the lot of Davis and Moore secured, and still holds the Little Canada, a property on the Canadian side near Sand Point Island. The Big American passed from the hands of Davis to O. A. Watzke, and his associate about two years ago. It contains some things less than thirty acres, but is believed to be fully as good a property as the Little American. It has a big well mineralized vein from fifteen to twenty feet wide, full of which veins, and shows assays averaging about $14 free milling gold to the ton.

A report reaches the Journal that Dr. W. H. Gardner, the discoverer of the Little American, has sold 70 acres adjoining and on the same vein, for the enormous sum of $100,000.

Sam Harber, the hunter, recently from Cripple Creek, has sold five acres on the same vein as the Olive mine, on a Little Turtle lake. Mr. Harber says that when he has had much development as done at Cripple Creek, our mines will discount not only Cripple Creek, but also those of any known mining region in the Rocky mountains.

There are about three hundred men at work on mining claims in the neighborhood of Saw Hill lake.

Capt. Lalpaige, superintendent of the Olive mine, has sold Manager Ward of the Seine River and Rainy Lake Exploration company a two-third interest in the two pieces known HP 51 and HP 182, between Bad Vein and Little Turtle lake.

Mr. Ward intends to put these properties under development at once.

G. V. Armour, now engaged in developing 170 and 177E, adjoining the Foley mine, has found several very promising veins on the property, one of them being a contact vein over six feet wide, which is particularly promising.

The property discovered by Crawford and Kemper, of Koochiching, and known as Mining Location HP 301, on the north shore of Upper Manion lake, has been named the Jubilee mine by the new owners, Messrs. Kirby, Howard and Caldwell.

This is a great property, and under development is showing up wonderfully well.

J. D. McDonald is now developing K214, known as the Golden Goblin. The shaft is down fifty-two feet. The vein of the surface was a stratified one, but at a depth of forty-two feet the genuine solidified into a vein of five feet seven inches wide, with good walls. It pans well, and shows much free gold.

Dr. L. Ward manager of the Rainy Lake and Seine River Exploration and Development company, of Duluth, visits this town on business this week. His company are the purchasers of the rich Randolph mine near the Ferguson mine. One of the objects of his visit is to arrange for milling 200 tons of ore from the Randolph mine at the Lyle mill, at this city, a proposition readily accepted by Gen. Watzke, who is ready to do the best he can to advance the best interests of the gold country.

It is reported now that possibly the Iron Range railroad may build so far as Crane Lake next year. If that is the size of it, the road might just as well stay where it is, as those Crane Lake Narrows and Brule Narrows, nine miles east of Rainy Lake city, are a standing menace to navigation, and always will be so. What the Iron Range wants to do, and so do all other railroad enterprises which may come this way, is to place their terminals on the navigable waters of Rainy lake, and with the completion of the Port Frances lock, now assured.

Steps are now inaugurated by which Port Frances and the Rainy Lake gold fields will soon enjoy the presence and influence of a first-class newspaper, gotten up on metropolitan lines, and with a modern plant of steam presses, type-setting machines, a complete job office, all complete.

"Happy Jack," the original and famous long-pacer, whose wonderful performances last season astonished thousands of people by pacing full miles against time without rider, driver or assistance of any kind, will give two exhibitions at the spring meeting of the Bell County Agricultural Society, at Escanaba, June 2 and 3. "Happy Jack" has a record of 2:11, and always goes as advertised, making no failures, over mile or half mile tracks, whether they be enclosed or not. Were he driven by a skilled reinsman he could not possibly do his work better. He is simply taken to the scoring point and turned loose. He does the rest. After finishing the spectators seem to go wild with applause, and words of praise and admiration are numerous. This wonderful horse, only five years old, has shown his ability to be one of the candidates for the much-labeled-for 2:00 mark, having on several occasions gone quarters in 20 seconds, and half in 1:01. He has never been traced to sulky. Besides this exhibition, there will be three trotting events each day. All railroads leading to Escanaba make a rate of one and one-fifth fare for this occasion.

JOHN PATTERSON, Supt. The Randolph Mine. Development work to be begun at once.

Wilbur J. Merritt has gone to the Seine River country to take charge of the development work on the Randolph mine. Four or five crews will be employed, and operations pushed to the utmost. A shaft will be sunk not less than 100 feet. Several test pits will be put down, so as to better show up the veins on the surface. As soon as sufficient ore is out, a test run will be made at the Little American stamp mill.—Minneapolis Journal.

This mine is owned by the Company of which A. C. Hubbell is vice president.
