Mrs. Nordahl received a check for $2,000 this week from the head camp of Woodmen of the World, in full payment of a policy held by the late Mr. Nordahl in this organization. The claim was promptly paid.

One of our prominent bicyclists created quite a ripple of laughter a few days ago. She came out of the postoffice building and absent-mindedly took the first wheel in sight, thinking it to be hers. When she endeavored to mount she discovered that it was a full fledged masculine wheel.

Mr. Chas. Glendinning and family, and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Kitehen, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Clouse of Chatham, Ont., and Mrs. Arthur Rolla and daughters, Heather and Glen, left for Payette last Saturday where they are rusticing on the shore of the beautiful harbor that has made Payette noted.

We received a copy of Harvey's Steamship and railroad time table and guide, for the Soo and Mackinac Island. It is very compactly arranged and gives all the information concerning the movements of trains and boats that the traveler in this section could desire. The pamphlet was issued from the Soo Democrat presses and speaks very highly of the facilities of that office for doing first class work.

Some very handsome views taken about the famous Randolph property of the Seine River and Rainy Lake Exploration Co., are on exhibition at the office of County Treasurer Chappell. The views show the new steam boat, the dam, the cabins, and the mines. Also among the collection is a view showing the width of the vein striking the T. O. A. property, belonging to the same company. A quantity of this ore from the Randolph property was recently shipped to the U. S. Assayer and his report on same is that it runs more than $40 to the ton.

Mr. Duvall's valuable saddle horse is no more. While the groom, young Douquette, was riding him in the vicinity of the C. L. Hardware store Tuesday noon, a few worthless dogs sniped at the horse's legs and frightened him. He can carry the boy being unable to hold him. When he reached the barn near the furnace office his momentum carried him through the bars placed before the door. The impact broke one of his fore legs near the shoulder. The horse's suffering were ended by a well directed blow from a sledge hammer. The fate of Mr. Duvall's horse again proves the fact that Manistique has a hundred or more worthless curs that, by their snarling and barking, are able to destroy more property in a minute than a million of them are worth at the present market price. We understand that Mr. Duvall is contemplating suing the village for the value of the animal. He claims that the village is liable because the dogs in question were tagged.

William Mesereau of Portville, N. Y., is in the city.

Will Crowe returned from his Colorado trip Monday.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Lake, a son, Saturday last.

John McCanna and son Frank left for Green Bay last night.

R. N. Burwell, wife and children of Chicago, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Smith. Mr. Burwell is a brother of Mrs. Smith.

H. N. Anderson and son Julius, left for Milwaukee Wednesday morning. Julius will remain there, having decided to learn the trade of upholstery.

Len Rice and V. P. Chappel returned from Marquette Saturday evening, where they served as jurors in the U. S. court for nearly two weeks.

Curtis H. Harrison, wife and family of Chicago, are spending the heated time at Marquette. It will be remembered that Mr. Harrison is Mayor of Chicago.

We have endeavored to furnish our readers serial stories of merit during the past two or three years and find that feature of the paper a very popular among all classes. This week we commence the publication of a story that will highly interest all. "A Case in Equity," by Francis Lynde, will more than please you. Read the opening chapters, and if at any time you fail to receive your copy of the paper call at this office and your wants will be supplied free of charge.

Remember the social to be given in the room, next to Casper Bros. store this and tomorrow evenings, under the auspices of the Ladies of the Norwegian Lutheran church.

Herman Penny and James Hagy, down, were arrested this week charged with stealing a number of logs from the Chicago Lumbering Co.'s camp of which Jack Moran is foreman. Penny pleaded guilty in Justice Hill's court Wednesday morning. Hagy has decided to fight the case and will have his hearing Tuesday, Aug. 3rd.

A Soo cigar manufacturer was in the city placarding the town with announcements as to the superior merits of his cigars. We will express no opinion concerning the excellence of his cigars, but are safe in saying that our local manufacturers—Messrs. Will LeDue and Peter Zimmerman, manufacture goods equally as good. Always give home talent the preference. Were all the cigars smoked in Manistique manufactured here it would mean many thousands of dollars to Manistique. The labor employed in their manufacture would be fed and clothed by Manistique merchants.

Casper Bros. are advertising a special shoe sale this week. Very low prices are quoted.

The W. L. Co.'s Store is advertising a special neck-wear sale this week. Read weather bulletin No. 3.

Miss Pearl Dodge, who visited friends in this vicinity for some time returned to Chicago Wednesday morning.

Messrs. E. C. Brown and Guy S. Puller purchased bicycles through the agency of the C. L. Hardware store this week. Manager Letoy of this store sold more wheels this season than all the other agencies combined.

A man that persists in the hallucination that God will care for him and his family without any exertion upon his part does not deserve pity even if the corner of the house in which he lives sees fit to evict him for non payment of rent.

In another column we publish a statement of the condition of the Manistique Bank at the close of business July 23rd. The statement is a flattering one and speaks well for the conservatism of Cashier Clarke and the directors.

The Presbyterian Sunday School will hold its annual picnic at Indian Lake Wednesday of next week. Transportation will be provided for all, and those desiring to go must be at the church not later than 9 o'clock, on that morning.

From hotel "barkers" make mistakes in their deductions. We overheard a Mackinac Island porter say to a fellow porter last Saturday, "Watch me jolly that newly married couple." The "jollial" couple was from Manistique and had been married ten years. The people in question made a sad mistake when they left the children at home.

The excursion to Mackinac Island last week, given under the auspices of the Epworth League of the Methodist church, was an unbounded success. While the Leaguers did not realize as large a sum from the venture as they expected, yet they did very well, and all participating had an enjoyable time.

The Eugene Hart, which conveyed the excursionists to the Island, arrived in port early Friday evening with the Thompson contingent—about 49 persons. The boat left for the Island at 9 o'clock that evening with 270 persons aboard. The Island was reached at 4:30 o'clock Saturday morning. After lunch the excursionists started to the island. The bicyclists took advantage of the model roads of the island to visit every nook and corner of the historic spot, and to the surprise of some of the riders they had visited all points of interest before eight o'clock in the morning.

The boat was scheduled to leave the island at 4 o'clock, and while the island is one of the most beautiful spots on earth, yet few were not sorry when the boat took its course for Manistique. The state rooms were few in number, and more than one-half of the excursionists were unable to secure berths.

The trip was made without incident. The lake was as calm as a mill pond, and although all were thoroughly tired, they unanimously voted the excursion a great success. To Rev. Stuart G. Kline, Dr. Winn and others we must be attributed the success of the venture.

To the surprise of many, Attorney J. J. Brown, of the firm of Peters & Brown, very suddenly left the city Thursday and took all his office effects. Mr. Brown has evidently decided that law practice in this city is dead and he has left for a more lucrative field. It is reported that he intends to go to Detroit.—Nemnomines Democrat.

The Torbett Company so well and favorably known here can be secured for a concert the latter part of next month if the music loving citizens of Manistique purchase a sufficient number of tickets. Managers Gunnan & McLeod have to guarantee the company $175. If they are sufficiently encouraged they will secure the company for a date.

Miss Grace Ryan of Cooks, narrowly escaped a horrible death at Mackinac Island Saturday. She had accompanied the Epworth League excursion, and while riding about the Island on her bicycle, she unexpectedly came to the famous Arch Rock. With speed unchecked she sped toward a precipice 140 feet high. Reg Ruggles, seeing her peril caught her and threw her from the wheel. Had "Reg" not done so she would have been killed on the rocks below. Miss Ryan and her rescuer were slightly injured.

A night blooming cereus at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Hill, Monday evening, was admired and seen by many of our citizens. The plant had two well developed blossoms. The cereus is a member of the cactus family and does not bloom often after a long year.

Rev. Rogers of the Presbyterian church is preaching a series of sermons on the minor characters to be found in the New Testament. The initial sermon of the series was preached last Sunday evening. The subject was "The Magicians." Next Sunday evening he will take "Phileas" for his theme.

A sturdy Scot, laboring under the delusion that he could play a bag pipe, got aboard the excursion boat at Mackinac Island last Saturday and "treated" the excursionists to all-painful doses of music. To many the sound of a bagpipe is as musical as the monotonous tontom of a Digger Indian dance, and for that reason the Scot and his instrument were not appreciated. The crowd finally hooted him down and the pipe was silent the remainder of the trip.

Manistique Pioneer-Tribune

Published by Tribune Publishing Company. Geo. E. Holbein, Editor. FRIDAY, JULY 30, 1897.

Entered at the postoffice at Manistique, Mich., as second class mail matter.

The Democratic party has been committed since 1846 to what is to effect a general war on wealth and business.—New York Sun. Dem.

It is said Mr. Bryan is becoming financially prosperous through his efforts to convince the people that prosperity hasn't come and isn't going to come.—Kansas City Journal.

If Bryan was President now he would probably call Congress in special session to make a law for bribing Americans to go to Alaska and mine more gold.—Buffalo Express.

Senator Peffer actually says "The country generally hasn't been in as good shape for 10 years." The Populists will probably read him out of the party for this reasonable utterance.

Hope that a lot of Manistique losers will get the Klondyke fever and allow their impulses full play. Men that will not work, however, are not made of the stuff usually found in an explorer.

Governor Pingree telegraphed his protest relative to the tariff bill as passed by the senate, to President McKinley. Strange as it may seem the President signed the bill any way despite the frantic appeal of Michigan's bucolic guardian.

The Gladstone school board ignored a petition signed by nine-tenths of the citizens of the town, asking for the retention of Supl. McDonald, and the citizens are playing even by voting down every idea that the board advances. Two special elections for the purpose of voting bonds for needed improvements have been held the past month, and the result in both cases was very disheartening to the board.

No tariff law which has gone upon the statute books within the memory of the present generation has been as cordially approved and endorsed even by members of the party opposed to it as is the case with this one. The growth of the protective tariff sentiment in all parts of the country, coupled with the fact that the new law destroys the advantages given to the trusts under the Wilson law, make it an especially popular measure, while the advantages which it gives to the farmers, as well as the manufacturers, adds to its general acceptability.—Negaunee Herald.

It is given out that the miners of the upper peninsula have secured on Pingree, Wm. Coad and Thomas Roberts, of Ishpeming who let the big strike two years ago, had been promised jobs if Pingree was elected, but Coad got nothing but wind, and Roberts was given worse than nothing—an appointment on the board of arbitration, to which no pay was attached. On the other hand, Geo. A. Newell, who was opposed to the strikers, was reappointed commissioner of mineral statistics at $2,500 a year, and the miners are talking about evening things up with Pingree next year.—Free Press.

The Dingley tariff bill puts an end to prizes given with smoking tobacco. The paragraph in the bill relative to this is: "None of the packages of smoking tobacco and fine cut chewing tobacco and cigars prescribed by law shall be permitted to have packed in, or attached to, or connected with, any article or thing whatsoever, other than the manufacturer's wrappers and labels, the internal revenue stamp and the tobacco or cigarettes, respectively, put up thereon, on which tax is required to be paid under the internal revenue laws; nor shall there be affixed to, or branded, stamped, marked, written, or printed upon, said packages, or their contents, any promise or offer of, or any order or certificate for, any gift, prize, premium, payment or reward."

When asked whether he would call a special session of the legislature next January, Governor Pingree said: "I have been thinking that we had better wait for a new deal. There is no use of calling the gang together; they wouldn't do anything. Better wait until a new legislature has been elected, and perhaps something will be done."

The man who runs the local end of a county newspaper learns in due season that he must not expect even briefly expressed thanks for any of the pleasant things he may say to the people; but he knows to a moral certainty that the slightest error will call maledictions upon his head. He may give a man a complimentary notice hundreds of times and never hear of it, but let him just hint at some of the shortcomings of the same man and he will make a life-long enemy.

Sturgeon Bay, Wis., has a cannery that is putting up 28,000 cans every day during the season.

Wonder that the Populists do not accuse Mark Hanna for being the cause of the Klondyke gold craze.

President McKinley knows a good thing when he sees it. He signed the tariff bill four minutes after he received it.

A tariff that opens workshops and gives a million of men constant work is a kind of a rubber tax that the people will like.

The Detroit Tribune, from all appearances, doesn't like the new tariff bill any better than the average Democratic publication.

A benign smile overshadows "Uncle Sam's" countenance. The tariff bill is now a law, and cheering news from Alaskan gold fields are arriving daily.

Editor Griffley of the Negaunee Herald will receive the postoffice appointment. He is the only candidate in the field and deserves his contemplated good fortune.

The treasurer of Ohio stole $250,000 and was sentenced to 8 years in the penitentiary. He has thus clearly made over $30,000 a year. It is remarked that it is a good thing he didn't steal a horse or he might have been hung.

The Democratic newspapers, not profiting from the bitter experience of the past three years under the Wilson tariff law, are vigorously assailing the Dingley law which promises a return of the halcyon days of 1891-92 under the McKinley law.

One Maine hotel proprietor has solved the problem of how to keep his guests cool in hot weather. He hangs the thermometer on the veranda against the wall which conceals his ice chest, and this keeps it from registering as high as it otherwise would.

There is one coal mine in the United States that will not be affected by the strike. The mine is located in the Kansas state penitentiary and is worked by the prisoners. Were Debs and his associates compelled to work in this particular mine for a term of years very few people would besorgy.

The Logan-McCook feud has been reopened again. It has been proven that John A. Logan had no right to wear the uniform of a captain in the state militia of Ohio, at the coronation of the Car last winter. The desire for display oftentimes results in transforming a good citizen into a chump.

The Hawaiian question boiled down this time: Hawaii wishes to be taken under the wing of the American eagle. Japan opposes that, and wishes to gobble up Hawaii for herself. What will Japan do about it if the United States sees fit to accede to the wishes of the little Pacific republic.

Last fall the Populists said the gold reserve was too small—and it was. Free silver was urged to regain the loss. Now the gold reserve is too large and Republicans are to blame. Some old money system too; but the difference all ways rests with who is running the business interest of a firm or government.

When asked whether he would call a special session of the legislature next January, Governor Pingree said: "I have been thinking that we had better wait for a new deal. There is no use of calling the gang together; they wouldn't do anything. Better wait until a new legislature has been elected, and perhaps something will be done."

The man who runs the local end of a county newspaper learns in due season that he must not expect even briefly expressed thanks for any of the pleasant things he may say to the people; but he knows to a moral certainty that the slightest error will call maledictions upon his head. He may give a man a complimentary notice hundreds of times and never hear of it, but let him just hint at some of the shortcomings of the same man and he will make a life-long enemy.

The New York Sun insists that the Kansas wheat crop is a disastrous outrage against Bryanism.

Japan appears to be counting trouble and England appears to be desirous of assisting her as against the United States.

During the past year Uncle Sam has coined 21,263,761 silver dollars, over two and a half times as many as were coined in the twenty years before the crime of '73 was perpetrated.

Certain Points of Contrast. Just one hour intervened between the final passage of the tariff bill and its transformation, of evolution, rather, in a law. That was not a period of suspense, however.

On the contrary, it was perfectly well known that the Presidential sign manual would be affixed without delay, and with the utmost satisfaction. Very different was it from three years ago, when the Democratic tariff bill went from Congress to the President. Mr. Cleveland declined to sign or veto it, and it became law without his signature. His soul abhorred the measure. It was with difficulty that he kept him down in its loathsome presence. But the present bill is peculiarly satisfactory to the present chief magistrate. A sharper contrast on so large a scale could hardly be imagined.

No doubt there are some features of the new tariff which President McKinley would like to have changed; the same was true of the bill which bears his own name. That was indeed the McKinley bill, but a good many amendments had to be tacked on it deference to the views of others. No tariff schedule can be the work of one man. The new tariff comes nearer to meeting the personal views of William McKinley, there is reason to believe, than did the one of 1890.

Another point of contrast between tariff legislation in 1891 and 1897 is presented by the two Senates. Three years ago the Democrats had a clear majority of that body. How they came to have it, written up, would be one of the most disrespectful chapters in American political history, but that is apart from the contrast referred to. Although that Senate was Democratic it was responsible for the amendments so insufferably odious to the Democratic President of the period. On the other hand, the Senate, as now constituted, is not Republican, neither party having a clear majority, and yet that body worked along the lines of protection as straight as the House did. The Republicans did not try to become masters of the situation by securing, by hook or by crook, a majority in that body. It fell back upon the patriotism of its members, and the result justified that course. The vote stood 40 to 30, and if necessary several Senators, who either voted against the bill or not at all, would have voted for it, while three years ago it took the utmost strain of party fealty to secure enough Democratic votes for the tariff bill to pass it, even after all the concessions made.

Other points of contrast in Congress could be noted, but the greatest of all is that of popular expectation. By the summer of 1894 the American people had quite fully recovered from the free-trade craze of 1892, and would have felt quite put in the way of the repeal of the McKinley act, but there was no room for escape. The seed sown in 1892 had to be harvested. This is a government by the people and of the people. "Once made a degree and it must be carried out, until the people themselves enter a counter demand. But in the presence of this new tariff the people are hopeful. Even the Democrats of the country are glad it has passed. They share in the anticipation of better times, much as three years ago many of them shared in the anticipation that hard times would become harder. It is the difference in popular feeling toward the two tariffs which constitutes the great contrast between now and three years.—Inlet Ocean.

ONLY FOR CAUSE

President McKinley Promulgates an Important Civil Service Order.

Removals to Be Made Only on Written Charges and With Due Notice.

Service Also Extended to Include All Custom Houses—Exceptions.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—President McKinley has promulgated the following important amendments in the civil service rule 11:

Removals shall be made from any position subject to competitive examination except for just cause and upon written charges filed with the head of the department, or other appointing officer, of which the accused shall have full notice and an opportunity to make defense.

He has also amended rule 11, so as to include within the classified service the employees of all custom house offices without regard to the number of employees. Hitherto the classification extended custom officers where the number of employees was five or more. This order brings into the classified service 60 hitherto unclassified custom officers. The president has also amended rule VI, making exceptions to examinations, so as to read as follows:

Custom house service.—One cashier in each customs district, one chief or principal deputy or assistant collector in each customs district, one principal deputy collector at each sub-port or station, internal revenue service.—One employee in each internal revenue district, who shall act as cashier or chief deputy or assistant collector, as may be determined by the treasury department; one deputy collector in each internal revenue district where the number of employees in the office of the collector exceeds four; one deputy in each stamp (or branch) office.

Appointments to the positions named in this rule in the custom house service, and in the internal revenue service shall be subject to an examination to be prescribed by the secretary of the treasury, subject to approval by the commission, equal to the examination held by the commission for positions of like grades. Such examinations shall be conducted by the commission in accordance with its regulations.

More Reces Appointments.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Among the recess appointments made by the president are the following: Alvah Eastman, receiver of public moneys at St. Cloud, Minn.; Stephen J. Leonard, receiver of public moneys at Des Moines, Ia.; Gilbert B. Pray of Iowa, surveyor general of Alaska; John W. Duthoy of Washington, D. C., register of the land office at Sitka, Alaska; Rowell Shelly of Oregon, receiver of public moneys at Sitka, Alaska.

TORACCO IMPOSTERS PROTEST

Provision of the Dingley Bill Means a Loss of $500,000 to Them.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The Dingley law has caused a panic among importers of tobacco. It is declared that one paragraph in the new law, which compels importers to pay duty on tobacco at the weight it goes into of $600, has caused a loss of $500,000 to them. The weight of tobacco is greatly reduced during the bonded period by evaporation. When tobacco arrives from a long ocean voyage it is naturally and has absorbed a large percentage of moisture. This moisture evaporates in the warehouses.

WHERE NOT PREPARED.

Agricultural Implement Manufacturers Swamped With Orders.

CHICAGO, July 29.—The industrial world says: Agricultural implement manufacturers are rushing orders for material. The season is protracted and makers find stocks on hand insufficient. By way of illustration, a local manufacturer several days ago received an order for 1,000 wagons. They were not in his shops, and he found difficulty in securing iron to construct them. In various directions demand is improving.

President's Health Begins.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—President McKinley has left Washington for a second day's rest, and has left the city for six weeks. He was accompanied by Mrs. McKinley, Secretary and Mrs. Alger, Mr. Porter, Assistant Private Secretary, and Secretary and Clerk Cortelyou. They go direct from here to Lake Okauchish.

Four Were Fatally Injured.

CHICAGO, July 29.—A big fire in Michigan City, Ind., was brought under control at 1 p. m. One man lost his life in the flames, three others were fatally injured, several are missing. The central portion of the town was swept by the flames. The damage is estimated at $100,000.

Pioneer Iowa Banker Dead.

DUNDEE, Ia., July 28.—A. R. Loomis, president of the First National bank of Manistique, one of the largest land owners in Iowa and one of the oldest residents, is dead, aged 75. Bright disease.

THE BEGINNING OF THINGS. In the days before the new era, Alliceo was a dead-alive village with a single street climbing from the ferry landing on the river bank up to the weather-beaten courthouse on the first slope of John's mountain. It differed from other inland county seats in northern Alabama. It was on the side of a drowsiness and shabby inconsequence. Its reason for existence was purely geographical; the Chivasso valley divides Chilton county into two halves, and the ferry was a point accessible to the farmers in the valley and to the dwellers on John's mountain on the east and John's mountain on the west. In the sprinkling of weather-worn buildings strewn upon the hillside facing the river, but three were relatively notable. One was the courthouse, wooden, two-storied, with a classic porch of which tumbled a catenat of steps flowing down to the head of the street. Another was Catron's store, low and windowless in the rear and self-assertive and pretentious in front with a high forehead of weatherboarding. The third was the woolen awning over the sidewalk. There was the Mountain house, just across the street from Catron's. It had been a planter's mansion in the days of masters and slaves, and in falling from its better estate the square brick house had brought down some reminders of ancient statelyness and solidity. There was a suggestion of comfort in its veranda, roomy hallways and wide fireplaces, but the hint was lost in the general aspect of decay and neglect. In the Mountain house, together with everything else in the village, pointed toward a gradual and painless relapse into a condition of things old and new.

In the nature of things, it was 20 miles down the valley to Prattville, the nearest railway town, and about French's backwoods. It was 20 miles down the valley to Prattville, the nearest railway town, and about French's backwoods. It was 20 miles down the valley to Prattville, the nearest railway town, and about French's backwoods.

One evening when the sun had gone down behind John's mountain the newcomers took their accustomed places on the veranda, drawing their chairs together and lighting their after-supper cigars in full view of the open-air court in session under Catron's awning. One of them was a heavy-set man, a broad-shouldered fellow, bald but unrepentant. He had the manner of a quiet aggressiveness which belongs to physical superiority, but the bully in him was a force rather than an expression. Certain little idiosyncrasies, such as the habit of slipping his hands into his pockets and rocking his chair gently on two legs as he talked, suggested the lawyer cross-examining a witness, and the habit pointed truthfully to the gentleman's profession. Among his legal associates in New York, Lawyer Sharpless was respected as an able attorney and to whose loyalty his clients were never hampered by inconsequent questions of conscience. His companion was a wiry little man whose clothes were shabby with the wear of activity. He talked volubly, punctuating his speech with a lean finger laid in the palm of the opposite hand, and throwing one leg over the arm of his chair as he leaned to his subject. His calling was not so obvious, but that was because he had followed so many occupations that none of them had left its impress upon him. A petting lawyer, a land agent for a railway company, a broker in real estate, and lately a professional boomer, Mr. Jenkins Finch was a man of many parts, well qualified to bear his share in the enterprise in which he was at present associated with the New York lawyer.

Sharpless eyed the first link in his chain in silence before he nodded to the group across the veranda. "Gessers any hard at it again over there; you don't suppose they have heard anything, do you?" "Hardly," replied Finch; "they hasn't been anything they could get hold of, yet."

"No not unless Cates has been talking," he said. "He hasn't anything to talk about. All he knows is that we want to buy his land, and to these people" he rejoined the lawyer, jipping his chair to the cross-examination angle. "What do they say about the engineer's camp up in the Little Chivasso?" Finch chuckled. "They think it's an exploring party for a new railroad; essof brick and stone and lumber into stately buildings which stood spring up out of the red soil as by magic. And into the midst of the clamorous life of the community, and not so strange a sight to the ends of the earth, came the passenger-trains, and the country began to pulse with the life of the single street of the old town and to pulsate with the life of the new town. And they thought for a moment of the Mountain house or straggled for standing room round the temporary restaurants from which Mr. Finch dispensed bargains in real estate to the highest bidder.

"Good enough! Tell him he can't get a locomotive into Alliceo any way (no joke to please us now. Have a drink, and put some cigars in your pocket to smoke on the way.")

"The messenger left the room Sharpless leaned back in his chair and put his hands in his pockets. "The man who stood up to sing the other girls regarded her with a look of admiration which she thought was doubly dangerous, and she considered that the visitor had done well to sing more than her proper share of masculine attention to her."

"I don't like it a shame," said the first girl, vexedly. "She's captured all the boys here, and she's got them all in a groove, and if she sings any more I just know she does—we won't have a bit of fun to-night."

"I wonder who asked her to sing?" she fretted. "I must have been some one who knows all about her little tricks. For what she does in the club she's always getting into."

"I don't mean to make the experiment; I shall simply tell him that Cates has had this deed kicking about the house all these years without having it recorded."

"Oh, that's the scheme, is it?" said Sharpless, screwing up one eye until the creases in both seemed to peer out of the other. "Give me that deed a minute."

"He went to the fireplace, and taking a note of work, rubbed it into his hand until they were black and grimy. Then he folded and crumpled the deed until it had the requisite appearance of age and ill usage."

"You're an artist, Finch!" was the lawyer's admiring comment when the paper was handed back for inspection. "Nobody will ever suspect that it isn't so old as it claims to be. Wonder if I could find old Squire Pragma to record it?"

"Pragma," said the manager, washing the grime from his hands. "While you're hunting him I'll write to New York."

Sharpless came back in a few minutes and threw the forged deed on the table. "That's settled," he said. "When it's recorded we'll destroy it."

"Did Pragma object?" inquired Finch, looking up at his letter. "He balked a little at first, but I've given him a lot of business in the last two weeks, and a $20 fee was too much for him."

A week later Lawyer Sharpless called on Judge Wilkinson's office in the courthouse and asked for the Kilgrew-Cates deed. He took the paper that was given him and put it in his pocket without examining it further than to glance at the judge of probate's certificate of record. Being by this time burdened with many matters of greater importance, he did not think of it again until evening, when he took it out with some other papers in the office of the Mountain house. A cold rain had been falling during the day and a wood fire was blazing in the fireplace. Sharpless singled the deed out of the bunch of papers and held it between his fingers, ignoring the summons to supper which he had seen the crisp crinkles which up the chimney in a winking sheet of flame. Then he went to the dining-room and took his seat opposite Finch at the table reserved for their use.

One morning, not many weeks later, Alliceo was the last scene of a thing of the past. A many-handed demon of evil had suddenly invaded the peaceful valley, transforming it into a dusty battlefield where men labor pitted their strength against chaos. Snorting locomotives rumbled back and forth with trains of building material. Shouting teams guided the plows where they were marked the lines of new streets or loosened the soil in advance of battalions of laborers establishing the grade. Armies of workmen wrought miracles of handcraft, turning ugly heaps

CHANGES BROUGHT BY TIME. Not so noticeable when relatives see each other daily. "It might be a law that families should live in communities, and not so strange a sight to the ends of the earth, came the passenger-trains, and the country began to pulse with the life of the single street of the old town and to pulsate with the life of the new town. And they thought for a moment of the Mountain house or straggled for standing room round the temporary restaurants from which Mr. Finch dispensed bargains in real estate to the highest bidder."

FEMINE SHREWDNESS WON. How it happened that the pretty city student Talotta Hoisted Against Her. She was visiting in the city, and she was the prettiest girl in the room. When she stood up to sing the other girls regarded her with a look of admiration which she thought was doubly dangerous, and she considered that the visitor had done well to sing more than her proper share of masculine attention to her."

"I don't like it a shame," said the first girl, vexedly. "She's captured all the boys here, and she's got them all in a groove, and if she sings any more I just know she does—we won't have a bit of fun to-night."

The Pill that Will. "The pill that will," implies the pills that won't. Their name is Legion. The name of "the pill that will" is Ayer's Cathartic Pill. It is a pill that will cure constipation, biliousness, sick headache, and the other ills that result from torpid liver. Ayer's pills are not designed to spur the liver into momentary activity, leaving it in yet more incapable condition after the immediate effect is past. They are compounded with the purpose of toning up the entire system, removing the obstructing conditions, and putting the liver into proper relations with the rest of the organs for natural co-operation. The record of Ayer's Pills during the half century they have been in public use establishes their great and permanent value in all liver affections.

WITHOUT GRIP or GRIFE. To get a natural result, a remedy should always act without violence, smoothly, easily, delightfully. This is the action of Cabarets THE IDEAL LAXATIVE, because they strengthen the muscular action of the bowels and gently stimulate the kidneys and liver. They are purely vegetable, containing no poisonous or injurious ingredients, and are recommended and used by young and old. BELIEVE WHAT WE SAY! 10 cents prove their merit, and we ask that you BUY AND TRY A TO-NIGHT! ALL DRUGGISTS. 10c, 25c, 50c. "WHERE DIRT GATHERS, WASTE RULES." USE S.C.I.L.O.

FRIDAY, JULY 30, 1897.

John M. Valentine of Little Harbor, was in the city yesterday.

The "business-minded crowd" visited The Big Spring Tuesday.

James Naughtin and Miss Anne Gifford were married at the Catholic church Tuesday morning.

John Peterson's lecture last week has been the most successful of the kind in this town. He lectured from the Kian building Monday.

E. C. Brown and Chas. R. Orr, returning from St. Croix last evening where they bought shoes and typewriters, and incidentally caught a few fish.

State Bank Examiner Latta, made his annual inspection of the Manistique Bank, Monday of this week. He found everything in first-class condition.

The price on that boy's bicycle is $8 this week. If not sold before next Friday evening the price will be $7.00. The wheel is on exhibition at this office.

Mackinac Island hackmen do not have a very friendly feeling toward visitors who take their bicycles with them. There were 80 bicycles on the island from Manistique last Saturday, and that meant a loss of $80 to the jehus.

The Mackinac Island boulevard, from the village to the British Landing is such a delightful stretch of road that the average bicyclist riding over it, bears a spirit of hostility toward Governor Pingree, whose veto made it impossible to complete the road. The original plan was to build the road around the island.

The Epworth League has cleared $80.00 from the Mackinac excursion, beside hearing from one other agent who sold tickets in the country. Rev. John M. Shank has another excursion under advisement to the Beaver Islands. This is to be in August if at all, and will occupy one day only, affording to all a very pleasing and cheap day's outing.

Hans Juhl, the sage of Manistowick, was in the city Tuesday. He announced the fact while here that he had purchased the Fram, and many people in Manistique appeared glad of it. They evidently had in mind Nansen's boat built expressly for an extended Arctic trip, for their countenance fell when they learned that the Fram was not a boat, but the name of a Milwaukee newspaper.

Mrs. William Burns is canvassing the city for Dr. Talmage's new book "The Earth Girdled." Mr. Talmage is a pleasing writer, and the book in question is very interesting and instructive. In it a full description of every country visited by Mr. Talmage during his tour around the world is given. He also describes the social customs and religions of these countries. The book is profusely illustrated with photo engravings, and is handsomely bound. Examine the book closely when Mrs. Burns calls on you, and that you will purchase it goes without saying.

Prof. Olson's Benefit Concert. We are pleased to learn that a benefit concert will be tendered Prof. Otto Olson prior to his return to Europe. The orchestra has the makings in charge and an excellent program, including the best musical talent in the city, is being prepared. Mr. and Mrs. Kofner, Mrs. Dr. Patterson, Miss Maud Ruggles, Mrs. Owen, the orchestra, the Swedish Quartette Club, Prof. Olson, and possibly others, will participate. The concert will be given Friday evening of next week. The Professor has given liberally of his time and talents during his residence here for the edification of the public, and it is entirely fitting that he be tendered a benefit concert at this time. The concert deserves a very liberal patronage. Full particulars next week.

Men of business have to be selfish when it comes to business interests.

Mrs. Henry Van Gorder left for Detroit on the Buell Monday evening.

The Hart S. S. Co. is finding the excursion business very profitable this season.

The Musing News said last week that Dr. Malmgren of this city, was contemplating going to Alaska. The Doctor denies this and says that Manistique is good enough for him.

A man named McDonald was killed by the cars at Corinne last Friday evening. He was standing a side on the tracks of a passenger car and losing his hold fell under the wheels.

The Booth Packing Co. has decided to conduct fishing operations twelve months in the year, beginning with this winter. A portion of the freezer is being transformed into a net room, and other preparations are being made for the new deal.

E. C. Davidson of Rudyard, Chippewa county, was in the city this week. Mr. Davidson is a firm believer in the efficacy of Chippewa county soil for agricultural purposes and he and his agents have sold many farms to Schoolcraft county citizens within the past two years.

Rev. Tonnessen and family were visited from one of the "Fun Coffey homes" yesterday morning. Post Commissioner Hultroff found a home for him and the Reverend gentleman refused to move into it, and after that he was left severely alone. Late last night, just prior to the storm, he and the family were moved into the court house when they still remain. This particular case has a pathetic side to it. Tonnessen and his congregation "fell out" nearly two years ago. Since that time he has steadily refused to work and has been evicted several times for non-payment of rent. If he suffered alone would care, but a wife and four small children are suffering with him. A man that refuses to work either in his profession or at anything else because of some real or fancied grievance, deserves no pity, and he should be arrested for vagrancy or his sanity should be investigated. Manistique citizens are proverbially generous. When cruel fate makes it an impossibility for the bread winner of a family to earn a living the generous impulses of our people are not long dormant. There is not one redeeming feature in this particular case however. Mr. Tonnessen has frequently insulted people who have offered him and his family food, money and shelter. He insists that the Lord called him in the ministry and that He brought him to Manistique and he is going to see what He will do with him. We believe God to be the personification of love, and that he will provide for those who prove themselves worthy of such help by personal efforts. He has never promised to provide food and clothing for the loafer. It is high time for the authorities to take the matter in hand; either compel the gentleman in question to work or place him where he belongs. If he is disposed of, his family will be well provided for.

Romeo and Juliet.

A better satisfied audience than that which witnessed "Romeo and Juliet" at the Grand Opera house last night, is not often assembled in Petoskey, in fact anywhere. All who were fortunate enough to be present last night can surely attest that the Wm. Owen company is not composed of weak players.
