PRINCE HENRY THE MAN

Personal Characteristics of the Nation's Guest.

LIKES MEN BETTER THAN BOOKS.

How He Recommended a Stoker on the Kronprinz Wilhelm.

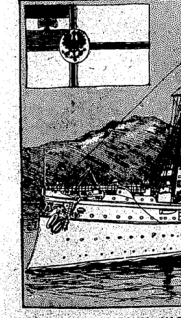

Prince Henry's tastes are stoker, and he has an old fashioned hatred of debt, says the New York World.

Emperor William's brother, who is now the guest of the United States, is fond of his pipe and a good cigar, but draws the line at cigarettes. The education of the prince has been both academic and practical. He can speak

PRINCE HENRY ON BOARD THE HOHENZOLLERN, readily in six languages besides his own—English, French, Spanish, Italian, Russian and Swedish. As an all round musician he has few equals among amateurs, and he is passionately fond of a stirring march.

As has always been the custom among the Hohenzollerns, he learned a trade in his youth. His brother, the emperor, chose to be a glazier, and the prince apprenticed himself to a watch-stain he was held up by bandits and robbed of $1000 in gold. The prince is a notoriously bad shot. When a young man, he shot a gamekeeper and wounded him so severely that the poor fellow was dead a pensioner ever since. When on a shooting expedition in Greece, he fell and accidentally discharged his gun full into the back of a Greek dignitary. A month afterward he did serious damage

He was a Turkish courier who had been appointed to attend him on a hunting trip. Queen Victoria once asked him at dinner what sport he had enjoyed in the hunting preserves during the day. "Well," said the prince, "I didn't kill any birds or any keepers, but I wounded quite a few."

The passengers on the Kronprinz Wilhelm vied with each other the other day in expressions of good will toward Prince Henry, says the New York Journal.

"One of the most democratic men we ever knew; nothing like what we thought a prince would be," was the unanimous opinion of his fellow passengers.

Here is the opinion of one of them: "The prince," said Benoit Lockwood, Jr., a lawyer of New York, "is very pleasant and democratic. Nevertheless he is a man who when he makes up his mind to do a thing will come pretty near doing it. After luncheon each day he visited the smoking room and chatted with the passengers and his aide as an instance of the kind of man he is: He was being shown around the ship by several officials. When down in the engine room, he stopped for a moment and looked intently at one of the stokers.

"Why, that man was on the battleship I went to China on; were you not, my man?" asked the prince. The man recognized him and was unable to say a word except nod his head. The prince was surprised to find that the man who takes a lively interest in all his workmen during the rest of the voyage.

"I had a short talk with the prince myself just before landing. The prince, who takes a lively interest in all his workmen during the rest of the voyage, asked what was done toward aiding the ordinary seaman in this country. He was surprised to find that we were so far behind in this respect and that our ordinary seamen received such little protection. I can safely say he is a democratic man, and over 1 met. He never talks about anything he knows nothing about, and when he does not know about anything he is not afraid to ask questions."

TAX BILL DEFEATED.

Minnesota House Reaches a Vote on Proposed New Law. St. Paul, Feb. 26.—The tax code was beaten in the house by a vote of 60 to 51. The final vote was made under circumstances most suspicious to the friends of the bill who, despite some unexpected reverses, were six votes short of the majority necessary to pass the measure. They have not entirely given up hope, however, and will make an effort to reconstitute the shattered measure by reconsideration, and the elimination of the Walker amendment.

Supreme Court Delivers Its Opinion in the Railroad Merger Case.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The United States supreme court has delivered its opinion in the case of the State of Minnesota versus the Northern Securities company in application of the state to file a bill of complaint in that court. The opinion was read by Justice Shiras and the motion for leave to file the bill was denied on the judgment that this court is without jurisdiction.

This is the case in which the State of Minnesota made an effort to secure the intervention of the supreme court to prevent the merging of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern Railroad companies by injunction. Justice Shiras summed up the judgment of the court as follows: "The Great Northern and the Northern Pacific Railway companies

ONE FIERCE ROUND.

Tillman and McLaurin Have a Fight in the Senate.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Senator Tillman and McLaurin of South Carolina shocked the dignified senate by engaging in a fist fight which lasted one round, during which Tillman landed one blow on McLaurin's forehead and McLaurin drew blood from Tillman's nose.

During a debate and while Mr. McLaurin was in a committee room Mr. Tillman said that his colleague had been bought with patronage to vote for the Paris treaty with Spain.

Mr. McLaurin heard of the remark and hurried to the senate. He charged the German embassy, Washington, a lie, whereupon the latter made a rash for his colleague, and there was a great mix-up until they were separated.

The senate went into executive session and adopted a resolution declaring the senators in contempt and referring their case to the committee on election and privileges.

Later each made a statement of apology, but they are still in contempt.

THE METEOR, EMPEROR WILLIAM'S NEW YACHT.

PRINCE HENRY ARRIVES.

Given a Rousing Welcome on Reaching New York.

New York, Feb. 24.—Prince Henry of Prussia, representative of his brother, the emperor of Germany, at the launching of the latter's American-built yacht, reached New York Sunday and was cordially welcomed as the hero of the nation. The land batteries that guard the outer harbor counted the first greeting in a bombardment of 21 guns, the fire of a special naval squadron assembled in his honor re-echoed the sentiment; there were verbal greetings from the representatives of President Roosevelt, the army, the navy, and the city of New York, and a great crowd lined the way into the city to see and cheer the sailor prince of Germany.

The great storm against which the Kron Prinz Wilhelm had struggled for days, and which had gazed the Atlantic coast in an armor of ice, had lost its force and resigned its way to warm sunning and cheery blue skies, so there were no regrets that the royal guest was a full day late for the entertainment prepared for him.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Prince Henry arrived in Washington at 10:15 a. m. and was met at the station by Secretary Hay and Long and escorted to the White House where he was received by the president and entertained for half an hour. The prince was then driven to the German embassy and a short time later President Roosevelt returned the prince's call, remaining at the embassy for about 10 minutes. In the afternoon the prince paid a brief visit to the senate and house, where he was enthusiastically received.

The event of the day was the dinner in the prince's honor at the White House in the evening. The affair was on an elaborate scale and brought together the most distinguished company. Immediately after Prince Henry returned to New York.

VON HOLLEBEN, THE GERMAN AMBASSADOR.

In honor of Prince Henry's arrival in the evening the portraits of Prince Henry and his wife, Princess Irene, have been introduced at Providence R. I., and promise to be widely used throughout the prince's visit.

Washington, Feb. 22.—About a year ago Mrs. James M. Bryan, a British woman, journeyed all the way from London to this city to find her husband, who she had been informed was a convict in the Michigan State Prison. Her plan was to take him back to the old country as soon as her husband was manumitted here. She was greatly disappointed to learn that he was serving a life sentence for a crime of which she was ignorant, and that she could not see him until he had served a term of years.

On Monday, Feb. 21, Mrs. Bryan, who was of a despondent frame, was transferred to the local asylum for the insane. She had been in the asylum for several days, and her condition was such that she was unable to care for herself.
