

WANT GAME BOARD

Numerous Recommendations Made by U. P. Sportsmen.

AT MARQUETTE MEETING

Desire Modified to Work in Harmony With State Association.

The meeting of the Upper Peninsula Sportsmen's association held at Marquette this week, while not largely attended, accomplished much toward the securing of some game legislation, and as its recommendations confirm to the sentiment of the state association it is believed that the game laws will be revised in accordance with the wishes of the men interested in conserving game and fish.

A resolution was passed favoring the appointment of a non-partisan non-salaried game, or fish and game commission, that shall have jurisdiction over all matters that appertain to the protection of fish and to the protection and propagation of game.

The recommendations of the meeting follow:

A gun license of $1 per year for shot guns and rifles of 22-caliber or under, for killing small game.

A license of $1.50 per year to hunt deer. No license to be issued earlier than five days before the opening of the season. License issued only to county, in which applicant resides and to applicant in person.

Red license of $1 per year to all residents, fifteen years of age or over; non-resident red license, $5, non-resident being permitted to take into a legal day's catch.

Deer license to permit killing of two carcases of which must be a deer with horns.

All deer carcases shipped to be taken into by the holders of the license to its destination. Holder of non-resident license to be permitted to ship two deer under such regulation.

Legislation permitting shipping of deer in parts.

Favoring provisions endorsed by the North American Fish and Game Protective association relative to a deer breeder's law. This would provide that hand reared game and game reared in a wild state by breeders (including farmers) should be distinguished by law so that such preserved game can be legally sold under state regulation, except during the breeding season.

Protection for the Northern hare from March 1, to Oct. 1.

All foreigners who have not taken their first citizenship papers to be under the same regulations as non-residents as far as game and deer and licenses are concerned.

All proceeds from the game, rat and deer licenses to be used toward the protection of game and the enforcement of the same laws.

Open season for rainbow trout to be from June 15 to Sept. 15.

Removal of protection on beaver and skunks.

The closed season on Mongolian pheasant, prairie chickens, French pheasants, wild turkeys, hazel grouse, wild cats from $3 to $6 and making the bounty on lynx the same.

Prohibiting the shooting of water fowl in the spring.

Open season on beaver otter mink and muskrats from Dec. 1 to March 31, and open season on fisher, martin, raven and fox from Nov. 1 to March 31, provided that a license is imposed on all trappers.

The rights of state in protection and propagation of commercial fish in international waters, including whitefish, lake trout, walleye pike, herring and sturgeon, be surrendered to the federal government, under the terms of the international agreement between the United States and Canada.

That the legislature make a regular annual appropriation of $50,000 for the propagation of fish in the state.

SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Frank Revett Struck by Pine Tree, Spine Broken and Internal Injuries Received.

Mr. Frank Revett, an employee in John Rose's camp, a jobber for Hudson & Schmitz, and located five miles from Trout Lake, was struck by a falling tree Tuesday morning at nine o'clock, and sustained a fractured spine and arm as well as internal injuries. He was brought to Manistique hospital on the evening train, for treatment but little if any hope was entertained for his recovery.

Revett is twenty-two years of age, and came to the upper peninsula from Johannesburg, Mich., where his father and brothers reside.

IN HER HONOR

Numerous Parties and Showers Given Miss Bowen This Week.

IS A GENERAL FAVORITE

Included in the List was a "Staggered Dinner" Saturday Evening.

That Miss Bernice Bowen is a general favorite was proven this week by the many many parties and showers given here.

On Thursday afternoon of last week a party was given by the ladies in the Elks temple, at which time she was presented with articles of china.

On Friday evening she was given a miscellaneous shower by Mrs. E. H. Jewell.

On Saturday evening she was the guest of honor at a function given by Miss Edna Tucker which was, as one of the young ladies expressed it, a "glorious staggered dinner."

At its conclusion the prospective bride was given a "joy ride" on a hand slot, and judging from the screams and merry peeps of laughter the joy was equally distributed between the bride and her tormentors.

On Monday afternoon, Mrs. M. W. Orr entertained a number of married ladies in her honor. The decorations were pink and white. The bride's table was beautiful in pink satin candle shades with pink ribbon draped from the chandeliers to the table; and pink and white mats. The guest prize was a set of handsome dollies.

On Tuesday another shower was given by Mrs. W. F. Kofauffer. The decorations were in green and red. On the tables were wide red satin ribbons, holly wreaths and red mats. The articles presented were all dainty hand embroidered accessories for the trousseau. These were brought in late in the evening in a clothes basket by a "wonderwoman" who called for Miss Bowen and announced that she had brought her "wonder" home.

The "wonder" proved to be Mr. Kofauffer, and his handsome collar, made of puffs and braids, was the envy of all the ladies present. It made the hit of the evening.

Lost, a bull dog, mouse colored with white face. Answer to the name of Beauty. Reward will be paid. Edward Malthaupt.

When one sees the unalloyed happiness and the sparkling eyes of the little ones as they see Santa Claus for the first time, one feels tempted to go gunning for the sour-faced pessimists who are endeavoring to prove there is no such personage as Santa Claus. Monday brought forth a genuine old time blizzard. The snow situation is really becoming serious in the woods as its depth is materially interfering with logging operations. If the usual thaw does not come in the first of January there will be little doing in the forests. Last week a number of workmen were discharged on account of the depth of the snow. Much snow has fallen on "last" time. The "oldest inhabitant" says that this winter, thus far, reminds him of the kind we used to have in the sixties.

How Old People May Prolong Their Lives

At advanced age the organs act more slowly than in youth. Circulation is less perfect, blood thin and watery, appetite listless, and digestion weak. This condition leaves the system open to obnoxious such as Coughs, Colds, Grippe, Pneumonia, Rheumatism, etc.

VINOL is the greatest health tonic and body builder we know of for old people, as it supplies the very elements needed to rebuild wasting tissue and replace weakness with strength.

NAME IS THE PROOF
A case is recorded in Albany, N. Y., of a woman who felt that she was dying due to age and was down to the last gasp. She had been suffering from weakness and loss of strength and had been told by the doctor that she would not live long. She had been told that she would not live long. She had been told that she would not live long.

We ask every aged person in this neighborhood to try a bottle of VINOL with the understanding that we will return their money if it does not prove beneficial.

THE JOLLY JACK TAR BY HARRY SYPHER

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association

O H, the jolly Jack Tar! he is far away from home,
Aboard the nation's battleship upon the briny foam.
At Christmas time and all times he sails the seven seas;
He quaffs the fragrant spices in every foreign breeze,
And always when the day comes round that comes but once in a year
He sighs to quaff the fragrance of his fireside cheer.

BUT still the jolly Jack Tar upon the billowed brace,
For all his lonesome feeling, is never heard to whine.
From somewhere east of Suez, he gets his Christmas greens
And decks himself all over with a wealth of woodland scenes.
With gorgeous glee he decks himself upon the hammock deck,
With evergreens upon his heart and holly round his neck.

THOUGH jolly Jack has not a chance to hang the mistletoe
And kiss the girl he left behind in case she gets below,
He hitches up his trousers and he whistles through his teeth
And goes and makes the mascot goat a jolly holly wreath,
And then he sings a chantey song, with loud guffaws between,
About the merry mascot and the wearing of the green.

THEN down within his mess room the jolly Jack Tar sits
And culls a Christmas dinner from the galley and the kits,
And Billygoat and Nannygoat are both remembered, too—
They get a bounteous feast themselves when jolly Jack is through.
For, though they have no spinach, they devour the Christmas greens—
The holly and the shrubbery and all the woodland scenes.

Take Care!
Remember that when your kidneys are affected, your life is in danger. M. Meyer, Rochester, N. Y. says: "My trouble started with a sharp shooting pain over my back which grew worse daily. I felt sluggish and tired, my kidney action was irregular and infrequent. I started using Foley Kidney Pills. Each dose seemed to put new life and strength into me, and now I am completely cured and feel better and stronger than for years."

Notice to Taxpayers.
The various assessment rolls of the wards of the city of Manistique are now in my possession and I will be at my office in my place of business on Oak street, on and after December 1st, 1910 for the purpose of collecting and receipting for taxes. City Treasurer.

OFFICIAL COUNTY AND CITY PAPER

FRIDAY, DEC. 23, 1910

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Merry, Merry Christmas. May you have many of them.

Make a poor child's heart thro with joy tomorrow by playing the role of Santa Claus.

Don't squander your money on fool presents. Real friends do not care for costly things.

One has truly said that the American newspaper is undoubtedly today a greater power than at any time in the history of the fourth estate.

Cheer up you haven't lost much. The Sultan of Turkey had four million dollars and several hundred wives taken from him all in a bunch.

The official election figures given out this week by the state board of canvassers shows that Osborn received 45,033 over Homan. Young's majority over Werline was 8,761.

The Pioneer-Tribune has a faithful lot of employees and who turn out an immense amount of work in a week. They will be given an opportunity of observing Christmas tomorrow.

"Progression" in commenting on Carnegie's recent gift and his determination to die poor, says: "If he wants to go broke why doesn't he engage in the newspaper business."

The telegraph says that the Mexicans endeavored to steal an ecologist who was traveling alone. We've heard considerable to the discredit of the Mexicans, but we talk on this story. What would the Mexicans want with an ecologist?

The Newberry News issued a handsome Christmas and Industrial edition last week, which was a credit to Editor Frets and his office. The Lake Superior Iron & Chemical Co. was given an especially good write-up in this edition.

Bescanah is the largest city in the upper peninsula. Its population is now 28,394 as compared to 5,649 in 1900. This office has repeatedly written to the census bureau for the figures on Manistique but this far has been unable to secure data. However it is safe to add that Manistique will not wrest the honor Escanaba at present holds as being the largest city in the peninsula.

The sheriffs of the state have combined and will ask the legislature to repeal the law limiting them to holding two terms. They rightly believe that a good official should be definitely retained by the people if he is able to secure the proper number of votes. A poor sheriff cannot secure more than one term under the present conditions for the voters attend to that. A good sheriff should be retained as long as he makes good, and it is doing such an official as well as the people an injustice to engage in experiments every four years.

This paper inaugurated the idea of issuing a distinctively Christmas edition in the upper peninsula ten or more years ago, and issued such an edition each year since that time. This year we decided to omit this feature, but from the many inquiries from the public we feel that the edition is missed and we doubt if the edition will be omitted again in future years. It requires an endless amount of work to issue a twenty-eight page edition with a force of five, and the net financial return from such an edition are usually not satisfactory.

The Detroit Times is forging to the fore as the most dependable newspaper in the state's metropolis. The Journal and the Free Press are not the power they once were in Michigan journalism. They appear to have the faculty of "getting in wrong" on every proposition and lack the virile backbone that distinguished them in the older days when newspaper men, not theatrical promoters, were at the helm. The covert attacks upon Osborn in which he is blamed in part, for the sudden demise of Tom Navin is a fair sample of what they are doing. The Times always has an opinion and is not afraid to express it. Such papers are a power in a city and state, and there are more of them today than at any previous time in the history of the country, but Detroit has not kept pace with the country in this respect.

In remitting a subscription account Mr. A. S. Duncan of Germfask added a few words of appreciation of the paper that are more than appreciated by the editor. He said: "We like the Pioneer-Tribune. Seldom have we found in its pages anything that we wished otherwise, and that was not in any case concerning matters of importance. Yes, we like the Pioneer-Tribune for its sound treatment of questions political, private, public, social, moral and religious." Editors rarely receive commendation of the sort and for that reason give frank expression from Mr. Duncan touches us deeply if a typographical error appears, a mix-up in make-up, or a misstatement of facts notwithstanding the information upon which the statement was made, came from a reliable source, the editor usually bears it. The fact that he has issued a creditable sheet is but rarely brought to his attention. Mr. Duncan's letter is therefore very highly prized.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Remember those who are not as fortunate as you are.

Kissing under the mistletoe is more unpopular than ever now since the war on germs is being so actively prosecuted.

Some men "come back." For instance Cook returned to the United States Wednesday after a year in retirement.

A Lansing dispatch in the Chicago newspapers Tuesday morning, announced, Roosevelt and Osborn for 1912." Osborn and Beveridge would sound better.

I. S. Phibbey in remitting $3 on subscription account, from Eckert, Colo. says: "Please credit this to my subscription account for a good old Pioneer-Tribune."

This is the time of the year when married men, dropping in home rather suddenly, finds the rocking chair on the go, but so unoccupying it; while the wife in another room is concealing an unlaughed Christmas gift.

To many, perhaps it is a disappointment that Christmas comes on Sunday this year. When it occurs it is the lawful rule to give employees the day before or the day after as a day of rest. This office will observe Saturday the 24th.

Even the Democrats are beginning to get excited at the prospect and are now talking "go slow on the tariff." They don't care to stand for a lower tariff, they know that panic and ruin will be the result. They just used the tariff talk as an excuse to get in power.

Just a suggestion: Suppose we quit talking about the stampstamps and the insurgents and begin to talk about Republicans. What if some men did bolt? That cannot be helped now. But things can be arranged that there will be no disposition to bolt in the future, and it should be so arranged before the 1912 election too.

Every minister should ask from his pulpit every Sunday: "Does anyone know of a sick brother or sister or anyone in distress that we can help?" And then if names are given, the pastor or those appointed by him, should see that the helpless and needy one are cared for. This is the sort of organized worship, that counts more than prayers or sermons.

The labor unions as well as the liquor interests are opposed to Hon. Perry F. Powers, who is slated by Osborn, as his state labor commissioner. We doubt if Michigan's next governor, cares a rap about this sort of opposition if he is convinced that Powers is the right man for the place. Knowing Powers as well as we do it is doubtful if a better selection could be made for the place in question.

As this item is written one of the Ann Arbor ferries is leaving the local harbor. Before us lies the Evening Wagon in which appears an item that one of the ferries of the line, had all sorts of trouble in reaching Mesomine, and that the Green Bay route has now been abandoned for the winter. Boats will continue to make Manistique as usual. An all the year harbor is an asset that should help to make Manistique a bigger town.

The year 1911, over whose threshold we will pass within a week, will in some respects be a critical one for Manistique. It cannot be denied but that the lumbering industry which has been the main stay of the city since it was founded is on the wane. Two, or three mills that have gone out of commission in recent years, and the time is not many years in distance when the surviving mill will not be the wholesale employer of labor that it is at the present time. This true that several new industries have been secured in recent years, and that these are enlarging the plants, and constantly giving employment to more persons as the years come and go. Notwithstanding this, no one will deny the fact that there is a crying need for new industries. The prosperity and growth of any city depends almost wholly upon the number of persons that are given employment within its confines. Big pyramids make prosperity. In this connection, the editor of the Pioneer-Tribune does not desire to be classed as a pessimist concerning the future of Manistique, but believes it will constantly grow larger, more prosperous and better as the years come and go. But it is up to the residents of the town to accelerate that growth. An effort should be made during the coming year to secure new industries and if the business men's association was rejuvenated no doubt something in that direction would be accomplished.

Is a well known fact that many people pay to have their homes free from disease germs, the source of which is the lavatory and bathroom, you must have absolutely sanitary fittings in the rooms. Modern plumbing has reduced to nil the chance of breeding dangerous disease germs such as typhoid, typhus, etc. where approved apparatus is installed. The cost of installation is not too large, the both, inconvenience, etc. practically insignificant.

THE CHRISTMAS SHOPPER

ROBERT DONNELL

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

THIS is for you only. If women read it they may laugh at the man, thereby causing family disturbance. It is about Christmas shopping, in which women are interested, but it is about men's shopping, not women's. So men have been written concerning the matter of women buying Christmas presents for men that it seems high time to show the other side of the shield. Among all the domestic tragedies incident to this life none is so poignantly pitiful as the annual tragedy that takes place when Mr. Man goes forth unprepared to purchase Yuletide gifts for his indolgent, but wife, widow or maiden.

"What would she like, I wonder?" sighs Mr. Man. The sigh is long drawn out, like the longest exhalation of the first kick. By the time he enters the big, bewildering department store which he has passed by a thousand times without entering and which he to him an unknown wonderland, he quite sighing and begins seeing. The first things he sees are the scores of pretty salesgirls, including some not so pretty. But of course not one of them is half so pretty as his wife or widow for whom he is going to buy that—well, now, what? He begins to sigh again more.

"Ah, a box of gloves—the very thing! And yet what size does she wear? Suppose he got her three sizes too large for her dainty hands! Awful!

Then he goes to the other extreme—extremely—and resolves to get her a pair of those beautiful satin slippers which she wears on a counter. But, again, what size? If he should make the sad error of getting a single size too large she would stare sarcastically at him and inquire:

"Do you think I'm from Chicago?"

Gloves and slippers are marked "a-boo" in his calculations. Well and good. Tier hands and feet are disappointed or, now, how about her head? Why, a set of those back and side combs—the very thing! All women like pretty combs, of course. But why be his particular woman is sensitive and she might imagine that he imagined that she doesn't keep her hair tidy.

"Oh, I suppose she knows when she needs hair combs!" sighs Mr. Man,

"Where are the Christmas presents?" asks the man.

"We don't sell presents in this store," replies Miss Scholastic. "Go to a music house."

"What's all this nonsense?" I'm looking for a lady's home-dress, a sort of wrapper."

"Oh, you mean a kimono?" giggles the girl, passing on the package to the next girl, who is likewise someone.

"Didn't I say kimono, miss?" the man says a little testily.

"But there, take elevator," says the giggly girl.

"The latest and dearest thing is the French dannel kimono," says the chief saleswoman, whereupon she shows Mr. Man a life and dainty creature in pink tulle.

"It looks no more like a Japanese kimono than a caterpillar looks like a butterfly."

"But—how can I know this will fit?" asks Mr. Man.

"About how large is your—"

"The lady?" asks the saleswoman.

"Oh, about your size—about your size—about your size—"

Miss Scholastic swells. She is quite plump to begin with.

"You're mistaken about her being my size," she says somewhat scornfully, secure in her possession of the fact that she weighed 145 on the panny side machine only this morning.

Mr. Man is embarrassed and helplessly.

"I'll be back in a few minutes," he says, having definitely determined to get a French dannel kimono.

Mr. Man goes down the first floor where the giggly girls abound. For ten minutes he wanders round through-rooms, passing on and on to the suburbs. Now and then he passes and eyes one girl in particular. That is the floorwalker, who has been eyeing Mr. Man, steps up and asks:

"Anything in particular, sir?"

"Yes, I'm looking for a girl about the size of my—"

"I mean you're trying to buy a Christmas present for that young lady with the lily white blond hair is just about the size?"

"Well, what of it?" asks the floorwalker.

"I want to borrow that girl for about five minutes."

"The lady you do?"

"Yes, to go opposite to the French kimono section and try on a kimono for me—I mean for my—the other lady, sir?"

The floorwalker sees also he thinks Christmas is coming, so of her own free will.

"Miss Lou?" says the floorwalker to the idleness to Miss Lou, accompanies the gentleman up to the third floor—lady's counter, see count and tries on French kimono after French kimono. At last one fits snug.

Mr. Man pays the price. The dannel garment is too good up and sent to his address, and his troubles are over. But are they? There's a sequel. It happens that Mr. Man is laying this kimono for the dearest girl in the world, who is to become his own and true wife on New Year's day. She has confessed to him that she believes in useful Christmas gifts, something nice to wear for in store, and he has just bought for a new French dannel kimono. Very well. It is three days till Christmas eve. That very night when he reaches home Mr. Man finds this note left by messenger:

MR. MAN—I'm over between as I will send your ring and the box containing the dearest kimono. I was in (Robinson & Abraham's) this afternoon and now your kimono is on the table in the store, then I saw you sporting with a beautiful creature. (I don't put my soul down so you couldn't receive size me I heard you say "that thing when you went on the elevator, her I went up in the next car and watched you say a beautiful French kimono for that beautiful girl!" It is necessary for me to say more.)

ADVICE:

So you see she is a tragedy in Mrs. Man's Christmas shopping.

But did this really happen?

Ask the man.

BY STACY B. BANHAM

It was Christmas eve. Home, in the town of St. Louis, Missouri, was anxiously waiting for the coming of the night. The streets were brilliantly lit with the lights of the city, and the shops were open late in the evening. Home, a young man of twenty, was sitting at his desk in the office of his father, Mr. Home, who was a well-known business man in the city.

Home's eyes were fixed on the clock. It was ten o'clock. He had been waiting for the young man who had written to him from New York. The letter had come this afternoon. It was a letter of introduction to a young man named Harry. Home had written to Harry, and Harry had written to Home. Home had written to Harry, and Harry had written to Home. Home had written to Harry, and Harry had written to Home.

"Who is it?" Home asked, looking up from his desk. "It is the young man who wrote to me from New York," Harry said. "He is a very interesting man. He has a great deal to say about the future of the country." Home looked at Harry with interest.

A WHITE CHRISTMAS.

A white Christmas is one that is not often remembered. The snow falls in a soft, steady shower, and the world is covered in a blanket of white. The children are excited, and the old folks are content. It is a time of peace and joy, and the heart is glad. The snow falls in a soft, steady shower, and the world is covered in a blanket of white. Supreme Court Work.

How the Justice Prepares Decisions and Dissenting Opinions.

On Saturday evening each Justice receives from the chief Justice an envelope containing the names of the cases the chief Justice has decided to allow the Justice to write the opinion on, and the chief Justice also notifies the Justices of the hour of the conference on Monday morning. The conferences are usually held in the conference room under locked doors. The chief Justice presides, and cases are taken up or postponed according to the wishes of the Justices or their request to consider them. Each Justice is furnished with a lock book, in which he may enter the details of a case, the record of the vote on conference and the final disposition. On a case being assigned by the chief Justice to a Justice to write the opinion, the Justice writes the opinion which must be agreeable to the Justices. If not the dissatisfied Justice will promptly write a dissenting opinion. In some instances four of the Justices have each written a dissenting opinion, but the usual custom is for one to write it and announce that the others concur with it. The Justices familiarize themselves with its records and briefs, and when one is directed to write the opinion he makes a study of the case, long or short, as a few days or months. The opinion is dictated, and after being typewritten it is corrected, hotbed down and revised; another copy is then made, further revised and sent to the printer. In order that the conferees who set the type may not know the decision of the case the foreman sets up the last few lines of the opinion, locks them in a safe, and after the opinion is set up he adds them to it, takes two proofs and forwards them under lock and key to the Justice. It is again read and revised and sometimes completely altered and returned to the printer, corrected by the Justice and also revised next to the Justice.

If the opinion is now satisfactory to the Justice a copy is mailed to each member of the court. These are returned to the Justice with the actions of the Justices, and the opinion is revised or changed, if need be, to conform to their views. If there be a dissenting opinion the Justice writing the majority opinion holds it until the dissent is completed.

Then on some Monday, the court being in session, the Justice announces an opinion in the case, giving its number and title, and then proceeds to read it at length to the dozen people who may be present. If there be a dissenting opinion the Justice writing the dissent reads it and announces the names of the Justices who concur with him. Afterward the official reporter of the court sends a verified copy of the opinion to the publishers of the United States supreme court reports, and the case finally becomes one of thousands in the law libraries to be read and reread if of moment or to be forgotten if mere detail.—Independent.

A Dual in Undress.

Undress, though not dead, was dying out even in Rogers' time and was still in vogue very recently. The poet's biographer tells the quaint story of how Mr. Humphrey Howard, a surgeon, when called out under his appearance in the field stark naked. The usual had challenge asked him what he meant. "I know," said Howard, "that if any part of the clothing is carried into the hole by a gunshot wound to the chest, and the doctor I have met you there." His antagonist declared that nothing a man in particular would be quite ridiculous, and accordingly they parted without further discussion.

Definite.

"Madam"—a census taker was speaking to her who answered his knock—"How many children over six and under twenty-one years of age have you?"

"Let me see," she reflected; "I cannot see. Wasn't that her two over six and two under twenty-one?"—Every body's.

RESIDENCE BURNED.

James Schram's Home Destroyed by Fire Last Night.
The residence of James Schram in Lakeside addition, was destroyed by fire last night and how the fire started is unknown but it is thought that it had its inception in the kitchen. Mr. Schram who was alone in the house was sleeping upstairs. At 11:30 he was awakened by the odor of smoke. When he reached the lower floor the fire was burning fiercely and he experienced difficulty in getting out of doors. The fire department was called but the fire had gained such headway that the house was destroyed. All that Mr. Schram saved was the clothing he wore. He carried insurance amounting $500.

WILL PRACTICE AGAIN.

Dr. Sells has Decided to Engage in Veterinary Surgery.

Dr. D. E. Sells, who has for several years devoted most of his time to the mercantile business has decided to again enter actively in the profession of veterinary surgery, and his card appears in another column. Dr. Sells is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary college, the Toronto Dental school, and is also a member of the Michigan Pharmaceutical association, and has had twenty years experience in the profession. He became a resident of Manistigue fourteen years ago, and quickly proved his worth as a practitioner. His many friends are pleased to learn of his decision and it is safe to say that he will quickly secure a lucrative practice.

He understands the work and has been very successful in the treatment of cases brought to his attention.

IMPORTANT DEAL PENDING.

Vast Tract in Schoolcraft County May Change Hands.

The rumor that the Upper Peninsula Land Co. which owns nearly 250,000 acres of land in Schoolcraft, is about to dispose of its holdings to a St. Paul concern is again rife and it looks now as though there might be something to it for representatives of both companies have been in the city during the past week for the purpose of examining the records at the court house relative to the lands in question. The Western Security Co. which is the tentative purchaser would if the deal is made advertise this section and induce settlers to locate here. Much of the land would make desirable farming land. It is hoped that the deal may be consummated for it would mean much to Schoolcraft county.

Few People Comprehend Fact That Agriculture Thrives Above the Straits.

JUDGE AREA FROM TRAINS

Money Should be Expended in Exploring The Agricultural Possibilities of this Section.

The average resident of the state of Michigan south of the straits knows little, if any more, of the agricultural possibilities of the upper peninsula than they know of similar possibilities in Palestine or Australia. It is true that many of our brethren below the straits, visit us at various times especially during the hunting season, and they of necessity judge the section from what they can see from the car windows or from their hunting lodge, which of necessity, is pitched in the wilderness. The ground is usually covered with snow when they hunt, therefore they know nothing of the nature of the soil.

Railroads pass along lines of the least resistance, and no one can accurately judge the territory through which he is passing by a casual glance out of the window of a rapidly moving train. Many of the railroads of Ohio and Pennsylvania pass through sections of territory from which if one were to judge the entire state from what came under his observation, would lead him to believe that they couldn't raise pasturage for goats in these states. The same can be said of the railroads in the upper peninsula. Only at rare intervals can improved farming lands be seen from the trains traveling the peninsula. The careless tourist loses sight of the fact that practically every county in the peninsula has vast areas of land under cultivation, and that fruit and vegetables as well as grains can be and are being grown here, that are the envy of all that happen to see them.

What the peninsula needs is a publicity bureau. Every county should plan to send an exhibit to expositions and fairs far and near. This will cost money, but it would be money well expended. Michigan is not gaining in population rapidly as it should, and the state is wholly responsible for this state of affairs. In the lower peninsula the lower peninsula is totally ignorant of conditions above the straits, and secondly we of the upper peninsula have been woefully modest in exploring our section. Rev. J. M. Rogers, during an address at the Presbyterian church on home missions stated that when ever he would speak of agriculture in the upper peninsula, to a resident of the lower peninsula, a smile of incredulity at once spread over the countenance of his listener. They think that the peninsula is composed of swamps, and thence smile that would take a prize if pitted against the Sahara desert, and that its inhabitants consist of deer, bear, beavers, Indians and a few hardy but misquitted pioneers. It is up to us to conclusively prove to these doubting Thomases, that the peninsula is the garden spot of the state, that we have the soil, the climate and the rainfall to mature the finest fruits, vegetables, grains and grasses that any state or section is capable of raising and that this is being accomplished every year.

The newspapers of the peninsula have been constantly loyal to the agricultural possibilities of the peninsula, but the time is ripe when displays should be sent to Chicago and other centers instead of being piled up on tables in editorial rooms, where few outside of the local residents have an opportunity of seeing them.

Schoolcraft county needs a fair association, even if bonds have to be voted to make the venture a success. This association should send its best samples to other sections, and with literature and other methods, divert immigration into this veritable Garden of Eden.

FARM RESIDENCE DESTROYED

Len Byers Loses Home By Fire Last Tuesday Morning.

The home of Len Byers in upper Hiawatha township, with practically its entire contents was destroyed by fire at an early hour Tuesday morning. The family was eating breakfast at the time when a neighbor, William Conroy, who was passing the house notified them of the fact that the upper portion of the house was on fire. The flames spread with such rapidity that little of value was saved. The loss will exceed $1000 as the house has recently been built. He had $500 insurance on the property, but it is believed that the insurance had expired. This is the fifth time that Mr. Byers has lost his home since his marriage. He was at work at the South Side Lumber Co's plant at the time of this fire.
