MANISTIQUE, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY FEB. 6, 1914

$1.50 PER YEAR

HAS NEW INDUSTRY.

Manistiquie Secures a $100,000 Flooring Factory. Site Selected and Plans Drawn.

Manistiquie has added a $100,000 manufacturing plant to the long list of its industries during the past week, by the acquisition of a flooring factory in which Mr. Williams, of Traverse City, is the dominant spirit.

Mr. Williams, after lengthy negotiations had been entered into with the Commercial club, decided that if he would be given a free site of his choosing, and if a $25,000 bond issue bearing six per cent, could be floated, he would invest $75,000 in a plant here. He decided upon a site between the Soo Line and L. S. railway lines and the main building of the proposed plant will be in the vicinity of the present Soo Line depot.

The Commercial club entered into negotiations with the consolidated Lumber Co. for the site in question and a price of $3,000 was agreed upon. The Consolidated Co. agreed to donate $18,000 of the purchase price to the club, and at a special meeting of the city council last Friday evening, voted the sum of $1,000 for the use of the Commercial club for advertising purposes. Several of the directors of the Commercial club were in attendance and addressed the city council and urged favorable action upon the proposed appropriation.

It was shown that the members of the Commercial club pay 50 per cent of all the taxes paid in the city, and that its membership was heartily in favor of the proposed appropriation. President Go of the Commercial club, said that the Manistiquie Light & Power Co. of which he is manager, would contribute $10 toward raising the remainder of the amount due on site purchase if the council would make the appropriation asked. Manager Edmondson of the Lake Superior Iron & Chemical Co., also a member of the Commercial club's directors stated that while their company would not be benefited in a material way by the securing of the proposed factory, yet his company was public spirited, and desired to see the city progress in a material way. He favored the idea of making the appropriation, and stated that his company would donate $20,000 toward the site. Representatives of the two banks also pledged $100,000 each, and Mr. A. S. Putnam, also a director of the club, donated $50,000. The remainder of the money needed will be raised either by public subscription or will be taken from the Commercial club's treasury.

One of the speakers stated as a business proposition, Manistiquie could not afford to turn down the idea, for the new company would pay taxes to the amount of $1500 annually, and the investment of $100,000 would certainly bring very satisfactory returns.

As one of the speakers stated, this was the first time in the history of the city that anything in this direction had really been accomplished on a pro basis. It was also shown that other cities are bidding for factories and a usual thing no factory can be secured by giving a site without other inducements. Other cities offer bonuses of $1000 to $5000.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

E. W. Angell, Former Manistiquie Resident, Ends Life in West.

E. W. Angell, who has been remembered as having held a position with the Ann Arbor road at this station at the time John Hancock was agent, killed himself at Portland, Ore. A telegram was received by E. H. Jewell announcing the fact. He was remembered as the telegram was an inquiry relative to whether the local judges of which he had been a member would defray funeral expenses. His financial condition was no doubt a contributing cause.

He was a bright young man and the news of his rash act will be learned with regret by his many friends here.

The Monday Musical club will meet next Monday evening, Feb. 9th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Owen. The program will be in charge of Mrs. E. A. Craver.

CARROLL IS IT

Mr. Fred Carroll Succeeds Postmaster Crane. Appointment Made Late Last Week.

The appointment of Mr. Fred Carroll as postmaster to succeed Mr. Wm. E. Crane, was announced late Friday afternoon of last week.

The appointment, in his respect, is a popular one, and pleases the majority of the patrons of the office. For some time it was apparent that the fight had centered between Messrs. Carroll and Dowry, for they had succeeded in outwitting the indorsements that consisted in Democratic circles, and the appointment of either Dowry or Carroll was expected at any time.

There were five contestants for the coveted honor, viz: Messrs. Carroll, Dowry, McLean, Heals and Greenway. It became apparent some time ago that the organization wing of the party would be in the saddle, and this move had a tendency to eliminate one or more of the aspirants that had attached themselves to the Baker site.

The majority of the aspirants were life-long Democrats and all of them had a substantial following. However, in this case as in every other case where more than one aspire for the same position, there are bound to be disappointed aspirants.

Mr. Carroll has been a resident of Manistiquie for more than five years and has been a member of the firm of Gero & Carroll, dealers in hardware. During the past year he has been chairman of the county democratic committee, and has been an aggressive factor in his party. He was born in Missouri forty-seven years ago, received his education in the high schools of Canada, and has been a resident of the Upper Peninsula for a quarter of a century. Prior to coming here he was engaged in the hardware business at Baraga, and at one time was mayor of his city—the only public office he has ever held.

Fred appreciates the responsibility of the position with which he has been honored, and will make every endeavor to conduct the office upon the high plane that it has attained during the eight years that Mr. Crane has been in charge of it.

Political officers are naturally precocious, for with the changes of administration, men that have served faithfully and well in the positions they have filled, must give way to the winners. "To the victor belongs the spoils," and until the government will use the same business sense that private commercial circles change men to be expected in postmasters as well as in offices of minor importance. Mr. Crane, during his tenure of office, has set a pace that his successor will endeavor to follow, and if he succeeds he will enjoy the respect and commendation of the patrons of the office to the same extent that Mr. Crane enjoys it today. The admirable office forces that Mr. Crane has succeeded in securing during his tenure of office, has contributed not a little to the success that has attended his administration of the office. These employees are protected by civil service regulations, and few changes can or may be made.

AN OPEN MEETING

The Commercial Club to Hold General Meeting Monday Evening

The Commercial Club will hold a general meeting at the K. of P. hall next Monday evening commencing at eight o'clock. At that time Mr. Fitzgerald, of Oconto, Wis., who is director of the Manistiquie cannery factory, will be present to address the meeting. Other speeches will also be made.

It is hoped that the farmers in the territory contiguous to Manistiquie will be present to enter into the discussion, and to assist in the materialization of the project.

KILLED IN CAMP

John Mayette Struck by Falling Gin-pole Monday Morning, and Dies on Train.

John Mayette, a laborer for the Consolidated Lumber Co. at what is known as Camp 7th, was struck by a falling gin-pole Monday forenoon about ten o'clock and died on the Manistiquie & Lake Superior train shortly after it left Manistiquie station that evening.

He and one of his employees were engaged in piling logs when a guy wire of the gin-pole broke from the strain placed upon it, and the pole in falling struck Mayette over the temple, causing injuries from which he died as stated above. His companion ran about a mile for assistance, and the unconscious man was taken to Stoulen and later in the evening was placed on the train and it was hoped that the hospital would be reached in time so that medical attention might save his life. However, this was not to be. After leaving Manistiquie station, Mr. Mayette, who was curing for him, noticed that he opened his eyes, and an instant thereafter he breathed his last. The deceased was about 35 years of age, and had been a resident of this section for practically his entire life time. For a time he carried the mail between Stoulen and Uno, and was known by practically all of the woodmen. He was highly regarded by his acquaintances. He is survived by a widow, who with his mother, and step sister were with him at the time of his death.

New Orchestra.

Prof. Cardin who furnishes music for the Princess theatre has organized an orchestra and is prepared to furnish music for dancing and private parties. The orchestra at present consists of violin, two clarinets, a flute and piano. Other instruments will be added later. The Professor is a first class musician and will no doubt be successful in forming an orchestra that will secure a liberal share of the local patronage.

Severely Injured.

A brakeman on the Rexton branch of the Soo Line, met with a serious accident last Friday, and as a result may lose a hand and leg. He was riding a car, when the wheels struck a quantity of ice. The car left the track, and the car going the same direction struck him, mangle his hand and thigh. He was taken to Trout Lake in a caboose, and Train 86 was held nearly half an hour at that station until the wounded man could be taken aboard. He was taken to a Soo hospital by Dr. Ammerman of Rexton.

COMMENDED HIM

Rev. Poyser Speaks Highly of Dr. G. G. Harper Reads.

The Reverend G. G. Harper reads leaves St. Alban's with the sincere regret of many here, and as the Rev. Wm. Poyser of Crystal Falls, said at the evening service last Sunday Mr. Reade was the type of man whom he believed could be used to the greatest possible advantage in the diocese of Marquette. Commenting on the lack of faith of Zacharias the reverend gentleman said that here at St. Alban's there had certainly been no lack of faith upon the part of Mr. Reade. From a mission that showed the outward signs of decay, when Mr. Reade came here, it was evident now, that for it a size and appearance there was not a pastor, profligate or better kept church in the city. Inside and outside there had been a cleaning up, and when people came forward to help, as some had done, it was clear proof that their faith had been re-awakened, and Mr. Reade's influence for spiritual good felt.

Dr. Reade will probably leave for his new field of labor in the Algoma diocese in Ontario, next week, where he will have charge of an important parish. The best wishes of his many friends will accompany him to his new field of endeavor.

FOR THE CHILDREN

For a Washington Party.
There are so many lovely things to use as decorations and so many things to do that a Washington party is a pleasure to give. The Washington party is a pleasure to give. The Washington party is a pleasure to give.

A ten ball arranged with cups of tea and a sign, "This Tea Came From Boston," would stand for "the Boston tea party."
A picture of Washington's head cut in quarters and pasted on paper would be "Washington's headquarters."
A card bearing a picture of a soldier's bunk, a letter "B" and "17" (1782) and 111 would stand for Bunker Hill. Your imagination can help you work out many events of the Revolutionary times, and for the one giving the most correct answers you give the toy cherry tree box filled with candy.

Another good game is to give in the dates of the battles fought in Washington's time. The prizes for the best answers can be a toy hatchet. At the table make each sing a patriotic song, awarding a tiny souvenir to the best singer.
Candy cherries hidden about the room create lots of fun. The object is to hunt for them and gather them in. The one who finds the most wins a prize.

Washington's Maxims.
Here are a few rules which were lived up to by George Washington:
"Always keep your eyes on the work that little spark of celestial fire called conscience."
"A good character is the first essential in a man."
"Speak not ill of the absent. It is unjust."
"To persevere is one's duty, and to be silent is the best answer to calumny."
"Commerce and industry are best allies of a nation."
"Associate with men of good quality if you esteem your own reputation."
"It is better to be alone than in bad company."
"I never wish to promise more than I have a moral certainty of performing."

Washington's Accuracy.
All schoolboys know something of Washington's adventures as a surveyor when he measured the great estates of Lord Fairfax, but perhaps few are aware of the painstaking accuracy with which he did his work. Many years afterward it was found that the surveys made by Washington were a fourth were the only land measurements of that part of the country in colonial days that could be depended upon. Even after his death Washington's surveys passed unquestioned among lawyers.

Washington's Birthdays.
Washington's birth is recorded in the family Bible as having taken place on "ye 11th day of February, 1732." This was before the adoption of the modern calendar by England, and this day was observed by Washington as his birthday until his twentieth year. The first known public celebration of Washington's birthday was on Feb. 11, 1784. The old style calendar was still adhered to. This was during the lifetime of the first president and completed his fifty-second year.

Mother Carey's Chickens.
Above is the name given by sailors to the storied petrel, a small sea bird, the appearance of which is an unfavorable sign of rough weather to come. The expression "Mother Carey's" is said to be a corruption of matra caria, said to be a corruption of matra caria, said to be a corruption of matra caria, said to be a corruption of matra caria.

Washington's Youth.
Washington's proudest youthful possession was a pony and a pig. He was taught to ride the pony by Uncle Ben, one of his father's slaves, and on this humble animal he acquired that seat on the saddle that carried him through the dangers of two wars. The whip top probably was a toy imported from England. Even in the mother country toys were few and crude in those days.

A Boy's Witty Remark.
A teacher said to a boy considered dull in mathematics: "You should be ashamed of yourself. Why, at your age George Washington was a surveyor."
"Yes, sir," was the response, "and at your age he was president of the United States."

The Oldest Flower.
The rose is the oldest flower of which there is any record. So great is the antiquity of the rose that all account of its origin has been lost. In Egypt the rose is depicted on a number of monuments believed to date from 3000 to 2500 B. C.

Riddle and Answer.
We are little and yet we are great. One of us is in all of us. One of you will find in it. "Father you may see in it. And the fourth is in it. If the fifth you should pursue. It can never fly from you. Answer—The nose."

IN THE REALMS OF ROMANCE

Maiden Saved From Doleful Fate by Her Faithful Love.

By FRANKLIN B. S. Mc...
That March afternoon as Zeb Taylor made his rounds of the sugar bush with pails suspended from a neck yoke to empty the brimming troughs of sap and convey them to the barrels at the fire it all came back to him as forcibly that he seemed to be working in a dream. He had known Xena, the Tonghlin's slave child, long. The two farmhouses stood close together, and the children had been Zeb and Nell to each other until he had become his father's "in" and she had put on long dresses.

The old folks had looked upon it as a matter of course that the young couple would get married in due time. It was only after the girl had been sent away to school and her letters to Zeb had been few and far between that he awoke to the fear of losing her.

Zeb's father was a good looking, attractive girl, and Zeb realized that education and society would improve her still more. Other young men would be attracted, and he would stand no show.

As Zeb reached the camp and emptied his buckets of sap into the barrels he lingered and thought of more recent sorrows. Nell Tompkins had returned from school two weeks before on a vacation. He had lusted over to the farmhouse in his working clothes to welcome her, and abashingly had been about to return to the farm with warmth in her husband's, so love in her eyes. Even when he registered a night or two later in his Sunday best she had called him Mr. Taylor and had refused to acknowledge that she had called her on his back over mudholes and hoisted her over fences. A chance had come to him to visit his father, and on his road home he made it his mind to forego the visit.

While he mended the line fence between the two farms next morning he missed his voice so much that Nell Tompkins might realize that he was not taking her conduct to heart, but his voice sounded like a crow's. When he met Farmer Tompkins he made a great pretense of being jolly, but Tompkins knew that he was "struck" on Abigail Spinner.

This Zeb Taylor had tried to make himself believe that he was getting the best of it for a while. Night had come in the sugar bush, Zeb had eaten a cold supper, while the sap in the bin boiled and foamed and later on he had cut up the line fence between the two farms of darkness. Then he sat down on a log to smoke and figure out how many pails of strip would be the result of that run of sap. He intended to follow the strip to the "sugar off" process and count up the pounds of sugar, but his thoughts inately resumed in the matter he was obliged of his surroundings.

"Yes, I heard him roar, but don't you be afraid," said Zeb, "as he put his arm around her and gently walked her to the fire. The arm still encircled her as they sat down on the log together, and he asked:
"And you start for anywhere and get lost."
"I—I don't know," she laid sobbed.
"I heard you were making sugar down here all alone and that you were going to sugar off here. Where? When?"
"Not quite so soon."
"And I thought—thought—"
"What did you think, Nell?"
"I thought if I came down on a cold day like some napsle you'd give me a whip and that I would say that I was sorry if I hurt your feelings the other night."
"And you got lost in it."
"I—I guess so. It was awfully dark."
"And a bear growled at you."
"Such awful growls! Oh, Zeb, I was so glad to see you! I might have been eaten alive."
"Y-e-s. Say, Nell, you are sorry, I'm sorry, and what?"
"Why, you'll go home with me, won't you?"
"Yes, and what then?"
"Why, if you and me haven't gone to bed—and I don't think they have—you might want to talk to me a little."
"Yes, I know," whispered Zeb as he lifted her face and kissed her. And then the sap in the pail boiled and foamed again. The fire crackled and the wind whistled in the trees above their heads checked in his throat and flew away to other fields of romance.

STYLE IN OLD ST. LOUIS.

Dress of the Men and Women There in Colonial Times.
Mantelet in his history of the valley of the Mississippi tells of the habit of dress which prevailed in St. Louis in colonial days. There is what he has to say:

"The leggings were of coarse linen in summer and of deer skin in winter. The intricate garment of the men, a cold weather was generally a coarse blanket caped down over the shirt and long vest. The capote served the foot of the man, and was fastened for the hood attached to the collar behind hung upon the back and shoulders as a cape, and which desired it served to cover the whole head, and especially among the haitians, veyoucaus and coucouers de bois the head was enveloped in a blue handkerchief, turban-like as a protection from the solar heat and noxious insects."
"The same material, of lighter quality and fancy colors, wreathed with bright colored ribbons and sometimes awnings, formed the fancy hoodness of the females on festive occasions. At other times they also used the handkerchief in the same patriarchal style."
"The dress of the matrons was simple and plain. The old fashioned short jacket and petticoat, varied to suit the diversities of taste, was the common dress of the women. The feet in winter were protected by Indian moccasins or the more unwieldy clog shoe, but in summer and in dry weather the feet were left uncovered and exposed on festive occasions and holidays, when it was adorned with the light mosaics, gorgeously ornamented with brilliant and precious cut glass, shells, beads or lace ingeniously wrought over the front instead of buxus and on the side flaps.—St. Louis Times.

FREAKISH SHOWS.

Stage Fiascos In the Old Days In the Metropolis.

A SINGLE NIGHT "OTHELLO."

Wolfsohn Turned the Play Into a Near Riot and Never Acted Against George Rignold's Magnificent Success to His Ambitious Amateur Debut.

The freak play or the performance that is a travesty is little in evidence today, but it is not seen so long ago when a stamp in business some times overwhelmed even the most conservative of theatrical managers to resort to extraordinary measures to attract at least one appreciative audience.

One of the early freak performances was intended as an event of great artistic value. The late Henry Woods, who afterward became famous as an impresario, aspired to the great Forrest's mantle. The great tragedian was playing at Niblo's Garden in "Othello" and Woods, who had a two, had saved a little money with the idea of purchasing the privilege of appearing as the Moor in New York next at least. His ambition appeared to be a Marie Seubert, the German actress, who was appearing in that year (1888) at the Theatre Francaise on West Fourth street. Woods offered her the manager $1,000 for the privilege, besides himself selling out the capacity of the theater.

Although the audience was composed chiefly of his friends and relatives, the portrayal was so ludicrous that a riot seemed imminent and was only prevented through an appeal to the audience from Miss Seebert to consider her own position. Wolfsohn never told the boards again.

The next year in the same theater opera bouffe was the rage, owing to the tremendous list of a comedian of the name of Gabel, who was known as one of the two comedians in "Genevieve de Brabant." Gabel's popularity was so great that a benefit was tendered to him. He decided to present "Genevieve" as a travesty, the male principals assuming the female roles and the women those of men. The house was sold out and the benefit advanced sale opened. Spectators required a harvest.

The audience began to laugh before the curtain rose, the conductor was greeted with roars of derision. Even the tubers were grinning in anticipation of a festival of the most grotesque. Gabel appeared deliberately toward as Genevieve it was fully two minutes before he was allowed to sing the beautiful romantic number. He sang the first line with laughter. The same reception greeted each of the principals, but from then on the performance was about as entertaining as a few decorative questions half empty before the act ended. Gabel said the next day that he would gladly give back the $5,000 it yielded if he could get the money.

It was fifteen years before anything of this nature was attempted again. This time was for the late Maurice Grau, who had suffered reverses, that the benefit was organized at the Academy of Music. Grau himself arranged the program and the first act of "La Grande Duchesse." The great Almes, queen of opera bouffe, was cast for General Bismarck, the ponderous M. Duplan played the Duchess, and the droll M. Meyers was Wanda. Boots brought as much as $15 each. The house was crowded, but alas, the fiasco was even more complete than at Gabel's benefit.

Booth's theater, then at Twenty-third street and Sixth avenue, was the scene of the next freak performance. George Rignold, famous as a matinee idol, was attracting all New York to see his "Henry the Fifth." Joseph Tooker, an ingenious showman, if ever there was one, conceived the idea of a special matinee "Henry the Fifth," with six amateurs to appear as Juliet. Rignold was the Romeo. Such a scene was on view on West Twenty-third street that night. The scene was never witnessed before nor since. An early as 9 a. m. the lobby was packed, and the line to the box office reached to Broadway.

At noon at least 2,000 women were congregated in front of the theater, and the management, fully awake to conditions, commissioned Jim Brown, king of ticket speculators of that day, to "work the line." This Brown did so well that 4,200 persons, 95 per cent women, were packed into a playhouse seating 1,800 comfortably. The performance itself was so bad that Rignold would have quit in the fourth scene but for Tooker's elaborate plan to stick it out. Tooker's idea had been that the Julietts would be so bad that they would be funny, whereas five of them were really very good. The sixth Juliet was none other than Marie Walworth, who distinguished herself by her manner by the contrast. Miss Walworth was immediately engaged as a professional and quickly became a star.—New York Sun.

PICTURESQUE DAMASCUS.

A Garden City Whose Beauty Halted Mohammed at Its Gates.

The hotel in Damascus in which we stay is called the Grand Victoria. But it is really a harem-like shop and a scullery. The lower part is mostly blank, bare walls. From the upper stories project balconies of latticed work, some of which extend so far over the street as to make a way for the veiled dandies of the harem to pass.

In contrast with these plain exterior walls the interiors are often exquisitely beautiful, having an open court paved with marble and a fountain fed by the waters of the Jordan, tinkling and splashing through the hot hours of the day, and woodwork to rest during the cool of the evening. Palms, orange trees and aloes stand here and there. Within the house you discover rooms cold and formal to an American, but brilliant with oriental hangings, bronzes and luteal models and arabesques. Damascus is perhaps the second city in importance in the mind of the Mohammedans. It is a garden city made to be lived in, a city of the desert by the Abrahamic river, flung here in the snows of Hermon's heights. It is a city with its increasing volume as it regenerates the desert. Into which it pours all its wealth, and does verily all that a city can do. "Gloss as the rose." It is not to be wondered that Mohammed drew rein outside the walls when first he saw the city and said: "Since you have made me so rich, but once, I will not enter this earthly paradise lest I be blighted out from the heavenly."—Chicago Herald.

John S. Williams, Comptroller of the Currency.

With his appointment as comptroller of the currency John S. Williams became one of the dominant figures in the banking affairs of the United States. His office carries with it membership of the organization committee which will choose the locations for the federal reserve banks under the new currency law, and he also becomes active a member of the federal reserve board. Two of his colleagues on the organization committee are Secretary of the Treasury McMillan and Secretary of Agriculture Houston. Mr. Williams has been assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of fiscal matters since last March.

The new comptroller is a native of Virginia, in his forty-ninth year, and was educated in private schools in Richmond and at William and Mary college. He is also a graduate of the law school of the University of Virginia. Shortly after completing his education Mr. Williams entered his father's banking firm, and in a few years became one of the best known financiers of the south. Perhaps Mr. Williams is best known as former president of the Southern Air Line. He organized this road, which with its consolidated lines amounted to over 4,000 miles. He has also been president of the Bank of Richmond and of several other banks.

Surgeon General of the Army.
The nomination of Colonel William Crawford Gorgas as surgeon general of the army met with little expectation, but is in accordance with the practically universal wish of the public. Over thirty years' experience in the army medical corps has eminently qualified him for the post to which his conspicuous work at Panama commends him. Despite his military title, Colonel Gorgas is a physician and has done his most important work as an investigator of theories based on medical practice. His military promotions have been for ability in combating disease. The battles he has waged have been against the yellow fever and malaria.

against the deadly mosquitoes that bear the germs of yellow fever and malaria, and his victories at Havana and Panama have won for him the plaudits of the world.

For his work as health officer of Havana after the Spanish war he was promoted colonel by special act of congress in 1902 and a year later was sent to Panama as chief sanitary officer, becoming a member of the legislative commission in 1907. At Panama he "cleaned up" and laid yellow fever under control in sixteen months.

Colonel Gorgas is a native of Alabama. In his sixteenth year and was educated at the University of the South, New York, and Bellevue Medical college, New York City. He entered the army as a lieutenant of the medical corps in 1888. He was promoted to a captain five years later and during the Spanish war was advanced to the rank of major.

CHINESE WINGS.

Their Shape Due to the Wint of Some Ancient Aviator.

In striking contrast to the modern construction and equipment of a man are his industrial methods. The leaders of the new republic have succeeded in transforming the land peacefully, but the very day after the new republic practically unimpaired and the primitive ideas of craftsmanship still persist.

Chief among the industries which have languished for hundreds of years under the blighting influence of an ignorant, tradition-bound antiquity is the Chinese art of building. Because some ancestral hero of a bygone age devised that all ships constructed within the realm should be replicas of his own, the Chinese have never advanced their maritime art. The Chinese were swarmed with enlarged sampans of westerly shape known as junk, and until they were swept into America were gradually progressing from the canal and the square rigged Indian to the iron ship, and its lined descendant, the modern ocean greyhound, the Chinese people in many lines of endeavor continue to hold their traditions regarding shipping.

The inferiority of the Chinese upon the sea today is directly traceable to the whim of an illustrious ancestor of the Flawery Land—Detroit News.

A GARDEN TRAMP.

Travel of the Smiling Daily From the Old World to the New.

Tradition has it that from the early garden of Governor John Endicott in Salem, Massachusetts, came what is now perhaps the commonest kind of flower in the United States. Few persons, writes Grace Taylor in "Old Fashioned Gardening," know that the pastured writer who wrote the brilliant, smiling daily, is an imported exotic.

From this old dooryard garden it has sprung to the corners of the east and west straight across the land, up and down the meadows, through the long grass and the short grass, along every highway and every road. Wherever man has gone it has followed gladly. Often it has driven him completely out of the fields he has made.

That Godwin's vineyard the day enough to bring it with him to the new England from the old marks him as a man of taste, for this flower and its variant stalks found in meadow and the trimmest gardens; the greenswards and arbours were "powdered" with daisies and Chaucer wrote of it in satiric jest. It is not native to England, either, however, but came from the continent, or perhaps by way of the continent, from an original home still further east, in northern Asia.

An Elephant's Appetite.
Since the elephant's digestive functions are not very different from those of a cow, it requires a large amount of fodder daily—about 400 pounds in most cases. In its wild state the elephant feeds heartily, but wastefully. It is not in selecting the few forest trees that it likes for their bark or foliage, but it will tear down branches and leave half their annual growth to rot on the ground. As it is a nocturnal animal, it selects its trees by the senses of smell and touch. Its sense of smell is said to be so delicate that wild elephants can find an enemy at a distance of a thousand yards, and the nerves of its trunk are so sensitive that the smallest substance can be discovered and picked up by its trunk.—Harper's Weekly.

Stern George Washington.
Blotter at the White House has never been so severe as in the days of George Washington. The first American president had a code of conduct and a list of what all persons coming into contact with him were expected to make themselves acquainted. He expected such as much deference and respect. At receptions he greeted all comers with a stately bow, but never deigned to shake hands, and nobody was to address him until he had first taken the initiative. The gentlemen who were expected to be present were expected to be present. Washington never visited a dinner party, for his own dinner parties the protocol stipulated that "the president does not remain at the table drinking after the cloth is removed."—London Chronicle.

Went a Wife by His Skill.
Action was a Grecian painter of about the time of Alexander, and he was his wife by his great work. He painted a picture called "The Nuptials of Alexander and Roxane," which was exhibited at the Olympic games. It created such a stir that the emperor of the day ordered it to be burned. Alexander was so much pleased with the picture, "Action was one of the artists who excelled in the art of mixing colors. He could mix up the most beautiful paint and purchase them, as artists do today.

A BLOODLESS VICTORY.

The Creature in the Bed Didn't Attempt to Fight Back.

A young Hindu tells an amusing story of his first visit to London. His master, mindful of the great change in climate to which the traveler had been subjected, wished to make him as comfortable as possible. Accordingly, when he entered his room for the night, he put into his bed a rubber hot water bottle, a contrivance quite unknown in India.

The young man retired, undressed and got into bed. As he held his feet he first encountered a smooth, warm object which he supposed to be some kind of animal. In terror he leaped from the bed, and groped about for the light. Unaccustomed to his surroundings, he was a long time in finding it, and at every step he stumbled over the unknown creature which stood at his feet.

At length he located the light and looked about vainly for a weapon. He was on the point of calling for help when he thought of trying the closed. There he found several cans. He selected the stoutest of them and resolved to try conclusions with the intruder. He grasped the handle of the tin and began to turn them down. Then, nerving himself for a final effort, he tore the clothes from the bed and struck violently at the round black object that he had exposed.

One blow was enough to convince him that the "animal" was lifeless and always had been. His terror gave place to amusement, and after he had his laugh out he went back to bed and enjoyed undisturbed repose until morning.—Youth's Companion.

CITY IS ADVANCING.

Manistique Entering Upon the Most Prosperous Era in Its History

Manistique is on an eve of a prosperous era. Not content with securing the Williams flooring factory, already a move is on foot to land other industries, one of which is practically secured, and will be mentioned as soon as details are completed.

This city has never passed through the vicissitudes of a boom, and its consequent depression, ever since the hard pioneer commencing crowding the reaman off the map at the mouth of the Manistique river, the town has enjoyed a steady upward growth. Where not so many years ago, the river asked his thirst, where he sprouted through the primeval undergrowth to escape real or fancied enemies, is now located a city of 5,000 people—a city with all of the modern improvements—a city that is forging ahead and that, owing to the admirable location, the fertility of the surrounding country, and its unexcelled shipping facilities, that is destined to become the leading city of "Clove-land".

There are hundreds of residents here today, that came here before the advent of the railroad and other means of transportation to and from the city. They were here before the first brick business block was erected, and when it was a struggling, overgrown village anything but beautiful, and when its existence, it was thought, depended entirely upon the life of the primeval forests tributary to the town. They have seen it emerge from its adolescent stage, and see it now a beautiful, manly, well balanced organism, taking rapid and long upward strides, that never will stop for its future.

That its admirable qualities have attracted such institutions as the Consolidated Lumber Co., the White Marble Lime Co., the Goodwill Co., the Lake Superior Iron & Chemical Co., the Northwestern Leather Co. and the Williams flooring factory, is a matter of congratulation, and it is safe to state that the ascertainment of the Williams industry is but the first of a number of industries that Manistique will secure during the next two years. A manufacturing concern does not make a change of base without giving the question much thought and study, and when it decides to locate in a city, that decision materially affects others contemplating a change of base. Manistique is entering upon the most prosperous era of its existence and how rapid its future growth may be depends almost wholly upon the degree that its citizens shall pull together to attain the desired goal. The Commercial club has been the means of solidifying and unifying its various business men and interests to an unusual extent and it is hoped that the spirit will never grow less than it is at the present time.

Ament Bush.

R. C. Austin, secretary of the state board of pardons writes the Pioneer Tribune as follows:

"This office has received a great many requests from prominent people of your community asking clemency be extended to George Bush, inmate of the Michigan State Prison. The Pardon Board have deemed it advisable to investigate this case, and believe that by giving notice that this case is under consideration we will receive a great deal of valuable information from citizens that would not otherwise communicate with the writer. The Pardon Board cannot pay for any notices but are in hope that you will use this as a news item. All people that are interested in the case are requested to communicate with the Secretary at Lansing giving their views of it.

This inmate was sentenced on January 18, 1910 for a term of six years on charge of arson."

There are many people that believe in Bush's innocence and if they will express their candid opinions to the board of pardons, they will not only enlighten the board but will assist in giving simple justice to a man that is being incarcerated for crime he did not commit.

BARTON HONORED OPEN TO BUSINESS

Local Man Selected as Head of U. P. Ass'n. of Commercial Clubs.

The Association of Commercial Clubs Executives was organized at Escanaba Tuesday, and Mr. H. M. Barton, secretary of the Manistique Commercial club who conceived the idea of organizing the executive officers of the various commercial clubs into an association for mutual benefit, was elected the first president of the new organization.

White Mr. Barton is one of the youngest men holding the responsible position of secretary of a live commercial organization in the upper peninsula, his unanimous selection as head of the new organization proves that his fellow secretaries appreciated his ability and enthusiasm. The association made no mistake in his selection.

With a solidarity of interests through the medium of a thorough organization such as has been effected, the secretaries will do better and more profitable work for their several communities. In the future then they have been able to accomplish in the past.

Felicitations.

Secretary Barton of the Commercial club, received the following telegram from D. A. Bradley district commercial superintendent of the Western Union Co., Wednesday upon the completion of the telegraph service in the city:

"I desire to compliment yourself and organization for the splendid co-operation which has culminated in giving Manistique direct rates and connections on a par with other offices in your progressive peninsula.

A. D. Bradley, Dist. Com'l. Supt.

Mr. Barton replied as follows. We thank you for your kind telegram of congratulation upon the entry of the Western Union to this city. We are indeed to be congratulated and we consider it to be one of the achievements of the present year in inducing your company to recognize us. We hope and trust that you will have cause for congratulation for putting in an office here.

Manistique Commercial Club M. H. Barton, Sec.

L. A. Boyd of Marquette, was in the city Tuesday.

Western Union Telegraph Office Now Ready to Transact Business.

Following a period of several months building operations, a line between Escanaba and Manistique the final connection for the new Western Union Telegraph office was made Wednesday and the formal opening took place at noon. The office of the Western Union is located in the building occupied by R. H. Temple real estate dealer, and is convenient to the various hotels and business houses.

The opening of this office means much more to Manistique than would appear on the surface. It will not only give employment to more than one man in the city but will save the citizens considerable money during the year in telegraph bills. The savings will come in the reduction of rates now in effect over the Soo line wires.

J. P. Parmentier, district commercial manager for R. H. Temple real estate dealer, in the city this week superintending the installation of the new office and he will remain in charge until a local manager is appointed.

In speaking of the new office, Mr. Parmentier stated that it was due entirely to the activity of the commercial club that it was opened here.

"We took up the Manistique proposition two or three times but each time it has been postponed on account of having no wire facilities," said Mr. Parmentier, "but when a letter was received from the Commercial club asking us to locate we thought the time must be ripe for coming to this city. We investigated local conditions and finally decided to open an office leasing wires from the Telephone Co. Manistique to Escanaba for this purpose."

The Western Union will have wire service to Chicago and will be possible for the public to send a telegram to Chicago, Detroit, New York and other points with the knowledge that their friends or business associates will receive it within a few minutes. "We always give good service and excepting in very stormy weather have caused no delays," said Mr. Parmentier.

Mr. Parmentier calls special attention to the fact that now that the Western Union has located here it will be possible to send telegrams at all hours of the night. The local office will close at 8 o'clock but the person desiring to send telegram can call the Western Union office at Escanaba or Marquette and the long distance telephone calls will be paid by the Western Union and no extra charge will be made on the message. The regular rates from Manistique will prevail.

The rates to all points in the peninsula will be reduced just one half according to the schedule that will Western Union has made out. The present rate to Calumet Escanaba, Houghton, Ishpeming, Marquette, Nonsuch and Newberry 50 cents, but the Western Union rate will be but 25 cents to each of these points. The rate to Detroit will be reduced from 65 cents to 40 cents, the rates all over the United States and Canada will be reduced in like proportion.

Shows Public Spirit.

The site of the proposed flooring factory is without a doubt the most valuable site in the city. It is situated right between the Soo line and Ann Arbor railroads, and also takes in part of the planned addition of R. verster. The Consolidated Lumber Company is to be commended on its liberality in making such a reasonable price on the property. The site donated $1500.00 toward the iron site, which, with the $1000.00 donated by the city leaves only $750.00 to be raised by all the rest of the business men of the city.

The bonds to be issued will amount to $25,000.00, and bear 6 per cent interest and will be secured by a first mortgage on $75,000.00 worth of property. The First National Bank has agreed to take $5000.00 of the bonds, and that the balance will be quickly subscribed is a foregone conclusion.

Fourth Ward Politics.

"That the 'bloody fourth' will not lack in political activity this spring is attested by the fact that there are at least three candidates in the field for aldermanic honors. They are Messrs. J. E. Erickson, Dr. McKesson and Capt. Dan McCauley.

Mr. Erickson has been a resident of the ward for a number of years is a tax payer, and has been employed in the local tannery as a splitter ever since the present company has had charge of the plant.

Dr. McKesson has at sundry times served his ward as alderman and is popular with his constituency. He is a formidable factor in the fight.

Capt. Dan McCauley is also popular with the residents of the ward and will also give a good account of himself at the polls.

Then He Probably Smiled, but It Must Have Been a Sickly Effort.

A woman with fifteen bundles boarded the street car the other afternoon when I was on my way to my suburban residence. She was a very pretty young woman. I felt sorry for her. She was returning from a shopping tour. Being a man with a kind heart, I helped her upon the car and piled her bundles about her. A man got on at the same time and took a seat on the other side of the young lady.

When the car came to my street I was surprised to see her rise and begin to pick up her bundles. Instantly my sense of chivalry prompted me to help her off the car and, as I was going in the same direction, I asked permission to carry her fifteen bundles on ahead. I was loaded down like a camel crossing the desert. In those packages she had everything: from an electric radiator to a five pound bag of prunes. We traveled about for a half mile. The man turned in at a gate.

"When we reached this gate the young lady thanked me and said: 'This is as far as I go. I live here. Thank you very much.'"

"But the man ahead of us, the man who came out on the car with us, turned her off the car and, as I was going in the same direction, I asked permission to carry her fifteen bundles on ahead. I was loaded down like a camel crossing the desert. In those packages she had everything: from an electric radiator to a five pound bag of prunes. We traveled about for a half mile. The man turned in at a gate.

"Yes," she said. "He is my husband, but he hates to carry packages through the street."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Muscular Christianity.
Muscular Christianity found an exponent in the career of an English divine of whom James Bryce tells in his "Studies in Contemporary Biography." He had once, under the greatest provocation, insulted a person who had insulted him, and the bishop wrote him a letter of reproof, pointing out, among other things, that, except as the Church of England was to much criticism on all hands, her minister should be very careful in their demeanor. The offender replied by saying, "I must regret that, being grossly insulted and forgetting in the heat of the moment the critical position of the Church of England, I did knock the man down."

The bishop—it was Fraser of Manchester—retaliated by asking the curate to dinner.

Indian Caricature.
Humor is more or less a secular enjoyment, and its suggestion in pictorial art therefore necessarily has a social significance. And as the chief motif of Indian art was religious expression secularism in the form of caricature was never very much emphasized. But in this aspect, though not very frequent, represented, was not entirely absent from Indian art. Even the oldest records of Indian painting bear evidence to the fact that the sense of ridicule or satire was not altogether divorced from the canons of art of those times.—Calcutta Modern Review.

INITIAL SERVICE

Rev. Leach, New Pastor of the First Baptist Church, Has Commenced His Duties Here.

Rev. F. R. Leach delivered his opening message last Sunday at the Baptist Church. Large audiences greeted the new pastor at both services. In the morning Rev. Leach outlined what he considered to be a successful church. He said a costly edifice, eloquent preaching and good music do not necessarily indicate a successful church. Neither is a church strong because it enrolls the leading social people of the community. Money cannot buy success. The successful church will take the bible as its guide, and will believe it to be the word of God. The speaker proposes to preach the Word without apologies. He believes the church should also be like a family, a home for all, free from all taints and factions. The successful church will be neighborly. It will be thoroughly organized. It will be devoted to local needs. When a moral issue is up, it will seek to mould public sentiment. It will always be evangelistic. It will consider itself a failure, if it does not bring men to Christ. Saving men will be its chief business. The successful church will also be missionary. It will live for others, and not for itself. The speaker said he would work for true success and in doing this he was ready to work for the community in every possible way.

Rev. Leach is known as an advertiser in church work, and employs up-to-date methods in conducting his work. He will speak next Sunday evening on "How to advertise a church," when he will explain his methods of work as to church publicity.

COURT OF KING COLE HAS NEW INDUSTRY

Charming Extravaganza to be Given by the Elks.

Mrs. Harriet Purdy Smith, of Chicago, is training Local Talent for a musical extravaganza, entitled "The Court of King Cole," to be presented at the Opera House Feb. 23, and 24th. This production is under the auspices of the Elks lodge. Mrs. Smith comes here from pronounced successes in other cities, and is a trainer of local talent with few equals. Originally she was a teacher of aesthetic physical culture in the Chicago schools of Opera, and is considered to be one of the best exponents of her art in the United States. Her productions are always artistic, pleasing, humorous and highly successful. They are staged with the most careful thought and minute attention to detail, in a way that the abilities of the performers are never over-taxed. "The Court of King Cole" is a scenic extravaganza, in musical, comic, and pleasing. The grouping is well done and splendid chorus work always catches the hearts of the audience with its rhythmic movement and splendid opportunity for individual specialty work. Rehearsals opened Wednesday Feb. 4th at the Elks hall where the people taking part in the cast will hereafter meet three times a week, until the performance is given. The cast includes some of the most talented young people of the town, and it is without saying that the affair will be one of the Elks usual hits.

Notice

Joseph Boncher has been designated as administrator of the estate of the late Joseph Stanley, and desires all having claims against the estate, to present same at once for adjudication. He will sell all of the personal property of the estate at private sale, also will sell the lands and acre farm belonging to the estate. The farm is located in Manistique township, and is desirable property.

In The Race.

Wm DeLutt the barber, has decided to enter the aldermanic race in the Fourth Ward, and has secured the requisite number of signatures to his petition. Mr. DeLutt is well known, and will no doubt make a good race.

and only leaves that city because of the fact that the kind of lumber the needs to operate his plant is becoming too scarce.

Mr. Williams and his associate Mr. DeZate made a very favorable impression upon our citizens during the many times that they have visited the city. They are unassuming, understand their business, and are honest. They selected Manistique only after having investigated the merits of other cities. They were satisfied with conditions here and their exactions were very modest and satisfactory to the Commercial club as well as to the citizens generally.

Manistique is to be congratulated upon securing this concern. It means that many thousands of dollars will be added to the payroll of the city annually; it means that new residents will be attracted; that homes will have to be built to house the influx of population, and that every avenue of business will be favorably affected.

As was stated last week, the plans for the new plant call for the erection of five buildings viz.

Main Plant 72 x 240 feet.
Dry Kilns, 60 x 140 feet.
Boiler House 40 x 40 feet.
Engine Room, 20 x 60 feet.
Warehouse, 40 x 200 feet.

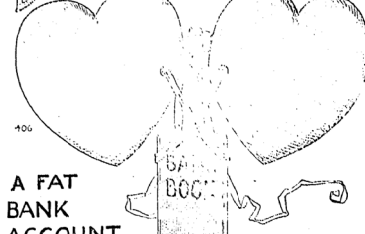

The buildings will be constructed of concrete foundations, brick and steel, and will be made fire proof as far as possible. The main plant will have a basement throughout.

Owing to the location of the plant it will be a great advertisement to the city, as it will be located where every passenger passing through the city will see it.

Thus, the work of the Commercial club during the past year was not in vain. If Manistique can secure a new industry of the proportions of the Williams factory every year, its future will be rosy indeed. Its success has proved that united and concerted effort will bring results, and it is hoped that the club will enter upon the second year of its existence shortly with the tangible support of every business man within its confines. It deserves this sort of treatment, for it has made good. Every citizen should be more than pleased that the industry in question has been lauded, and should continue to contribute his mite toward making the coming year a red letter year in the annals of new industries.
