Campaign Against Grasshoppers On

The distribution of materials to make the grasshopper hunt is in full swing with sufficient materials having been distributed. This far, every one of the townships has received a copy of the campaign. The grasshopper is a pest which has been particularly noticeable in the Townships of L'Anse-au-Loup, Thompson, Manistiquette and to some extent Doyle. This year all materials are being distributed from a central point, namely, the county agent, at Manistiquette. Purchases of materials have been made in sufficient quantities so that they may be sold at a very reasonable price. Sufficient materials, namely: 1 quart sodium arsenite, 1 gallon of molasses and 3 ounces of kerosene oil may be secured for 50c or for signing up with the county agent for a basket to be held at the door. All cash sales and labor agreements, however, are being handled by the agent's office. This amount of material is sufficient to use with 100 pounds of bran or sawdust and will cover 5 acres with the bait.

Medical Survey Shows Scarcity of Doctors in Many U. P. Counties

Applying a ratio of one physician to every 700 persons, an official standard for adequate medical care, a survey committee of the Michigan State Medical Society, found that "in any county in Michigan, with the exception of Washtenaw County where, because of the University, the conditions are unusual. Other conditions making the survey, it is estimated that the accompanying article, are:

At the ratio of one physician for every 1,200 persons, there would be an undersupply in all but two counties in the Upper Peninsula and in half of the counties in the Lower Peninsula.

There are seven counties in the Upper Peninsula without the services of the complete range of specialists, and this is true at this time, and has been at the expense of rural districts, although the committee points out, that the increase in population is somewhat offset by the advent of good roads, automobiles and telephones which which have increased the number of physicians in urban districts have up to 1921 been at the expense of the rural districts.

There are 200 more persons on this peninsula in 1931 than there were in 1921. In any county, the number of physicians in urban districts have up to 1921 been at the expense of the rural districts.

Geologists Will Visit Peninsula

Houghton, Mich., July 26.—Dr. W. H. Hobbs, president of the Michigan College of Mining and Technology, has returned from the Iron Range, northern Michigan and Minnesota, where he arranged the itinerary for a group of international geologists, who will visit the iron and copper districts of the Lake Superior region early in August.

The International Geological Congress, which will be attended by delegates from all parts of the world, will be held in Washington, D. C. The latter part of the Congress includes several excursions, all in the eastern part of the United States, will be offered, and after the meeting four special excursions will be available.

One of the special excursions will be through the Iron Range in Illinois and southern Wisconsin, and two others will be trans-continental tours. One of the trans-continental excursions will be through the northern route through the Rocky Mountain, Yellowstone National Park, and the Marquette area, and back over the southern route, giving the delegates an opportunity to visit a number of mining districts in the Marquette area. The fourth special tour will be to the Lake Superior mining districts which will include the Copper Range and the Marquette and Gogebic iron ranges in northern Michigan and the Mesabi iron region of Minnesota. Between 25 and 30 geologists are expected to make the tour to the Lake Superior district, the excursion program to be one of the most important of the four arranged for after the Washington congress. Registrations for this tour will close on July 15.

While on these excursions the delegates will travel in chartered sleeping cars. The tour through the Lake Superior tour will be at Marquette on August 1, where they will spend one day on the Marquette range.

The geologists will be in Houghton August 2 to inspect the copper mines of this district and will then proceed to the Gogebic range, where the delegates will spend one day. After visiting the Gogebic, the geologists will go to Duluth, where they will take buses to the Mesabi range for one day. Returning to Duluth on the night of August 5, the party will re-entrain for Chicago to visit the Century of Progress.

While in the Copper Country, the Houghton Rotary club and other local organizations will assist in the entertainment of the geologists and other accommodations for the comfort of the visitors.

An interesting feature of the visit to the iron districts of the Lake Superior region will be that it will afford the scientists an opportunity to study fossil remains of some of the earliest forms of life which existed as small organisms.

The International Geological Congress is a gathering of geologists from all parts of the world, which meets once each year upon invitation in different countries. The invitation to meet in the United States was made and accepted this year on account of the Century of Progress exposition, which is held in Chicago. The Congress met last year in South Africa. The last meeting in the United States was in 1914.

Mrs. Rachel Stearns of Chicago told the other that her husband hadn't spoken to her for eight months, but they were unable to help her.

VACATIONS and HEALTH

CHILDREN IN SUMMER MONTHS

FOR children, the summer months are playtime. Free from the yoke of the schoolroom, they look forward eagerly to the games and pleasures of the vacation period. But intelligent and careful planning for the holiday is essential for children as for adults. Since the routine of school hours is suspended, full responsibility for health falls on the shoulders of parents.

The vacation period of the average city child is usually spent with adult relatives at summer resorts, at organized camps, or in the year-round centers. It is the unfortunate children who spend the last type of vacation who require the closest supervision.

They should be particularly warned against over-exertion and heat prostration, against eating foods loaded with strong seasonings, and against the dangers of accidents from automobiles.

The most recent aspect of the child's vacation period is the increased number of avoidable accidents to children due to the failure of parents and children to carry on the safety campaign waged throughout the school year.

Although swimming is excellent exercise for children, particularly if it is accompanied by the freedom from the nervous tension of the formal classroom with the highest regard for the rules of healthful living and the greatest care to avoid accidents. Continue the child's regular rest period. If possible, bring the child close to the lessons of the great outdoors. See to it that, with an abundance of sunlight, air, rest and directed recreation, the little citizen goes back to school with a sound mind and a sound body.

This is the third of a series of 12 articles on Vacations and Health. The second, on Camp Life, will answer the questions: "What first aid should be administered for snake bites?" How should a camp site be selected? How should firearms be carried?"

Robbers' Rest is Thrilling Western-Sunday-Evening

Robbers' Rest is a thrilling Western-Sunday-Evening picture which is being commemoated on the screen.

Zane Grey used the affair as the basis for his "Robbers' Rest" novel which was published in 1914. It was the story of a man who had spent himself some thirty years ago, who wrote a chapter in the state's history that is being commemorated on the screen.

The picture depicts in Barbara Stanwyck's First Film to Show Woman Prison Life—Sunday-Monday

She has been prison pictures before, but the Warner Bros. picture, "Ladies Like Talk About," starring Barbara Stanwyck, which comes to the Goro Theatre on Sunday-Monday is the first to reveal the women's section in all its interesting phases.

The prison depicted in Barbara Stanwyck's picture is the San Quentin penitentiary of California. The story presents the actual prison experiences of the co-author, Dorothy Mackaye, the actress who was sentenced to San Quentin after the mysterious death of her husband a few years ago.

In addition to its revelation of prison life, the picture offers romance involving the installation of an evangelist for an attractive though hard boiled inmate, who has been sentenced for a bank robbery. Miss Stanwyck appears in

Zane Grey used the affair as the basis for his "Robbers' Rest" novel which was published in 1914. It was the story of a man who had spent himself some thirty years ago, who wrote a chapter in the state's history that is being commemorated on the screen.

THE FINAL GESTURE

The state has definitely set November 1st as the final date on which 1932 taxes may be paid without interest or penalties. The legislature adjourned without officially extending the time beyond July 1st, but the administrative board stepped into the breach and adopted a resolution calling upon all the counties to agree to waive penalties because of the belief that by November all classes of citizens, especially the farming class, will be in better financial shape to take care of their tax delinquencies.

THE NEW SALES TAX

The long anticipated sales tax is at last a reality. Chosen as the lesser of tax-raising evils it is now a major part of Michigan's tax system. How the new law will work out in actual practice, what effect it will have on those least able to pay such a tax, is something that cannot be definitely determined until it has been given a thorough trial. Perhaps the one thing that can be said in favor of such a tax, it extracts its continuous toll in such small amounts at a time that, like the gas tax, does not raise the vigorous protest from the taxpayer as did the direct property tax which had to be paid in a lump sum and which finally grew too burdensome to bear.

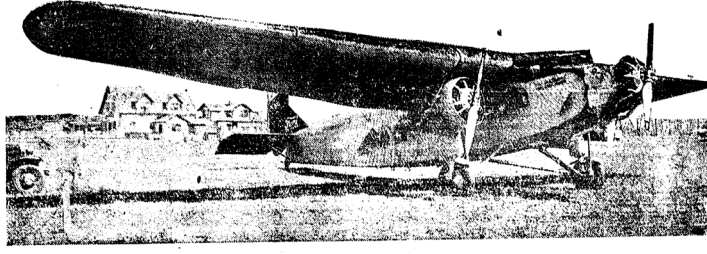

PUBLIC ALWAYS FAIR

Without exception the greater majority of the public is always willing to listen to a reasonable explanation of any controversial issue, and to lend its moral and financial support in the right direction whenever a question of public welfare is at stake. This was clearly demonstrated regarding the 50-cent rod license fee. Owing to a sharp division among the legislators during the closing hours of the session the measure failed of immediate effect, which means it will not become strictly a legislative mandate until 90 days following the final date of adjournment.

BAD PLACE FOR POLITICS

Gov. Constock's own comment upon the summary discharge of the wardens of the three Michigan prisons by the new prison board was this: "Perhaps it is best described as a political change. Although no charges of inefficiency have been lodged against any warden, we have felt that it was time Democrats came into control of such important branches of the government." We can think of few things more perilous to the public welfare and safety than a policy which permits the wardens of penal institutions to be made into political plums. Without in any way intending to reflect upon the capabilities of the men chosen by the Michigan prison board to succeed the outgoing wardens, we contend that the moment efficiency and good service are made secondary to political affiliation, or to a desire to hand out party spoils in deciding who are to be the men in charge of institutions full of desperate criminals, that moment an extremely dangerous and evil situation starts to develop. The Governor is making a serious mistake in permitting anything of this sort in Michigan—Detroit Free Press.

AND NOW IN CLOSING—

Just sing me a song of the golden spout, don't worry about the words or the tune, just what I want to know is it really true, that they are telling of Bill and his crew; how the welkins ring through the live-long day, with shouts and songs of the warriors gay, they're whooping it up with an awful din, for omigosh how the money rolls in. The boys all grumbled when the property tax, was given a touch of the husband's axe, what will we do for money to spend, we can't go on giving jobs without end; so they put a tax on the poor man's bread, some more on his shroud when he's finally dead, and they didn't forget the children's milk, but evened that up on the rich dame's silk; and that's how they levied through thick and thin, and omigosh how the money rolled in. There's a farm far and near, but the boys will spend it so we are told, as the river flows with its wealth of gold; they've fired all the wardens and changed the rule, to make heavenly days for the lowly nuck, you can hear me yell above all this din, for omigosh how the money rolls in.

SEEN AND HEARD IN OUR TRAVELS

It was with rather trembling knees and a weak heart that I stepped aboard the big 40-motor Ford cab plane at Escanaba on Monday morning for our trip to Manistique. The pilot, one of Alex Creighton, local Ford dealer, was not really understanding just what caused our condition as it wasn't our first experience in a plane. Perhaps the trip over Escanaba had something to do with it as we traveled just about as fast as we did coming back in the plane. Scott Creighton, who took the delegation of "air enthusiasts" to Escanaba, seemed as though he was trying out for Fourth of July war or at least trying to break some records. May be he was just getting us ready for what was going to happen. At any rate we hit a dip of better than 70 miles an hour through one swamp where the road was rather bumpy. Scott said we wouldn't notice the bumps so much by getting faster and truly we think that he was right. We didn't notice anything much except the speedometer figures who made the trip included Volney Tipton, Everett Cookson, Clyde Huft, Ray Besser and the writer. The latter had never been up in a plane. Before leaving the ground at Escanaba the pilot, "Red" Carney, took out his map and drew a straight line from Escanaba to Manistique. This route took us over the bay and across the water. Green Garden peninsula. Before the take-off, the giant ship was thoroughly gone over by the mechanics. Everything was checked and double-checked and the motors were set in operation. They paraded they paraded at times while the pilot was warming them up and some of the boys no doubt got a bit nervous while waiting some fifteen or twenty minutes for the start. There was one consolation when the pilot told us that smoking was permissible in the plane. The big plane, which has accommodations for fourteen passengers, has seats much the same as large buses. There is plenty of aisle space and a lavatory in the rear. The take-off seemed especially easy and there was no sensation unless one took occasion to glance down at the ground. As we gained a height of some 2,000 or 3,000 feet the city of Escanaba looked like a miniature village. Big freighters out in the lake resembled toy boats that one would see small boys playing with in a pool. Fishing tugs looked like little specks on the water. Green fields looked like small carpets, highways and streams appeared as small ribbons and the entire panorama was one that is hard to describe. The pilot informed us at one time that Lake Superior was visible but we didn't have the nerve to step across the aisle and look out as Cookson was sitting on the opposite side. However, it wouldn't happen the plane if we had all gotten on one side. Occasionally we would strike an air pocket. The plane seemed to drop down suddenly and the bumps felt something like riding over a cinder road. There were few air far between and for the most part one could not tell that they were bumps at all. After being comfortably settled for a while in the

Level Cultivation For Spuds Needed

The cultural practice of leaving the soil level in potato fields is a practice that can be followed by commercial potato producers and home gardeners alike. Potatoes require a large quantity of moisture to produce a good yield and excessive ridging of the soil about the row exposes more surface to the sun and air. This practice results in the soil drying out faster than it would if left level. When caring, they is put in a cack or windrow, when drying clothes the housewife hangs them on a line. If we want to conserve the moisture in the soil it should be left level.

Some of the finest specimens of German Brown trout that we have seen were caught this week by Orin Burrell who, we believe, has gained the title of the country's champion fisherman. Among German Brown caught by Burrell this week was one that measured sixteen and a quarter inches. The fish were caught on flies. We can't tell you where Mr. Burrell makes his catches because, like most good fishermen, he keeps a secret.

Strange things happen near the midnight sun, etc., but one of the strangest things we have heard happened right here on Wednesday. Mrs. Jack Johnson, who with her husband operated the Blue Springs Tavern on U. S. 2 just east of the city, called a number on the telephone. The telephone is of the old type wall variety which has a small iron spring underneath the receiving coil. She was waiting for her husband when a snaky snake's head only a few inches from her face. Needless to say, Mrs. Johnson received a real shock. Fred Anderson, Standard Oil salesman, was there at the time and removed the snake with a stick. It measured a little better than 12 inches and was what is commonly known as a grass snake. The telephone is near the door and it is believed that the snake crawled in through the door and then up along some devices in the wall.

For the second time in our history we know how it feels to be looked over by the conservation officers. The two local wardens, Messrs. Mariette and Generon, checked our car when we left for a dock at Thunder Lake last Sunday. We had some mighty fine bluegills and a few northern pike but when the fish were all laid out on the dock we had very grave doubts as to one particular bluegill which looked like a white perch. The warden checked the required six inches. How that bluegill got into the basket is more than we could explain to the wardens as we had thrown away quite a number that were larger. The warden produced a rule and the fish was found to be a trifle better than six inches long. Because of their shape, the length of a bluegill is very deceiving as the warden said. It is a splendid catch these fish are in fairly well water. The warden was in a lot of catching them. It is too bad we haven't more bluegill fishing in the county. The fish was a splendid bluegill late in one time but since its designation as a pike lake no bluegills or bass have been planted by the state. As a result these fish are fairly well caught. We are in hopes we will see a lot of them when we get to a bass lake, the only difference being that the fishing there will open on June 25th of each year instead of May 1st.

It is for these reasons that it becomes advisable to take precautions to see that every advantage is given the crop. When the soil is left level there is less evaporation of moisture than if it is ridged about the row. The level cultivation idea is accepted by the better growers throughout the upper peninsula but there still remains a large percentage of growers who feel that it is a good idea to ridge the soil about the row.

Some discussion has been given in previous articles on the idea of not cultivating too deep after the crop has started to send out long lateral roots. This leads to the idea of how long cultivation should be continued. It has been found that it is a much better practice to quit the cultivator soon after the crop starts to bloom and to give the soil a final trowling on the roots. To cultivate after this time, especially if the cultivator is so used, means to reduce the yield of the crop.

OLDEST FORD DRIVER

J. M. Crow, 86, of Ethel, Miss., the oldest Ford driver in Mississippi, traversed the historic Old Natchez Trace in a covered wagon eighty years ago.

As argued today at 89 he is an American history hero so picturesquely typical, J. M. Crow of Ethel, Miss., is the oldest Ford driver in Mississippi and one of the oldest in the United States.

When as a babe of two years he rode with his parents in one of a train of 30 covered wagons out of the old county, Georgia, into Mississippi, the Old Natchez Trace followed by the brave little band was still infested by the swabbling ruffians whose bloody outrages gave that era its place in this country's history as "the outlaw years."

One of his vivid memories is hearing as a boy of six, the news of General Scott's victorious assault upon the heights of Chapultepec in the oldest Mexican War in 1847, and his proudest memory is of honorable service as a Confederate soldier during the Civil War. LUMBER MARKET PICKS UP BRISKLY

Increasing indications that the lumber market is picking up briskly are noted in the market outlook. In recent days the market outlook, the Crystal Falls Diamond Hill Mills.

The shipments from accumulated stocks are causing mills to look about for replenishing their piles. Lumber can't be saved to day, and shipped tomorrow; it must stand in piles a long time, most mills stocks have become badly broken so that there must be a replenishing of business to keep up.

The Northern Saw Mills Co. at Savelia has been hampered by a scarcity of logs. It is reported that they intend to secure supplies for a resumption of mill activity just as soon as possible. The destruction of the lumber pile in this company's yard a year ago has restricted its opportunity to bank into the present active market. The company owns the Goodman plant; also and a large stock of dry lumber stands there and is available to fill out with the company has put considerable lumber in piles the past few months.

The Wisconsin Land & Lumber Co. at Ironsview is understood to have received sufficient orders to keep it to look for a source of log supply during the summer. The crushers of the company are reported to have been investigating opportunities of getting out some of its log supply in the vicinity of Chequamegon lake.

The Von Platen-Poss mills have closed down some time ago and shipping has been broken from its large yard supplies so large that it's possible that a resumption of operations there may occur sooner than originally planned.

Many Cutting Pulp Wood
The demand for pulp wood is reported to be brisk on all kinds excepting poplar. There is a market that many operators let the timber stand rather than cut it along with the other timber harvested, is getting attention. This timber is entered to a large extent into sulphite pulp but the mills being investigated in this district the lack demand that they wouldn't consider buying any more at any price. An emissary from one of the Fox River Valley mills was in these parts recently looking up hemlock and the pulp mill was he wanted dry logs. It is understood that the demand for this timber for mill supply is picking up.

"Spruce and balsam are the woods most desired for pulp and the buyers want a number of portable mills. These mills saw logs into lumber adjacent to the logging operations and are making available for lumber much timber that the big mill companies will not bother with. There is considerable lumber and other material manufactured by these mills coming onto the market at the present time."

Market Advancing
The Marquette Mining Journal declares that:
"Lumber operations in the peninsula and in Wisconsin continue to improve, market reports indicating that the recent advance on all northern hardwood and softwood lumber are being sustained. While cedar shingles, fence posts and also hick are moving."

Higher Prices Sustained
Michigan birch, basswood, hard maple, soft maple and soft pine is moving from the mills at prices averaging $23 to $7 per 1,000 feet higher than the low levels prevailing in trade at the time of the business revival following the end of the bank holiday. It is evident that some of the mills in the north have looked ahead at current prices and there is talk of withdrawing lists and making further advance revisions for all scarce items.

The identical mill reports from the Northern Hemlock Association show a good gain in business as compared with the same period a year ago. In the week ending June 3, reports of 10 identical mills operating in Wisconsin and upper Michigan show a gain of 28 per cent in softwood orders and a 300 per cent gain in new hardwood business as compared with the corresponding week last year. These reports also show that current production in the north is negligible.

"A feature of the market as pertains to lumber and forest products from upper Michigan is that prices in this area are more stable than in some of the other producing regions. The wholesale market for northern hardwoods, such as birch, maple, basswood, soft pine, rock elm and beech, is not so erratic as the markets for hardwoods in some of the other producing regions and there is not the different range in quotations for the different species."

All northern lumber is now moving from the mills at prices far below the prevailing market rates. In the week ending June 3, the last three years there was a steady decline in the market for all the northern hardwoods and thicknesses. This was followed by a general curtailment in production as prices fell before the depression in the manufacture. In the last two years lumber production in the north has been at a low level in the history of the industry."

The large number of sponsored programs leaving the air waves this summer has made this department one of the most interesting. We are losing a great potential market for their goods. Of course, there will always be a number of people who are not interested in their cars while programs are being broadcast, but even at that time they are being advertised with radio. Statistics also show that the number of cars on the road now is less than at any time in the past four years. It is surprising that more people are staying home.

It's little things like this that make life so interesting. Rosaline Greene, veteran N. B. C. radio actress, played the lead in the revival of "Show Boat" on the Maxwell program recently. She did so against her doctor's orders, but because she felt "the show must go on." After the broadcast she was rushed home to bed, where she remained for the next three days. A case for you, Rosaline.

Two new personalities have joined the WPMJ staff. They are Nathan B. Falvo, former N. B. C. production man, who will serve in a similar capacity on WPMJ, and Lucy Long, who brings a rich background of experience to her daily programs on the care of home and children. In addition to some startling short-cuts to provide women with more leisure during her career before radio, she managed a farm, harvested the crops, sold on the open market and to dealers, ran a store, managed a toilet goods counter in a department store, acted as hostess at a northern Wisconsin resort, and worked as an interior decorator—an experience necessitated by the death of her husband. She may be heard daily, except Sunday, at 8:45 a.m. (CST).

Ingham Legislator Looks At Michigan's New Deal

By V. J. Brown

Six months of the new deal has passed and Michigan citizens in considerable number are asking themselves what has actually been accomplished and what may be expected of the future. It is now about 15 months since this writer has written a series of articles which earned rather wide circulation among the taxpayers of Michigan which an attempt was made to evaluate the state government of that day and to point out to the taxpayers.

Since that time the new deal has been coming to this writer and an attempt was made at that time to discuss in behalf of the people of the state or just the taxpayers. Some rather interesting discoveries were then made.

During recent weeks many appeals have come to this writer asking him to review the session of the legislature just closed and to point out some of the influences which have worked against the adoption of the reforms promised last fall when the campaign was on and again this spring when the people expressed their choice at the polls.

Because of this demand, and in view of the widespread interest of the reading public of Michigan in the truth regarding the affairs of their state government, I have decided to submit a second series of articles dealing with current things at Lansing and in state political circles. In doing so a sincere desire is held that this series, like the foregoing, shall be free from partisan bias and that the truth only shall be related. Again I shall present no opinions other than is necessary for reader interest. In keeping with the preceding series, what is written here will be based upon the record and statements of fact based on records open to all at Lansing. Some interesting comparison will be possible as between the payrolls of 1932 and those of 1933 under the economy laws laid down by the campaigners at Michigan's two most recent elections.

Outlines Problems

On January 5, when Governor William A. Costonck appeared before the joint convention of the house and senate to deliver his inaugural address, he stressed few points, promising that later as he became more familiar with state problems and better acquainted with his legislature he would further reveal his administration program. On January 5 he stated it was his judgment that the most important measures for early consideration included direct welfare relief and a provision for public works to give employment to heads of families out of work, old age pensions, state aid for primary schools, primary election reforms, revision of workman's compensation laws to include occupational diseases, complete revision of the tax system, and, last but by no means least, he emphasized economy in every branch of state government.

Less than a month later he transmitted to the house and senate a message in which he announced the cancellation of taxes of 1927 and prior years and an extension of time to delinquent taxpayers of 1928 and subsequent years which amounted to a virtual cancellation of delinquent taxes for current support of municipalities and schools as well as a repudiation of the so-called calamity bonds sold by municipalities on security represented by the delinquent taxes then suggested to be cancelled. The governor further in his message of Feb. 2, again pointed out the necessity of revision of the tax laws.

Gives Third Message

On March 5, Governor Costonck requested the joint convention of the two branches of the legislature in order that he might appear in person and deliver a third message. He then asked that the malt tax law be amended to permit the release of about $250,000 to the counties to be applied against a nearly $2,000,000. He again urged the revision of the tax laws and the submission of an amendment to the state constitution to permit a lower than the average rate of taxation for personal property and intangible and the adoption of a graduated income tax measure. He also at that time urged as his plan that a constitutional convention should be called for a complete revision of the state constitution.

In keeping with the foregoing administration program, from time to time numerous bills were introduced and promoted by administration leaders designed to bring about the accomplishment of the reforms sought and advocated.

So far as the records of the house and senate are concerned, the foregoing constitutes the administration program to date.

Need Big Stick

Frequently governors have improved their respective political positions by jerking the legislature into unfavorable light in the public mind. The public appears to like that sort of thing. Mr. Averette Citizen harkens back to the days of "Teddy" Roosevelt and his "big stick" and cheers lustily whenever the chief executive, by force of character, a strong personality, or by sheer ability, forces his house and senate into a position where the members respond to the crack of the whip.

Students of politics and political maneuvers are a unit in insisting that every such situation an able governor is required—a governor able to think ahead of the legislature as well as to execute a carefully worked out program of genuine merit.

Never since the days of Steven P. Mason has the administration been confronted with more perplexing problems than those faced by Governor William A. Costonck and the members of the 1933 legislature.

When the legislature convened in January there were many problems to be solved, those problems for the most part falling naturally under four general headings: Indigence and welfare matters growing out of an extended period of unemployment were paramount. Intimately interwoven with these problems were the questions of finance and taxation, including the perplexing matter tax delinquency and what to do with lands held under tax liens and about to be confiscated for taxes past due and unpaid. Banking and related financial problems involving the entire credit structure of the state, governmental and private, constituted the third great field of legislative concern. Support of the public school system of the state following the adoption of the 15-mill tax limitation amendment to the state constitution last November, was the fourth.

Boys' horse and dog racing, the small loan law, garnishment exemptions, clash of interests between the railroads and the highway trucking interests, notary public commission rates and a hundred and one similar matters were incidental to the real problems of 1933 but for some reason successfully held the center of interest throughout. The people are out with a big question mark to learn the reason why the big issues were ignored and flimsy, silly and inconsequential questions heard.

Five Main Points

Every successful legislative session is predicted upon a five-point program to borrow a motor car from Phoenix; may be a right in some cases but in the legislative chariot there must be a rigidly defined purpose and a predetermined and agreed-upon course of procedure.

No matter how good a bill may be, it is of no use unless it is passed by a majority vote and is approved by the governor.

One week of honest effort in laying out a program and in having it carefully before the legislature would have saved Governor Costonck a great deal of worry and would have assured Michigan of a much better set of enactments.

It will be the purpose of the next article to take up the course of the most important measures suggested to trace their course through legislative channels, to point out the interests which caused their defeat where defeat was accomplished, and to set forth as near as may be the present status of each of the several proposals. Later along in the series, current payrolls will be employed to show the extent to which the "new deal" economy has been carried.

measure, which the governor had previously declared he would veto if passed.

Give Health Hints For Hot Weather

Taking things easy during the summer months, is the logical procedure for human beings in a climate such as Michigan enjoys, but too often we go to just the opposite extreme, over exercise, overwork, over excesses to such a degree that we are unable to enjoy the pleasures of the season.

Hot weather and vacation taking should be somewhat lighter than in cold seasons, but need not be confined largely to vegetables, as some argue, Dr. Ricker states. Milk is a good summer food and liquids in general will be needed in good quantity to take care of the increased amount evaporated by the skin cooling system. Vacations will do well not to upset their usual dietary habits, unusual foods and strange drinking, water being a frequent overwork, over exercise, overwork, over excesses to such a degree that we are unable to enjoy the pleasures of the season.

Patronage Heads List

But what the program? In contrast with the seriousness of the situation, there was none. Such as there had not been submitted by the governor even to the members of his own party. From the very outset patronage took precedence over the public good. Fetty party quarrels marred the discussion of every important measure to the point that even a majority of the democrats of the house are found on the record in the closing hours of the session as forced to vote for a sales tax.

It Takes More Than Salts, Calomel, Mineral Waters, Oils, or Laxative Pills To Arouse a Sluggish Liver

They Give Only Temporary Relief From Constipation and Bloating. They Have No Effect Whatever on the Liver or Its Production of Bile.

It is nature's laxative and your stomach and bowels require at least one quart of fresh bile every day to keep them clean, pure, free from fermentation, gas and disease germs. When your liver becomes sluggish the bile stagnates and stops flowing freely. The contents of your bowels become the breeding place for germs and rotting your food does not digest. It just ferments and drowns the bowels. The blood absorbs these poisons and you suffer from constipation, gas, sick headaches, indigestion, nervousness and sour stomach. Sargol Soft Milk Pills remove the cause of this condition in nature's way. They are not like any other medicine you ever take. They are 99.9% pure, through and natural.

FOR THE AMERICAN FAMILY

SEVEN or eight thousand men from all parts of the country gathered in Chicago early this year to consider what they could do to safeguard and improve a large part of the means of practically every family in America. The occasion of their gathering was the twenty-fourth annual convention of the National Consumers Association, and it was the most significant convention they have ever held.

A Code of Ethics
The National Consumers Association has a code of ethics. It is a good code of ethics and all but an extremely small percentage of the canned food manufacturers of the United States live strictly up to it.

But the Association was not satisfied with that. It wanted one hundred per cent in the interest, as one of the speakers said, "of the health, happiness and economics of the American family."

PROPER MANNER TO COOK EGGS IS TO DO IT SLOWLY

Experts say the safest of methods for cooking eggs is to do it slowly. It is the only way to insure that the protein content requires slow cooking and thoroughness. As a rule, milk, oil, and cream of their contents, should be treated the same way.

For the several types of omelets, eggs for the table, or omelets, can be employed. When the object is a palatable soft boiled egg, place the egg in cold water, preferable on a rack in the pan or kettle to keep them away from the direct heat. Let the water simmer, but do not let it boil, and, after the simmering starts, remove from the fire, cover, and let stand for as many minutes as the degree of cooking requires.

Hard cook eggs is slightly more intricate. It is desirable that the whites are tender and that the yolks do not crack. The water should be brought to the simmering temperature and held there for about half an hour.

For soft cook eggs is slightly more intricate. It is desirable that the whites are tender and that the yolks do not crack. The water should be brought to the simmering temperature and held there for about half an hour.

For custards, baking should be done in an oven of moderate heat, or about 350 degrees Fahrenheit. The custard dish should rest in a pan of water during the baking.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

A number of newspapers have commented on the statement of Col. House the other day, to the effect that the United States is without a friend among the nations of the world. The statement is undoubtedly true, but why confine its logic to the United States? How many real friends has Great Britain, or France, or Italy among the nations of the world? Not one. Unfortunately there is no such thing as a disinterested friendship among the nations of the earth, and never has been. Perhaps there will be some time in the future when the internationalists succeed in changing human nature, but that time is several thousand years distant. The United States is in no peculiar position in lacking friends among the governments of the world. George Washington well understood the fact that there are no lasting and disinterested friendships among nations. That is why he advised us to avoid European alliances and entangling commitments with foreign powers.

It is true that many of the citi-
