Garden citizens meet

Ask police protection

by Jan Biederstadt

Over 35 local citizens of the Garden Peninsula requested some sort of police protection from the village of Garden.

The meeting was attended by members of the newly organized Delta County Committee for Better Law Enforcement, State Representative Charles Varnum of Manistique, Delta County Sheriff Harold Finman, Chairman of the Delta County Board of Commissioners and the peninsula representative Stanley Dominick, Lt. Clayton Babcock of the State Police Post in Manistique, District Judge Dean Shipman and Loren Woerpel of the United States Forest Service.

Residents requested that the Village Council find some way to protect them from the vandalism and shooting by local youths, to put an end to the speeding and tire squealing problem and stop the general harassment.

Spokesman for the Committee, Jim Walters, requested that a local police patrol be organized. To this Garden Village President replied, "Where're we gonna get the money?"

Money is a problem, since the local village does not have the tax base to afford a public safety department and the townships of Garden and Fairbanks are in similar positions.

The Garden peninsula is located in a far end of Delta County, Escanaba, the county seat is 39 miles from Garden. Garden is an additional ten miles while Fairport at the end of the peninsula is another approximate 4 miles.

This means that when a Sheriff's patrol car is dispatched, it's an hour drive from Escanaba while it would be only a half hour drive for the State Police from Manistique.

Delta County Sheriff Finman said that where in the county after 4 p.m. Finman said that the car gets into the Garden peninsula twice a week.

Several local residents challenged the statement. One added, "The only time you ever see a county sheriff's car is when they're serving subpoenas."

The citizen's committee was organized a few weeks ago, and had 110 residents turn out for the first meeting at Mary Grove Retreat in Garden on June 21. Thirteen were chosen as an executive committee. Chairmen of the committee are Doug Varnum, District Judge, both of Garden. The remaining eleven include Jim Walters, Edward Ansell, John Watchorn, Mike Harm of Fayette, Ned Glenn, Ray Goud, Jim Potts and Clare Ash of Garden, Andrew Cole of Corner Lake, Bill Ward of Fairport and Dick Parkinson of Garden Corners.

The committee has had some initial success. Walters conferred with Loren Woerpel of the United States Forest Service.

Woerpel told both Walters, then the audience at the town hall that the Forest Service would be interested in contracting with the County Sheriff's Department to patrol federal lands for which the Forest Service would reimburse the department between $3,000 and $4,000, plus purchase any equipment that is necessary in order to do the patrol as well as pay for officer training.

While there is federal land in Garden Township, there is no federal land in the Garden peninsula. It would however be of benefit to the peninsula since it would put a patrol car closer to the area.

Rep. Varnum pledged to check all possible sources within the next few days and see if he can't find monies for a local police officer.

Varnum is planning to contact the State

School taxpayers gather

No surprises Tuesday

by Doris Holmstrom

There were no surprises at Tuesday night's meeting between Dr. Norman Weinheimer, executive director of the Michigan Association of School Boards, John Mincoff, representing Citizens Helping Advanced Needs Good for Education (CHANAGE), and the public.

Everything that the Manistique Area Schools Board of Education and Superintendent Richard Bonifas has said in the past relative to the need for increased millage was verified by Weinheimer.

Mincoff, who chaired the question and answer session, asked by some 50 people, began by asking Weinheimer what criteria must be followed in order for the schools to operate on a reduced schedule.

"By law, the schools must provide 180 days of instruction, including 900 hours of instruction before a teacher," he replied.

"If they default on the 180 days, they lose all state aid. In order to have less hours, they must have permission of the State Board of Education, but that's not an easy job."

"It's practice has been to say that it will approve of the cuts only if the board tries one more time to hold one more millage election. The State also audits a board's figures in a cut request. They don't just take your word for it. Your books will be gone over with a fine tooth comb."

"Could the school board borrow money or apply for direct funding from the State?" Mincoff asked.

"You don't have the political advantage of state to receive direct funding from the State," Weinheimer answered. "And it is against the law to default, financially. The board has to submit a balanced budget or each member will be held personally liable if it spends more than it has."

As for borrowing money, he said, "The board can borrow only on anticipated revenue; against an anticipated percentage of taxes from this year, which will be levied in December, or against anticipated State Aid for the coming year. But, if it defaults on the 180 days, the schools lose all of their State aid, so they couldn't borrow against it."

Weinheimer moved to the chalkboard when he was asked to explain millage and State aid for this year. Illustrating his explanation, he answered the question by saying that the State guarantees $43.90 per mill per student for each of the first 20 mills levied locally and $39.40 for each additional mill up to eight. However, because State Equalized Valuation of property goes up, local taxpayers pay more of the $43.90 or $39.40 returned to the schools in the form of State Aid.

In other words, "The State has passed its deficit back on the local taxpayers. That's how they've balanced their budget," he said. "The only way to get more funds, then, is to increase the mills people pay. The average across the state is 28 mills. Most school districts are asking their local taxpayers for three and one-half additional mills this year in order to have available next year the same programs as last year."

"We got so solemnly roused this time that we're not going to try again," cautioned local Board President Harold Cockram.

"Then your only alternative is to ask Mincoff to cut program," Weinheimer said.

Mincoff, however, still wanted to know if there were ways in which the school board could operate with less money, more frugally. To this Weinheimer replied, "Ninety-nine percent of the boards in this state are operating pretty frugally. Here, in a district which is 15 from the bottom, I'd say they've been running a pretty efficient program to begin with."

Following Mincoff's reading of suggested program reductions (including athletics, field trips, forensics, special interest clubs and so on), thought to have been published by the State Board of Education, acting Lakeside Principal Milton Flynn asked, "Who should reach the decision on what is to be cut?"

"The only sane way is for the board to make that decision," Weinheimer said.

"The only people who have a total picture of the total school system is the board and the administration. They can make impartial cuts because they represent all facets of community, all interests."

Prior to the close of the meeting, Cockram directed a question at Mincoff. "Is what Dr. Weinheimer told you tonight materially any different than from what we as a board have told you?" he asked.

"His answers were the same," Mincoff conceded. "But, I felt that we should have some input from another source. And, as I said before, we'll probably check him out, too."

In the words of Board Secretary Margaret Walters, the Board is expected to "come to grips" with the current financial problem at tonight's (July 8) meeting, 7:30 p.m. at the Lincoln School. The meeting is open to the public.

City okays D.P.S. contract

by Jan Biederstadt

Manistique City Council approved a new one year contract with the Department of Public Safety, which raises wages an average of 20 percent, gives more fringe benefits, appoints two sergeants to the force, and gives the city a different union to bargain with in public safety matters.

The council authorized Mayor Frank Hewitt to sign the contract which was ratified by a 3-2 vote in a special council meeting held July 5 at 8 a.m.

The contract between the city and the new union, the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) gives a 15 percent across the board pay raise to the members of the Department of Public Safety, retroactive to June 1. In addition, the officers shall receive a 10 percent pay raise January 1. The top wage in the department will go from $4.30 per hour to $4.95 per hour.

Two sergeants will be added. Bill Reno and Don Belleville have been promoted to the positions. In addition to the pay raises, they will receive an additional $500 in their new position.

Fringe benefits include an increase in clothing allowance, and total payment of medical insurance.

The contract was negotiated by City Attorney Mike Brooks representing the city and Byron Peterson, Bill Reno and Don Belleville representing the FOP.

Councilman Doug Rose and Pete Matheson voted against the contract. Rose stated in an interview that he felt the contract was inflationary and unfair to the DPW, whose contract called for a smaller pay raise. The DPW belongs to the American Federation of Municipal and County Employees, a union of which the Department of Public Safety were members. Rose added that he believed establishing the positions of sergeants was a management prerogative.

City Attorney Brooks felt that the contract was fair, since it put the department's wage scale on a parity with other communities around the peninsula. Before, the average wage was a dollar less per hour than the other communities.

Brooks explained that the sergeant positions were created to monitor the overtime problem, with hopes of eliminating it. Overtime was averaging at 23 percent per officer, ranging from 16 percent to 33 and one-third percent. Mayor Frank Hewitt concurred with Brooks' position.

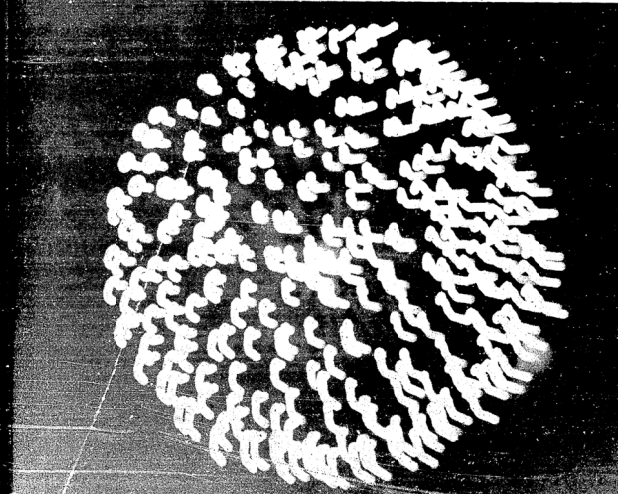

The Department of Public Safety had been without a contract for 35 days. The previous contract expired May 31. Department of Public Safety Director Joe McDonough is still waiting for his contract with the city.

A couple odd birds

When Marquette fish hatchery superintendent Dick Poynter drove a 2-ton truck to Manistique recently to pick up a load of fish pellets, he wasn't aware that he had company on the 100-mile round trip.

But a nervous mother-to-be Robin shifting her feet on an overhead branch and scarcely waiting until the truck was halted before she dropped down to check the eggs in her mobile home glued to a bracket behind the right rear wheels.

She immediately began the rearing process, and the following day her three babies hatched out, oblivious to the track record they had established for the upcoming change in truck schedules which were drawn up on their behalf.

Meanwhile, at his camp in Eagle Harbor, John Sinecek was making preparations to capture what he thought was a squirrel trapped behind the closed doors of his Franklin stove. At first glance it appeared that the stove was filled with black feathers from which emerged a long beak that hissed at him. Its owner reorganized the feathers, hopped up on the stove shelf and dove back into the 8-inch stove pipe from whence he came.

A wrong turn deposited him in the clean-out, and it was there that John caught up with a thoroughly subdued and soot-blackened biter, a lesser member of the heron family. When released, the bird didn't fly but took off down the road on foot, he was trouting pretty fast, John said.

So until the next rain, at least, north Keweenaw bird-watchers will be leafing through their books in vain...

County Extension

by Elvin Hopker

HERE COME THE BUGS! Gardeners beware! Bugs are on the move. From now until the first frost, home vegetable gardens are likely to be invaded by a number of serious insect pests. According to Don Crean, Extension entomologist at Michigan State University, you should be on the lookout in July for aphids, corn borers, cabbage worms, slugs and flea beetles.

Aphids are small, soft-bodied insects that feed on plant juices sucked from leaves and stems. They usually feed from the undersides of leaves. Unless you check plants closely, you may not realize you have them until their population is huge. Because aphids at this time of year are all born female, populations can build up to unbelievably high numbers very rapidly. It takes only one aphid to start a colony that can do a lot of damage in short period of time, Crean says.

Aphids commonly feed on cabbage, cucumbers, corn, beans, tomatoes and peppers, and most garden crops are susceptible to at least one species of aphid.

Feeding by large numbers of aphids can reduce plant vigor and decrease yields, Crean says. Many aphids also transmit viruses that cause plant diseases. These may further reduce yield or even kill the plant.

Inspect plants closely and often, paying particular attention to the undersides of the leaves, Crean advises. If aphids are present, control with malathion or diazinon applied to the undersides of the leaves. With all insecticides, follow label directions for amounts, frequency of use, plants and plants the material may be on, and the length of time that must elapse between last spray and harvest.

Corn borers The larva of the European corn borer is a small, light brown caterpillar. It bores into an ear of corn through the side of the ear or from the stalk end and feeds on the young, sweet kernels. The same worm enters peppers around the edge of the cap that fastens the pepper to the plant.

Controls are used to keep the worm out of the edible part of the plant, Crean says. Once it is inside, it is too late. For both corn and peppers, the recommended chemical control is a combination of Sevin and diazinon sprayed on the undersides of the leaves as well as on the ears and fruits.

Cabbage worms At this time of year, little green caterpillars on cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli and other cole crops are probably the larva of the imported cabbage worm butterfly, Crean says. The velvet green worms chew large holes in the leaves of these crops and can destroy whole fields in a short time.

In mid-August, the imported cabbage worm will be joined by the cabbage looper, a light green worm with a white stripe down each side. It gets its name from its looping, inchworm motion across a leaf.

Controls for cabbage worms include Sevin, diazinon, malathion or Bacillus thuringiensis, a bacterial disease of caterpillars that is sold under the trade names Biorol, Dipel and Thuricide. It is toxic only to the worms; it will not harm other insects or humans.

Slugs Slugs are not insects. If you've never seen one, imagine a snail without a shell. Slugs feed on almost any garden crop, Crean says. They feed at night and spend the daylight hours hiding in a dark, cool, damp places. Removing much and eliminating other hiding places is usually recommended to get rid of slugs. Another way is to place old boards around garden site as slug traps. The slugs will crawl beneath them to hide. Then all you have to do is tip the boards over and let the sun kill the pests.

A saucer of stale beer set in the garden at night will also eliminate some slugs, Crean notes. Drawn by the smell of sugar or yeast, the slugs crawl in and drown. There are no chemical sprays labeled for use against slugs, he points out. Cultural controls - removing much, watering less often to keep the soil surface drier, are your best bet.

Flea beetles Flea beetles are tiny, usually black insects about one-eighth inch long. They are very active and jump from one leaf to another to feed. They eat small holes in plant foliage, giving the leaves the appearance of having been shot with a shotgun.

Control flea beetles with malathion or diazinon as soon as you see the damage, Crean says. Always read and follow label directions when applying any chemical to your garden, he urges.

Circus coming to town

The youngest member of the Franzen Brothers Circus, two-year-old Sophie the lioness, will arrive in Manistique July 14 with Okha the elephant, Tonto the horse, Chico the llama, Buddy and Fritz the "chick-dogs" and seven performing goats for shows at 4 and 8 p.m. in the vacant lot located next to the New Armory.

Their tour began in February when the brightly painted circus caravan headed south so that the animals could continue their daily rehearsals. It was too cold at the circus' winter quarters in Central Wisconsin for the animals to work out here. The show opened in Texas in March.

Wayne Franzen, owner and animal trainer of the Franzen Bros. Circus, taught students before he taught animals. Franzen was a teacher of industrial arts at Stevens Point High School in Stevens Point before, in 1971, he realized his lifelong dream of owning a circus. Several of his former high school students travel with the show as truck drivers, roustabout and performers.

What is a circus? Wayne Franzen answers. "The crowd is happier when it leaves than when it comes into the Big Top. They have had a better show than they expected. Live animal acts reflecting skillful and patient training are the heart of the circus. Animal acts surprise and amaze small children and the adults who bring them. Clowns are the frosting of the circus. The animals, the clowns, the acrobats, the jugglers, the happy music are for the who family. They entertain all ages."

Advance tickets for both July 14 shows here are available at the fire department or from the volunteer firemen.

It's the duty to all C.B.'s to stop and give assistance or use your C.B. to get help for those who DON'T have a radio. It only takes a minute or so of your time if someone is hurt or sick. Rosanne Reid crowned Miss Schoolcraft County

Rosanne Reid 20, Cooks, was crowned as Miss Schoolcraft County by Mayor Frank Hewitt July 1 at the Fireside Inn in Manistique.

Rosanne was one of 11 girls who tried for the title. Other members of her court were Paula Kigstad, 18 of Manistique and Karen Norbotten, 18 of Manistique.

The contest was judged by Faye Archer, Thompson; Phil Jones, Gulliver and Joe Barber, Manistique. The girls were rated on natural beauty, personality and grooming.

The ten other contestants were: Anne Chandler, Wendy Louis, April Burns, Sally Frankovich, Kathy Jessick, Patti Fisher, Vicki Lambert, Jenette Morton, Tammy Hentschell and Jill Jenerou.

The program began with a dinner. A birthday cake was presented to Mayor Hewitt of Manistique by the chairperson of the contest, Cindy Pewley. The judging followed.

Each of the thirteen girls wrote a brief biography about themselves and were asked three questions by the judges. Questions ranged from social and moral issues to opinions of the new high school and what Schoolcraft County had to offer.

After the first questioning, five were chosen as semi-finalists. The five included the court as well as Patricia Fisher and Kathy Jessick.

The semi-finalists were then each asked one question. After deliberations, the judges were unable to decide winners, so the five were again, questioned. This time, each was asked what they respected most about their friends.

Rosanne Reid was then crowned by Mayor Hewitt as Miss Schoolcraft County. She was presented a trophy and a bouquet of roses donated by the Manistique Pioneer-Tribune.

Police to see if an officer could be located on the peninsula and to contact L.E.A., a federal crime prevention program which funds some local projects.

County Board Chairman Stanley Dominick said that the Board will discuss the situation at the July 20 board meeting, but no action could be taken until all facts are known.

Problems stem from a group of males ranging in age from 17 to 22. The problem has been building over the years, said Fairbanks Township Constable Bill Ward.

Ward said that most of the boys come from broken homes and have to fend for themselves. He said that they feel picked on and are retaliating. Their acts range from speeding and spalling tires on the main street in Garden, to vandalizing buildings, stoning tractors on the main road in the peninsula and shooting out windows and signs, as well as the general harassment of local citizens.

Hospital patients

Patients at the Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital the week of July 7 were: Thelma Zander, Denise Brew, Louise Oliver, Leona Merin, Wallace Bridges, Laverne Mocauley, Joseph Lesica, Mary Murphy, Edna Haskey, Mary Kockstad, Fern Ballas, James Brownman, Billy Chandanis, Rose Kircherbauer, Rosa Richards, Merle Hawes, Betty Hartley, Roberta Koski, Staunna Boehfort, Joseph Arderson, and William Danner.

Local students attend MTU program

Cindy Savoie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Savoie, 609 Garden Avenue and Peggy Hawn, daughter of Mrs. Jean Hawn and the late Dr. Robert Hawn attended the second annual week-long Careers in Management for Women Program at Michigan Technological University which began Sunday, June 27.

Initiated last summer, the program gave 85 high school students from nine states a close look at business and management through a management assimilation, a marketing game, role playing situations and an introduction to computer programming.

Included during the week were introductory lectures by MTU business instructors on such subjects as the principles of organization, accounting, finance and banking.

The girls stayed in dorms on campus.

A BI-CENTENNIAL BIRDHOUSE was this week's "find" in the on-going search for red, white and blue. The birdhouse is perched high atop a pole in the Darryl Bertrand yard, 702 Oak St., and is one of the more imaginative contributions to Manistique's celebration of America's 200th birthday. AVOID HERBICIDE INJURY TO DESIRABLE PLANTS.
George T. Homewormer used a hand-pumped sprayer to put weedkiller on the bushes that had grown up along his back fence. Then he swished it out with water and used the same sprayer to apply an insecticide on his tomato and pepper plants.

Two days later, George went to the local greenhouse to buy new tomato and pepper plants.

"Weedkillers don't kill just weeds," says Al Putnam, Extension herbicide specialist at Michigan State University. "Weedkillers kill plants. Careless use of herbicides often results in damage to plants other than the intended target."

Using sprayers for more than one purpose is one way to get herbicides on desirable plants. Another is to use an herbicide on a windy day. Drift from sprayers can travel a long way on a breeze and injure vegetables, flowers, and landscape plants, Putnam warns.

A separate sprayer for herbicides is a good investment. Keep it backed up with your weed-killing chemicals and label it "Herbicides Only" to be certain it doesn't get used on vegetables or other desirable plants.

"Avoid damaging your ornamentals - or your neighbor's prize roses" by spraying herbicides only on a calm day. Early morning and evening around windows are usually the quietest times," Putnam advises. Spray carefully, using no more than the chemical than is needed, following label directions.

"If you must use a sprayer for more than one kind of chemical, clean it thoroughly," Putnam advises.

"Water-soluble chemicals can be removed by repeated rinses of water. Be sure to empty the rinse water on an area where there is no danger of contaminating water or injuring crops. Do not dump the rinse water down a storm drain."

A strong solution of detergent or washing soda left in the sprayer for 24 hours and sprayed through it before and after the soak should remove more herbicide chemical salts, he adds.

"Soluble chemicals are very difficult to remove from a sprayer." Cleaning requires using kerosene or fuel oil or a solution of household ammonia and water, and this results in the problem of how to properly dispose of the cleaning material," Putnam says. "If you use a water-soluble herbicide, your best bet is to have a separate sprayer for it."

TREAT THE BIRDS TO GARDEN FRUITS.
Protect backyard fruit crops or the birds they harvest them for you, says Glen Frenzer, Extension Wildlife Specialist at Michigan State University.

"Starlings, robins, catbirds, orioles and other songbirds can get most of your fruit crop unless you take steps to prevent it," he says. "Strawberries, raspberries, grapes and peaches are crops birds find most attractive."

Before investing in bird control devices, be sure the birds are really the primary problem. In some crops, such as apples and tomatoes, birds may be going after insects that have infested the crops. The birds will leave the crops alone once the insects have been destroyed.

THE MOST DELICIOUS FLOAT in any of the Fourth of July parades has to be the one centered by Leo's Market in the parade held in Garden. The homemade cake was baked by Patricia and Debbie Tatrov and consisted of 49 pounds of homemade frosting, 32 different flavo cake mixes, 4 dozen eggs, 16 pounds of cream cheese, 14 pounds of sugar, 6 pounds of shortening. The cake was trimmed with several pounds of cookies. After the parade pieces of the cake were given to the public. (Photo by LaButte)

The Kangaroo Ivy

Australia, of course, is the home of the kangaroo ivy. It is native to the southern section of the continent in the state of New South Wales, famous for its great city of Sydney and the beautiful range of Blue Mountains. Long thought by botanists to be a kind of grape because of the similarity of its flowers and tendrils to those of grapes. It is now agreed that the kangaroo ivy belongs to a related group, Cissus, a name that comes from the Greek Kisson meaning ivy.

For best results, give kangaroo ivies bright reflected light. Let the soil become moderately dry between thorough waterings. Do not overfeed these plants fresh from a florist do not need feeding for four to six months; thereafter, feed them at four-month intervals with any house plant fertilizer.

Hurray for the red, white, and blue!

After Bicentennial dog houses, Bicentennial pant-suits, Bicentennial ball games, Bicentennial this and Bicentennial that, we thought we'd had it with the old red, white and blue. America's 200th birthday had been bartered, photographed and written to the limit. Any Fourth of July parade, fireworks display or picnic get-together would be anti-climatic at best.

We were wrong. In Manistique, as in the rest of the nation, our celebration of this nation's 200 years of independence was stirring, even breath-taking at times, and a lot of fun.

It was stirring to see the American flags posted high above Cedar St. as the bands marched below them playing patriotic songs. It was breath-taking to realize that the fireworks bursting over A.F. Hall Stadium signified America's fight to gain and to retain an independence unequalled anywhere in the world. It was fun, and it was indeed a privilege to be a part of this country's biggest Birthday Party.

We couldn't help but be proud to be Americans and proud to be citizens of Manistique; and we can not forget those people who contributed to making the parade floats a success, especially those who worked on parade floats. For several weeks before the event, many hands were busy with hammer and nail, folding napkins and welding a spray paint can to ready them for Saturday morning's procession. To those people and to the others too numerous to mention by name, we say, "Thank-you."

For the next 200 years, and for the 200 years after that...let the Red, White and Blue fly.

Following up murdered newsmen's story

by Jack Anderson With Joe Spear

WASHINGTON — Don Bolles, an investigative reporter for the Arizona Republic, was murdered earlier this month after getting close to the truth. The last words he gasped were: "Mafia...Empire...They finally got me."

We sent one of our investigative reporters, Larry Kraftowitz, to Phoenix to finish the story that Bolles had started to investigate. Kraftowitz learned that Bolles had been in secret contact with a Phoenix businessman named Fred Porter Jr.

Porter had given Bolles a file on Empire Corp., a shrewd sports consortium, which he claimed was manipulating the Arizona Racing Commission. He spoke with Bolles about Empire shortly before the reporter left to keep his appointment with Bolles.

After Bolles was blown up in his car, Porter spent three hours at police headquarters. The Phoenix police withheld his name and put him under police guard for three days. The same day that the guard was withdrawn, Porter was situated over a head twice with a pipe.

When he isn't passing out toilet paper, Fary serves faithfully as the mayor's messenger. Daley tells him how to vote and whom to hire. Accordingly, Fary has placed three of the mayor's underlings on the congressional payroll. They are paid to work for Congress, but they spend most of their time doing political chores for Mayor Daley.

Applause should be allowed

by Jim Fitzgerald

A year's quota was fore-filled in only 12 hours on a recent Sunday when I heard the same minister speak twice. So it seemed fair enough to ask the person sitting next to me: "Where is Madalyn O'Hair when a guy really needs her?"

I was only kidding. The person sitting next to me, sharing handouts, was my wife. She has been singing in the same church choir for 34 years and she doesn't think much of wise guys who make cute jokes about church services.

She doesn't even think it's funny when I tell people she is going to stay in that choir until they give her a solo.

The reason for hearing two sermons in one day was The Graduate, my son.

He and the other grads from our church, and their parents, were honored at a breakfast before the morning service. It was impossible to eat and run, because of the handouts, so I heard sermon No. 1.

Baccalaureate was that evening in the high school, which meant sermon No. 2. It was a nice coincidence that our minister had been invited to speak. He is good, and it was really no terrible chore to attend a double feature. In fact, my wife could have unlocked the cuffs and I would have stayed on a trassy status.

But my dumb mind would have wandered off the sermon on the Mount. So, despite the minister's eloquence, I had two unholty thoughts while he spoke.

I wondered if there were any atheists among the 400 graduates in my son's class. And I wondered why it had to be so quiet on the basketball court.

Madalyn O'Hair is the nation's most famous atheist. Recently I chided her for trying to stop Detroit city employees from praying on public property. I said the alleged violation of the church-state separation was so minimal and elusive as to be laughable, and hardly worth the time of such a high-powered anti-Christian as Ms O'Hair.

But I would not laugh if she aimed her guns at my son's baccalaureate, held in the public school gym.

A baccalaureate is an organized religious ceremony held for graduates. There is never any attempt to disguise it as anything else. Prayer is dominant. The speaker is a clergyman and God is praised.

So when a baccalaureate is held on public property, the separation between church and state becomes invisible, and the U.S. Constitution is clearly violated.

Certainly there are some non-Christian taxpayers supporting a school large enough to graduate 400 kids in one sweep. If not atheist, maybe Jewish or Buddhist.

How come they don't complain about their tax money being spent to promote such a riddle, which the answer to is, of course, a newspaper. In addition to being well read, however, newspapers have many different uses. A recent article in the Michigan Publisher gave some hints of the uses your newspaper can be put to after they have been read.

Fingers have been a friend to the family budget for as many years as they have hit the news stands.

Papa and Momma both save, but when the lady says "Anything you use them for is gravy - you already paid for the paper to read it."

After the news is read and gossiped over, after the recipes are clipped, the sale prices checked and the coupons torn out, the paper is up for grabs and lucky the person who gets it.

Window washing? Indeed, indeed. This has been known by many for years. In fact, if everyone knew it, there would be fewer sales of the spray and paste concoctions put out by industry to do the job plain old newspapers do so much better.

In fact, just recently a shocked young boy watched a demonstration of newspaper magic when his spray can and rag left her despairing over streaky glass.

Soaking up grease under fries, burgers and the like? Sure. Also in various other situations under something, over something or around something.

You'll find the Morning Blah under the cat's dish, under plants being watered and under the plates of sloppy eats.

The latest news can be found protecting the geraniums from the danger of frost, spread over the bottom of the bird cage and covering shells in the closets, the garage and the pantry.

It's late to undo what was done. I just hope that in the future people on a parade committee or any other such committee remember that a simple thing such as placement of the local high school band shows people their own pride we have in our town. And if as adults we don't take pride in our town, how can we expect kids to be proud that they live in Manistique?

I for one am proud to live in Manistique. I'm even more proud of the kids who are in the Manistique band. They did a fine job and I'm proud to be associated with them.

Letters to The Editor

Letters from readers are welcome. All letters to the editor must be signed; however, names will be withheld if requested. Views given are not necessarily those of The Pioneer Tribune.

To the Editor:

As I'm sure many people are aware, the Manistique High School band was not given the traditional first position in the Bicentennial parade. Instead, the Escanaba City Band was given the honor of being the first band in the parade, a position always given to the high school band of the hosting town. But our band marched in the 29th position, not the first band as it should have been, but even the second band, but the third!

One parade official knows that many of us tried to get him to change the band's position, but with no success. I'm sure that to some people the placement of a band in a parade sounds like such a small thing and a silly thing to be upset about. I don't agree for I feel that this was a great injustice not only to the kids in the Manistique band but to the people of the town also.

About a month ago, while talking to one of the men in charge of the parade, he suggested to me that kids today don't have any community pride and spirit. I believe that students learn community pride and spirit from adults. Yet I feel that our band members (who marched in black wool uniforms on a very hot summer day) have much more community spirit than the parade officials who put not one but two bands ahead of our own home town band.

It's late to undo what was done. I just hope that in the future people on a parade committee or any other such committee remember that a simple thing such as placement of the local high school band shows people their own pride we have in our town. And if as adults we don't take pride in our town, how can we expect kids to be proud that they live in Manistique?

I for one am proud to live in Manistique. I'm even more proud of the kids who are in the Manistique band. They did a fine job and I'm proud to be associated with them.

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank everyone who helped make the Miss Schoolcraft County contest a success. A special thanks to three super ladies who helped at the contest: Mrs. Faye Archey, Mr. Joe McDonaugh, Norma Johnson and Alex Meron.

The judges for the event did a nice job. They were Mrs. Faye Archey, Mr. Joe Barker and Phil Jones.

Others helping to make the event a success were the Fireside Inn, Manistique Floral and Manistique Pioneer Tribune for the queens roses, the First National Bank, State Savings Bank, H.K. Peterson and an unnamed party for broadcasting the event.

Most of all, I'd like to thank the girls that entered the contest - Schoolcraft County can be proud of them!!!

Congratulations to Queen Rosie Reid and good luck at the U.P. State Fair in August.

Knight Templars to hold Picnic

Members of Escanaba commandry No. 47, Knight Templars, and their families will enjoy their annual picnic and outing at Gulliver Lake on Sunday, July 21, it was announced Thursday morning.

Funds granted to pave relocation - nine mile stretch from Cooks to Thompson to be concreted soon.

The Manistique Chamber of Commerce has been granted federal funds to pave the grade on U.S.2 which was constructed in 1934.

The non-Christians can see nothing sinister - and nothing binding - in a ball court. It's no big deal, and no reason to hassle them. Christian friends, Manistique rules and the minority goes along peacefully, with alacrity.

Which brings us to my second wandering thought. Our minister delivered a fine speech that evening, but it was greeted with dead silence.

This was on a basketball floor, where a two-point basket is worth three. The good sermon didn't get a murmur of admiration.

Why is it against the law, or against God or whatever, to applaud in church, or at a religious ceremony held anywhere? I've heard grand singing in church, and I've heard reactions to keep from showing as much appreciation as I give automatically, and halfheartedly, to the fifth column after a play that didn't deserve two claps.

Appraise should be allowed at baccalaureate in school gymnasiums, at least. It would be a great disguise. If Madalyn O'Hair were walking by, she'd never guess what was going on inside.

And I know that this knowing full well how awkward it is to clap hands while being handed to the person sitting next to you.

The society page winds up wrapping around freshly cleaned paint brushes. In sports section finds a natural home in the bottom of the ball box and the funny page is real years later by a little boy who finds his rapping an old picture stored in the attic.

Reporters' undying prose is shredded by mice to make nests, by earthworm growers for feed and by all the people who still believe in paper scraps to start campfires.

Conservation-minded residents stud them up neatly and tie for recycling or, solidly, soak in salt water, dry and use as fireplace logs.

Neat and tidy housekeepers use them to line wastebasket baskets and to wrap their garbage in empty dust bags for vacuum cleaners right on Joe Namath's face.

Newspapers are the lifeblood of some vociferous artists. They rip them apart and glue them together in a form called papier-mache, a magician rips them apart and reveals their miraculous wholeness again, and a commercial fabricator alas, rips them apart to wrap his snell wares.

This is no new thing. Newspapers have been around a long time and many of its former uses have piled into insignificance with the passing of the years.

Come to think of it, there probably aren't very many outlandish anymore where the chinks are stuffed against a winter breeze with sheets from the Daily Gull. Who knows what great thoughts have evolved from plucking a loose sheet for reading and pondering?

Potato Growers will cast vote on Market Order

Potato growers in Schoolcraft County were mailed ballots last week from the county PMA committee, to use in voting "yes" or "no" on the question of continuing Federal Marketing Order No. 8, which restricts the marketing of potatoes in six north central states. "Price support" has nothing to do with this referendum.

Otto Winkel, chairman of the county PMA committee states, "Price support was stopped by order of Congress at the end of the 1950 marketing season. The question for potato growers to decide is whether they want a means of working with other growers to hold prices and support potatoes off the market, to help level supply in balance with demand and to give the consumer a better way of getting a better price."

The petition which was mailed to every grower who produced potatoes for market in 50 were to be filled out and mailed during the week of July 9-13. A self-addressed envelope is provided with each ballot, addressed to R.E. Keller, Chicago, Department of Agriculture official in charge of the referendum.

Kelly is named District Ruler of the referendum. John W. Kelly, long prominent in Elks activities, recently was named district deputy grand exalted ruler of the Michigan northeast area. The appointment was announced by Henry R. Davis, grand exalted ruler of the district.

BROTHERS

We're always encountering the heretical versus environment controversy... even when we think about brothers. It is blood primarily responsible for the bond of comradery and affection pictured here?

Or did the influence of parents and the atmosphere of their home largely inspire this relationship?

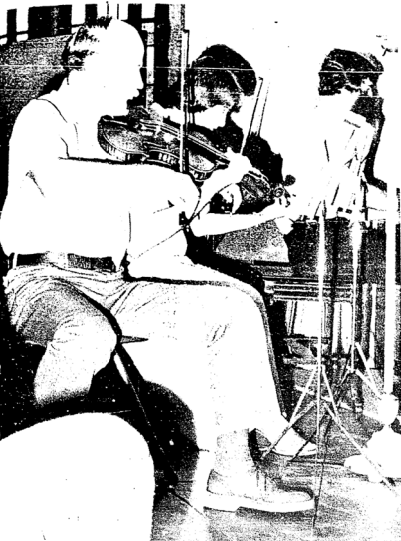

History suggests the answer in man's religious growth: it was when he came to know God as his Father that he began to think of other men as his Brothers.

The beliefs that draw families to church on Sunday inspire the dimensions of brotherhood every day.

Senior Citizens'

by Eileen Males

We have to get this article in early before we have all the 4th of July activities, so we won't know how our fruit made out in the parade. Paul Hanson deserves a gold medal for all the hours he put in constructing the frame of our float. And Norma Johnson and her family really worked on the Senior Citizens Kitchen Band float.

We are wondering if any among you would like to donate $1.00 for treats for the Medical Care Facility patients when we take them out for a ride in our van? Also, we would like to make some old fashioned strawberries shortcake for the patients at Medicare. Our Center Staff will bake the shortcake and furnish the paper plates and prepare it if you will furnish the berries. It's strawberry time and if anyone would like to bring in the berries, call us and we'll do the rest. They have 24 patients there. It's eight people each bring a quart of berries. We'll be in business. Remember, these little deeds of kindness to our fellowmen really count. If you are a Christian, mentioning it never really makes an impression. Living it does.

You do not need to be a Senior Citizen to help us in this endeavor.

Here are some little quotes about loving and anyone who resides in an institution needs and extra dose of loving.

"We may give without loving but we cannot love without giving."

"He who sows courtesy reaps friendship, and he who plants kindness gathers love."

"It is in loving, not in being loved, the heart is blessed."

It is in giving, not in seeking gifts, we find our quest. Whatever be your longing or your need, that give. So shall your soul be fed, and you indeed shall live.

"For we must share if we would keep that blessing from above. Ceasing to give, we cease to have. Such is the law of love."

Our Thrift Store increases from the post office is open and we have lots of real clothes and men's jackets. We wish to thank our volunteers who helped last week. They are: Mable, Maxine, Grace, McLaughlin, Viola, Haindl, Exilda Demers, Mae Barker and Germaine Wester.

We also want to thank George Stevenson and Bob McEwan for all their volunteer help. We are thankful to Phyllis Carlson and Mildred Lowery for clothing donations and to Lil and Art Curran and Rev. and Mrs. Otto Steen for their monetary donations.

Both Cochran brought in baked goods. Birthday greetings go out this week to Irma Brown, Frank Gierke, Alice McNamara, Maude Carrelle, Ray Hanguette on July 10; Vivian Auvion, Arthur LaFon, Ferzema McCarney, July 11; Msgr. F.M. Scheringer, Evelyn Weber, Thor Reque, Wells Bowers and Beatrice Buzzo on July 12; Roy Briggs, Floyd Brown, Edward Jackson, July 13; and Nellie Massey, Alma Burdette, Kenneth Cutler and Gerry Honohil, July 14.

Family Living

by Cecile Turner
Extension Home Economist

The canning season is with us. Some people are canning berries and rhubarb heavily. Most of us are still eating.

This year, we should have enough lids, but they won't be Kerr and Bell. Some have said there will be 10 new companies manufacturing lids this year - when I looked over the list, it was 10 plus.

This week I would like to tell you about a few of the new lids. I want you to be aware of some problems. The information is from the Foods and Nutrition specialists at M.S.U.

There are three kinds of canning lids available and they are two piece, three piece and one piece.

This week, the information will be the two piece. Two piece lids include Ball, Kerr, Owen, Illinois Magic Button, Bernardin, as well as new lids such as Plast-O-Top, Torque-Rite, Mason, Mom, Home Can, Golden Harvest, Iberta, etc. As you can see, the list is quite long. Before a recommendation can be made on all of the new ones, more experimentation must be done.

It is possible that the plastic lids may permit very slow air leakage during storage, with resulting loss of vacuum and oxidation deterioration of the product. Also with the loss of vacuum, it is not possible to visually determine whether or not microbial spoilage has occurred. There is no reason to suspect all products, but the product is new so performance for extended periods is not available.

IBERIA LIDS shiny gold metal with white sealing compound) are made in Taiwan and available in parts of Michigan. We do not know if the sealing compound meets FDA specifications. In addition, we do not know about the performance of these lids during processing and long term storage. Therefore, it might be best to use these lids first for boiling-water-bath processing; if the lids consistently seal under these conditions, then they should be suitable for pressure canning. There are occasional slight imperfections in the clear enamel coating on the underside of some of the lids. Where ever there is a break in the enamel, acids could enter with iron or tin in the lid, resulting in discoloration and metal off-flavors in food. While discoloration and off-flavors are undesirable, they pose no health hazard. Hydrogen gas produced by the action of acids from the product on metal lids could build up and cause the seal to break. If the seal breaks, microorganisms enter the jar and cause spoilage.

Next week, one piece lids will be discussed.
