Schoolcraft County voters narrowly defeated a property tax increase request in a special election held Tuesday.

The final county-wide tally, 779-759, rejected a request from the county to raise taxes by up to 2 mills for three years to fund operation of the county Medical Care Facility. The 20-vote margin of defeat was razor-thin, with 49.3 percent of those voting favoring the millage increase.

The County Board requested the millage to offset bills the county is receiving from the state to help fund the medical care facility. Those bills are expected to be in the neighborhood of $200,000 this year and are a result of a complicated funding scheme signed into law by the state last April.

When notified of the defeat during a meeting, the board did not say what it plans to do without the money the additional property tax would have generated. County Board Chairman Merwin White said "it is something we will just have to play by ear."

Depending on the size of the county's budget surplus in 1982, the additional tax may not be needed. Bills received in 1981 under the funding plan imposed by the state were offset by the '81 budget surplus, supplemented by $50,000 from the facility.

Another hope extended by the board Tuesday night was that the state legislature may change Act 391, under which the county has been receiving the monthly bills. Board Member Lindsey Frenette said "we may be getting through to the legislators and we may get a change in the law."

No mention was made Tuesday about closing the facility, a prospect brought up by the Social Services Board when it originally recommended the millage increase to the County Board.

The turnout for the special election

Tuesday was relatively light, with 24 percent of the county's 6,195 registered voters braving sub-zero weather to go to the polls.

Three of the four precincts in the City of Manistique approved the millage request, with precinct four, the southeast section of the city, turning it down 184-177. Overall, Manistique voters approved the increase by a 6-percent margin, 447-391. Voter turnout in the city was 28 percent.

The four precincts in the county with voter turnouts of over 30 percent all defeated the millage request. They were the city's precinct four, and Inwood, Mueller and Seney Townships. There are 12 precincts in the county.

Seney Township, with the highest share of voters going to the polls, 38 percent, also defeated the proposal by the highest percentage, 80-20 percent. Although the total number of people voting in Seney, 41, was the lowest of all the precincts, the 33-8 vote there against the millage was enough to swing the entire election.

Mueller Township also voted heavily against the millage, 55-16, a 76 percent margin. The 39-vote margin was the highest of any precinct, despite the third-lowest number of people voting.

Of the six precincts that approved the millage request, the city's precinct three went most strongly for it, passing it 116-77, a 60 percent approval.

Sheriff's deputies get pay hike

The County Board approved a contract with sheriff's deputies Tuesday night that provides for a 25-cent-an-hour raise for uncertified deputies and a 50-cent-an-hour pay hike for certified deputies.

Those increases of 4 and 7 1/2 percent are over the $6,211 an hour both classes of deputies received last year. There are five deputies in the Sheriff's Department. Two of them are certified and eligible for the higher increase.

Certified deputies complete an intensive training course and are authorized to make arrests.

Board Member Bill Tennyson, who negotiated the contract with the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP), the union representing the deputies, said the two-tiered pay scale provides incentive for deputies to become certified. "It's the first time there has been incentive for them to be anything besides gatekeepers" at the county jail, Tennyson said.

Other provisions of the contract give the deputies an additional 2 1/2 paid holidays: their birthdays, the day after Thanksgiving and a half-day off on Good Friday.

The contract, retroactive to Jan. 1, will expire Dec. 31. It allows negotiations on wages to be reopened on July 1.

Deputies who complete the certification course during the term of the contract will be reimbursed the cost of the course. They will be paid while attending it whether or not they complete the course.

Another provision in this contract that will cost the county money is a monthly allotment of 50 rounds of ammunition for target practice. Tennyson said the ammunition would be issued to deputies only if the prior month's allotment was used.

The vote by the board to approve the contract was unanimous. In other matters, the board: --Approved a raise for George Daunt, building inspector and head of maintenance for the county. Daunt's salary was increased by $940 to $19,660. That raise brings his salary to the level of other department heads in the county and supplements the raise received when the county passed its 1982 budget.

Tennyson voted against the raise, saying that Daunt's responsibility was not comparable to the other county department heads, who received $1,000. --Heard a report from John Carstensen, head of the Circuit Court's Friend of the Court Department. The department is responsible for overseeing child-support payments from divorced spouses to their families. Carstensen said that the county audit scheduled for this year could come none too soon. In December, Carstensen fired the secretary at the department, and said the replacement hired was "making progress" in straightening the tangled finances left behind. The fired secretary had worked for Carstensen for 13 years.

Until an audit is conducted, the state of the Friend of the Court's finances will not be certain. --Heard a report from Board Chairman Merwin White about the county's search, in conjunction with the city, for a suitable animal shelter.

White said that two prospective sites for a pound had been suggested and that he and City Council Member Bill Hackney would inspect them. Both sites are near City Hall and one is owned by the city. White said. One problem with the old dog pound, closed two years ago, was that it could not be monitored from the Public Safety Department in City Hall.

CHEESE IT: That's what some 600 families in the Manistique area will do when the surplus federal cheese that arrived here Tuesday is distributed at the Senior Citizens Center west Tuesday, Feb. 16. Janet Hunter-Laich of the local Community Action Agency, which will distribute the cheese, holds one of the five-pound blocks of American cheese. The demand is expected to be greater than supply, however, when the free cheese is given out Tuesday.

Reason for wells' contamination still not known for sure

Health officials still haven't pinned down the cause of contamination of several wells discovered last fall.

According to Mark McCune, sanitarian with the district health department here, it is still not clear whether the wells, tainted with coliform bacteria, are contaminated because of faulty construction or if the ground water supply itself is impure. "It could be general contamination or it could be poor well construction," McCune said.

Late last September, McCune tested wells along M-94 between the Indian River and the Stony Cut area and found over 20 contaminated with coliform bacteria. Since then, other wells as far as 1 1/2 miles west of

M-94 have been tested and found to be contaminated.

The most likely reason for the contamination is faulty construction of wells, which would allow impure surface water to infiltrate the water supplied by them. Still, McCune has not ruled out the possibility that, because of shallow soil cover over the limestone bedrock in the area, the ground water the wells draw from may be tainted.

"In compiling some of the data over the last several months, it looks like the vast majority of the places experiencing contamination are also older wells of questionable construction," McCune said. "But, because of the high bedrock, that's what throws a monkey wrench" into determining the cause of the contamination, he cautioned.

The soil cover in the area where contaminated wells have been discovered ranges from 20 feet by the Indian River to three feet and less north of the Frankovitch Road. Farther north, McCune said, the bedrock is "practically at the surface. In some places, it pops right out."

Where the soil cover is thin, water reaches the bedrock still with whatever impurities it may have picked up on the surface. The topsoil that acts as a filter, and water reaching the bedrock, receives little filtering action since the layer is filled with cracks and crevices that allow impure water to run into the ground water supply.

Slightly improper well construction permits unfiltered surface water to contaminate water within the well, either through cracks in the well casings or because the wells were not drilled deep enough to reach the water table level.

By itself, presence of the coliform bacterium does not mean the water is unsafe to drink. What it does indicate, according to McCune, is that other, more harmful bacteria may be present as well. "It's a test indicator that something is wrong," he said. "If we've got the coliform, that would indicate the potential for other organisms to get in there," such as those causing typhoid, dysentery and hepatitis.

Tests to detect those other bacteria, because of their expense, will probably not be conducted. "To test for every different organism gets very expensive and, to put it bluntly, the State Health Department doesn't do it," McCune said.

The problem for McCune is to determine which of the two possibilities—faulty well construction or ground water contamination—is causing the local wells to be tainted.

To find out, McCune said that he planned to test several newer wells known to be properly constructed to

Council approves equipment purchase but may reconsider

A split Manistique City Council voted 3-2 Monday night to purchase a front-end loader and attachments at a total cost to the city of $178,532.

Whether the purchase will actually be made is not certain, since the Mayor David Vaughan on Tuesday called a special meeting to be held Wednesday to reconsider the resolution authorizing the purchase.

Apparently the council is concerned whether the bid accepted is legal. When it advertised for bids, the city specified that they be for a 1982 model year loader. The bid accepted Monday by the council was for an unused 1980 International front-end loader with snowblower and plow attachments.

At Monday's meeting, City Attorney Pat Kelly said that the council could "ignore slight deviations" between the bids advertised for and those received. "Assuming the model year is incidental, I don't see any problem with accepting the bid."

After long discussion, the council voted to accept the bid for the 1980 front-end loader from Bark River Culvert and Equipment Co. Council Members Jerome Peterson and Kathy Wilson voted against the purchase.

On Tuesday, however, Kelly said that the fact the loader is not a 1982 model was a "substantial deviation" from the bids advertised for. "It was brought to my attention that the model year does affect the pricing" of equipment, Kelly said, "and pricing is a substantial deviation." After researching legal precedents, Kelly recommended that the purchase be reconsidered.

If the purchase goes through, the city will pay $2,125 a month for seven years to purchase the equipment. Besides the front-end loader itself, the purchase would include a snow blower attachment, capable of loading city trucks in 31 seconds, and a plow for the loader.

Where the money would come from to pay for the equipment was the subject of a large part of Monday's meeting. The council finally adopted an amended budget that included $8,502 in the Department of Public Works' budget for the payments coming due the remainder of this fiscal year.

Despite that added expense, the amended budget shows an anticipated surplus of $23,230 for the fiscal year ending June 30.

The amended budget adjusted numerous line items on both the expected revenues to the city and what money the city would have to spend.

On the revenue side, the biggest change was a $10,000 decrease in money expected from the sale of lots in Lakeview Cemetery. Mayor David Vaughan said that surveying work at the cemetery had not been completed in time for the expected sales to take place. Overall, the amended budget showed a decrease of $16,350 in expected revenues, to $1,09,900.

On the spending side of this fiscal year.

City needs candidates for council, commission

City Clerk Pat Erickson is looking for a few good men—and women—to run for office in the upcoming city election April 5.

Not only are two four-year terms on the City Council up for grabs, nine seats on the Charter Revision Commission will also be filled in the April election. The deadline for filing a nominating petition is next Tuesday, Feb. 16, at 4 p.m.

So far, Erickson said, only one petition has been completed and turned in for the city council race, by incumbent Bill Moreau, who has served 2 1/2 years on the council. Two other petitions were given out, but have not yet been returned. Jerome Peterson, who has served on the council since his appointment in July of 1980, is circulating one and Mike Dougovito has the other.

A minimum of 50 registered voters living in Manistique must sign the nominating petitions for a candidate's name to be placed on the City Council election ballot, Erickson said.

The other elected offices open in the April election are for the nine-member Charter Revision Commission. City voters are also to vote whether to revise the city's 1968 charter on April 5. If the revision is approved, the members elected at the same time to the revision commission will have three months to come up with a new charter.

That is, if there are enough people interested in running to fill the seats on the commission. Only one petition has been mailed out by Erickson and none have been returned. At least eight signatures are required to complete those petitions.

The lack of interest in running for the commission raises the possibility that voters may approve changing the City Charter but not be able to elect the authority to carry out their mandate. If that happens, another special election for the commission will have to be held—at a cost to the city of $1,800.

Petitions for both the council and commission are available at City Hall.

New trooper arrives

A new state trooper has been assigned at the Manistique post of the Michigan State Police. Victor Cole, 31, began work here Jan. 31 after transferring from the Northville post in the Detroit area.

Graduating from the state police academy in 1978, Cole's only assignment before coming to Manistique was at the Northville post. He said he requested the transfer here because he had spent several vacations in the Upper Peninsula, including Manistique, and liked the area. He replaces trooper Robert Holmberg, who accepted a promotion and transfer recently.

Cole's wife, Belinda, and children Regan, 3, and Richard, 7, remain in Northville while Cole searches for permanent living quarters here. Born in Flint and raised in Traverse City, Cole said he hopes to stay in Manistique for some time, "until I get promoted, which will be a few years, you."

A new state trooper has been assigned to the Manistique post of the Michigan State Police. Victor Cole, 31, of Jackson, Mich., will be the trooper in particular seems to suffer from the problem.

It's also a problem that is probably not isolated to Schoolcraft County or the City of Manistique, but it makes us wonder nonetheless.

Two seats for the City Council are open in the April election as well as nine spots on the Charter Revision Commission. So far, one nomination petition has been completed for the council "race" and none have been turned in for the commission election.

This is ironic. While there is certainly no shortage of criticism for the council one it is safely in office, the local electorate seems to react with a yawn when the opportunity comes along to do something about it. Not only is voter turnout usually low, the apathy extends to finding enough people interested in taking the offices available.

Sure, there are plenty of excuses for not running for local office. Besides being a largely thankless, time-consuming task, the pay is nominal or non-existent. In this particular city election, however, would-be candidates have the opportunity to do something about the low-pay complaint, at least. If voters approve the idea of a charter revision, the revision commission elected at the same time will address numerous deficiencies in the old charter, pay of council members among them.

That is, of course, if enough people are interested enough to run for the nine spots on the commission. If not, voters may face the prospect of approving the idea of changing the charter but not being able to elect officials to carry out their wishes. If that happens, another election, costing around $1,800, will have to be held.

That would truly be a waste of taxpayers' money, but one for which local gafflers will have to come to blame.

We ask anyone who has ever thought the City Council has done a less-than-perfect job to consider running for election. Take your pick: run for the council and have a hand in running the city, or run for the charter revision commission. The commission will have the opportunity to change the way the council itself operates.

Either way, filing a nomination petition by next Tuesday's deadline will give you a chance to put your money where your mouth is.

Is ground water tainted?

In addition, McCune is compiling data for a "groundwater map" describing the water supply below the surface in the area of the contaminated wells.

"When I get done with the map, it should show if there is a high concentration with contamination problems," he said. If there are only poorly-constructed wells in the area, "that could be the bulk of the problem."

McCune noted that the well at the Hiawatha Elementary School, within the area of contamination, has been checked "on a regular basis" and has not shown coliform contamination.

Letters have been sent to owners of wells shown to be contaminated with coliform, advising them to either treat the water to further purify it or get water from another source. The water can be purified, McCune said, by boiling it or adding a few drops of bleach to each gallon of water.

McCune hopes to have the answer to the contamination puzzle soon. "Hopefully, by the end of March, I will have done what I can do" and he will call a meeting of those concerned to discuss the matter. People suspecting contamination of their wells may have a water sample tested for the presence of coliform bacteria. To do that, McCune said a sample kit can be picked up at the District Health Department office in the courthouse.

The kit includes instructions and a sample bottle, which should be filled and mailed to a testing laboratory in Powers. The test is free, aside from the cost of postage.

Schools expect budget surplus

Backing the national trend of large budget deficits, the Manistique Area Schools District is projected to have a surplus at the end of their financial year in June.

The School Board heard this encouraging report from Administrative Assistant Margaret Cain and Superintendent Richard Bonifas at its regular meeting Tuesday night.

According to the figures in the January financial report presented to the board by Cain, the projected surplus, or "fund equity," is $93,541. That amount doesn't reflect the payment of $3,655 to eliminate the yearbook deficit, an estimated $16,225 loss in revenue due to an executive cut in state funding, a $4,000 projected cut in PILT (payment in lieu of taxes, an additional $7,000 in teaching supplies recently authorized by the board and an estimated $10-15,000 reimbursement to the state unemployment fund.

Taking those costs into account, the fund equity shrinks to less than $70,000.

Cain emphasized that the figures are "not etched in stone." They are based on estimated budget revenues and expenditures. She also suggested to the board that they adopt an amended budget in the near future and said she would give them recommendations for it at their next regular meeting Feb. 23.

The amended budget should give a more accurate accounting of actual revenue and expenditures during the year. The initial budget, which was adopted last summer, was based on anticipated revenue and estimated expenditures.

"So far this year, we have spent $115,000 less than we did last year at this time," Bonifas added. He said the savings were due to the Athletic Booster Club paying for the entire cost of the athletic program, the closing of the swimming pool, staff reductions and modification of the transportation program.

Bonifas told the board that at this time it is impossible to know exactly what the district will be receiving from the state for the next school year. He referred to Gov. Milliken's budget message as "merely the first volley" in what is sure to be a long debate.

The board unanimously accepted an offer from the Booster Club to fund spring sports. Included in the spring program are boys' and girls' track and boys' and girls' golf. The club has paid the costs of the entire athletic program this school year not picked up through gate receipts.

In other action, the board: -Granted a leave of absence without pay to Howard Schwartz, secondary teacher, from Feb. 1 to April 30, 1982.

-Asked Bonifas to obtain bids for the annual school audit.

-Gave a maternity leave of absence to Sue Krupla of Gernfask from March 1 to April 8, 1982.

-Heard a review of the special education program by John Lindholm, Special Education Director for the Intermediate School District, and Marge Holland, secondary special education teacher.

-The board adjourned to executive session to consider complaints from a group of Gernfask parents about a teacher. The teacher involuntarily requested the executive session.

City adopts amended budget

budget, expenditures in the amended version show an increase of $93,049 over the original $993,721. There, the biggest increase came in the cost of general administration in the city. That increase, $37,800, came as a result of an annual audit conducted to determine the rates paid for unemployment insurance.

This year, Vaughan said, the audit forced the rates up for the city substantially. Another item contributing to the increase was in the city manager's budget. There, the salary for the manager's secretary, $17,000 was not included in the original budget.

The amended version of the budget reduces the city's anticipated surplus at the end of the fiscal year from $132,529 to $93,049, if the purchase of the front end loader is made.

In other matters, the council: -Agreed to consider an appeal from the school and public library for money in the next city budget. Kate LeBrasseur of the Library Advisory Board asked the council for $7,924 for next year, based on a formula of $2 for each person living in Manistique. LeBrasseur said the library would ask the county for over $9,000 based on the same formula.

Vaughan said "I wholeheartedly endorse" the plan. "We're going to take a look at it. In the next budget, you're darn tootin' I'm going to fight for it," Wilson agreed, saying, "I think it makes a lot of sense."

-Approved a one-day liquor license for April 24 for a fund-raising event sponsored by the Manistique Volunteer Fire Department.

COLD WEATHER TIPS FROM JAPAN

One of our readers, Carole Woods, picked up a lot of ideas about coping with cold weather while she was growing up in Japan. She points out that most Japanese houses are not centrally heated, but that her winter experiences there proved that the Japanese people (who live in temperate zones comparable to those of the United States) generally managed to live comfortably during cold weather... in homes that are designed primarily for summer heat.

The typical Japanese winter bed covering is a quilt called a kakemono. Ms. Woods describes it as being something like a comforter: "It consists of a light nylon covering over each side of a loft (or thickness) of approximately four inches composed of untwisted layers of cotton. This quilt isn't sewn through as a Western one would be. Instead, only an occasional thread-which is not pulled tight-runs from the nylon on one side, through the filling, to the other cover. This produces, essentially, a big, flat, warm and wonderful rectangular sleeping bag."

During the winter, families often center their evening activities around a kotatsu, which is a heater placed on the floor underneath a traditional Japanese table (like those used in Japanese restaurants). A special quilt is draped over the top of the table to help keep the feet and legs placed beneath it warm, and a second table top is rested on the quilt.

A hibachi, which more closely resembles a large vase or flowerpot made of fired and kiln-glazed clay iron than the cooking apparatus called by that name in this country, provides heat for the kotatsu. Various gates or trips can be put over the fire so that food may be cooked or water boiled on the hibachi. For the most part, a kettle of water is kept simmering on the unit to humidify the room. (Such open fires may be safe in a rather lightly constructed, well-ventilated Japanese structure, but we do not advise you to try it, since an open fire emits dangerous carbon monoxide.)

The Japanese cover their wooden floors with tatami... straw mats that are approximately 1-1/2 inches thick. In especially cold weather, a layer of newspaper is often put between the straw mats and the wooden floor for extra insulation. Carole says that many Japanese items of clothing are designed to provide winter comfort in cool houses. A short kimono-type garment called a haori is constructed in the same layered manner as the kakemono, except it's covered on the outside with cotton fabric. Such jackets are worn indoors and out. Under the haori, the Orientals wear several layers of sweaters and other garments.

Carole's favorite memories of her life in Japan concern her late-afternoon visits to the ofuro, a sort of hot bath/sauna combination. "After a soak in the ofuro," Ms. Woods states, "you'll be warm for at least a half hour, and if you're staying up for a while, you won't need as many sweaters as before." At bedtime the Japanese get out the yutampo, a device akin to a metal hot water bottle, to warm up the bed (futon) before climbing in. "Then when you're ready to slip under the warmed cover," she says, "you'll have something nice to put your feet against as you drift off cozily to sleep."

Home Ec. scholarship is established

The home economics department at Manistique High School, in conjunction with the food service and nursing programs, announce this week the establishment of a Home Economics Scholarship. This scholarship has been established to offer financial assistance to any high school senior who will be furthering their education in the home-economics field. To be eligible for the award, a student must have taken three years of classes through the Home Economics Department. (two years of nursing will act as a year of home economics credit), be pursuing a home-economics related career and be accepted to an institution or college. The scholarship will be awarded for one year. The financial stipend will be determined by the amount of funding available. Because the money for the award is based on donations and fund-raising activities, contributions are encouraged. For more information, call the principal's office at the high school at 341-2195.

People's Store takes second

The Manistique People's Store team skated to second-place tie in last weekend's first annual Kiwanis Invitational Peeewe Hockey Tournament.

Good crowds attended the two-day tournament, which has the Escanaba Optimists team taking top honors with a 3-1 record. Manistique tied for second in the tournament with Iron Mountain. Both teams netted two victories, a loss and a tie.

Newberry came in third with a 2-2 tourney performance and Escanaba's Elmer's Super-Valu team placed last with a winless 0-4 record.

Manistique started off the tournament Saturday morning with a 2 to 1 win over Elmer's Super Valu. Scoring for Manistique were Tim Becks and Nick Hoholik, with Eric Bourdo and Andy LaBar getting assists.

Goalie Phil Berger stopped 13 Escanaba shots. Manistique got off 23 shots on Escanaba's net tender.

In the second game on Saturday, the Escanaba Optimists team, even-tourney, behind the Escanaba Optimists Club team.

Manistique tied for second place in the tournament, bowing to Iron Mountain, 5-4. The third game saw Newberry getting by Escanaba Elmer's, 5-4.

The fourth game of the day, probably the most exciting of the tournament, had Manistique and Iron Mountain playing to a 2-2 tie. Scoring for Manistique were Tim Becks and Eric Bourdo. Getting assists were Paul Price with two and Nick Hoholik with one.

Goalie Phil Berger had another busy game stopping 28 Iron Mountain shots. Iron Mountain's goal tender had six saves.

The final game saw Escanaba Optimists defeating Escanaba Elmer's, 8-4.

The Hockey Association would like to thank the Kiwanis Club for all the hard work that went into making this, their first tournament, a great success, and also for the tournament patches and granola bars that were given to each participating player.

Manistique's next games will be in Iron Mountain on Sunday, Feb. 14.

J.V.'s snap losing streak

The Manistique J.V. basketball team ended their losing streak at three games Tuesday night with a 43 to 41 victory over Newberry.

The win moved the J.V.'s record to 7 wins and 6 losses.

Last Friday at Munising, the J.V.'s were defeated by a strong Munising team, 59 to 33. The Emeralds trailed at the end of the third quarter by 10 points, but that was as close as they could come, as Munising's full-court pressure put the game out of reach.

Scoring for Manistique at Munising were Dean Bolt with 8 points, Kevin Anderson 6, Ken Peterson 5, Jeff Erickson and Denny McBurney, 4, Steve Calhoun 3, Dave Reid 2, and Pat Braun 1.

Tuesday night, the J.V.'s took a slim 15 to 13 halftime lead and then outscored Newberry 15 to 6 in the third quarter for a 30 to 19 lead. The fourth quarter saw Newberry make a strong comeback, but the Emeralds held on for the victory.

Denny McBurney led the Emeralds in scoring with 16 points. Dean Bolt scored 12 points and also hauled down 13 rebounds.

Other scoring for Manistique came from Kevin Anderson with 8 points, Dave Reid with 4 points, Ken Peterson and Jeff Erickson with 2 points each and Pat Braun with 1 point.

GEORGE DORMAN had some days near Manistique, and to capture the camp. See this week's great memories about the lumbering company his account he drew this Memories for details.

It was a rough life for 'jacks in the Twenties

There aren't too many Old Times still around who actually experienced life in a lumber camp; George Dorman is one, and the following story is his:

STORY OF THE BIG PINE ON THE DUCK CREEK MARSH

"This is the Frank Cookson camp on the Big Duck Creek, north between the old Lee Wood home-stand and Debut's hunting camp, in the years 1923-'24. One-and-a-half million feet of logs put in Duck Creek, to the main river.

"I was seventeen years old my first year in the woods; my job was on the sprinkler, to make ice roads out on the marshes. All-night work, and cold. Twenty below, and often forty-five below, and snow 2-3 feet deep on the level.

"I started at 10 at night, till five in the morning when the teams started out to haul the logs to the banking ground on the Duck and put them in the river, to float to the Manistique River in the Spring and down to the sawmill.

"The second year I was on the end of a crosscut saw. This was hard work, pulling that thing all day, for a kid seventeen years old. That was the year we were in the moving camps on sleighs; men's camp, barns for the skidding teams and the cook camp, all were hauled by a Fordson tractor (with tracks) to the new setting. Everett Cookson run the tractor.

"There was four horses to skid, and there was four gangs of sawyers and four swampers. And four timber fitters. We had to run a telephone line out from the main camp to the moving camps to get supplies. Some of the car wire we used can be found out there yet when you are hunting deer.

"Harvey Saunders was woods boss, Joe Richey was cook on the moving camps and filer in his spare time. I can't remember all the crews' names but George Dorman (my dad) was timber fitter on one crew, Reginald Dorman and my Uncle Sherman Ketch was on sawing. Reginald was on sawing so long till I called him "Tug" and when he left I got his job.

"Tom Williams was chore boy; Walter Duquette barn boss; Ed Cookson blacksmith; Mrs. Graham cook in main camp two years; Walter Graham drove team on log hauls, also Curley Ellison; Fred Merwin drove team on sprinkler in 1923 and on log hauls in 1924. Louis Dorman, William Salter, Louis Salter and Jack

Memories Jack Orr

Pencarts were swampers. There was about 45 men in camp in all; I can't remember all of them—too far back. "But those were the Good Old Days; 360 a month and found (board and lodging) when on the saw."

South Manistique was mentioned in last week's column, and I got to wondering which came first, Manistique or South Manistique. The following, which comes from the semi-weekly Pioneer of Feb. 5, 1886, may help to clear some of the confusion:

South Manistique: On Wednesday last our reporter visited the above named village for an hour and made a few hasty glimpses at both the men there and the improvements begun. He found several gangs of men at work making changes in the large mill, which when completed will render the very best sawmill on this peninsula. At one place the men were putting a large and solid foundation for a brace of gang saws; at another point timbers were being laid for (what may be said in this part to be something new) a band saw. In fact the old plant is well torn in places and radical changes are taking place. The mill is to be enlarged; three more boilers to be added and every other convenience known to modern lumber manufacturers. M. J. Lyons, a man of large experience in the management of sawmills, is directing these improvements and will have charge of the works while in operation. The company were indeed lucky in retaining this gentleman in their employ. Mr. Hubbell, the superintendent, is alive and to every interest connected with the thorough reconstruction now going on. The company store seems to be well-stocked and under proper management. Our reporter did not make the acquaintance of the attaches of that establishment, except to shake the hand of our good friend Scott.

We did not have time to visit the school but we posted all the same. Dr. Hubbard is a good teacher and scholars that cannot improve under his instruction should be at once turned out to pasture.

In the future a reporter from this office has been detailed to make frequent visits to this thriving annex to Manistique and make full reports of the improvements as they progress. Never in the history of that place has its prospects been brighter than they are now. Our reporter is under obligations to several gentlemen there for their kindness in answering his numerous questions.

Still don't know which came first, but it's pretty clear that South Manistique was a going concern a hundred years ago. The mill referred to must have been Hall and Buell.

"Dispersed Camping" Forest Service to charge for permits

A new system requiring a $3 fee for dispersed camping permits will be implemented this year on the Manistique Ranger District of the Hiawatha National Forest, according to District Ranger George H. Lyon, Jr.

For many years the Manistique District has designated certain lakes where permits are required for undeveloped "dispersed camping" sites. Because such sites are limited and the demand for them is heavy, the permit system has served as a way for campers to reserve their favorite campsites. The popularity of the permit system and the increasing demand have required making several important changes.

Probably the most significant change will be in the cost of the permit. In the past, permits have been issued free of charge. However, Lyon said the cost of operating this system has risen to the point where it can no longer be provided for free. A $3 administrative fee will now be charged for each permit issued. In 1980, the Manistique District issued over 400 dispersed camping permits.

Another change will establish the Manistique District office as the only office where permits will be issued. Before, permits could be requested from the Munising, Rapid River and Escanaba offices. The Manistique office will begin accepting permit reservations immediately on a first-come, first-served basis. Campers may apply for permits in person or mail their requests directly to the District Ranger, Hiawatha National Forest, Box 311, Manistique, MI 49854. All requests by mail should include $3 for each permit requested. No reservations will be accepted by telephone.

When requesting a permit, campers should include their first, second and third choices of sites and dates. The best available choice will be selected and a permit will be returned to the camper. If none of the desired choices are available, the money will be refunded. No refunds will be made, however, once a reservation has been accepted.

This year, 44 sites on thirteen lakes have been designated as permit sites. Lakes where permits will be required are: Carr, Chicago, Crooked, East, Gosseneck, Ironjaw, Jaquie, Lyman, Nineteen, Steuben, Swan, Toms and Triangle. Other lakes in the district with undeveloped sites do not require a permit.

Lyon said that "by implementing this new system, we will be able to continue to provide campers who are interested in rustic camping opportunities with a semi-primitive experience that is unique in this area."

Now is the time to have your pets neutered

by Kayo Barker

The Humane Society of Schoolcraft County would like to remind pet owners that this is a good time to consider having your dog or cat sterilized if it is not going to be used for breeding purposes. Mating season rolls around each year as temperatures begin to rise and the humane society gradually becomes swamped with litters of unwanted puppies and kittens. There is NO SHELTER for these animals—owners must keep them until they are eventually given away—but the numbers of animals available seem to be greater than prospective owners. Finding a home is not always possible.

Your female dog or cat will be a happier pet if she doesn't face motherhood twice a year (cats can have three or four litters per year) and your neutered male pet will feel less urge to visit the ladies—a situation which puts him in danger from being hit by moving vehicles or being injured by fighting with other roaming males.

The HSSC will pay a portion of the cost of spaying or neutering, although the amount depends upon the individual case. Persons making a request for assistance should call 341-2806, which is also the number to call to report neglect or abuse of animals, including large animals such as cattle or horses.

In addition, the humane society keeps a list of persons wanting specific types of dogs or cats, as well as a list of pets to be given away. If you have called with a request of either kind and have found the animal you want to have given away your puppies or kittens, call again so your name may be removed from the listing. We also keep track of lost animals and pets which have been found.

Thank you to those who have donated change to the cans at check-out counters around town; this emergency care for stray pets. Thanks, too, to those who have saved Purina labels for us, paid dues or helped in other ways.

PERSONALS

OUR THANKS to the Nahma, Cooks, Garden Volunteer Fire Departments and all who worked so diligently in 22 degrees below 0, and against fierce winds to put out the fire to save their store and our home on Jan. 16. A special thanks to Sandy and Nancy Sundling who started the benefit dance going. The enthusiasm they put forth was superb. We can't possibly thank each and every one involved in the party and donations because we don't know who you all are, there were so many. You'll know. To all you wonderful people who helped in any way, we say God bless you! Our prayers and love go out to each and everyone of you.

Sincerely,
Jerry and Orr's Market,

ON VALENTINE'S DAY WE WILL BE THINKING OF YOU WE HOPE YOU GET CANDY AT LEAST A POUND OR TWO IF YOU FIND OUT IT IS TOO MUCH FOR YOU BRING IT DOWN WE LIKE CANDY TOO!

I hope I get something nice for Valentine's Day. I've done everything right. I've hunted and hunted that February 14th is coming soon. I've picked out a few things when we've been shopping. When commercials are on TV I point them out. What more can I do?

Shopping for Valentines can be an adventure in itself. This is one time Paul doesn't care to go shopping with me. He says I embarrass him.

When I pick out cards they have to fit the person I'm sending them to. Sometimes I spend hours just reading the verses. Then I finally find the right one. Paul says he can tell when I find the right one, it's the one that makes me cry the hardest. You should be with me on Mothers' or Fathers' Day!

I would like to thank everyone who baked for Eileen's open house. All the cookies and bars looked so nice. Also, I would like to thank the staff for their help. It's so nice to be around such thoughtful people.

This is the last week for raffle tickets. Make sure you buy some. The prizes are beautiful. I've still got some tickets left. Stop in. Our winter feast is on Feb. 13. Tickets are on sale at the office. The Senior Citizens Cribbage Tournament Friday was a great success. First on the list was a delicious meal served by the Community Action Agency.

Then twenty-eight Senior Citizens competed for the money prizes being offered. The winners were First place: Vera Courtava. Second place: Joseph LaMuth. Third place: Ray Ransgens.

For approximately five years the Senior Citizens weekly cribbage players have been competing for a big and beautiful traveling trophy. The rule being a player wins the tournament three times, then the trophy is his to keep permanently. This year marked the destination for our traveling trophy.

Frank Povo recently made himself the proud owner of that beautiful mark of success. Congratulations Frank!

It's also worth noting that we are very proud of Helen Neal who went to first place a couple of times during the tournament. Memorials were given to the center in the name of Erlend Danielson by Gunhild Hokenson. Monetary donations to our General Fund Account came from Herbert and Edith Peterson, Jack and Eva Sangaw, Harold and Lillian McNamara, Harold Sellman, Theodore and Stella Richards and Emerald Cousins.

Two people gave an anonymous donation "in Tribute to Eileen." Chet and Elizabeth Dixon and Elsie Harbin gave postage donations to supplement the cost of the Newsletter.

Even though Bob Watchorn of Fayette is on vacation, he still made sure that his generous donation of cookies were brought in.

All these acts of kindness are deeply appreciated and we thank each and everyone of you for your concern.

Birthdays go out to: Josephine Dervin, Elma Swanson, February 12; Loreta Prinksi, Connie Donovan, February 13; Ruth Brundage, Leona Demers, Vivian Moser, February 14; Wendie Crawford, Sara Dorman, Blanche Lyntis, February 15; Adolph Asp, Leslie Centraill, Don Dissinger, Marie Duque, Rose Stull, February 16; Hazel Horning, February 17; Helen Balog and Charles Jenerou, February 18.

Merchants Association sponsors ice sculpture contest for March

If you would like to do something more creative with our abundant supply of snow than shoveling it, the Maquokette Merchants Association's ice sculpture contest may be just the thing.

The association is sponsoring the contest as part of the annual "Dollar Days" set for March 4-6. According to contest Chairperson Sally Ott, judging of the entries in the contest will take place on Saturday, March 6. Anyone in the Maquokette area may enter the contest by filling out entry blanks available at the State Savings Bank. Entrants should be sure to note the location of their sculpture on the forms.

Cash prizes will be awarded for the two top sculptures in two categories: those made by individuals and those made by a group. The first step in making an ice sculpture is freezing snow to make the block of ice the sculpture will be carved from. To this, enclose an area the size of the desired block with fence, snow chain link or chicken wire is fine. Shovel snow into the enclosure and soak it down with water. When the fence has been filled with the snow mixture, leave it to freeze overnight.

The resulting block of ice is the raw material for which the finished sculpture will be carved. Supports for arms, legs or other extensions from the main block should be inserted before the slash freezer and should not be visible in the finished product. Use a hatchet or machete to carve out the rough details of the sculpture from the ice block. Fine details can be sculpted using smaller utensils and water to smooth out the ice surface.

Color can be added to the sculpture with food coloring applied with spray bottles or squirt guns.

Welders and hair dryers can thaw frozen pipes

Frozen water pipes can be thawed with an arc welder or hair dryer but they must be used properly. Arc welders are a good source of low voltage electric current. They work best on steel pipes. They should not be used on copper pipes because they might melt soldered joints and so create leaks.

Hair dryers can also thaw frozen pipes. They should always be used in dry conditions because of the danger of electrical shock.

"You have to be very careful when using electrical appliances near water," says George Brown, Michigan State University agricultural engineer. "Most people are trying to thaw pipes under unpleasant conditions and there is a tendency to try take shortcuts -- that's when fires start."

Fires can start when someone tries to use the open flame from a soldering or welding torch near flammable material in walls. If pipes are not near flammable materials, an open flame is acceptable for thawing. A helper should stand by with a fire extinguisher at all times, however.

Pipes can also be thawed by wrapping them with electrical heat tapes and covering them with fiberglass insulation. This method can be used on copper pipes, which are good conductors of electricity and sensitive to high voltage or flame.

Hot water can concentrate heat on the frozen area if it is poured over rags tied to a pipe. Heat lamps can also be used on small sections of exposed pipe, though these carry risks of both electrical shock and fire. For detailed information on thawing frozen water pipes, obtain a copy of ABIS 419 through the MSU Cooperative Extension Service county office in the courthouse.
