HUD rejection of plans delays housing project

Construction on the county's senior citizens housing project will probably be delayed until late summer after the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) rejected the plans submitted by the County Housing Commission.

The Housing Commission learned of that rejection, which came last month at its annual meeting held last Thursday. In a Feb. 17 letter to Housing Director Eileen Males, a HUD official cited "unnecessary amenities" in the "overdesigned" project plans as reason for the rejection.

The architect for the project, Lou Barone of Architects Group Limited of Green Bay has redesigned the project to meet the HUD objections. At last week's meeting, the Housing Commission approved the plan revisions for resubmission to HUD for approval. The first set of plans was submitted on Jan. 29 and approval was expected in time for construction to start on the 64-unit project late sometime this spring.

Now, Males said, in addition to the six-week delay to resubmit the plans, construction will be delayed until the end of the summer. "I would say, because of having to resubmit, there will be a three-month delay," Males said.

HUD approved $3.2 million in funding for construction of two elderly housing apartment buildings by the county last May. The project calls for a three-story building in Manistique with 48 housing units and a one-story, 16-unit complex in Greenfask. Preliminary plans drawn up by Barone were approved by the commission in October and the final project proposal was sent to HUD in late January.

In rejecting that proposal, HUD official Edward Scheidel wrote that "We believe the project is over designed and does not meet the 'modest' design intent of the Public Housing Program."

"It should be noted that although Public Housing requires the consideration of extra design features needed to minimize operating and maintenance costs, this does not mean that such projects should have unnecessary amenities..." Scheidel wrote.

Specifically, HUD cited the following objections to the submitted plans: -The apartments are too big. The original plans called for one-bedroom units about 650 square feet in size and two-bedroom units about 910 square feet. New HUD guidelines recommend maximum sizes of 530 and 800 square feet, respectively. In the revised plans approved by the commission the apartments will be cut by about 100 square feet, to 555 and 811 square feet. Barone told the commission Thursday that the new sizes, while still slightly over the guidelines, will satisfy HUD.

-There were too many laundry and community rooms in the original plans. In the Manistique building, Barone had called for two laundry and three community rooms. In the revised version, there is only one ground-floor laundry and community room.

-Too much glassed-in area would make the buildings expensive to heat. Barone said that, after talking with HUD officials, he convinced them that the buildings would be energy efficient.

-The Greenfask building site is too large. The commission has options to buy a seven-acre parcel of land in Greenfask. Barone said he has explained to HUD officials that the amount of land actually needed will not be known until percolation tests of soil on the site are completed. Those tests will determine how big a septic system is required for the housing project.

Barone, noting that he had sent preliminary plans to HUD for comments, expressed frustration that the objections were withheld until after the formal proposal was submitted. "The thing that bothers me is that I sent plans to HUD before Christmas and they could have commented before we put the whole package together," he said.

The delay caused by the HUD rejection of the plans should not jeopardize the project's funding, according to Males. Barone told the Housing Commission Thursday that notes to generate $1.8 million of the project cost were scheduled to be sold by HUD in June.

HUD's objections are the latest in a series of snags the project has run into since its initial approval last May. First, a dispute between Barone and HUD over his fee for the project delayed planning for several weeks. That fee is based on a percentage of the total cost of the project. Barone had wanted 6 percent. HUD wanted to pay 3 percent. A compromise of 5.3/4 percent was finally settled upon.

During that disagreement, the commission was trying to locate a suitable site in Greenfask for the project. After inspecting 11 different sites, the commission found the seven-acre parcel.

Another possible delay was brought up by Males Tuesday when she presented the Commission's annual report to the County Board. Due to expected changes in income and asset guidelines for tenants by HUD, Males needs to certify that a septic system is required for the new rules to fill the project if it is built.

Males said that anyone who has not previously changed in interest in living in the housing that would like to do so should call her at 341-5052 between 8:30 a.m. and noon weekdays. "I have to show HUD that there is sufficient interest from people who fit the income and asset guidelines," she said.

County is looking for comment on transit

The County Board Tuesday night tentatively decided to continue the public transit service for a third year. The bus service, started in September of 1980, has been paid for entirely through a state grant. Beginning in October of this year, the grant will pay for only 75 percent of the cost of operations.

The board voted to "tentatively commit" itself to a third year of the transit service, with 25 percent of the cost to be picked up locally. The board in its vote qualified the commitment "contingent on adequate funds available by the county."

Just where the 25 percent funding would come from is one of the questions that is not yet answered.

Although the transit service raised fares last September, another rate hike would be necessary for riders to support 25 percent of the system's cost of operation. Currently, the fares are $1 for rides within Manistique (50 cents for senior citizens and children under 12) and $1.50 for out-of-town rides (75 cents for seniors and children).

Those fares generate only about $20,000 a year for the system. Based on this year's budget of about $180,000, the fares would have to generate $45,000 to pick up 25 percent of the system's operations.

Without a fare increase, then, the county would have to subsidize the system to the tune of $25,000 for a 25 percent local share of funding.

Board Member Ernie Hoholik, acting as chairman in the absence of Mervin White, said that the transportation committee of the board is looking for public comment on how heavily the transit system should be funded by the county. Advertisements to solicit opinion on the matter were published this week, he said, and a decision on whether to raise fares won't be made until results from the ad are tabulated.

"If public comment is strong in that they want us to use taxpayers' money to support the system," fares probably would not be raised, Hoholik said. If comment runs against a subsidy, a fare increase may be enacted before October to see if ridership will support the 25 percent local funding requirement.

The county currently does not have any money budgeted for the transit system.

Bob Barr, chairman of the board's transportation committee, said that two buses had been obtained for the system to replace buses that had broken down late in January. The two used buses are surplus vehicles from the Baraga County transit system, which stopped operations after its 100-percent funding ended. Barr said that the service now has

Buckling baby April 1 is no joke

A new law that goes into effect April 1 is no April Fools' joke. It requires children under four years old to be properly restrained when riding in cars.

The law, Public Act 117, says that children under one year old must be buckled into a federally-approved safety seat when riding in cars. The same goes for children between one and four if they are riding in the front seats. In the back seats, however, PA 117 requires only that toddlers be buckled in with a conventional seat belt.

For parents, the new law means obtaining one of the safety seats. Since they can cost up to $60, the Manistique Woman's Club is organizing a program to rent the seats at low cost to parents to allow them time to save up the cash to buy a seat. While the Woman's Club hopes to order some of the seats itself, it is seeking donations of the seats by clubs and businesses. According to Michelle Dougovito, nurse with the District Health Department, demand for the rental seats is likely to outstrip the supply.

"I know the interest is there," she said. "I know people want to be able to rent a car seat—particularly low income or people with more than one child who don't have $45 to shell out."

Dougovito said that anyone who wishes to donate a seat should call her at 341-5876 or Marge Richards at 341-5573. Also, Dougovito said she will answer questions concerning the requirements of the law.

There are three different types of seats. An infant's seat is for children under 20 pounds and always is used with the child facing the rear of the car. A toddler's seat, for children old enough to sit up by themselves, has the child facing toward the vehicle's front, and a convertible seat can be used facing the rear for infants or facing the front for toddlers.

Although the law calls for a $10 fine for those ticketed for violation, Sgt. Bob Barr of the Manistique State Police said officers "will be instructed to use their discretion" in deciding whether to issue tickets when the law first becomes enforceable. "Probably, rather than enforcement," Barr said, "for a while it will be more education than anything."

Even if a ticket is issued, the $10 fine may be waived if drivers show a judge evidence of buying or renting a seat before their court date. No points will be added to a driver's record for a ticket under PA 117.

The whole point of the law, naturally, is to assure the safety of small children in cars. According to the Michigan Office of Highway Safety Planning, "more children are hurt or killed each year from automobile crashes than from any disease or other type of accident. It is your child's #1 health threat."

THE TEACUPLES SQUARE dancing club graduated 11 couples from its classes last Saturday. Formed in 1980, the club has about 16 member couples that meet weekly at the Hawatha School. Shown here are members Liz Cook and Bob Paek. In addition, the club teaches inter-

557 properties listed in tax sale

Some 557 Schoolcraft County properties listed on this year's tax sale last week will go on the auction block May 4 unless their owners pay back taxes, interest and penalties.

The annual tax sale by the county will probably feature far fewer properties than those advertised over the past weeks, according to County Treasurer Bill Cowman. Last year, when 575 parcels of land were advertised, over half of the delinquent taxpayers paid up before tax sale time.

Owners of properties listed this year have not paid taxes levied in 1979. If they still have not paid the taxes by May 4, the taxes will be offered for sale.

People who attend the sale don't buy the property, they buy a lien on the taxes due on the property. According to Cowman, the tax sale provides an avenue of investment to those who purchase the liens at the sale.

Property owners whose taxes have been bought at the sale must pay the purchaser the amount of taxes due plus 1 1/2 percent interest each month they wait to pay after the tax sale. That interest—15 percent a year, is one incentive for investors to buy at the tax sale.

Property owners who wait over a year after the tax sale to pay off the lien purchased by an investor are stuck with a stiffer penalty than 1 1/2 percent each month. After a year a "tax deed" is issued to the purchaser. To get the deed to his property back, the owner must pay the purchaser back one and a half times the back taxes due.

This is provision—the lure of a 50 percent-plus return on their investments—that attracts most investors to the tax sales, Cowman said.

If the property owner never does pay his taxes to the buyer, title to the land eventually turned over. That hardly ever happens, Cowman said. "In the last 10 years, maybe 15 parcels have changed hands" of the several thousand that have been offered at tax sales, he said.

When property is transferred because of non-payment of taxes, it is usually the result of the death of an owner who left no heirs.

Not all of the tax liens offered at the tax sale will be bought, Cowman noted. Of the 274 parcels up for sale last year, only 74 were purchased. Interest at the sale usually centers around the desirable property investors could sell easily in the event the taxes are never paid.

Those parcels of land not purchased at the tax sale will revert to the state after a year. The state will then auction off the property to the highest bidder. Often, Cowman said, bidders downstate will buy the property sight unseen as an investment and let it revert to the state again when they find it hard to sell.

He said that several parcels in Manistique have been "recycled" in the state in this manner. "The state makes a lot of money that way," he noted.

CBC entertainment to include 18 acts

The talent portion of this year's CBC radio-telethon will again feature a variety of acts. According to Kathy Lloyd, talent coordinator for the fund-raising drive set for April 4, 18 different acts will provide entertainment during the nine-hour radio-telethon.

The CBC activities will be broadcast on cable television channel 9 and WTQJ radio, starting at noon April 4. A complete pull-out guide to the CBC fundraising drive will be included in the April 1 issue of the Pioneer-Tribune.

The Naturals, Manistique High School's musical-variety group, will again head the day's entertainment. Also returning from last year are the Van-guarders, a vocal group from Manistique. New this year will be a jazz ensemble from Munising High School, called the Mustang Jazz Committee.

Other groups to be featured in the upcoming fund-raising extravaganza are: the Manistique High School's Pompon girls, the TEACUPLES square dance group, St. Francis de Sales Adult Choir, the U.P. Beats barber shop quartet, the Senior Citizens Chorus, the Gos-pelletes and the Senior Swingers. Solo performances will be provided by Tille Tennant, Lisa Demers, Luanne Kaupilla, Kathy Cune, Molly and Becky Stuedinger, Megan Kelly, Larry Parrish and Michael Healey.

At an organizational meeting Monday, the date for CBC Bingo was announced as Saturday, March 27. The event will be held at 7 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall. Also on the 27th, the CBC bowling finals will be held at Lakesview Lanes. Times will be announced later.

Volunteers are still needed to bake novelty character cakes for the fund drive. Money raised through sale of the cakes will go towards this year's goal of $16,500. Anyone interested in baking a cake for CBC should call either Judy McDonough at 341-2089 or Elizabeth Charier at 341-6071.

The next meeting of the CBC Committee will be held next Monday, March 22, at 7 p.m. in the board room of the high school. The public is welcome to attend.

Patrick Clement and Elise Louise Wegher

Patrick Clement to wed

Mr. and Mrs. Leno Wegher of Lincoln Park, Mich. announced this week the engagement of their daughter, Elise Louise, to Patrick Clement, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clement of Manistiquie. An August 14 wedding is planned.

Local men form quartet

A local chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America is being formed to serve the Manistiquie area.

The local quartet features Dave Bloom, John Stapleton, Bob Sands and Carl Wegner. The new chapter will be affiliated with the Pioneer District of the Society, composed of chapters located in Michigan and Ontario, Canada.

Founded in 1938 by two Tulsa, Okla., men, Owen C. Cash, a tax attorney, and Rupert T. Hall, an investment banker, the unique organization now claims a membership of more than 37,000 men in 780 chapters, located throughout the United States and Canada.

The International Society offers its membership a wide range program of musical education and conducts an annual international singing competition for Society Chorus and Quartets. It also conducts annual leadership training programs for chapter officers. Contestants certified for international competition are selected through a series of preliminary competitions conducted by the Society's Districts. Districts also conduct separate competitions to determine their own District Champions.

Membership in the chapter offers male singers an opportunity to improve their singing ability while singing under the leadership of a competent musical director, to form new friendships and to prepare for competitions and concerts. Chapters are also noted for their support of local, civic and charitable efforts.

Pasty sale will be Wed.

The United Methodist Women will hold a pasty sale on Wednesday, March 24 and Thursday, March 25 at the church. Advance orders may be placed by calling 341-6662.

At time with Sarah

With process of the good higher all the time a must watch out. There are some things we can do to make ourselves more comfortable on stacks and in the water. Here are some ideas:

CARAMEL CORN
 1 cup white Corn Syrup
 1/2 cup butter
 1/2 cup milk
 1/2 cup sugar
 1/2 cup vanilla
 1/2 cup nuts

Boil together (stir) 10 minutes. Take off the heat and add 1/2 cup nuts. Stir vigorously. Pour over paper and mix. Place on waxed paper.

Bake 200 degrees for 2 hours, changing tracks and stirring every half hour. Spread newspapers over table and after taking waxed sheets from oven, remove oven immediately and spread over waxed paper, breaking up the larger chunks. Cook in about 10 minutes. It is sticky until cooled. Store in a plastic closed container.

Sarah says... When serving a meal to little children, provide a miniature world. The little things like dolls and cars, so why not apply this to eating? Set their places with a salad plate instead of a dinner plate, a salad fork instead of a soup bowl. A salad fork is wider and shorter than a dinner fork and much easier for a child to handle.

Food for thought... "Kind words are like honey - enjoyable and healthful." Proverbs 16:24

Lions' raffle is a success

A raffle drawing held March 9 by the Manistiquie Lions Club raised $130 for maintenance of emergency equipment at the Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital.

Winning first prize of $57 in the raffle was Doug Erickson of Thompson. Second prize of $17 was won by Genny Gerometta of Indian Lake. Proceeds from the 50-50 raffle will go towards maintenance of a defibrillation machine at the hospital. The machine, used to provide electric shocks to aid heart attack victims, was purchased by the Lions Club in cooperation with doctors at the hospital three years ago. The Lions put up $3,000 of the machine's initial cost and doctors donated the other $2,000.

Since that time, the annual raffle has been conducted to raise money to pay for new batteries for the machine, as well as other required maintenance.

Local students listed are Marion Ruth Head, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean L. Head of Cooks, a senior, and David James Grover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Grover of Manistiquie, a sophomore. Bob Jones University, known as the "World's Most Unusual University," is a liberal arts, coeducational, Christian institution. Each year the university matriculates more than 6,300 students who come from every state in the United Kingdom and about 30 foreign countries and territories.

State Wide holds seminar

A seminar on purchasing condominiums on a "time share" basis was held recently by State Wide Real Estate of Manistiquie.

At the seminar, the concept of time sharing was explained to interested local residents. According to John Stapleton, owner-broker of the local State Wide office, resort time-sharing allows a client to purchase a luxury condominium in increments of a week or more. In essence, buyers purchase only the amount of time they will use the condominium each year. "Because the expense of owning and operating a condo is divided among its many users, the cost to each is only a small fraction of what a vacation condo would otherwise cost," said Stapleton.

Stapleton noted that State Wide offers time-sharing purchases for condominiums on Florida's Marco Island. "We view time-sharing as a natural extension of our industry and feel the Marco Island Surf Club project is the best on the market today," he said.

Cournaya passes CPA exam

Ronald Cournaya, former Manistiquie resident, has been notified that he passed all subjects in the certified public accountant (CPA) examination administered by the Wisconsin State Board of Accountancy.

Cournaya, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Cournaya, Merrill, Wis., is a 1975 graduate of the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater, receiving his master's degree in business.

He is employed by Moecleir, Bookstaff, Rick, Roth and Matloff, Certified Public Accountants of Mequon, Wis.

He and his wife, the former Nancy Schewe, also of Merrill, and their two sons, live in Cudahy, Wis. He is the grandson of George and Alice Frankovich and the former Ernest and Osanna Cournaya.

The voice of Schoolcraft County since 1876

School Busing Board needs to decide

A stable group of parents met recently with Superintendent Richard Bertha to talk about busing. The issue was the school district's busing of some 25 first- and second-grade students between Lakeside and Lincoln elementary schools in town.

Before it voted in September to start busing students the board had decided to combine the first and second grades at each of the schools within one class. That arrangement brought protests from teachers and the busing to form a large first-grade class at Lakeside and a large second-grade class at Lincoln was begun.

The whole idea of busing students from neighborhood schools seems to be a sensitive topic. There is more involved in such a decision than simple economics or logistics; it's a matter of philosophy as well.

Until this year, the School Board's philosophy on the matter was clear-cut. Where circumstances dictated that classes be combined in elementary schools, the idea of keeping students close to their neighborhood had proven over-keeping students segregated by grade level. Hence, there are mixed-grade classes at the Hiawatha and Germantown elementary schools.

The neighborhood school concept has been traditional, both locally and across the country. It not only provides students with a degree of stability in knowing where and with whom they will be attending school, it enhances a sense of local control over education.

In that light, the School Board's decision to start busing students to combine classes is puzzling. If the board still believes in the neighborhood school concept, it should have followed its own precedent and tried combining grades at Lincoln and Lakeside to keep students within their neighborhood. Even if it were designated as a one-year trial, the mixed-grade classes would have allowed everyone to see their advantages and disadvantages.

On the other hand, if the board has decided to abandon the neighborhood school idea, it should say so clearly and be consistent in the matter. If there is to be busing of elementary students in Manistiquette, perhaps one school could be designated as "upper elementary" and the other as "lower elementary."

With that arrangement, at least students and their parents would know where children are going to attend school next year. That's more than can be said under the current system.

Whatever it decides to do, the School Board should make up its mind one way or the other. Declining enrollment in the district looks as if it is here to stay, and with it comes the question of the best way to combine classes.

Until the board settles on a consistent course—either to stick with neighborhood schools or consolidate elementary students within Manistiquette—its indecision is sure to satisfy no one.

Treatment plants don't create deficits

Dear Editor:

The operational cost of the City of Manistiquette water and wastewater plants are not causing the budget deficits in the combined water and wastewater system fund. The fund's deficits are because of the distribution system (water and sewer lines), which is included in the fund.

All savings in the plants' operations are absorbed in the distribution system's high operational costs. It is difficult to estimate the cost of the distribution system because of its overall condition—50 to 60 years old and in need of extensive repairs.

In the past, this system was supported by the general fund and no capital improvements or long-range plans were provided to keep the system upgraded and in good repair for maximum efficiency.

Sign of spring

MELTING IN THE SUN, these mounds of snow dumped by city trucks by the fair building diminish in size as the days grow longer. The messy weather early this week notwithstanding, spring officially arries in Schoolcraft County at 5:56 p.m. Saturday. That's when the sun will be directly over the equator.

County considering mental health contract

five buses on the road plus a spare.

In other matters, the board took no action on whether to sign a "shared management contract" for operation of the county's Mental Health Department. Dave Hayter, department director, said the contract would funnel through the county nearly a half-million dollars the state pays each year to maintain Schoolcraft County residents at Newberry State Hospital.

Instead of paying that money directly to Newberry, the contract would pay it to the county which in turn would pay Newberry. Hayter estimated that the county could earn $30,000 a year by investing the money.

However, Hayter said that the state might use the contract as evidence of a "voluntary agreement" by the county and reduce other state aid under a provision of the Headlee amendment. Board Member Lindsey Frenette agreed.

"If the state is going to give you money, you've got to be kind of suspicious," he said. The agreement might "jeopardize revenue sharing money needed to run the county."

The board turned the matter over to its finance committee for a recommendation.

Hayter, who has been director of the department for two years, was given a raise by the Mental Health Board at its meeting Monday. The 8 percent raise boosted his salary by $12,243 to $28,045 and made him the highest-paid employee of the county.

Reinstated a $1,000 subsidy to the County Historical Society eliminated in the board's 1982 budget.

Before voting, the board asked society representatives for assurance that the museum operated by the society on U.S.-2 would be open this summer. Society Historian Alzer Meon said she would try to find someone to staff the museum, but gave no guarantee that the museum would be open regular hours.

Waters for the board to appoint a physician to the Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital's Board of Trustees. Waters said lack of a physician-trustee could block accreditation of the hospital. Currently, the hospital is under a one-year conditional accreditation. He urged the board to appoint a doctor to the board when the next vacancy occurs.

Reappointed Richard Rogers to the county Tax Allocation Board.

Set its next regular meeting on April 20 as the date for a public hearing on forming a county-wide Economic Development Committee.

Papers of incorporation for the EDC were signed early this month, and the public hearing is required before its establishment. The EDC is designed to provide low-cost financing for economic development in the county.

Went into closed session to discuss grievance by the Fraternal Order of Police, representing sheriff's deputies. The grievance was filed because the deputies do not want to punch time clocks installed last year. A similar grievance was filed by the courthouse employees' union, but was later dropped.

The board decided to reconsider the grievance filed by the deputies, and referred the matter to its personnel committee.

We thought you might be interested to know that 64 people turned out with 19 Florida towns represented. Everyone seemed to have a good time and the weather cooperated.

To those who attended, a native Floridian commented later on how very neat and clean the Manistiquettes left everything in contrast to picnics he had had in his yard.

Ollie's Red Owl is honored

Ollie's Red Owl grocery store in Manistiquette has been honored as an "outstanding independent grocer" by a nationally distributed trade journal.

The store, owned by Ollie Rehn of Manistiquette, was one of only 20 independents so recognized in the state region in the March issue of "Progressive Grocer." It was one of 212 independents-owned stores nationwide that received the honor.

The annual listing of outstanding independent grocers in the magazine is based on nominations by grocers, wholesalers, Ollie's was nominated by the Red Owl Corp. of Minneapolis. According to Kathy Elsworth, assistant manager at the local Red Owl, the honor is based on current performance, rather than a store's long-term record of success.

Other factors cited by the magazine in honoring the store to be recognized include: "Innovative and creative merchandising, extraordinary achievement in adjusting to difficult economic conditions," and growth over the last 12 months.

Coincidentally, Rehn's brother, Carroll, also was honored on the list for his store in Hartland, Wis.

Ron Burnis, Greg Turan receive Mid-Pen honors

RON BURNIS: Named to the Mid-Peninsula Conference first all-conference team, the 6-foot senior led (310 overall) and per-game average (15.5). (Gordon Archer photo)

Fallen in the previous season, Emerald Coach Ben Burns referred to his team as "the Emeralds" and Greg Turan as the "diamond".

His assessment of the 1981-82 seniors was affirmed by coaches in the Mid-Peninsula Conference Monday when Burnis was voted all-conference honorable mention and Turan was named to the second team all-conference.

Burnis was voted to the first all-conference team behind Iron Mountain's Jeff McLean, who was named as the Mid-Pen's most valuable player. Other first team members were Darren Sinaasale of Gwinnett, Gerry Prkalo of Negaunee and Brian LaFreniere of Greenwood.

Joining Turan on the second all-conference team were Keith Hueston of Iron Mountain, Chris Norton of Gwinnett, Robbie Lind of Negaunee and Jeff Seaberg of Munising.

No Manistique players were among the eight players voted all-conference honorable mentions by the coaches.

Burnis led the Mid-Pen Conference in scoring, both in total points scored and average points per game.

In Mid-Pen action, he scored a total of 216 points, averaging 15.4 points per game, while overall his 310 total points and 15.5 average were also tops.

Turan also appeared in the league's top 10 in scoring. He was fourth in the conference in Mid-Pen games, totaling 199 points and averaging 14.2 points per game. On the season as a whole, Turan ranked eighth in scoring among Mid-Pen players, sinking 258 points for a 12.9 points-per-game average.

Both Turan and Burnis have started for the Emeralds for two years and were co-captains over the past season. Both played every quarter of every game this year and dominate the team statistics in several categories.

Burnis being the team's top shooter, both also were the most consistent with the best shooting percentages from the field. Burnis sank 47 percent of his shots from the field while Turan made 45 percent.

From the free-throw line, Burnis sank 70 percent and Turan converted 63 percent of his chances. Burnis scored in double figures in every game while Turan made over 10 points in 16 games.

Both Turan and Burnis were named one-two in steals and caused turnovers as well. Turan led the Emeralds with 71 and Burnis was second with 50.

In rebounds, Burnis total of 121 was second only to center Ken Mills 134. Turan was third on the team off the boards with 107.

Burnis led the Emeralds in assists with 88. Turan was second with 74.

As a team, the Emeralds wound up a tie for second with Gwinnett in the final Mid-Pen standings, with both Manistique and the Model Towers compiling identical 9-5 conference records. Manistique's overall record of 15-5, however, gave the Emeralds sole possession of second place in the final overall standings.

Iron Mountain's underrated conference and overall records of 14-0 and 20-0 gave the Mountaineers first place in both categories.

As a team, the Emeralds had the stingiest defense in the conference, allowing 50.7 points per game over regular season. In offense, though, Manistique's 38.4 points-per-game average was only fourth best in the league, behind Iron Mountain, Gwinnett and Westwood.

In the 14 Mid-Pen games, the Emerald defense was less effective, giving 32.5 points per game—a statistic still good enough to lead the conference.

GREG TURAN: Named as a second-team all-conference player Monday, the 6-foot senior guard amassed 258 points over the regular season, a 12.9 points-per-game clip. (Gordon Archer photo)

Class C U.P. championship to be decided this weekend

Although local interest has probably waned considerably after last week's elimination of the Emeralds, the Class C Upper Peninsula championship will nonetheless be decided this weekend.

Tickets will go on sale at 5 p.m. this Friday, March 18, at the Hedgecock Fieldhouse at Northern Michigan University in Marquette. Tickets are $2.

In a Class C semi-final game Friday at 7 p.m. at Hedgecock, Newberry will take on the Negaunee Miners. Although Manistique defeated the Indians twice during the regular season, the Emeralds never got a chance to beat them in post-season play, falling first to the St. Ignace Saints a week ago Tuesday, 56-46.

Newberry seemed to have little trouble handling the Saints last Friday, rolling to a 73-51 victory in the district finals and gaining a slot in the regional semi-finals. Be that as it may, the Indians will be the underdog in Friday's contest, facing a traditionally-tough game of Miners that compiled a 12-8 regular season record. The Indians had .500 season average, winning 10 and losing 10.

The winner of that game will meet the victor of Friday's second semi-final game between Iron Mountain and Ontonagon, set for 8:30 p.m. in the regular Class C final Saturday at 4 p.m.

By any account, Iron Mountain will be the odds-on favorite to meet Negaunee and take the U.P. Class C crown. First, however, the 22-0 Mountaineers will have to get by Ontonagon in the second game Friday night. Ontonagon squeaked by Houghton last Friday, 44-43, for the privilege of facing Iron Mountain.

Hiawatha offers 116 miles of snowmobile trails

by Paul Bosen
Forestry Technician

As we get into the late-winter, early-spring season in our north country, it is the time of the year you can take advantage of the longer daylight hours and warmer temperatures to ride one of the 116 miles of groomed snowmobile trails or routes on the Hiawatha National Forest.

The forest also has an additional 2,600 miles of unplowed roads and trails for use by snowmobilers.

The warmer temperatures we experienced this last month have helped to settle the snow and provide a better riding surface, and the opportunity to get back into any number of our lakes to do some ice fishing. If fishing is not your thing, take the family out and have a winter picnic which can be an enjoyable experience.

Another exciting experience while snowmobiling is to observe wildlife. The animals become more active with the warmer weather and the approach of spring. If you do have the opportunity to see some wildlife, stop and observe the animals, but do not harass them - remember the forest is their home.

The National Forest has a large number of plantations with young trees at or just below the snow and they are not visible to the snowmobiler. Do not use these areas as running on them could damage or kill the young trees.

There is also the hazard of stumps just below the snow which could cause damage to your machines or an injury if you could be thrown from your machine.

There is still a few weeks of winter left so get out and enjoy winter in your National Forest.

For information on specific trails or trips in the Hiawatha National Forest, contact district offices in Manistique, Munising, Rapid River, St. Ignace, Sault Ste. Marie or the Forest Supervisor's office in Escanaba.

Expectant parent classes to begin April 5

The Schoolcraft County branch of the District Health Department will again be sponsoring a series of classes for expectant parents starting April 5.

The classes have been expanded to six sessions and will include: Discussion of anatomy and reproduction.

A movie on labor and delivery, tour of the maternity area of the hospital and a class on parenting will also be included. The classes are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. on April 5, 12, 19, 26, May 3, and May 10 at the second floor conference room of the courthouse. All expectant parents are encouraged to attend.

Scoring for Manistiquie were Chris Malloy, Paul Price, Tim Beeks, Rex Miller and Andy LaBar. Getting assists were Nick Hoholik, Tim Beeks and Billy Gould.

James MacGregor with one goal and another earned with one goal. Phil Berger had 12 saves. Marquette's goalie had eight saves.

In Saturday's Ironstone Falls 1-0 victory, Phil Berger started off the day's beating Newberry by a 1-0 score. Scoring for Manistiquie was an Archambeau with a hat trick. Jack Archambeau with one goal, Ken Hart with one and Bill Johnson with one. Getting assists were Ken Hart with two and Paul Lockwood with one.

Joe Van Dyck at goal had 10 saves for Malloy's.

Coach Ryan praises J.V. team

The Manistiquie Junior Varsity basketball team ended the 1981-82 season with 10 wins and 10 losses, but Coach Bob Ryan said he does not feel it was a disappointing season. According to Ryan, there were two or three losses that could have been wins, but the overall season had many plus signs. In summing up the season, Ryan said "I felt that this team experienced a lot of positive things this year. We won some big games, played well against the better teams in the conference, and most significantly, many of the players on the team showed a great deal of improvement throughout the year. "Plus, it was an enjoyable group of players to coach. They worked hard all year and were very dedicated." As far as statistics are concerned, the most impressive team stat was the defensive average. The JV's held their opponents to a 46.1 point-per-game average, the best in eight years.

New 'shining' law will work

The new "shining" law signed by Governor Milliken last December 19 will be an effective tool in protecting Michigan wildlife from poachers, says Law Enforcement Division Chief Frank Opolka. "Act 181, P.A. 1981 prohibits the casting of spotlights, headlights or any artificial lights for the purpose of locating wild birds or animals, between the hours of 11 p.m. and 6 a.m.," he says. "We believe the new legislation will help protect the Michigan deer herd and other wildlife from illegal hunting, and will also reduce the number of rural residents' complaints about shining on their property. "Act 181, to become effective this April 1, amends the previous law which allowed shining as long as the persons involved were not carrying firearms," says Opolka. "However, too many poachers were finding ways around that restriction. The number of complaints of shining in rural areas was increasing." The new law does not prohibit raccoon hunters from carrying lights during their hunting season, between September 1 and March 31, Opolka says. "People who just like to drive around observing wildlife still have that option during the dark hours before 11 p.m.," Opolka adds. "They should make sure there are no firearms in their cars, though."

Denny McBurney led the team in scoring with 205 points and Dean Bolt added 186. Ken Peterson and Kevin Anderson also scored over 100 points with 115 and 113. Dean Bolt was the leading rebounder with 159 boards. Denny McBurney hauled down 137 rebounds and Ken Peterson picked up 112. Of Dean Bolt's 159 rebounds, 132 were on the defensive board, "an exceptional statistic," according to Ryan. A few other stats that stand out came from Kevin Anderson, who had 72 assists. He also shot 63 percent from the free-throw line. Another highlight came from Steve Calhoun who hauled down 62 rebounds while playing guard.

Land owners conference is set for Friday

A variety of topics of particular interest to Upper Peninsula land owners and several featured speakers are on the agenda of a day-long conference on land use and natural resources at Northern Michigan University on Friday, March 19. The meeting, to be held in the Don H. Bortum University Center at Northern Michigan University beginning at 8:30 a.m., is co-sponsored by the Upper Peninsula Federation of Landowners (UPFLO) and NMU. UPFLO includes some 1,200 members representing over three million acres of land ownership in the U.P. Topics will include forestry, mining, recreation, fish and fishing, wildlife, small towns and rural communities and agriculture.

Program speakers will include Larry Folks, with the Program Development and Services Section, Department of Natural Resources, and Michael Scieszka of the DNR's Land Resources Programs Division, both from Lansing, who will give an illustrated presentation on the Mensma Land Inventory Program. The luncheon address will be given by Thomas Klein, director of the Sigurd Olson Environmental Institute, Northland College, Ashland, Wis., who will speak on "Confrontation, Communication or Cop-out?" Conference fee is $10, luncheon $5 (optional). Contact the NMU Conference Department, (906) 227-2101, for further details.

Insect damage forces timber sale

by Dan Moore and Bryan Barnett, Foresters

Probably the most important insect pest to the spruce-fir forests in the Lake States is the spruce budworm. This insect, in its larval stage, feeds primarily on the needles and young shoots of balsam fir and white spruce. However, they will also feed on black spruce and hemlock. Continuous feeding leads to defoliation and, if severe enough, will cause tree mortality.

In May of 1981 a severe spruce budworm infestation was discovered on the Manistique Ranger District of the Hiawatha National Forest. In order to reduce this spruce budworm outbreak and to salvage the already damaged timber, the Forest Service prepared, and offered and sold the Star Salvage Timber Sale. The cutting of this infested timber will reduce the food source and available host trees. At the same time, it will prevent the complete loss of the already damaged timber. Cutting in this salvage sale is scheduled to begin sometime in May of this year.

To reduce the possibility of a future spruce budworm outbreak, several steps will be taken after cutting on the sale is completed. In the stands that will be naturally regenerated, species other than balsam fir will be encouraged. Stands that were planned for seeding will be seeded to black spruce. These steps will essentially reduce the percentage of balsam fir in the timber stands, thus reducing the probability of future spruce budworm outbreak. Also, if an outbreak were to occur, it would be less severe than the present one.

Logging is a difficult and dangerous job any time of year, but winter makes it tougher yet. Equipment is harder to start when it has been sitting in the woods exposed to the elements. Ice forms in the fuel lines. Diesel fuel thickens. Filters must be changed more frequently. Costs increase as production declines. Equipment breaks more readily; repairs are more time consuming and more difficult to complete.

The timber is frozen, making it tougher to saw. Teeth break off the chain or the chain itself snaps. It's difficult to get to the trees to saw them down when the snow is waist deep.

Despite these obstacles, winter may be the only season some locations can be logged. In spring and fall, water tables are so high in swampy areas, only beavers fall trees. Even in the driest months of summer, the soil may be too wet to support logging equipment without resource damage.

These wet sites present one further problem - the development of usable roads. The swamps are usually logged across temporary roads because of the prohibitive cost of all-weather type road construction. As soon as January rolls around and the temperatures drop and the snow is falling, it is time to start working to "freeze the road down". Snow is quite an effective insulation against winter cold. To get the roads in usable condition, it's necessary to push the snow aside to allow the cold air to get to the soil so that "freezing" can be accomplished. With a little knowledge, experience and work, however, nature provides the paving for a surface that will readily support trucks weighing over a hundred thousand pounds.

This cold "pavement" endures only until about the last of March or early April. Logging then becomes a guessing game of how much longer it's possible to haul over a given road with the water beginning to run. The first time a wheel goes through the ice, it's time to call it quits. The holes get bigger as the days go progressively longer.

Winter logging is not all problems, though. It is a season and conditions that permit foresters to manage more timber-producing land in the swampy areas than would be possible if it never got cold enough to freeze. Deer benefit, too. They soon learn that the buzz of the chainsaw means the table is set. They work in and around logging activity like flies, seemingly unaware or uncaring that the same persons making food available to them were, only a couple of months before, outtrying to make food of them.

Winter can be a harsh working environment, yet man sometimes can be intelligent and adaptable enough to continue all his activities virtually uninterrupted.

Spring used to be icecutting season for summer chills

Memories Jack Orr

I don't recall the event depicted in our Memories photo this week, but it must have taken place in the early Twenties. The Historical Society picture is of an ice-making operation run by John (Jim) St. at the north side of the flume, probably behind where the Wadell Lumber Co. used to be.

The making was a regular early-spring operation in those days before the advent of electric refrigerators. The last such endeavor I witnessed was in the quarry, and Bill Eck was the boss on that one. Here, it looks like the horse and men on the flume are moving a cut down to the chute, you can see several blocks on the way down to the sleigh for transport to the ice house at the docks.

Ice was stored for summer use in a specially-built house, with walls heavily insulated with sawdust. When your kitchen ice box needed replenishment you'd call the dealer and order a block to fit your cabinet. No electric bills for refrigeration in those days.

Our column of Feb. 25 included a shot of an early airplane, entertaining the crowd at the county fair. At the time we said, we may hear from the "experts" in Wisconsin about the type of plane, and sure enough we received a letter. Here it is:

"Dear Jack: We think we can help you identify the airplane and pilot published in your Feb. 25, 1982 column. The pilot is Lincoln Beachey, not Beachley. The airplane is a Curtiss Pusher, powered with a 90 H.P. V-eight engine, liquid cooled, that was a forerunner of the famous OA-5 that powered the Curtiss JN-4 Trainer in World War I.

Beachey turned out to be the best stunt pilot of his time after a rough start at the Curtiss school in Hammondsport, N.Y. where he cracked up three planes to matchwood before he graduated. He then went into exhibition flying at county fairs for about $1,500, which was a considerable amount of money in that day. On top of a most abrasive personality, we have heard him described as a "guy you didn't like when you first met him, and after you knew him, you hated him."

"He was not the first pilot to perform a 'loop', however. This honor goes to a Frenchman, Adolphe Pegoud. This, according to reports, did nothing but make Beachey furious. So, within the next year's time, he had looped over 1,000 times.

"Enclosed are some photos of Beachey and his Curtiss Pusher which seem to match your photo, which by the way is remarkably clear for something taken 70 years ago. Also, glad that we have become experts at long last.

About our shot of the 1928 physics class. Of the people we were unable to identify, the boy at the left in the front row, whose face looked familiar, was identified by Normie as William Berkowitz, popularly known as Billie Buckweat.

Spring celebrations in the Good Old Days used to include grade-school ceremonies for Arbor Day, and always a Maypole dance. Does this ever happen any more? In the former we'd go out in the school yard and plant a tree, to the accompaniment of some poetic readings. For the Maypole Dance, Mr. Trowsell would set up a pole with streamers attached at the top and the kids would go around in a circle, interweaving these streamers as they walked. I think this must have been mostly the girls... the boys were out in the field playing soccer.

Marygrove plans two retreats

Father Tim Desnoyers, rector of the Marygrove Retreat Center, will be conducting a "His Way" retreat at the Center the weekend of April 2-4. The Retreat is based upon the book "His Way: An Everyday Plan for Following Jesus" by Father David Knight (St. Anthony Messenger Press, 1977). The weekend begins with registration at 7 p.m. on Friday and concludes 12 noon on Sunday.

According to Desnoyers, the Retreat emphasizes that following Jesus Christ is a way of growth. "To be Christian is to know Him as a person to grow toward likeness to Him in mind, will and heart, and to commit ourselves to live for Him," said Desnoyers.

"His Way" is a book that addresses the topic of lay spirituality, which according to Knight is the day-to-day outgrowing of the layperson's his or her relationship to Jesus Christ. Says Knight in his book, "If laypersons ever begin to hear witness to Christ in everything they do, regardless of the risk, then the kingdom will really be at hand."

Retired personnel slated to meet

The Schoolcraft County chapter of Retired School Personnel will meet Saturday, March 20 at 12:30 p.m. at the Fireside Inn. Alex Meron will present a program on "Tracing Your Roots". All retired school personnel are encouraged to attend.

Anyone interested in making the "His Way" retreat is asked to call reading the book. Reservations can be made by contacting the retreat center at P.O. Box 38, Garden, MI 49835, or by calling (480) 644-2711. Suggested fee for the Retreat which includes all meals and accommodations is $50. However, people are asked to pay only what they can afford.

Another retreat is planned for April 20-22. Then, Marygrove will hold its annual retreat for senior adults, beginning on Tuesday. Registration will take place between 4 and 5 p.m. with dinner to follow and mony will be conducted during the April meeting, following a 6 p.m. potluck supper on Tuesday, April 13 in the library of the Parish Center. Mrs. Hoholik will be hostess chairman for this event.

The Foresters' annual corporate communion has been scheduled for Tuesday, May 11, during the 5 p.m. Eucharistic Celebration at St. Francis de Sales Church.

Other business last week included the sending of a monetary donation to the St. Francis Parish carnival committee, which is planning the Sunday, March 28, affair at the school.

The visiting committee reported that Mrs. James (Vivian) Miller was a hospital patient in Marshallfield, Wis. Get-well greetings were sent to her.

Coffee and dessert was served by Mrs. Jahn and Mrs. Ranguette. Prizes were presented to Mrs. LaMuth and Mrs. Willock for high card scores.

The next meeting of the Foresters is scheduled for Tuesday, April 13.

What beautiful, high-stepping weather. One morning last week, as we were leaving to go to work, you could smell spring in the air. It has a fresh clean smell all its own. Certainly was a nice way to start the day. Pretty soon we will be putting away the snow shovel and bringing out the lawn mower. Sounds like a fair trade.

We have been very busy this week getting Grandma's Attic ready to open April 1. The new address is 414 Walnut Street. A coffee lunch is being held March 24 at 2:30 p.m. for all the volunteers who are planning on working. If you haven't volunteered to help run Grandma's Attic before, now is your chance. I know you'll enjoy yourself. We are also in need of bags and hangers. If you have any extra, we could put them to good use.

Also remember we are taking crafts in on volunteerism. We also need reusable items such as clothing, dishes, books and small appliances. The only things we won't take are your husband and your kids. You can drop your crafts or items off at the Center until April 1. After April 1 drop them off at Grandma's Attic.

Wait until you see the new store. We're making it look as much like a country store as possible. Jerry Sleeper and Linda Morden have been busy making curtains. Just wait until you see them. I'm not going to tell you where. You'll have to come in and see for yourself.

We've received many recipes but we still need more. If you have a dropped sourdough, get busy. I know it's early, but I'm going to ask anyway. We are going to need our cream makers in a few months. If you have one that we could borrow, would you call the office and let me know? You'll never guess what we are going to do.

Remember to drop off your Timepiece puzzle. Time is getting short.

We have the tickets for our Spring Into Spring dinner dance in the office. The date is April 3 at 5 p.m. Tickets cost $4.50 per person. Remember that no tickets will be sold after March 31. Get your tickets early so that you won't miss a fun evening.

Memorials were given to the Center in the name of Otto Lindén by Christine Lindstrom; in the name of Ellen Hill by Christine Lindstrom; in the name of Adolph Asp by Christine Lindstrom; in the name of Martin Click by Harry and Evelyn Click and in the name of Golden Brock by Maria Brooks.

Erin Webb donated chop sticks for the Chinese dinner being held at the Center in her mother's name, Kitheel Winandy.

A monetary donation to our general fund account came from Russell and Tillie Tennant.

Laura Denny gave a generous donation to the Center to supplement the cost of the monthly newsletter.

Jim and Roberta Lindy gave a donation to Grandma's Attic and Rose Patrick donated material for our Tuesday's sewing class.

We also want to thank Mike Lundberg for plowing the center's parking lot.

All of these acts of kindness are greatly appreciated and we thank each and everyone of you for your concern.

Birthdays greeting go out to: Beatrice Lisch, Henry Peterson, Olive Smith, March 20; Gunhild Spore, March 21; Arthur Gray, Kenneth Pavey, Victor Peterson, Eleanor Schaffer, March 22; Frances Weber, Luella Wolfe, March 23; Mary Borko, March 24; Marie Henderson, March 25.

Don't forget to take a minute and wish these people a happy birthday!

Hire the older worker, UPCAP urges

With the arrival of "Employ the Older Worker Week" March 14-20, the Upper Peninsula Commission for Area Progress (UPCAP) is urging U.P. employers not to overlook the value in hiring elderly people.

"Older workers have better attendance, fewer accidents, a positive attitude and are just as productive as their younger counterparts," said Robert E. Olsen, executive director of U.P. CAP.

Olsen said older workers represent a significant savings to employers because they use less sick leave time, have lower turnover, and are less likely to utilize workers' compensation.

Older citizens not only want to work, but they need to work, he said. According to Olsen, one out of five U.P. retirees could benefit from part-time work to augment retirement income hurt by inflation.

"But, because of inaccurate stereotypes and misinformation, many employers are overlooking the older worker," he added.

He urged employers to consider retention, retraining and re-entry plans for workers over 55 years of age. Observance of "Employ the Older Worker Week" gives employers an opportunity to review their hiring practices to make sure able, not able, is taken into consideration when hiring, Olsen said.

For its part, U.P. CAP stresses the importance of older workers in the programs it administers. U.P. CAP service providers employ hundreds of older workers across the peninsula.

In addition, U.P. CAP funds 11 older workers under the Senior Community Service Employment Program (SCSEP). These people work in Michigan Employment Security Commission offices, locating and developing jobs for older workers, or at senior citizen centers. The program's future is in jeopardy, however, due to planned federal budget cuts.
