

In announcing this week that various items would have to be re-vised, Chester Bovee, head of the OPA, must have checked de-licately. Think of all the bureau-rats that will be restored to the public eye to think of the bene-fits to be filled out by the suffering public and avoid over the bene-fits of the OPA passes out with such affectionate care. To the ef-fect of the Administration the present of restructuring the ration-ing program must have glim-mered with the loveliness of the morning on a dewy June morning.

And speaking of the OPA—at says a popular subject with news-papers when they have nothing else to go on except to blame this week from a Man-istique paint dealer that the main-cause of the Argentine flax crop was snatched from under our Yankee noses by designing for-igners. The OPA apparently limited the price we could offer the Ar-gentines for their flax, so foreign buyers upped our bid and the price we could offer the whole crop. Nice going for those who believe in America last.

We hope the day will come again when the circus will be on the road, hitting the so-called "tank towns." Like carnivals, the circus has objectionable features, but in the main the big tent brings amusement that small town residents never see unless they visit the big cities. Calloused adults enjoy the circus, but what a supreme joy it is to the little boys and girls. The last circus showed in Manistique about 10 years ago, which means that there are hundreds of boys and girls in Manistique under 12 years of age who have never seen a real ele-phant, tiger or monkey—while have never seen trained horses perform or watched the idiotic antics of the circus clown. Bu-tdog should grow to adult hood without having seen at least one circus, and the memories of that experience will linger with them down the long years ahead.

A recent ruling by the liquor control commission that no liquor dealer can hold public office is having quite an effect on various boards throughout the state when permissuals. We note where three members of the L'Anse au-Loup council resigned this week because of the ruling, and we pre-sume that other resignations throughout the peninsula will fol-low. The ruling will also affect Manistique and Schoolcraft county will not be affected by the ruling be-cause no members of public boards are engaged in the liquor business.

Standing on the fairgrounds hill overlooking the city is one of our monuments to the Second World War. Erected at the request of the United States Army when aerial invasion threats loomed over our military jitters, the monument is to be placed on a reservation post for "spotting and observing all passing aircraft." The monument is a concrete stand at the race track, moved to its present location by the city. The monument is a concrete stand at the race track, moved to its present location by the city. CANCER IS DEADLY ENEMY SAYS SHAW
Lions Club Members Hear Talk By Manistique Doctor At Meeting Tuesday
Cancer was described as one of the deadliest enemies of the nation by Dr. George A. Shaw in a talk Tuesday evening at the regular meeting of the Manistique Lions Club.

The death rate from cancer al-ready has outstripped the fatality rate from the United States in World War II and it is rising at an alarm-ing rate, Dr. Shaw said. The reason for the sudden national interest in cancer, and the efforts now being made to build the cancer laboratory research center in Detroit, he said, are based on the fact that in 1944, he said, 800 people died from cancer in Michigan, and the upper part of the state has a little more than 9,000 people.

A HITCHING POST OR A SIGNPOST

★ Birthdays, anniversaries, graduations, a new job—all are occasions for rejoicing as well as for reflection and new resolve. Whether or not a list of resolutions is made, the accomplishments of the past can be either a hitching post or a signpost to a brighter future. Careful self-appraisal is often as revealing as a stock inventory. But no matter what the goal, the ability to reach it depends on health. Your physician stands ready to take your physical inventory at any time. Why not seek his advice now? His suggestions can be relied upon for a sound health program.

This, too, is a FOREST FIRE!

GRASS AND FERN FIRES DESTROY TOMORROW'S TIMBER

NO FIRE IS TOO SMALL TO FEAR

Flames sweeping through grass or dry ferns may destroy jobs and homes of only a few decades from now.

Look beneath the grass or ferns to discover why. In forest areas, you'll likely find tiny trees rooting there . . . seedlings just born which should form the forests of tomorrow.

It's particularly important to protect those seedlings, while they are young and so easily destroyed. From them must come payrolls, and taxes and the foundation for thriving communities . . . perhaps the homes of your own children.

So be careful with fire . . . always. Never burn fields carelessly. Be careful of debris disposal. Remember that grass fires are often forest fires, too. Remember that forest fires start not only in timber, but also at the grass roots, where new forests are beginning their useful lives.

do something about an emergency that was clearly foreseen?

The first responsible warning about post-war food shortages was issued in April 1945—a good 13 months ago by Judge Samuel Rosenman who at President Roosevelt's request visited Europe on the eve of Germany's surrender.

In July, 1945, Joseph C. Grew (then under secretary of state) reported that warning.

Then on Sept. 29, 1945 the agriculture department said that "only substantial food imports from outside Europe can save millions of Europeans from near starvation in the coming winter."

But that isn't all not by a long shot.

On Nov. 27, 1945, the state department reported that 350,000,000 persons desperately needed food, and President Truman told the United States Congress that ultimately from 2,500,000 to 5,000,000 Michigan bushels in storage will be hurried to east-coast ports on the way to Europe.

On Feb. 7 of this year the President said the United States might have to return to most rationing to save others in starvation.

Then on March 1 he set up the famine emergency committee with Herbert Hoover as chairman, and on March 17 Hoover was sent to Europe.

abroad to get the facts—mind you to get the facts.

By April 18 the White House decided that American millers must set aside 25 per cent of the wheat they normally consume in making flour, for export to Europe.

What did the country do about the urgency of her own life? Well, she did nothing to the distressed countries of Europe especially to those that were our Allies during the war?

In the first quarter the wheat exports of this country were 12,000,000 tons short of our commitments for that period on April 1945—a special price premium on wheat and corn, coupled with another administrative appeal for action.

Just last week Dean Acheson, acting secretary of state, said the United States is still 150,000 tons short on its relief exports in the first week of May. Our quota was 250,000 tons of food. We sent about 100,000 tons.

The difference for this one week—the 150,000 tons just mentioned—would have made 330,000,000 loaves of bread, enough to supply the minimum weekly ration for 71,000,000 persons—men, women and children. That much was probably wanted in this country by careless householders and restaurant operators. Americans have been always extravagant with their food; during the World War they consumed more food per capita than before the war—because it cost less.

Why Washington has dilly-dallied for months, avoiding a showdown on the food issue and hesitating to impose restrictions, is probably answered by the fact that in 1946 is an election year. Politicians don't want to do anything that might be unpopular with well-organized pressure groups back home.

So don't continue the draft of young men after May 15. It might be unpopular with their parents. So don't ration meat or food. The voters wouldn't like it.

So don't worry about price control. After all, living costs soared 6.28 per cent in World War if they were up only 29.3 percent in World War II. Let's have some more inflation and whoopee. The country can stand it.

So don't do anything to antagonize the labor unions—John L. Lewis especially. If you don't like the labor unions, you don't like the labor unions.

Our dealers join us in making this frank report to THE FARMERS OF AMERICA

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER is getting back into production with all possible speed. Extra shifts are being employed wherever conditions permit, to try to overcome the production losses of the recent strike. Everything is being done to get parts and machines to you.

While we and our dealers would like to tell you that this means an immediate end to the shortage of tractors and machines, it is more accurate to say that it means the beginning of the end of it. If illness or bad weather delays you seriously in the Spring, you know how much it throws you off your schedule. The strike has thrown our schedules off balance, too. There are many "chores" we must do before new machines reach you.

No hoarding. You may be sure that every machine will be shipped to dealers as soon as completed. We do not and will not hold machines off the market.

At the start of the strike we had on hand at all our factories and branches just 837 tractors of all kinds—less than two days' production—and 604 of these were not completed. Many of those on hand had one or more important parts missing—principally radiator cores. Most of the rest represented the normal daily "flow" between the end of the assembly line and the shipping platform. Naturally no tractors were made during the strike.

Material shortages. The preliminary chores of getting our plants back to shape for full production were not finished. But disturbances in other industries and resulting material shortages may affect our plans. Like crane steel sheets, brass and copper, frictional horse power motors, and many other items are all very short. The real situation may also prove serious—use hope.

Refilling the well. Both our dealers and our branches have run dry on parts and new machines. So the biggest chore is to get their working stocks back to normal. It will take time to fill the pipeline to dealers—just as it will take time for you to fill a well or cistern after it has run dry.

Stock and display rooms of our dealers represent not one, but ten thousand reservoirs which must be refilled. The most heroic production efforts will mean that your local dealer can expect only a small number of parts and machines at a time. Since we must play fair with all our customers, there will be a sprinkle of parts and machines all over the country—not a downpour in any one section.

You will be glad to know that all repair parts production schedules are for beyond normal.

No cutting corners on quality. We know you will understand the reasons why your dealer cannot fill your orders overnight. He would like to give you the kind of delivery on machines you would like to get, but his situation is a difficult one and not of his own making. He is doing the best he can.

There is one thing you can be absolutely certain about: We will NOT cut corners on quality in order to increase production in this emergency. For years we have said "QUALITY IS THE FOUNDATION OF OUR BUSINESS." Today we say it—and mean it—as much as ever.

We know you need new machines—and need them badly. But we believe it will pay you to wait just a little while longer if you cannot get all you want immediately. By waiting you can be sure your new equipment will have the quality so rightly associated with INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER for so many years.

Chemical Treatment Adds To Quality of Gauze
If you could see an ordinary open weave cotton gauze bandage under a magnifying glass, and then look at the same bandage under the same magnifying glass after it has been chemically treated to make it into new semi-elastick bandage, you could easily understand what chemists of the department of agriculture are doing. The chemical solution the scientists use actually swells the individual fibers within the spiral structure of the yarn. That swelling causes the yarn to shorten. That shortening, in turn, causes the cloth to shrink.
When you compare the treated and the untreated gauze, you notice that the treated gauze is thicker and thicker and fuzziier and the openings in the mesh are smaller. In the light, open-weave surgical gauze that's been treated you'll notice crimps and kinks in the crossing threads. Those crimps and kinks, and before coming to this make it really stretchable and somewhat elastic.
Surgeons report this semi-elastick cloth is superior to ordinary gauze. And the surface irregularities of each layer interlock with those of the next layer and thus the bandage from slipping. The department chemists have also applied this same general idea to more cloth-covered goods. By treating yarn with chemical solutions they swell the yarn, shrink the cloth and make the openings in the mesh smaller. Cotton hose that leak less water and water-resistant clothing and tarpaulins are possible "new" things that "swell" respectively.

Cows Show Penchant For Swallowing Metal
For some unknown reason, cattle have a tendency to chew and swallow foreign objects. Among those which have been found in their stomachs are: pieces of wire, nails, staples and scraps of various kinds of metal, with sharp edges, as well as metal tags and buttons.
Polished pieces of metal can cause severe injury and sometimes death, if sharp objects frequently pass its way forward until it pierces the heart sac, and eventually, the heart itself.
Signs of hardware disease, the common name for the condition, are not always apparent. Sometimes the animal may show signs of distress, such as belching, or grunting on sudden motion. In the more advanced stage, there is often considerable liquid around the heart, and a gurgling or splashing sound can be heard. Death may result from direct injury to the heart by a foreign object or from complications resulting from infections.

Garbled Message Garbles Family

A Red Cross field director nearly fell off his chair when he read a Red Cross health and welfare message addressed to a soldier at Hokkaido, Japan.

"WIFE TWO CHILDREN LIVING. UNCLE ALL WELL. WIFE RENTED OUT. FARM TO BE CULTIVATED. SOLD. TWO HOGS ONE COW CHILDREN APPARENTLY RECEIVING GOOD TREATMENT."

After shifting punctuation and adding a word the Red Cross finally sent on a message less disconcerting to the soldier.

"WIFE TWO CHILDREN LIVING WITH UNCLE. ALL WELL. WIFE RENTED OUT. FARM TO BE CULTIVATED. SOLD. TWO HOGS AND ONE COW. CHILDREN APPARENTLY RECEIVING GOOD TREATMENT."

VETS NOT GULLIBLE IN BUYING LANDS

Purchases Realistic Reports Lands Division Of Conservation Department

Fear that veterans would be as gullible as the men who bought acres of northern Michigan's "golden muck" from slick promoters in the early 1920's is disappearing in the office of the conservation department's lands division. C. E. Miller, assistant chief of the division, declares returned servicemen are just as well informed as any other buyers of state lands.

Many a veteran returned to civilian life with plans for resort development or a private cabin in northern Michigan, and several hundred inquiries and applications for state lands have been received. In practically all cases, however, the veterans knew what they wanted and knew there was little or no land fit for farming in the tax-abandoned acreage of the 47 northern counties, and not much suitable for resorts. Purchases have been realistic, and the anticipated problem of veterans wanting "some cheap state land to start a farm on" just never developed.

Veterans and others going into the resort business may, besides checking state land lists, avail themselves of a pamphlet guide on lake front property acquisition prepared by the department's geological survey. It reviews question of water level fluctuation, dam maintenance, drainage and other water problems that could ruin a resort investment if not properly investigated.

Myth of Pontiac's Conspiracy Topic of War Historian

(Editor's Note: This is one of a series of articles dealing with myths and inaccuracies in Michigan history, some of which have persisted despite disclosure of the real facts.)

How Fort Detroit was warned of Pontiac's conspiracy has become one of the many myths which distort Michigan history, according to H. P. Clever Bald, war historian at the University of Michigan.

The story involves an Indian woman who is reputed to have warned Major Gladwin, commander of Fort Detroit, that the Indian chief was planning to seize the fort. First accounts of the incident, Bald relates, said an old woman named Catherine alerted the major to expect Indian treachery.

She is reported to have delivered a pair of moccasins to the major who was so pleased with her handiwork that he ordered another pair only to be told she could not make them. Asked her reason for refusing, Catherine supposedly revealed Pontiac's plot.

Bald declares a study made by Helen P. Humphrey, former curator of maps at the University of Michigan's Clements Library, showed this account was used by five writers from 1766 to 1820. Then Miss Humphrey found that Medical science does know, however, that cancer is not inherited although a tendency for developing cancer in certain parts of the body may be transmitted from mother to child, and that it invariably starts as a result of a prolonged irritation to some part of the body, he said. Such an irritation can be caused by a pipe, tight clothing, exposure to certain chemicals, or repeated sunburn, he stated.

He emphasized that people should be taught to examine themselves for certain cancer symptoms. Among them he listed the following: Any sore that does not heal; freckles or birthmarks that suddenly change and become irritable; persistent stomach ache and indigestion; bleeding from any bodily orifice; persistent nasal trouble; and continued hoarseness of the voice.

If caught in time, much can be done by medical science to arrest or remove cancer, he said. This done either by direct surgery or by deep X-ray or radium treatments.

All Nursery Stock Must Be Inspected

Reminder Issued Of Danger In Accepting Uninspected Plant Material

C. A. Boyer, chief of the bureau of plant industry of the state department of agriculture, today issued a reminder that it is unlawful to move any kind of nursery stock from one's premises to another, until the stock has been inspected and a certificate issued showing its apparent freedom from disease and insect.

Nursery stock includes all trees, shrubs, vines and plants other than nursery grown or wild.

In a letter to the Pioneer-tribune, Mr. Boyer said: "We are repeatedly picking up advertisements of parties advertising 'raspberry' and strawberry plants for sale who have not complied with the provisions of the law."

All nursery stock and plant material is capable of carrying insects and diseases which are detrimental to plant life, and this is detrimental to the commonwealth from securing plants which may be free of insects. This law prohibits the spread of insects and diseases.

Plant material in accordance with the law should be disposed of in a safe manner. It should contain the name of the person who is disposing of it and the name of the person to whom it is being sold.
