Let's Face the Facts About HOME BUILDING In the confusion created about the shortage of homes in America, one point stands out clearly: YOU CAN'T BUILD HOMES WITHOUT MATERIALS! Lumber and building material dealers and contractors obviously have a vital interest in obtaining materials for home building. They report, nevertheless, that such materials are not flowing through the yards; that they have not been able to get them. Therefore, the government's HH priorities offered to enable veterans and others to obtain homes, are simply home hunting licenses—for materials in quantity are not available. As long as OPA continues its wartime control policy rather than a policy of adjustment to aid reconversion, it will neither be able to prevent an inflation or a deflation; it will only be able to prevent reconversion by discouraging production of needed home building items. Here, for example, is an instance of OPA action that has resulted in increased production. After six months' delay, OPA granted a 4% to 10% price adjustment that allowed 125 of 400 closed brick and tile plants to reopen. This price adjustment allowed these plants and 400 others that had been operating, to hire needed labor. As a result, in the next quarter production rose 35%. But in hardwood flooring, siding, plywood, millwork, and construction lumber, OPA clings to its wartime formula. Instead, OPA follows the unrealistic policy of allowing premium prices to mills for producing lumber for such things as export to foreign countries, and for items that were needed in wartime industry. Today's question is not essentially one of price control—if there were plenty of homes, no price controls would be necessary. The important question is one of production and manpower. So far, OPA and government officialdom in general have contented themselves with controls, allocations and priority systems which at best can do nothing but juggle an insufficient supply of building materials—and at worst, delay and retard production and the employment of manpower. Homes will not be built in the United States unless the Building Industry builds them. Whether they are labeled "Public Housing" or "Private Homes," the same materials, the same labor, the same building industry will build them. Production can be un-blocked by the removal or adjustment of OPA's wartime policies. But such a realistic approach cannot be attained as long as government action is based on a philosophy of lack rather than a philosophy of abundant supply for peacetime prosperity. The lumber dealers, builders and contractors stand ready to build or rebuild America. But it is up to the people to demand that the way be cleared for the production of materials for homes. Any government program that does not FIRST remove the obstacles blocking production of materials will simply add additional difficulties to the problem facing the building industry. Shooting Hollywood motion pictures on historic Mackinac Island, rebound in mid-winter, is like being shipwrecked on a desert island.
There's no place to go after you get there.
And when you get there, you've got to wait many days before returning to your bustling post-war world, beset with its problems.

Mayor Allen Sawyer, of the City of Mackinac Island took the recent excitement without flinching. Attired in faded red and black checked waistcoat, stag trousers, heavy wool shirt and a beaver cap, the mayor welcomed the arrival of a Hollywood motion picture crew which began the filming of winter scenes for "This Time for Keeps," a MGM production which will bring some Mackinac between now and next summer.

Among the visitors to Mackinac, during the MGM technical assignment, was Ben Wright, secretary of the Michigan Tourist Council. The "Michigan Mirror" invited him to report his observations. Here they are:
"Mackinac has a year round population of approximately 200, half of them Irish whose families have called 'The Mount' home for generations. Of the balance, about twenty-five percent are Indians who centuries ago fled from the wintry shores to the center of the Island and settled a shabby little village called Harrisville.

"The contrast of Mackinac in mid-summer with Mackinac in mid-winter is delightfully shocking. Substituted for summer's gay laughter of youthful vacationists and the clatter of horse hoofs is the death-like silence of the sleeping village where only the boom of the ice in the frozen Straits punctuates the air. So still is the setting that one finds himself talking in whispers.

"Native ingenuity has partially solved the isolation of the Island during three or four months of the year. Three young men banded mail-produce-passenger boat, between the Island and Mackinaw (St. Ignace) just as long as the Straits are free of ice. Besides a gliding somersault around the last of January when the great winds of saucy Lake Huron and Lake Michigan compete to see which can pile the largest and the greatest number of floating ice islands into the narrow Straits, native Lang ties his cuffs fast to the City Dock. From then on, the Islanders are at the mercy of winter.

"The State Ferries make only emergency runs to the Island in the winter. If someone is ill or if the Island needs food, the highway department will add Mackinac to one of its regular runs between the two peninsulas.

"At the first of February the stores were completely out of butter, eggs, bread and other assorted staples. Cap Bengten put the Sainte Marie in then to relieve the food shortage. Also debarking was an ex-G.I. whose limp told a war story. Embarking was another service man. He had come up eight days before to inspect a restaurant and his brother had purchased for him while he was making fourteen parachute jumps with the 82nd Airborne Division in Europe.

TALK ON GLASSWARE IS CLUB FEATURE

Stambaugh Teacher Addresses Women's Club; Interesting Display Shown

When the glassmaking industry was young in America, glassmakers were imported from England and paid salaries of $5,000 for six months work. Dorothy Simonson McQuown, of Stambaugh, told members of the Manistique Women's club at their meeting Tuesday afternoon.

During the period when glassware was entirely handmade, the secrets of the manufacturing process were closely guarded by the factory owners from England, and many of these secrets never were revealed. Even today, the speaker said, there are many ways to attempt to reproduce the delicate coloring of some very old pieces of glass.

To the collector, Mrs. McQuown declared, the most desirable piece of glass to secure is one that is old and rare, not beautifully necessary. One fairly reliable test for determining if a piece of crystal is old, she said, is to place it on a pure white tablecloth. Old glass will usually cast a darker shadow than new glass.

A few of the rare patterns mentioned by the speaker included the thumbprint, petal and top, icicle, cherry, grape, three faces, bleeding heart, Jacob's ladder, ivy, acorn, pineapple and diamond point patterns.

Following Mrs. McQuown's talk, members of the club viewed an interesting display of both antique and modern glassware provided by the clubwomen themselves and including many rare, unusual and beautiful pieces.

Proceeding the lecture program, Earl Cousineau, of the high school music department, sang "Into the Night," "Ceria," from the opera Fedoras, and "Sweethearts."

She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Margaret Johnson.

LAY YOUR COURSE, AMERICA!

Like spring thunderheads the evidence towers blackly, formidably, over the country, plainly spelling out a fact that can no longer be ignored: Inflation cannot be controlled by decree.

Total war brought about an unenviable public debt increases. This debt is beginning to bear down upon the home front in rising prices and depreciating money, with all of the accompanying evils.

We should realize now as never before that America had a war to win. Wars are won by "blood and treasure." We gave our blood and we are now giving our treasure—it is being exacted from us through inflation.

Sam and Lud, War and Peace

Like everybody else, I sit in my town talk about the way of proceeding peace. Some believe in town, some mother. But when it comes to Lud Penny and Sam Hackney—each has a self-incited plan.

Talking things over at Bill Webster's, Sam and Lud put so worked up arguing against each other's plan, they almost came to blows.

Seems to me there's the problem in a nutshell! No plan in the world better than peace—'til folks respect each other's views; allow for differences of taste; and learn to live with opposite opinions.

From where I sit, real peace begins with people—neighbor living tolerantly beside neighbor—regardless of who votes how, or who drinks beer or cider, or who wears city clothes or overalls.

Peace starts with Tolerance!
