University Zoo At Ann Arbor Is Big Attraction

All of the animal exhibits at the University of Michigan Museum are so stuffed and lifeless! Almost hidden by shrubbery in the back of the building is a very cozy, housing, representative specimens (very much alive) of fur-bearing animals that inhabit the state. The present population includes four black bears, four red foxes, three badgers, and three raccoons. Also included is a wolverine, but actually this resident hails from Alaska and is not a Michigan native.

Money from a man in Detroit who desires to remain anonymous made it possible, back in 1929, to create the zoo. University President Alexander G. Harkness had been insisting a museum should have living animals. The zoo is a center of interest throughout the housing representative specimens (very much alive) of fur-bearing animals that inhabit the state. The present population includes four black bears, four red foxes, three badgers, and three raccoons. Also included is a wolverine, but actually this resident hails from Alaska and is not a Michigan native.

Brother and Sister, two huge black bears, are chief attractions of the zoo. Miss Crystal Thompson, curator at the University Museum, has an interesting story to tell about Brother and Sister. She says they were grown from tiny black balls of fur that could be held in the palm of her hand. Their proportions—Brother weighs 800 pounds and Sister 500.

Brother and Sister arrived at the University in February of 1932 with their eyes still closed and weighing less than a pound apiece since they were less than a month old. Their trip to the campus resulted from a visit to Harbor, Mich., by one of the Museum's employees. His father, a conservation officer, had the two cubs which had been turned over to him by two woodchoppers.

For eight weeks, Miss Thompson had to bottle feed the cubs taking care to see that they were fed since the milk had to be given them every two hours. Finally, Brother and Sister were big enough (18 inches tall) to be put in the animal house. But they still insisted on bottle feeding and were indignant over an attempt to switch to a larger size bottle to eliminate some of the work of filling from 10 to 12 nursing bottles at one feeding.

One day Brother saw the 14-quart pail of hot milk which was brought to the zoo for the bottle filling project at each feeding. He dropped his bottle and stuck his head into the pail. That ended the bottle feeding. Since then, the bears have been given the attention and a varied diet of bread and milk, carrots, apples and green corn with some candied raisins for their sweet tooth. Miss Thompson reports Brother and Sister, despite their huge size, actually have dainty manners in eating.

Zion To Mark Anniversary Of Corner Stone Laying

Special Services Will Be Held At Lutheran Church Sunday Morning

The fortieth anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the Zion Lutheran church will be observed by the congregation, next Sunday morning at 10:30 a. m. The Rev. G. A. Heber, Zion's pastor, will officiate and the choir will sing "Rock of Ages" by Dudley Buck.

The cornerstone was laid on the last Sunday in August in 1906. The Rev. Luther Dahlsten, now of Maplewood, Missouri, was pastor of the local church at that time in the issue of August 31, 1906, of the Manistique Pioneer Tribune, the following account of the event was published:

"The cornerstone of the proposed new church edifice to be erected by the Zion Lutheran congregation was placed in position last Sunday afternoon with impressive ceremonies. The church choir sang several selections in an excellent manner and Mrs. Rev. Dahlsten, a portion of the congregation, officiated in her usual artistic manner. The ceremonial portion of the program was in charge of Rev. Dahlsten, a former pastor of the congregation, Rev. Hieronimus of Eastport and Albert Olson had actual charge of the work of laying the stone. The Norwegian Lutheran church and Rev. Dahlsten, the present pastor, made excellent addresses in the English language. The latter effectively answered the question so often propounded: 'Why is your congregation erecting a new church edifice?' He stated that the old building had a seating capacity of 125, while the church had a membership of 365. Thus the beauty and utility of any church ment has appropriated $50,000 to build an improved highway to the upper and lower Tahquamenon Falls—two of the scenic attractions of Michigan's famed north country.

The road will start at Peralta on Whitefish Bay, Lake Superior, and will travel northward to the upper falls and thence to the lower falls and thence to the upper falls to the north.

To safeguard the falls from the noise of motor traffic, the state will require travelers to park their cars and to walk over a trail to the upper falls. There the visitors will view the 200-foot wide waterfall.

As we traveled on Capt. Beach's excursion early in August, the question arose of what would happen in this unusual day's journey to the falls. The average American seems inclined to go places as quickly as possible. Leisure is not a luxury in a two-week vacation.

Somehow, we hope travelers will overlook Joe's opportunity for a day of relaxation. On our trip we saw numerous deer, many moose, and one bear.

Two so-called "night clubs" mark the town of Duluthville, a mile and a half south of Newberry.

In company with a group of newspaper people we visited one of these hot spots. A piano player was banging away. A few minutes later, when the word was relayed of the Monday night "rush," a drummer arrived to reinforce him.

True life story from Newberry. Every morning and afternoon, when the weather permits, a woman patient of the Newberry State Hospital rode to the gate near the state highway and begins peering down the road, expecting to see the arrival of her husband. She has been doing this for seven or eight years. Her husband abandoned her and she now subsists on no mind. Each day she returns and says: "I will come tomorrow." But tomorrow never comes.

Canadian press are nesting at the "Soo" state game refuge at Sault Ste. Marie. Years ago, in the 1880's and 1890's Sault Ste. Marie had the reputation of being the toughest spot in the Upper Peninsula. Gambling, fighting, drinking, and prostitution were too commonplace to merit newspaper attention. A woman reporter for a New York metropolitan newspaper connected a wild night of a "Soo" night club with "Man's Pasture." The year became an overnight national sensation. One of the section heads of the railroad crew at Sault Ste. Marie played a part in shaping our nation's history.

Travelers to the Canadian Sault Ste. Marie—the Soo—must declare radios, cameras, typewriters, outdoor motors and other valuable articles at the Canadian customs office. Serial numbers are carefully noted. American travelers who remain 48 hours in Canada may return with $100 worth of Canadian merchandise without requirement of duty.

Port Brady is being converted into a branch of the Michigan College of Mining and Technology. Classes will start next month.

On the west coast of Michigan you hear reports that the tourist business is off on the coast. And vice versa.

So we did a little investigation of our coast at Potoskey. Joseph W. Scouglin, manager of the J. C. Penny company store, said business was excellent and on a parity with 1945. The Northern Automobile Company, agents for Potoskey and Sinclair gasoline, reports a 40 per cent increase in sales over 1945.

Potoskey is joining with Cheboygan and Indian River in publishing a program for improvement of the inland waterway, a 40-mile route for pleasure boats from Cheboygan to Potoskey. In 1900 the southern inland Congress to declare the waterway a Federal controlled route. Active in this promotion are Charles T. Lathrop, a former player who runs a dairy farm near Cheboygan; James Hartington, former Ford official and contractor on Hart Lake; and Joseph Graham, summer resident and one of the Graham brothers of automobile pioneer days.

A burning cigarette, believed to have been flung from a passing car, caused a fire which damaged furniture in the rear of a Gladstone furniture company's truck Wednesday noon.

STATE FAIR OPENS

The Upper Peninsula State Fair will be open all next week at Escanaba.

A tremendous amount of planning and effort and money has gone into the task of creating this fair and putting it on.

According to all advance reports, it will be one of the best U. P. State Fairs ever held.

A trip to the fair next week will be well worth while, both for entertainment and for gaining a more thorough knowledge of how nice a country we have up here north of Lake Michigan.

DOES RUSSIA SEEK WAR?

Are we faced with the possibility that Soviet Russia wants and desires war?

Many ominous portents indicate that something is seriously wrong. Reports from northern Asia indicate that American and Russian troops have skirmished with gunfire along the Korean border.

Great Britain is concentrating substantial armies near Iran. The Royal Air Force is poised for immediate action.

Russian diplomats are twisting and snarling the peace conference, and heaping verbal abuse on the United States.

The United States is increasing its naval power in the Mediterranean, and is reinforcing Alaska.

The affront of little Yugoslavia in insulting and shooting at the United States must indicate more than meets the eye.

Yugoslavia is incapable of standing up against one of our larger states, yet by her action she is bringing down upon her the wrath of a vast and powerful nation.

There is little doubt that Tito of Yugoslavia would, if himself, be careful about stirring up more trouble. Unquestionably he is being egged on by the Soviet, with promises of help if he gets his fingers burned.

Therein lies the real danger in Yugoslavia. Is Russia bluffing or merely seeking to set off the spark?

Upper Peninsula Men On National Scout Council

Two upper peninsula men, members of the Hiawathaland Council's executive board, have received letters from Dr. Elbert Frost, chief Scout executive, announcing their recent election as members-at-large of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America.

They are Frank Speese, of Ontonagon, chairman of the Copper Country district committee, and Perry B. Hatch, of Escanaba, chairman of the Hiawathaland Council, and Perry B. Hatch, of Escanaba, chairman of the Hiawathaland Council, and Perry B. Hatch, of Escanaba, chairman of the Hiawathaland Council.

When she was an undergraduate at Smith College, Blanche Hixson, a history-government major considered entering the law as a career.

But she married Wayne Smith instead and busied herself in bringing up three sons, managing her own home and becoming an active clubwoman.

Ten years ago her husband prevailed upon her to write book reviews for the paper.

From the outset, her abilities were evident, and within a short time numerous civic and fraternal organizations in Meridian and neighboring communities, impressed with her critical acumen, sought her as a guest speaker on current events.

Even today, with her many other duties, she finds time to read and review an average of six books a week. After the books, Mrs. Smith took on theater reviewing.

When, three years ago, she became editor of the Meridian Record, Mrs. Smith agreed to pinch-hit for him. Since that time, she has done a full-time job of editorial writing.

According to Mrs. Smith, "A properly presented editorial should contain vital information for the public, since so many people simply do not have the time to take in all the important existing issues of the day."

Her editorials cover a wide range of subjects and are enterprisingly and clearly written. Mrs. Smith's editorials have been widely quoted in papers throughout Connecticut and New England, and have received high praise from Meridian civic leaders and industrials.

14,000 Circulation

Since husband and wife assumed the joint responsibilities of publisher and associate editor respectively, the Record's circulation has risen to a level of 14,000, which is outstanding in a city of less than 10,000 inhabitants.

The paper draws its subscribers from a radius of 12 square miles. Meridian, Michigan, located approximately halfway between Hartford and New Haven, is noted for its silver industry—two of the largest silver-mining companies in the world are located here.

The Meridian Record is a 16-page, monthly newspaper with an editorial staff of eight. It was formerly published by Wayne Smith's father. Ten years ago, at his father's death, Wayne Smith took over as general manager and in 1942 he became publisher.

Much of the credit for the paper's success is attributed by Mrs. Smith to his wife.

Working with equal skill in the past of editorial writer, book reviewer and theater critic, and without her, the paper would have to search a long time to find three good replacements," Mr. Smith declares.

Editor And Publisher Prints Story About Mrs. Wayne Smith

Former Blanche Hixson, Of Manistique, Named To National Society

A recent issue of "Editor and Publisher" includes an article about Mrs. Wayne Smith, of Meridian, Conn., formerly Blanche Hixson of Manistique, who recently elected to membership in the American Society of Newspaper Editors—a distinction accorded to few women.

Mrs. Smith is associate editor of the Meridian Record, which she has written for John L. Tahan, follows:

Meridian, Conn.—In an ivory tower which was formerly a maid's room, a woman journalist today carries on her duties as associate editor of the Meridian Record. Mrs. Blanche Hixson Smith, wife of the Record's publisher, Wayne Smith, was recently elected to membership in the American Society of Newspaper Editors, which numbers very few women among its ranks.

Mrs. Smith was nominated for the honor by C. G. Hennaway, editor of the Hartford Times, and called her "one of the finest women editors in the country."

The converted studio in her home looks like most newspaper offices—clippings, galley proofs, here and there a stack of books, papers, Mrs. Smith with two of her three editorials, including the lead editorial, for the paper each day.

Allen resumed the wire and local news is telephoned to her, on which she bases much of her editorial writing. When her copy is finished, it is usually picked up by a copy boy and brought to the newspaper office.

Since husband and wife assumed the joint responsibilities of publisher and associate editor respectively, the Record's circulation has risen to a level of 14,000, which is outstanding in a city of less than 10,000 inhabitants.

Since husband and wife assumed the joint responsibilities of publisher and associate editor respectively, the Record's circulation has risen to a level of 14,000, which is outstanding in a city of less than 10,000 inhabitants.

The paper draws its subscribers from a radius of 12 square miles. Meridian, Michigan, located approximately halfway between Hartford and New Haven, is noted for its silver industry—two of the largest silver-mining companies in the world are located here.

The Meridian Record is a 16-page, monthly newspaper with an editorial staff of eight. It was formerly published by Wayne Smith's father. Ten years ago, at his father's death, Wayne Smith took over as general manager and in 1942 he became publisher.

Much of the credit for the paper's success is attributed by Mrs. Smith to his wife.

Working with equal skill in the past of editorial writer, book reviewer and theater critic, and without her, the paper would have to search a long time to find three good replacements," Mr. Smith declares.

When she was an undergraduate at Smith College, Blanche Hixson, a history-government major considered entering the law as a career.

But she married Wayne Smith instead and busied herself in bringing up three sons, managing her own home and becoming an active clubwoman.

Ten years ago her husband prevailed upon her to write book reviews for the paper.

From the outset, her abilities were evident, and within a short time numerous civic and fraternal organizations in Meridian and neighboring communities, impressed with her critical acumen, sought her as a guest speaker on current events.

Even today, with her many other duties, she finds time to read and review an average of six books a week. After the books, Mrs. Smith took on theater reviewing.

When, three years ago, she became editor of the Meridian Record, Mrs. Smith agreed to pinch-hit for him. Since that time, she has done a full-time job of editorial writing.

According to Mrs. Smith, "A properly presented editorial should contain vital information for the public, since so many people simply do not have the time to take in all the important existing issues of the day."

Her editorials cover a wide range of subjects and are enterprisingly and clearly written. Mrs.

Former Servicemen Who Failed To Take Policies Before May Do So Now

Honorably discharged veterans of World War II who failed to take out National Service Life Insurance while in the service may now obtain this insurance, it is announced by Leonard Mulhamp, local veterans' counselor.

Urban real estate prices are rising more because of actual shortages of housing and commercial buildings than because of inflationary "boom" factors, believes Leonard Mulhamp, local veterans' counselor.

WILLIAM SINE DIES OF HEART ILLMENT

Resident Of Manistique For Past 35 Years Stricken While On Trip

William Sine, 62, was stricken with a heart ailment while on a business trip here in Manistique, Mich., and while en route to his home in Wisconsin, where he had come for treatment following a heart attack.

Mr. Sine, who was enroute to Minneapolis on a business trip with Lawrence Hanbeau, of the Manistique Oil company, had spent the night at Wisconsin and became ill only a short time before his death.

He was born in Oakland county on July 23, 1884, and came to Manistique in 1911. During most of the 35 years of his residence here he operated a combination grocery store and gas service station at the intersection of Deer street and M-54. He retired about a year ago.

Survivors are three daughters, Mrs. Dorothy Briggs, Mrs. Prudence Hour and Mrs. Averill Beaudry, all of Manistique. Mrs. Sine died a number of years ago.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Hospital Project Moves Nearer To Realization

(Continued from page 1) Local government to take a financial interest in hospitalization, particularly since public health is a major concern of the nation, Davis said in opening his talk, instigated by the American Hospital Association which was responsible for the creation of the national hospital commission, a broad study is being financed by three national foundations, which include the W. K. Kellogg Foundation, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

One phase of this national study, included a detailed hospital study in one state. Michigan was selected because this state already had a state-wide study plan in process of creation.

Other states quickly developed plans for hospital studies and sought aid from the national commission the speaker said. This delayed commencement of the study in Michigan, but it eventually got started with a commission of 40 persons appointed by the governor. The study has been completed in the state and the report will undoubtedly be made public in September, Davis said.

The report of the national commission is expected to be released in October, he continued.

Federal Aid Provided To keep pace with the national and state studies underway, non-partisan legislation was introduced in the senate by both major parties over a year ago to provide federal aid for needy communities in constructing new hospital facilities, the speaker said. Passed by both houses, this bill, known as Senate Bill 191, has just been signed by the president and is now law, Davis said.

This bill sets up a fund of three million dollars for preliminary study, but much of this money will be unnecessary because many states already have their studies completed, the speaker said. It also provides a fund of 75 million dollars a year for five years for direct federal aid, to be allocated on the basis of population, present hospital facilities, and state finances, he said. On this allocation tion basis, Michigan will be allowed one-third of the cost of hospital construction.

Michigan must designate an agency to carry out the provisions of the hospital aid act in this state, the speaker said, adding that this agency will have priority to meet priorities in those communities with definite need of more hospital facilities. Manistique, he said, would appear to be a community which would be entitled to such priority.

50-bed Unit Quickly Here Davis said that a 50-bed hospital was the most economical unit to build, but such institution would be more costly to erect and operate for a population area the size of Manistique. A 30-bed hospital would be suitable but it would lack the services of such specialists as a pathologist, radiologist and dietitian, he said. Arrangements are now being made, however, to create a population area the size of Manistique, in which such specialist services would be provided he said.

The Kellogg Foundation study will recommend Escanaba as one regional center where the services of a radiologist and pathologist will be available, the speaker said. The Michigan hospital report will recommend that smaller communities like Manistique may draw on the nearest regional center for the services of such specialists.

Anticipating the state study recommendations, the W. K. Kellogg Foundation established its first pathologist in the upper peninsula the first of August, locating him at St. Luke's hospital, Marquette. The second pathologist will be available, the speaker said. "We also have a radiologist up here now," he said.

Kellogg Offers Wide Service Further discussing the services which the Kellogg Foundation offers, the speaker said that it will equip rooms for pathologists and radiologists, and will give special training to nurses and other hospital personnel.

Discussing the construction and operation of community hospitals, Davis said that ownership and direction is secondary; the important thing to the Kellogg Foundation is service to the public. He discussed the advantages and disadvantages of both government and non-profit corporation ownership.

Hourly Wage Rates Reach Record High

American industry is paying record-breaking hourly wage rates. Average hourly earnings for workers in manufacturing industry reached a record high of $1.68 an hour in April and a further rise to $1.67 was indicated for May, the Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported. The April average was one cent above the war-time peak set in January, 1946. Rising wage rates since the end of the war have set in part the decline in "take home" pay caused by shortening of the work week. Average weekly earnings in April were $42.92, down $4.50 from the wartime top.
