

Some of the boys journeyed into the woods of Canada north of the town of Sault last week end on a trout fishing expedition. Questioned about their luck, one of them was at first evasive but finally admitted that "they were just not biting." That is an experience familiar to most fishermen; there are days when the little speckled fellows will dislain every lure presented. Failure to catch a lot of trout does not necessarily spell a flop for the real trout fisherman. There is more to fishing than looking a few trout out of the water. There is the journey into the wilderness, the camping out, the rugged countryside, the companionship of the trail. We can imagine that a journey into the Canadian wilderness would be a pleasure if never a fish was caught.

"Luddy, what is your birthstone?" "I think it is a grindstone, son."

A group of Manistique people went to Chatham Tuesday night to meet the annual 4-H club camp meeting at Camp Shaw. The camp is on the grounds of Michigan State College's experimental farm. They came away thoroughly impressed with the scope of agricultural activities at the farm and with the size and importance of the 4-H club program. Buildings of the camp are constructed around the rim of a quarry with an enclosed quadrangle growing to lawn grass and shrubbery. Over 500 youngsters in their own homes are spending a week there, enjoying the camp life, the organized programs, and the other activities provided by a well-trained and competent staff. Every one of these boys and girls is from the farm. The Manistique visitors are probably convinced that in the 4-H club program, the United States is far out in front of world agriculture.

Incidentally, if the boys and girls at Camp Shaw represent a fair cross-section of the farm population of the upper peninsula, then blonde hair definitely predominates. Among the blonde youngsters seen in the camp quadrangle for the evening program, just a scattering of black hair could be seen. The rest were blondes, ranging from the honey-colored hair of the blonde to the dark green of blondness to brown and deep red.

Hubbard, answering the telephone, said "I don't know, call the member bureau." "Who was that, dear?" "Hubbard." "Some poor sap wanting to know if the coast is clear."

Atmospheric radio-active chemicals, presumably caused by the recent atomic blast at Bikini, have been detected over San Francisco, thousands of miles distant from the atomic center. Although scientists have affirmed that such radioactive chemicals would have no effect on humans, thousands of people are nevertheless being warned to be careful. It is interesting to contemplate that a little bomb or two is death-dealing rays in the hands of a mad scientist, while hundreds of millions of people are being warned to be careful of the same rays. World War II has been a time of scientific advancement. Here is another example of scientific advancement. Dolly, "I caught my boy friend today." "I caught mine that way too."

Just a year ago next Wednesday, on the 14th, the guns went silent and the greatest war in history was over. For nearly six weeks that was about it. They had been silent. The V-J day was celebrated with bonfires and wild abandon throughout the world, and this year too there will be much merriment. Here in Manistique, Michigan, last August 14th of old, however, the fun with champagne was over and it will become a time of prayer and reverent tribute. This is the day when the memory of the millions of young men who died will tell us in the hearts about us with reality and greatness.

SUN SPOT ACTIVITY IS REACHING PEAK

No One Knows Cause, Astronomy Professor at State University Says

Sun spots are back in the news but no one knows what causes them!

Dr. Orren C. Mohler, assistant professor of astronomy at the University of Michigan, asserts 1946 will be a year marked by record sized sun spots and freesees possibilities for brilliant displays of Northern Lights. Sun spot activity is now reaching its 11-year peak, he added.

Thus far, he reports the year has produced the largest sun spot ever measured. This took place Feb. 1. Professor Mohler says, while another one late in July was only 10 per cent smaller. Although called spots, these dark patches on the sun are actually very large, but seem small in comparison to the sun's huge size. Prof. Mohler describes the July spot as being 110,000 miles long and 30,000 miles wide.

Cause Magnetic Storms

Sun spots cause magnetic storms which seriously hinder long distance short wave radio transmission. Prof. Mohler points out. Normally layers of ions, which are electrically charged atoms, encircle the earth and act as a mirror to reflect radio beams. When the sun spots appear, electrically charged particles from the sun crash into these ions and in effect smash the mirror.

Two theories exist as to the reason for Northern Lights. One is that the sun sends out streams of ionizing particles of light in the sky. Prof. Mohler says. One is ultra violet light from the sun spot strikes atoms high in the atmosphere and causes the light reflection.

The other theory is that the original bit of "atom busting" takes place as electrically charged particles from the sun bang into the ions, or atoms, and smash them to bits or cause a partial break up. The ions then reform and in the process emit light. The attraction of the earth's magnetic field causes these lights to appear in the northern skies.

But before we get into the Michigan problem of law enforcement, let's have a look or two at the reason why the Michigan Commissioner was selected by MacArthur to travel to Japan.

The story begins in 1917. The Michigan National Guard had been ordered into western service. Michigan was left without adequate police protection. The legislature, in the emergency, created the Michigan State Troop which became in 1924 the present day Michigan State Police. In 1931 the legislature added the function of highway patrol.

Today the department has 418 police officers and 161 civilian employees. It operates 45 radio stations; its post houses are the most modern in the Nation. Two-thirds of the recent war, Three were killed in action.

The legislative act which created the state police placed the commissioner, its executive authority, under the immediate control and direction of the Governor. Furthermore, "any member of the state police shall not be employed by the attorney general in any investigation or matter under the jurisdiction of his department."

Because local police and sheriffs were zealous of their rights, the legislature stipulated that the state police shall not interfere in the local jurisdiction of other police agencies unless so ordered by the Governor. The procedure is interesting. Here is the law:

"The commissioner shall have authority, upon the order of the Governor, to call upon any sheriff or other police officer of any county, city, township or village, within the limits of their respective jurisdictions, for aid and assistance in the performance of any function imposed by this act."

Refusal or neglect by a local official to cooperate with the state police in law enforcement would subject said officer, the legislature decreed, to removal from office on grounds of "misfeasance in office."

Here is how the procedure actually works.

Not so many years ago vice and gambling conditions in Macomb County provided citizens to file complaints directly with the Governor at Lansing.

The Governor promptly summoned the prosecuting attorney and the sheriff of Macomb County to come to Lansing. He instructed them to file up Macomb County for the "drastic" action would be taken at once.

The inference was unmistakable. The Michigan State Police, responsible directly to the Governor by legislative decision would swing into action. Local officials would face the disgrace of removal from office.

What happened? Your guess is accurate. Laws were enforced.

The keynote to the relationship of Michigan State Police to other law enforcement agencies is one word—"cooperation."

A citizen's complaint is to be filed first with the local police authority—the police chief if the violation occurred within the city, the sheriff if the violation occurred beyond the city limits within the county.

Then if the violation continues, it is within the citizen's right to appeal directly to the Governor of Michigan who then can ask for official investigation and report, and finally can instruct the State Police to enforce the law.

It is obvious that, in the above procedure the power of the Governor is great. He is the key to good government.

One of the postwar plans of the Michigan State Police is a training school for municipal policemen and firemen. The school would be administered jointly by the department and Michigan State College, East Lansing. A six weeks' course of intensive training would be given to rookie officers, and a certificate awarded to them at their graduation.

The state legislature has already appropriated funds for a radio engineering building and a quartermaster's building at state headquarters. Other needs include an identification building to house the holding files, a garage building and an electrical distribution center.

Commissioner Olander is enthusiastic about the program for training of policemen and firemen which he says has been endorsed by many police and fire chiefs.

If it works well in Michigan, it might also in Japan.

General MacArthur, for one, is definitely interested in the Michigan State Police.

...and to keep it good.

GOVERNOR'S SALARY RANKS 26TH IN U. S.

State Government Head Most Poorly Paid Of Any East Of Mississippi

Although Michigan ranks seventh in population among all of the states and sixth in total revenues, it ranks a poor 26th in salary paid the governor, according to figures just released by the Michigan Survey.

Only 13 states pay their head of state less than Michigan and nine states pay the same rate of $7,500 per year. Michigan's governor is the lowest paid of any of the middle-western states east of the Mississippi River. New York's governor ranks first in salary with $25,000; while Pennsylvania is third with an $18,000 governor's salary. Nineteen states pay their governors $10,000 per year or more. South Dakota is lowest on the list paying its governor only $4,000 per year.

Michigan makes an average showing in the list of salaries paid other administrative officials. It ranks 22nd in the salary allocated to the attorney general ($5,000), 17th in the budget director's salary ($7,500) 15th in the $5,500 paid the labor commissioner and 14th in the $5,000 paid the commissioner of public works. Relative of the nation's war dead are being warned by the American Legion to shun all persons and organizations attempting to sell information and advice about the graves of fighting men buried overseas, Commander Lowell S. Hebbard, of the Manistique post, announced this week.

It is believed that the old World War I racket of selling such information has been revived by persons playing on the sympathies of the next-of-kin of war casualties.

As recently announced by the American Legion, complete plans have been made for the repatriation of this county's 328,000 World War II dead, and the Army and Navy will soon write next-of-kin to obtain instructions for disposition of bodies.

The Indians having this unusual dual language system which spared the men the necessity for listening to feminine chatter were the island Caribs of Dominica, an island of the West Indies.

Douglas Rae Taylor, a specialist in the study of languages, while visiting Michigan Linguistics Institute, explains that long ago the Caribs invaded Dominica and captured all the women of the tribe then living there. The women kept their own language and

...and to keep it good.

But before we get into the Michigan problem of law enforcement, let's have a look or two at the reason why the Michigan Commissioner was selected by MacArthur to travel to Japan.

The story begins in 1917. The Michigan National Guard had been ordered into western service. Michigan was left without adequate police protection. The legislature, in the emergency, created the Michigan State Troop which became in 1924 the present day Michigan State Police. In 1931 the legislature added the function of highway patrol.

Today the department has 418 police officers and 161 civilian employees. It operates 45 radio stations; its post houses are the most modern in the Nation. Two-thirds of the recent war, Three were killed in action.

The legislative act which created the state police placed the commissioner, its executive authority, under the immediate control and direction of the Governor. Furthermore, "any member of the state police shall not be employed by the attorney general in any investigation or matter under the jurisdiction of his department."

Because local police and sheriffs were zealous of their rights, the legislature stipulated that the state police shall not interfere in the local jurisdiction of other police agencies unless so ordered by the Governor. The procedure is interesting. Here is the law:

"The commissioner shall have authority, upon the order of the Governor, to call upon any sheriff or other police officer of any county, city, township or village, within the limits of their respective jurisdictions, for aid and assistance in the performance of any function imposed by this act."

Refusal or neglect by a local official to cooperate with the state police in law enforcement would

Reminds Parents To Protect Tots Against Disease

With the opening of school only a few weeks away, Dr. R. A. Bremer, local health director, reminds parents to have their children vaccinated against smallpox, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

"We do not want children to enter school without this protection," Dr. Bremer said. "The dangers are too great. The opening of school brings children from widely separated areas into close contact. This means a greater possibility of exposure to these diseases."

"Parents should not wait until the last day or two before school opens to have their children immunized. They should do it now because it takes several weeks for immunity to build up."

For those youngsters who have not been vaccinated for these diseases during infancy, it is recommended that they have single or booster doses for all four. Children who have never been immunized should have the full series of preventive treatments.

Pre-school clinics were held here in June. Children who were not brought to these clinics should be taken to their family doctor for the immunizations.

POWER CORRUPTS

One of the infallible lessons of history is that power corrupts. Again and again unbridled power has corrupted individuals, organizations, corporations, and nations. Perhaps it is unfortunate that nature has made the average human mind incapable of standing firm and honest under the burden of too much power. Or maybe it is nature's way of leveling off the human race, for corruption indicates internal decay and the power which caused the corruption is taken away or destroyed eventually by others.

Napoleon originally launched France on a great adventure, but power corrupted him and his country and led both to eventual ruin. Power corrupted Mussolini and led his country into the abyss of despair. Too much power corrupted Hitler and eventually all of Germany—and today this great nation is a shambles.

We do not have to look at nations to view the consequences of too much power. We have seen what it did to industrial nations during the past 50 years. Today we can see where it is leading many labor unions. Many of us, too, know of individuals in our own sphere of life who rise to great influence and proved unable to take it—losing friends and eventually the very power which caused their retrogression.

If the corruption of power injured only its direct victims, life would flow on merrily for the rest of us. But misused power affects others with its arrogance and unprincipled activities; and in the cataclysm of its downfall there is ruin and despair for the innocent as well as the guilty.

There is grief in store for many in the jockeying for power among America's great labor groups—for the corruption is setting in, and the inevitable consequences already are being felt.

And there may be vaster grief in the tug of war for world influence between the United States and Soviet Russia. So far, America has been held firm by the principles of human decency on which the nation was conceived and reared. But the corruptive force already is at work in Soviet Russia—just as it was in Germany under Hitler. Carried to its logical conclusion, it means destruction of Russia, but the rest of mankind may sink in the process.

We must forever be on our guard against too much power for anyone—individual, group or nation.

TOO MUCH SENSE

Those who forecast that the demise of the OPA at the end of June would result in immediate and uncontrolled inflation showed insufficient faith in the wisdom of the American people—and in the efficiency of the production and distribution machines which serve them.

Prices, of course, rose in many instances. This was due in a number of cases to the elimination of government subsidies—the consumer simply started to pay all the costs out of his pocket at the time of purchase, instead of the government paying part of his living through taxes. In other cases, past OPA prices had been too low and increases were justified and inevitable. But in no instance did the upward price spiral go on and on without end.

One reason for that is consumer resistance. The average American isn't a sucker. If prices for certain commodities go too high, he simply goes without them or buys substitutes. Another reason is a slow but definite increase in supply in many basic lines. As more goods enter the free market, the opportunities for the black marketer and chiseler diminish. They prosper only in economy of scarcity.

A third reason is the very fine work by distributors in voluntarily controlling prices, in opposing hoarding, and in keeping the largest possible stocks available at all times. Whatever the future of price control, we should not depend on it to prevent dangerous inflation. SCIENTISTS PROBE DISHWASHING ART

College is doing research on the best way to rate cleansing agents. Study 'Cold Sterilization'.

Research on "cold sterilization" of utensils is under the direction of Dr. Thomas Francis, Jr., head of the Department of Bacteriology at the University of Michigan. By this method, utensils are cleaned by rinsing in chemically treated water at a temperature lower than 170 degrees.

Another important phase of the studies is an effort to determine the effects of the various cleansing agents on the skin of the home kitchen or hotels, restaurants and other eating places.

The research is concerned with determining the time and temperature necessary to eliminate all public health hazards from eating utensils, the mechanics of washing and rinsing, how effectively a cleansing agent will remove soil from utensils under actual working conditions and the possibilities of "cold sterilization" of utensils.

Hope To Unify Codes. The non-profit Michigan incorporated foundation hopes results of its studies may help to unify dishwashing codes throughout the country and aid manufacturers in developing more efficient dishwashing machines.

The code of the U. S. Public Health Service recommends a time period of two minutes at 170 degrees Fahrenheit for hand washing of utensils but many communities and even states deviate markedly from this requirement.

Ten dishwashing machines are being tested in the Foundation's investigation of time and temperature dishwashing standards being carried out at Michigan State College under the direction of Dr. W. L. Mallman, Montana State

U. P. Having Biggest Tourist Year, Recent Figures Show

U. P. Stanness and John Kasun versus R. G. Hentschel and Fred Hahne.

Jack Riley and Jack Hough versus Ferd Gorsche and Dr. J. H. Fyvie.

Stanness and Kasun went into the semi-finals by their defeat of Dr. N. L. Lindquist and Dr. E. J. Brenner, 5-3; and Hentschel and Hahne by defeating Carlton Siddall and Edwood Taylor, 2-up. Riley and Hough defeated Thomas Grimsley and Emery Barnes, 2-1; and Gorsche and Dr. Fyvie took a 10-hole match from Ben Gero, Jr. and Bud Malloy.

"They must be stopping somewhere." According to records of the Michigan highway department's desk office at St. Ignace, total passage of cars across the Straits of Mackinac this year, up to and including July 24, is approximately 200 per cent above crossings for the same period in 1945, and is more than 15 per cent greater than the traffic count in 1941—record year for the Straits ferries.

Although the state-operated car ferries carried only 12,731 cars during the four-day Fourth of July week end and including July 6 is 125,554, an increase of 14,011 over the 1941 total of 109,543.

"It appears from these figures," George E. Bishop, secretary-manager of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, said, "that traffic for the full year 1946 will reach an all-time high."

A large part of the motorists crossing the Straits are coming into the peninsula to spend weeks at resorts, hotels, cabins, and private residences somewhere. To say they have "oversold" Upper Michigan in our advertising and publicity program for 1946 is unjust; figures prove that we are enjoying the greatest tourist and resort season in our history.

Admitting that there are four committees for next week's meeting will be Mrs. Ernest Eckhardt, Mrs. A. J. Radgens and Mrs. Bud Malloy. Those planning to attend are asked to notify the committee.

COUNTY MAY PICK QUEEN CANDIDATE

Upper Peninsula Fair Manager, Here Tuesday, Tells Of Queen Contest

Saturday, August 31, will be Queen's Day at the Upper Peninsula State Fair and the selection of the State Fair Queen will be announced and presented at the Saturday evening grandstand program.

It is planned to have at least one queen candidate from every county of the upper peninsula and invitations will be extended to organizations and communities for queen nominees, according to Harold Lindsay, fair manager, who was in Manistique Tuesday. Candidates may be queens selected during the winter sports contest last winter, district queens, potato queens or representatives of any other groups. A number of cities are reported to be selecting candidates for their V-J Day observances this month and these nominees will probably be entered in the State Fair queen contest.

All of the queens will be guests of the fair on Saturday, Aug. 31. They will be properly chaperoned by Mrs. G. C. Meyland, of Marquette, who with Claude Bishop, also of Marquette, is conducting the queen contest for the U. P. State Fair Board. An appropriate gift will be presented to every queen entered in the contest and a special gift will be given to the girl chosen as State Fair Queen.

The queens will participate in an important box during the Saturday afternoon program at the grandstand. A queen's luncheon is planned for Saturday noon.

Any organization desiring further information concerning the queen contest may write to the Upper Peninsula State Fair office at Escanaba, or to C. E. Bishop or Mrs. G. C. Meyland, Marquette.
